

Cruel Death Lurked In The Shadows

Cecil G. Gokey Sustains Injuries at Mile Post 191 Wednesday Which Proved Fatal After Reaching El Paso. Throwing Himself From Train to Avoid Death Hastens Untimely Doom.

On Wednesday evening of this week, Cecil G. Gokey, well known and prominent in railroad circles, met with an accident of unusual nature as the freight train on which he was rear brakeman, was nearing mile post No. 191 about nine miles this side of Corona. The heavy grade on the E. P. & S. W. between Duran and mile post No. 191, requires an extra engine which is called a helper and the incoming train with Engineer Robertson and Conductor R. T. Vaughan were nearing the point where the helper was to be relieved and Mr. Gokey was standing on the caboose in the act of giving signals to the head-end engineer when the train gave a lurch causing him to lose his balance.

Engineer Perkins on the helper saw Mr. Gokey reel and make frantic efforts to regain his position, but with a fear of falling between the cars and the train although slowing down was still running at the rate of 10 miles an hour, he plunged from the moving train with the hope of striking soft ground. Quite to the contrary, Mr. Gokey alighted on a pile of jagged rock that had been thrown aside by the grading gang when the cut in the road was made. His body was hurled against the massive rock pile so violently, that one arm and leg was broken, his ribs crushed in besides a horrible gash in the side of the head causing a concussion of the brain. The train was stopped and the injured man taken to Corona where his injuries were examined by a local physician after which he was conveyed on a special train to El Paso, the train stopping here to allow Mrs. Gokey to accompany her injured husband to the border, where as preparations were being made to perform an operation, Mr. Gokey passed away.

The body was brought to Carrizozo this morning on No. 2 but the arrangements for the funeral which are in the hands of the Railway Trainmen's Brotherhood, had not been announced before the Outlook went to press. Mr. Gokey leaves a wife and daughter to mourn his loss. His daughter, Miss Christine Gokey, is now a resident of Pocatello, Idaho, to whom the information was wired after the termination of the sad affair. Mr. Gokey was a man of exceptional good qualities. A model husband, a courteous, friendly neighbor; just and upright in his associations with his fellow men, he held the confidence of his fellow Trainmen, and the company with whom he was employed. His career is ended, but his example remains; his seat is vacant, his family and brethren mourn. The OUTLOOK extends its sympathy to all.

Miss Aileen Haley has returned from a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Wayne Hamilton, in San Juan, Texas.

Murder at Corona

Last Saturday morning at 11:40 in front of the post office at Corona, Pascual Luttrell shot and instantly killed James Gillispie. The two men were sitting on the steps directly in front of the post office when the killing took place, and singular as it may seem, were the only two men on the street, a small boy seated in an automobile about one block from the scene of the murder being the additional human being in view and the boy was facing the opposite direction, consequently did not witness the shooting.

As to what caused the killing, there seem to be conflicting stories all of which, as far as any of the Corona people seem to know, are merely conjectures. The shot attracted a large crowd from the stores, bank and post office. They found Luttrell standing over his victim still holding the smoking gun in his hand as if to fire a second time in case the job was not finished. The murderer, it is claimed, will enter a plea of "The Unwritten Law" but this is as uncertain as other things connected with the mysterious case. After the killing, Luttrell walked leisurely up and down the platform anxiously awaiting the arrival of Sheriff Duran, who reached Corona at 6:30 Saturday evening and brought the prisoner to Carrizozo. He was taken to Capitan Monday where he was arraigned and his hearing fixed for Friday morning before Justice Neil H. Bigger. The body of the dead man was taken to El Paso where interment took place Tuesday. He was a brother-in-law of Alfred E. Kerr, vice president of the El Paso Bank and Trust Company. Both parties were ranchers and are well known in their respective neighborhoods.

Lightning Explodes TNT

Durango, Colo., July 26.—Richard A. Lager of Idaho Springs was killed this afternoon when lightning prematurely exploded a charge of TNT which he was placing at the Lime creek camp on the Durango-Silverton highway.

Lager and several other men had almost completed preparations for the discharge of a round of 14 shots when the accident happened. The electric line was strung and the lightning struck the wire, completing the circuit and causing the explosion.

Harry Bowra of Aztec, N. M., was passing with a string of pack mules at the time of the explosion. He and his train were blown off the trail and several of the mules were killed, but Bowra escaped with cuts and bruises.

Airmen to Fly Over 200 Miles Per Hour

New York, July 20.—Speed in excess of 200 miles per hour and more will be attained by more than one of the contestants in the international aeroplane contestants in France beginning September 27, according to a forecast made today by Major Chas. Glidden, acting chairman, contest committee, of the Aero Club of America. The finest planes and most skillful flyers from all over the world will be represented. Maj. R. W. Schroeder will represent the United States army air service. Recently he startled the world by climbing seven miles into the air, breaking all altitude records.

Caught Roswell Napping

Carrizozo's base ball team defeated Roswell last Sunday in one of the fastest and most interested games of the season. Roswell being on its own 'cellar-door,' felt an unusual amount of confidence and this was increased when they administered a good starter in the first inning by making 3 runs. This failed to rattle the Carrizozo boys, however, for in the 5th Pat Dolan, who is noted for 'starting something,' started Roswell's defeat which was followed by Wilcox, Norman and others until out of six hits, the boys scored five runs.

