Sad Accident At Railroad Crossing

Monday afternoon a sad and serious accident happened at the E. P. & S. W. railroad crossing north of town where the White Oaks and Nogal roads connect, leading to Carrizozo. Peter Phillips, wife and baby were motoring in from White Oaks, having driven from their ranch in the Bernardo Gap for the purpose of obtaining medical aid for the baby. Mr. Phillips had the curtains of his car drawn and a high wind prevailing at the time, he failed to notice train No. 7 which was coming in on the grade above him. The White Oaks road makes an abrupt turn as it strikes the crossing and as he whirled to cross the track, No. 7 collided with the machine, smashing the car, hurling its occupants to the earth.

The engineer stopped the train as quickly as possible and the crew placed the unconscious victims on board, and brought them to the station. They were then taken to a local hospital where medical aid was administered.

The infant was found to be the most fortunate, as outside of a few cuts and bruises, it suffered no injuries. Mr. Phillips, at this writing, has failed to regain consciousness but Dr. Johnson, in whose care the patients are, has hopes of his recovery. He has received some nourishment which is an encouraging sign. Mrs. Phillips suffers worst of all from an injury to her back. She has cuts and bruises on her head which while painful, to some extent, are not dangerous. The Phillips family have been residing at the Bernardo Gap but a short time, moving there from Alto where Mr. Phillips and wife were reared. Mrs. Phillips being a daughter of the Rev. L. W. Carleton. The many friends of both families are deeply interested in the welfare of the patients. Crowds of sympathetic visitors appear daily at the hospital making inquiries, offering aid and extending sympathy.

GALLACHER—GRAY

At the parsonage of the Methodist Church Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, with the Rev. Higbee performing the ceremony, occurred the marriage of William Gallacher and Miss Edna Gray, both of Carrizozo. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Louis Bacot and has resided with her sister's family since coming here from Hurley, N. M., where her parents live. The new Mrs. Gallacher is a pleasant lady to meet. Her sunny disposition and natural friendliness are the becoming traits with which she makes friends of all her acquaintances, consequently, her friends in and around Carrizozo are many, all of whom unite in wishing her life-long happiness.

The groom is a native of this County. Reared in the center spot in sunshine land, he, like his accomplished wife, is possessed of a disposition which is a continual friend maker. When the clouds of war hung heavily over us, "Billy" crossed the seas and performed his part in establishing peace. Now, he is safely across—the seas of matrimony with the many friends of both parties wish the newly wedded couple a world of happiness. After the ceremony, the Gallachers left for Hurley, N. M., where they will visit for a short while at the home of the bride's parents after which they will visit at other places, returning to Carrizozo in several weeks and settle down to home life.

GENERAL WOOD HEADS NEAR EAST LENTEN APPEAL

General Wood, U. S. A., and a committee consisting of America's leading men and women have issued a Lenten Sacrificial Appeal in behalf of the starving and freezing orphans in the Near East. The people of America are being requested to deny themselves of some luxury and to give the price to poor dying Armenians and the other suffering peoples in the Near East. The committee consists of such leading men and women as—General Wood, Mr. Tatt, President Hibben of Princeton, Mary Garden, Mrs. Winter, President General Federated Clubs, Miss Anna Gordon, President W. C. T. U., Mrs. Minor, President D. A. R.; Governor Parker of Louisiana, Senator Samuel Crompton of America, Federation of Labor; Mrs. Morgenthau and Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge. These are the friends of Armenians, Syrians and Greeks in the Near East. Not one cent of the funds raised by Mr. Hoover and his co-workers goes to the relief of these people in Palestine, Asia Minor and Armenia. His appeal is for Central Europe—this is for the Near East.

MUCH GOOD IN NEW LAWS IS FORESEEN

By Guthrie Smith.

Santa Fe, N. M., March 14.—A steady stream of bills from both senate and house poured into Gov. Mechem's office and on to secretary of state Martinez, until 3:35 o'clock Sunday morning. That Mont. Gov. Dinkworth's gavel fell, terminating the 6th state legislature with the announcement that the hour of upon of the sixtieth legislative day having arrived, the senate stood adjourned sine die.

A moment later speaker Clancy entertained a motion to adjourn without delay, committees from each house having waited upon one another and upon the Governor.

Most New Laws Good.

In the great volume of bills made in a few days, it is inevitable that some must be under the high standard desired.

Most of the new laws are good. Some of them are excellent. None of them is vicious. It may be said of some of them that they are not really necessary, but the poor or unnecessary laws were necessary in order to secure the good ones.

No Primary Law.

No primary election law of any kind was enacted, thereby saving the taxpayers from having to shoulder an increase of about $50,000 in election and therefore would not support the house bill. The majority referred to only deviation from the complete fullness. The majority of the senate did not want a state wide primary is not the republican majority, but a majority composed of republicans combining with democrats.

Camouflage Apparent.

There was some camouflage used by senators of both parties. A house majority composed of republicans and democrats stood for a state wide primary and would not concur in the senate bill, which provided only for election of county officers and selection of delegates to county conventions by the primary plan.

Final Test Saturday.

The final test came Saturday night when senator Sellers, minority floor leader, called up the house primary bill by moving that the steering committee be discharged from further consideration and the bill placed on the clerk's desk. Democrats declared Sellers had taken this step without consulting any of the minority members.

Motion Is Tabled.

Helgecock moved to table Seller's motion, his motion carrying 13 to 9 Democrats voting to table the bill; were Brickley, Leo and Seinn, Republicans supporting the bill were Abeyta, Ayers, Baca and Martinez. Failure to enact a primary election bill was the aim of the Republican party platform pledges.

Women's Working Hours.

It was at 3:10 o'clock Sunday morning that the house reported back to the senate the latter's bill No. 81, which had just been concurred in. This act regulates the hours of employment for women.

Admirable Tax Laws.

In efforts to produce the maximum return from taxation and to reduce extravagance and waste and yet at the same time increase efficiency some admirable reforms have been prescribed. The best possible solution of the mine tax problem seems to have been adopted, an inheritance tax has been provided for and the gasoline excise tax, declared unconstitutional in its original form, has been revised. The income tax law, also declared unconstitutional has been repealed.

To Regulate Expenditures.

The provision to regulate expenditures constitutes one of the greatest advances that the state has made in years. On the third Tuesday in September, 1921, the people of New Mexico will have the privilege of deciding whether they want to adopt a constitutional amendment to put into effect a comprehensive budget plan for all state institutions and departments.

Budget For Centiles.

A bill passed provides that all counties shall use a complete budget system. There has been created an educational director, whose duty it will be

FARM INFORMATION SERVICE

Rodents Can Be Controlled By

State College, N. M., March 15.

A comparative recently devised method of exterminating rats, mice and gophers is to give these animals a disease known as Azox according to the biological department of the New Mexico Agricultural College. This is a contagious disease but harmless to all animals except rodents, as can be used with safety.

The bacterial culture can be purchased in bottles at drug stores and added to the rodents by mixing it with a little corn or other suitable bait. Since the culture is tasteless and odorless it is more readily taken than many poisons. In about fourteen days after becoming infected the rodents develop a cough and choking sensation, leave their holes and seek the open air where they usually die of asphyxiation.

Full directions for applying the culture are given with each purchase. These directions should be carefully followed and if possible a few rodents should be caught and inoculated according to directions. When the disease once gets a good start, it spreads with considerable rapidity.

The bankers of Lincoln County are helping to finance potato growers who need spray tanks and spray materials. The potato crop is becoming one of the main crops in the county and the assistance will help it to develop. The cabbage and cauliflower industry is also developing and promises to become one of the main sources of revenue within another year.

The cooperative creamery at Albuquerque has bought a lot on which to put its new buildings and expects to begin actual building operations very soon.

Control of Green Bugs.

Reports coming in to the New Mexico Agricultural College indicate that green bugs are being observed in the wheat fields in some sections of the eastern part of the state. If the infestation is only light and in patches, the bug can be controlled by plowing under the land infested, or covering with straw and burning, or by spraying with a 15 per cent kerosene emulsion. If the field is infested generally, and is likely to result in an unprofitable crop, it is best to plow under the entire crop and plant to corn or sorghum, preferably the latter as it is less susceptible to green bug attacks.

