

A Life Saver for the Farmers and Stockmen of New Mexico

THE Agricultural Credits law has been passed by congress and signed by President Harding. It makes available to the War Finance corporation resources of two and one-half billions of dollars for financing the farmers and livestock growers of the United States during the next two years.

When copies of the Agricultural Credits law reached New Mexico last week one of the leading bankers of the state, after studying it with care, said:

"This law is a life saver for the farmers and stockmen of New Mexico and the west. It will enable our banks, now overloaded with farm and livestock loans to pass those loans on to the War Finance corporation to be carried by it during the period while the producers are 'growing out' of the hole into which they were dumped by contraction of prices and credits last year.

This law is precisely what Senator Bursum said it would be when he returned home from Washington last month, after its passage had become assured:

THE GREATEST FINANCIAL RELIEF MEASURE IN THE HISTORY OF GOVERNMENTS

The Agricultural Credits law is the response of the Harding administration to the call of western livestock growers and farmers, for relief from a desperate financial situation brought on by conditions over which they had no control.

Go and ask your own banker for his opinion. If a copy of the Agricultural Credits law has reached him, or if he has had an opportunity to become familiar with its provisions, he will tell you that the law will do for you; the farmers and stock growers and business men of New Mexico; exactly what is stated above.

There has been no partisanship in the national policy that dictated the terms of this law. It became necessary for the national government to find a way to rescue the grain and meat and wool producers of this nation from the ruin that threatened many and from the long period of depression and restricted credits that burdened all.

During the first month he was in Washington, Senator Bursum proposed a credit relief bill for the relief of livestock growers, whose desperate situation he knew from personal experience as a grower of cattle and sheep. The bill contained the principle and suggested the machinery later perfected in the Agricultural Credits law.

BURSUM'S BILL PROPOSING RELIEF THROUGH CREDITS PROVIDED FOR THE USE OF THE WAR FINANCE CORPORATION, LED DIRECTLY TO THE GREAT AGRICULTURAL CREDITS LAW.

The Agricultural Credits law, as originally framed, was designated only to aid in foreign marketing of grain. Middle western senators immediately proposed to broaden it to finance the operation of grain growing, in states where needed.

SENATOR BURSUM INSTANTLY AND INSISTENTLY DEMANDED THAT THE ADEQUATE RELIEF OF THE LIVESTOCK GROWERS WAS AS ESSENTIAL TO NATIONAL PROSPERITY AS RELIEF FOR GRAIN GROWERS. THE ENTIRE GROUP OF WESTERN SENATORS AGREED WITH THAT VIEW AND BACKED IT. THE RESULT WAS THE INSERTION OF SECTION 24 OF THE ACT, WHICH EXTENDS ITS PROVISIONS TO GROWERS OF LIVESTOCK AND GIVES TO THE STOCKMEN THE SAME BROAD AND PERMANENT FINANCIAL RELIEF THAT IS PROVIDED FOR FARMERS.

The Agricultural Credits bill is now a law. Relief under its provisions will be available within thirty days. There are extensive details of administration to be perfected; and much of the effectiveness of the law and the promptness with which it will function will depend upon that detail of administration.

There remains but one step necessary to bring to New Mexico swiftly and surely, the full and complete benefits from the Agricultural Credits law. That is to return to Washington and to the senate the man who helped to frame and pass the law, who led the fight to include the livestock growers in its benefits on an equal basis with the farmers, and who knows intimately the conditions both of the operation and administration of the law, and the condition upon the farms and ranges of every section of New Mexico.

That man is Holm O. Bursum. Bursum is a farmer and a livestock grower. He knows how pressing are the needs of New Mexico farmers and stockmen for the relief this law provides. He knows that they need it NOW. He not only knows these needs, but he has the energy, ability and determination to see to it that New Mexico farmers and livestock growers are provided for immediately the benefits of the law become available.

There is no partisan politics in your choice of a senator. No national issues, no party principles are at stake. None will be during three and one-half years which the senator you are about to elect will serve. The national policies have been determined. This Agricultural Credits law, and the two and one-half billions behind it, is one of these policies. It remains for us, in our own personal interest, for the relief of our principal industries and for the prosperity and welfare of our state, to choose the man who can make those established principles and this beneficent law most effective for the relief of the business and industries of our own state.

Bursum is going to be elected. He is a candidate on the Republican ticket. His party is united behind him in every county in the state. His accomplishments in his brief service in the senate have enlisted public sentiment for him. He has established himself in a powerful position in the senate as a strong, courageous, useful member. We, the voters of New Mexico, can further strengthen his position and further establish his influence and capacity for service to us and to the nation by returning him to the senate with a majority so overwhelming that it will say to Congress and the administration: "here is a man we trust; here is a man we know can and will give us the maximum of practical service. You can trust him to do the same for the nation."

As plain, practical, business; as common-sense judgement; in behalf of your own personal welfare and prosperity, give your vote to swell the majority of Holm O. Bursum so that he may return to the senate with notice to the nation that he is returned as the representative not of a political party, but of the whole people of a great state who need prompt, energetic, adequate service and who expect it from him and the government of which he is a part.

LARGEST STILL EVER FOUND IN STATE CAPTURED

Fifty-Gallon Still, With 750 Gallons of Mash, Captured Five Miles North of Town by Prohibition Agents.

Albuquerque, Sept. 6.—A fifty gallon copper still and 750 gallons of corn, raisin, and potato mash, the largest still and the largest quantity of mash ever captured in the state was seized yesterday afternoon by federal prohibition agents in a house in Los Candelarias, north of Albuquerque.

The house in which the still and mash was found was deserted when the raid was made, and no one had been arrested as yet. Agents are searching for the operators of the still, and arrests are expected to follow.

The still is said to be one of the best-constructed stills ever captured here, besides being the largest. About sixty feet of three-quarter inch copper tubing constituted the coil which was installed in a large hog-head filled with cool water. The still proper is of fifty-gallon capacity, and is tightly constructed. A specially-constructed coupling device connects the coil to the still.

Some idea of the large scale of which the distillers have been operating may be gathered from the fact that vessels with a total capacity of 100 gallons were found close to the still, apparently with the expectation of another run shortly. Two 16-gallon kegs, two 10-gallon kegs, four 8-gallon kegs were found, besides three 5-gallon jugs, three 3-gallon jugs and a number of smaller containers. The officers believe that it has been about ten days since the last large distillation.

Two hundred gallons of the mash was rabin mash, and the balance 550 gallons, consisted of potato and corn mash. The officers were somewhat puzzled when they first discovered the potato mash, thinking from its appearance that it was a preparation of Bartlett pears. Investigation, however, showed that it was composed of sliced potatoes.

The still and the samples of mash will be kept at the federal building pending the arrest of the distillers.

LET CONTRACTS FOR 9 PROJECTS OVER 107 MILES; COSTS $503,867

Include Tecolote-Fulton Stretch or Santa Fe-Las Vegas Highway. Santa Fe, N. M., Sept. 5.—Contract for eight projects, which cover 107 1/2 miles, were awarded by the highway department late yesterday.

The price totaled $503,867.44, nearly $120,000 lower than the estimate which Highway Engineer Gillett said were based on the reduced prices submitted at the last letting. Further decreases in construction costs—labor, supplies and other items—were chiefly responsible for the showing, but close bidding also helped. Twenty-eight contractors submitted bids on the eight projects and 11 submitted bids on one.

