

PROSPECTS FOR OIL AND GAS IN SUNSHINE STATE, GOOD

Report Of The United States Geological Survey Indicates Areas Favorable For Drilling. Wells Should Be Sunk Deep. Report Encouraging.

We are in receipt of the report of the United States Geological Survey of New Mexico which should be of great amount of encouragement to those, who have heretofore been of a doubtful mind in regard to the importance of the Sunshine State as a future oil and gas producer. The report is lengthy and we are giving a few of the many good things contained therein. After speaking of the investigation throughout the state, the report says: "In Guadalupe County, for example, the apex of the most clearly marked domes is in the west-central part of T. 11. N. R. 19 E., Lincoln county is traversed by a broad anticline that lies east of the Sierra Blanca structural basin and passes near Lincoln. In the western part of Lincoln county there are several domes that appear to be favorable for the storage of oil, although there is no visible evidence that they contain oil. They are in T. 6 S. R. 5 E., in the northeastern part of T. 9 S., R. 8 E., and in the center of T. 5 S., R. 12 E., and in the center of T. 2 S., R. 4 E., there is a dome in Abo red beds. The plunging anticline at the north end of the Oscura mountain uplift is also in the eastern part of this county.

All test wells sunk in this region should be carried entirely through the sedimentary series, which in the domes and anticlines mentioned is from 2,000 to 3,000 feet thick and at intervals from top to bottom contains coarse sands, some of which may be oil bearing."

Wins Office For War Hero's Widow

Danville, Ill., April 7.—Guy Kitchen member of battery A, 149th field artillery, commanded by the late Colonel Curtis G. Redden, who was elected town clerk of Danville at yesterday's election, resigned today in favor of the colonel's widow, who was left with three small children to support. Kitchen who fought in 11 battles in the world war was nominated by a number of his comrades on the republican ticket for the purpose of winning the election and turning the job over to the widow of their chief. Col. Redden died in France of pneumonia after serving throughout the war.

Grateful Motorman

Toledo, Ohio, April 8.—A motorman here failed to see a tiny child on the track until the fender "scooped" up the baby. Then he stepped from his cab, picked up the child, kissed it and put it on the curb.

The City Election

The city election held Monday passed off actively and peacefully. Friends of candidates on the two tickets worked earnestly and diligently from early morning until the polls closed for their favorites. This being the initial contest for Carrizozo, workers of both parties mingled together in a good natured neighborly manner, with no strife or serious contention, consequently, the election passed off quietly and in order. The polls opened at 9 o'clock and by virtue of the fact that Mr. C. A. Perkins, who had been appointed as one of the clerks, was unable to serve and Mr. B. F. Goff, who was appointed as one of the judges being unable to serve on account of his residence being outside of the city limits, Mr. Sherwood Corn was selected to serve as Judge, while Mr. G. T. McQuillen was selected to serve as clerk to take the place of Mr. Perkins. The voting continued gradually throughout the day, the last one being cast just 30 seconds before the close of the polls. The entire Citizens' Ticket was elected; the total number of votes cast being 252. Mr. Rolland received 136 votes; Mr. Brickley received 108 votes; Mr. Rolland's majority, 28 votes. For the council, Mr. Richard on the Citizens' Ticket received 150 votes which was the largest cast for a single candidate. The balance of candidates on the above ticket received votes as follows: Mr. Taylor, 136; Mr. Squire, 134; Mr. Lujan, 145. For the council on the Independent Ticket, Mr. Cribb received 108 votes; Mr. Harvey, 99; Mr. St. John, 93; Mr. Warden, 103. For clerk, on the Citizens' Ticket, Mr. Stadtman received 123 votes. On the Independent Ticket, Mr. Treat received 116. The official count may change the figures to some extent.

To Mayor Rolland and the new council, the Outlook offers its congratulations and pledges its support to every effort for the public good. Every new official from the mayor down, are deeply interested in the future good and welfare of Carrizozo and to this end, the Outlook offers its help and support. To Mr. Brickley and others on the defeated ticket, we give credit for their hard work and game losing. The new city roster stands as follows: A. J. Rolland, Mayor; W. W. Stadtman, Clerk; City Council, F. E. Richard, Julian Taylor, S. L. Squier, Benjamin Lujan.

Begin With Us By Answering, "Yes"

The New State Oil & Gas company is seeking to benefit our locality, by combining enough acreage under lease to be the proper incentive to drilling companies to come in here and make a deep test for oil. Now begin with us and see how far we can go together on the proposition of answering "yes," to the questions that follow:

'We have repeatedly put the plan of combining this acreage for the above purpose before you, haven't we? Yes.

This is all perfectly plain to you then, isn't it? Yes.

You are satisfied that both the plan and the company are all right, aren't you? Yes.

This really is a nice feature, likewise a grand opportunity, don't you think? Yes.

You would really like to see the drilling companies come in here and go to work, wouldn't you? Yes.

And you understand, that they will not come without the guarantee of a large acreage, of which a part is yours, don't you? Yes.

And you as a progressive man, are willing with others to lease your land to help bring these things to pass, now aren't you? Yes.

Now! Altogether—YES!

Arizona Rancher Found Slain

Tombstone, Arizona, April 8.—J. G. Peterson, 70 years old, a rancher and prospector of Sunny-side, Cochise county, was found murdered in his cabin near Cave Creek, in Garden canyon, 40 miles south of here, today. He had been missing for three days, and a search by officers resulted in the finding of the body, shortly after noon.

Sheriff James F. McDonald and a posse late today were searching the country around Cave Creek. Footprints leading from the cabin were said here to have furnished a clue to the identity of Peterson's assailant.

Peterson came to his death by foul means, but officers here were unable to say what weapons were used.

Federal Payrolls Packed, Lowden Says

Indianapolis, Ind., April 7.—Governor Frank O. Lowden, candidate for the republican nomination for president, declared in a speech before the Columbia club today that the government of the United States was primitive and in need of revision along business lines.

He quoted statistics to show that on October 31, last, there were 102,000 government employees in Washington, as compared to 30,000 in 1916.

"The first step toward reform is the creating of a budgetary machinery with power vested in the secretary of the treasury," he said. "Then all these unnecessary offices will be uncovered."