The Roswell team made its 4th run in the 3rd inning and after that, the "bacon" was held tightly by Carrizozo. Every member of the team played ball: The Norman brothers, batteries, Reilly at short, Barnett at first, Dolan at second, Gallacher at third, and fielders Dingwall, Baker and Wilcox each of whom deserves special mention, as they played real ball with a vengeance, bringing home the "bacon" to the tune of 5 to 4. The Roswell team are desirous of a return game and the same will be played here in the near future. The result on last Sunday's game is enough to convince the public that we have one of the best teams in the state. If any doubt this assertion, let them "jump on and ride!"

A picked nine of Carrizozo boys played a game of base ball with a team from Three Rivers Sunday afternoon which resulted in favor of the Carrizozo boys by a score of 6 to 7. Ben Lujan pitched for the home team. Could you wonder at the result? The same team played the Hondo club on Monday at the celebration of Santa Anna Day at Hondo, where a big picnic was held and at which a large crowd attended. The Carrizozo boys again distinguished themselves by defeating the Hondo team by a score of 6 to 8.

Identifies Body in Trunk Mystery As That Of Mrs. Leroy

New York, July 28.—Mrs. Leo Trumbull, wife of a Detroit policeman, today at the Bellevue morgue, identified the body of the young woman found in a trunk in the American Railway Express company warehouse here last week as that of Mrs. Eugene Leroy.

Mrs. Trumbull was positive in her identification, as well as was her husband who also viewed the mutilated body. Mrs. Trumbull maintained her composure throughout the ordeal of viewing the body of her friend, but broke down completely during the legal formalities and was led from the room weeping.

Roy Larrow, alias William Leroy, who was arrested near Allentown, Pa., yesterday on suspicion in connection with the Detroit trunk murder, strongly resembles the man sought and an officer has been sent to identify him, according to word from the Detroit police today. While Larrow is said to have admitted he had a sweetheart in Detroit, whom he left following a lover's quarrel, he professed ignorance of the trunk crime.

Spence-Callahan

In the city of Alamogordo Saturday, July 24 occurred the marriage of J. Callahan of Albuquerque, and Miss Grace Spence of Carrizozo. The young couple spent their last day of single life mingling among their many friends here with no hint of the coming wedding, afterwards taking a train for our neighboring town to have the ceremony performed so that on their return they might spring the pleasant surprise on their friends here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Spence of Carrizozo, her father, Judge Spence being one of the leading attorneys of this place. Her only brother, George Spence, Jr., is now connected with the Richardson Brothers, wholesale merchants at Winslow, New Mexico. The new Mrs. Callahan was raised in this locality, therefore, Carrizozo claims her as its own, and her friends which are numbered by the amount of her acquaintances, wish the newly married couple a world of happiness in their new life.

The groom is a native of the state of Illinois, having journeyed to the Sunshine State several years ago with the Callahan family taking up their residence in Albuquerque where they now reside. The Callahans will visit for a short period of time with the bride's parents after which definite arrangements will be completed and their dwelling place for the future be designated. Their friends are extending congratulations with the hope that they may conclude to settle in Carrizozo, in which hope and congratulations, the Outlook heartily joins.

Must Swallow League

Washington, July 26.—Following an hour's political conference with President Wilson at the White House today, Homer S. Cummings, the retiring Democratic national chairman, let it be known that the administration circles virtually insist that the League of Nations shall be the over-shadowing issue in the Cox campaign.

Coupled with the persistent talk of the deposed chairman's possible candidacy for the senate against Senator Branedgee, of Connecticut, this development has brought fear to the hearts of Democratic leaders. They had been resting easily since Governor Cox and the president held their supposed "harmony feast" at the White House.

Lately, stories coming from Ohio had the Democratic nominee adding some reservations to his declaration that he would stump the country on the president's league issue. Almost immediately Mr. Cummings, who had been practicing a League of Nations speech to take the stump for Governor Cox, was announced to the White House.

"The league must of necessity be the predominant issue of the campaign," he stated after leaving the president. "What else can take its place?"

Mrs. M. L. Blaney, County School Superintendent, has been ill for the greater portion of this week but her condition at this writing shows a marked improvement.

Fierce Gun Battle In The Jicarillas

One Man Dead and Two Fatally Injured is Toll of Gun Scrap Over Fence Line. Wounded Men at Local Hospital. Dead and Injured Leave Line Question Unsettled.

News reached the office of Sheriff Duran about 11 o'clock Thursday morning of a gun battle near Rabenton, some 25 miles from here in the Jicarilla mountains. The message stated that one man was dead and two seriously injured with the request that the Sheriff come as quickly as possible. The Sheriff accompanied by Ed Harris left on receipt of the message and on arriving at the scene, found one ranchman by the name of Hinnard dead with three bullet holes in his breast and two brothers, E. C. and O. C. Starkey mortally wounded.

The cause of the trouble arose over designating a fence line, according to information obtained from parties who seemed to be acquainted with facts in the case, although the only witness to the shooting was Mrs. Starkey at whose home the affair took place and she, being in such state of collapse over the battle, could not be interviewed in a manner reliable. It is alleged, that Hinnard wished to make a roadway through a corner of Starkey's land, claiming the spot in question to belong to his, (Hinnard's) land, while Starkey laid claim to the land as his own. The morning above stated, Hinnard came to the spot accompanied by a companion to begin the work of making the new road, when the Starkey brothers sought to prevent him from carrying out his intentions. This, it is claimed, started the trouble and the shooting began. One of the Starkey boys received a shot directly through the abdomen, and the other was shot in the side, the ball passing to the spine causing paralysis. The Starkeys were brought to Dr. Paden's hospital where Drs. Paden and Shaver made the examinations. Both men are in a dangerous condition with scant hopes for recovery. The body of Hinnard will be buried at Rabenton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gutnecht of Chicago, Ill., son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ziegler, came in Monday to pay a visit to the Ziegler family. Mr. Gutnecht, who is a prominent attorney of Chicago, will spend about two weeks here, after which he will return home to attend to his legal practice, while Mrs. Gutnecht will remain with her parents for the balance of the season. They are spending the week-end at the Eagle Creek Grounds, accompanied by Mr. Ziegler.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Bamberger Thursday morning, July 29th, a bouncing baby boy. Mother and son are doing nicely, and Mr. Bamberger's courteous manner is intensified as he receives the congratulations of his many friends. And then—it's a boy, you know.

