PERMANENT ORGANIZATION FORMED AT LAS CRUCES FOR THE SOUTHWESTERN ALL-YEAR PARK ASSOCIATION

Pursuant to a call issued at a preliminary meeting held in the city of El Paso a month before, about three hundred representatives of the southwest met in Las Cruces last Saturday afternoon and created a permanent organization for the "Southwestern All-Year National Park" association.

At the meeting Saturday Hon. W. A. Hawkins was elected a temporary chairman, Judge H. B. Holt, of Las Cruces made a short address outlining the object of the formation of such a park.

Governor Merritt C. Mechem was elected permanent president of the organization, with the following vice presidents: Col. R. E. Tylichill, Santa Fe, first vice president; James G. McNary, El Paso, second vice president; E. C. Hernandez, Albuquerque, third vice president; Judge Sam Bratton, Clovis, fourth vice president; W. D. Murray, Deming, fifth vice president; C. W. Newman, El Paso, Treasurer.

Members of the executive committee who will serve until their successors are elected and the counties they represent are: A. J. Holland, Lincoln; Dr. A. D. Crile, Chavez; Z. D. Moon, Eddy; Judge W. A. Hawkins, Otero; Robert Martin, Sierra; Governor Merritt C. Mechem, Socorro; H. H. Brook, Dona Ana; Major Richard F. Burgess, and Horace B. Stevens, West Texas.

Secretary Fall told the committee that, personally, he favored the proposed National Park in New Mexico, but as an officer of the government, officially he could say nothing until the matter came before him in regular course in the form of a bill put forward by representatives of the people.

In a personal way Mr. Fall, citizen of New Mexico, made several suggestions as to the bill. Principally they were connected with preservation of the rights of the parties now concerned in the territory proposed for the national park.

These are the Indian occupants, an Apache tribe of the Mesquero Indian reservation, and the water users who are interested in the Elephant Butte dam. Part of the big water reservoir project is included in the proposed park.

Should Come From People

Secretary Fall said that the matter should come directly from the people when it does in the form of a bill introduced in congress it will be referred to Secretary Fall for his recommendation as the head of the department of interior.

A sub-committee of the executive committee was appointed to look after the matter of drafting a bill for approval of the secretary of the interior after which the same will be submitted to congress.

As the park matter is now up to the people, we suggest that the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce meet with the Woman's Club at their next regular meeting which will be on the afternoon of Dec. 16, so as to discuss the matter in detail and allow the ladies to have a voice in the matter which is so justly due them. The telegram received at the meeting at Las Cruces was commendable and brought the proper results, therefore, the Chamber of Commerce should get busy and meet with this important organization as the wheels of progress begin to turn in our favor, for the National Park means more to us than some realize; it will carry everything with it that we have been standing in need of, and desiring.

10% PRUNING OF FREIGHT RATES IS AUTHORIZED

Practically All Farm, Range and Orchard Products are Affected, Outside of New England States.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Voluntary railroad proposals for inauguration of a 10 per cent decrease in freight rates in practically all farm, range and orchard products in the United States, outside of New England, were accepted today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Orders were issued allowing the railroads to disregard all usual restrictions in making up the new rate schedules as well as such violations of the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act, as might be brought about by percentage reductions. The orders also permit rates to be put into effect on one day's notice "on an early date and in an inexpensive manner as possible" for a six month experimental period.

The commission left standing its order of October 20, requiring an approximate 1 1/2 per cent rate decrease on grain, grain products and hay in the trans-Mississippi district, which the railroads were later instructed to put into effect by December 27.

At the same time the commission's investigation into the reasonableness of the general level of transportation rates in the United States will begin next week.

RURAL DISTRICTS HEAR OPERA BY WIRELESS SETS

Chicago, Dec. 1.—On long winter nights when the family gathers round the fireplace in some isolated snow-bound farmhouse the members need not lack entertainment, for the air is full of music, short stories and gossip, free to every one prepared to receive it.

Thousands of amateur wireless operators, experts say, are listening nightly to grand opera, bed-time stories, phonograph and hand concerts, crop and weather reports and aerial gossip. Any wireless telegraph can, without additional equipment, pick up the radiophone messages and concerts.

With the inauguration of wireless grand opera by Mary Garden, director-general of the Chicago Opera company, three hours entertainment is furnished five nights a week.

Telephone transmitters over the stage at the Auditorium theatre pick up the opera and transmit it over ordinary land wires to a wireless station on the roof of a skyscraper several blocks away, and from there is sent out broadcast to any one with the proper equipment to receive it. The company operating the station maintains three other broadcasting plants, one at Pittsburg, Pa., one at Newark, N. J., and one at Springfield, Mass. The program of the Pittsburg plant is typical of the others. Early in the evening a bedtime story is read by the sending operator. The stories generally consume about 15 minutes time. Next the weather and crop reports are announced, followed by a phonograph or band concert. This is the weekday schedule. On Sunday nights a specially prepared church sermon is sent.

As all the stations operate on different lengths, the amateur receiver can listen to all, one after another, by turning a small dial on their receiving sets.

This Chicago Opera service is the most ambitious program of all. At 7:30 o'clock, as the audience begins gathering at the Auditorium, the instruments are tested with a phonograph concert. A few minutes before 8 o'clock the "sender" announces the opera for the evening, the principal singers, the conductor, and then gives a brief synopsis of the first act, explaining the stage effects and scenery. At the end of each act a similar synopsis of the next scene is transmitted.

In the first test, when Samson and Dallah was sung, amateur stations have not only heard the orchestra and singers, but the clanking of the chains as Lucien Muratore, as Samson, paced his prison cell, and the storms of applause that marked each curtain call. The sounds were so clear that amplifying devices were unnecessary, ordinary receivers lying on the table at the receiving points spreading the music throughout the room.

Black Smallpox in United States

(N. M. State Bureau of Health.)

Black Smallpox, the most malignant form of the disease, is appearing again in the United States, after an absence of many years, according to a news bulletin just issued by the New Mexico State Bureau of Health. This statement continues: "The papers have recently carried a word of high death rates from smallpox in some of the nearby states. While health officers everywhere have been watching the spread of this disease with a great deal of apprehension, it is only within the past year and a half that the malignant type has been making its presence felt in isolated communities."

"A survey of the smallpox situation in the United States and Canada has recently been completed by one of the largest insurance companies. The report reveals some startling facts. In general, the western states have shown a steady and rapid rise in the number of cases, followed closely by one or two southern states. In one city of the latter group there were eight deaths, among twenty cases, from this one case. Now comes reports of a high percentage of deaths in some cities very close to our own borders."

"The statement of this insurance company shows that the increase in the number of cases of smallpox has kept very closely with general opposition to vaccination. Whenever these groups opposed to vaccination have organized their fight against it, in these same communities the number of cases has grown rapidly. Great portions of our country are again becoming susceptible to the disease, after many years of immunity. Former generations were familiar with the infection in its worst form and welcomed gladly the protection afforded by vaccination, with the result that the disease gave promise of dying out. But absence of danger has made us indifferent, until we are now faced with a menace that may be as disastrous as influenza, for many sections of the land."

"In the face of this rather general increase of prevalence, New Mexico has made an enviable record. Following the organization of the state health department and the very general vaccination of school children, there was a marked decline in smallpox throughout the State. Last summer, there was a stretch of fourteen weeks, when the disease was absent from the State entirely, which was a reversal of conditions prevailing in former years. At no time has the number of cases reported in any one week risen above eight, since the middle of 1920; whereas before that time about twenty to thirty cases a week were reported. This condition has been due entirely to the cooperation of teachers and parents in having all school children vaccinated, for the decrease in our cases paralleled closely the adoption of this preventive measure in our schools."

"However, there is a large portion of our own population that is unvaccinated. It is among the adults of the State that we can look for a dangerous outbreak of smallpox, if vaccination is not very generally resorted to within the next few weeks."

