BIG MASONIC MEETINGS SATURDAY AND MONDAY

With a large amount of Masonic work on hand, Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, began last Saturday night to eliminate the task. Preparatory work to the exemplification of degrees were perfected and some labor was performed Saturday night, after which local and visiting Masons sat down to a delicious luncheon prepared and served through the courtesy of R. E. Lemmon, Worshipful Master of the lodge, with several assistants.

manifested in the work not only in our own state, but in all states of the union in view of the fact that conditions confronting the Nation demands putting into practice deeds and accomplishments of noble nature, such as this order has for centuries, stood for. Regular meetings of the local lodge have long since been set aside for purely business purposes as the work that is continually on the increase, must be done at special meetings called for this expressed purpose. Masonry appeals to the best, purest and most noble traits of mankind. Although veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols, Man is taught to practise in his relation to his fellow-being, brotherly love, relief and truth. Within its silent walls, honor, harmony and fraternity exist. In its teachings and practices, the world is made better and society more pure.

BASKET BALL CONTESTS IN NEIGHBORING TOWNS

Capitan was the center of basket ball activity last week. On Saturday, two games were played by the school teams, which resulted much like the games played here at the Fall Festival. The girls won, while the boys lost. On Sunday, the Town teams of both places played; Capitan winning by a close score. A return game was arranged for tomorrow afternoon, and the local team is putting itself in shape to win at this time. Saturday night, there will be a dance at Lutz Hall, at which Ferguson's "Joy-Makers" will furnish the music. What more could we want? A committee is now looking for a suitable building to be used for an athletic club this winter.

S. F. MILLER HONORED BY ODD FELLOWS

Carrizozo Lodge No. 30, I. O. O. F. met Tuesday night, and after listening to a report from J. B. Dinwiddie, who had lately returned from the State Convention at Tucumcari and transacting some important business, Mr. S. F. Miller was presented with an Odd Fellow's jewel, which is an honor conferred upon very few, as the recipient must have been a member of the order in good standing for a period of thirty years. The gift, or rather the reward, is of a beautiful design and one of which Mr. Miller is very proud. Delegate Dinwiddie reported the order in a flourishing condition over the state. A social session and a smoker followed with refreshments.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Last Saturday, early in the afternoon, L. T. Bacot, wife and two children, accompanied by the Misses Sallio and Ethel Johnson, Claire Adams and Edina Shaver, motored over to Capitan intending to witness the basket ball game between the Carrizozo and Capitan High School teams. Mr. Bacot's car was in fine running order and the trip was made with speed and safety until they reached the intersection of the Roswell road and the main street of Capitan. As the car made a sudden turn into Main street, it capsized, throwing its occupants violently to the ground. Help was near at hand and assistance rendered. Mr. Bacot was found to be injured most of all; aside from being badly bruised about the body, his face was lacerated in a frightful manner. The youngest child, Jean, suffered from cuts and bruises but not to a dangerous extent. Miss Edina Shaver sustained a broken collar bone, but other occupants of the car were merely frightened and severely shaken up. The car was damaged beyond repair, it is said. Mr. Bacot was taken to Hotel Dieu, where after an examination, the flesh of one of his legs was found to be loosened from the bone and one eye dangerously injured, which were not noticeable until the examination was held. Word was received at this writing would not be impaired and his recovery although slow, will be the outcome. We congratulate those who were so fortunate in escaping, while to those who were less fortunate, we extend our keenest sympathy.

GREAT PARK IS PROPOSED

One of the big things that is now taking prospective shape for the Great Southwest is a National Park that would take in the Mescalero Indian Reservation, the Great White Sands and the Malpais, and the Elephant Butte Dam and Lake.

From the Alamogordo News: A National Park, it would be that for natural attractions, would be the peer of any park or public playground in the world.

In incorporating the Mescalero Indian Reservation as a portion of such a park, none of the Indians' rights or prerogatives would be taken away or even abridged. There are nearly a half million acres of land in the Mescalero reservation, composed of large virgin pine forests, shady dells, little valleys, streams and all that go to make an ideal park for people who need a short rest. In addition to the area of the reservation, a portion of the White Mountain section would be incorporated.

To the west lie the great Malpais (Bad Lands) with thousands of acres of lava flow which is the most recent in the United States. To the south of the Malpais lie the Great White Sands, an area of approximately 600 square miles of glistening white gypsum sands. These sands are one of the natural wonders of the world, and never fail to infuse a stranger with awe. Properly advertised, the white sands should draw visitors from all portions of the United States.

To the west about 75 miles is the Great Elephant Butte dam and lake. The dam is one of the wonders in irrigation engineering in the world and the lake an artificial inland lake 45 miles in length. Also near Elephant Butte dam are natural hot springs that have for many years drawn the infirm to its waters from all over the southwest.

Four-Fold Attraction for National Park

It will be seen from the above brief description that the southwest has abundant ground for laying claims as a place where strangers could come from all parts of the country and amply be repaid for the journey.

One of the big movements on foot at the present time is to create the Southwestern Park Association, comprised of membership from every town in the southwest, which association would work to the end that congress set aside this area as a National Park or playground for all the people.

It is planned to have the commercial bodies of Roswell, Carrizozo, Tularosa, Alamogordo, Socorro, Las Cruces, El Paso and other points take the matter up of forming an association of this character outlined above.

It will be necessary to secure the aid of congressmen where ever possible to aid creative legislation for such a park and to that end they will have to be educated by proper and correct literature portraying the advantages of such a park to the people of the Southwest in general and the United States in particular.

What Would be the Advantage?

As to what the advantages of such a place would be to the residents of the southwest may be judged from the Great Yellowstone Park of the northwest. That recreational area is open for about three months of the year and the rest of the time the weather is too cold for tourists. The national highways leading to that park are lined with tourists for the three months of the year that hail from every part of the United States. Also the railroad lines advertise and feature the tourist travel to the Yellowstone Park. It is needless to say that the people who are residents of that part of the country enjoy a great deal of prosperity from this tourist business. Should a park be created as outlined above from the Mescalero reserva-

FLAGSTAFF CAMP GROUND

Situated on Coconino National Forest land adjoining the townsite, under special use by the city, the Flagstaff Municipal Camp Ground presents an object lesson in auto camp ground control and service. Four or five acres of well timbered land covered by loose malpais rock are enclosed by a fence built by the city. The stones have been raked into low ridges in artistic designs that designate parking places. Temporary crude facilities in the form of grouped rocks make fixed places for preparing meals in real old-fashioned outdoor style. Water has been piped to the grounds by the city and faucets are located at convenient places. Sanitary conveniences have also been provided. These used some improvements but they have already been planned and will be put into effect by another season. A season count of tourist travel over the Topock bridge on the Arizona-California boundary shows a daily average of 24 cars while the count of users of the Flagstaff camp averages 17 cars per day which shows that almost one-half of the traffic passing over this trail is using these grounds. A nominal charge of 25c per day or $1.00 per week for each car is made and the money goes into a sort of cooperative fund for the upkeep and care of the camp, but however, these restrictions on the road by hard misfortune are not devoid of its wholesome comforts. Not the least unusual, by any means, of the many unique features of this enterprise is one Compton, the caretaker, who is, in his government, the legislative, judicial, and executive departments. Entire freedom is allowed within the rules but violations are handled by swift and simple justice. One left dirty camp and unextinguished fire. He was brought back to finish up the job. Another committed a breach of sanitary rules but promptly settled by the payment of a fine assessed by the caretaker and paid into the upkeep fund. A regular "grapevine" telegraph communicates to tourists all along the road that Flagstaff has the best camp between the Outdoor Hotel at Albuquerque and California and "don't for Heaven's sake stop at because the grounds there are a mess of tin cans but go eleven miles on further where you may find a clean place."

From the Great Malpais and White Sands and the Elephant Butte Dam and Lake, it would be possible when good roads are constructed for the tourist to come from Roswell and take in the four points of attraction without scarcely a swerve from a direct route. Also the tourist travel could be open the entire year on account of the mildness of the climate. Such a park would be accessible from four points or highways and from every part of the southwest.

The matter of creation of the park has been called to the attention of the Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce and also the Roswell Chamber. It is planned to have a large number of New Mexico representatives to visit El Paso and take the matter up with the El Paso Chamber of Commerce, and it is certain that the latter body will give the movement all the aid in its power.

It is conceded that now is the opportune time for such a movement and that the creation of this park is an advisable move as it affects not only the country adversely, but even the Mescalero Indians and it is of great importance to the Southwest. Access to Park Through Railroads. Such a park would be directly accessible to the traveling public through the Rock Island and Santa Fe lines and also indirectly from El Paso over a number of lines. It is certain that a number of large hotels would be erected at different points of the national park to take care of the traveling public.

