JAILED.

Synopsis.—Young Carlyle Wilburton Dale, or "Bill Dale," son of a wealthy coal operator, John K. Dale, arrives at the Halfway Switch, in eastern Tennessee, abandoning a life of ease and incidentally a bride, Patricia Clavering, at the altar—determined to make his own way in life. He meets "Babe" Littleford, typical mountain girl. "By Heck," a character of the hills, takes him to John Moreland's home—Moreland is chief of his "clan," which has an old feud with the Littlefords. He tells Dale of the killing of his brother, David Moreland, years ago, owner of rich coal deposits, by a man named Carlyle Dale, who believes the man was his father. Dale makes his home with the Morelands. Talking with Babe, Dale is ordered by "Black Adam" to leave "his girl" alone. Dale whips the bully. He arranges with John Moreland to develop the coal deposits. Ben Littleford sends a challenge to John Moreland to meet him with his followers in battle. Moreland agrees. The two clans line up for battle. Babe Littleford fires the first shot. Dale, in an effort to stop the fighting, crosses to the Moreland side of the river, and is accidentally shot by her father and seriously wounded. The fight stops and Babe is taken to the city. Doctors announce she is not seriously hurt. Dale meets an old friend, Bobby McLaurin, who has married Patricia Clavering. Dale's father admits he killed David Moreland, and offers him funds to develop the coal. Dale declines and goes elsewhere. He realizes he loves Babe, who is to live with Patricia to be educated. He appears on the scene, and is accepted as a son-in-law. Dale is saved by "By Heck." He tries to end the feud. John Moreland and Ben Littleford declare peace. Babe comes back home, but finally promises to return to Patricia. Dale and Black Adam exchange shots. Black Adam is killed. Dale is accused of killing Black Adam. He promises to return to Patricia.

The three women turned their eyes toward the lucky moonshiner. He was standing straighter than they had ever seen him standing before, and he held his repeater across one of his thin shoulders in a manner that was almost soldierly. It was as though he had just discovered a hidden treasure of unknown depth to himself.

The truth was that he was carrying a secret that was great, and almost too much for him.

The aged mother rose with a rheumatic groan. "Looky here, fly," she demanded, "what on earth's the matter of ye? He ye done went and swallowed a rifle's ramrod, or a fishin' pole that ye walk as cussed straight and look like a plumb daddled fool?"

"No, maw," grinned her son, "Nothin' like it. I'm just hungry that's all. My gosh, if I don't feel hungry enough to eat a whole raw yeller dawg! And top it off with a couple o' baked houn-cakes. Durn my eyes and blast my forehead I wisht ye'd come and go home along as I go, maw, and git me some dinner."

"All right, fly, all right." To Mrs. Littleford "Come down and bring

"No, maw," grinned her son. "I'll see that the animal is well cared for, sir," he said to Dale. "And as soon as I have seen to our horses, I'll be with you. I wish to talk matters over with you. Suppose I bring supper for us both, eh?"

Dale thanked Bradley, and turned away with the officer. They walked a short block and entered a low, square building of brick and stone of which the windows were small and high and barred with iron. Dale knew that it was the Cartersville jail, and his heart sank in spite of him. Just as death by violence had been entirely new to

"I axed you, sonny boy," the witch-like old woman went on, "who did you reckon killed Black Adam?"

"The rain in the air," as though he had not heard. "Ef it don't rain today, it'll shore rain tonight."

"Now looky here!" snapped Granny Heck. "I said who did you think killed Adam Ball?"

By Heck did not smile, nor did he frown. "Ef it don't rain today nor tonight," he drawled, "it'll shore rain tomorrow. I toll ye, mother, the rain in the air."

"By? By! Ye daddled old jitt!" protested the old woman vehemently. "Now you answer me what it was I axed ye!"

Said Samuel Heck, unperturbed: "Grandpap Moreland still has to take his old gray cat down off o' the front porch roof every mornin' of his life. Jim Littleford's wife's son's grandpa's son-in-law is named Jim Littleford. Abner Moreland's got a old speckled oxen 'at ain't got but one good eye. Isaac Littleford talks through his nose. Little Tom Moreland's pap's old 'coon dawg ketches a big, pore 'possum last night with one foot gone whar it had been gnawed off in a trap. Babe Littleford's got to be the hell-roarin'est, purtiest gyurl in the world. Bill Dale he said a man whod say 'eyther and 'neyther in place of 'eather and 'neether would part his hair in the middle and wear a bow on the back of his hat and ribbon in his underclothes. Maw?"