"There is no fact in the whole realm of sanitary science that is so firmly established as that vaccination will prevent smallpox. Any one who will recall his own experience will remember that threatened outbreaks of the infection were always quelled, when the community accepted wholesale vaccination. Notwithstanding many statements to the contrary, the procedure of vaccination is not dangerous, when done with ordinary cleanliness. Although at least twenty-five thousand school children have been vaccinated in New Mexico since the fall of 1919, there has never come to the State Bureau of Health a single complaint of complications following it. This alone speaks for its safety. "Every community in the State should take stock of its situation at once and should have no means untried to protect itself while there is yet simple time. The following suggestions are offered because of their simplicity and effectiveness: 1. Make a census of all school children, to be sure that none has missed vaccination. 2. Encourage every unvaccinated person to protect himself at once. 3. Provide free vaccination for indigents and make it available to all at the lowest possible cost. The Bureau of Health distributes vaccine at eight cents a point. 4. Report with suspicion every case of "chickenpox" in an adult, for it may be mild smallpox."

IMPORTANT EXCAVATIONS TO BE MADE IN CHIHUAHUA, MEXICO

The New Mexico Archaeological society in cooperation with the Archaeological Society of Washington, D. C., and the Royal Ontario Museum, of Canada, have been granted concessions for excavations in pre-historic ruins of the cliff dwellers of Mexico. One assured result of this enterprise will be the acquisition of what is probably the most important collection of archaeological material that has ever been excavated in the southwest. The collection will be shared equally by the three institutions, one third of it going to our State Museum in Santa Fe. It is of the greatest importance to us that a representative collection from that region be secured and kept here in the section where it was produced. It will be remembered that the Chihuahua area is merely an extension of our southwestern cliff dwelling and ancient pueblo region, and there the ancient culture reached its highest development.

Carrizozo was visited by a small snow this week, the first of the season. The portion we received here melted as it fell, but the mountains were nicely capped with the "beautiful" at the present time.

NO REINSTATEMENT GOVERNMENT INSURANCE AFTER JAN. 1ST

Santa Fe, Dec. 5.—No reinstatement of government insurance may be made after the last day of this year.

This announcement of great importance to thousands of ex-service men in New Mexico and hundreds of thousands of other veterans throughout the country, has just been received here and transmitted to all post commanders and adjutants of the American Legion by Herman B. Baca, Adjutant, New Mexico Department.

Mr. Baca calls on all post service officers to bring the government insurance regulations to the attention of the veterans. His letter is as follows:

"1. No reinstatement of government insurance can be made after December 31, 1921.

"2. All ex-service men can reinstate their Government insurance except those who have a total permanent disability or who have a disability not traceable to service.

"3. Regardless of how long a service man's war time or term insurance may have lapsed or been cancelled, or how long he may have been discharged from the service, he is permitted by a ruling of the Treasury Department to reinstate or reinstate and convert at any time before January 1, 1922.

"4. Yearly renewable term insurance may be reinstated by the payment of two monthly premiums and under the following conditions: (a) Within three calendar months, including the calendar month for which the unpaid premium was due, provided the applicant is in as good health as at the due date of the premium in default and no later in his written application. (b) After the expiration of three months and within six calendar months, including the month for which the unpaid premium was due, provided the applicant is in good health, so shown in his written application and supplies a short medical certificate substantiating that statement. (c) After the six months' period and at any time prior to January 1, 1922, provided the applicant is in good health, so shown in his written application and furnishes a report of a full medical examination substantiating that statement.

"United States Government Life Insurance may be reinstated by payment of all premiums in arrears with interest at the rate of five per cent per annum under the same conditions. (Signed) "HERMAN G. BACA" Adjutant, New Mexico Department."

ETERNAL SLEEP

Last Monday afternoon at 10 minutes past four o'clock, Mrs. Clara D. Leon, mother of Mrs. Albert Ziegler, passed away after twelve days of suffering from pneumonia. Mrs. Leon had been ill at times for the past four years, according to Mrs. Ziegler's statement, but the same was unknown to her nearest friends, as she was of a disposition adverse to making her own troubles known, rather preferring to scatter sunshine than to recite her sorrows, but her recent illness wherein her advanced age was a hindrance to her battle with the disease, made resistance and medical aid of no avail and she passed with the silent boatman to the other shore.

The funeral services were held at the Ziegler home at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with Rabbi Martin Zielonka of Temple Mount Sinai, El Paso, Texas, conducting the same. He paid a high tribute to the character of the deceased, spoke of her saintly endurance with life's troubles and gave words of consolation to surviving relatives. After the rites were administered, an escort composed of Messrs. Geo. Ferguson, Past Worshipful Master of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., B. F. Miller, Secretary, J. B. French and E. O. Prohm, with pall bearers, E. M. Brickley, B. L. Stimpf, Dr. R. E. Blaney, Dr. E. E. Cole, H. P. Huppertz, A. L. Burke, all of the local Masonic lodge, escorted the remains to the depot, where the same were shipped to Trinidad, Colo., accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ziegler, where final services will be held and interment made on Saturday.

Miss Clara Rosenfelt was born in Hoffenheim, Germany, May 20, 1845. She came to this country at the age of 20 years and was afterwards married to Mr. P. Leon. The couple was blessed with but one child, who is now Mrs. Albert Ziegler of Carrizozo, besides whom she leaves to mourn her loss, two granddaughters, Mrs. John Gutknecht of Chicago, Mrs. Chas. Coplin of Seattle, Washington; one grandson, Robert Arthur Coplin, Seattle, Washington; one brother, Charles Dobiach of St. Louis, Mo., all of whom, except the latter, who is too feeble, will attend services and interment at Trinidad. Mrs. Leon was much loved by all who knew her. She was always present at the different society events held here and her name was identified with all who contributed to movements of a charitable nature. Kindheartedness, careful consideration for the feelings and needs of others were the chief characteristics of Mrs. Clara Leon.

The floral offerings which were many and beautiful and which lay banked beneath the casket were but mute tokens of love and reverence from the many friends of the deceased.

The Outlook extends its sympathy to the sorrowing relatives and would point out the fact that "after serving her generation well, she fell asleep."

TURIST HELD UP AND HOBBED NEAR SANTA FE

Santa Fe, N. M., Dec. 5.—Frederick De Lage of Toledo, O., motoring in a big limousine to Bakerfield, Calif., with his wife and four children was held up and robbed of $200 and his watch by two masked bandits at 10 o'clock Saturday night, near the U. S. Indian school, three miles from Santa Fe. De Lage, stranger to the country, was forced to drain his gas tank and he and his family remained in the car all night in a temperature of 10 above zero. Indian school officials discovered their plight in the morning and helped them thaw out the motor. A series of robberies of motor tourists has occurred here lately.

STATE GETS FEDERAL ROAD AID AT 61.50 TO $390 RATIO

Santa Fe, Dec. 2.—New Mexico gets $1,508 of the more than $1,000,000 allotment for road building carried in the recently passed $75,000,000 highway act for every $31,432 the state puts up, Highway Engineer Gillett has been officially advised.

Heretofore the state has had to put up $50 for every $50 of federal aid received, but the recently passed act cuts down the state's percentage because of the large acreage of unreserved federal land in the state that escapes taxation.

This provision also applies to the unused part of the federal aid allotment and, Gillett estimated, saves the state $500,000. It would have had to put up had the 50-50 plan been continued.

FILIPINOS FACE A LONG ROAD TO SELF GOVERNMENT, SAYS REPORT OF WOOD AND FORBES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Despite extraordinary progress in the past 23 years, the Filipino people have a long road to travel before they will be ready to take their own government, according to the report made by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor general of the islands, and W. Cameron Forbes, former governor general. The complete report was issued today by the war department, as a supplement to the recent publication of specific recommendations made by the two investigators.

Progress Is Seen

Need of further national improvement is pointed out by the report which declares, however, that the administrative mistakes of the Filipinos have not been sufficient to counter-balance the steady rising progress barometer.