Firemen And Engineers to Walk Out in Sympathy With Strikers. Freight Traffic Restricted and Sit- uation Becomes Alarming.

Chicago, April 7.—Representatives of 8,500 members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen employed in the Chicago switching district today had defied their union officials and voted to join the unauthorized switchmen's strike called nearly a week ago.

Freight traffic through the expansive Chicago district already was restricted seriously and both sides agreed that if the force of strikers was augmented such traffic would be brought virtually to a standstill.

The vote of the engineers and firemen came in the face of predictions of grand officers of its Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Switchmen's Union of North America, that by Saturday the strike would be broken by loyal union men rushed here from other cities.

Women Undress for Dinner Now, Says Pastor

London, Eng., April 8.—"Woman's evening dress today is immodest, unhealthy and as ugly as it is expensive," is Rev. Vaughn's latest broadside against the dress craze, delivered during a sermon.

"Girls of up to date fashions are ruining their own and their neighbors' souls as well as their own bodies.

"In days gone by women dressed for dinner; now they undress for it.

"To my way of thinking, women's dress ought to serve the three purposes of decency, of warmth and of ornament. But today there is a mad craze for what some women call the 'emotional gown' and dress sins against every canon of good taste."

WHITE MAN

ANDREA AND WHITE MAN GO ON HUNTING TRIP.

Andrea Pellor, handsome daughter of Lord Pellor, impetuous aristocrat, is doomed to marry an illiterate but wealthy middle-aged diamond mine owner. She disconsolately wanders from her hotel in South Africa and discovers an aviator about to fly from the beach. Impulsively, of course imagining that the trip will be merely a pleasant excursion, and a welcome relief from thoughts of her loveless marriage, she begs to be taken for a flight, although she does not know him. He somewhat unwillingly agrees, and they start. When she realizes her unknown aviator is not going back Andrea in desperation tries to choke him with one of her stockings. He thwarts her and they sail on into the very heart of Africa. Landing in an immense grassy plain, Andrea finds the natives all bow in worship to her mysterious companion. She is given a slave boy, "Bathub," and the White Man sets about building a hut for her. Andrea is given a glimpse of the homo which is to be hers, and wonders at its complacency. White Man invites her to dinner that evening, and in spite of the fact that he has refused to take her back to civilization Andrea accepts his invitation, but he continues deaf to her pleading that he restore her to her friends.

Andrea reached for a fresh cigarette. "Don't be absurd," she said. "I'm not going to bed for hours." She glanced at him with a sort of diffident look, as though she were about to give away a secret. "When I yawn, always keep on talking. It means I'm—I'm tired. You know."

"D— your society tricks," remarked the man. "I'm going." He arose and turned his back on her. Before he had taken three strides her voice came to him and in it was a new quality, a sure maturity. "Go if you like," she said evenly, "but I shall sit here until you come back."

He turned at once, a flush in his cheeks. "Forgive me," he said simply, struck a match and held it for her. "Now health," said Andrea. "Don't you think I'm reasonably healthy already?"

"No," said the man, "until you've wolfed a whole meal and grabbed chicken with your fingers, you don't really know what bodily health means. God has given you such beauty of skin that you owe it to every eye that caresses itself with a sight of you to keep it without blemish, and yet you sit there and ask me if you're not reasonably healthy, with a spot on your cheek."

"Oh!" cried the girl. A sea of sudden color swirled about her neck, up into her face and down over one-half the length of her bare arm. She threw up a hand to her cheek and pressed it there. Her eyes were aflame. "If ever I can hurt you—" she said slowly. "If—over—I—can—"

The man looked surprised; then contrite and finally grave. "Let me assure you," he said, "that you will inevitably have it in your power."

"I'll not forget when that day comes," she said and arose. With her hand still pressed to her face, she hurried from him across the kraal into her room and slammed and barred the door behind her. She went straight to the mirror and took her hand away. Such a trifle that tiny spot had seemed last night, the night of a party—just an excuse for a beauty patch of black plaster—and tonight it was immeasurably ugly!

With bed so near she could not stop to cry just yet. She went about her preparation deliberately, subconsciously secure in the thought that she could soon soak her pillow in aching comfort. Throughout her maneuvering she was aware of a presence in the room, inanimate but terrifyingly personal. However she turned, it still lurked in the corner of her eye, accused her of dallying and almost said aloud, "Eventually! why not now?" Finally she slipped off the rest of her dainty clothes and with eyes screwed tight shut, groped for the presence, seized it and put it on in two parts.

"Oh!" she gasped in a rage, "that I should have to wear that beast's silk pajamas!" She put out the light, buried herself at the cot, curled up like a kitten, drew the sheet over her head, cuddled late the pillow and sobbed, "Poor Andrea! Poor Andrea! Pe—Pe—"

Brutal, elemental sleep had choked the words in her throat.

There is no telling when Andrea would have awaked had it not been for Bathub, who thundered on her door at the scandalously late hour in that clime of eight in the morning.

"Bath ready, Miss! Bath ready, Miss!" he was chanting monotonously. She arose, put on her cloak, opened the door and rubbed her eyes at the shock of a second day glare.

The boy grinned from ear to ear. "Bath ready!" he exclaimed with a happy finality and bearing towels and soap led her to the newly constructed little hut in the yard. He placed the paraphernalia on a chair set close to a collapsible canvas tub and from a neighboring smoldering fire fetched a big tin of water.

"Hot water!" cried Andrea. "Why, I'm boiling myself. Bring me cold water."

"Cold water no good," affirmed Bathub as he emptied the tin.

"But I wish cold water," said Andrea.

"Cold water plenty no good for white Miss," reaffirmed Bathub and withdrew, carefully closing the door behind him.

Andrea enjoyed the bath and learned in ten minutes the soundness of the tropical rule that it had taken some old-timer ten years to evolve: The hotter the day the hotter the water. Feeling refreshed, almost cool, she started back to her room, but stopped on the veranda, her eyes held by sundry things on the table, a man's soft shirt, freshly ironed, a roll of khaki cloth, scissors, a thimble and one of those popper-pot tins of assorted needles. She stared at them long and helplessly, her lower lip trembling; then she went in, put on her things except her frock and covered its lack with her cloak. She did her hair last of all, by way of change, and just as she finished heard Bathub's call to breakfast.