As with many insect pests, rotation of crops and keeping fields clean of weeds are effective preventative measures. Volunteer grain or wild oats should not be allowed to spread, as these furnish excellent feeding ground to carry the pests from one year to the next.

If fruit trees have not already been pruned, this should be done at once if you don't know how and there is a county agent in your county, he will be glad to help with his services and demonstrate the best methods.

To check the accounts of all school boards. This auditing will mean right supervision of all school expenditures.

Traveling Auditor.

The office of traveling auditor has been placed again under appointment and control of the governor, and the staff of assistants increased. The new arrangements will insure checking of the accounts of state institutions and county officers at shorter intervals.

Public Accountants.

Through the creating of a board of public accountancy it is provided that persons serving as accountants in public service must be capable and qualified.

New Laws Save Money.

Senator Phillips, urging the passage of the general appropriation bill, said these new laws would result in the saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars of the public funds, through curtailing of extravagance and waste under systematic plan.

"The legislature two years from now," he declared, "will not be guessing at all, but will be working under systematic plans which will insure that every dollar appropriated will be expended for that purpose and that purpose only."

Senators Brickley and Lutz came in this week, the legislative bodies having adjourned on Saturday. They have had many questions to answer, of course.

Hon. H. O. Bursum.

BURSUM WINS APPOINTMENT AS SENATOR FROM NEW MEXICO

Republican National Committeeman Named by Gov. Mechem to Succeed A. B. Fall.

Santa Fe, N. M., March 14.—At 3 o'clock Friday afternoon Governor Mechem announced he had appointed H. O. Bursum of Socorro as United States senator to succeed Albert B. Fall, who resigned to become secretary of the interior.

Mr. Bursum, who is Republican national committeeman for New Mexico will serve until his successor is chosen at a special election, the date of which remains to be fixed by the governor. It is generally expected the election will be called on the 3rd Monday in September, the date on which a number of proposed amendments to the state constitution are to be voted upon.

House Chooses Announcement.

Representative R. L. Baca of Santa Fe made the announcement first in the house of representatives and later members rounded up Mr. Bursum and brought him into the chamber where the Republican members punctuated with loud applause a brief speech by the new senator. Mr. Bursum said that he merely appreciated the welcome and reception.

"I would rather have the friendship and respect of my fellow citizens," he said, "than any office under heaven." "I have been appointed to fill the vacancy at this time caused by the resignation of a distinguished citizen of New Mexico who has been called to higher service, Mr. Albert B. Fall. It will always be my policy to do that which I think best for the welfare of my state. I want you regardless of party, to make any suggestions looking to the welfare of New Mexico or the United States, to me as the servant of the public. I want the benefit of your ability and brains, as that is the only way in which you can make your agency at Washington effective."

Democrats Decline to Endorse.

Speaker Clancy appointing a committee to draft a resolution thanking the governor for the appointment of Mr. Bursum, named Representatives Baca, Winston and Hartell, the latter a Democrat. The latter asked to be excused, saying with a smile that "Mr. Baca passes his statewide primary bill I may aspire to the office myself."

The speaker then named Representative Roehl, who also asked to be excused, and finally no democrat was placed on the committee. When it came to a vote on the resolution the minority asked to be excused from voting and Representative Nichols, Democratic floor leader, asked that the record be made to show this.

Bursum Long a Power in Politics.

Mr. Bursum stated that he would leave for Washington in about ten days. Mr. Bursum, for twenty years an influential Republican party leader, is 64 years of age, a native of Iowa, is married and has one son and three daughters; came to New Mexico in 1881, and has held successively the offices of sheriff of Socorro county, territorial senator, warden of the penitentiary; was delegate to the national Republican conventions of 1904 and 1908, made chairman of the Republican state central committee in 1904, member of state constitutional convention, unsuccessful Republican candidate for governor in 1911, and 1916 and became Republican national committeeman in 1915. For three terms he was mayor of the town of Socorro and for years has been extensively engaged in sheep raising and the mercantile business.

STATE NEWS

The Kit Carson Post of the American Legion was recently organized at Serrillos, Tros county, with a membership of about fifty. It is also reported that L. B. Moyer, an ex-band master of the U. S. Navy is organizing a band for the legion post.

The machinery for the new sawmill ordered by D. J. Higbee has arrived and Mr. Higbee is now installing his new plant northwest of Encino. He reports that he has a big lot of timber already cut and ready to make into lumber, and that his mill will be in operation immediately. This will assist in providing lumber for the many new residences and business houses which will be built this spring. Some are predicting that there will be an average of fifteen new houses built each month in and near Encino for the next four or five months.

Reports from the stockmen are that stock are doing well in Torrence county and that for the most part the range is holding up nicely. The winter has been exceptionally good so far, and there is a good season in the ground now due to several snows that have fallen and thawed quickly. Prospects are that both stockmen and farmers will have a banner year in 1921.

The McGee oil well near Tucuman has been cleared of the obstruction by driving it below the 2300-foot depth. They are now removing the eight-inch casing and expect to have everything in readiness to shoot the well about the 20th of March.

Tucuman citizens are making another effort to have a new depot built and have the old shack now answering that purpose, removed to the junk pile. The Rock Island officials have said quietly they would not do anything until the city forces them, so a committee has been appointed to handle the proposition. The Chamber of Commerce and the citizens have been lenient in the past, but the Board of Health of Tucuman, Quay county and the State each have joined and expect to condemn the present shack. The Greer eating house is coming in for its share of condemnation. Passengers on the trains through heiliate before going into the make-shift joint which is two dilapidated passenger coaches of most ancient origin, jammed together with scant accommodation but regular high prices.

A recent telegram from the State Corporation Commission to Rock Island officials shows that the citizens are to be backed by the Commission and it will then be up to the railroads to build a new station, one Tucuman deserves—Tucuman News

A market bandit held up and robbed the postoffice at Ramah, 65 miles south of Gallup, Thursday evening, March 3, shortly after dark. Postmaster Richard White was just preparing to close the office and leave for his home in another part of the village, when a man entered the place, pointing an automatic pistol at him and ordered him to throw up his hands. The bandit kept the postmaster covered with the pistol and with the other hand took all the money in the cash drawer, an amount of about $20. The Ramah officers are puzzled over the mysterious robber as no one of a suspicious character had been seen about the village recently.

The big soaking rain that fell the first part of the week, delayed drilling work in the Southeast New Mexico field, but the big rain caused the stockman and the farmer to look happy. The old timers call it a "million dollar" rain for Southeast New Mexico. No cold weather has showed up to mar the benefits of the rain and with the warm sunshine that has followed, it looks like a great year for all producers in this part of the state.

New Mexicans to Elect Fall's Successor.

The senate concurred in the house bill to give the governor authority to call at his discretion an election to fill a vacancy in the United States senate, after having filled the vacancy temporarily by appointment. This act puts the state laws and regulations in harmony with the provisions of the 17th amendment to the federal constitution. It repeals the present state act, which provides that the appointed senator shall hold over until the next regular general election.

WHITE OAKS WOMAN'S CLUB

One of, if not the largest crowds White Oaks has had for years, attended the dance and social given by the Woman's Club last Saturday night.

The hall was decorated in Club colors, crimson and gold. As a corresponding feature, the Club members wore badges of the same colors. Ferguson's "Joy Makers" of Carrizozo, furnished the music for the occasion and they doubly proved themselves worthy of the name.

Carrizozo was well represented and with those from other neighboring points besides the home people, swelled the crowd to the hall's capacity. The Club has served sandwiches, cake and coffee. When you are looking for a good time, leave it to White Oaks.

Stock Men to get R. R. Rate

Albuquerque, N. M., March 9.—The Santa Fe railroad is definitely announced an special rate of one-half fare for the round trip from all points in New Mexico to Albuquerque, account annual conventions of New Mexico Wool Growers' Association, March 24 to 27, and New Mexico Cattle & Horse Growers' Association, March 29, 30, and 31. Other railroads are expected to co-operate in making this special rate, which will materially reduce the expense of attending the convention.