The successful bidders were: Santa Canyon—French & Harvey, $26,530.24. 1-D—Atlas Construction Co. and A. P. Atchison, $42,000.00. 40—J. V. Striker Construction Co., $50,353.83. 54—O. C. McElrath, $92,205.83. 55—J. V. Striker Construction Co., $30,712.48. 60-B—Peterson, Shirley & Gunther, $123,163.24. 67—Morrison, Sheetz & Morrison, $63,436.30. 48—Duvall, Johnson & Sappington, $67,453.26.

These prices include 10 percent for engineering, inspection and contingencies which, according to Gillett, is largely saved.

Project 60-B is the one between Tecolote and Fulton on the Santa Fe-Las Vegas road.

Project No. 40 is between Tularosa and Mesquite.

McFARLAND-BALDWIN

Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Spence, occurred the wedding of Paul McFarland and Miss Pearl Baldwin, both of Carrizozo, with the Rev. Huffman of the Carrizozo Baptist Church performing the ceremony.

The bride has resided here for about two years, during which time, she has managed the local office of the Western Union-Telegraph Company and in which position she has given the best of satisfaction to the public. Possessed of a sunny, friendly disposition, she has made many friends with all her acquaintances.

MOST OF STATE'S CATTLE BRANDS NOW REGISTERED

Albuquerque, Sept. 6.—About 95 per cent of the cattle brands of the state have been registered with the office of the cattle sanitary board, it was announced Saturday by M. G. Keenan, secretary of the board.

To date about 20,000 brands have been registered, and it is expected that the clean-up drive which is to follow shortly will include every brand now in use in New Mexico and in a general way will indicate the number of ranches in the state.

The number of brands which have been submitted to the board's office so far indicated a reduction of about 10 per cent from the number at the last registration eight years ago.

That new ranches are continually being formed, is proven by the fact that the board continues to receive ten or fifteen applications for new brands every day, which is about the normal number.

The board will start a clean-up drive shortly to secure the registration of every brand in the state. It is expected that several thousand brands will be added to the list by this drive, making the register virtually a complete list of all brand and ranch-owners of the state.

Fiends Abroad.

Last Saturday night at Duran, N. M., as grocer-vman, A. J. Koury was about to close his business for the day, five men entered the store, one of them asked for some cheese and as Mr. Koury stooped to raise a box containing the same, the man over his shoulder with a revolver.

The 12 year old boy of the merchant saw the act and warned his father, but too late, however, as on attempting to arise, the bandit fired, killing Mr. Koury instantly.

Mrs. Koury, who was waiting on a lady customer at the time, hurried to her husband's assistance only to receive a shot in the breast which at the time was considered fatal. The boy wrestled with the assassin and struck him over the head with a can of fruit which so dazed him, that he dropped the gun which the young man picked up as the intruder ran for the door.

In the meantime, the other men were ransacking the store. They stole all the money they could find, the exact amount of which cannot be ascertained as the storekeeper had not checked up the day's business. Mrs. Koury was taken to El Paso where it is believed she will recover. One of the bandits has been apprehended, but the others, four in number are still at large but are being pursued.

LATER, Carlos Renteria and Francisco Briaz, Mexicans, were arrested at Roswell Tuesday and confessed to being implicated in the killing of Koury, giving the names of the other three men. Officers are in pursuit.

Decision Rendered.

Judge Mechem has just handed down his decision in the case of Mrs. Zumwalt vs. James Gatewood in which, Mrs. Zumwalt sued for the sum of $6,000 for the support and maintenance of her children. The case was conducted by attorney Geo. Spence, with Prichard & Merchant for the defense. Mr. Spence was ordered to prepare judgment yesterday morning. This ends a long-drawn case which has occupied the attention of the court for several years.

Republican Meeting Tuesday Night

On account of other attractions being held last Tuesday night, only an average sized audience greeted the Republican speakers, Pat Kelley, Representative from the Sixth District of Michigan and Mrs. C. A. Dodson, of Des Moines, Iowa. Precinct Committee man, Geo. Spence opened the meeting and introduced the speakers, first of whom was Mrs. Dodson. She spoke of what the new administration is doing in the direction of reforms which affect the people of our land in general and particularly those measures which are for the benefit of women and children.

Her speech was interrupted by merited applause as she told of measures now pending which will bring relief to thousands heretofore unprovided for by legislation.

Mrs. Dodson was followed by the Hon. Pat. Kelley whose speech contained nothing of "mud slinging," no harsh criticisms, or personalities, but abounded with cold facts gleaned from his experience at the National Capitol for the past 8 years. He recited the existing hard times and placed the blame where it belonged: To the preceding administration, and proved everything he said by the facts and figures. He spoke of Bursum's popularity in the Senate and urged the people to return him on the grounds, that he, having the interest of New Mexico at heart, his future efforts would be greater and the relief of our people will be in the proper hands.

Quit Looking Over Seas; Look Nearer Home.

F. J. Sager, Mrs. Sager, Miss Laura Scharf, nurse, and The Outlook man took a trip north of Carrizozo last Tuesday in answer to an appeal for aid from certain worthy applicants in that section. Dr. Paden and Miss Scharf had been waiting on those of whom we speak, and brought the news to the attention of Mr. Sager, who is chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

They found 13 people living in one dugout without even the scant necessities of life around them. There were 11 children who bore the marks of intelligence, but who were unable to attend school on account of lack of proper clothing. YOU, who are enjoying the comforts of life, think of this! Almost within sight of your homes. It would remind one of the famous poem which reads like this:

Oh, little feet that soon must tread The roughness of life's rugged road, So nearer to the way-side inn Where toil shall cease and rest begin, Am weary thinking of your toad.

The party relieved the distressed condition as far as possible at that time, but more remains to be done. This is but a small reminder that we should pay more heed to those under the shadow of the surrounding Mountains who must be relieved of their suffering conditions, or we should take down our sign of the claim of being Christian people. We are continually confronted with appeals from across the waters for funds with which to help the needy and while these conditions, caused by the late war, are true, we should look to our own first. The winter is near at hand and those who are in need should notify the Advisory Board in order to obtain the relief which Mr. Sager and the Board are anxious to give to the worthy, distressed people of our district.

The Clan Call

By Hapsburg Liebe

"I'LL STICK."

Synopsis.—Young Carlyle Wilburton Dale, or "Bill Dale," as he is called to be known, son of a wealthy coal operator, John K. Dale, arrives at the Halfway Switch, in eastern Tennessee, abandoning a life of idle ease—and incidentally a bride, Patricia Clavering, at the altar—determined to make his own way in life. He meets "Babe" Littleford, typical mountaineer girl. "Babe" Heck, a character of the hills, takes him to John Moreland's home. Moreland is chief of his "clan," which has an old feud with the Littlefords. He tells Dale of the killing of his brother, David Moreland, years ago, owner of rich coal deposits, by a man named Carlyle. Moreland's description of "Carlyle" causes Dale to believe the man was his father. Dale arranges to make his home with the Moreland family, for whom he entertains a deep respect. Talking with "Babe" Littleford next day, Dale is ordered by "Black Adam" Hall, bully of the district, to leave "his girl" alone. Dale replies spiritedly, and they fight. Dale whips the bully, though badly used up.

When Dale came back to a state of consciousness, he was lying under covers in the carved black walnut bed. Beside him stood John Moreland, who held in one hand a bowl containing a hot herb brew that his wife had prepared. (Granny Heck, her son Ty, and Mrs. Moreland stood not far away.)