AFTER SCHOOL BAD FOR BOYS

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever in the El Paso Herald: "In a city of less than 30,000 I find 18 men and boys and two women in jail, with the largest number of serious crimes on record for the place. "In the same city I find an excellent public school system, with highly trained teachers and full equipment. "In the same city I find very good church buildings, with able pulpit ministers, but a very low attendance of boys and youths. "In the same city I find not a few clubs of men and women, all with the best of impulses and intentions (G. W. and the young. One club of men has a regular committee on boy work. "Now, what is the matter here, where there are 80 full occupants, chiefly youths, and where there are six homicides in a single month? Neglect After School. "It is the neglect of the after-school failure to realize that only the traditional and technical education is confined to the school proper, that the emotional and volitional education is being conducted more and more outside the schoolroom. "It is the failure of the so-called best citizens to meet the responsibility of the after-school discipline of the young with definite plans and methods of guidance. Wherefore, a single county must pay out more than $100,000 on its criminals each year. "Suppose we shift the situation and say that it is some kind of insect destroying the growing grain of this county to the extent of $100,000 or more. "What happens? "Why, trained experts are sent to the scene, every acre of ground is gone over and mapped, the condition is finally known to the last point and the effective remedy is applied. Bugs Destroy Grain. "So much for creeping bugs destroying the grain, but nothing for bogymites besmirching the boys. It is not a square deal. There is a state board of bug hunters, but not even a city board of boy defenders. "While we are waiting for the state to act with its expert boy managers we must get busy with the men in the local communities and have them act as substitutes. "Secure a list of names and addresses of all boys 10 to 21 years old. Find out where they play, what shows they attend, what clubs they belong to, what they are reading. "Test the boys from 14 to 21 as to their employment. See that they are either at work honorable or in school. Have a school attendance committee to labor with every younger boy who should be in the class room. Big Brother Committee. "Have a big brother committee to act quickly in case of the first minor wrong of any kind and to stay with him till he is safe. It is easy for men to turn a boy back on the right path if they take the case early. "Have a committee to induce boys to go to church, to learn to work with the church preferred by their families. "The Sunday school or its equivalent is especially what is meant here. The church affiliation of the young of any city and the full population vary together in an almost exact ratio. "Finally, the men of the cities, acting intelligently, can save the present demoralized generation of boys by no one else can. Will they arise from their stupor and perform a duty?"

There is a state board of bug hunters, but not even a city board of boy defenders. "While we are waiting for the state to act with its expert boy managers we must get busy with the men in the local communities and have them act as substitutes. "Secure a list of names and addresses of all boys 10 to 21 years old. Find out where they play, what shows they attend, what clubs they belong to, what they are reading. "Test the boys from 14 to 21 as to their employment. See that they are either at work honorable or in school. Have a school attendance committee to labor with every younger boy who should be in the class room. Big Brother Committee. "Have a big brother committee to act quickly in case of the first minor wrong of any kind and to stay with him till he is safe. It is easy for men to turn a boy back on the right path if they take the case early. "Have a committee to induce boys to go to church, to learn to work with the church preferred by their families. "The Sunday school or its equivalent is especially what is meant here. The church affiliation of the young of any city and the full population vary together in an almost exact ratio. "Finally, the men of the cities, acting intelligently, can save the present demoralized generation of boys by no one else can. Will they arise from their stupor and perform a duty?"

WINTER FEEDING OF RANGE STEERS

Press Bulletin No. 401.—N. M. College of Agriculture and Mechanics Arts. Many of the cattlemen this winter will have to feed or supplement their range with either roughages or cottonseed cake, or, possibly, in a few places in the state with cottonseed. The financial stress under which most cattlemen have been placed, due to the drop in the prices of cattle and the exorbitant freight rates, it may be impossible to do so, and the cattlemen may have to take their loss in starvation whether they want to or not. However, it may be well to bring to the surface by experiments upon the practicability of carrying cows through the winter in fairly good shape. A mature cow may be partially starved and become very thin in flesh, but when more abundant food is obtainable she will again to all appearances be and look just as good as she was before she passed through the ordeal. However, one of the greatest drawbacks to the lack of feed is with the young or growing animals. A cow that is partially starved and is carrying a calf can not give the strength and vitality to her offspring as one that has been better cared for; consequently a stunted calf results. The calves that are born of mothers that are in poor condition are, as a rule, much lighter in weight and, in fact, at the Tucumcari Station they were found to be eleven pounds lighter at birth from range cows under during the winter, in comparison with the calves from cows that were fed a small allowance of roughages during the three or four months of the winter season. The fed cows also gave much more milk, which did not tax their vitality, and started the calf to growing at a much more rapid rate. At the end of the season, which was considered the last of December, the fed cows' calves weighed 75 pounds more, on the average, than calves from the unfed cows. The difference was diminished materially at the end of the next year although the calves from the fed lot were fed roughage four and a half months, but there was still 25 pounds difference to the calf. There was a material difference shown by the cows in the producing of calves under the same conditions only 20 per cent of the cows calved that were range kept in the spring of 1920, while 100 per cent calved of the roughage kept cows. It should be borne in mind that only a few cows were included in this experiment. Those figures are somewhat striking and give some enlightenment on the question, whether it pays to feed lightly in the winter by concentrates or roughages. Many of the range men from their observations of feeding and non-feeding, especially in winter during a scarcity of feed, have come to the conclusion that it makes larger cows out of the heifers that calve young, they get a higher percentage of calf crop and the calves make faster gains. J. L. LANTOW, Acting Animal Husbandman.

INTERESTED TO CONTROL INSECTS

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 10.—From time to time information is forthcoming as to the startlingly large annual bill of standing timber taken by insects. For ten years or more the situation in the southern Oregon and northern California forest region has been more or less generally known, but a few years ago it was impractical for the Federal government to attempt wholesale eradication because of inter-mixed private holdings which were not receiving treatment. The situation is now largely reversed. Some private owners are going to considerable lengths to eradicate insects, and Oregon has recently passed a law declaring pine beetles and other insect infestations a public nuisance and subject to certain restrictions and conditions and requiring private owners to eradicate them. The Oregon legislature has memorialized the Federal Congress to authorize measures to stop the depredations on adjoining National Forest lands without which the efforts of the state and private owners will largely fail. Last April, the Pacific Coast Forest Insect Conference was held, which referred to the losses through beetle attacks in New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia, and passed resolutions urging the Congress and delegates of the states to be present at the conference in the Santa Fe and other important sections in California. The United States Department of Agriculture, through its Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, has appropriated $150,000 for the use of the Secretary of Agriculture and Interior for the fiscal year 1922 in this work.

The office of Justice of the Peace in Precinct No. 91, hereby declared to be vacant, and upon a petition being presented to the Board for the appointment of W. H. Sellers as Justice of the Peace, the same being fully considered, the Board hereby appoints H. W. Sellers as Justice of the Peace for Precinct No. 9 and the Clerk is hereby ordered to notify said W. H. Sellers of his appointment as Justice of the Peace. The Clerk is hereby ordered to have a list made by the County Commissioners to each County Officer, showing the size of light globes that must be used in various places of the Court House and Jail, and the Janitor to see that lights as lists show are placed in each office.

The Butchers' Bond of J. T. Jones and son is hereby approved. The petition of Felicita Guebara to change her place of trading from White Oaks to J. M. Martinez & Co. at Rayentona is hereby approved. It is hereby ordered by the Board that the Clerk notify the Treasurer to transfer $154.91 from the interest on deposit fund to be made to the Salary fund.

There being no further business before the Board, they adjourned until called. The Board of County Commissioners, By BEN LUJAN, Chairman.

STATE FISH HATCHERY IS COMPLETE AND WILL HATCH FISH BY FIRST OF YEAR

Santa Fe, Oct. 15.—New Mexico's first state fish hatchery is now completed and will be ready to start hatching fish by the first of the year, according to a report by Game Warden Thomas P. Gable. The superintendent's cottage is now under construction and it is thought by next spring the hatchery will be in position to release at least a million trout for the streams of the state. The total cost of the hatchery including the cottage will be about $45,000.

The Western Pacific railroad has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $3,000,000 in first mortgage 6 per cent gold notes. The funds are to be used for retirement of equipment trust certificates and to reimburse the treasury of the company for equipment trust certificates matured and paid Aug. 1.

Values of imports and exports of merchandise each fell off materially during September, according to figures made public by the Department of Commerce. Imports for September were $120,000,000, the lowest for any month this year. Exports last month totaled $125,000,000, only $5,000,000 more than the lowest month this year, July, and $40,000,000 below the August record. Both imports and exports were approximately 50 per cent below the totals for September, 1920.