"What?"

"Le me ax ye a question," with a mock solemnity that was ultra-ridiculous. "Pleaso don't try to joke w' me, yore pore hungry cheild. Maw, inwment to goodness, will ye tell me the truth?"

Hopeful, she bent toward him. "O' course, honey boy, I'll toll ye the truth. What it is, darlin'?"

He whispered it: "Maw, don't deceive me. What was my maiden name?"

Granny Heck became so angry that she trembled. To her, baffled curiosity was but little better than torture.

"I wish I may drop dead right here in my tracks," she declared sturdily, "ef I git you a daddled bit to eat and tel you gi' me a sensible answer! Who, I said, dang it all, did you think it was killed Black Adam, the hound dawg o' puggatory?"

"Don't talk so infernal loud, mother," and By Heck smiled a pale smile. "I don't think who killed Black Adam: I know who killed Black Adam. But, god, it needn't to worry Bill Dale none! Git this here, mother dear—whenever it was done it shore ain't a-goin' to let nary hair in Bill Dale's head suffer fo' it!"

One of old Granny Heck's bony fingers shot out toward her son like a weapon.

"It was you, fly!" she accused. "It was you killed Black Adam Ball! Now own up to me, son, and I'll bake ye some cornbread with aigs and hawg-renderin' in it. Wasn't it you that done it?"

By Heck looked toward some fleecy white clouds that were sailing slowly, like ships of silver and pearl in a sunny cerulean sea, over the rugged crest of the majestic Big Pine.

"The rain in the air," he drawled. "Ef it don't rain today, it'll rain tonight; and ef it don't rain tonight, it'll rain tomorrow. Yeh; the rain in the air, mother, as shore as dammit."

CHAPTER XII.

Jailed.

Cartersville nestles close between the points of two outlying foothills, and it is a delightfully fancy and old-fashioned town. For the most part it is made up of gabled old brick houses, which have pretty settings of green lawns, roses, honeysuckles and treen. Even in the small business district, the streets are lined with trees. They have electric lights there, and water mains, a common school and a high school, a courthouse, a jail and a theater.

It was a little after nightfall when Dale and the other two men rode through the shaded streets. Dale noted that the people they met under the swinging lights spoke cordially and with marked courtesy to his companions. It was very evident that the officer and Major Bradley were high standing in these-here towns.

Sheriff Tom Flowers drew in before a hitching-post that stood in front of the courthouse, a great old wooden building with a clock in its tower.

"Well dismount here," said he. "They axed. The major took the reins of Dale's horse."

"I'll see that the animal is well cared for, sir," he said to Dale. "And as soon as I have seen to our horses, I'll be with you. I wish to talk matters over with you. Suppose I bring supper for us both, eh?"

Dale thanked Bradley, and turned away with the officer. They walked a short block and entered a low, square building of brick and stone of which the windows were small and high and barred with iron. Dale knew that it was the Cartersville jail, and his heart sank in spite of him. Just as death by violence had been entirely new to him, so also was this entirely new to him.

Flowers took a ring of heavy keys from the hand of the jailer, and led the way down a whitewashed corridor. It was not yet bedtime, and the other prisoners were still up; some of them were reading newspapers, others were trying to mend their clothing, still others were doing nothing. A few of them called out boldly and bade the new prisoner welcome—and each of these received a gruff order from the sheriff to keep quiet. Dale paid no attention whatever to his would-be tormentors.

At an iron door at the end of the corridor, the officer halted and faced about.

"If there could be such a thing as a comfortable cell here," he said in a low and kindly tone, "it's this one." He went on earnestly: "Now I want you to believe me when I tell you that it is with real regret that I put you behind a door of iron. But if I didn't do it, somebody else would do it; and it's possible that I can be a little more decent about it than another officer would be."

"I realize all that, y'know," replied Dale, "and I'm very much obliged to you, sheriff."

Flowers unlocked the door, and Bill Dale walked in. Flowers locked the door and went away.