"DESTROY THIS LETTER!"

Synopsis.—Typical tramp in appearance, Daniel Randolph Fitzhugh, while crossing a Chicago street, causes the wreck of an auto, whose chauffeur disables it trying to avoid running him down. In city the occupant of the auto, a young girl, saves him from arrest and gives him a dollar, telling him to buy soap, and wash. His sense of shame is touched, and he improves his appearance. That night, in a crowd of unemployed and anarchists, he meets Esther Strom and to a spirit of bravado makes a speech. Esther induces Fitzhugh to address the radical meeting. He electrifies the crowd, and on parting the two agree to meet again. A few days later Fitzhugh visits Sympathetic Oils, prominent beauty parlor, and displays a package which he says contains dynamite, but which is merely a bundle of paper, demands $1000. Oils gives him a check. At the house he meets the girl who had given him the dollar, and learns she is Kathleen Oils. She recognizes him. Ashamed, he tears up the check and escapes, but is arrested. Esther visits Fitzhugh in jail, and makes arrangements for procuring legal advice. His trial is speedily completed and he is found insane and committed to an asylum, from which he easily makes his escape. Fitzhugh takes refuge in Chicago with Esther, who has become infatuated with him, but with the thought of Kathleen in his mind he gives her no encouragement. His one idea is to become rich and powerful, and win Kathleen. While hiding in Esther's house he grows a beard, which eventually changes his appearance. Nikolay, a big Russian, becomes jealous.

CHAPTER V.

It was ten days since the reward for Fitzhugh's capture had been offered, and though detectives, city, amateur, and private, as well as the police, had kept hot an unremitting search, not a trace of the fugitive could they find. "Clue," they had by scores, but they led nowhere. This death day fell on a Thursday in April—a cold, dark day of incessant rain. Nikolay invariably called upon Esther every Friday, but on this particular Thursday night, happening to be in her neighborhood, he decided to take advantage of the opportunity, and drop in on her for a pot of hot tea and a word of good cheer.

He was about to pass under the wooden staircase, and so to her door, when suddenly, just opposite the window he stopped still and stood as though hewed from stone.

What he saw was this: In the center of the room, her back toward him, stood Esther; arms held out, her head back, she had the unmistakable posture of a woman waiting only for the One Man. The next instant a very tall man, young-looking despite the short, untrimmed beard on his lean face, stepped from some point outside Nikolay's range of vision, and took her in his arms and kissed her.

His stumpy face livid with fury, yellow hair seeming to stand on end, Fitzhugh burst into the room.

Fitzhugh sprang from his place and vaulted the table, bringing it between himself and the door. "Get out, Mother," he ordered quietly, rolling up his shirt-sleeves. "I'm going to slaughter his beast."

She made no move to go, however, but drew to one side, and with hands pressed to her cheeks, watched the two gladiators with mingled horror and fascination. Nikolay had the advantage of some forty pounds in weight, but Fitzhugh was vastly his superior in stamina, brawn skill and quickness of eye and movement. To win the fight he judged he had to do but one thing: to keep free of the other's clutches. Once the big Russian got those tremendous arms around him the combat would be unequal.

Nikolay rushed upon his foe like an infuriated bull, and Fitzhugh ducked and sidestepped like a lean panther, springing in quickly to deliver two blows in rapid succession, the last of which brought blood. In the next rush, however, a sledge hammer seemed to swing upon the point of his shin, and he spun dizzily backward, unable to regain his balance, and fell heavily against a fender. But Nikolay was not quick enough to follow up his advantage, and when next he charged, Fitzhugh had recovered, and was dancing around him as before, his lip drawn back from his gleaming teeth in a taunting smile.

The blood was streaming from a dozen cuts on the Russian's face, his crimson blouse in his eyes; and over that smiling, white-and-black swam before him like a pirouetting phantom.

Knowing his endurance to be his strongest, and the other's weakest, point, Fitzhugh desired chiefly to wear his opponent down until such time as he could rush in and finish him.

Nikolay was fast becoming exhausted. Ten minutes of this mad pace was more than he could stand. His breath came shorter and shorter. At last he stopped and allowed his arms to dangle limply at his sides.

For a little while, coughing and spitting blood and catching his breath in wheezy gasps, he stared drunkenly. Then, seizing a heavy water pitcher from beside an overturned chair, he hurled it, with a vile word. Fitzhugh dodged the missile and leapt for his foe. He put every atom of his vigorous young strength into the blow he landed under Nikolay's jaw, and the man went down like a clubbed ox.

The conqueror walked to a corner, picked up his coat, and slung it over his shoulder. He came back to Esther, crouching against the wall like one awakening from some horrible dream. He smiled, but in the neutral light the smile was ghastly.

"I'm sorry you had to see it. I told you I'd slaughter him."

The next moment the woman was sobbing hysterically in his arms. "I can't let you go! I can't—I can't!" She clung to him as a drowning person, clutching his hands, his arms, his neck.