Denver Live Stock. Packers made good demand for beef stock with the desire to get killing done early in the day. Steers of good quality sold at $10 to $12.50. Choice stock was quoted at $6 to $6.50. Top prices paid for fat stock were $12 to $13. After the initial sale, good stock from the Gunnison county, good cows were quoted at $5 to $6.50 with plainer kinds running as low as $2.50. One sale was reported as follows: Hogs, $6.25 to $7.25; fat swine, 3 to $5.

With the exception of veal, eastern wholesale fresh meat prices were practically steady with those of a week ago. Veal prices were unchanged. Mutton was generally steady though one market reported a 2c decline on good grade meat. Veal ranged from $10 to $12.50. Prices good grade meats: beef, $12.50 to $13; veal, $11 to $12; lamb, $11 to $12; pork, $11 to $12; heavy hams, $16 to $20.

Supplies of feeding stock were more plentiful and quotations held nearly steady with some sales at strong figures. Feeding steers of good quality were selling readily at $6 to $7 and medium grades brought from $5.25 to $5.50. Stocker cows were quoted at $3.25 to $3.50.

Trading brisk from the opening of the market and the only lull came when early arrivals had been cleaned out and traders were forced to stand idle while waiting for delayed shipments. A few small lots of pigs were received also and some were reported as high as $15. One week ago pigs sold at this figure although traders had consistently quoted them at $7 to $8. After the initial sale, that figure traders continued quoting the type at $7 to $8.

Bulk from $7.50 to $8.50 with a load of sugar corn bringing the top price of $8.50. Most of the offering was light kinds and bulk covers the quotation on the variety. Some good hogs sold at $8.50 heavy hogs did not start any of the early sales but traders were calling quotations steady to strong at $10 for top heavy hogs and $6.50 to $7.00 for better quality.

All classes of stock were included in the offering but fat hogs predominated and activity was greatest in that department. Nothing extra fancy was offered and no extreme top sales were reported. The highest prices paid for fat lambs was $8, which was given for a load of sugar corn with a short sort at $7.75. Two loads of lambs were reported to have sold for $7.50 and one car of 72-pound lambs brought $7.50. Choice stock was quoted at $12.50.

Country buyers were looking for feeders, with usual best, and the small offering of that type was quickly disposed of. Feeding lambs ranged from $6.50 to $7 with some early top reported at $7.75. A load of fat fair hogs weighing 123 pounds sold for $12.50. Feeder cows were quotable at $3 to $3.75.

Metal Market. Colorado settlement prices: Bar silver (American), 39 1/2; Bar silver (foreign), 39; Copper (average), 12 1/2; Lead, 4 1/2; Zinc, 4 1/2.

REPEAL TAX ON TRANSPORTATION

REED ASKS SENATE TO REMOVE LEVY ON TELEGRAMS, BUT MOTION FAILED.

GUM IS ON FREE LIST

AIM OF SENATE TO PUT END TO MANY LEVIES BY FIRST OF 1922.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

Washington.—Adoption by the Senate of the Republican compromise plan for repeal of all the transportation taxes on next Jan. 1 was completed with the acceptance without a dissenting vote of an amendment removing the tax on parcel post packages. Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, sought to extend the repeal to levies on messages by telegraph, telephone, cable and radio, but his motion was voted down, 32 to 20.

Committee amendments to the bill accepted included those imposing license taxes on brokers and others and manufacturers' taxes of 2 cents a gallon on cereal beverages, still drinks and unfermented fruit juices; 7 1/2 cents a gallon on finished fountain syrups, and 5 cents a pound on carbonic acid gas.

Until the chewing gum tax was reached the Senate made fairly rapid progress on the bill. But there it stuck for nearly two hours with a discussion of chewing gum, tariff and other subjects. A Republican proposal to repeal the 2 per cent tax on this gum was opposed by Senator Reed, who said the Senate had voted to retain $28,500,000 in taxes upon senders and receivers of messages by wire and radio, while it was proposed to refund one twenty-eighth of that amount to Wrigley.

"Who made this bargain?" asked Senator Reed with reference to the compromise plan to knock out the chewing gum tax. "Who overturned the action of the committee? When was it agreed to? It demands an explanation when a gentleman can escape $1,000,000 in taxes on something that is useless and worthless. What was the influence that reached behind the doors and took the tax off Mr. Wrigley?"

Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, said the information before the finance committee was that factories of the American Chicle Company were closed down and that the removal of the tax had been suggested to get those plants started up again. He declared that so far as the committee knew, "Mr. Wrigley" did not care about the tax; that he never had asked that it be removed.

Those in charge of the bill explained it would be advisable to wait until the Senate had passed on the excess profits repeal and other major proposals before finishing with the miscellaneous taxes, as it might be necessary to raise more revenue from these sources than the committee had contemplated.

Chairman Penrose of the finance committee, announced that as soon as the peace treaties were disposed of he would ask unanimous consent for a final vote on the tax bill.

"I look," he said, "for all amendments suggested by the finance committee and those accepted by the majority of Republican members to be a part of the bill. No amendments from the minority or any other source will have any show. "The bill doubtless will be improved in conference."

Stop Gambling Thru Mails.

Washington.—Transmission thru the mails of newspapers publishing betting odds on horse races, prize fights, and other contests of speed, strength or skill, would be prohibited under a bill passed, without a roll call by the house. Senate concurrence is needed before the measure can become a law.

As introduced by Representative Hamsayer, Iowa, the bill was designed to exclude fraudulent devices and lottery paraphernalia from the mails.

Recalls Four Commissioners.

Bay City, Mich.—Four of Bay City's five city commissioners were recalled in an election here. The four were recalled at the instigation of the fifth member of the commission, who brought the action on the grounds that they had refused to give preference to war veterans in making city appointments and had defeated a proposed ordinance requiring all city automobiles to be painted a uniform color.

SOFT ANSWER IN SWEDISH. "Explanation" That More Than Gilded the Offended Representative of the Law. A pretty young Swede and an American girl were crossing the Ellipse, regardless of a lettered warning to keep off the grass. A bicycle policeman wheeled up to ask if they couldn't see the sign, whereupon the American whispered to the other to answer him in Swedish. The little foreigner burst forth in excited mystifying language and the other girl chipped in with the few words of her own acquired stock. "Realizing the impossibility of enforcing the law on two young and attractive aliens, the officer not only permitted them the right of way but took the trouble to point out the monument, government buildings and like public views. When she got the chance the American girl asked her friend what she had said to the policeman—and that upholder of the law may be interested in the answer. "I was so nervous that all I could think of was the Lord's Prayer. And I gave him that from start to finish."—Washington Star.

Do You Look Forward To a Good Night's Rest? Do you regularly anticipate a refreshing sleep? Or do you dread going to bed, only to stare, sleepless, at the walls? The difference between sleeping and staring is simply a matter of nerves. When your nervous system is in a sound condition, you are certain to sleep well. But when your nerves are worn out and beyond your control, your rest is broken and your awakening leaves you languid and irritable. Doctors know that much of the nerve disorders result from tea and coffee drinking. The drugs in these drinks over-stimulate, often causing the serious ills which result from disturbing the regular bodily functions. It is for your health's sake that many doctors now say you should quit tea and coffee. Drink Postum, the delicious meal-time beverage instead! In flavor it is much like coffee. Postum is fundamentally a nerve strengthener because it lets you get sound, restful sleep. Postum is a skillfully-made cereal beverage, and the secret of its popularity is its protection to health and its delicious flavor. Ask your grocer for Postum. Drink this hot, refreshing beverage in place of tea or coffee for 10 days and see what a wonderful difference it will make in the way you feel. Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in the usual form) in the cup by the addition of boiling water; Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. "HE KILLED ADAM"

Synopsis.—Young Carlyle Wilburton Dale, or "Bill Dale," son of a wealthy coal operator, John K. Dale, arrives at the Halfway Switch, in the eastern Tennessee mountains, abandoning a life of ease and incidentally a bride, Patricia Clavering, at the altar—determined to make his own way in life. He meets "Babe" Littleford, typical mountaineer girl. "By Heck," a character of the hills, takes him to John Moreland's home. Moreland is chief of his "clan," which has an old feud with the Littlefords. He tells Dale of the killing of his brother, David Moreland, years ago—owner of rich coal deposits, by a man named Carlyle. Dale believes the man was his father, Dale makes his home with the Morelands. Talking with Babe, Dale is ordered by "Black Adam" Ball to leave "his girl" alone. Dale whips the bully. He arranges with John Moreland to develop the coal deposits. Ben Littleford sends a challenge to John Moreland to meet him with his followers in battle. Moreland agrees. The two clans line up for battle. A Littleford fires the first shot. Babe, in an effort to stop the fighting, crosses to the Moreland side of the river, and is accidentally shot by her father and seriously wounded. The fight stops and Babe is taken to the city. Doctors announce she is not seriously hurt. Dale meets an old friend, Bobby McLaurin, who has married Patricia Clavering. Dale's father admits he killed David Moreland and offers him funds to develop the coal. Dale declines and gets funds elsewhere. He realizes he loves Babe, who goes to live with Patricia to be educated. Henderson Goff, a coal man, appears on the scene. Dale has an exciting encounter with Goff, and is saved by "By Heck." He tries to end the feud. John Moreland and Ben Littleford declare peace. Babe comes back home, but finally promises to return to Patricia. Goff stirs up trouble.