Dale began to inspect his quarters. To all appearances, they were at least clean. There was a narrow bed covered with a pair of gray blankets, a stool and a soapbox, and nothing more.

The light in the corridor behind him made snaky black lines of bar-shadows on the brick partition walls and the outer wall of stone. Dale shuddered in spite of himself. He put up one hand and turned on a small light, which dissipated the uncanny shadows—and showed him a line from Dante's "Inferno" that to him seemed very memorable; some former occupant of that cell had written it with charcoal on the whitewashed outer wall.

Then Dale sat wearily down on the narrow bed, leaned his head upon his hands, and began to think.

He had always wanted difficulties to overcome, barriers to surmount, a work to do, a fight to fight for himself. In full measure he had found them every one. He did not doubt his ability to overcome the difficulties, surmount the barriers, do his work well and fight his fight as a good man fights, and win—if it were not for the charge of having shot and killed Black Adam Ball! It seemed to him now that that must end all that was worth while for him. For that was more than a difficulty, more than a barrier.

He firmly believed that it had been his bullet that had finished the earthly existence of the giant hillman. True, it had been an accident. But how was he to convince a jury that it had been an accident? Would the jury take his word for it? The jury would not, of course.

The mysterious third shot, that had come from a little distance—but he could not reasonably expect deliverance from that source. If only he had held down his abominable, savage temper; if only he had—

Major Bradley interrupted his unpleasant train of thought.

"No brooding there, my boy!"

Dale looked up. The old attorney, as neat in appearance as though he had not even seen a saddle that day, was standing just outside the hateful door of bars. Beside him stood a whitehead negro boy with a big tray of steaming food on one hand and a pot of steaming coffee in the other.

The jailer came and unlocked the door; also he very considerably brought another stool and fresh water. The major entered the cell, and the negro followed.

An amused twinkle appeared in Dale's eyes as Bradley put the tray down on the soapbox. There was enough for five threshing-machine hands! The black boy was sent to the front door to wait.

"I thought you'd be as hungry as I am, and I'm as hungry as poor old By Heck ever was!" laughed the major, as he sat down and began to pour the coffee. "Hiding always made me as hungry as a bear in April. Light right into it, Dale. There's nothing like a good steak for any meal, when a fellow is half starved; eh, Dale? Try that one, won't you? I told Messengale he wasn't perfect. Messengale," he added, "runs the hotel here, the Eureka Funeral Parlors, and the One-Piece Clothing Emporium."

"I wonder," smiled Bill Dale, "what he does with his spare time?"

Bradley laughed, his eyes twinkling merrily. Dale found that he too was hungry, now that savory odors had invaded his nostrils. A minute later, and he had pronounced his steak delicious.

"Messengale shall not suffer because of you," said the major; and he began to carve his own steak.

It was an excellent meal, the grins surrounding notwithstanding. When it was over, the negro boy came and took away the dishes, and received with a gladstone grin the two silver rates that were given him. Then Bradley produced a handful of cigars, and two of them were promptly lighted.

"Now, sir," said the old lawyer, "I feel like talking. Let's see, you gave your man Hayes orders to carry the work right along, as though nothing had happened, didn't you? And the sheriff is to go back the day after tomorrow to arrest two or three Balls and two or three Torreys, to see what he can find out concerning the dynamite—today was not a good time to make the arrests. Am I correct?"

"Correct," nodded Dale.

Bradley regarded his cigar thoughtfully.

"Now," he said in a low tone, suddenly lifting his gaze to the other's face, "tell me about the thing that brought you here. Don't omit even the slightest detail. Nobody can overhear you if you will hold your voice down. These walls are very thick, you see. Well, you may begin."

In carefully guarded tones, Bill Dale gave a straightforward account of the whole unfortunate occurrence. The major listened intently to every word of it, so intently that he allowed his cigar to go out. Often he stopped his client and asked him to repeat certain portions of the story in order that he might be doubly sure of a point.

An Major Bradley rose to ask the jailer to come and let him out. Dale muttered downheartedly:

"Tell me, major: what do you think of my case? It looks rather bad, doesn't it?"