Neither white man nor black was in evidence, but even so the day passed swiftly, so many were the new features of the kraal's changing scene. She chose a book at random; had her hammock-chair dragged into the shade of the dining tree and stretched out to her first lesson in lax content. Gradually she grew drowsy with the heat, but not so sleepy that she failed to hear from away off the far-carrying report, six times repeated, of a high-powered rifle.

Bathub, squatted near by, looked up with a beatific smile. "Master," he stated.

It was two hours later when the incident was repeated in every detail save that the shots came from still farther away; and about three hours after, once more the thing happened. Bathub rolled his eyes and hugged himself in gormandizing anticipation as he breathed the word, "Master!"

Andrea was vaguely interested until the sequel to those eighteen shots began to arrive and then she was stunned with horror. Amid the shouts of men and the shrill ululating of the women they began to come in, beast after beast, each trussed to a pole and borne by six, sometimes eight, naked and straining blacks.

First to arrive were five sable antelope, beautiful even in death, the proud sweep of their glorious horns inverted, thick tongues dragging in the dust. The bearers did not stop within the kraal, but passed through it, chanting wildly as though they were engaged in a perverted Bacchanalian pageant of blood. Women and children streamed after them, and even Bathub looked longingly in the direction they had gone.

Scarcely had the hullabaloo of their passing died into the distance when a new contingent arrived. "M'sungu, M'sungu," the one word she knew, dropped out from their jabber with the steady recurrence of a haunting fugue. What they bore were six wide-beasts, male and female, buttocks of the plain, still pitifully grotesque, their horse-like tails trailing like discouraged fuscous plumes.

"Oh, White Man," gasped Andrea, covering her eyes, "oh, M'sungu!"

And then it came again, four loads this time, but every one as big as a horse. Eight men strained under each carcass of eland, largest and gentlest of all the hundred varieties of antelope that swarm over the length and breadth of Africa.

Andrea arose, but her knees trembled so that she quickly sat down in one of the wicker chairs, clutching its arms with hands gone white as though all the blood in her body had hidden in shame. Then came the white man, followed by gunbearers, water-boy and trackers. His face and his bare arms were streaked with sweat and dust. His shirt and trousers clung to him in great dark blots of moisture. He nodded to Andrea as he made straight for his hut.

Suddenly her strength came back to her. She sprang up and rushed to cut him off. "You are a murderer," she gasped as she faced him.

The man stopped in his tracks and stared at her. Gradually he took in her meaning. "You think I do it for—for fun?" he exclaimed.

"Murderer," she repeated tensely.

The man glanced at his hut and turned his back on it with a sigh. "Come with me," he said.

"I shall never go anywhere with you," replied Andrea.

The man faced her quickly. "You will come with me or be carried. Take your choice."

Their eyes met and held in one of those struggles that measure not so much the contending characters as the strength of the opposing purposes. The man's purpose won out. Andrea dropped her eyes and followed him. He passed swiftly through the kraal and along a well-known path that led to the fringe of the forest. Under an enormous mafuta tree the butchers were at work, four to each carcass, skinning, cutting, hacking with practiced hands. The meat was being piled in heaps, and at each heap was stationed a black captain. Under his direction a host of helpers were cutting the flesh into minute portions.

Beyond the limits of the tree's far-flung branches squatted a black army—men with assegais in their hands; women and children with queer conical baskets in their laps. Physically these people were, without exception, a joy to the eye, but beyond them, grouped together under another tree and hopelessly staring, was a small band that brought sudden tears to Andrea's eyes. Never before had she seen human bones and skin without flesh, live eyes staring from the skeleton emblem of death.

At last the division of the sanguinary spoil was completed. The well-fed army lined up, each and every man accompanied "by woman or child" as beast for the small burden. These men were also provided with individual brass checks, which they cast into the baskets at the feet of the captain upon receipt of their portion of meat. At the end, to Andrea's amazement, the tally was exact except that it left the starving group out of the count.

Through it all the white man had stood grimly by, uttering not a word and leaving her to the assistance of her own intelligence. She began to understand; the possessors of the brass checks had worked for them. But her eyes lingered pitifully on the starving.

She turned to the man with a gesture of pleading—pleading for pardon for herself, mercy for the silent suffering. "What about these?" she asked. "They will receive a ration of millet," he answered. "Tomorrow the men will crawl to the forests, twice a week they will get meat checks. In a month they and their families will be fat and sleek. We refuse no one who wishes to work."

He turned to lead the way back to the kraal and, once there, promptly disappeared into his hut. Half an hour later Andrea was nervously moving about her room, wondering whether to put on her frock or not, when Bathub arrived with a message. Did she wish to dine alone or with M'sungu? "Tell your master," she answered, "that I will dine with him with pleasure."

During the meal, the white man talked, giving her listlessly certain explanatory information. "Eight months ago," he said, "I struck this country. It was desolation. In spite of the big river, which is quite near by, the whole district was in famine. I passed through ruined kraal after ruined kraal, and in some of them dead bodies lay about, too dried out in life even to rot. The game swarmed as it does only in dry seasons, and thrived."

Andrea held both hands out toward him as though to stop him. "Don't—," she cried, "don't think I haven't understood!"

"Upon my word," remarked the man dryly, "you're getting clearer!" She sank back in her chair with a look of reproach, but he did not notice it. "I'm telling you," he continued, "I came to hunt and recover—" He paused.

Andrea could not keep her eyes from glancing toward the airplane. It was as though she had followed his hidden thought. He smiled slightly, changed his sentence and finished, "And for another purpose. But almost on the day of arrival I made a discovery in the forest. Out of it has grown an industry that employs hundreds of natives and never refuses a new recruit. I am working absolutely without title and should you return to civilization, my ruin would be quite within your grasp."

"And that is why I must stay," said Andrea.

"No," said the man reading her face. "If I could drop you back tomorrow there on the beach where I found you, I would do it."