"This here'll be good for ye, I think," said Moreland, nodding toward the bowl in his hand. He went over and put on arm around Dale's shoulders and helped him to sit up.

Dale drank the stuff with difficulty. "Much obliged," he muttered thickly. "I let a see did I whip how did it end? He didn't lick me, did he—that fellow Hall?"

He shone didn't smile Moreland. Not by a big sight. He fell out fast. His own pap won't hardly know him, Bill.

News travels rapidly in the big hills. The Morelands began to gather at the home of their chief to see the man who had whipped Black Adam Hall; every Moreland able to walk came to see Bill Dale. For three hours he was lionized, but he didn't enjoy it; the water had left many pains in his chest and his head ached dully, and his hands still felt as though the bones were shattered in them.

Came a thunderstorm that afternoon and the mountain evening fell with a chill. A fire was made in the wide stone fireplace in the guest's room, and when supper was over the family gathered there with Dale, who refused to be kept in bed.

After a few minutes of silently watching grotesque shadows flit across the log walls, Dale said to John Moreland:

"If your brother David could know, don't you think he'd want you to get the value out of the coal?"

John Moreland bent forward to rest his chin in his hands. His sober grey eyes stared thoughtfully toward the fire.

"I ain't never looked at it that way," he said.

"That's the right way to look at it," declared Dale. "But you shouldn't call the property as it is."

The mountaineer turned an inquiring face toward his guest.

"How in thunder could I handle it if I didn't?"

"Why not let me develop it for you?" Dale said earnestly, eagerly. "I won't charge you anything above expenses, and I won't be extravagant."

"It'd take considerable money to start things a movin'. Have you got it?" asked Moreland.

"No, but I can get it. Almost anybody would be willing to lend money so good a thing as this, y'know."

For a little while Moreland sat there and looked squarely at Dale, who returned his gaze without a sign of flinching. The hillman was trying to find a motive.

"How come it 'at you, who ain't knawed us but two days," he demanded, "can be so much interested in us?"

The question demanded a straightforward answer. Dale realized that there was but one way in which he could give a satisfactory explanation, and that that was by telling the truth—but not the whole truth, as he surmised it, for then his efforts would go for naught.

Moreland was speaking again, and his eyes were brighter now.

"I guess 'at David would want us to develop the coal, ef he could know, it's like a light-a-breakin' to me. But that coal is sacred to us, Bill Dale, and afore ye go any further I'll haf to ax ye to tell me all about yerself. A city man up here in the wilderness, I don't look g'pious, Bill, mebbe, but—well, I hopes ye can pardon me so axin' it. I shored got to be hearin' about Brother David's coal. Addie and the boys'll go out and leave jest as two in here, and when ye're talkin' to me it's the same as talkin' to a mountain man for as tall as I am."

sarned. Addie, honey; Luke, you and Cale.

Mrs. Moreland and her sons arose and left the room, closing the door behind them. Bill Dale paced the floor, arms folded, brows drawn. Finally he faltered before the Moreland chief.

"There's nothing I'm ashamed of, I guess," he said. "I don't like to tell it simply because I don't like to tell it. But—I'll do it."

He sat down in his sheepskin-lined rocker, lay back and closed his eyes as though to visualize the story, to live it over.

"Maybe it's not very much in my favor, John Moreland," he began. "I never could get along with my parents, or with the set I was born into. Somehow, I was different. Father and mother wanted me to be a dandy; they even wanted me to let a servant dress me. The climax came when they tried to marry me to a young woman who didn't want me any more than I wanted her."

He opened his eyes, looked straight at Moreland, and went on:

"You see, they wanted to marry us in order to unite old Clavering's for-ture and my dad's; Patricia, like me, was an only child. It had been all cut and dried for us, for years. They put it up to me like this: they said I owed it to them, that it was my duty; that I had always been a severe trial to them; that my savagery had put gray into my mother's hair, and a lot of things of that kind. I fell for it at last; it was sort of a matter of self-defense. With Patricia, it was a case of—well, a case of simple obedience. Pat is a good girl.

A minute of silence; then:

"I'll hurry along with it, John Moreland. I had one fine friend back there. It was Robert McLaurin, a reporter on the city's leading newspaper. My parents didn't take it him because he was a worker, and not a top. Mother wanted Pat's cousin, 'poor dear Harry' Clavering, for my best man. 'Poor dear Harry' and I had a fight, once upon a time, and I—I had whipped him; and I didn't like him. I chose Bobby McLaurin for my best man, and I wouldn't give him up."

"It was only when we met before the chance in a big crowded church that I fully realized the tragedy of it for Pat. I saw that her face was a clean white, and that her eyes held the shadow of something that was very terrible. I turned my head and saw the same shadow in the eyes of my greatest friend, Bobby McLaurin. I knew then, Bobby and Patricia loved each other, John Moreland! Bobby didn't have any money to speak of, and that had held them apart."

"It had been the finest thing in the world, McLaurin's acting as best man for me. There was friendship for you! I couldn't take from them their one chance of happiness. . . ."

"I couldn't see anything else to do, so I ran. I went home, pulled off my wedding ring and put on the clothes I'm wearing now, threw some things into a bag and hurried down to the union station. I found that I could have my choice between a flier for Atlanta—and the train that brought me here. I bought passage to Atlanta, but I never meant to use it; I meant to take the other train and pay a cash fare. In doing that, I hoped to lose myself from them. I wanted to go unblinded to some country where, I wouldn't be considered a—savage, y'know."

"I went out to the train shed, and I hadn't been there a minute when Bobby McLaurin came. I asked him how he knew where to find me. He said:

"I thought you wouldn't care to stay here after doing what you did, and I wanted to say good-by, Bill. He always called me that, and it made me feel like a man. Then I put my bag down and took him by both shoulders and told him this:

"Look here, Bobby, I'm going to give you some advice, and you take it. You steal Pat and marry her. Steal Pat and marry her if you have to live in a hole in a hillside. You're as good as any of them; and lots better than most of them. You can work your way to a better salary. You see, I told him, 'we get about what we deserve in this world. Most of us don't deserve much.'"

"I asked him if mother was badly cut up. He said she was; that she had fainted. Dad swore aloud, he said, there in church. I told Bobby good-by and got aboard the train without saying anything about where I was going—but I didn't know myself where I was going, at the time.

"Now you've heard it. Every word was truth. If you'll trust me with the coal, I'll make this land my land, your people my people. I'll suffer with you when you suffer, and be happy with you when you're happy; and when you fight, I'll fight with you."

The Moreland chief arose, and Bill Dale arose. The hillman put out his hand, and Dale gripped it.

"I believe in ye, Bill," said John Moreland. "Fo' another thing, I've seed ye fight. You can work the coal."

He looked toward the closed inner door—and called, "Oh, Addie, you and the boys can come back now."

Out of the night a face appeared at one of the small windows. It was a feminine face and handsome rather than pretty. Two slender, sunburned hands gripped the window-ledge nervously. The face pressed closer to the glass, then disappeared. Soon afterward the outer door of the guest's room opened, and Ben Littleford's daughter entered. Her skirts were dripping wet.

Mrs. Moreland arose and went toward the young woman. She knew that only something of great importance could bring a Littleford into her home in this fashion.

"What's the matter, Babe?" Babe Littleford gave no attention to Mrs. Moreland. She went on to Bill Dale, walking softly on bare feet.