"Generally speaking," the report says, "administrative departments of the government are top-heavy in personnel and enmeshed in red tape. There is a vast amount of paper work. The methods of the administration are purely autocratic. There is a lack of supervision and personal contact."

Discussing the policy pursued during the administration of Gen. Wood from 1914 to 1921, the report declared "the orderly process of promotion on proved efficiency in the government service was changed to a hurried Filipinization and continued: Efficiency Low.

"While there has been retrogression in the efficiency of most departments of the government during the past few years, we do not feel that the responsibility for this rests solely upon the Filipinos, as the ultimate responsibility for the selection of responsible officers and for the exercise of proper supervision was in the hands of the American governor general whose duty it was to appoint competent men at the heads of departments and bureaus, and above all, to exercise proper supervision over them."

MECHEM OUT OF RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

He Will Positively Not Be a Candidate, State Executive Declares at Las Cruces Today.

Las Cruces, N. M., Dec. 3.—Governor Merritt C. Mechem will not be a candidate to succeed himself as governor. He made this announcement at the Temple of Agriculture here this morning in response to a question as to his candidacy next year.

"I will not be a candidate and I want it distinctly understood that I am not even a receptive candidate. I don't want any strings tied to it so that it will be considered, I am not even a possible candidate," he said.

Governor Mechem, who is here to attend the convention of the Southwestern All Year National Park Association, said he will return to Socorro at the close of his term of office to resume his law practice.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING AT WHITE OAKS

(Contributed.)

The first home wedding to take place in White Oaks for many years occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Smith, when their daughter, Audrey, and Mr. Philip Reardon were united in wedlock on December 8.

The bride was reared in Rochester, N. Y., and the groom, who is well known in Lincoln county, was reared in White Oaks.

The short but impressive service was read by John Walker, our justice of the peace. After the service the guests were delightfully entertained with music and dancing and at ten o'clock a nice luncheon was served. There were about fifty guests present.

The newlyweds received many nice gifts and are now happily installed in their new home.

BAPTIST ORPHANS' HOME

The New Mexico Baptist Orphans' Home, located at Portales, is a new institution trying to do its bit in caring for the unfortunate children of the state. Children of any religious denomination or no denomination are admitted into the home. This home is in no sense trying to monopolize the state in this work, but we feel that we should have a part in it. It is the only non-Catholic denominational institution of its kind in the state, we believe the general public should have an opportunity to help in its support. There are now twenty-four in the Home and applications for many more. The management has planned a Christmas campaign for the home similar to the campaign of last year. We want the best people of Carrizozo and the public in general to know that we would appreciate at least a part of your gifts to the Orphans.

CHAPTER XIX—Continued.

Moreland winced perceptibly. The big, crooked finger came way from the hair-line trigger. He had never expected to hear the man whom he knew as John K. Carlyle say that which he had just said. It had never entered his mind that John K. Carlyle could be sorry.

Then the great and bitter desire for revenge rushed into his brain again, and his head went down, and his keen right eye looked along the sights and to the kneeling man's breast. His trigger finger began slowly to crook.

Until this instant Elizabeth Littleford had been as one frozen, had been as a figure carved in stone. Now she sprang to her feet and went between Moreland and his ancient enemy.

"Put 'at gun down—wait until I tell you, John Moreland, what I've got to tell you!" she cried tensely, lapsing into the old dialect in her excitement. While Moreland stared, she went on:

"It wasn't Newton Wheatley 'at put up the money to start your coal mine a-goins'; it was this man here! And the Alexander Crayfield Coal corporation—which has been a-payin' you two prices for, your coal—that was this man here! Mr. Mayon was his—his ally through it all. And he's sorry, John Moreland, this man is—so sorry that he wants to die; and can't you see it, John Moreland?"

She caught her breath again and continued tearfully: "Oh, he don't deserve to be killed, and if he did—you're too good a man to kill him. He's done paid—you don't know, like I do, how he's paid. You mustn't get that. And you mustn't get that Bill Dale, his son. Put down that gun, John Moreland! Your people in snow, as David wanted 'em saved. Now don't go and a-spoil it all, 'er God's sake!"

The big mountaineer's eyes were wide with amazement, for Elizabeth Littleford's every word had borne the ring of truth. He was too dazed to understand her allusion to Bill Dale, his old enemy's son. The rifle came back from across the palling, and its steel-shod butt found a place in the snow beside John Moreland's foot.

Slowly John K. Dale arose and drew close to him, and then from John K. Dale's soul came pouring the pent-up anguish of remorse that had seared it through the years. The torrent of words flowed on, while the mountaineer stood rigidly regarding him with a strange light in his piercing eyes.

"I can't ask you to forgive me," Dale finished brokenly. "I don't expect forgiveness; my crime was too great. But can't you, for the sake of the boy, let me keep on trying to atone for my sin?"

John Moreland looked long and searchingly into the face of the pleading man before him. The bitter struggle that was going on within him was mirrored on his rugged countenance. But gradually the bitterness faded; his huge frame trembled; he put a hand slowly down on the other's shoulder.

"The boy," he muttered—"Bill Dale: is he your boy? Your name was Carlyle then—"

"My boy, yes—my boy, Bill Dale. Carlyle is an old family name. My father was at the head of a big coal concern; he sent me down here in-cognito to get a line on the Moreland vein. Maybe he thought the price would be high if it were known that he wanted it; I don't know. I—I can't remember."

Ben Littleford's daughter was watching closely, hoping against hope, praying to heaven with all her heart; and then she saw John K. Dale put his right hand up to John Moreland's hand, take it and press it—and she saw John Moreland, his bearded mouth jerking, give the answering squeeze that meant something very, very, very plain.

She ran out at the gate, ran up to the giant hillman and put her arms around his neck; she drew his great brown head down and kissed him on the cheek. And John Moreland let his rifle fall unnoticed to the snow, put his arms around her shoulders as though she were his own daughter, bowed his head and sobbed out a few words she did not understand.

Night had fallen when they reached Ben Littleford's cabin home. The girl was welcomed with much joy; old Dale was received with almost affectionate cordiality. A roaring fire was soon going in the best room, and old Dale was given the cosiest of the sheepskin-lined rockers. Ben Littleford, washed scrupulously clean of coal dust, sat near the great of honor, John Moreland, who was so thoughtful that he seemed to hear and see nothing, sat close to Ben Littleford.

Suddenly Dale looked toward his host and asked: "Where is my son?" At that moment Dale the younger, in boots and cowboys, appeared in the outer doorway and answered for himself:

"Here he is, father. Are you well?" Dale the elder arose, and their hands clasped warmly. Young Dale then shook hands with Elizabeth, who blushed in spite of herself as she faced him.

To hide her confusion, Elizabeth turned to the tall and lanky By Heck, who had come in behind Bill Dale.

"How are you, By?" she greeted him.

"Hungry," grinned By Heck, taking her hand awkwardly. "I never eat nothin' but a couple o' baked 'potatoes and a peck or two o' sweet 'aters for dinner, and I've been as busy as the devil—as a thunder. A doin' nothin' ever since. Doin' nothin' shore does make me hungry, M-M-Miss Babe."

Supper was announced, and they went into a long, log-walled room that served as both kitchen and dining room.

Bill Dale sat beside his father and talked of nothing but coal veins—big and little coal veins, long and short, broad and narrow, deep and shallow, blue and black coal veins. Babe Littleford, who wouldn't marry him, who had come back to the hills to torture him with a beauty that he had never believed possible in any woman, shouldn't know that he was even thinking of her!

He talked coal with his father until bedtime, and he was wiser in the ways of the black diamond when nine o'clock came. After Ben Littleford had haltingly conducted family prayers—and in this he mentioned even the Balls, Turners and Torreys—Bill Dale bade them all good night and started for his office to sleep, rolled in a blanket on the floor. There was a lack of beds at Ben Littleford's that night.