She felt a definite surge of pleasure, out of all proportion to the occasion. "Thank you," she whispered, and then flushed at a sudden wonder as to the exact nature of a feeling of gladness over the fact that she was not called upon then and there to decide whether in her heart she wished to go or stay.

"But I can't," continued the man. "I can't leave my people or my work for two weeks; I dare not trust you to a native escort." He drew away from the table that he might cross his knees, took a cigar and lit it.

"You've eaten nothing," said Andrea. "I'm too tired to eat just now," he answered.

Presently she arose. "I'm tired, too, White Man," she lied. "May I leave you?"

He gave her an almost grateful glance, arose and lifted one side of the net for her to pass. She went to her room to read, but an hour later, when she glanced out, surprised to see the lights burning under the tree, the white man was still there, hands dropped upon his knees, head fallen forward, sound asleep in his chair.

Andrea clasped and unclasped her hands nervously. "Oh, why doesn't he go to bed?" she said to herself. "He can't get any comfort out of that sort of thing." Finally she stole out and found Bathub. "Wake your master," she commanded. "Tell him to go to bed."

The darkey grinned up at her sleepily until he grasped her request, then his face took on a look of mixed fear and mischief. "Bathub wake M'sungo one time plenty long ago and never forget. Miss's try it!"

She looked at the lax figure, bone-tired, plunged miles deep in slumber, but even from those depths exuding a sense of compelling latent power, and hesitated. Getting up her courage she coughed twice quite loudly, but ineffectually, and then, feeling almost relieved that nothing happened, stole away on tiptoe.

CHAPTER V.

The seven days that followed were much as the first; when the white man was not shooting for the pot he was away overseeing his army of laborers. He ate but twice a day, at half past five in the morning, and twelve hours thereafter. To the latter meal Andrea was invariably and formally invited.

At each successive invitation she hesitated a little longer before accepting, and on the seventh night she refused. Any woman can easily understand why, but the surprising thing was that the man seemed to know just what was happening to her spirit. No stomach living can stand pigeon fourteen days in succession, nor is there a maid that can put on the same identical clothes for half that time without feeling demoralized. She knew he knew, for twice during the week he had told her bluntly to hand her fingers to Bathub at night, and she had found it at her door in the morning, miraculously washed, dried and more or less ironed.

There was nothing in the dawn of the eighth morning to indicate that it was ushering in a day of days, nor did Andrea more than turn her head when shortly after noon two bearers staggered into camp with a steamer trunk slung on a pole between them. There was no reason in the world why she should connect that trunk in any way with herself, even when, an hour after its arrival, she beheld approaching the magnificent and unforgettable specimen of black manhood she had last seen on the morning of her ravishment.

The new-comer dismissed the two bearers, making them take the pole and its lashings with them. They departed after one long, disconsolate look. He then seated himself beside the trunk and never moved until, late in the afternoon, the white man appeared, when he arose, saluted and then made a solemn gesture toward the load others had carried.

The white man's eyes lighted up; he seemed more cheerful than he had been in days.

He spoke to the black in dialect, whereupon he grasped a single handle of the trunk, and with one smooth movement passed it over his shoulder right side up to the crown of his head. He then marched with it into Andrea's sala.

She sprang up. "Why!" she exclaimed and then added, her heart sinking within her, "You don't think that's one of mine, do you? Because it isn't."

She watched to see his face fall, but it didn't. From his pocket he took a bunch of keys, quickly slipped one from the ring and handed it to her. "Please open the trunk. It's certainly yours, as is all that it contains." He turned from her and added, "By the way, I'm dining in khaki tonight."

As Andrea walked slowly to her room, clutching the key tightly, she confessed to herself that she was being eaten alive by curiosity. "If—only," she breathed, "there should happen to be one whole pair of stockings!"

Half an hour later, when every last thing the trunk had contained was piled upon her cot, she went to the door and closed it softly; then returned to drop on her knees, throw her arms wide across the accumulation, bury her hot face against one article after another and kiss each in turn!

There is every reason to enumerate that pile of dry goods if only to put on record for the benefit of the sporting world in general a list that it took many years to compile; two to decide what was necessary; eight to determine what of that wasn't. To begin at the bottom, there were two pairs of stout, brown, high, laced walking boots; then, in rapid succession, six pairs of lisle thread stockings to match; one pair of boys' pig-skin puttees; six dainty but sensible one-piece undies of softest and whitest woven cotton; three pairs of khaki breeches (youth's size); three khaki skirts, knee length, buttoned with real buttons and buttonholes all the way up the front and all the way up the back; four suits of pajamas, white madras, with silk frogs and knobs; six khaki shirts (two breast pockets each); one belt; three brown ties; one khaki-colored woolen sweater; one mackintosh, with hood; two khaki jackets (enormous pockets); two black hair ribbons and one nut-brown tam-o'-shanter!

There were also a few assorted packages, one or two of which even this frank chronicler refuses to open, but no harm can attach to the mention of a well-stocked housewife, an equally complete toilet case, a bathrobe, a pair of bedroom slippers, and a long, flat cardboard box that had been at the bottom of the trunk, and which Andrea had as yet refrained from exploring. On it was written in a strangely masculine hand: "The Return of the Native."

She opened it now and disclosed one of those adorable filmy hybrid frocks, a double cross between afternoon, evening and elf-land wear; one set of crepe de chine lovelies; two pairs of silk stockings, one pair of satin slippers. "And he said he's going to wear khaki tonight," she moaned.

Is it necessary to state that she presently got up off her knees and beginning at the head of the bed, started to try on every last thing? She did, and she was only half through when Bathub knocked on the door and announced, "Bath ready." No invitation this time—an order.

"Oh, dear!" she sighed and rushed for the utterly inadequate mirror.

Five minutes later her door opened and she stepped out, slowly, like some shy thing of the forest. Flashed of cheek, brilliant of eye, she walked toward the man. Oh, big black bowl! Oh, hair starting one way and going another, keeping a squared shoulder to come to rest and rise and fall against the rounded face of a firm young breast! Oh, violet! Oh, youth! Oh, day and hour of the gay heart! The man looked and saw that her knees were round, her legs straight. "Thank God," he murmured.

Andrea worries about her wardrobe.