"Black Adam is a-goin' to kill you tonight, Bill Dale."

"That so?" Dale's smile was rather grim. "How did you find that out, Miss Littleford?"

"I found it out, all right. As he went off from the river this mornin', I made fun of him; and he patted the stock of his rifle and said he'd git you through a window! He was at our house this evenin' to help fix pap's gun, and when he left he started this way, a-goin' by the blowed-down sycamore. I waded the river at Blue Cat shoals to beat him here. I thought you might want to know about it, so ye could mebbe save other folks the trouble o' makin' a funeral fo' ye."

She backed toward the door, her eyes never leaving Dale's face. Another second, and she was gone.

They were all on their feet now. John Moreland gripped Dale's arm.

"Over that aside o' the chimney, Bill!" he ordered, his native drawl for the moment absent. "Out, Addie, honey! Luke, bring my rifle and hat—jump keen! (Cale, bring water and drownd this here fire!)"

It was done. Moreland took his hat and the repeater and went alone into the night.

When some fifteen minutes had passed, there came to Dale's ears the sound of shooting. There were ten shots in such-rapid succession that there came almost a continuous roar. Then came echoes and reverberations, and then silence. Soon John Moreland let himself into the dark room.

His wife's voice was low and filled with anxiety:

"What happened, Johnny?"

A dull thud came through the darkness as her husband's rifle-butts struck the floor.

"This is what happened, Addie: As I passed the cawner o' the house, I got down that that old oxwhip to take along. I went across the road and into the meadow, and that I see Adam Ball a-comin'. I hid, and when Adam was about to pass me, I jumped up and jerked his rifle from him and busted it agin a rock. Then I lights in and thrashes him with the oxwhip outel he broke and run. And 'en this here happened, Addie!"

"I was a-watchin' to see ef Adam had reely went off, when I seed a man a-comin' toward me fast. I thought it was Hall, o' course. So I up and tells him to show me how fast he can run and commences a-shootin' over his head to skeer him. But it didn't happen to be Adam Ball—it was Ben Littleford! He was a-follerin' Babe to see what she was up to, o' course."

"How do ye know it was Ben, pap?" Caleb asked.

"How do I know?" growled John Moreland. "When I got through a-shootin', he hollers at me and says: 'Tomorrow, John Moreland, he says, 'we'll have a little Gettysburg o' our own!' And I might mind ye, Cale, 'at he keeps his word the same as I do."

"And Littleford meant a—" began Dale.

"That the'll be a big fight tomorrow," said Moreland. "Bill Dale, in a-speakin' this land yore land and these people yore people, I'm a-faird ye're a-goin' to git more'n ye expected, mebbe more'n ye can handle. Do ye want to back out of it and let the coal go, or are ye one o' these fallers who chaws what they bites off of it's a hoss's head?"

"I'll stick," Dale's voice came firmly in the darkness. "I'll stick."

CHAPTER IV

The Mystery of the Rifle.

An hour after John Moreland had sent his ten rifle bullets whirling over the head of Ben Littleford, every Moreland and every Littleford in the valley knew of the declaration of war. And each man of them oiled his weapons and put them in better working order.

When Dale went to bed, there was too much on his mind to render sleeping easy for him. Tomorrow he would have to help in the fight against the Littlefords; kinsmen of the young woman who had saved him, without doubt, from death by the murderous rifle of the mountaineer Gollath—or break his word flatly. It was a poor return for such a favor! The longer he thought over the dilemma, the more perplexed he became.

He thought, too, of the everlasting wonder, the tall of John Moreland's bedtime prayer. How a man could go down on his knees and ask the blessings of the Almighty upon men whom he meant to fight the next day was a thing that Bill Dale could not understand.

It was after midnight before he slept. He woke at the break of day, arose and dressed himself, and went out. Going toward the flower-filled front yard, he found himself facing a very angry John Moreland.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"Matter enough," clipped the mountaineer. "Bill Dale, I'm a-goin' to ax you a question, and I want the truth. Will I git it?"

"You'll get the truth if you get anything. Shoot the question."

"All right. What do you know about my gun?"

"About as much as you know of the left hind wheel of Ben Hur's chariot. What's wrong with it?"

Moreland's eyes were steady and made dining table with its cover of red oilcloth, the broken cast-iron stove, the strings of dried peppers hanging on the log walls, the broken stillworn lying in the corner.

"The Littlefords," said Dale, "have declared war."

"Sakes!" laughed the old woman. "We knowed that last night when we heered them ten shots."

"And all the Moreland rifles are missing." Dale watched the effect of his words.

"What!" the Hecks cried in one voice.

Their surprise seemed genuine. Dale pressed the subject further and learned only that if they knew anything concerning the disappearance of the rifles they were not going to tell. Then he started homeward by way of the pool above the blown-down sycamore.

There was a chance that Ben Littleford's daughter would be there fishing. Dale told himself, and it was barely possible that she could throw some light on the mystery of the rifles.

He crossed the river by means of the prostrate tree. Babe was there; she sat on the stone on which she had been sitting the morning before; her back was to him, and her bare feet were in the water to her ankles. Dale went up close, stopped and gathered a handful of violets and dropped them over her shoulder and into her lap.

Babe looked around and smiled.

"What luck, Miss Littleford?"

"Nothin'. I don't much want to ketch anything," she said slowly, a spirit of sadness in her musical voice.

"I—I jest come off down here to be whar it's quiet. You ought to hear the noise 'at pap and the rest of 'em us a-makin'!"

Dale narrowed his eyes. "Are they—er, making a noise? And what about?"

"My goodness gracious alive! You'd think so ef ye could hear 'em! Y'ought to hear pap cuss John Moreland!"

She shrugged her pretty shoulders, lifted the small end of her rod to its proper place, and went on. "I never did see pap half as mad as he was when he got home last night from a-follerin' me."

"Mad at you?" asked Dale.

"No; but he would 'a' been ef he hadn't 'a' had all his madness turned agin them Morelands. You knowed about pap's trouble on yan side o' the river last night?"

"Yes, I know about that," Dale answered slowly. "But John Moreland thought your father was my antagonist of yesterday?"

"An—antagonist?" Babe muttered inquiringly. "What's that?"

"I mean Adam Ball, y'know."

"Oh. That's what I told pap. But pap he wouldn't believe it, and he won't never believe it—'cause he don't want to believe it. I told him 'at John Moreland wasn't a-shootin' to hit, and he wouldn't believe that, neither. Pap's as hard-headed as a brindle cow, when he git's a fool notion on him. What—what did them Morelands say about their guns a-bein' gone?"

Dale straightened.

"How did you find that out?"

"Don't matter how!" She smiled almost saucily. "I knowed about it afore you did, Mr. Bill Dale. Don't you think whoever done it done a kind thing?"

"I—I might 'a' wish I was dead."

doorway; he was lastly cutting a new midday sun mark in the place of the worn old one. Behind him sat his mother, who was busily knitting a gray yarn stocking.

The moonshiner looked up and started quickly to his feet.

"Hi, thar, Bill, old boy!" he greeted cordially. "My gosh, but ye've come at the right time, shore. We're a-goin' to have young squirrels fo' dinner, and a billed hamshank with string beans, and cawndread made with the yellor o' hen 'aigs. Live whilst ye do live, says I. Come right in, Bill, old boy."

"La, la, la!" cried Granny Heck, looking over the brass rims of her spectacles. "How glad I am to see ye, Mr. Bill! Come right in and tell us the news."