A little later, John Moreland drew old Ben out to the cabin yard. The skies were clear, and the moon was shining brightly; everywhere there was beauty and peacefulness.

"Ben," softly, "I've got to bother ye a minute, as late as it is. I wanted you to find me a hammer and a chisel and a lantern."

"I've got 'em all three right thar in the house," replied Littleford. "But what'n the name o' Torment and thunderation do ye want with a hammer and a chisel and a lantern, John, old friend?"

The answer came straightforwardly. It was the Moreland way.

"I'm a-goins' up thar to whar pore David's buried at, and cut off some them letters off the stone, Ben. I can't sleep until it's done. You can guess what part I'm a-goins' to cut off, can't ye?"

"Yes," said Littleford. "Babe told me about what happened up thar."

John Moreland looked long and searchingly into the face of the pleading man before him. The bitter struggle that was going on within him was mirrored on his rugged countenance. But gradually the bitterness faded; his huge frame trembled; he put a hand slowly down on the other's shoulder.

"The boy," he muttered—"Bill Dale: is he your boy? Your name was Carlyle then—"

him anything in advance. So he went with her to see for himself.

When at last they stood inside the weatherbeaten palling, Elizabeth pointed and said:

"Look there, and thank God!"

Dale looked and saw. The color left his face, then came back. He shut his eyes, swayed a little on his feet, opened his eyes, looked and saw again. He turned to the young woman with a great joy shining on his face.

"I haven't been so glad," he told her, "for twenty-five years."

The chiseling away of the lower five lines had not only obliterated the curse: it had left an almost perfect cross. Then John Moreland's bare, cold and tireless hands had gone to work and made it, in every respect, a perfect cross.

CHAPTER XX

The End of It All.

The sun shone very brightly that day, and the snow began to melt on the places that were not shaded. When he returned with Elizabeth from the crest of David Moreland's mountain, John K. Dale took a rocker before the fire and sat there thinking, thinking, until the midday meal was announced. When the midday meal was over, he resumed his chair and sat there thinking, thinking, until the afternoon was half gone.

Then he called Elizabeth to him. "Will you go to my son and tell him I wish to see him?" he said. And he added under his breath: "I think it is best that they should know."

Elizabeth heard that which he had said to himself as well as she heard that which he had said to her. Should she know? Know what? She had a sudden wild fear that Mrs. Dale had broken her promise never to breathe a word of the truth concerning the Adam Ball affair. Nevertheless, she put on her hat and her gloves and went to Bill Dale's office.

Dale sat with his elbows on his desk and with his head in his hands. To all appearances, he was unaware of the presence of the girl in the doorway.

She spoke. "Bill!" He sat up straight and faced her. He seemed surprised.

"Well, Babe?" "You're father wants you," in a low voice. "He's got something to tell you that—that will make you think almost nothing of me!"

Young Dale frowned. "What is it?" "I'd rather he'd tell you about it," Bill Dale, I don't think I could bear to tell you myself—"

She turned and was about to hasten away, when he called to her; "Wait!"—and she waited.

"Has it," he asked, "anything to do with your marriage to Jimmy Fayne?"

"No!" He arose and put on his broad-rimmed hat. "I'll admit," he smiled, "that I'm worse than a grubby woman for poking my nose into other people's affairs—when are you going to marry Jimmy, Babe?"

The answer came quickly: "Never." "Never!" repeated Elizabeth, very quietly.

"Never?" pursued Dale. "Never!" cried Elizabeth, exasperated.

"Goodness!" laughed Dale. "You're dramatic, or vehement, or both. May I walk home with you, Babe?" "Yes, sir," promptly, "if you want to."

They set out across the snow-covered meadows, and neither spoke another word until they had reached Ben Littleford's log house. The girl looked at him queerly as they entered. After he knew—

Old Dale still sat before the fire, and near him sat silent John Moreland. Old Dale motioned toward an inside door.

"Please close it, Elizabeth," he requested, and she obeyed. "Now sit down. I've got something to tell the three of you. And I fancy it will interest all of you."

The two who had just come in took chairs at the fireside. After a moment John K. Dale began:

"You've often wondered, Bill, about that savage streak—as you choose to call it—that is in you. You inherited it. Much of that which we are, it is claimed, is inherited, and it must be correct; like begets like, of course. But there is no savage streak in you, Bill. You are hot-headed, that's all. Your virtues overbalance that, by far. I have never seen another man who had a greater love for honesty and fair play, or a greater hatred for all that is hollow and false, or more courage to stick up for that which seems to be right, than you. Now I'll tell you how you came by these fine qualities and the hot-headedness—"

Elizabeth Littleford sat wide-eyed, tense, half breathless. If he meant to tell it, why didn't he tell it! Why did he beat about the bush like that?

"But the cry of a child from the cabin I was leaving halted me before I had gone thirty yards. David Moreland's wife had left him with a baby only a few weeks old, which I didn't pay any particular attention to until that morning, that black morning. At that time there was no other house for miles around. I couldn't leave the child there to die of starvation, after killing its father. So I went back and took the baby, and all its clothing, and took it away with me. I left it at a farmhouse down in the lowland, and went to another city, and started life afresh. . . .

"But later I married, and shortly after that I went to the farmer and persuaded him to let me adopt the child. I brought it up as my own, and educated it, as a sort of compensation. And I came to love it. But it was years before my wife loved it. She didn't like children then. But she goes now. She is paying now, and I am paying. Don't you understand, Bill—don't you understand?" There was a choke in his voice toward the last. Bill Dale went to his feet. His eyes were wide, but he did not seem unhappy; and for that Elizabeth was grateful. John Moreland sat as still, with his bearded, viking face as expressionless as though he had known it all along.

"And so I really am in my own country," cried Bill Dale. "I am a Moreland, and the Morelands really are my own people!"

"Yes, you are in your own country, and you are a Moreland—and your baby name was David," said John K. Dale.

It was then that John Moreland spoke.

"Bill, when I first seed you, you made me think o' my brother the day he was married. I ain't never forgot that. I certainly ain't never forgot none at all. We didn't know about the baby. Cherokee Joe told me the baby had died."

"And now, son," pleaded old Dale, his voice breaking, "say that you forgive me."

Bill Dale, David Moreland's boy, knelt beside the old sheepskin-lined rocker, took the old coal king's hand in both his own and bent his head over it.

"It's all right," he said thickly. "It's all right."

Elizabeth Littleford arose and stole blindly out of the house. Her foot-steps led her, quite without her realizing where she was going, across the meadow and to the river above the blown-down sycamore. And there on that sacred spot, where she had first felt her heart leap at the sound of Bill Dale's voice, she sank down in a heap in the snow and cried, and cried.

Twilight was gathering rapidly, but she did not notice it. She did not notice, either, that the air was growing steadily colder with the approach of the mountain night. To her a warm sun was shining above in a bright blue vault; to her the spirit of summer was everywhere; in her ears there was the liquid song of a meadow lark; the sweet twittering of wood thrushes; the low humming of wild bees. The pouring of the crystal waters between the two boulders above the pool made music to her, and blended with it she seemed to hear the voice of a big, clean, strong man—

"I was thinking of the difference between you and some other women. I know."

Then a ray of hope shone into her heart. Bill Dale was really a Moreland and, therefore, of the hill blood even as she was of the hill blood, and that should make them more nearly equal. She told herself that she wouldn't be so apt to condemn her for being able to take a human life easily as one of another blood would be; she would be more apt to understand. And yet, the woman she had known were

Then she wondered—wondered who it could have been.

It was quite dark now, but the moon was not yet up. A great, bright star blazed above David Moreland's tomb like a beacon fire. She heard the muffled sounds of slow masculine footsteps in the snow behind her. She did not turn her head. In her soul she knew it could be but one man.

Bill Dale's head was down, and he moved as though he neither knew nor cared whither he went. Then he saw the dark heap on the river's bank before him, and he halted. He knew in his soul that it could be but one woman.