Board of Education

The County Board of Education met Wednesday with Mrs. M. L. Blaney, President, presiding. Members present as follows: E. L. Moulton, Robert Brady, E. M. Brickley and Frank Safazar. The contract for a three-room adobe school house at Lincoln was awarded to Porfirio Chavez. The contract for a four-room brick school house at Ancho, was awarded to Frank English and the one for a one-room school house at Escondido, went to Jose Analla.

E. L. Moulton gave a detailed account of the damage done to the new building at Corona on March 27. The building, which was to have been used for a gymnasium, auditorium and library, under the course of construction with the shell or skeleton as it may be called, was about ready for the roof, when a violent wind storm visited Corona, which completely demolished the structure. The plans were complete and perfect but lacking the roofing, it was too weak to resist the force of the violent storm.

The damage which was about $5,000 was fully covered by the surety company and no loss will be suffered by the county. The board transacted a heavy budget of business which consumed the greater part of the day. Many reports were examined from the different districts concerning educational matters.

Easter Festivities

Class No. 3 of the Baptist Sunday school gave an Easter party last Friday at the home of Mrs. Scott. Many games were played, followed by a pan of eggs being passed to the boys, each egg containing the name of one of the girls present. After reading the name, each boy selected the girl, whose name appeared on his egg and escorted her to refreshments which consisted of vanilla punch and wafers. Those present were: Ada Corn, Lois Jones, Lois Stidham, Alta Carl, Grace Taylor, Barbara Hust, Clarite McQuillen, Irma Pogue, Johnny Mae McIlhane, Mabel and Ruby Smith, Robana Corn, Charlotte Elliott, Edina Shaver, Mr. and Mrs. Heath, Roy Stimmel, William Johnson, Linza Branum, Charles Scott, Daniel Elliott, Lewis Shook, Frank Montgomery, Edwin McCarty, Clayton Hust, Joe McIlhane, Robert Pogue and Dayton Heron.

At the home of Mrs. W. C. Merchant, Saturday afternoon, the Sunday school gave an Easter egg hunt. The hunt lasted from 2 to 5, at different places: in weeds, tin cans and in other places of concealment. After all the eggs were found, they were distributed equally between those present. Master Frank Patty proved to be the champion. He found 11 eggs.

Mr. Heath Suffers Injury

C. A. Heath, a fireman on the E. P. & S. W. between here and Duran suffered an injury Monday which caused him to pay a visit to El Paso to consult the company's physicians at that point. The accident happened at Coyote, the first watering station north of here. While in the act of watering his engine he slipped, falling on his side which gave him no trouble at the time, but later on he experienced pains in the side which became so alarming that he left Monday in company with Mrs. Heath for the border to ascertain the extent of his injuries, which it is hoped will not be serious.

There is more Cataract in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and with the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a fatal disease and prescribed local treatments, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Cataract to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Cataract Cure, manufactured by Dr. J. J. Henry & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and cures the disease. It is the only cure. One hundred dollars for any year it takes to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

CHURCHES

Deals Sledge Hammer Blows at Sin

Noted Evangelist-Pastor Here at Baptist Church-

The big revival campaign is now in full swing at the local Baptist Church. Evangelist Grover Cleveland Linn is being assisted by Singer Frank Cheek of El Paso. Mr. Linn was formerly a newspaper man and then studied law before entering the ministry. Mr. Cheek was formerly song director at Ft. Bliss and is considered one of the leading singers of the southwest.

The evangelist is terrific in his denunciation of sin. He handles the Devil without gloves and every time he goes to the mat he lands on top. Mr. Linn is severe in his criticism of what he calls "half-baked" Christians.

"Some people have just enough religion to make them miserable," stated Mr. Linn today. "They are glad to escape hell but not willing to live out and out for God."

The subjects for the second week of the Revival are as follows:

Sunday night at 7:30 - The Dance, the Camp Table and the Theater.

Monday night - What Is the New Birth?

Tuesday - "Pigs Is Pigs."

Wednesday - Is Hell a Myth?

Thursday - Objections to Hell.

Friday - Giving Jesus the Once Over.

Saturday - Passing the Buck. Meetings will also be held each afternoon at 2:30. Everybody of whatever denomination is invited to the meetings. Come and bring your smile with you.

SCHOOL NOTES

(By Supt. E. E. Cole)

The Class Play this year, will be Evangeline. It will be given in the Crystal Theatre on the evenings of May 10 and 11, and will be complete each evening. The play is a classic and will be made highly dramatic. The players will be costumed just like Evangeline's people and the scenes will be reproduced as far as possible. Two boats will glide past each other in the moonlight; one containing Evangeline and the other, Gabriel. We shall advertise the play more and more each week. Remember the dates, May 10 and 11. Every ticket gets a reserved seat, and every person in the city is going. Seats will be on sale about May 3.

Through the kindness of the school board the office has been "fixed up" till it is one of the prettiest school offices in the state. It was the poorest looking room in the building till the school board took hold of it. The three glass windows between the office and the halls have been covered with art paper of beautiful designs, making it look like Florentine glass. The large half circle over the large windows in the front of the building were covered with colored designs making it look like colored glass. The work was done by Mr. Elliott and is a very neat job. The ceiling and walls were tinted, the woodwork varnished and a linoleum rug placed upon the floor. The superintendent's office is now a neat little reception room. It is naturally a reception room for all visitors to the large school building. We hereby most heartily express our appreciation and thanks to our school board whom we have always found to be perfectly willing to make our school rooms and buildings neat, clean and beautiful.

Last Saturday night Miss Eva Wack gave, at her home, a party to the sophomore class. Those present were costumed in ancient style. The refreshments were delicious and all report a very enjoyable evening.

On Thursday night of last week the Annual High School April Fool Party was held at the home of Miss Eva Wack. They did well, all sorts of stunts; they are too numerous to mention. On the same night Miss Alta Carl entertained the members of the eighth grade. We do not know just what they did, but they say they had a royal good time. Here's hoping that April 1st will never fall on the 29th of February.