"You must, Esther." He stroked her hair tenderly. "The police may be here at any moment. Get away as quickly as possible. Never mind about him—he'll be all right presently. I'll write you care of the post office. You write me, too. Good-by, dear, good-by." With these words of parting he turned and left the house.

Fitzhugh entered a saloon and laved his hurts and washed up, afterward surveying his face very critically in a mirror. He concluded he was effectually disguised against anybody who had not seen him during the past few weeks. He left the saloon and continued northward.

In State street he stopped before an alleged restaurant—one of those discolored, unwashed places that can be scooped a hundred yards on a warm day, and where a "full meal" may be had for twenty cents—and read this sign hanging from a nail on the door-post:

"DISHWASHER WANTED."

He removed the sign, walked inside and handed it to the chemical-blonde cashier perched on a high stool between a cash register and a pyramid of toothpicks.

"I'm it," said he, favoring her with an engaging smile.

It was a sweltering, Alby place, reeking with multitudinous odors and overrun with cockroaches. The soiled dishes came in a never-ending torrent, and all day, with three respites for food, he beat at the wash-bench, his arms immersed to the elbows in black, soapy water. At eight came the night man, and he drew a breath of relief and a dollar on his weekly wage, and started home. Or, rather, he started to look for a home. He found one for two dollars a week—a depressing room, little larger than a coalbox, tucked away in the upper regions of a shabby lodging house. He paid the grim-faced landlady half of his cap-tal, bought a packet of tobacco and an evening newspaper, and went to his room.

He disrobed to his underclothing, and with the newspaper and a cigarette, stretched himself on the couch-bed, allowing his feet to rest on a chair. He inhaled a satisfying cloud of smoke and unfolded the news sheet—and his fingers closed rigidly on the paper; his heart seemed to stand still. What he read at a glance stretched across four columns of the front page:

MURDER MYSTERY AMONG REDS! OLAF NIKOLAY, RUSSIAN Nihilist, FOUND DEAD IN SOUTH SIDE BASEMENT! WOMAN SUSPECT GONE!

The story so shriekingly heralded was told in a few paragraphs, and Fitzhugh breathed easier as he read. Substantially, it related that Nikolay had been found that afternoon by Esther's landlady, who, thinking the man drunk, had called the police. An examination showed that he was stabbed to the heart and had been dead for hours. Esther had disappeared, leaving no trace behind her.

Fitzhugh dropped the paper to the floor and stared thoughtfully at the ceiling, crushing his cigarette slowly between his fingers. Suddenly he jumped up and began pacing the floor restlessly.

"Pshaw!—she'll get away all right. Yes, yes, she'll get away all right."

On his way to work next morning he called at the post office and found, as he expected, a letter from Esther. It was written on a scrap of wrapping paper with a lead pencil, and began without preface:

If I've sinned it was because I loved you so. I did it for your sake. I am praying God that your desire for wealth may be granted you. Even though your ambition is one of which I do not entirely approve, I would willingly do that you might achieve it. That is how I love you. It may be a long while before you hear from me again, because I am going far away. Destroy this letter.

Your adoring ESTHER.

He burned the letter in the kitchen range and knuckled down to his opprobrious toil as on the previous day.

Fitzhugh had a clearly defined reason for doing scullery work in a restaurant. It provided a steady, if small, income; it facilitated economy, and, above all, it afforded him a secure hiding place during the day. He intended to stay there six weeks. By that time his beard would be sufficiently long to be shaped into a Vandyke. Also, for he practiced the most rigorous frugality, he expected to have thirty dollars with which to buy some presentable clothes. From that point on he felt positive that somehow his soaring aloft would be swift and sure.

Only once was the monotony of that month broken. By one of those anomalous conditions peculiar to some cities, the street the restaurant was on, a miserable, poverty-stricken thoroughfare, is less than ten minutes' walk from Chicago's wealthiest residential section. This incongruous juxtaposition accounted for the break in Fitzhugh's routine. It was late one warm night in June, and he had walked a few streets from his boarding house and was taking the air along the Lake Shore drive, when he saw Kathleen Oils. A shining limousine stopped before the iron gateway through which he had twice passed, and as he drew back into the shadow of some shrubbery she alighted with her father. How exquisite she was—how desirable!

Every night after that Fitzhugh propped under the drive. But he never saw her again. He read later that she had sailed for France with her mother and would not return until the autumn.

High Prices During Civil War.

The cost of staples were extremely high during the four years of the Civil war, and a decline in prices began to set in in 1863 and 1867. The following are the prices of staples which prevailed in 1867: Coal, $3.50 per ton; beef, $11.20 per barrel; sugar, 14 cents a pound; butter, 40 cents per pound; fresh beef, 10 1/2 cents per pound; eggs, 42 cents per dozen.

THE COYOTES.

"I was brought up in such a nice petted way," said Charlie Coyote.

"What way was that?" asked Clemons Coyote.

"And what do you mean when you say you were brought up in such a nice petted way? I am afraid I do not understand," he added.

"You see," said Charlie, "I was very young and very delicate when I was young."

"My dear Charlie," said Clemons, "of course you were very young when you were young! You couldn't have been old when you were young."

"Well," said Charlie, "I mean that I showed my age, or my lack of age then. I showed that I was a young and delicate thing."

"Most creatures do show their lack of age," grinned Clemons. "When a creature is young it usually looks young."

"Oh, very well," said Charlie.

"But pray don't stop your story," said Clemons. "I do not mean to interrupt you, though I know that is what I have been doing. I just enjoy a little fun, a little fun," and the coyote laughed hard.