"Not had enough to warrant your feeling blue over it, my boy!" said Bradley, showing his polished white teeth in a smile that was meant to be reassuring. "I think we'll get you out of it. Anyway, don't worry about it. Worry will kill a cat, they say! You didn't kill Adam Ball, John Moreland had taught you how to shoot pretty well; and if you took even half as careful an aim as you think you did, you couldn't have missed Ball's hat by so much."

"I have an idea, Dale," he resumed, "that if we knew who fired that third shot we'd know who did for Ball. It might have been done in order to save you. Ball was noted, I understand, as an unfair and tricky fighter. He might have been trying to trick you when he rose and fell groaning. Perhaps he meant to draw you into the open, that he might have a clean shot at you. Eh?"

Dale shook his head gloomily.

"Hardly plausible, major. In that event there was nothing against the man whose bullet finished Ball, because he did it to save me; and he would have owned to it and prevented my arrest. A man who liked me well enough to kill Ball to save my life would like me well enough to confess and save me from suffering for it. I am sure of that, major."

"Ah, my boy," smiled the older of the two, "you don't yet know the mountain heart. Jail is a terrible thing to the liberty-loving mountaineer. But love of you, and love of fair-dealing, will soon overcome the fear of jail, and you will be freed—if what I strongly suspect—proves to be well founded. I'll leave you now, Dale. I'll see you in the morning, sir. Good-night!"

When his optimistic attorney had gone, Dale glanced once more at the to him miserable line from Dante's "Inferno," and began to remove his outer clothing preparatory to going to bed. He did not feel anything like so confident concerning the outcome of his trial as Major Bradley evidently felt. Then he became even more dejected, and he told himself that the major had spoken so reassuringly merely to help him keep up heart.

The night passed, and another bright summer day dawned, and in the Cartersville jail there was one prisoner who had not slept at all. Each of those long and heavy black hours had been an age to this prisoner to whom jail was so new.

At noon a furious windstorm, accompanied by much vivid lightning and blinding rain, sprang out of the west and began to sweep the countryside and out of the lowering wet gloom there came one to deliver Bill Dale. He was a mountaineer, young and stalwart and strong, and about him there was much of that certain English fineness that was so striking in his father.

He entered the low square building of brick and stone and stopped in the center of the corridor, where he stood, while water ran from his wet clothing and gathered in little pools at his feet, and looked to his right and to his left. Dale saw him, and cried out in surprise:

"Caleb!"

Caleb Moreland walked straight, his head up and his shoulders back, a splendid picture of virile young manhood, to the end of the corridor. He gripped two of the door's hated bars, bars that had long been worn smooth by other human hands; he pressed his smoothly shaven, sunburned face against the iron, and smiled.

"How are ye a-feelin' by this time, Bill? It's some h—l of a place, ain't it?"

Dale took a step toward him. "Well, a queen's boudoir is nicer. What are you doing here, Caleb?"

"I've come to set you free," said Caleb Moreland.

Dale stared unbelievably. "But that is impossible, Cale. How could you set me free?"

"Call Tom Flowers, and I'll sight ye."

Dale called, and the officer came immediately. Caleb Moreland turned from the cell door and faced him.

"I've come here to own up to the killing o' Black Adam Ball," began the young hillman.

He swallowed, went a trifle pale under his tan, and continued bravely:

"Bill Dale that, he never done it. I am the one 'at done it. Bill he shot at Adam, but he missed—Adam had done shot at Bill first, y'understand, Tom. But I didn't miss. I don't never miss. I'm a plumb tombsstone shot. They allus rules me out at any shootin' match. I'd ha' owned up to it yest'oday, but the thought o' jail had me skeered bad. I jest can't let as good a man as Bill Dale that suffer fo' a thing I done myself. So you let him out, Tom, and put the right man in there."

Flowers had a good heart, and this touched it. But he was not very much surprised.

"Tell us about it, Caleb," he requested.

Caleb looked toward Dale, then he faced the lord of Cartersville's little prison again.

"Well, sheriff, when I seed Bill Dale go off toward the trustee by himself and alone, I knowed right then he was in danger o' bein' laywaged by some o' them thar lowdown Balls and Cherokee Torreys. So I decided to foller after him and gyard him with out him a-knowin' anything about it, which same I done. When he met Adam Ball—"

He broke off abruptly.

"Go on," urged Flowers.