Miss Holland reports that her grade, the third, had a regular egg hunt last Friday afternoon. There were candy eggs, blue eggs, red eggs, green eggs, speckled eggs and picture eggs. Miss Holland says she knows that the tummies of the little third graders must have grumbled "Don't send us any more eggs."

The superintendent has asked every teacher to have an Arbor Day program next Friday, April 9th. Carrizozo schools cannot plant any trees but they will discuss such subjects as Tree Planting, Conservation of Our Forests, Prevention of Forest Fires, Surface Water Supply of New Mexico, Lumbering and Allied Industries, Some Useful Trees, Laws of Forest Conservation, The Forest Reserves of New Mexico. These programs will be given Friday afternoon. Everybody is invited to come.

MANILA CARNIVAL BIG ATTRACTION OF FAR EAST

This is the season of the year when the Philippines becomes the playground for the entire orient. It is carnival season in Manila.

In 1908 the first Philippine carnival was held on historic Wallace Field in Manila in February, when the climate of the islands is at its best, and each succeeding year there has been a larger and more elaborate celebration. The 1920, or Victory Carnival, will be the greatest event of its sort ever held anywhere in the Far East.

There are commercial and government exhibits in connection with the carnival, and on no other occasion is it possible to gain at once such a comprehensive idea of the production and development of resources of the archipelago as that which is offered the visitor at the carnival city.

In the evenings the carnival becomes the center of Philippine and oriental social activity. A huge open air auditorium serves for the elaborate nightly balls, and on its mammoth floor thousands of couples swing together to the strains of music furnished by the famous Constabulary and other military bands. Probably at no other place in the world will one see an equally impressive commingled spectacle.

The Manila visitor who can plan his trip to arrive at the heart of the Orient for carnival time may well deem himself fortunate.

The American Legion at Albuquerque is making elaborate preparations for an indoor track meet on April 12th.

Las Vegas now has a live and flourishing Rotary Club, headed by Dr. F. H. Crall as president and will affiliate with the national clubs.

The old mining camp at the Hard-scrabble mines in New Mexico, is being completely rebuilt and the shafts and working cleaned out preparatory to putting on a big force of men.

Homestead and desert entry applications are being filed at the United States land office here at a rate averaging 300 a month. It was stated at Phoenix by L. G. Rosengran, of the land office.

The school bonds for the purpose of erecting a new high school building at Las Vegas, N. M., were sold to Keeler Brothers of Denver, who bid 100-00 at 6 per cent. This will bring the city $1,600 above par value of the bonds.

The United States Biological Survey held its regular monthly sale of skins trapped by the force in February at Albuquerque. J. A. Taichert & Co., were the highest bidders and purchased 128 skins, mostly coyotes, for $1,020.

The trotting mare, Edith Carler, has been sold by J. C. Adams of Phoenix, to Marvin Childs of Omaha for $7,000, according to a statement from the Adams stables, which added that the mare started in eighteen trotting events on eastern circuits last season and won twelve firsts, including two $3,000 purses.

Laboring men, mainly those employed by the Santa Fe railroad, have organized a McAdoo-for-president club in Albuquerque. It is the intention of the club members, regardless of party affiliations in the past, to work for the nomination of Mr. McAdoo, and if nominated, to do all in their power to elect him.

If the voters of Arizona enact Senate Bill 77 this fall, the functions of the State Board of Pardons will be virtually eliminated and the governor will have full power to pardon, commute sentences or parole, according to an opinion issued today by Attorney General Wiley E. Jones and sent to all attorneys.

Hunters and trappers employed cooperatively by the United States government and the state of Arizona rid the state during February of eight mountain lions, three wolves, fifty-five coyotes, eighteen wildcats, thirty-two foxes and five animals of various other kinds, according to M. E. Musgrave of the United States biological survey, under whose direction the work is conducted.

Failure of most contests filed against homestead applications in the Phoenix land office was indicated by the publication of figures taken from land office records showing that of 134 contests filed in the past six months, 99 per cent of the decisions were in favor of the entrymen. Less than 2 per cent of these decisions were overruled on being carried to Washington, the figures showed.

Development work that promises results of the greatest importance is now in progress in the Nighthawk mine near Don Luis, Ariz. The recent proving of the Boras property, adjoining the Nighthawk, by drifting into the ore body on the 525-foot level has brought the properties in that end of the district to the forefront as strongly indicating the development of some more big producers in the Warren district.

Deposits on the banks of Arizona increased $18,940,700.02 in the twelve months preceding February 29, 1920, according to figures made public from the office of Jesse I. Boyce, state bank comptroller.

The Ray Boston Copper Company has recommenced the operation of its Kelvin-Sultana property, located near Kelvin, Ariz. The original Kelvin-Sultana company, shipped a large tonnage of high grade copper ore from the upper level and constructed a first-class mill. The present operating company, it is said, intends to carry on an extensive exploration of the lower levels by diamond drilling.

Officers of the Santa Fe Post of the American Legion have signed the contract to bring to Santa Fe, the Bernardi Greater Carnival shows, and this carnival will be in Santa Fe for the week of April 19th to 24th. The Bernardi shows will be the largest carnival ever seen in Santa Fe, having played in Los Angeles, San Diego, Tucson and El Paso on the way to Denver. Albuquerque and Santa Fe will be the smallest towns the carnival company will make on their way from the Coast to the East.

WAS BADLY RUN-DOWN FROM PNEUMONIA

Mrs. Washburn quickly regained her strength and flesh.

"I had grippe, followed by pneumonia. It left me with a terrible soreness in my chest, constant pain in my throat and so weak and nervous I could neither eat nor sleep. I had a chill every morning.

"One day a young man told me how Milks Emulsion had got him out of bed and built him up after he had been reduced to a skeleton and given up by the doctors. So I tried it. I have gained in strength, appetite and flesh, sleep better than I have for years, am doing all my own work again and feel like a new person.

"The beauty about Milks Emulsion is that it doesn't wear out like most things, and is so pleasant to take. It is a food as well as a medicine and builds up the blood and tissues. It surely put the blood in my veins and I have the healthiest color I ever had."—Mrs. M. Washburn, 212 Centre, Cal.