"Yes," he continued, "pray tell me your story. Tell me about the nice petted way in which you were brought up. Was it here in the zoo that you were brought up in this way?"

"Yes," said Charlie. "I was brought here when I was very young—so young that I had no age at all worth mentioning! I was brought up on a bottle just like a baby. How I did love that bottle!"

"And I was patted with love pats. A love pat is a nice pat which is gentle and affectionate. One can always tell a love pat. They're very nice things, very nice indeed."

"And the keeper loved me and I became very tame and we were great friends. He called me his little tame coyote friend and told folks how he had brought me up.

"He said that he had fed me on a nice bottle and that I had been very delicate when I was young. He had been afraid at one time that I wouldn't live. And he was worried about me."

"I was pleased when I heard that. Not because I wanted the keeper to worry, or that I was glad because he had worried."

"I just felt a little bit pleased that he had cared so much whether I had lived or died. That is a nice thing for a coyote to feel: that with all the animals in the zoo I too was wanted!"

"And wanted so much, too, that I was fed what would agree with me and help me and make me strong."

"Do you think I look like a nice strong coyote? I feel strong—as strong as though I had never been delicate. That is what good care and love and affection will do for one."

"You look in perfect condition," said Clemons Coyote. "Your brown and gray fur is perfect with its touches of reddish color. Your sharp nose and pointed ears and keen, bright eyes are all that they should be. You're a fine-looking coyote and strong too."

"And I feel sure that you would tackle anything and be a good fighter for your wants and for your needs if there were lots of us around."

"You would be sensible like other coyotes and not fight by yourself. They say we're cowards alone and brave when there are lots of us. It is true—we do like to work together when there lots to be fighting!"

"All of what you say is true," said Charlie. "But here I only think of love and affection and of such things, for I am tame."

"And those are the only things I think of," said Clemons, "for you know I, too, am very tame."

"I know you are," said Charlie. "Yes, the keeper saved my life, and I love him. That's the coyote's thanks for all he did. Yes, love for the keeper is the thank-you of Mr. Charlie Coyote."

Natural Science's Note. Percival was enjoying a Sunday ride, and as he had only recently learned the names and characteristics of a few trees, he observed closely all the trees he passed. A peach tree in blossom caught his eye, next a honey locust with its many thorns, and then suddenly he straightened up and stared with astonished eyes at a gigantic tree trunk whose entire top was missing. "Oh, mother, see," he cried excitedly, "there's a tree with no head on its neck!"

Epworth League Entertains

Last Friday evening the Epworth League of the Methodist Church entertained the Baptist Young People's Union with a lawn party at the church, but on account of the rain storm that evening, there were only thirty present. The storm subsiding at an early hour, the League entertained their guests with games, recitations, interspersed with refreshments, but in view of the fact that so many were prevented from attending on account of the rain, they decided to repeat the affair on Monday evening of this week which they did, with an attendance of sixty, which doubled the amount which were present at the first event.

There were several different contests, namely: Banana, pie and marshmallow. Games of different kinds were played on the lawn where refreshments were served. The young people of the two churches have adopted this method of entertaining each other which is certainly an important step in the right direction. The first one of this nature was given about two weeks ago, when the B. Y. P. U., entertained the League. In these social relations the young people of both societies may meet, get better acquainted and exchange ideas which will prove of great benefit to the cause in general.

Our Mining Industry

The mining industry is battling for existence right now and everyone interested in its welfare should work tooth and nail for its prosperity. The West should be a unit for the gold bonus and every other law favorable to the miner. Congress should be made to realize that the miner is a real factor in the advancement of the nation.

Most housewives in using milk for cooking purposes pour off the top of the bottle and set it aside, and that is just what we have done with the Klim Brand Skimmed Milk, poured off the top of the bottle and dried the remainder.

Harding's Masterpiece

(Republican Publicity Association)
If there were any doubts lurking in the minds of independent political thinkers, if there were any disgruntlements yet to be found among disappointed partisans of unsuccessful candidates for the presidential nomination, if the slightest trace of factionalism still persisted, all doubts, all disgruntlements, all factional feeling vanished with the reading of the truly marvelous exposition of Americanism which breathes in every line of Warren G. Harding's speech accepting the Republican nomination for the Presidency. Henceforth, the struggle to restore constitutional government to our people, to save us from the toils of European and Asiatic intrigue, to deliver the nation from the rule of organized minorities, will be unitedly waged without respite until the forces of one-man government, internationalism, and class pandering are dissipated and the triumph of the Harding-Coolidge type of nationalism brings the bitter struggle to a close.

The question which every reader of that splendid document must ask himself is, Am I for party first, or for America first? The speech is a benison to that man who would break away from the bondage instituted by Wilson, and which would be perpetuated by Cox, and who longs for the restoration of those American principles which transcend mere party differences. Nothing which Mr. Cox may say can add to or subtract from the intense patriotism, the breadth of vision exhibited by Mr. Harding. No rhetorical design which that craftsman of fine phrases, Mr. Wilson, may weave upon his typewriter can curb the appeal which Harding's words make to the American heart. After all that has been said and done, the vast majority of us are Americans first. Those staunch disciples of Thomas Jefferson who have hesitatingly followed Woodrow Wilson in his political meanderings of the past few years, and who have recently been assured by Mr. Cox that he is but the shadow of his leader, may find in Harding's nationalism a signal for a parting of the ways; a refusal further to jeopardize American institutions by Wilsonian well-withering into a fool's paradise.