Albuquerque is preparing to entertain a big crowd for both conventions and the local entertainment committee has completed an elaborate program, culminating in a grand ball for the victors on the evening of March 20.

The convention for the Cattle Growers' Association is now practically complete, and will be announced in detail next week.

New Mexico Federal Judge in New York

New Mexico Federal Judge, Colla Nebill, is now in the east, sitting for Judge Learned Hand, New York, in trying cases of countrywide interest. The following item is by the Chicago Tribune's leased wire news service:

"New York, March 8.—The trial of John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, on a charge of having a bottle of whiskey in his possession on Aug. 8 last, was set down Monday by Federal Judge Colla Nebill for April 4 and marked "peremptory." The case is a result of the Lamba club episode, in which the Giants' manager is said to have engaged in illicitness with members of the club. "McGraw is in the south on the spring training trip of the Giants."

Nearly 200 employees of the Santa Fe shops at Albuquerque were dropped from service Wednesday, March 10th. This is an average of 15 per cent of those employed, including all departments. Santa Fe officials have stated that the reason for the placing of men on the jobs that was due to the general slump in business and it is not known when the men can be taken into service. The cut in force is on the seniority plan, having worked for the Santa Fe longest being retained at work.

The Homesteader

Robert J. Stead

Author of 'The Cow Puncher, Etc. Illustrations by Lewis Myers'

ALEC McCRAE.

Synopsis.—Discontented because of the seemingly barren outlook of his position as a school teacher in a Canadian town, John Harris determines to leave it, take up "hemp" in Manitoba and become a "homesteader." Mary, the girl whom he loves, declares she will accompany him. They are married and set out for the unknown country. Alec McCrae, pioneer settler and advisor of newcomers, proves an invaluable friend. Leaving his wife with the family of a fellow settler, Fred Arthurs, Harris and McCrae journey over the prairie and select a homestead. Mary, in company with Harris, is left to take possession.

Darkness was settling down—darkness of the month night since their departure from Emerson—when, like a smile on the face of the plain, a little gray lump grew on the horizon. Arthurs rose in his sleigh and waved his fur cap in the air; Harris sent back an answering cheer. Slowly the mole grew until in the gathering shadow it took on indistinctly the shape of a building and just as the rising moon crested the ridge of the Pembina hills the structure swung up at the door. Arthurs walked unerringly to all on the wall and took down a lantern; its dull flame drove the mist slowly down the glass and presently the light was flung back from the gleaming front which sparkled on every log of the little room.

Building a little Eden in this wilderness, I'll warrant. Tell them to put another name in the pot, an' a hungry woman's meal I don't know when."

The friends gathered about the old-timer, plying him with questions, which he answered or discussed until the meal was over, holding his own business quietly in the background. But with supper ended, his pipe in his teeth and his feet resting comfortably in the oven, he broached his subject.

"Ready for the road in the morning, Jack? Don't want to break up your little honeymoon, y' know, but the month is wearing on. Nothing but horseback for it now, an' they do say the settlers are crowding up something wonderful. The best land's going fast. Most of them will hold up now, with the roads breaking, but by slipping out on our horses we can locate an' be before the real spring rush opens. You should get some kind of shelter up before the frost is out of the ground, so's to lose no time from plowing once the spring opens."

Harris needed no urging, and in the early morning the two men, with blankets and provisions, started out on horseback for the still farther west. Harris soon found that more judgment was required in the selection of a prairie farm than he had supposed, and he congratulated himself upon having fallen in with so experienced a plainsman as McCrae.

"This is good enough for me," said Harris at length, as their horses crested a little elevation from which the prairie stretched away in all directions, smooth as a table. "Isn't it magnificent! All free for the taking!"

"Well, here we're in Hungry Hill," said Arthurs, "everything just as I left it." Then turning to his wife, "Come, Lil," he said, "Jack, perhaps you have an engagement of your own." He took his wife in a passionate embrace and planted a fervent kiss upon her lips. Harris followed his example. Then they sat down on the boxes that served for chairs amid a happiness too deep for words.

"So the minutes passed until Mrs. Arthurs sprang to her feet. "Why, Mary," she exclaimed, "I do believe you're crying," while the milkmaid glistened on her own cheek. "Now, you men, clear out! I suppose you think the horses will stifle themselves? Yes, I see you have the box full of wood. Fred, that's not so bad for a start. Leave some matches, and say, you might just get our boxes in here. Remember we've lived in these clothes for the best part of two weeks."

The young men sprang to their task, and as soon as they were out of the house the girls threw their arms about each other and wept like women together. It was only for a moment; a quick dash of the hand across the eyes, and both were busy removing coats and wraps. The door opened, and their "boxes" as well as other equipment from the sleighs, were carried in, and the men disappeared to the little stable at the back of the house. After several attempts the girls succeeded in starting a fire in the rusted stove, and soon its grateful heat was radiating to every corner of the room.

The house was built of poplar logs, hewed and dove-tailed at the corners with the skill of the Ontario woods men. It was about 12x16 feet in size with collar beams eight feet from the floor. The roof was of two thick, scapes of elm boards, with tar paper between. The floor was of poplar boards. The door was in the east side, near the southeast corner; the stove stood about the center of the east wall. The only window was in the south; six panes of 8x10 glass sufficed for light. Through this window another lantern shone back from the darkness, and the flickering light from the stove danced in duplicate. A rough hewn table sat under the window; a box nailed in the southwest corner evidently served as cupboard. No tools or irrevocable of any value had been left in the place. Arthurs having stored such effects with a neighbor, some seven miles away, lest they be stolen from the cabin by some unscrupulous traveler during his absence.

The days that followed were days of intense activity for both men and women. There was much to do, inside and out. In the interior of the little house an extraordinary change was wrought; simple drape-ries and pictures relieved the bareness of the walls; shelves were built for the accommodation of many trinkets dear to the feminine heart; a rag carpet covered the center of the floor; plain but appetizing dishes pecked cunningly from behind the paper curtain that now clothed the bare ribs of the cupboard; and a sense of homeliness pervaded the atmosphere.

A week had passed, and no sign of life, other than that of the little party itself, had been seen about the Arthurs' homestead, when one day Harris' eyes already becoming keen to the prairie distances, caught a dark point on the horizon. It grew slowly from a point to a spot, from a spot to an object, and at length was defined as a man on horseback. Presently Alec McCrae drew up at the door.

"Hello, Harris," he cried, "how's the new battle? An' the good wives?

crabbies don't seem to bother us. Now there's a good guarder, Jack. This couple will give shelter for your stock in raw weather, an' there's a bench looks as though it was put there for your little house. There's light timber to the north, fit for fuel an' building, within 15 miles, an' there'll be neighbors here before the summer's over, or I'm no prophet. What do you say?"

"The quarter suits me," said Harris. "And the adjoining quarter is good stuff, too. I can take pre-emption right on that. But there's just one thing I'm in doubt about. How I'm going to square it with you for the service you have given. My cash is getting low, and—"

"Don't worry about that. I generally size up my customer an' bill him accordingly. If he has lots of money, an' seems likely to part with it foolishly, I put as much of it as I can in safe keeping. But there isn't any money fee as far as you're concerned. Fact is, I kinda figure on trading this bill-out with you. I expect to be roving this country, east an' west, for some years to come, an' I've a little policy of establishing depots here an' there—places where I can drop in for a square meal an' a sleep an' a bit of western hospitality. Places, too, if you like, where there are men to say a good word for Alec McCrae. How's that suit you?"

Harris took his friend's hand in a warm grip. He rightly guessed that McCrae was not bartering his services for hospitality, but was making it easy for Harris to accept them by appearing to bargain for a service in return. So they shook hands together on the side of the bank overlooking the little coulee, and as they looked in each other's eyes Harris realized for the first time that McCrae was still a young man. A sense of comradeship came over him—a feeling that this man was more of a brother than a father. With admiring eyes he looked on McCrae's fine face, his broad shoulders, his wonderful physique, and the question he asked sprang from his lips before he could arrest it.