A little after work-time that day, Bill Dale started alone on the way of the narrow-gauge railroad for the siding. He wished to see for himself just what the damage had been to the trestle, and he hoped to meet Goff, or a Ball, or a Torrey, and learn something that would be to his advantage.

Before he had covered two miles, he had seen two of the enemy skulking through the woods, and he recognized them for Torreys from Jerusalem Cove and Hatton's Hell; he knew it by their very swarthy skin, their high cheekbones and their coarse black hair, the outcroppings of the Cherokee Indian blood in them. They looked cunning and wicked. Dale loosened in his holster the big revolver that Major Bradley had persuaded him to carry for his own protection. John Moreland had taught him how to use firearms.

At a point near where the little stream that flowed past the Halfway Switch emptied into Doe river, where Doe river turned almost squarely to the left, Dale halted abruptly. He had seen a man dart behind a scrubby oak some thirty yards ahead of him; quite naturally, he concluded that the fellow meant to waylay him, and he, too, stepped behind a tree, a big hemlock.

A silent minute went by. Then Dale put his hat out on one side of the tree and peeped from the other side; it was an old trick that Grandpaw Moreland had told him about. A rifle cracked promptly and sharply, and a bullet-hole appeared in the rim of his hat!

Following it, there came the coarse, bass voice of Black Adam Ball, the mountaineer Goliath:

"You can't fool me. I jest shot to put a hole in yore new hat and to show ye 'at I ain't no bad shot. You can't hit my hat!"

Dale's temper, the temper that had always been so hard to keep under control, rose quickly. He tried to reason with himself, and couldn't; his passion mastered him. He snatched the big revolver from its holster and cocked it. With as steady a hand as ever held a weapon trained, he began to take aim at Ball's slouch hat, the half of which was in plain view at one side of the scrubby oak.

"I fooled you once, back there in the middle of the river," he cried hotly, "and now I'm going to fool you again!"

There was in his voice that old, old, primitive rage, which frightened him, and puzzled him too, in his better moments.

He let down the bead until it was barely visible in the notch, and eased off the trigger. The revolver roared and spat forth a tiny tongue of flame and a little cloud of white smoke. Ball sprang erect, wheeled, and fell crashing to the leaves!

Dale dropped his weapon. He went as white as death, and his two hands clutched uncertainly at his throat. He was a murderer! No, he wasn't—his bullet had gone wild; it had struck Ball's head on the other side of the tree, by accident. But how could he prove that it had been an accident? Would any jury believe him? It was far from probable.

He stepped from behind the hemlock and went toward the writhing Goliath, whose legs only were visible now.

Then a third shot rang out on the morning stillness. It had been fired from a point some little distance away, and Dale's condition of mind at the moment was such that he didn't even note the direction from which the sound had come. He was unhurt, and he had not heard the whine of a bullet or the pattering of shot on the leaves. When he looked about him, he saw no one; neither did he see any telltale smoke. Perhaps, he thought dimly, it had been a squirrel-hunter that had fired that shot. He forgot about it very quickly for the time being, and went on toward Adam Ball, who now was lying perfectly still.

There was a bullet-hole through and through the great, shaggy head. The face behind the short, curly black beard was of the colorless hue of soapstone. The giant hillman was dead.

Bill Dale knelt there beside Black Adam. Again he clutched at his throat with his two shaking hands, and this time he tore his blue flannel shirt. All the agony and all the remorse in the universe seemed to be gathering there in his heart. Never before had he seen death. Its grim presence terrified him. That the deplorable thing had been an accident, due to his faulty marksmanship, mattered little. He had killed a man, and the blood-red brand of Cain was burning away on his brow—he was a man in a hell of his own making. And kneeling there Bill Dale sobbed a great sob that shook his broad shoulders as a violent ague would have shaken them.

He tried to look at the blue-edged hole in the shaggy head; at the cruel, brutish face that was of the colorless hue of soapstone. Merciful tears blinded him, and he couldn't see. It was a compensation, a pitifully beautiful compensation.

Five minutes passed, five minutes that were as five years to this man who had never been in the presence of death before. Then he realized that he was being surrounded by kinsmen of the dead mountaineer. He looked up into their ashen, angry faces, and they cursed him. Big and grapping brown hands were placed upon him; several rifles were turned upon him. His arose and spread out his arms, and offered his breast to the frowning muzzles. They could give him, at least, oblivion.

"Shoot, if you like," he said bitterly. "It was an accident, y'know, but—shoot, if you like."

"No," commanded Adam Ball's father, a slender and angular old man with a straggling iron-gray beard—"No, don't shoot. Shootin's too quick.

"Shoot, if you like!" He Said Bitterly.

by gonies. And 'en, it ain't accordin' to law." (Queer how suddenly he respected the majesty of the law!) "We'd a durned right ruther see him hung by the neck onef day in the jailyard at Cartersville. Ye'uns put down them thar guns. Put down all o' them thar guns right now; hear me!"

He turned back to Dale. "Ye say it was a accident?" he sneered.

"Yes, it was an accident."

"Like the old devil!" roared Black Adam's father.

He stopped and picked up his son's black slouch hat and examined it. There were two bullet holes close together in the rim—and one of them had been there for a long time.

"John Moreland, he's been a-learnin' ye how to shoot," he said, "and you've shers'arned purty d-d well. It must ha' been yore third shot 'at got Adam."

"I fired only once," disagreed Dale. "Your son fired first; I fired second; and somebody else, I haven't the slightest idea who, fired the other shot."

"Aw, shet up! Ye can tell it at the trial," growled old Ball. Then to his kinsmen.

"We'll hold Dale right here, boys, outel the sheriff he's sent 'atter comes. And we'll not move Adam, which same is accordin' to law. I reckon Sheriff Tom-Flowers'll find a different shurr from what he expected to find; won't he, boys? Say, I wisht one o' you fellers'd gi' me a good, big chaw o' tobacco. He durned of I don't. Adam's death, it has made me feel sort o' bad, by gonies, and tobacco's allus a consolation—"

"Bill Dale, you hain't got a chaw o' tobacco on ye, have ye—bought to-backer, store to-backer? It's a durned sight better'n home-made, I says. Ye say ye don't chew! Chew—h—! Why'n't ye say 'chaw,' like a man! I allus knowed ye wasn't no 'count, no-how. Nobody 'at don't chaw tobacco ain't no 'count. . . . All right, Jim Ike," to his nephew, "I'll take a chaw o' yores, then. And I'll take a to'ably big chaw, Jim Ike, 'cause Adam's death has made me feel sort o' bad, and tobacco's allus a consolation."

The sounds of the shooting had carried far, and it wasn't long until the scene of the tragedy was crowded with Balls and Torreys, Littlefords and Morelands. Major Bradley and Hayes, too, were there. Every man of them was armed; a very little thing might easily turn the place into a shambles. The major saw this, and he was afraid. He drew the leaders of the Morelands and the Littlefords aside, and finally prevailed upon them to do their utmost toward keeping peace until the coming of the sheriff.

At first John Moreland and Ben Littleford were for taking Bill Dale from the Balls and Torreys who guarded him, if they had to depopulate the whole Ball settlement, Jerusalem Cove and Hatton's Hell to accomplish it! Happily, the major's counsel prevailed.

Sheriff Tom Flowers was a tall and lithe, smooth-faced man. He arrived with Luke Moreland at noon, after hours of hard riding. He saw the high tension, and immediately steered himself to handle the situation. After riding straight to the center of the gathering and there halting his horse, he said evenly:

"In order that I may know who to arrest, I must know something of the circumstances. Only one man must speak at a time. No playing bad with me; and remember that, gentlemen. I'll certainly drop the fellow who starts playing boss with me. If it's the last move I make on earth. Now somebody gently use his powers of speech."

Major Bradley, more soldierlike than ever, went forward. "As the attorney of Mr. Dale, who stands accused of killing Adam Ball," he said to the officer, "I beg leave to state that my client will do no talking at present."

Dale understood, and he did not open his mouth.