Harding's speech gives to the Republicans the assurance that they have done far more than to clinch a party victory by nominating such an exemplar of American thought. It convinces them that they have named the man who will save the nation from entanglements without and disruption within, for there is nothing in Harding's career as a statesman which has ever given the lie to the sentiments he has uttered. As he promises, so will he perform, and the promises to be read in his acceptance speech are the performances which will meet with the approval of the people.

Mr. Hearst's call for a third party has not been heard beyond the editorial sanctums of his several newspapers.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's

"An Appeal to Your Reason"

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." "Except ye repent ye shall likewise perish." There is only one kind of Christianity; that is the Pure. Other than this is decidedly counterfeit. "They that live Godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution."
 Who will persecute them? The un-godly, the pretenders and hypocrites.
 A hypocrite is one who says he is a Christian, but his life proves the claim to be a false one. The judgment day will be a fearful realization for those who have not made their calling and election SURE. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for what a man soweth, that shall he also REAP." He sees,
 knows and is a searcher of the hearts of men—Let us pray.

B. Y. P. U. Poem Contest

The B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist Church has instituted a Poem Contest which is creating considerable friendly contention. The young folks have chosen, sides, and different ones on each side are to producing poems of their own composition each Sunday at the regular meetings. Space being too limited to give the poems in detail, we will give readers a "side glance" of what has been produced and rendered as a beginning:

THE BLUE SIDE

We have a B. Y. P. U.
 To which we are very true;
 And we would like to ask you
 To become a member too.

We have Bible readings,
 Verses for each day;
 'Tis helpful for each member
 To read God's word this way.

We meet every Sunday
 From seven o'clock to eight;
 Please observe the meeting hour,
 And please do not be late.

Mr. Wilson's ambition to be the last of the democratic presidents seems to be in fair way of fulfillment.

West Is Magnet For Immigrants

Majority of Ellis Island Arrivals Drawn to Industrial Centers by Higher Wages.

IRISH GO TO NORTHWEST

Women and Children Predominate—Work Increased by New Laws Governing Aliens—Europe Leads to Let Them Go.

New York.—The stream of immigrants flowing through Ellis Island has been noticeably deflected from New York city to inland centers during the last twelve months, and officials give this as one explanation for the fact that the city's 1920 census was only 5,621,121 instead of the 6,100,000 expected.

Official statistics regarding the destination of arriving aliens are sent to Washington to be tabulated and digested. For this reason destination figures for the last twelve months were not available. One who most closely watches alien arrivals is J. E. Rowe, official money-changer. He is quick to notice any unusual movement in the flow of immigration.

To the Manufacturing Centers.

Mr. Rowe asserted that money exchanged for immigrants whose destination is New York city does not amount to 1 per cent of the amount exchanged for those giving other parts as their destination.

"In former years," said Mr. Rowe, "immigrants poured into New York city by the hundreds of thousands. They are now going to manufacturing centers such as Pittsburgh, Detroit and Akron, Ohio, or to the coal and iron mining regions.

"For the most part those arriving here now were in America before the war, and are acquainted with the country and attracted to sections where the best wages are paid. Before the war a majority of the arrivals had only hazy ideas as to where they were going or what wages they were to receive.

"Another interesting fact is the change of location of some of the races. Not so many years ago most of the Irish arrivals flowed into Massachusetts or scattered along the North Atlantic seaboard. Now they are going into Oregon. It is noticeable, too, that more aliens are going to California than ever before."

In January 24,000 aliens arrived here; February, 22,000; March, 20,000; April, 36,000; May, 40,000, and in June up to and including the 10th, 31,000. Superintendent Baker of Ellis Island said this immigration was made up mostly of women, children and returning reservists. These latter are mostly Italians, and the figures for this month will show that most of those who left America to fight for Italy have returned.

The fact that no great number of male aliens is arriving here does not mean a lack of desire to come to America, the immigration officials say. Rather it means that European governments are not willing to further deplete the male adult population by allowing it to emigrate. The impending emigrant is finding it difficult to get passports under the new immigration laws. Also ship accommodations are harder to obtain.

Before the war from four to five thousand aliens arrived at this port each day, or about 150,000 a month. Notwithstanding the falling off in arrivals, however, Superintendent Baker said the work probably increased. This is because of the changes in the law. Not only do arriving aliens have to pass examinations as to moral and physical fitness, but they must pass a literacy test and be armed with passports vized by the American consular agent nearest their home and indorsed by the American authority at the port of embarkation.

Under amendments to the law certain persons are now exempt from the literacy test and all of these must be detained to prove that they are entitled to exemption. Again, many women and children are coming to relatives here, and these must be detained until such relationship is proved.

GERMAN MADE WRONG GUESS

Thought Pedestal at Metz Was Being Prepared for Return of the Kaiser's Statue.

A letter from Dr. Marcel Knecht of the French high commission to William P. Larkin, of New York, supreme director of the Knights of Columbus, narrates how one of the first German tourists to visit Metz since the city was recently opened up to visitation from its late owners, walked around the site where formerly stood the statue of Emperor Friedrich Wilhelm. He knew that the statue had been overturned and dismantled shortly after the armistice. But he saw workmen busily rearranging the turf-setting.

"Ach," he remarked, with pompous joy. "They cannot long deny themselves German art. They will put back the statue of the great kaiser. That is good!"

"On the contrary," a native Metzian intruded. "We are going to install American art. An American sculptor's statue of Lafayette will replace the over-rated kaiser. That is better!"