"Why don't you get married, Mac?"

"Who, me?" said McCrae, laughing; but Harris detected a tone in his voice that was not all happiness, and the thought came to him that McCrae's craving for hospitality might root deeper than he supposed.

"It's a long ride to the land office," continued McCrae, "an' you can't file a minute too soon. We'd better find a corner post an' make sure of the number of this section, an' put as much road behind us as we can tonight."

After filing at the land office Harris returned at once to the Arthurs' homestead. The news that the Harries were to be neighbors within 40 miles was received with enthusiasm by both Fred and Lillian Arthurs. But Harris was now consumed with a burning energy; he allowed himself only a precocious half day at the home of the Arthurs, bade his wife an affectionate farewell, and with a cheery goodbye to the warm friends on the homestead, he was away down the trail to Emerson.

On arrival at Emerson one of the first men he met was Tom Morrison. The two pioneers shook hands warmly, and in a few words Harris told of having selected his claim, waxing enthusiastic over the locality in which his lot was to be cast.

"I must get out there myself," said Morrison.

"Do," Harris urged. "There are some other fine quarters in the neighborhood, and nothing would be better than to have you on one of them."

The west-bound trip was made in good time, although not without difficulty at some points in the road, and before the tenth of April Harris was back under the shelter of Arthurs' roof. He was for pressing on alone in the morning, but he found that his wife had made all her plans to accompany him and would listen neither to persuasion nor reason.

"But, Mary, there's no house, and no shelter, and no neighbors—nothing but sky and grass as far as you can see."

"All the more reason I should go," she answered. "If you have to rough it in the open you at least deserve your meals cooked for you, and such other help as a woman can give. I really must be with you. I really must, John, and you know—I'm going."

So at last he consented. The supplies of provisions were increased, and together they set out to wrestle their fortunes from the wilderness.

On arrival at the homestead the young wife immediately gave evidence that she intended to bear her full share of the pioneer's duties. A comparatively dry spot was found among the little poplars, and here she built a tent with blankets and a bit of rag carpet that came in handy for such purposes. Their stove was set up, and although it smoked stubbornly for lack of draught, it furnished heat for cooking, and when Jack returned from tethering the horses the smell of frying ham and hot tea struck his nostrils.

"Well, that's better than rustling for myself, I will admit," he said.

"Be it ever so humble—"

Holes in Plaster.

Holes in painted or tiled walls can be filled with plaster of paris, but the contrast is often worse than the hole. The coloring used in washing vases can be used in mixing the plaster of paris until the wall color is reached, and there will be no strong contrast, and attention to the spot—McCrae.

THE SNOWBALLS.

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE SNOWBALLS.

"What a time I do have," said the snowball. "I have broken and I have been fixed up again."

"The same is true of me," said the second snowball. "What are we waiting for?" asked the first snowball.

"We're waiting for school to be over," said the second snowball.

"We're not wanted in school," said the first snowball.

"I should say not," said the second snowball. "I've heard some of the teachers say what they thought of snowballs! Gracious me, they weren't polite speeches at all! But then, on the other hand, I've known some teachers who've thought snowballs were fine, and strangely enough, those teachers were never hit with us, nor with our brothers or sisters."

"They walked along and smiled at the children who were playing with snowballs, and they said, 'Having a good time? And they weren't hit at all. In fact some of the little, little girls who were afraid we might hit too hard used to walk along by these teachers and they would say, 'They won't hit you, so may we walk along by you? We're a little afraid of big snowballs.'"

"I think it is quite funny to be a snowball," said the first snowball.

"Well, I don't know whether I do or not," said the second snowball. "Having been a snowball all my short life I have grown used to it. I don't know that I think it is so funny. But why do you think so, pray tell?"

"Because," said the first snowball, "it is such a funny thing to be thrown through one's life. Now boys and girls walk and run and sit and sleep through life. But we are always thrown. Sometimes we rest on the ground for awhile, as we are doing now. But our lives are spent being thrown about. It's a funny thing to be a snowball."

"SH!" the first snowball continued, "I wouldn't want to be anything else. Such nice jolly boys and girls have played with me."

"A few days ago I heard a small boy say that he was too big for trains and cars and he wanted to do only what big men did—he wanted to be a big man, and he really was very lonely leaving his trains and his cars."

"But he thought he was very fine. Then, that same day, I heard a big man say that he wished he was a little boy again and could play with trains and cars, and throw snowballs and have a jolly time like that, and I discovered something."

"What do you mean when you say you discovered something?" asked the second snowball.

"I mean that I found out something. To find something new or something no one else has found before is to discover something. I'm not sure whether any one else found this out, but it was new to me anyway."

"It seems that this man had been just like the little boy. He had tried to be grown-up and smart and had turned his back on his train and cars."

"Then he had grown up and he had tried to get back to the things he had enjoyed when he was a child."

"But do you know he said he had lost his childhood? He had let it go too soon. Yes, he was telling someone else of that and I heard him."

"I do hope some one tells the little boy that he may lose his childhood and then when he wants it back again he won't be able to find it."

"He'll find it is lost and that he missed so many pleasures that he can't have when he is grown-up."

"But to return to my own life," the first snowball continued, "I cannot help but think it is funny to be thrown through life. But at the same time it is rather unusual."

"Most creatures and things aren't thrown through life. The snowball's different."

"And I'm glad, after all, I am a snowball. It makes life very jolly and good fun. When one breaks it is so used to be patched up again or to be used with some more snow."

"But hush, the children are coming from school. And the boy who made me and you and a good many others of us will be looking for us right away. I do believe, Brother snowball, they like us better than lesson!"

Stock Raising in WESTERN CANADA

is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, oats, barley, and flax have been made in raising Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Bright, sunny climate; nutritious grasses, good water, enormous fodder crops—these spell success to the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy on easy terms.

Farm Land at $15 to $30 An Acre

—Land equal to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—grazing land convenient to good grain farms at proportionately low prices. These lands have every rural convenience: good schools, churches, roads, telephones, etc., close to live towns and good markets.

If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, investigate what Western Canada has to offer you.

For illustrated literature with maps and particulars regarding reduced railway rates, location of land, etc., apply to Department of Immigration, Ottawa.

PAIR OF SCALES MOST ESSENTIAL

Selling Various Farm Products by Guess is Seldom Profitable to Farmer.

PRACTICE PLEASING TO DEALER

Experienced Buyer Has Advantage of Skill in Estimating Not Possessed by Seller—Small Platform Device is Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Guessed weights and measures" are seldom profitable for the farmer. This practice is unbusinesslike. It indicates a carelessness of the value of the thing he is selling, and the buyer would be more than human if he did not take some advantage. A "guessed bushel" of potatoes is more likely to measure 4 1/2 pecks than 8 1/2.

Where sales are based on weight the grower is paid for what he delivers. When the bar balances at 100 pounds both parties know that full value has been given and received.

An Argument for Scales.

The best argument for the installation of a good set of scales in a convenient place on the farm is that, while the produce dealer is nearly always willing to buy "by guess," he is seldom willing to sell that way. The most conspicuous piece of equipment in the vegetable stall, the market, or the grocery is an accurate pair of scales. The produce that is bought "by guess" is sold by ounces. The dealer is a practical buyer and attains some degree of accuracy in making his estimates. Thus he has the advantage of skill not possessed by the farmer, who lacks experience in making his estimates.

The dealer has another advantage not held by the farmer. As he sells by weight, he has a means of checking the accuracy of his guess. If he finds that the weight of a steer, for instance, was less than he estimated it to be when he purchased it, he may recover his loss by charging the customer more or by taking out the loss on the next "guessed" purchase he makes. The loss is likely to fall not on the dealer, who incurred it, but upon innocent parties.