"I reckon I won't," smiled Caleb, and his eyes were still twinkling. "I reckon I won't do no more talkin' jest now. Yea, I reckon the proper place fo' me to do my big talkin' is in the cotchouse at my trial. Lick me up will ye Tom?"

"Well see," said Flowers.

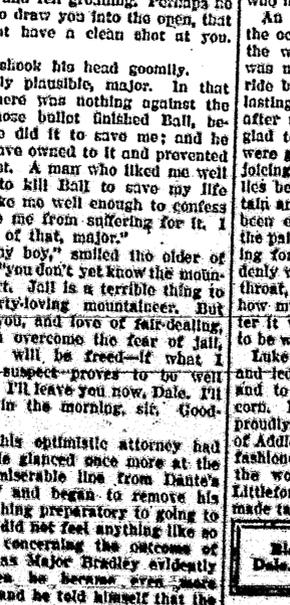

Forthwith he dispatched a deputy for Judge Carter and Major Bradley, who hastened to the jail.

An hour later Caleb Moreland was the occupant of the cell at the end of the whitewashed corridor, and Dale was mounting his bay horse Fox to ride back into the heart of the everlasting hills. He arrived two hours after nightfall. The Morelands were glad to see him, and the Littlefords were glad to see him. There was rejoicing there in the broad valley that lies between David Moreland's mountain and the Big Pine. Everybody had been expecting him, and many were the pairs of eyes that had been watching for him. He found himself suddenly wishing, with a tightening at his throat, that his father could know how much bigger and how much better it was to be thus esteemed than to be wealthy.

Luke took charge of his tired horse and led it away to the old log barn and to some fifteen ears of yellow corn. Luke's father escorted him proudly, the guest of honor in to one of Adde Moreland's incomparable old-fashioned suppers, which was none the worse for being late. Several Littlefords sat at the long, homemade table.

Black Adam's falls captures Dale.

MRS. HAYDOCK SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Followed Advice of Her Druggist's Wife and Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 25 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the best I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6234 St. Lawrence Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved Mrs. Haydock from an operation we cannot claim that all operations may be avoided by it, but many women have escaped operations by the timely use of this old-fashioned root and herb medicine.

Small Favors.

"Would you get up in a street car to give a lady a seat?"

"I would," replied Mr. Groselots, "and be thankful for having had a seat to occupy for even a portion of the trip."

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the following statement: "I have seen many applicants for insurance who are rejected because of kidney trouble. It is common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease."

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer, of Elmwood, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

What Raindrops Mean to Farmer

Crop Reports Indicate Difference Few Showers Make in Humanity's Scheme of Things.

BIG PART PLAYED BY NATURE

Takes About 2,260 Tons of Water to the Acre to Grow a Food Crop—Process of Evaporation Yields Chemicals Valuable as Fertilizer.

Washington, D. C.—"Rain might be looked upon as the oil which lubricates the world's economic machinery," says a bulletin issued from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society in connection with recent reports of world-wide drought damage to crops.

"With the smallest estimated cotton crop since 1893," continues the bulletin, "with spring wheat in poor condition at home as well as in many of the other wheat countries of the world, with other important crops below their average, and with drought-cost as the villain, in each case, the difference that a few showers make in humanity's scheme of things is strongly emphasized.

Depends on Rainfall. "While everybody realizes in a general way that the world depends on rainfall and fertility for food, there are very few, perhaps, who even approximately appreciate how comparatively little the farmer actually does in the great process of crop-growing.

To plow millions of acres furrow by furrow, to spend millions of dollars on fertilizers, and to reap and gather and thresh, is no mean task. And yet compared with the part that nature plays in the process, man's work seems a very slight labor. For instance, it takes about 20 inches of rainfall to grow a food crop under our general farming methods, which means about 2,260 tons of water to the acre.

That seems a preposterous figure, but the doubter can easily demonstrate its correctness. Suppose the American farmer had to haul the water his ground must have to give him a good crop, and that the distance and freight rate were the same as the average railroad haul and rate in the United States. On that basis it would cost him more than $4,000 an acre to water his place.