Dale went on and sat down on a stone the size of a small barrel that lay at the river's rim.

"Babe?" he said. It was the muffled call of his heart in the springtime of his life.

"Who'd-done all o' this whittlin', Bill?" asked Elizabeth.

"I did," softly.

"But I thought you were so busy herf! It's nobody but idlers, of course, that whitties—that is, most of the time it's nobody but idlers that whitties."

"But I'm not busy on Sundays, I know," replied Dale.

"Tell me this," Elizabeth asked pointedly; "What made you come to this one spot to do your whittlin'?"

"You whittle up there in my daddy's cabin yard?"

He answered her unhesitatingly: "Because I like to be here. This place is a shrine to me. It was here that I first loved you, Babe. Now you tell me this: Why did you come to this particular spot to sit down in the snow? There's snow in your daddy's cabin yard!"

Said Elizabeth, in a voice that sounded smothered: "Because I like to be here—this place is a shrine to me, too—it was here that I first loved you, Bill Dale!"

"Then why," he demanded, "won't you marry me?"

"Because it was me that shot—Adam Ball."

She went on, and though emotion had set every fibre of her to quivering, she did not fall into the old hill talk, which was proof of the magnificence of her:

"I thought you wouldn't want me if you knew that I did that, and I couldn't marry you without telling you. But you know now! And do whatever you feel like doing or saying, you can't hurt me; I can never be hurt any—any m-m-m-more—"

Bill Dale shot erect. Truly, this was a day of surprises for him. He stooped and caught her up.

"A real woman!" he said happily, straightening with her in his arms. "A real, all gold, pure gold woman! You loved me well enough to kill a man to save me, and wouldn't let me know it! Woman is a mystery, sure enough. But perhaps it's because women are so fine and so far above menfolk that menfolk cannot understand them. Well, Babe, kitten, must I drag you to the altar, or will you go with me of your own accord?"

She put her arms around his neck and drew them tight.

"I'd go with you, Bill Dale—or David Moreland, whichever it is—to the very last inch of the end of the world," she said.

Early the next morning, there came strolling lazily up the river's bank a tall and lanky mountaineer who wore, among other things, a Niagara Falls mustache and cowhide boots that seemed ridiculously short because of the great length of his slender legs. He carried a rifle in the hollow of one arm; he was looking for rabbit-tracks in the snow. Near the pool above the blown-down sycamore, he came upon tracks that had not been made by any four-footed animals. There were the footprints of a man coming from one direction, and the footprints of a woman coming from another direction; only the footprints of the man went away toward Ben Littleford's cabin.

By Heck was puzzled. "Here comes Bill!" he frowned, "and over here comes Babe. And thar, as plain as day, goes Bill; but what become o' Babe? What in the name of the devil's pet ridin' horse did she go to? Not straight up, shurely!"

He scrutinized the signs with the understanding eyes of the born woodsman. Then he grinned broadly and said to himself:

"Well, dang my fozzard, and blast my eyes! The danged old injun, he jest plicked her up bodily and carried her off home, and I know what that means, thank God. I can't pray, but I shore can sing—"

"Oh, when I die, don't bury me deep; Put a tombstone at my head and feet; Put a bear's jawbone in my right hand; On my way to the Promised Land, Oh! On my way to the Promised Land!"

(THE END.)

Ancient Roman Elections.

Ancient Pompeians had both primary and general elections, similar to those we have in every town and city each spring. They were in the midst of an exciting local election, it is imagined, when Pompeii was destroyed in 79 A. D.

Doan's Kidney Pills

George Town, Ill. "After my first baby was born I suffered so with my back that I could not walk across the floor unless I was all humped over, holding to my side. I doctored with several doctors but found no relief and they said I would have to have an operation. My mother insisted on my taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. Now I can do all my own work and it is the Vegetable Compound that has saved me from an operation. I cannot praise your medicine too highly and I tell all of my friends and neighbors what the Compound did for me."—Mrs. MARGARET MCGUMBER, 27 S. Frazier St., Georgetown, Illinois.

Mrs. McCumber is one of the unnumbered thousands of housewives who struggle to keep about their daily tasks, while suffering from ailments peculiar to women with backache, sideaches, headaches, bearing-down pains and nervousness—and if every such woman should profit by her experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial they would get well.

Observing the Properties. "You said you would not indulge in personalities during the campaign." "Well?"

"But you charged your opponent with being a liar, a thief, an oppressor of widows and orphans and a rum-soaked frequenter of the low dives of bootleggers."

"Not so. I merely said those were current rumors in regard to my opponent and I left it to the judgment of an enlightened citizenry to say whether they were true or false."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

The Quarterly Conference of the Methodist Church was held at the Church building on Dec. 4. The business session was held Sunday evening after the regular services. Rev. J. B.
Cochran of Albuquerque, our presiding elder was in the chair, and Dr. Cole was elected secretary. The pastor read his report, which showed several accessions during the quarter, namely:
W. W. Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. Slight,
Mrs. Bessie McCamant, and Mrs. L.
E. Conkin.
Acting Supt. Mrs. A. M. McCall reports the Sunday School in a thriving condition. Under her able leadership it has increased over 100 per cent during the quarter. At her suggestion and on nomination by the pastor, D. S.
Donaldson was elected Sunday School superintendent for the ensuing year.
The Woman's Missionary Society,
through their president, Mrs. Geo. E.
Barber, made an encouraging report which shows growth and accomplishment of much helpful work.

The League work was reported by vice-president Miss Idalia Cowan. The president, Miss Florence Spence, being in the hospital in El Paso at the time.
This report shows active, spiritual and helpful work.

W. M. Sanford was added to the Board of Stewards.

The business session was followed up Monday by a social meeting at the parsonage. A turkey dinner was enjoyed, after which plans for the new year were completed. The following stewards were presented: E. M. Brickley,
D. S. Donaldson, L. A. McCall, Clarence
Spence, W. W. Sanford, Adams. All stewards were present except O. Z.
Finley, who was in El Paso. Others present were Rev. J. B. Cochran, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Snow.—Reporter.

WESTERN

Ruth Thompson, 5 years old, was crushed to death while playing in a cave dug by children when the sides caved in, burying her under two tons of earth, at Scotts Bluff, Neb.

Three unmasked men entered the Northwestern Loan office, a block from the police station in Omaha, held up Sam Cohn and Ben Morris, proprietors, and escaped with $7,000 in diamonds, jewelry and cash.

Damages of $21,400 for the death of Charles F. van de Water, congressman-elect of Long Beach, on Nov. 20, 1920, against the owners of the truck into which his automobile crashed, have been entered by stipulation in the Los Angeles Superior Court.

Emergy Rogers, former lieutenant in the aviation corps and an instructor at various Eastern flying fields, was injured fatally in a crash at a field near Los Angeles maintained by a commercial flying company he organized. Spectators said his monoplane was about forty feet up and traveling rapidly when Rogers attempted a turn. The plane crashed sideways.

Gus Branch, a pool hall proprietor of Truckee, Calif., was placed in the county jail to await preliminary hearing on a charge that he murdered Annie Hoyle, whose body recently was discovered at Ogden. The disinterment is said to have disclosed that the woman was beaten severely. An inquest soon after death held she had committed suicide by poisoning.

W. H. Hollis, a resident of Fort Worth, Texas, was taken three miles west of town by masked men and whipped, he informed the police. He said the men took him to the county jail following the whipping and released him. Police say Hollis told them that he was informed by the masked men that he was whipped because he possessed a quantity of liquor.

The Union Pacific railroad system has decided to begin its conferences between company officials and representatives of the workers on the question of lower wages on Dec. 21, it was stated at headquarters of the system in Omaha. All classes of employees would be affected, it was said. Some of the conferences will be held in Omaha, while others probably will be conducted in Salt Lake City, Portland and Los Angeles.