Bill Dale crossed the threshold and accepted a creaking chair. His eyes took in at a sweeping glance the home-

USE OF YARN

Embroidery Adds Style to Simple Morning Attire. SHOWS TRIM-TAILORED LINES

Decorations are Not Placed with Studied Effect, But are Applied at Random.

Just a touch of hand embroidery done with wool yarn adds infinite style to a simple morning frock, and almost any woman can manage the sort of yarn embroidery that is the fashion—straight-along darning stitch for outlining hems, and bold scrolls or the most conventional posies for motifs here and there, writes a fashion correspondent in the Pittsburgh Leader. Such motifs of embroidery are not placed on the frock with studied effect; they seem to be thrown at it, and wherever they alight the effect is smart. A chemise frock of cream linen, drawn in under a green moire ribbon sash, has three motifs or yarn embroidery in pale yellow, pale green and old blue. The pattern shows two perfectly round, flat looking roses with curving stems and a few leaves; a small motif on the left front of the waist, a slightly larger motif in the same design at the left hip, and quite a large one below the right knee.

A sport frock of yellow linen in straight chemise style, with short kimono sleeves that are slashed open all the way down, and then fastened together with white crochet buttons and loops, has scroll embroidery in white yarn around the neck, the pattern extending down over the waist in front almost to the sashline, and exaggerated pockets on each side of the skirt are covered with the embroidery. A narrow sash of the linen draws in the straight frock at a low waistline.

Another frock of pale green linen has darning stitch in white along the hem of skirt and short sleeves, and around the neck opening. Above the hem on the skirt is a deep border of daisies, done with the white yarn and outlined with black yarn.

GIVES THE SUMMERY TOUCH

Well may the weavers and dealers smile when Paris brings this model into fashion—for long, full skirts mean much material. The designer of this smart frock combines a loose long waist and a wide skirt of navy crepe. White organdie gives it a summery touch.

HINTS ON KEEPING HANDS PRETTY

Simple Methods Will Aid Housewife During the Fruit and Vegetable Season.

One of the bugbears of the fresh fruit and vegetable season is the resulting stained appearance of the hands.

However, says a writer in the New York Tribune, I have one very cunning friend who is "chief cook and bottle washer" and everything else for a large family of boys, doing the entire baking and brewing and housework (with the good help of the aforesaid boys), whose hands are, to my constant amazement, always not only immaculately clean, but white and soft, with well-kept manicured nails, seldom showing a trace of grime or stain.

"How do you do it?" I asked.

This is her answer: "To begin with, always keep a cut lemon in a saucer over the sink, and use it immediately (not in an hour or even five minutes) after scraping carrots, peeling potatoes or cutting apples. Keep the other half on the bathroom shelf, cut side down, of course, or use whole lemon punctured, and let it stand in a little water to prevent hardening. This gives, when used with a hard, good soap, besides cleaning, a soft texture to the skin.

A dependable and expert druggist told me, when asked if there were not something to really take out stains, that chlorinated soda was sure. We purchased some at once and since then I have never let my little bottle get empty. It stands conveniently on the bathroom shelf and after a particularly sticky season with vegetables or

A woolly fabric and comfortable collar arrangement combine to make this suit a practical item for the fall wardrobe.

SOME HINTS TO DRESSMAKERS

Medium of Uneven Lengths Being Used to Express Individuality in Articles of Dress.

Individuality in many articles of dress, especially frocks, suits, coats and blouses, is now being expressed through the medium of uneven lengths. Skirts wide, hooped, long and uneven, are being introduced for evening wear in tulle and lace. Sleeves emphasize the wider full lengths with the nun's sleeve especially featured. Tunics droop at the back and skirts are short at the back and under a long front apron.

A new sleeve shown on dresses and sometimes on coats is in bell shape, the opening brought to a close fit above the wrist by means of inserted georgette or other soft fabric, in a color contrasting with the material of the garment. The effect is similar to a Japanese lantern.

Uses for Bran.

For paintwork and varnished woodwork bran is invaluable. Colored goods usually fade when washed, but if washed in bran water they will not lose their color. It is excellent also as a scalp cleanser, making the hair glossy. Used instead of soap, it softens and whitens the hands. To prepare bran water, fill a small bag with bran, place in a bowl and cover with boiling water.

White Skirts.

White skirts are worn with coats of practically all colors. One particularly attractive combination is the cream white skirt and the Chinese blue coat, with creamy lace waistcoat. Heavy canton crepe is the fabric used for coat and skirt.

Long Panels.

Panels which go considerably below the hem line have taken a firm grip on feminine fancy. Thus the short skirt is preserved, but the effect is something neither long nor short.

fruit I pour a few drops in the palm of one hand, rub the fingers of the other in it, and the stains vanish as if by magic. Add a few drops of water and be sure that the liquid gets well around the nails and tips of fingers. Run a little more water into the bowl, use a nail brush and pumice and not only nails but nails will assume their wonted appearance.

"Caution: Be sure and do not let any of the liquid, however diluted, fly on a colored dress when washing your hands. Carelessness in this respect before I had learned by sad experience resulted in covering the waist and cuffs of a lavender dress with fine ecru spatters."

Fashion Skirt Fads.

A professional dancer at one of the Paris cafes caused much favorable comment among the experts when she appeared in a gown of heavy black voile printed in a design of large white flowers. The skirt had gored let in from the waistline down, giving a decidedly circular flare. The same day a New York actress appeared in a circular skirt of light oxford gray mixture, smoothly fitted over the hips, but gored with some fullness at the sides. Many designers have contended that the circular skirt would fall of favor.

Truth, Name of New Silk.

A new silk known as Truth, now being fashioned into undergarments, is heavier than crepe de chine and lends itself admirably to the tailored type of garment which is fast taking hold in feminine wear.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my troubles four years and was unfit to do anything, and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. HURSEY, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from ailments peculiar to her sex to give this good old-fashioned remedy a fair trial.

Japan's Highest Court.

The Japanese Supreme court—the Daishon-in—consists of seven judges, the chief judge being appointed for life, or until removed to a higher position. Last June the late chief judge, Baron Kuntomi Tokota, was given another berth "nearer the emperor," and Dr. Shotaro Tomiya was put in his place. Doctor Tomiya is a graduate of the Imperial university of Tokyo and is one of the best liked jurists in the empire. The Japanese code of procedure is patterned after the best in the American, English and French codes.—New York Tribune.

MERCHANT TELLS OF A REMARKABLE CASE

Writing from Maxey's, Ga., A. J. Gillen, proprietor of a large department store at that place, says:

"I have a customer here who was in bed for three years and did not get to a meal at any time. She had five physicians and they gave her out. One bottle of Tanlac got her up, on the second bottle she commenced keeping house and on the third she did all the cooking and housework for a family of eight."

"This sounds really incredible, but it comes unsolicited from a highly creditable source and is copied verbatim from the letter.

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

Not Exactly Reassuring.

"There is no doubt about it, my friend, we'll have to operate on you," the doctor said cheerfully.

"Operate!" the patient exclaimed. "Great Scott, doctor, I've no money for expensive operations."

"Hum! Well—you're insured, aren't you?"

"Yes, but I can't realize on that until after I'm dead—it goes to my estate."