But old Ball had something to say, and he proceeded to say it:

"He killed my son, Adam," pointing to Dale, "in cold blood. Me and about a dozen o' my kin was on our way over Long ridge to look at a bee tree, when we heered three pistol shots. We was right up thar," pointing to the northward, "and we come a-runnin' over here to see, by gonies, what was the matter. Well, by gonies, we found Bill Dale thar down on his knees aside o' my son, Adam, who was as dead as I—o' deader; and Bill Dale was a-sobbin' and a-sobbin' about it. And ef he never killed my son Adam, what was he a-sobbin' and a-sobbin' about, I ax you that? And my son Adam, he had a rifle, by gonies, but he never shot none at all. He was with us up to a few minutes before, and he hadn't shot none all mornin'. Sheriff Flowers, I wisht ye'd gi' me a good, big chaw o' tobacco, by gonies, 'cause my son Adam his death it has made me feel bad."

Major Bradley stopped caressing his well-kept gray imperial, walked over to the dead man's rifle, picked it up and put it muzzle to his nose. He scented fresh powder-smoke. Then he faced old Ball with a strange, hard glitter in his blue eyes.

"You are a liar, sir," he said with a peculiar politeness.

A stir ran quickly over the Balls and Torreys. Sheriff Flowers called out:

"Quiet, there!" and there was quiet. He continued: "Where is Mr. Dale's revolver?"

"The Balls had it. They produced it. It had three empty chambers when it should have had but one!"

"Pass it to me—but first," ordered the law's representative. He knew that many a man had been shot while taking a revolver barrel first, and he was taking no chances.

Old Ball obediently turned the weapon around.

"Say, sheriff," he chattered, "hava ye plumb fo'got about me axin' ye fo' a chaw o' store-bought? By gonies, Adam's death—"

Flowers turned to Dale. "I have heard through Luke Moreland," he said with more or less of feeling in his voice, "a good many things in your favor. I want you to know that I'm sorry to have to take you and place you in the Cartersville jail. To show you that I mean it, I'll spare you the iron and allow you to ride your own horse along beside me, as though you were not under arrest at all."

Dale had by this time worn the keen edge from his grief by means of his great will power. He bowed slightly to the officer and replied with grave courtesy:

"Believe me, sir," with the very faintest trace of a smile, "I am—very much obliged to you."

Luke Moreland led up the sleek young bay that Bill Dale had named Fox, and Dale swung himself easily into the saddle. He faced the sheriff.

"If you're ready to go, sir," he said, "I am."

Together they rode through the woodland toward the broad, green valley, with the Littlefords, the Morelands, Major Bradley and Hayes following closely behind them.

Up on the side of David Moreland's mountain there had been a silent and unseen witness to the arrest of Bill Dale. She was hidden behind a gnarled and twisted clump of sheep-laurel, sitting on a patch of tiny, dainty, pure blue dayflowers—crushing

When a bend in the dusty ox-wagon road had hidden them from view, Elizabeth Littleford turned homeward. Her mother followed her.

The younger woman dropped to the stone step at the vine-hung front porch with the air of one who is very tired, plucked a full-blown marigold and began absently to tear its petals slowly apart. Mrs. Littleford looked out across the meadows, sighed, smoothed back her gray hair with both hands, and sat down beside her daughter.

"I wouldn't worry about it, Babe, honey," she finally said. Then she too plucked a marigold and began to tear its petals slowly apart. "Ef he killed Adam Ball, it was to save himself. He's a good man, honey. I think he's about the best man I ever seed, Babe."

"No, he never killed Adam Ball to save himself even," Babe replied. "He's a fighter, but he ain't no killer. Listen, mother, it might ha' been this away:

"He is ahind of a tree, and Adam is ahind of another tree. Adam shoots at his hat, and he shoots at Adam's hat—which is the reglar way of a two-man fight, as you know. Well, suddenly Adam he jumps up like he's been shot, and falls a-groanin' and a-twistin'. Bill Dale, a-thinkin' he's killed Adam, comes out from ahind of his tree. Havin' drawed Bill Dale out into the open by his trick, Adam gets ready to shoot and kill him. Jest as Adam is about to shoot, somebody else shoots and kills Adam and saves Bill Dale—mebbe the ain't time fo' anythin' else. Now don't ye see? And don't it all sound natchel, mother?"

"I reckon it does," grunted the old woman. "But who was it shot Black Adam?"

"Somebody who is a friend o' Bill Dale's," said Babe. "Somebody who was a-follerin' Bill with the idee o' perfectin' him ef he needed it. Somebody who knowed it was dangerous fo' him to go off by himself in the woods that away. I've got it reasoned out jest like this. . . . And whoever it was 'at was friend enough to Bill Dale to kill a man to save him will be friend enough to own up when the proper time comes and keep Bill Dale from a-bein' hung. Whoever it was 'at done it is skeered bad now, but later on he'll shore tell it, ef it'll save Bill. You jest wait and see, mother."

"I hain't never fo'got," Babe went on, after a moment, "about Black Adam Ball a-tellin' me about a-workin' that name trick on a man over in Nawth Ca'liner—and he killed the man. The law never found it out. And ye see what Black Adam got. 'Who lives by the sword shall perish by the sword.' It's in the Good Book, mother, honey; and everything in the Good Book is God Almighty's truth, as you know."

"Ef I was plinned down to guess who it was 'at done it," drawled Mrs. Littleford, "I'd guess it was By Heck. He was a plumb fool about Bill Dale. His maw she says he talks in his sleep about Bill Dale. He was allus a-follerin' him around like a dawg."

Babe pointed to the meadow. An aged and stooped and withilike woman was limping slowly through the clover, coming toward them.

"Granny Heck," muttered Babe. "The neighborhood's newbearer and fortune-teller limped on up to the cabin, and dropped to the stone step beside Ben Littleford's wife and daughter."

"In, in, in!" she panted, for the days were warm. "And hain't it jest terrible! I wisht I may die this minute ef I wouldn't might nigh as soon see my own son go to jail! But 'en it'll all come out right yit, Babe. I seed it in the cyards, and I seed it in the cup. Babe, honeydumplin', he never no more killed Adam 'an I killed him myself. I tell ye, the's been some awful ongodly work done, somehow. I know Bill Dale, and the shore hain't nary durned drape o' killer blood in him."

Babe spoke suddenly to her mother: "I've got to go and wash and iron my new white dress. Accuse—because I'm a-goin' back to Mrs. McLaurin, like I promised—I'd go. I'm a-goin' in the mornin', on the fast train. Ye might as well inform pap to hatch up my railroad money, mother!"

Just then By Heck stopped before the gate.

"Do ye want to go home along as I go, maw?" he asked.

"I don't think who killed Black Adam. I know who killed Black Adam!"

"Lord, What'll I Do Now?" She murmured.

In her hands the tiny purple blossoms that are known as Job's tears.

"Lord, what'll I do now?" she murmured.

It was a great and unanswerable question, and it was a prayer, too.

"Lord, what'll I do now?" she repeated.

When Bill Dale had ridden out of her sight, she threw down the crushed flowers and flung herself prostrate, with her face close to the hemlock needles and the earth, and wept low and bitterly, and wept and wept—

"Lord, what'll I do now?"

CHAPTER XI

By Heck Keeps a Secret.

When Sheriff Tom Flowers and the others had been gone for half an hour, Elizabeth Littleford sat up in the silence. It was a great and heavy silence that hovered there over the north end of David Moreland's mountain. There was not even the drumming of a yellowhammer, not even the saucy chattering of a boomer squirrel, not even the twittering of a bird. Not a leaf stirred anywhere. Everything seemed lifeless. It was almost as though she were the sole inhabitant of the world.

Then she thought. It was noontime, and the officer and his prisoner would doubtless halt at John Moreland's cabin for the noontday meal; and if she hastened she would get to see Bill Dale again.

No she ran like a doe through the green woodland, through the tangle of laurel and ivy and over the moss-covered stones, across a shoulder of David Moreland's mountain. She was barefooted, and her dress was a simple garment of white-dotted blue calico, and her long brown hair flowed behind her like the hair of a young witch—because of the excitement of the morning, she had forgotten to give it its usual daily plaiting.

As she drew near to the Moreland leader's home, she saw Bill Dale and the sheriff walk out at the gateway and mount their horses. Major Bradley came out, and he, too, mounted his horse; and she was glad that he was going along. There was a great crowd; all the Littlefords were there, and all the Morelands, and old Granny Heck, the fortune-teller. On every face Babe saw signs of sympathy and sorrow. Her eyes filled. She was so glad that they, too, loved him. It was worth going to jail to know that one was loved like that! Not that it didn't hurt to see him going to jail, of course. Jail and horror are words that mean the same to the mountain-dweller.

She went on to tell him good-by. She knew it would be hard, but she steeled herself; she would be a Littleford, and strong. He saw her coming, and he turned his bay horse and rode to meet her. She stopped and clasped her hands, with her arms down full length, and tried to smile at him.