WASHINGTON

The back to the farm movement is progressing satisfactorily, according to the Department of Agriculture, despite the fact the farmer is having a hard row to hoe these days, and the unemployment situation is being relieved as a result.

Workers in the New York navy yard passed resolutions asking Congress to give a year's salary to all employees who have been in the yard more than a year should they lose their jobs through suspension of work on agreement of the arms conference.

Secretary of War Weeks estimated that about 2,000 of the American forces on the Rhine will be at home before Christmas. The Cantigny, one of the two vessels engaged to transport the forces home, is already on the way to New York with the first contingent.

Louis Gillot, historical painter, has been commissioned by the French government to make a picture of the arms conference, to be hung in one of the national galleries of France.

The Chinese and Japanese delegates to the conference on disarmament continue to hold the center of the stage in Washington so far as interest in the personality of the personnel of the various delegations is concerned. To the average American the evidences of familiarity with American customs and practices of those from the Orient has been a matter of surprise.

Values of the merchandise exported during October fell to fractional parts of the totals for the same month last year, while decided drops in imports were noted by the commerce department in its monthly summary. Exports to Europe aggregated $100,000,000 compared with $423,000,000 in October last year, while imports amounted to $67,000,000 against $53,000,000. During the ten months ended with October exports to Europe were $2,666,000,000 against $3,720,000,000 the corresponding months of 1920, while imports aggregated $622,000,000 compared with $1,075,000,000.

Fifteen ships of the old navy will be put on the auction block soon, it was announced by the Navy Department. Among them are the cruiser Brooklyn, flagship of Rear Admiral Behley during the battle of Santiago. Others are the cruiser Columbia, the battleship Maine which replaced the battleship of that name destroyed at Havana, the battleship Missouri, launched in 1901, the cruiser Memphis, now a wreck on the San Domingo coast, and the former fleet flag ship, known as the Ohio.

The jury in the case of Juan Rubio, charged with the murder of Lupe Gonzales at Roswell, N. M., returned a verdict of not guilty after being out a little less than an hour. The verdict was reached on the second ballot.

Superintendent Blake of the New Mexico Reform School at Springer, N. M., has put in a movie machine for the entertainment of the boys. A picture show is given every Wednesday night. These pictures are shown in the coal camps and then sent to Springer for use of the reform school.

P. R. Milnes, state immigration commissioner, has written Ely Martin, secretary of the Douglas Chamber of Commerce and Milnes, asking for an unemployment survey of Douglas which the governor of Arizona and the President of the United States have called for from every city in the country.

No Mexican labor will be imported in the state of Arizona this year to help pick the cotton crop, according to P. R. Milnes, Arizona immigration commissioner. Labor is slowly moving into the Salt River valley and although the supply is not equal to the demand a sufficient number of men is being secured with which to get by.

The office of the attorney general of Arizona in a letter to Raymond Harhart, state treasurer, held that a transfer of money from the fund created by the enabling act of Congress for the erection of state buildings to the fund to pay for the construction of the west wing of the capitol, which cost $125,000, could not be made.

George Newell, who is alleged to have forged the name of former Attorney General Palmer and Senator Miles Poinceter of Washington to certain important documents, according to the police, is in the city jail at Nogales, Ariz., following his deportation across the border by Mexican immigration officials as an undesirable alien.

Identification of bones found near Buckeye, Ariz., as the skeleton of J. J. Knight, wealthy resident of Wichita Falls, Texas, has been made virtually certain, according to an announcement by the sheriff's office. The sheriff's office said the teeth in the skull corresponded with those of Knight as described in a telegram from Wichita Falls.

H. J. McClung, president of the Phoenix National Bank, has been elected president of the Arizona Central Bank and Northern Arizona Securities Company of Flagstaff, it has been announced. He was a member of the board of directors of the Central Bank, and in assuming the presidency will not relinquish his past as president of the Phoenix National.

Frank T. French, chairman of the road and highway committee of the Law Caucus Chamber of Commerce, said he had taken up with members of the State Highway Commission the matter of a new road from Picochito bridge to Cambray, on the Dona Ana-Luna counties line. This road would shorten the distance about five miles between El Paso and Deming via Las Cruces.

Contracts for new hospital buildings for the Public Health Service at Fort Bayard, N. M., and the installation of all equipment in such buildings, have been awarded, according to news received from Washington. A Philadelphia engineering firm gets the contracts for the new buildings and R. E. McKee, general contractor of El Paso, will install all equipment in the new structures. The expenditures will aggregate approximately $1,000,000.

The board of regents of the University of Arizona will hold a meeting in Tucson on Dec. 23 to consider appointment of a successor to Dr. H. H. von Koenigsmid as president of the university, according to an announcement made at Phoenix.

The work on the Clovis-Portales highway in New Mexico is being rapidly completed now and will be finished by about the middle of December. The foundation has been completed and is being surfaced with cinders, which consists of a mixture of underground clay and ground rock. This surfacing is put on in a thickness of about a foot and makes a fine road after being properly rolled and packed.

The Mesa Co-operative Company, a corporation, office at Roy, Harding county, N. M., has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district clerk's office. Its business is that of a grain dealer; its assets are given as $27,041.83 and its debts as $47,933.82. Most of the creditors with unsecured claims are residents of Roy and the amounts vary from $5 to $1,400. There are capital stock certificates in the sum of $25,000.

Patients at Whipple Barracks at Prescott, Ariz., sent an invitation to Marshal Foch asking him to visit the hospital while in Arizona in order to see how America is caring for its disabled veterans. The invitation was sent by the patients organization at the hospital.

The board of trustees of the Methodist church of Alamogordo, N. M., is making plans for the erection of a new church which when completed will cost over $25,000, and it is hoped that actual construction will be under way by the first of the year.

OPEN SHOP PLAN IS RECOGNIZED

NEW RULES ADOPTED WILL HAVE FAR-REACHING EFFECT ON LABOR.

BIG SAVING EXPECTED

ALL RAILROADS COME UNDER REVISED PLANS OF RAILROAD LABOR BOARD.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

Chicago.—Economies in operation and increased efficiency, estimated to reach $50,000,000 a year, and recognition of the "open shop" on all American railroads were forecast in the promulgation of revised working rules governing railroad shop employees by the United States Railroad Labor Board.

The new rules became effective Dec. 1, and take jurisdiction over approximately 400,000 men immediately, although a still larger number will be affected when the normal traffic conditions are restored.

Far-reaching changes in the rules, which supplant the national agreement made during federal control, were designed to afford a basis for permanent stability in the railroad shops of the country and were declared by members of the Labor Board to be the most important work yet done by the board and of much greater significance than any decision in the past, even including wage scale adjustments.

Large economies are expected to result from revision of the classification rules, which were made more elastic, and hereafter will permit members of certain crafts to do minor jobs previously done by members of other crafts. Statisticians attached to the Labor Board estimated that economies in operation, increased efficiency and larger output would approximate $50,000,000 a year.

Provision for the representation of minorities who may have grievances is another important item of the new rules. Under the national agreement negotiation for employees was placed almost wholly in the hands of labor organizations, with the result that the railroad and many industrial and civic institutions declared that the agreement forced a closed union shop on the roads.

Nonunion men found it impracticable to attempt to bring their grievances before the board, and as the rules worked out, union officials handled the cases, taking their precedent from the national agreement negotiations, in which union officials acted for the employees in drawing up the agreement under federal control.

"Most of the older working rules, sanctioned by the experience of years, are preserved in full effect. Many of the more rigid rules, however, were considerably relaxed in favor of the roads, although the recognized rights of the men are fully protected and the principle of collective bargaining and union recognition is retained, as contemplated by the transportation act."

The rules controversy dates back to May 1, 1920, when the railroads emerged from government control. Strenuous objections to the national agreement were made in a hearing which began Jan. 10, 1921. After several months of testimony, the rules were referred back to the individual roads, with instructions to negotiate such new rules as they could with their employees to replace the federal government rules.