"Oh, that's all right, my dear fellow," the doctor said, again smiling cheerfully. "That's perfectly all right—don't you worry about your bill at all!"—Judge.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRHAL MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRHAL MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions. Circulars free. Mrs. Anna M. Adams, 460 Ninth St., Alamosa, Colo., says: "For a long time my kidneys made me miserable. Nights I was restless, because of an ache through the small of my back and sides. When I got up morning didn't feel refreshed and it was hours before the awful dragged-out feeling wore away. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and kept on using them until I was cured."

Time Exposure.

A Judge's little daughter, who had attended her father's court for the first time, was very much interested in the day's proceedings. The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE XLVI.—NEW MEXICO

AS IT IS A name implies, New Mexico's history is closely allied with Old Mexico. It was the Spanish who were its first explorers, De Vaca visiting this region in 1538 and Coronado four years later. The natives were the Pueblo Indians, although they are sometimes erroneously reputed to have been Aztecs as they were well advanced in the arts and had a comparatively high civilization. These Indians were conquered in 1609 by Juan de Onate and became subject to Spanish rule, being forced to work the mines and pay tribute. Missions were established and Santa Fe was founded about 1605.

Except for a period of ten years when the Indians revolted and maintained their independence, New Mexico remained under Spanish control until in 1821 Mexico gained its independence from Spain and New Mexico became a province of Mexico. Thus it remained until the outbreak of the Mexican war, when in 1846 Colonel Kearny marched from Fort Leavenworth with his troops, occupied Santa Fe and declared this region a part of the United States. By the Treaty with Mexico in 1848, the upper part of the state was formally ceded to the United States and the Territory of Mexico was organized in 1851, which reached from Texas to California.

Arizona was set off from New Mexico in 1863 and a few years later a portion was contributed to Colorado. Application for admission as a state started in 1850, but it was not until 1910 that New Mexico became the forty-seventh state.

New Mexico ranks fourth in size among the states with an area of 122,034 square miles, but is sparsely populated and accordingly has only three electoral votes for President. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Old Superstitions.

In one of his novels, Walter Scott says it was "devised as a truth, that they who are born on Christmas or Good Friday have the power of seeing spirits, and even of commanding them." He also says that "the Spaniards imputed the haggard and downcast looks of their Phillip II to the disagreeable visions to which this privileged subject ed him." The well-known lines of Shakespeare indicate that in his day the crowing of the cock at dawn was believed to be efficacious in driving away spirits.

Suicide Among Musicians Rare.

It has been found that suicide is very uncommon among musicians. Schumann attempted it, and it is also recorded of Tchaikowsky, but cases of musicians who have killed themselves are very rare. It is said that these facts are so, because of the mental composure and balance fostered by music.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless this inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; else cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. We will give One Hundred Dollars for Any Case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Halls Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. J. C. HENRY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

The legislature may exempt from taxation property of each head of a family to the amount of two hundred dollars, and the property of every honorably discharged soldier, sailor, marine and army nurse, and the widow of every such soldier, sailor or marine, who served in the armed forces of the United States at any time during the period in which the United States was regularly and officially engaged in any war, in the sum of two thousand dollars. Provided, that in every case where exemption is claimed on the ground of the claimants having served with the military or naval forces of the United States as aforesaid, the burden of proving actual and bona fide ownership of such property, upon which exemption is claimed, shall be upon the claimant."

No. 5 HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE XI OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO, ENTITLED "CORPORATIONS OTHER THAN MUNICIPAL" BY ADDING THERE TO A NEW SECTION TO BE NUMBERED SECTION 19. H. J. R. No. 35, Appr. Mch. 11, 1921. Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of New Mexico: That Article XI of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico, entitled "Corporations other than Municipal" be amended by adding thereto a new section to be numbered Section 19 to read as follows: "Sec. 19. The Legislature may by enactment change, alter or enlarge the powers and duties of the State Corporation Commission created by Section 1 of this Article for the control and regulation of corporations and may change or alter the provisions for the enforcement of its orders. Until the Legislature shall otherwise provide any order made by the commission fixing or changing any charge or rate or relating to any matter within its authority shall be binding upon the carrier, or company, or person to whom the same is directed and shall be enforced by the Supreme Court according to the terms of such order unless changed or modified by said court on a hearing applied for by such carrier, company or person within a reasonable time limited in such order. Upon any hearing or proceeding in any court upon any order issued by the commission within the scope of its authority the burden of proof shall be upon the carrier, company or person to whom such order is directed to show the unreasonableness of any charge or rate fixed or requirement specified in such order and such court may of its own motion and shall upon request of any interested party require or authorize additional evidence.

No. 6 JOINT RESOLUTION PROPOSING THE AMENDMENT OF SECTION 3, ARTICLE XX, AND SECTION 5, ARTICLE IV, OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO. C. S. for S. J. R. No. 4, Appr. Mch. 11, 1921. Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of New Mexico: Section 1. That Section 3 of Article XX of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows: "Section 3. The term of office of every state, county or district officer, except the governor of the state, and those elected to fill vacancies, shall commence on the first day of January next after his election. The term of office of the governor of the state shall commence on the first day of December next after his election. Section 2. That Section 5, of Article IV, of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows: "Section 5.

"Sub-Section (A). The regular optional session of the legislature shall begin at twelve o'clock, noon, on the first Tuesday of February next after each general election. No regular session shall exceed sixty days and no special session shall exceed thirty days. "Sub-Section (B). All moneys received on account of the state from any source whatsoever, shall be paid into the treasury thereof. "Sub-Section (C). The legislature shall not appropriate any money out of the treasury except in accordance with the provisions of this section. "Sub-Section (D). On or before the 15th of January in each year next preceding the regular biennial session of the legislature, every department, institution and agency of the State, except the legislative department, shall submit to the governor of the state a detailed statement showing actual revenues and expenditures for the two fiscal years intervening since the last regular session of the legislature, together with estimates of appropriations required to meet the financial needs of such department, institution or agency, itemized as the governor may require. "Sub-Section (E). On or before the twentieth day of every regular session of the legislature, the governor shall prepare, and shall submit to the legislature, a budget containing a detailed statement and estimate of all anticipated revenues of the state, and a complete plan of proposed expenditures for the ensuing biennium. "Sub-Section (F). For the purpose of preparing his budget the governor shall have power to require any board, commission, officer or department to furnish him with any information which he may deem necessary. "Sub-Section (G). At the time the governor submits his budget to the legislature, he shall also submit a bill, to be known as the "General Appropriation Bill," which shall contain all of the proposed appropriations of the budget clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each house shall, immediately, cause said bill to be referred, together with the accompanying budget, to the appropriate committee, for its consideration. The governor may, before final action thereon by the legislature, amend or supplement said budget and general appropriation bill, to correct any oversight, or in case of an emergency, by delivering such amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said general appropriation bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of, or a substitution for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may effect. "Sub-Section (H). The legislature may amend such general appropriation bill by increasing the items therein relating to the Judicial Department, but may not otherwise alter or amend such bill, except to strike out or reduce items therein. "Sub-Section (I). Prior to the final action on the general appropriation bill, the legislature may provide for its salaries, mileage, and necessary legislative expenses by special appropriation bills, specifically limited to such purposes, but before final action on the general appropriation bill, it shall not enact any other appropriation bill, except upon such recommendation of the governor. "Sub-Section (J). The governor may, at any time, recommend to the legislature supplementary budgets and supplementary appropriation bills based thereon, all of which shall be subject to the same procedure as the original budget and the general appropriation bill. "Sub-Section (K). After final action on the general appropriation bill, or on recommendation of the governor, special appropriation bills may be enacted, but every appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill, limited to some single work, subject or purpose therein stated. "Sub-Section (L). In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall in any manner affect the provisions of Section 22 of Article IV of the Constitution, or be construed as preventing the governor from calling special sessions of the legislature as provided by Section 6, of Article IV, of the Constitution, or as preventing the legislature, at such special sessions, from considering any emergency appropriation or appropriations."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
 by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, deafness will be incurable forever; and cases of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing out an inflamed condition of the mucous membrane.
 We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

California Surgeon's Experiment Raises Interesting Question Among Scientists.