The bureau of markets, by publishing the prevailing market prices for meat and farm produce, offers free information to the farmer that will

PUREBRED SIRES ARE INCREASING RAPIDLY

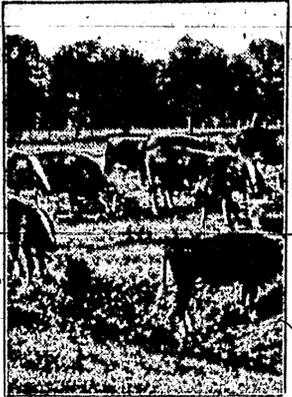

Have Proved Worth for Improving Range Herds.

Scrub Bull Has Been Blacklisted on Big National Forest Pastures—Great Improvement Seen in Grade of Steers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Purebred bulls have proved their value for improving range herds, and the number being bought in the cow country of the West is rapidly increasing each year, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. The scrub bull is now blacklisted on the big national forest pastures.

During the season of 1920 three local live stock associations, the members of which use the ranges of the Sierra National Forest in California, adopted rules for the purchase of purebred bulls. Under a special rule each association was required to place on the range a sufficient number of purebred Hereford, Shorthorn, or Aberdeen-Angus bulls. A committee to purchase and pass upon the credentials of each animal to be turned loose on the ranges was appointed.

Under this plan, during the grazing season of 1920, 105 Herefords, 97 Shorthorns, and six Aberdeen-Angus bulls were purchased by the stockmen through their associations and placed upon the range. It is estimated that at the end of the season of 1920 the stockmen had not less than 200 registered bulls on their ranges, resulting in a great improvement in the grade of steers turned out.

The Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture enforces these local associations in enforcing the rules which require that the same kind and grade of bulls be placed on the same range. Permits to graze on the national forest pastures are refused those who do not conform to the association's ruling and who have not paid their share toward the purchase of the association bulls.

POOR EGGS INCREASE PRICES

Percentage of Spoiled Product Shipped to Markets is Very High and Discourages Trade.

In a shipment of three cases, or 60 dozen eggs, recently received by a Washington (D. C.) commission firm, 18% dozen were condemned by the local health department as unfit for food. The percentage of bad eggs shipped into the markets is very high, reducing trade and discouraging consumption, say specialists of the bureau of markets of the United States Department of Agriculture.

If a few eggs in the dozen are bad the housewife pays exorbitant prices for the sound ones. The dealer always prefers to handle good eggs, for spoiled ones injure his business reputation. A deduction for spoiled eggs also makes the shipper feel that he is not being treated in good faith by the commission merchant.

SUITABLE FEED FOR HORSES

Timothy Hay, Oats and Corn Are Recommended for Animals Doing Average Work on Farm.

Rations recommended for average horses doing average work are, fifteen pounds of mixed hay, ten pounds oats, four pounds wheat bran. If you would rather feed your timothy hay to the horses and save the clover for cows the following ration might have use on your farm: twelve pounds timothy hay, seven pounds oats, seven pounds corn. These are for one day's feeding.

SECOND CUTTING OF COWPEAS

Under Favorable Circumstances Plant Will Sprout Again After Being Cut for Hay or Seed.

Under favorable conditions cowpeas after being cut for hay will sprout again from the base. Considerable ensilage or even a second crop of hay or seed is sometimes produced, especially in the Gulf coast region, if good moisture conditions follow the first cutting. Ordinarily, however, but a single cutting can be obtained.

DARLING BABY BRIGHTENS HOME

Children's Laughter a Pleasing Sound

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days in all they have lived. Before my next one was born I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old, and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show these few lines to anybody."—Mrs. C. W. BENZ, 121 3rd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

Mrs. Jansson's experience of interest to childless wives. Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are fond of children, and for a considerable time after we were married I feared I would not have any. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it strengthened me so I now have a nice, strong, healthy baby girl. I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give all the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSEN, Millston, Wis.

Mrs. Held of Marinette, Wis., adds her testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says:

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 830 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

WHEN JEFFERSON TOOK OATH HAD REPUTATION TO SUSTAIN

Early Presidential Inauguration at Which There Was an Abundance of Ill Feeling.

The first Jefferson inauguration had more drama about it than its three predecessors. The President-elect was received upon the portico of the newly completed north wing of the capitol by Aaron Burr, whom Jefferson cordially distrusted. And the oath of office was administered by one of his bitterest enemies, Chief Justice Marshall, who had been appointed to office by Adams in the closing days of the administration, an act which Jefferson regarded as not only an impropriety but a personal affront. Jefferson's feelings towards Burr and Marshall were well known.

Then the new president was escorted to the senate chamber, where he delivered his inaugural address, one of the most notable of all such speeches. He was afterward escorted to his boarding house, where he received the congratulations of the foreign diplomats and of the leaders of the popular party, who rejoiced over the defeat of the Federalists.

Farmer Had No Idea of Allowing Hired Man to Beat Him in Gathering Corn.

A Sullivan county farmer hired a man to help him gather his corn last season. Now, the farmer had a reputation for being an efficient worker, but the hired man was not daunted by it. They started out side by side, the hired man being advised by the farmer to keep as close to him as he could with the row he was gathering.

But lo! the new worker after a few minutes of keeping up with the farmer, passed him and soon was several feet ahead. Frantically the farmer pulled the ears from the stalks, but the new man still kept gaining. Then all at once he heard the farmer shout, "Stop," he yelled. "Stop, if you want to work for me. I never yet let any man who worked for me get ahead of me."

Willing to Hold. "I've been reared in the lap of luxury," said a millionaire's daughter. "Try mine for a change," suggested the impetuous young man.—Baltimore American.

place him on the level with the dealer so far as knowledge of prices is concerned, but unless the farmer has a set of scales available he cannot use this knowledge.

An accurate set of small platform scales should be a part of the farm equipment, and every farm sale should be referred to them. If mounted upon rollers they can be moved from place to place as their services are required. If without rollers, they can be moved in a wheelbarrow. They should be kept in a building that is as free from dust and moisture as possible, and should be tested with standard weights at least once a year. In some states the tests are made by law by an official who makes the adjustment necessary to restore the scale to balance, or, if this cannot be done, condemns the apparatus and seals it so that it cannot be used again until repaired.

Answers Most Purposes.

Such equipment will answer most farm purposes, but a larger set of scales is occasionally required to weigh cattle, hogs, hay, or other materials too heavy or bulky to lift upon the small platform. Very often a merchant whose place of business is centrally located, or a farmer who lives on a main road leading into town finds it a profitable investment to put in a set of pit scales for the use of farmers and others who are bringing bulky material to market. When a farmer knows that he can drive his cattle or his loaded wagon upon the platform of pit scales without going out of his way, he will be less inclined to lump off a barnful of hay or sell his stock by the head. The owner of the scales receives a small fee for his services and the farmer a signed statement of weight which is the basis of payment when he delivers his load at the market or shipping yard.

Carrizozo School Notes
(By Mrs. J. H. Coyle)

The Girls' Club, as guests of Misses Fordon and Harren, met last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. John H. Wilson. Light refreshments were served. The Girls' Club is in a flourishing condition and no member misses a meeting if she can possibly avoid doing so.

A few days ago Mr. Cole took little Miss Lorene Stimmel, of the fifth grade, into the Senior and Junior High Schools, to show the students of the higher grades what a fifth grade pupil could do. The little lady read extremely well and was heartily applauded. She read fluently and with great clearness, carried herself well and every vowel and consonant could be distinctly heard. There are four other pupils in the fifth grade who are about as good readers as Lorene.

Mr. Jay Vaughn has made a present to the pupils of the fifth grade which is greatly appreciated by them. It consists of five flower boxes, hopper-shaped and painted green. Being square-conical in shape they are much more artistic than an ordinary rectangular box, and with the flowering plants in them they do much to add beauty to the room. Mr. Vaughn's generosity is to be highly commended.

It looks good to see the little tots of the lower grades back again after a siege of the whooping cough. Miss Ivy Lindsay, Miss Burton and Mrs. Maasie are among our best teachers and are doing special work to bring good results after the last time.