"You promised me," he said gently, "that you'd go back to Patricia and finish your education."

"I keep my promises," was the quick reply, "jest like every other Littleford that ever lived kept their promises. I would ha' went back this mornin', ef it hadn't ha' been—"

And there she broke off abruptly. After a silent moment, she continued sadly, half tearfully: "And yet—and yet—the's not a bit o' use in me a-goin' back now!"

"Why?" Dale was smiling, and she was glad to note that he did not appear to be grieving over his misfortune.

"Cause the ain't," simply.

"But you'll go!"

"Yes," she said, "in the mornin' I'll go."

He bent toward her and held down his hand. "Good-by, little girl. I hope it will come out all right, and I believe it will."

Babe slowly lifted her hand to his. Her eyes were downcast.

"Good-by," she told him brokenly. "And I hope it will come out all right, too—God knows I do, Bill Dale."

Thus they parted. Dale rode back to the sheriff and Major Bradley, and a minute later the three of them started for the lowland and Cartersville jail.

When a bend in the dusty ox-wagon road had hidden them from view, Elizabeth Littleford turned homeward. Her mother followed her.

The younger woman dropped to the stone step at the vine-hung front porch with the air of one who is very tired, plucked a full-blown marigold and began absently to tear its petals slowly apart. TAKES CARE OF 5 CHILDREN

Mrs. Taylor's Sickness Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often dependent, had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods it was almost impossible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position I could get in would relieve it, and doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found the Compound such a help. I recommend it to my friends and if you wish to use this letter I am very glad to help any woman suffering as I was until I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Two Minutes of Silent Prayer

The President of the greatest nation on earth, Warren G. Harding, has issued a request to all the people of the United States to devote two minutes of silent prayer on November 11, for the success of the combined movement of the nations of the earth to limit armaments. This request, or appeal rather, is made on behalf of those who made untold sacrifices during the late war and that a lasting peace might come to all nations as a God's blessing.

Our President realizes that there can be nothing hypocritical or deceitful in silent prayer. He also realizes that long public prayers made by individuals in the interest of nations, oftentimes are made to be heard by men, and therefore, are as sounding brass or tinkling cymbals. When we think of every devout person of this great country from the President of our great republic down to the most humble station in life uniting their silent supplications for the banishment of war and the establishment of peace on the face of the earth, we stand in awe before it.

In this combined supplication, nothing of a material nature must enter into it. As God is love, nothing of envy, hatred or malice must have part in it, lest the truth suffer. As God is a God of peace and not of war, peace supreme must have full sway in the consciousness. To know God for two minutes of sacred, silent prayer as a God of peace, love, long-suffering kindness, purity, and all those perfect qualities which compose the true character of Him to whom this nation will bow, holy thought must reign supreme. What an example is this to other nations of the earth, and what a consolation to believing people to know that the leader of this great nation is a man of God; a man whose faith in his Creator leads him to this holy and noble purpose; a man who, with the knowledge of the fact that destinies of nations have been changed in less than the allotted time of two minutes, believes that everlasting peace may be obtained in the same period of time by the proper knowledge of God.

A Friendly Warning

Citizens of Carrizozo are being continually confronted and bothered with appeals from traveling people for financial aid. While these appeals have a tendency to soften the heart, alms given without investigating the cases, are oftentimes unworthily bestowed, therefore, we warn our business men and people in the homes to discountenance these appeals, as the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army is established for the purpose of helping the deserving poor. Don't be imposed upon; send them to us and if worthy, their wants will be attended to.

Modern Servants

Every twentieth century machine has its part in serving man in a better way than he was served before.

But if you had to do without all but one of the modern inventions, which one would you keep?

To realize the value of the telephone to all of us in our everyday business and social life, we have only to glance back a comparatively few years and recall what we did when there were no telephones.

Today the alert business man is sending his voice here, there and everywhere by Local and by Long Distance Telephone, going after business ahead of competitors who employ slower methods. The telephone is man's most useful modern servant.

Omaha's Aero Congress

Underwood & Underwood

MAHA center of the Air Industry. This is Omaha a slogan these days. Why? Because this enterprising Nebraska city of 200,000 people will stage November 3-5 the First International Aero Congress.

The purpose of the congress is praiseworthy. The congress itself is likely to be of great importance. The purpose is to bring the flyers together for a reunion, the first since the World War.

The formation of a national air body appears to be well under way, through preliminary organizations in the states. At this writing twenty-five states are forming state organizations of the congress and will be represented by delegates.

That there is necessity for the formation of such a body seems hardly open to argument. Rudyard Kipling, years ago, wrote of aircraft: "We are at the opening verge of the opening page of the chapter of endless possibilities."

In the opinion of those who seem best qualified to know, the United States has not kept abreast with other countries in the development of aviation, especially in the matter of development of airways.

An essential of the success of big business is imagination. Imagine, if you can, what the part of aviation in the life of the nation will be five years from now.

Omaha's slogan was inspired by the Aero Club of Omaha, an organization of 100 former pilots and observers of the World War. Nevertheless, all the city is talking aviation these days.

Then Earl W. Porter, president of the Aero Club of Omaha, conceived the idea of the congress and went to work on it. Now aviation is in the blood of the citizens. They talk of the many phases of air travel with the nonchalance of aces.

President Porter went to his fellow clubmen. They endorsed his idea and his plans and pledged their support. They also fixed on him as the focal head of the movement and he was duly made president of the congress. He accepted the position, turned over his business affairs to his partner and went to work. The first step was to get twenty-five Omaha business men to back the project for $1,000 each. This was easily done.

It was also easy to get the indorsement of all Omaha business and social organizations. A speakers' bureau was formed to educate the citizens. Arrangements to raise funds for financing the congress were made. Attention was then turned to the preparation of a program worthy of the occasion.

Incidentally it became necessary to provide a landing field large enough to stage the program. A little thing like this, however, did not deter the air men, who located a farm of 150 acres showing possibilities as a field, although it was uneven and contained 150 large trees.

A "field day" was duly announced, and the air men and their friends rolled up their sleeves and with the assistance of two Holt caterpillar tractors donated for the occasion, pulled the trees and leveled the land.

An open drainage ditch traversed the center of the field, which lies on the edge of one of the residence districts, only fifteen minutes' ride from the heart of Omaha. The city council was induced to vote unanimously to build a covered sewer through the field at a cost of $21,000.

In the meantime, an office force was busy mailing thousands of invitations and pamphlets to the air men and celebrities, such as President Harding, Marshal Poch, Orville Wright, Glenn Curtiss and Judge K. M. Landis.

The graduates of Fort Omaha balloon school, the center of America's wartime ballooning, were invited for their first reunion. Squadrons and escadrilles of flyers were asked to hold their first reunions in Omaha. The fifty-two American aces were invited, as well as everyone else interested in aviation.

The aid of Kansas City was enlisted in sending the American Legion convention delegates on to Omaha. The indorsements of national headquarters of the American Legion, of the Aero Club of America, of the World's Board of Aeronautical Commissioners and of the Aircraft Manufacturers' Association were obtained. The co-operation of the Army and Navy air headquarters was asked for and received.

The railroads helped out by offering a fare and a half rate for the round trip from all parts of the country to Omaha. Gutzon Borglum, world-famed sculptor, offered a commemorative medal design symbolical of the work of the American air man during the war, as his "bit." James Hanley, song writer of New York, wrote a special song praising the work of the flyers, to be sung for the first time at the congress.

In preparing its program, Omaha had a piece of rare good luck right at the outset. As everyone knows, the Pulitzer Trophy Race became the world's most famous air event with its first running in November of 1920 at Mitchel Field, New York, under the auspices of the Aero Club of America. There were twenty-five Army, eight Navy, seven Marine Corps and one civilian entrants in the contest. The winner was Lieut. C. C. Mosely of the Army air service, who flew 132 miles in a Verville-Packard machine at an average speed of 178 miles an hour. The Army won seven of the first ten places in the contest and the Navy two. There were 30,000 spectators, including celebrities from all walks of life.

Well, the Pulitzer Trophy Race for 1921 had been scheduled for Detroit, but difficulties had arisen and the Aero Club of America had cancelled the race for the year. Omaha stepped in and offered the necessary funds. In consequence, the first announcement of the program is this: "The First International Aero Congress announces the second annual aerial contest for the Pulitzer Trophy, in connection with the first contest for the Aero Club of Omaha Trophy and also other aerial events. Sanctioned by the Aero Club of America under the rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and those of the First International Aero Congress. To be conducted at Omaha Field, Omaha, Nebraska, U. S. A., November 3, 4 and 5, 1921."