HOLD DISCOVERY VALUABLE

Doctor Believes He Has Provided Basis for Far-Reaching Biological Research—Ethereic Double Amputated Member Pictured.

San Francisco.—The recent announcement by Dr. P. S. Haley, local surgeon, that he has photographed the ethereic double of a man's thumb, which had been cut off at the joint, has aroused an interesting scientific discussion.

Scientists say Doctor Haley's experiment raises the question of whether man possesses within himself dormant energy to reproduce parts of himself, such as an arm or leg, when he loses them.

Doctor Haley does not profess that his experiment proves such a theory, but declares that he believes he has provided the basis for far-reaching biological research.

Likewise he insists his experiment in no wise is of a "spiritualistic" nature.

"My own contribution is simply to show by photography that crystallization of energy exists. Scientists may go much further and possibly in time demonstrate that such crystallization of energy may be made permanent instead of momentary, such as my photographs show," Doctor Haley said.

"Likewise it may prove that 'ghosts' are not supernatural, but simply a natural and material compound of externalized energy. It is certain that some animals see things not visible to human eyes. Likewise certain persons are psychically sensitive to things which others are not. There is a great field for investigation opened by my experiment."

Thumb Off; Felt Pain. Doctor Haley's subject in his interesting test was a woodworker who had lost his thumb. The woodworker believed himself conscious to pain when a pin was inserted where the thumb once was. For the experiment the stump was placed on highly sensitized paper in a photographic solution. Four impressions were taken ranging in time from one-half to a minute and a half.

"My theory is that the ethereic double remains attached to the member, and, under influence of will power and with the aid of other factors possibly not understood, the body energy radiates from the point where the stump is, filling in the ethereic double," said Doctor Haley. Illustrating with one of the photographs.

"In such an event as the photographs show the ethereic double acts as a 'blue print,'" continued the doctor. "Externalization of energy is a fact that has been known for years and which fact I took into consideration in my work.

Holds Discovery Valuable.

"This sort of work may throw light on many of the biological problems, such as heredity, and should have an application on medicine. The experiment is not exactly along my line of work, and it is my intention to turn what facts I have over to the University of California or the California Academy of Science for further consideration, if they care for them.

"The value of my discovery will be a possible diagnostic factor in neurology and a contribution to biological knowledge, I believe," said Doctor Haley, when asked what his findings might be used for.

"The ethereic double" is not spiritualistic, but, as I say, biological and aided by the power of the human body and psychic mechanism effects on a body, it may be applied to medicine. It is my firm belief that a system of medical diagnosis may eventually be founded on the theory," the doctor concluded.

Doctor Haley said he had been working on his latest experiment but one month.

Plans Airplane Flight to Pole

New York Physician Will Take Three Experienced Pilots on Dash to Arctic Regions.

WILL USE ONLY ONE PLANE

Start Is to Be Made From Point Barrow, Alaska, and After Visit to North Pole Journey Will Be Continued to Scandinavia.

Washington.—Plans for an airplane flight to the north pole and across the Arctic zone from Alaska to Norway, to be attempted in September, were announced by Edwin Fairfax Nautly of New York, a physician long interested in polar exploration and aviation.

Mr. Nautly said the plans call for the use of only one airplane and a party of four, which would include himself and three experienced pilots, all ex-service flyers, and that his son, Leslie Fairfax Nautly, is going to Europe to take care of plans for continuation of the flight from North Cape via the Scandinavian capitals, to London.

SABIN AND HIS SHELL.

To J. O. Sabin, sailor on the Wilmette, and who has been at the Chicago Pageant of Progress navy display, fell the honor of firing the first shot in the navy in the late war. Sabin, while a gun pointer on the naval auxiliary collier Jupiter, fired the first shot in the Bay of Biscay June 6, 1917, at a German submarine; and at Chicago very recently acted as gunpointer of the crew that sank the German submarine U-97. He is seen here with the case of the first shell.

AT THE SEASHORE.

"The Sand Fairies were playing on the seashore," said Daddy, "and as they played they talked to all the creatures who came their way.

"Sometimes they talked to old Mother Ocean too and she told them stories when they were tired of playing and rocked them to sleep as she passed back and forth over them, for they were right on the beach.

"Mother Ocean," they said, "we have seen a big black bug with wings, six legs and two feelers, and he told us he had been to visit a golden rod flower.

"Then he said the golden rod was taken to help with some decorations." "He was sorry, he told us, to see the golden rod go, for he said he was a handsome looking sight standing on the bright golden rod with his smart black suit.

"But he said that he didn't want to be used as a decoration for any party or anything at all, and so he stayed behind.

"He told us too that probably he wouldn't be wanted for decoration either.

"He told us the golden rod was always very eager to help and always looked very fine as a decoration.

"He said he had been talking with some grasshoppers and some other bugs, some bumble bees and many other creatures back in the little village which is back of this beach.

"He was a most interesting caller, Mother Ocean."

"Then the Sand Fairies went off for another race and another game and they felt tired and wanted the breeze. Mother Ocean and asked her to tell them a story.

"I will tell you of the fishes," said Mother Ocean, "and how they love the ocean. And as I talk I must see the sand houses the children have been making today. There are some I notice that are very perfect.

"One house upon the beach is just like a regular house. There are many rooms and there is a pantry with sand food in the pantry. And there are some nice looking sand piles there.

"The ladies and gentlemen in the house are made of shells. What fine looking ladies and gentlemen they are. I am sorry that the Tide Brothers won't let the Sand Houses stay, but then neither will I, for the Tide Brothers help me and I help them.

"Besides sand houses aren't meant to last forever, they are only meant to last a little while.

"But I promised you I would tell you of the fishes in the ocean.

"Where the climate is very warm and the trees are of heavier and richer foliage and the birds wear very bright plumage. Indeed the fishes too follow the styles and wear bright colors.

"Yes, you'd be surprised at the way the fishes follow the styles.

"When they are in the waters far, far South they are brighter in appearance than they are here, for the fishes sing this song which now I'd like to sing to you."

"So old Mother Ocean sang to the Sand Fairies and this was her song which the fishes had often sung to her.

"We are fishes, it's true, and we don't suppose that you think that we care to do anything but swim. But we have another whim. And that is to follow the styles if we're here or away many miles."

"The fishes," continued Mother Ocean, "aren't very good at poetry or at singing but that is their song about the styles. And so, you see, that in what is known as the tropical or very, very warm countries, wherever there is water the fishes there wear gayer, brighter colors.

"But now, my little Sand Fairies, Mother Ocean must leave you for she has an engagement this evening with the Storm King. Goodbye for a little while."

A Serious Matter. "I—I s-s-say ma," stammered Johnnie through the soap, as his mother scrubbed and scrubbed his face and neck. "I think you want to get rid of 'ne, don't you?"

"Why, no, Johnnie dear," replied his mother. "What ever put such an idea as that into your mind?"