$18,000 Men in French Army.

Paris.—The strength of France's army was given as 818,000 as of Oct. 1 by the report of the army commission to the chamber of deputies, made public. The report was made public in connection with the government's proposed law calling the class of 1922 to the colors in two contingents, one next May and the other next November.

Twelve Killed in Wreck.

Red Bluff, Calif.—Twelve high school students were killed south of here at the Proberta crossing by the collision of the school bus in which they were riding with Southern Pacific train No. 15. The automobile contained sixteen children. The four injured are not expected to live.

Dynamite Cap Kills Farmer.

McKinney, Tex.—Robert Steele, 68 years old, is dead here from injuries incurred when a dynamite cap exploded in his mouth. He had been blowing out tree stumps on a farm near Princeton, and was clamping the cap to the dynamite fuse by means of his teeth.

Famine Spreading in Russia.

Riga.—Famine horrors in Russia are growing with the approach of winter, official Bolshevik government advisers show. In the Saratov region, where 320,000 peasants are listed as starving, even children have been without food several days and many persons are going mad. Dispatches to the Koeta News agency says many mothers are bathing their children in a poisonous extract made from sheep wool, hoping it will bring about their death.

Important to all Women
Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes you feel unwell.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG-SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Palestines Promising Future

PALESTINE'S promising future! Certainly Palestine is at the beginning of a new era. And although there are many difficulties in plain sight, this new era is promising.

The view of Jerusalem as one leaves the Garden of Gethsemane draws the heart with sympathy," writes William D. McCracken in Asia. "The walls rise severely above bare slopes where nothing grows, for it is outside the city proper that biblical prophecies of the desolation of Jerusalem seem to be fulfilled.

"Today the city stands midway between the horrors of the Turkish regime and the promised good of the British mandatory rule. Nothing has been done as yet in a public way to beautify the city. North and west the houses straggle outside the walls; on the south forbidding slopes border the road to Bethlehem; and on the east lies the terrible valley of Jehoshaphat—a valley of dry bones. "Seventeen times destroyed—bitterly hated— anxiously sought—how desperate a history since Nebuchadnezzar captured it more than twenty-five centuries ago.

"Redeemed today, but in her nakedness, Jerusalem waits to be clothed. She has as yet no grace, no covering for her ugly wounds. Some day her sides will glisten with the brightness of a heavenly radiance; she will be washed and anointed like a bride waiting for the bridegroom."

The prophetic part of this is written, of course, in Oriental imagery. Sir Herbert Samuel, the British high commissioner, puts the situation in plain English and says, in his report to parliament: "Underdeveloped and underpopulated, Palestine has possibilities of far more prosperity than the standard attained before the war."

And Palestine's future is the concern of half the world. Christian, Jew and Moslem see in Palestine a holy land. It is a most interesting situation that is being worked out under our very eyes. It is an obvious chance for the punter; Palestine is indeed the "Promised Land." To whom is it promised? That is what Jew, Arab and Christian in Palestine are asking of the British government. The British government replies that under the mandate there will be complete freedom and equality for all religions and equal justice for all, regardless of religion, race or position.

Sir Herbert's report to parliament makes interesting reading, some of which must be done between the lines. Concerning the policy followed under the mandate he says: "The policy of His Majesty's British government contemplates the satisfaction of the legitimate aspirations of the Jewish race throughout the world in relation to Palestine, combined with a full protection of the rights of the existing population.

"For my own part I am convinced that the means can be found to effect this combination. The Zionism that is practicable is the Zionism that fulfills this essential condition.

"It is the clear duty of the mandatory power to promote the well-being of the Arab population, in the same way as a British administration would regard it as its duty to promote the welfare of the local population in any part of our empire. The measures to foster the well-being of the Arabs should be precisely those which we should adopt in Palestine if there were no Zionist question, and if there had been no Balfour declaration. There is in this policy nothing incompatible with reasonable Zionist aspirations.

"On the contrary, if the growth of Jewish influence were accompanied by Arab degradation, or even by a neglect to promote Arab advancement, it would fall in one of its essential purposes.

"The grievance of the Arab would be a discredit to the Jew, and in the result the moral interests of Zionism would be gravely impaired.

"Simultaneously there must be satisfaction of that sentiment regarding Palestine—a worthy and ennobling sentiment—which, in increasing degree, animates the Jewries of the world.

"The aspirations of these 14,000,000 of people also have a right to be considered. They ask for the opportunity to establish a 'home' in the land which was the political and has always been the religious center of their race. They ask that this home should possess national characteristics—in language and customs, in intellectual interests, in religious and political institutions.

"This is not to say that Jewish immigration is to involve Arab emigration, that the greater prosperity of the country, through the development of Jewish enterprises, is to be at the expense, and not to the benefit of the Arabs, that the use of Hebrew is to imply the disappearance of Arabic, that the establishment of elected councils in the Jewish community for the control of its affairs is to be followed by the subjection of the Arabs to the rule of those councils.

"In a word, the degree to which Jewish national aspirations can be fulfilled in Palestine is conditioned by the rights of present inhabitants. These have been the principles which have guided the policy of my administration.

"It is the policy of the administration to continue, wherever possible, to apply the Turkish laws, to which the people are accustomed. Changes are made only when they are indispensable. Efficiency is essential to good government, but there is a point where efficiency may become harassing. The danger of passing that point is foreseen.

"The many faiths and sects which find in the Holy Land their origin or their inspiration are free to maintain their teachers and pastors, and to practice their cults, without let or hindrance. In the controversies that occasionally arise between them the policy of the administration has been strictly to maintain the status quo."

Nevertheless, native Christians and Moslems are appealing to the British government not to put into effect the Balfour declaration, because, they say, the Zionists wish "to evict and dispossess the Arab population of Palestine." The Balfour declaration, issued in November, 1917, approves "the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people," and states that the British government will use their best endeavors to facilitate this object, while at the same time reserving to all non-Jewish communities their full civil and religious rights.

The Zionists assure the native peoples that their fears are groundless. "Our policy in regard to the Arabs, as in regard to all our problems, is clear and straightforward," said Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president, in his address to the Twelfth Zionist congress, recently held at Carlsbad. He declared, furthermore: "We intend to abate no jot of the rights guaranteed us by the Balfour declaration, and recognition of that fact by the Arabs is an essential preliminary to the establishment of satisfactory relations between Jew and Arab. Their temporary refusal to recognize that fact compels us to give thought to the means by which we can best safeguard our Yishub against aggression. Self-protection is an elemental duty. But we proclaim most solemnly and unequivocally that we have in our own hearts no thought of aggression, no intention of trespassing on the legitimate rights of our neighbors. We look forward to a future in which Jew and Arab will live side by side in Palestine, and work conjointly for the prosperity of the country. Nothing will stand in the way of such a future, when once our neighbors realize that our rights are as serious a matter to us as their rights are to them."