It costs nothing to try Milks Emulsion. It will build you up more quickly, more surely than anything else.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, promotes appetite and puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are usually relieved in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 90c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

Seeing Ourselves. A well-known film buyer was chatting to a producer the other day and became so interested in the subject of film acting that the latter thought he ought to be tactful and offer him a part. When the film was complete the producer invited the buyer to see himself as he really was.

"Well!" said Mr. Producer, "and are you going to buy the film?"

"No," replied Mr. Buyer. "I'm going to commit suicide!"

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 1 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach. There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloating after eating, food poisoning, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress as the stomach itself, are, nevertheless, traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victim in miserable health year after year. The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this. One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed." We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise. Your druggist has EATONIC. Get a big 50c box from him today. He will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford car can well be called the "people's car," because there are more than 3,000,000 of them in daily operation. That is about four to one of the nearest follower in the motor car industry. This would not be so if the Ford car had not for sixteen years proven its superiority in service, in durability, and in the low cost for operation and maintenance; this would not be so if the Ford car was not so easy to understand, so simple in construction that anybody and everybody can safely drive it. Forward Looking Policy

Banks are enlarging on the "Industrial Idea." In Portland, Spokane and other cities the advertising of the leading financial institutions is devoted largely to educational copy showing the public the value of industries to communities.

The far seeing bank director knows that the future growth of his bank depends on the growth and stability of his territory.

Just as the laboring man is dependent for his living on the successful operations of industries, so is the banker dependent.

Industry and manufacturing plants make possible the utilization of farm products which could not reach the consumer in any other way and the new style of bank advertising is bringing this point clearly before the public.

Any condition which hurts industry automatically hurts the wage earner and financial institutions, hence it is of interest to all to strive to maintain safe and sound economic conditions and the banks are to be commended for the lead they have taken in this matter.

Freak legislation and radical policies whether local, state or national, immediately effect industrial activity and the prosperity of individuals, states and nation—Manufacturer

City Girl's Gold Tipped Cigarette Has "Snuff Stick" Rival in South

This Young Mountain Matron Is Enjoying Her Afternoon Chew While Her Husband Smokes His Favorite Pipe.

Here is an unusual picture of marital felicity. It was snapped by a worker for the Interchurch World Movement during a survey of living conditions in the Tennessee Mountain district. The young woman in the picture, a bride of a few weeks, is using the mountain substitute for the cigarette, a "snuff stick"—a stick coated with snuff and industriously chewed. The habit has two advantages over the gold-tipped cigarette of the city girl. It is more economical and it lasts longer—a well made "snuff stick" having only one rival for longevity—the "all day sucker" of school days.

The Interchurch World Movement had distressed ignorance and poverty among these mountain folks and suggests a new religious program—to couple the Bible with practical instruction in agriculture, carry it out on model farms; with schools, good roads and other community needs as the ultimate goal.

Build With The Springtime

D. R. Stewart, manager of the Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Co., made a trip to Alamogordo Monday in the interest of better shipping facilities for Carrizozo in his particular line. Mr. Stewart is a live progressive business man and as an evidence of that fact, he is seeking to secure a guarantee of a certain number of cars each week which will handle the required amount of lumber for the season's building, which will be greatly increased.

Building! The very word connected with the incoming of spring, gives newness of life to everything. Without building we remain asleep in the swaddling-clothes of the past. Building must precede everything in the march of advancement; the time honored and much loved saying, "What is Home Without a Mother?", might well have for its companion, "What is Home Without the Builder?", for the builder must erect the place of habitation before it becomes the home. The builder must perform his work before the business institution can be ready to serve the trade.

Robert B. Allen, secretary of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association, reports that extensive building operations are planned in New York, Chicago, Boston and other eastern cities. Mr. Allen, who has been studying conditions in the east, says that money for housing and building improvements is offered freely by big financial institutions but that the banks display no sympathy toward prospective borrowers for speculative purposes. Housing the people is not a speculation, it is a necessity and lack of proper housing facilities is becoming more acute in all sections.

Carrizozo must grow; nothing can hold it back. You may hear people talking everywhere about building, but talking, while good as it may be, is not building; far from it. It is action that counts. The Outlook advises those who are of the mind to build, not to wait for the season to be so far spent that they will be compelled to postpone the work until the next year. Mr. Stewart, with others connected with him in the lumber industry, are working on a scheme whereby a great saving will be realized from a shipping standpoint and this saving will result in lower prices for lumber. This will offer the very inducement people who have been thinking of building, have been looking for. Are you thinking of building? Sure, you are. Then why not have a confidential talk with your contractor and your local lumber man. Spring-time is at hand; the birds will soon begin to build. Now is the time to carry out your good intentions and begin with the feathered songsters—Build!

Reviving Western Metals

Metal mining in the west, in spite of the past year of abnormal business activity, has passed through one of the hardest periods of its existence. Generally speaking the price of our basic metals was out of all proportion to cost of mining them. Labor efficiency has been low and wage scales high and curtailed output has added to total cost of production.

Copper producers have been among those hardest hit and the industry as a whole has been giving serious thought to its future and has determined to branch out in two directions.

First new avenues of consumption will be sought while attempts will be made to encourage the rehabilitation of copper into uses formerly in vogue but interrupted during war. As an example: brass instead of tin, nickelplated for automobile trimmings; brass headlights nickled or painted instead of tin as used at present which rusts through the nickle or paint, in a few months.

The next step will be the financing of export sales through a system of credits.

The west is deeply interested in the success of the movement for increased copper consumption and should advocate the use of copper whenever possible including such common articles as copper kettles, teapots, candlesticks, etc.—Manufacturer

H. J. Garrard of Garrard & Corn, agents for the Buick, Nash, Dodge and Hupmobile cars, made a quick trip to El Paso this week. He left here on belated No. 2 Sunday morning, arrived at the border, purchased a new-improved Nash and returned with the car which is built for "business," the same evening, arriving here at 7:30. This car has oversized tires and in fact is special made in every way imaginable, being specially built for long trips. With this car, Mr. Garrard has established a long distance passenger service. He, therefore, wishes to announce that he is ready to give service to all parties desiring to make long trips over the mountains at reasonable rates. The car being built for endurance, will be of valuable service to those wishing to make long trips. He wishes it understood that he will not cater to short trip service and only those who wish to be taken on a long railstage will be accommodated. Just a few more words: Don't overlook the ad on another page where if you will investigate you can save money by taking advantage of the bargains in automobile tires and accessories—Get busy.—GARRARD & CORN.