The Pulitzer Trophy Race is a free-for-all contest for high-speed airplanes. The distance is approximately 150 miles, five times around a closed course of 30 miles, from Omaha Field, thence northwest to a captive balloon on railroad track north of Calhoun, Nebraska, thence east to a captive balloon on the southern outskirts of Loveland, Iowa, thence return to Omaha Field. All pilots must hold an aviator's license, issued by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and duly entered upon the competitor's register of the Aero Club of America. All airplanes may compete with pilot only. The Pulitzer Trophy, given by Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, is a four-foot silver trophy, to be raced for annually. Any flyer winning the trophy two years in succession may keep it. In addition, these prizes are offered: First, $3,000; second, $2,000; third, $1,000.

Event No. 2, set for 3 p. m. Thursday, is an acrobatic contest, with cash prizes as follows: First, $250; second, $150; third, $100. It is a free-for-all contest for all types of airplanes. The contest will be decided on points and the points will be given as follows: Immelman turns, 15; barrel rolls, 15; falling leaves, 20; loops, 20; vertical reversments, 15; tail spin, 15.

Event No. 3, set for Friday at 10 a. m., is a commercial derby for all types of commercial planes. The distance is approximately 250 miles. Starting at Omaha Field, contestants will fly to Des Moines, Iowa, land on Curtiss Field and return to Omaha Field. The prizes are: First, $2,000; second, $1,000; third, $500. The contest will be decided on points.

Event No. 4, set for Friday at 10:45 a. m., is a free-for-all race, with prizes aggregating $475, open to JNA's, OXG-Standard, Orloles with Curtiss OX5 motor, Canucks and other planes with a speed of from 60 to 75 miles an hour. The distance is approximately 90 miles.

Event No. 5, set for Friday at 1:30 p. m., is a free-for-all race, with prizes aggregating $475, open to planes with a speed of from 75 to 90 miles an hour. The distance is approximately 90 miles.

Event No. 6, set for Friday at 3:30 p. m., is a parachute jumping contest, with prizes aggregating $350. The jump is from 1,000 feet or more and the winner is the contestant who lands closest to a given mark on the field.

Event No. 7, set for Saturday at noon, is a race for a trophy, with cash prizes aggregating $2,025. It is a closed handicap, open to all machines. The distance is approximately 150 miles.

Event No. 8, set for Saturday at 2:30 p. m., is a bombing contest, open to Army and Navy planes only. The first prize is a gold cup and the second a silver cup.

Inasmuch as the congress is to arouse interest in flying and stimulate the development of commercial flying, the program thus contains events for diversified types of aircraft. The intention is to attract a varied field of entries to compete for prizes to be awarded for desirable airplane performance as well as for high speed.

A feature of the congress will be a half-mile row of various types of airplanes lined up in front of the grandstand, with exhibits of accessories. Actual airplane construction will be shown.

For the entertainment of the crowds the great aerial spectacle, "The Bombing of Courcelay," will be shown, with 100 costumed people in the cast and a model of the French village set up on the field. Parades, banquets, boxing contests and a variety of other functions round out a most attractive program for three days and three nights.

MOTHERS CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions!

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive a sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Also, a woman's face may be her husband's misfortune.

DYED HER BABY'S COAT, A SKIRT AND CURTAINS

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new. Even if she has never dyed before, she can put a new, rich color into shabby shirts, dresses, waists, coats, stockings, hosiery, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Used in One Family For Twenty-Eight Years

JANE, Mo.—"Twenty-eight years ago I was in very poor health, having taken the measles when my oldest child was one month old. My blood was out of order and I also had inflammation of the womanly organs and bladder. I doctored with the best doctor I knew of, but gradually grew worse until I wasn't able to do anything. I heard of Doctor Pierce's medicines so got a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I immediately commenced to improve. After taking three bottles of each I was able to do light housework and felt like a different person—very much expense compared with what I had been paying the doctor. Since then I have always used these medicines in my family."—MRS. CHARLES SHANKS.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of any of his remedies. No alcohol.

The Pipe And Easy Chair

In almost every home, there's one place reserved for the best of the times when he is accustomed to settle down and take his comfort.

There is a big, comfortable chair—a Morris chair, or some sort of an upholstered, shaped-to-his-figure seat such as used to be called an easy chair.

It's usually lodged near the fireplace. At any rate, it's always stationed at just about the most comfortable spot in the house.

And right near at hand you inevitably find—what? Pipe and tobacco, don't you?

Men are likely to be just as comfort-loving as they are hard-working. They know that rest is necessary to renew their powers. They know that after a pipeful and a short rest in the old easy chair, their minds work more clearly; they can think things out that baffled them no little during the pressure and confusion of the day. And so they take their comfort, wisely take it.

And so the pipe and tobacco have become tickets of admission to a man's comfort as nothing before or since.

The pipe and easy chair are necessary. So is one other thing. A man must have the kind of tobacco that absolutely suits his taste.

If you happen to lack this, it may be Edgeworth. You be judge and jury and allow us to submit our case. There will be no appeal from your judgment.

Simply write down on a postcard your name and address together with that of the local dealer supplying your smoking needs. By the next mail we'll send you postpaid generous samples of Edgeworth Tobacco in both forms—Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed.

Edgeworth Plug Slice is pressed into cakes, then cut by sharp knives into very thin, moist slices. Rub a slice between the hands. It makes an average pipelod.

Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is ready to pour right into your pipe. It packs nicely, and burns freely to the very bottom of your pipe, getting better and better.

When the mail brings Edgeworth to you give one of your pipes a thorough going over and load it to the brim with Edgeworth. Drop into the little old easy chair, stretch out, letting your feet rest high or low, and light up. Puff—puff—puff—now you know whether or not Edgeworth is the pipe tobacco absolutely suited to your taste.

You can decide with your first pipelod. If it isn't exactly what you want, you're out one cent, spent for a postcard. But if it is—well, you're likely to feel that you never invested a cent to better advantage.

Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to suit the needs and means of all purchasers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome tin humidor, and glass jars, and also in various handy in-between quantities.

For the free samples upon which we request your judgment, address Larus & Brother Company, 41 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants—If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

SWIMMING PROFESSOR'S WORDS.

On Mondays and Wednesdays and Fridays were the days when the girls went in the big boat...

"We'll Have to Swim." A boy and there was not a girl who didn't think Professor was the very finest and the very best they had ever known.

For not only had Professor taught everyone to swim, he had told them many things which must be done under certain circumstances...

Professor had told them never to change places in a boat when out on the lake, never to stand up in a boat...

Now Campbell and Graham were two boys who were very fond of canoeing. Campbell had only recently come to the town by the lake...

One afternoon late in the autumn Campbell and Graham went canoeing. Most of the boats had been put up for the winter...

The storm became worse and worse. The winds from the surrounding hills skirted over the lake and it was all the boys could do to keep the canoe steady...

But when they were out in the very middle of the lake—and the shore was more than a mile away...

The first thing they knew was that they were both in the water and that the canoe had filled with water...

"We'll have to swim for shore," Campbell said. Neither of the boys lost their heads for a moment.

"And we'll have to swim the longer way so as to go with the wind..."

"I guess we'd better leave the canoe—we could never drag that along too," Campbell added.

"Oh, no, we'll take the canoe with us. Then if one of us gets tired or something happens we have the boat to rest upon."

"You saved our lives, Professor," Graham said, as he rushed up to Professor Martin...

"You're flattering an old man," the Professor smiled. (No one but the Professor ever thought of his being old.)

"I should say we're not," Graham retorted. "If it hadn't been for keeping that canoe with us there would have been no Graham and Campbell."

"I remembered your advice—it was that that saved our lives." And Campbell seconded the motion.

"You saved our lives, Professor,"

IS A DEADLY DRUG

Powerful Opiate Popular With South African Natives.

Produces Exquisite Feeling of Supreme Content and Happiness, but Leaves Victim a Wreck.

It is not only among war-weary people in big cities that drug taking is prevalent.

The natives of South Africa cultivate—surreptitiously, because there is a huge fine if the authorities find them out—a herb called dagga.

Dagga in Africa is what opium is to China. It is smoked—but smoked in a strange way—and the native smokes it only in the very early dawn or very late at night, when he can do it secretly.

He scoops a hole out of the hard ground three to four inches deep by three inches wide. A foot or so away from this he scoops another hole, and he then bores a small channel underground from one to the other.

There is thus a free air passage connecting the two little excavations.

He places some dried dagga leaves in the first hole, lights them and covers them over with moist clay. He pierces this clay with a sharpened piece of wood to allow a draught to go through.

Into the other hole he inserts a small hollow reed—this is the pipe stem—squeezes moist clay round it, and on his knees begins his smoke.

A cup of water is at his side, and after each "draw" he cleverly lets a mouthful of water in without letting any smoke escape. Then in some marvellous manner he ejects the water in a long thin stream and the smoke slowly follows.