That there are troubles of many kinds is evident from the report. Some of these are referred to thus: "The methods of agriculture are, for the most part, primitive; the area of land now cultivated could yield a far greater product. There are in addition large cultivable areas that are left uncultivated. The summits and slopes of the hills are admirably suited to the growth of the trees, but there are no forests. Some industries have been killed by Turkish laws; none has been encouraged; the markets of Palestine and of the neighboring countries are supplied almost wholly from Europe. "The seaborne-commerce, such as it is, is loaded and discharged in the open roadsteads of Jaffa and Haifa; there are no harbors. "The country is underpopulated because of this lack of development. There are now in the whole of Palestine hardly 700,000 people, a population much less than that of the Province of Galilee alone in the time of Christ. "The long delay in the formal settlement of the international status of Palestine has tended to disturb the minds of the people. Even more serious has been the consequence that it has not been possible to issue a government loan. Without a loan, many public works that would be directly or indirectly remunerative, cannot be executed. "The financial conditions of eastern and central Europe and internal difficulties within the Zionist organization in the United States have prevented the Zionist movement from providing as yet any large sums for enterprises of development or colonization—although, indeed, several land purchases have been completed and many preparations made for the future. As a consequence, while there has been much pressure to admit Jewish immigrants there has been comparatively little expansion in opportunities for employment. "The agricultural development of the country, and, indeed, its urban development also, are greatly hampered by the condition of confusion into which the titles of ownership of land were allowed to fall during the Turkish regime. There is here a tangle which will need years of patient effort to unravel. "Of the total population of 700,000 the Jewish element numbers 70,000, almost all of whom have entered Palestine during the last forty years. The success of the Jewish agricultural colonies attracted the eager interest of the masses of the Jewish people scattered throughout the world. In many countries they were living under the pressure of laws or customs which cramped their capacities and thwarted their energies; they saw in Palestine the prospect of a home in which they might live at ease. Profoundly discontented, as numbers of them were, with a life of petty trade in crowded cities, they listened with ready ears to the call of a healthier and finer life as producers on the land. Some among them, agriculturists already, saw in Palestine the prospect of a soil not less fertile, and an environment for more free, than those to which they were accustomed. Emigration of Jews to Palestine is increasing rapidly in central and eastern Europe, and the new Palestine immigration regulations would allow of a controlled immigration of about 17,000 Zionists of the pioneer class during the coming year, said S. Landmann, secretary of the Zionist organization, in an interview. Mr. Landmann, who is now in Vienna on a special mission in connection with Jewish emigrants to Palestine, said the selection of the emigrants is being made by the Zionist organization, which has established Palestine offices in the important Jewish centers. Preference is given to young people, strong in body and determined in spirit, who have had actual experience in agriculture or other manual work, and who know Hebrew. Several thousands of such pioneers—known by the Hebrew name of Chalfitzim—have already left, and others are waiting in the large centers until proper arrangements for their transport can be made and until new openings for employment in Palestine are reported. One of the features of the pioneer movement is that it includes a fair proportion of girls of well-to-do families, who have decided to devote their lives to the new Palestine. They act as land girls and take care of the domestic arrangements in the Jewish colonies. Reviewing the whole field in "Zionism and World Politics," Dr. Horace Meyer Kallen concludes that at least the cornerstone of the future Zionist edifice has been laid. And Dr. Kallen believes that this is an event of profound and hopeful significance for the Jewish race. He feels that the Jew has too long been compelled to choose between the unwelcome alternatives of sinking his rich cultural and spiritual heritage in thoroughgoing assimilation with the life of the country in which he lives and of leading the starved, unhappy existence of a suspended outsider, a man with a definite racial consciousness but without a country.

Take Pictures of Drunk Papa.
New York.—"Mamma should take a picture of papa when he comes home drunk and hang it in a conspicuous place where he can see it when he wakes up with a parched tongue and a headache in the morning." This was the advice given by Magistrate Morriem Brown after he had listened to six cases of husbands abusing their wives while intoxicated. "Young girls marry drunks to reform them, but you can't reform a rummy," the magistrate said. "Take a picture of him when he's drunk, and when he sees how rotten he looks maybe he will stop for a while."

Girls Robbed of Clothes.
Parsons, Kan.—Robbers staged an unusual holdup here when two girls were stopped by two men, forced to take off their new fall suits, even to silk hose and shoes. The girls were kept subdued by pistols, which the men kept trained on them. They went to their home barefoot and scantily clad. The girls refused to tell the police about it, because they believed they would be disgraced. The robbers did not offer to molest them.

Cops Pay for Promotion.
New York.—Alleged efforts of eighteen patrolmen to buy sergeantcies in the police force through a saloonkeeper who professed to be able to bring about their promotion were testified to by Patrolman Joseph Toomey at a hearing before David Hirschfeld, commissioner of accounts. Patrolman Toomey said he collected in all $25,500 from eighteen men, which he turned over last August to a saloonkeeper named Michael J. Burke. He said Burke had since disappeared and was thought to have gone to Ireland.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL MENTION

Mrs. L. M. Scott was an El Paso visitor this week.

J. K. Such has moved into his new jewelry store near the City Garage.

Ed Long visited El Paso last week and purchased a large assortment of Army Goods which he is now offering for sale at lowest prices.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nickles were in from Nogal last Tuesday.

John Wilson, daughter Gladys and son Barney, were Carrizozo visitors Tuesday of this week from their ranch near Ancho.

Mrs. M. L. Blaney, County Supt. of Schools, is spending the present week visiting schools throughout the county.

Mr. and Mrs. D. LaMay of the Nogal Mesa were in Thursday and returned, accompanied by their daughter Jennie, who has been spending a short period of time with her sister, Mrs. Austin Wooten.

Mrs. J. S. Ross, son Charley, Mesdames A. H. Harvey and A. L. Burke returned Thursday from El Paso, where they witnessed the arrival of Marshal Foch and the attending celebration in his honor.

The "Old Maids' Club" which furnished so much amusement for the big audience at the Crystal Theatre on the night of Nov. 18, will give a repetition of the play at Corona Saturday night, Dec. 10. We wish to inform the people of our neighboring town that they certainly have a treat coming; the "Old Maids' Club" is "there" that's all!

The Carrizozo Woman's Club held a meeting on the afternoon of Dec. 2, which was lightly attended on account of the bad weather. The next meeting will be at Lutz hall on the afternoon of Dec. 16. The event is known in Club circles as "Americanization" and the Chairman will be Mrs. J. E. Farley. All members of the Club are earnestly requested to be present.

J. G. Roberts, attorney, whose name appears in this week's issue of this paper, was for several years employed in the National Land Office at Washington and also at Roswell, N. M., as proof reader. He has now established an office of his own and solicits the patronage of those seeking advice in land matters. Mr. Roberts' ad will be seen in the professional column.

Americans Find Armenians Victims of Circumstances, not Beggars

The Armenian government would soon be able to work out its own salvation if it could enjoy a brief period of peace, in the opinion of an American Commission which has just returned to the United States after an exhaustive survey of the situation in the Levant.

This Commission, which was sent out by the Near East Relief, made a personal inspection of conditions from Syria to the Caucasus Mountains. In addition, the reports of relief workers which have been long on file and of government officials carefully examined.

"In those few districts where the Armenians have been able to live in peace he has thoroughly demonstrated his ability to care for himself and his own," declares Chas. W. Vickery, general secretary of the relief organization, who headed the Commission.

"Naturally, in a territory with an inherent distaste for accepting charity, it has been the whole-sale decision of the past year that have prevented the people from realising their cherished dream of a stable, independent government."

"Even in the present crisis, with starvation and cholera making such rapid headway, the population that it is impossible for any to survive, the people are organizing locally against overwhelming circumstances."

"Armenia is starving, not because her people are depending on outside aid for their sustenance, but because occupation of their land by hostile forces and the consequent destruction of normal occupation, have made them helpless."

Homeless Walks at Erivan Railroad Station.

"Time after time since the outbreak of the world war, the Armenians have made a brave attempt to cultivate their land. And time after time some new disorder has prevented them from gathering their crops or laid waste their fields before the grain had ripened and been gathered in."

"After two years of American relief activity it seemed that all as if we would be able to reduce our program in Russian Armenia to the care of the children we had gathered into our orphanages. But then came the new invasion, crops were trampled down in the fields, live stock was carried off, and the peasant population was driven from their homes."

"We may not be able to save all of the homeless refugees who are now crowded in this territory, but we certainly cannot desert the hundreds thousand orphan children who are now in our orphanages under our protection in the Caucasus, Anatolia, Cilicia and other devastated areas of the Near East. Last spring, when our supplies ran low, 3,000 of these children died out of a total of 20,000 in one of our orphanages. These children are absolutely dependent upon aid from America and the world. If we fail to help them, they will die."

"Next year, if further steps can be avoided, possibly we will be able to reduce our program, but some action is necessary now or the thousands there will be no next year."