Ottawa, Kans.—"When I reached middle life I was very nervous and almost prostrated. I saw Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery advertised and decided to try them. I took six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' first. During the first week of the treatment I seemed weaker but I was advised by a neighbor to keep on taking it, and during the second week I improved rapidly and could do my work—where before I could not even comb my hair. I finished the treatment, using the 'Golden Medical Discovery' also, and I was permanently cured. JAPAN YIELDS TO THE ALLIES

JAPS GIVE UP CERTAIN CONCESSIONS IN MONGOLIA AND MANCHURIA.

OPEN NEGOTIATIONS

RED ARMY MARCHING EAST TO SUCCOR PEASANTS IN SIBERIA.

San Francisco, April 1.—Japan has notified the governments of the United States, England and France that she is ready to give up certain concessions in the provinces of Mongolia and Manchuria in response to pressure by these powers, according to a cablegram received by the New World, a Japanese daily newspaper here, from its Tokio correspondent. The claims that Japan will relinquish were not specified in the cablegram. Negotiations will be opened in the near future with China to determine the extent of the privileges that will be given up by Japan, it was said. The whole subject was covered in a treaty between China and Japan, portions of which the United States, England and France asked Japan to abrogate in order that absolute dominion of the provinces mentioned might be returned to China, the New World's correspondent announced. The negotiations with China are the result of these demands.

London.—A dispatch to the London Times from Peking says the Chinese government has received a message from the Moscow soviet through Commissary Jansen at Irkutsk, announcing that a red army is marching east to succor the workmen and peasants in Siberia from the "brigands, Kolchak, Semenov, Horvath and their Japanese allies and establish everlasting peace." The communication expresses horror at the crimes committed against China, and undertakes to annul all treaties and renounce all privileges improperly acquired from China. China is urged in the communication to resume negotiations for the restoration of the Chinese Eastern railway, the cancellation of the protocol of 1901, and the extra territorial rights hitherto enjoyed by the Russians and the renunciation of the "Boxer" indemnity, the privileges of orthodox missionaries and mining rights. The dispatch says the soviet also offers to hand over to China without charge the great Russian tea factories at Hankow. The only condition made is that the people of China have complete freedom to determine their own system of government. The message, the dispatch declares, vaguely indicates that the services of the red army will be available to deliver China from foreign imperialistic and capitalistic ambitions.

Ex-Yank Is Convicted. Prescott, Ariz.—Nichan Martin, former service man, charged with the murder of Arthur de Steunder, Canadian war veteran, while the two were on an automobile trip from Rhode Island to Los Angeles, was found guilty of first degree murder by a jury in the Superior Court here. The jury recommended the death penalty. Its decision was announced after deliberation of an hour.

U. S. Seizes Liquor at Cheyenne. Cheyenne, Wyo.—Six thousand dollars' worth of liquor was seized here in a bonded warehouse by Deputy Revenue Collector Leslie A. Miller. Non-payment of revenue charges was given as the reason. The liquor was shipped here about eighteen months ago from Idaho by James McIntosh. Authorities had received no word from McIntosh since the liquor was placed in storage.

MEANT FORM OF CRITICISM

Original Expression, "Getting the Dickens," Was Not, as Many Think, Something Profane.

Sometimes, somewhere, from somebody we all get "the Dickens." And those of us who become prominent get it more than the others.

Among those of us ordinary mortals who occasionally find relief in letting off steam in the form of something more expressive than slang, there seems to be a common misconception that "getting the Dickens" is a modification or abbreviation of (heaven help us!) "getting the devil." It is not. It is a harmless, legitimate and respectable expression that may be used with impunity in the best of company. It is simply an allusion to our old friend, Charles Dickens.

Though immortal as a novelist, Dickens was well known in his own time as a newspaper man. So vitriolic he said to have been in his attacks on faulty public officials or other prominent men that gradually it came to be said, when anyone was criticized by him, that he got "the Dickens."

The Second Best. Mr. Knagg—I don't see what you have to complain of. Haven't you had the best of everything since we were married? His Wife—Well, I didn't marry the best man at our wedding.

REASON IN LOWER ANIMALS

That They Possess More Than Mere Instinct Seems to Have Been Abundantly Proved.

In the woods when male deer get to fighting, the rattle of their clashing antlers may be heard a long way off, and sometimes other males hearing the sound make toward it and lure away the female over which the other two are fighting.

Hunters frequently employ this knowledge of deer habits to decoy bucks into range of their rifles by rattling together a couple of sets of old antlers.

Take it all in all, it is hardly fair to the animals to say they merely possess instinct, when we have so many instances of their reasoning powers. If monkeys were able to preserve the best thoughts of each generation of their species as humans do with the printing press—well, anyway, it is too bad that Garner didn't live to establish on the Florida coast his monkey colony. Had he done this, who knows what startling discoveries he might have made concerning their intellect?—Exchange.

People You Know or Should Know

Miss Ferguson, field representative for the Salvation Army was here Tuesday in the interest of a State-wide movement to assist those who are in need of help both temporal and spiritual. Miss Ferguson completed arrangements whereby a temporary organization was effected, the particulars of which will appear next week. In mentioning the visit of Miss Ferguson and the object of her visit, we would call the attention of our readers to an editorial which appeared in our issue of March 12, under the head of "Who is My Neighbor," which will better explain the aims and objects of this movement.

Following closely on the heels of the above announcement, came the glad news from El Paso, that Miss Frances Letelia Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Baker became a most welcome visitor on April 2, 1920. Mother and daughter were doing nicely and the Outlook extends its congratulations.

The friends of County Commissioner Wm. Sevier are making mention of his candidacy for the nomination for the office of County Assessor subject to the deliberations of the County Republican Convention. Mr. Sevier has made a good commissioner. He has been constantly attentive to Lincoln county's interests and this furnishes a good argument for his friends to advance in Mr. Sevier's interest.