The Boy Scouts and Scoutmaster Cole "hiked" to the Malpais last Saturday. The lava flow is a most curious one. The crater is about twelve miles north west of Carrizozo. The entire flow is sixty miles long, and, in order to flow so far, must have been very thin. The lava of Mt. Venaviz is always thick; that of the Hawaiian Islands is very thin. This lava bed of New Mexico lies at the bottom of a broad and shallow valley and seems to have covered a great deal of fine grass land. It is curious to note that the edge of the lava is steep and about thirty feet above the grass land. This is accounted for by the fact that the edge of the flow cooled faster than that in the middle. In some places the lava broke out, running in "tongues" or promontories. Where this occurred it left valleys and caves at the edge of the lava bed. Running around these valleys and parallel, at the distance of about fifteen feet, are deep fissures made by the tendency of the lava to slip into the valleys. A great deal of the lava looks like taffy which has been pulled, then twisted, then twisted again. In one place was found where the lava had been forced up into the form of a conical cave, hollow and open on one side. It is very properly called "The Tepee." There is here and there, a great deal of grass. A flock of about a thousand sheep was seen grazing on the top of the lava beds. The destination of the Scouts was "The Island," a high land not covered by lava, a mile long and a half a mile wide. The Scouts greatly enjoy these hikes and are learning something of the wonders of nature.

Treatment For the Woolly Aphis Plague
(By Stuart Stirling)

Because of the lack of spraying equipment for the nitro-sulphate, or kerosene emulsion spray for the Woolly Aphis, work along that line was more or less a failure last year. However, for those who are interested in caring for their trees this year, the following procedure is submitted which if carried out will check the disease and save the trees.

The Woolly Aphis winters at the spots of the trees; about the time the buds begin to swell and show signs of greenness, the insect begins its upward pilgrimage to attack the tender shoots and branches of the tree. By applying a band of tree tangle-foot, (obtained of your druggist) to the trunk of the tree, you can check the ascendancy of the insect, as the Woolly Aphis is wingless and cannot pass this safeguard.

For the underground work, the earth should be removed from the roots of the tree to a depth of about six inches and in a circle of about five feet in diameter. The roots and soil should then be completely soaked with kerosene. As the underground brood winters, as we have said, at the roots, it follows that it is responsible for all damage done to the tree. No plan would be complete that left either portion of the tree untreated. Both treatments mentioned should be performed with thoroughness.

You'll save Money by remodeling now

You who have been waiting for lower prices before you laid that new floor, renewed those old walls and ceilings, re-roofed the house or barn, or built the residence—this message is directed to you.

Do you know that lumber and building material prices are down to average of forty per cent?

Do you know that you can repair or remodel cheaper than at any time in the past five years?

Do you realize that every day you wait not only inconveniences you but costs you real money?

Building material prices may come down more—we think not—but every day you delay in getting the new house deprives you of the use of it, and causes you to pay out money for house rent.

Every day you delay roofing the barn and the home, makes your property more liable to damage from storm. Every day you put off inside repairs the trouble increases and the total expense becomes greater.

Do your repairing and remodeling at the present lower prices and get the benefit now.

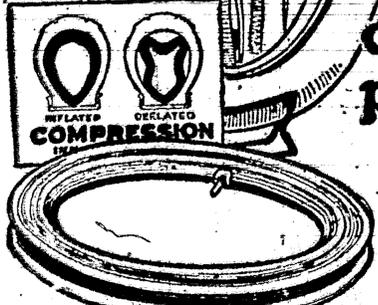

Come in today and let us figure your job. BEGIN GETTING THE BENEFIT NOW.

Here's a Tube that closes punctures and prolongs casing life

The Compression Inner Tube has solved the puncture problem! Three times as thick as ordinary tubes, and moulded with deep side and tread corrugations which straighten out when tube is inflated. The air pressure COMPRESSES this tube, instead of stretching it, and nail holes close up automatically. You simply pull out the nail—and keep moving—no air is lost!

By maintaining the same air pressure constantly, keeping the tire firm, pinching and rim-cuts are practically eliminated. Tires last 20 to 50 per cent longer. And your car rides easier. Real economy as well as freedom from punctures is what you get in the Compression Tube. Let us demonstrate this remarkable tube to you immediately.

PETROGRAD IS IN HANDS OF REBELS

TROTSKY ARMY IN RETREAT SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS, IT IS REPORTED.

RED LEADERS FLEE CITY

ATTEMPT TO CAPTURE FORTRESS OF ST. PETER AND ST. PAUL IS FAILURE.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

London, March 10.—A dispatch from Riga says Bolshevik leaders in Petrograd escaped by motor car following the capture by revolutionaries of the city with the exception of the Nicolai and Finland railroad stations. Soviet troops suffered heavy losses at Krasnoye Selo, eighteen miles southeast, and at Gatchina, thirty miles southwest.

The Krasnoye Gorko and Oranienbaum fortresses have surrendered. The red army had retreated twenty-versts.

Copenhagen.—Petrograd is reported to be in the hands of revolutionary forces, which for several days have been fighting against Russian Bolshevik troops near that city, says a special dispatch from Helsinki received here.

The revolutionary forces were victorious, the dispatch declares, after a terrific bombardment of Petrograd from Kronstadt, Krasnoye Gorko and Synterak, which was followed by machine-gun battles in the streets of the city.

War Minister Trotsky and M. Zinovieff, the soviet governor of Petrograd, are reported to have taken refuge in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, surrounded by a large number of protective troops.

All attempts by the revolutionaries to capture this fortress, the message says, were repulsed.

"General Brusiloff effected an organization of the soviet troops in the city," continues the dispatch, "and ordered a mixed regiment of Finnish and Chinese to clear the streets. The revolutionaries, however, refused to fire on the Finns, who joined the revolutionaries, the latter repulsing the Chinese."

"Moscow is reported quiet; with Lenin remaining inside the Kremlin issuing orders for arrests, which are occurring by hundreds."

Warsaw.—The White Ruthenians have proclaimed their independence from Russia, according to a Minsk report, received here.

MRS. BARRETTE TELLS OF SPLENDID RESULTS

Prominent New Hampshire Woman Says Tanlac Brought About a Wonderful Change in Her Condition.

MRS. AURORE BARRETTE of Manchester, New Hampshire

"Tanlac is a grand medicine, and I think every suffering woman ought to know about it," was the statement made recently by Mrs. Aureore Barrette at her residence, 138 1/2 Second Street, Manchester, New Hampshire. Mrs. Barrette is a well known and highly respected resident of that city.

"I have not felt at all well for the past year or more," she continued. "I haven't been sick enough to be in bed, but I was far from being a well woman. At times I thought I had kidney trouble, for I suffered almost constantly from severe pains across my back, just over the kidneys. Whenever I tried to do any housework at all that dull pain would be there, and if I attempted to stoop over it just felt as though my back would break. I would get so weak and worn out I would have to sit down and rest several times a day, and I felt tired all the time."

"This condition made me awfully nervous, so that I rarely ever slept well at night, and every now and then I would jump in my sleep, as if in a fright, and my condition was really becoming serious."

"Only two bottles of Tanlac have brought about a wonderful change in my condition. In fact, the results I have received from this medicine have really surprised me. Those terrible

BUT HE MADE FINE SPEECH

Fact That Candidate Didn't Say What He Was Talking About Was Really Small Matter.

"Well, Jack," asked Mrs. Monrough of her husband, "and what did you think of the speech of our new candidate for parliament at the next election?"

"Oh, Mary, he certainly is a great speaker!" assented her husband.

"That so?" commented his wife. "Did he speak for long?"

Jack Monrough whistled.

"Yes, my dear. He could beat even your sex at the game," he added humorously. "He spoke for three solid hours!"

Mrs. Monrough was accustomed to her husband's jibes and she let it pass unanswered.

"What did he talk about?" she queried.

Mr. Monrough scratched his head in perplexity.

"Come to think of it," he answered at last, "he didn't exactly say!"—London Answers.

Material Called Lamb's Fleeco in Syria Merely Went by Another Name in England.

A certain young globe-trotter, possessed of more money than brains, was prevailed upon by one of the sons of the prophet to purchase at a very large price a quantity of what was described as Syrian lamb's fleeco.