"Oh, nothing," said Johnnie. "Only it seems to me you're trying to rub the dirt out!"

KIDD NOT PIRATE

And His Treasure a Fable, Says Archivist.

Massachusetts Authority Asserts That Lord Bellomont Was Arch-Soumdrel—High-Placed Adventurer.

Song and story are wrong. Captain Kidd was not a pirate and his fabled treasure does not exist. Privateersman he was, but of good repute. His hubbing as a pirate and murderer on execution dock at London in 1701 was to satisfy the political exigencies of the time.

These are the findings of John H. Edmonds, state archivist for Massachusetts, as announced in a lecture at the old South Meeting house. Archivist Edmonds was discussing "Lord Bellomont and the pirates."

Bellomont, he said, was appointed governor of New England in 1695 with a special mission to suppress piracy.

"Before leaving England," Mr. Edmonds contended, "he agreed with Capt. William Kidd, a privateersman of good repute from New York, to proceed against pirates in a ship called the Adventure, galley, on a 'no-capture-no-pay' basis. The adventurers included Captain Kidd, Robert Livingston, Lord Chancellor Somers, the earl of Oxford, first lord of the admiralty; the earl of Romney, and the duke of Shrewsbury, secretaries of state; Bellomont and the straw men, to whom the king's grant of treasure was later made, did not contribute a cent.

"On September 6, 1699, with a 'crazy' vessel and a crazier crew, Captain Kidd proceeded on his mission," the archivist said. "He picked up several pirates, including 'a Moorish ship of 200 tons and a Bengal merchantman of 600 tons, both having French passes and being lawful prizes."

He came to New York and then to Boston "through the trickery of Bellomont, who promised him safe conduct. With the remnant of his crew he was arrested, sent to England, tried for murder and piracy, convicted and hung on Execution dock Friday, May 23, 1701, to satisfy the political exigencies of the times.

"It was either Lord Bellomont, the lord chancellor, the first lord of the admiralty, the secretaries of state or Captain Kidd, and under this circumstance he had no chance. Collusion and perjury are plainly evident in his trial; the French passes which would have cleared him of the piracy charge, though produced in parliament, were suppressed in the Admiralty court. The least said about Bellomont's action in the matter the better. He fooled Kidd, he fooled his council, and the worst of it is, he allowed it in his letters to the lords of trade.

"The Captain Kidd of today is a composite pirate made up of all who frequented our shores from 1637 to 1837. Propaganda of the worst kind blackened the reputation of a man of whom a recognized French authority says: 'It may be well doubted whether any man in equally trying circumstances has ever been truer to his trust.'

"And yet the great American public persists in calling Captain Kidd a pirate and in searching for his treasure, which does not exist."

"Boy" Behind the Voice. A business man who was in a great hurry called up an establishment that had failed to deliver goods as ordered. A tiny boyish voice was heard at the other end of the line: "What is it that you wish?"

"Mr. Jones, boy, and hurry."

"All right," and the receiver was hung up. In a few minutes it was taken down and the small voice replied:

"Mr. Jones is not in. Can I help you?"

"See here, boy," snapped the man who was in a hurry. "I want to talk with some one who can do business. When I need the office boy I will call for him. The way for you to get along is to let the other things alone and attend to your own duties."

"That's what I am trying to do," meekly said the small voice. "I am the president of the company."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Isolated Police Post. A new farthest north Royal Canadian mounted police post has been established at Pond's Inlet in the extreme north of Baffin's land. This is now the most northerly post held by the force of scarlet riders, the nearest to it being those at Chesterfield Inlet and Cape Burwell, at the entrance of Hudson's straits. A sole staff sergeant will be full police authority at Pond's Inlet and will have full charge of customs and judicial control of Baffin's land, and the territory about it. Only a few Eskimos are to be found there and it is the occasional port of call for traders.

Logical. Six-year-old Nellie came home from the corner much excited. "Oh, mother," she began, "I saw the biggest crowd of people and I went over, but I couldn't see anything except a wagon and a lady said it was a gospel wagon and for me to listen and—"

Then mother interrupted her. Closer investigation disclosed the fact that the wagon was a gospel wagon. "But," mother wisely shook her head, "it might have been a gospel wagon from the way Nellie says they crowded around it."

MARSHAL JOFFRE IS BIG FEEDER

French Commander Packed in "Eats" as Marne Battle Raged.

His Chef Declares That Marshal Devoured Enough for Three Men as He Won Victory.

Paris, France.—The latest war reminiscences to be printed are those of the chef who presided over the destinies of the French general staff during the battle of the Marne and who prepared the simple but abundant menu that Marshal, then General, Joffre sat down to at very irregular hours.

If the chef's culinary accomplishments were not superior to his literary talent, one pities poor General Joffre, and it must have been a relief to the commander in chief to leave the mess table and return to the battle line.

"During the battle of the Marne," says the chef, "the general put away enough food to feed three ordinary men."

Then he adds naively: "I hope monsieur le maréchal won't mind what I say about the general."

One of the most amusing incidents related by the chef is that on September 12, when it became clear that the enemy was in full flight northward and that the battle was won, congratulations were in order, and he received instructions that the menu for the dinner should be as much of a banquet as his raw material would permit.

Just as the meal was about to be completed a British automobile came up to headquarters with a basket of champagne as a token of congratulation to the French staff. It came from a British unit "in liaison." The chef was just getting ready to serve it when he noted that the bottles bore a German mark, and he informed the officer of the fact. That worthy forbade him to serve the champagne to the staff, and ordered him to throw the bottles away.

"We did," says the chef, "but only the next morning they were empty."

Took Honey From Hives; Bees Put It Back Again

Some months ago, Wallace Lanning, a beekeeper of Milford, N. J., took over 100 pounds of honey from his apiaries and stored the honey in the garret of his home. When he went to get some of the honey, all he found was the empty comb and frames, all the honey being gone.

Investigation revealed that the bees had entered the garret through a knot hole and had carried the honey back into their hives.

LUNA NEWS

The Luna Literary Society convened at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Straley last Wednesday night. All wearing broad smiles.

Mr. York took the stairway and the meeting was called to order.

Mr. T. J. Straley was called and he spoke with vim and delivery equal to the modern orators.

It was thought for a while that one of the principal speaker's courage had waned.

All are in hope that Annie Bert Hall has devised means whereby a man can sharpen his shoulder blade.

The speech of one of the speakers was very much elevated, being delivered from the top of a box.

Boys, keep an eye on Curtis Williams and his burro or he will get off with the girl.

Mr. Harry Straley did full justice to the coffee.

Girls, listen for the question, the Miller boys have put a new roof on their barn.

Cheer up, George, we will have those seats made wide enough for thee.

J. E. Hall, Sr., made a good talk on Anti-Woman Suffrage, acknowledging the calamity of Woman Suffrage being brought on by the conditions.

Wayne Johnson would have made a good speech, if he could have thought of something to say.

J. E. Hall, Jr., is a good speaker as well as floor walker.

The judges were kind hearted rendering a decision through sympathy.

Judging from Ed. Miller's acts last Sunday, he has decided to have one more year of single blessedness.

Miss Myra Boydston spent a week with home-folks on the ranch.

Miss Myrtle Straley visited with friends in Alamogordo and Cloudercroft last week.

Mrs. S. A. Oliver, of Rolls, Texas, will arrive this week to spend an extended visit with her daughter Mrs. El Williams.