Bending low over the reed and sitting back on his heels, this is repeated time and time again.

His eyes stream with tears and soon get very bloodshot and swollen. He becomes excited; he feels elated, buoyed up in some wonderful way.

All his cares and troubles are forgotten, and in their place has come an exquisite feeling of supreme content and happiness.

He begins to talk, and the occupants of his kral hear great tales, tales of daring deeds of his youth—told with much demonstration and wild enthusiasm.

Tales of his early fights—tales of battles and of victories—always of victories. Tales of great horsemanship—and wonderful journeys—of old forests and young love.

But the influence of the dagga dies out. The native's eyes are screwed up small, his head aches, his limbs and face become inert, and in a short while he is just a huddled mass of heavy sleep.

His joy in life has lasted just about an hour, and in the dim dawn he awakens feeling a fearful "wreck."

But he believes in "a hair of the dog that bit him," and so another pipe before work.

Strange Moon Rays. Puzos, the distinguished astronomer of the Paris observatory, some time ago reached the conclusion that the curious rays or bands extending in straight lines away from many lunar craters, such as the celebrated Tycho, are produced by the deposition of volcanic ashes carried to great distances by the winds that happened to prevail when the eruption occurred.

He accounts for the relative narrowness of these bands, which are never more than thirty miles broad, although their length are sometimes many hundred miles, by supposing that only the central axis of the deposit has remained, the less dense borders having been destroyed by the denuding forces of the air when the moon had a considerable atmosphere.

Ruined by the Movies. His pockets were empty, but it was evident he had seen better days.

"Yes," he was saying to a sympathizer, "I was once the cynosure of all eyes; I was the tattooed man in a circus."

"And how did you lose your job?" he was asked.

"Public's gone crazy over moving pictures," he mournfully replied, "and mine won't budge."

Diplomacy. "What did your boy Josh do when you told him he would have to go out in the world and make his own living?"

"He went to the next farm as a hired hand, and in a week had me offerin' him his board an' keep an' more wages."

Careful Shopper. The Wife—"I'm becoming a regular business woman, my dear. I bought forty pairs of silk stockings reduced from 40 to 30 francs and with the 400 francs I saved I got myself that duck little hat I envied so much."—Paris Le Kite.

Absorbing Occupation. "Can't you get me a government job?" asked the willing worker.

"I'd like to," answered Senator Sorghum. "But a man in government employ has to work so hard nowadays that you wouldn't have time to be any help in my political campaigns."

Hidden Treasure. Mrs. Ecks—"That's a shockingly clumsy maid who served us. And Mrs. Wye said she had such a treasure."

Mrs. Wye—"This maid is one she hired for the occasion. She has the treasure locked up in her room for fear one of the guests might steal her."

Southwest News From All Over New Mexico and Arizona

Plans are under way for the enlarging the vocational training center in Las Vegas, N. Mex., and it is thought that in a few weeks the attendance will be over 100 students.

Miss Besse Fitcher, formerly at Santa Fe, will join the local staff.

Sales of land amounting to $172,012 were made by the state, through the state land department, at public auction in Phoenix. The next sale to be conducted by the department will be in Florence on Oct. 25, when grazing and agricultural lands will be sold.

All the furnishings for the new high school at Gallup, N. Mex., have been received and the building will soon be completed so that they can be installed. When the building is ready for occupancy it will be one of the finest of its kind in the southwest.

Fat Arizona range cattle will find a ready market in California this fall, in the opinion of Edward W. Stephens, secretary of the live stock sanitary board. He based this view, he said, on prevailing conditions in the live-stock industry of the state, coupled with expressions from many of the leading growers.

A friendly suit to test house bill 35 has been filed in the superior court at Phoenix. House bill 35 provides that county superintendents of schools may issue warrants marked "no funds" to be registered with the county treasurer and to bear interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum when school funds are exhausted.

The Masonic lodge of Springer, N. Mex., has purchased a lot and will soon start the work of excavating for the new building which is to be built. The building will be of brick and two stories high, the upper room to be the lodge room and the lower floor will be rented for a mercantile establishment.

Two men were killed instantly, a third badly crushed who died eleven hours later and two others seriously hurt late Saturday afternoon in a premature explosion of a blasting charge in Devil's canon, near Superior, Ariz., on the new Miami-Superior highway now under construction. All five were employes of the state highway department.

Arrangements have been completed by which the development of the rich silver mine, known as the Old Volcano, is now assured. The Volcano is said by mining men to be the richest strike of the year in New Mexico and as the mine had been a good producer in the past it is thought that it will again come back and no doubt will be one of the richest silver finds in the country.

Final arrangements for raising $2,800 to repair the Las Cruces armory and erect barn and stables were completed Oct. 1 by John M. Bowman, cashier of the First National bank, and W. S. Sutherland, representing the Bowman Bank and Trust Company. The state has subscribed $1,000, making a fund of $4,800, the amount required to make the improvements, upon which work will begin Nov. 1.

Total value of imports and exports in the Arizona district during September was $377,140, according to a report made public in Nogales by Charles L. Fowler, district collector of customs. The value of the exports was $311,000. Articles exported through the port of Nogales were valued at $400,000 and those through Douglas at $165,000. The other exports went through Naco and Yuma.

Civic improvements, estimated to cost $25,000 will be made in Las Cruces, N. Mex., in November. The work includes paving Convent street to connect with Main street with the national highway between Las Cruces and El Paso, and Alameda boulevard from Convent street to Griggs street, a distance of more than a half mile.

D. B. Clayton, inspector for the State Live Stock Sanitary Board at Wilcox, Ariz., informed Ed Stephens, secretary of the board, that 6,000 steers and feeder cows had been contracted for in that vicinity, deliveries to be made in October and November. Clayton's letter also said that indications were that many more steers and feeder cows would be sold in the near future.

Jose Manuel Armijo, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Armijo of Toas, N. Mex., died at his home as the result of being bitten by a large rattlesnake. The lad was gathering pilonies in the hills north of the city with several other boys when the rattler struck him on the foot. He was taken to his home and medical aid summoned at once but he passed away in a short time.

In New Mexico the deer and turkey seasons were shortened and changed to Nov. 20 to 30. This same season is also made for tassel-eared gray squirrels. Although there were not many changes in actual closed seasons in New Mexico, the new law places game administration on a sound basis. Game matters are placed in care of a commission, which among other things, may close seasons in any locality or any species, and may prohibit all hunting in periods of extreme forest fire danger, at such times and places as may be necessary.

LOVE TOKEN IS NOT WANTED TALC IS FOUND IN CANADA

Resort "Bud" Advertises When Pin Owner Fails to Call for Frat Pin.

Among Canada's more useful non-metallic minerals talc is probably the most adaptable and widely used, entering into the finishing process of some of the most common commodities.

Talc, sometimes designated soapstone, asbestos, french chalk, mineral pulp, talcum and verdolite, is found in Cape Breton and Inverness counties in Nova Scotia; Frontenac, Hastings, Leeds, Lennox and Renfrew counties and Kenora district in Ontario; Beauve, Bromo and Megantic counties in Quebec, and in the Leech river section of the Victoria mining division of British Columbia.

In color it ranges from white to grayish green, while to the touch it has a soft and apparently greasy or slippery feeling. It is a nonconductor of heat and electricity and is resistant to most chemical action.

Its chief uses are as a filler in the finishing of a window blind cloth. Talc is largely used in the manufacture of rubber goods.

Ask a truthful man his opinion and the chances are that he will hand you something that you don't want.

WITHIN REACH OF ALL

No longer need you put off getting a Great Majestic range. The price is right. It is simply economy to get a Great Majestic at the present price and avoid the waste and inconvenience of using the old range through another winter. Any slight reduction in price next year will not make up for wasted fuel, repairs and baking failures you are sure to have with an old worn out range. Why wait? With a Great Majestic you will do better baking. You will save fuel. The beauty and comfort of your kitchen will be increased greatly. No more uneven baking—no more fussing with damper and grates—no more inconvenience. A Great Majestic is a modern kitchen necessity—time saving and labor saving. Don't be without one any longer.

Notice to Automobile Owners and Drivers

The law governing operation of motor vehicles is very stringent and penalties for violation are very severe. The new law limits speed to 35 miles per hour on public highways; 15 miles per hour in limits of towns and villages; prohibits driving by children under 14; and provides for arrest without warrant, of all violators. There has been two very serious accidents in Dona Ana County, recently, both caused by violations of this law. To prevent injuries and deaths, the sheriffs have been notified to arrest violators of this law and they will be prosecuted and punished accordingly. Your observance of this law may save a life and will obviate prosecutions. J. BENSON NEWELL, District Attorney, Sept. 30-Oct. 21.