This, when he returned to London, he sent to his tailor with orders to line an overcoat with it. A few days after he called to try on the coat.

"You didn't send us quite enough material, sir," remarked the tailor, "and I had to get some more to line the sleeves."

"But," remarked the traveler in surprise, "it's impossible to obtain that fleeco in England. It's only to be obtained in Syria."

"Not at all, sir," was the reply. "In England we call it rabbit skin."—Montreal Herald.

HARDING HITS AT A WORLD LEAGUE

Inaugural Address Declares for Absolute Independence of Action by America.

WANTS UNION FOR COUNSEL

Our Supreme Task, Says New President, is Resumption of Our Onward, Normal Way, Recognizing the Changed Economic Order—Much Help to Be Expected From the Women.

SALIENT POINTS IN THE INAUGURAL

The recorded progress of our republic, materially and spiritually, in itself proves the wisdom of the inherited policy of non-involvement in old world affairs. We do not mean to be entangled. We will accept no responsibility except as our own conscience and judgment, in each instance, may determine.

We want to do our part in making offensive warfare so hateful that governments and peoples who resort to it must prove the righteousness of their cause or stand as outlaws before the bar of civilization.

We are ready to associate ourselves with the nations of the world, great and small, for counsel.

If war is again forced upon us, I earnestly hope a way may be found which will unify our individual and collective strength and consecrate all America, materially and spiritually, body and soul, to national defense.

We can reduce the abnormal expenditures, and we will. We can strike at war taxation, and we must.

Washington, March 4.—President Harding's inaugural address was as follows:

My countrymen—When one surveys the world about him after the great storm, noting the marks of destruction and yet rejoicing in the ruggedness of the things which withstood it, if he is an American he breathes the clarified atmosphere with a strange mingling of regret and new hope. We have seen a world passion spend its fury, but we contemplate our republic unshaken, and hold our civilization secure. Liberty—liberty within the law—and civilization are inseparable, and though both were threatened, we find them now secure, and there comes to Americans the profound assurance that our representative government is the highest expression and surest guaranty of both.

Standing in this presence, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, feeling the emotions which no one may know until he senses the great weight of responsibility for himself, I must utter my belief in the divine inspiration of the founding fathers. Surely there must have been God's intent in the making of this new world republic. Ours is an organic law which had but one ambiguity and we saw that effaced in a baptism of sacrifice and blood, with union maintained, the nation supreme and its concord inspiring. We have seen the world rivet its hopeful gaze on the great truths on which the founders wrought. We have seen civil, human and religious liberty verified and glorified. In the beginning, the world scoffed at our experiment, today our foundations of political and social belief stand unshaken, a precious inheritance to ourselves, an inspiring example of freedom and civilization to all mankind. Let us express renewed and strengthened devotion, in grateful reverence for the immortal beginning, and utter our confidence in the supreme fulfillment.

Progress Proves Wisdom. The recorded progress of our republic, materially and spiritually, in itself proves the wisdom of the inherited policy of non-involvement in old world affairs. Confident of our ability to work out our own destiny, and jealously guarding our right to do so, we seek no part in directing the destinies of the old world. We do not mean to be entangled. We will accept no responsibility except as our own conscience and judgment, in each instance, may determine.

Our eyes never will be blind to a developing menace, our ears never deaf to the call of civilization. We recognize the new order in the world, with the closer contacts which progress has wrought. We sense the call of the human heart for fellowship, fraternity and co-operation. We crave fellowship, and harbor no hate. But America, our America, the America built on the foundation laid by the inspired fathers, can be a party to no permanent military alliance. It can enter into no political commitments nor assume any economic obligations which will subject our decisions to any other than our own authority.

I am sure our own people will not misunderstand, nor the world misconstrue. We have no thought to impede the paths to closer relationship. We wish to promote understanding. We want to do our part in making offensive warfare so hateful that governments and peoples who resort to it must prove the righteousness of their cause or stand as outlaws before the bar of civilization.

Association for Counsel.

We are ready to associate ourselves with the nations of the world, great and small, for conference, for counsel, to seek the expressed views of world opinion, to recommend a way to approximate a disarmament and relieve the crushing burdens of military and naval establishments. We elect to participate in suggesting plans for mediation, conciliation and arbitration, and would gladly join in that expressed conscience of progress which seeks to clarify and write the laws of international relationship, and establish a world court; for the disposition of such justiciable questions as nations are agreed to submit thereto. In expressing aspirations, in seeking practical plans, in translating humanity's new concept of righteousness and justice and its hatred of war into recommended action, we are ready most heartily to unite, but every commitment must be made in the exercise of our national sovereignty. Since freedom impelled, and independence inspired, and nationality exalted, a world super-government is contrary to everything we cherish and can have no sanction by our republic. This is not selfishness, it is sanctity. It is not aloofness, it is security. It is not suspicion of others, it is patriotic adherence to the things which made us what we are.

Today better than ever before we know the aspirations of human kind, and share them. We have come to a new realization of our place in the world and a new appraisal of our nation by the world. The unselfishness of these United States is a thing proven. Our devotion to peace for ourselves and for the world is well established. Our concern for preserved civilization has had its impassioned and heroic expression. There was no American failure to resist the attempted reversion of civilization. There will be no failure today or tomorrow.

Rests on Popular Will.

The success of our popular government rests wholly upon the correct interpretation of the deliberate, intelligent, dependable popular will of America. In a deliberate questioning of a suggested change of national policy, where internationality was to supersede nationality, we turned to a referendum of the American people. There was ample discussion, and there is a republic mandate in manifest understanding.

America is ready to encourage, eager to initiate, anxious to participate in any seemly program likely to lessen the probability of war and promote that brotherhood of mankind which must be God's highest conception of human relationship. Because we cherish ideals of justice and peace, because we appraise international contact and helpful relationship no less highly than any people of the world, we aspire to a high place in the moral leadership of civilization; and we hold a maintained America, the proven republic, the unshaken temple of representative democracy, to be not only an inspiration and example, but the highest agency of strengthening good will and promoting accord on both continents.

Trade Ties Bind Closely.

We must understand the ties of trade bind nations in closest intimacy, and none may receive except as he gives. We have not strengthened ours in accordance with our resources or our genius, notably on our own continent, where a galaxy of republics reflect the glory of new world democracy, but in the new order of finance and trade we mean to promote enlarged activities and seek expanded confidence.

Perhaps we can make no more helpful contribution by example than a republic's capacity to emerge from the wreckage of war. While the world's embittered travail did not leave us devastated lands nor desolated cities, left no gaping wounds, no breast filled with hate, it did involve us in the delirium of expenditures, in expanded currency and credits, in unbalanced industry, in unspeakable waste and disturbed relationships. While it uncovered our portion of hateful selfishness at home, it also revealed the heart of America as sound and fearless, and beating in confidence unflinching.

Amid it all we have riveted the gaze of all civilization to the unselfishness and the righteousness of representative democracy where our freedom never has made offensive warfare, never has sought territorial aggrandizement through force, never has turned to the arbitrament of arms until reason has been exhausted. When the governments of the earth shall have established a freedom like our own and shall have sanctioned the pursuit of peace as we have practiced it, I believe the last sorrow and the final sacrifice of international warfare will have been written.

Our Supreme Task.

Our supreme task is the resumption of our onward, normal way. Reconstruction, readjustment, restoration—all these must follow. I would like to hasten them, to lighten the spirit and add to the resolution with which we take up the task. Let me repeat for our nation, we shall give no people just cause to make war upon us, we hold no national prejudices, we entertain no spirit of revenge, we do not hate, we do not covet, we dream of no conquest nor boast of armed prowess.

If, despite this attitude, war is again forced upon us, I earnestly hope a way may be found which will unify our individual and collective strength and consecrate all America, materially and spiritually, body and soul, to national defense. I can envision the ideal republic, where every man and woman is called under the flag, for assignment to duty, for whatever service, military or civic, the individual is best fitted; where we may call to universal service every plant, agency or facility; all in the sublime sacrifice for country, and not one penny of war profit shall inure to the benefit of private individual, corporation or combination, but all above the normal shall flow into the defense chest of the nation. There is something inherently wrong, something out of accord with the ideals of representative democracy, when one portion of our citizenship turns its activities to private gain amid defensive war while another is fighting, sacrificing or dying for national preservation.