Dr. Knecht says nothing of the Metzian's confusion but adds that the citizens of Metz are planning a gala day for the unveiling of the E. of C. statue of Lafayette next August.

RAIDS NET FORTUNE IN BOOZE

35,000 Gallons, Worth $1,000,000, Seized in New England Since January 1.

Boston.—Federal prohibition agents in New England have seized more than 35,000 gallons of liquor and alcohol, valued at $1,000,000, in raids conducted since January 1, according to William J. McCarthy, federal prohibition enforcement agent for this section.

In addition, thousands of gallons of beer containing more than half of 1 per cent alcohol have been confiscated.

The liquor is stored in eight warehouses, here awaiting removal to Washington.

Mother Found Two Children Playing With Blacksnake

Missing her two children, Mrs. George Mead of Susquehanna, Pa., located them in a field nearby. Her four-year-old son was astride a blacksnake more than three feet in length, and his sister, Gladys, three years old, was striking the snake on the head with a switch.

The youngsters were laughing, and the woman said the snake seemed to be contented. The reptile glided away at sight of the mother.

TURKISH WOMEN BREAK CUSTOMS

No Longer Shy, Veiled Creatures, but Work With Men in Many Lines.

SPECIAL SEATS FOR WOMEN

Only the Very Old Men Rash Enough to Sit Down in the Same Car Seat With a Turkish Woman—Leaders Educated.

Constantinople.—Turkish women are no longer the shy, veiled creatures who passed their time in the seclusion of the harem and were never seen by foreign men. They still cling to the veil. But the streets in Constantinople and other larger Turkish cities are filled with women who have their veils thrown back from their faces. They are highly ornamental and becoming. Most Turkish women don't want to abandon them in favor of hats. But there are many sorts of veils and the smart, black silk veils which some of the women wear are very fetching when draped artistically over their hair.

Car Seats for Women. In the railway and street cars there are special seats for women, but the flimsy curtains which are supposed to screen them from the gaze of men are usually drawn back and it is not uncommon to see men standing in the compartments for women. Only very old men, however, are rash enough to sit down in the same seat with a Turkish woman. Turkish women seldom go to a theater where there are men. Special matinees and evening performances are arranged for women only.

The war has done much to break down the barrier between Turkish men and women. The women were needed so badly as nurses and relief workers that the government had to avail itself of their services. And now it is regarded as quite proper for men and women to be associated in all sorts of charitable and educational works. Consequently many women who were formerly forced to content themselves with seclusion in a home where fancy work and French novels were the only diversions are devoting their time to hospitals, orphanages and other philanthropic institutions.

Educated Women Leaders. Women who have been educated abroad or in the foreign schools in Turkey are the leaders in this movement for greater freedom for their sex. Their broad experience in war work has interested many women in politics, and they have openly played a great part in the nationalist movement. In the Constantinople American Woman's college the Turkish girls take great interest in basketball and other athletic games, and the effect upon women who have come under foreign influence is making the old life of seclusion and inactivity unattractive to younger Turkish women.

FORECASTS ARE OF MUCH VALUE

Illinois Farmers Highly Pleased With Aid Bulletins Had Been at Planting Time.

ENABLED TO FIGURE AHEAD

With Prediction of Rain Everybody Got Busy With Planters and Crop Put in Ground Ready to Be Soaked and Germinated.

That the farmers of the country find the weekly weather forecasts of immense value, especially during the growing season, is evidenced by a letter of appreciation recently received by the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture from an Illinois farmer. He was highly pleased with the aid the forecasts had been to him and his neighbors in planting their corn. In part he wrote:

Of Untold Benefit. "These forecasts have been of untold benefit to us this, an unusual backward spring, and we feel greatly indebted to you. With this very reliable advanced information you are furnishing us we are able to figure ahead and keep planting right up. For instance, this section began plowing for corn last week. When we received your bulletin predicting rain for Tuesday or Wednesday of this week, we got busy with our corn planters, some even turning the face of their calendars to the wall and letting one Sunday get away from them. To make a long story short, when your predicted rain struck us Tuesday noon and is still coming down this, Wednesday, morning, it found over one-third of the Illinois corn crop in the ground ready to be soaked and germinated. Had we not been put wise by your office am confident that not one-sixth would have been planted. While your daily weather reports, made up by your local observer, help out some, they cannot be compared with your weekly forecast sent out from Washington. I have watched it quite close since you began this part of the service five or six years ago, and have found it most reliable and dependable."

Weekly Forecast. In addition to the daily weather forecasts published in practically all newspapers, the weather bureau issues on Saturday of each week a forecast for the six days beginning the following Monday. These forecasts are made for nine separate districts covering practically the entire United States, and necessarily are less specific than the daily forecasts. They are given wide distribution during the growing season, and the letter quoted records but one instance, among many, in which they have proved of great value to farmers.

GOOD MARKET FOR CHICKENS

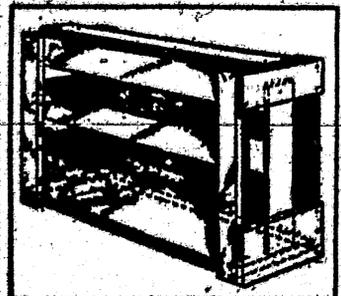

Minnesota Export Predicts Strong Demand for All Forms of Poultry This Autumn.

N. E. Chapman, poultry extensionist at University farm, predicts good prices for all forms of poultry next fall, and says that chicks hatched by July 1 will get into the "soft roaster" class, weighing from one and one-half to four pounds each. Mr. Chapman also foresees a strong demand for broilers weighing from one pound to two pounds, to be dressed out and frozen by the packers for winter trade. During the early summer months the expense of feeding can be reduced and a larger percentage of the chickens reared because of more favorable conditions.

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF CATTLE AND HOGS

Swine Show Falling Off of 10 Per Cent in Births.

About 22 Per Cent Fewer Births of Calves This Year as Compared With 1919, According to Reports to Federal Bureau.

A falling off in the numbers of cattle and hogs in the United States occurred during the first four months of this year, as compared with the like period last year, according to reports of special livestock reporters of the bureau of crop estimates, United States department of agriculture.

In the case of hogs, the births during January, February, March and April were about 10 per cent fewer than in the same months last year. The marketings have fallen off about 15 per cent, the farm slaughter was about the same in both seasons, but the deaths on farms this year are over 40 per cent heavier than last year to May 1. Taking into consideration both the births and the deaths (from all causes), it appears that there has been a relative reduction of about 6 per cent during the first four months of this year as compared with the trend during the first four months of last year.

The births of calves from January 1 to May 1 were about 22 per cent fewer this year than last year. The net disposition of cattle by marketings, farm slaughter and deaths was about 9 per cent greater than last year; it appears that there has been a relative reduction of about 6 per cent in total number of cattle as compared with last year during the four months January 1 to May 1.

PLANTING ENDIVE IN AUGUST

Is King of Winter Salads and There is Plenty of Room at This Time of Year.

Ordinary endive is the king of all winter salads that are in reach of the ordinary gardener. It should be planted from the first to the middle of August. The green curled varieties are best. There is always plenty of room in the gardens at this time of year, therefore sow the rows wide enough apart to allow banking with earth. This the plants to stand about four inches apart. Having it that close together will not produce large heads, but they will be denser in texture and more tender.

By the time the first freeze is expected this will be a hedgerow. Lift the outer leaves, pressing boards against the sides of the row and hold them in place with stakes. Leave it until in danger from freezing weather, then draw earth against the boards and add straw covering.

MOISTURE INJURIOUS TO HAY

It Should Not Be Raked, Bunched or Put into Stacks While It is Wet With Dew or Rain.

The hay maker must ever keep in mind that hay is always more likely to be injured by moisture that is on it than by moisture that is in it. Therefore it should not be raked, bunched or put into stacks when it is wet with dew or rain.

RAPID GROWTH OF CHICKENS

More Advantageous to Feed Five Times During Day Than Three—Over-feeding Harmful.

Undoubtedly chickens will grow faster when fed five times than when fed only three times daily, but it should be borne in mind that more harm can be done to the young chicks by overfeeding than by underfeeding.

Keeps for Several Months. Wheat well stacked, especially bunched wheat, will keep for several months with comparatively little loss.

Personal and Social Mention

Messrs. L. T. Bacot and R. C. Pitts journeyed up to the Ruidoso Sunday, where Mrs. Pitts had been spending the week with the Robert Hoffman family at their mountain cabin. They found the Ruidoso almost over its banks which made careful motoring a thing of great necessity. To make bad matters worse, their engine died on them when the middle of the stream was reached but, they brought it to life and luckily escaped a good ducking. Mrs. Pitts returned with R. C. and L. T., when the rush of water had subsided.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beeth of the Beeth Brothers Mining Company and the future president of the company, Master Harold Beeth, Jr., who was born in Tucumcari, on June 22 were down from the mines near Aricho Monday, Mr. Beeth attending to some business matters in connection with the Beeth Brothers' fast growing enterprise in the Jicarilla mountains. He reports a fine grade of ore now being mined with brighter prospects ahead.

During the electric storm last Friday night, lightning struck the morgue and chapel of Kelley & Son on El Paso avenue, burning a hole in the roof and putting the lighting system out of commission. No damage other than that above mentioned was sustained.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Benson Newell came down from their cabin on the Ruidoso Thursday, where they have been since June in company with Mrs. Newell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Canfield. They report a pleasant time with fishing good.

Trip Through Four Counties

E. M. Brickley of the First National Bank has just returned from a trip that took him through the greater part of Lincoln county and a portion of Socorro, Torrance and Sierra counties. He was accompanied to Sierra county by Mr. Joe Finley. They left here Saturday morning at 8 o'clock, crossed the Mal Pais at the upper crossing, thence across the swampy flat to the Mocking Bird Gap, from there to Engel and arrived at Hot Springs at 1 p. m. From there they journeyed to Hillsboro by the way of the Animas to the Grande La Palomas and Elephant Butte Dam, where they in thirty minutes they caught 14 nice carp. No other fish seemed to bite and we judge it was on account of the fish being German.

On their return they were met at Engle by Mr. Sheppard, a brother of Mrs. Harry Aguayo of Nogal, who provided the travelers with ice for the fish together with other extended courtesies. As they neared the Mocking Bird Gap on their return trip, the entire region between the Oscuro mountains seemed to be under water, but they made the trip across in safety. Both gentlemen speak in the highest of terms of the hospitality extended to them by the men at the dam, Mr. Sheppard at Engle, Mr. Richardson of the Diamond A's and Mr. George Murray of the Hatchet ranch, the last named gentleman having the praise of being the best coffee maker encountered on the trip. They found the range and stock along the route in excellent condition.

When Manager Dingwall of the Crystal Theatre heard of his father's intention to come over from Comanche, Texas, for a visit, he advised him to come by the way of Roswell, as he would have but one change to make in reaching this place as he wished to visit the club grounds, he informed him that he would meet him at the forks of the road on Nogal Hill which he did.