Unity of Spirit and Purpose.

Out of such universal service will come a new unity of spirit and purpose, a new confidence and consecration, which would make our defense impregnable, our triumph assured. Then we should have little or no disorganization of our economic, industrial and commercial systems at home, no staggering war debts, no swollen fortunes to flout the sacrifices of our soldiers, no excuse for sedition, no pitiable slackness, no outrage of treason. Envy and jealousy would have no soil for their menacing development, and revolution would be without the passion which engenders it.

A regret for the mistakes of yesterday must not, however, blind us to the tasks of today. War never left such an aftermath. There has been staggering loss of life, and measureless wastage of materials. Nations are still groping for return to stable ways. Discouraging indebtedness confronts us like all the war-torn nations, and these obligations must be provided for. No civilization can survive repudiation. We can reduce the abnormal expenditures, and we will.

We can strike at war taxation, and we must. We must face the grim necessity, with full knowledge that the task is to be solved, and we must proceed with a full realization that no statute enacted by man can repeal the inexorable laws of nature. Our most dangerous tendency is to expect too much of government, and at the same time do for it too little. We contemplate the immediate task of putting our public household in order. We need a rigid and yet sane economy, combined with fiscal justice, and it must be attended by individual prudence and thrift, which are so essential to this trying hour, and reassuring for the future.

Reflection of War's Reaction.

The business world reflects the disturbance of war's reaction. Herein flows the life blood of material existence. The economic mechanism is intricate and its parts interdependent, and it has suffered the shocks and jars incident to abnormal demands, credit inflations and price upheavals. The normal balances have been impaired, the channels of distribution have been clogged, the relations of labor and management have been strained. We must seek the readjustment with care and courage. Our people must give and take. Prices must reflect the receding fever of war activities. Perhaps we never shall know the old levels of wage again, because war invariably readjusts compensation and the necessities of life will show their inseparable relationship, but we must strive for normalcy to reach stability. All the penalties will not be light, nor evenly distributed. There is no way of making them so. There is no instant step from disorder to order. We must face a condition of grim reality, charge off our losses and start afresh. It is the oldest lesson of civilization.

From Destruction to Production.

The forward course of the business cycle is unmistakable. Peoples are turning from destruction to production. Industry has sensed the changed order and our own people are turning to resume their normal, onward way. The call is for productive America to go on. I know that congress and the administration will favor every wise government policy to aid the resumption and encourage continued progress. I speak for administrative efficiency, for lightening tax burdens, for sound commercial practices, for adequate credit facilities, for sympathetic concern for all agricultural problems, for the omission of unnecessary interference of government with business, for an end to government's experiment in business, and for more efficient business in government administration. With all of this must attend a mindfulness of the human side of all activities, so that social, industrial and economic justice will be squared with the purposes of a righteous people.

With the nation-wide induction of womanhood into our political life we may count upon her intuitions, her refinements, her intelligence and, her influence to exalt the social order. We count upon her exercise of the full privileges and the performance of the duties of citizenship to speed the attainment of the highest state.

Prayer for Industrial Peace.

I wish for an America no less alert in guarding against dangers from within than it is watchful against enemies from without. Our fundamental law recognizes no class, no group, no section; there must be none in legislation or administration. The supreme inspiration is the common weal. Humanity hungers for international peace, and we crave it with all mankind. My most reverent prayer for America is for industrial peace, with its rewards widely and generally distributed, amid the inspirations of equal opportunity. No one justly may deny the equality of opportunity which made us what we are. Due concern for making all citizens fit for participation will give added strength of citizenship and magnify our achievement.

If revolution insists upon overturning established order, let other peoples make the tragic experiment. There is no place for it in America. When World War threatened civilization we pledged our resources and our lives to its preservation, and when revolution threatens we unfurl the flag of law and order and renew our consecration. Ours is a constitutional freedom where the popular will is the law supreme and minorities are sacredly protected. Our revisions, reformations and evolutions reflect a deliberate judgment and an orderly progress, and we mean to cure our ills, but never destroy or permit destruction by force.

I had rather submit our industrial controversies to the conference table in advance than to a settlement table after conflict and suffering. The earth is thirsting for the cup of good will. Understanding is its fountain source. I would like to acclaim an era of good feeling amid dependable prosperity and all the blessings which attend it.

Protection of Industries.

It has been proved again and again that we cannot, while throwing our markets open to the world, maintain American standards of living and opportunity; and hold our industrial eminence in such unequal competition. There is a lurking fallacy in the theory of banished barriers of trade, but preserved American standards require our higher production costs to be reflected in our tariffs on imports. Today, as never before, when peoples are seeking trade restoration and expansion, we must adjust our tariffs to the new order. We seek participation in the world's exchanges, because therein lies our way to widened influence and the triumphs of peace.

We know full well we cannot sell where we do not buy, and we cannot sell successfully where we do not carry. Opportunity is calling not alone for the restoration, but for a new era in production, transportation and trade. We shall answer it best by meeting the demand of a surprising home market, by promoting self-reliance in production and by bidding enterprise, genius and efficiency to carry our cargoes in American bottoms to the marts of the world.

An America of Homes.

We should not have an America living within and for herself alone, but we would have her self-reliant, independent and ever nobler, stronger and richer. Believing in our higher standards, reared through constitutional liberty and maintained opportunity, we invite the world to the same heights. But pride in things wrought is no reflex of a completed task. Common welfare is the goal of our national endeavor. Wealth is not inimical to welfare. It ought to be its friendliest agency. There never can be equality of rewards or possessions so long as the human plan contains varied talents and differing degrees of industry and thrift, but ours ought to be a country free from great blotches of distressed poverty. We ought to find a way to guard against the perils and penalties of unemployment. We want an America of homes, illumined with hope and happiness, where mothers, freed from the necessity for long hours of toil beyond their own doors, may preside as befits the hearthstone of American citizenship. We want the cradle of American childhood rocked under conditions so wholesome and so hopeful that no blight may touch it in its development, and we want to provide that no selfish interest, no material necessity, no lack of opportunity shall prevent the gaining of that education so essential to best citizenship.

There is no short cut to the making of these ideals into glad realities. The world has witnessed, again and again, the futility and the mischief of ill considered remedies for social and economic disorders. But we are mindful today as never before of the friction of modern industrialism, and we must learn its causes and reduce its evil consequences by sober and tested methods. Where genius has made for great possibilities, justice and happiness must be reflected in a greater common welfare.

Service the Supreme Commitment. Service is the supreme commitment of life. I would rejoice to acclaim the era of the Golden Rule and crown it with the autocracy of service. I pledge, an administration where all the agencies of government are called to serve, and ever promote an understanding of government purely as an expression of the popular will.

One cannot stand in this presence and be unmindful of the tremendous responsibility. The world upheaval has added heavily to our tasks, but with the realization comes the surge of high resolve, and there is renaissance in belief in the God-given destiny of our republic. If I felt that there is to be sole responsibility in the executive for the America of tomorrow, I should shrink from the burden. But here are a hundred millions, with common concern and shared responsibility, answerable to God and country. The republic summons them to their duty and I invite co-operation.

I accept my part with single-mindedness of purpose and humility of spirit and implore the favor and guidance of God in His Heaven. With these I am unafraid, and confidently face the future.

I have taken the solemn oath of office on that passage of holy writ wherein it is asked: "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" Think I pledge to God and country.

A Continuous Performance

THE man who speaks of life as being made up of "just one thing after another" as though it were simply a series of unwelcome and disconnected events, is mentally near-sighted. He fails to recognize the importance and necessity of viewing life as a whole. Success is a matter of properly valuing and emphasizing the various activities of living. Work and play, earning and spending and saving, all have their place in worth while living; and all are closely related one to the other.

This bank offers helpful encouragement to anyone who wishes to increase his savings, but its service is not by any means confined to that field.