"But not only would his water bill be nearly half a million dollars on a 100-acre farm, but his fertilizer bill, also, would amount to a neat little sum. It is estimated that in the process of normal evaporation, soil water presents the rootlets of its neighborhood with about fourteen pounds of ammonia a year to the acre. Also, it gives them some 57 pounds of potash. With sulphate of ammonia costing only 2 cents a pound (it cost 5 1/2 during the war) and a hundred pounds of the sulphate required to contribute 17 pounds of ammonia, it will be seen that the process of evaporation gives the rootlets $1.05 worth of ammonia to the acre.

Automatic Fertilization.

"When the World War cut off German supplies of potash and it soared to $400 a ton, geologists scoured the United States for the priceless fertilizer with little success. Yet the process of evaporation generously hands out more than half a hundredweight to the acre, in war and peace. This automatic fertilization is worth an additional $2.50 an acre to the farmer at present prices, and would have cost him $10 an acre at war prices.

"From this it will be seen that the $12 to $25 an acre that it costs the average farmer to grow wheat is a small figure indeed, compared to what he saves by having nature as his water wagon and fertilizer source."

Russ Princes Ask U. S. Brides

Refugee Noblemen in Turkey Are Perfectly Willing to Marry for Money.

HOPE TO GET BACK ESTATES

Many Refugee Russian Women Have Married Turks in Order to Get Temporary Homes—Still Retain Their Politeness and Courtesy.

Constantinople.—The arranging of marriages between Russian princes and well-to-do American women is the latest scheme advanced here by an ingenious Russian to get a livelihood for workless, penniless refugees living on American and other charity.

It is argued that the American woman, in addition to the title, make a good business bargain, since the exiled Russian noblemen all have large estates which they hope to recover when private property is restored and Bolsheviki Russia is no more.

Many Russians have open minds on the marriage question. Many of the refugee Russian women have married Turks since their arrival here, in order to get temporary homes. The Russian men have followed suit. Many of the older ones have married Greek women.

And Age Has Its Weddings. "Youth has its follies, age its stupidities," said a Russian general, no longer young, when inviting a friend to his wedding.

The difficulty of locating these American wives across the seas is not one to stump the imaginative Russian mind, which readily adapts itself to the lighter branches of commerce, and has succeeded here with cafes, beauty parlors, manicure and tea shops, concert halls and public grounds.

The first and only bathing pavilion near here has been established at Florida beach, on the Marmora sea, by a group of Georgian princesses, through the loan of American Red Cross tents.

Men Are Out of Luck. The condition of Russian men refugees here is bad, as there are few industries or factories to provide work. Recently the French government cut off its food rations to several thousand men, though still feeding a certain number of children, women and old men.

It is hard for them to get passports to go to other countries. Serbia has accepted some 20,000, but her leniency to refugees is finding its limit. Prince Goltz, who formerly held immense estates near Kiev, and may recover them, among hundreds of others, is attempting to earn a living by utilizing his knowledge of precious stones of which he once had a large collection.

Such men often lose their clothing and baggage to rapacious landlords who serve them in default of the payment of room rent, but the Russian aristocrats never lose their politeness and courtesy in adversity.

They still kiss the hands of the women, after the manner of their country. Often cheerful and courageous in the face of poverty, they share their last money with friends.

HANGMAN OBJECTS TO SLURS Declares He is a Perfect Gentleman and That His Calling is Honorable and Useful.

Budapest.—The hangman of Hungary has risen to indignant defense of his calling and denounced those who cast slurs upon it. He was prompted by sneering references made in the Hungarian national assembly. Friends of former Emperor Charles and the anti-Hapsburgs are always quarreling there, and in some cases have shouted at one another, "The hangman is your friend."

Michael Ball, the official hangman, has resented such slurs. "My vocation," he writes to the president of the national assembly, "is as honorable and useful as that of judges, lawyers, ministers or kings. Why should the old superstition hold in modern times that the hangman's profession is disgraceful, abominable and loathsome? My friends are all perfect gentlemen and any member of parliament can consider it only flattery when he is called my friend."

ring, so there is no expense for a central. It is possible with a system like this to connect various parts of the farm or distant barns with the house, or the tenant house with the farm home, at a very low cost. While such a system leaves much to be desired in the way of service, it meets an emergency and can be made to answer, pending the coming of times when conditions will warrant a more expensive and more satisfactory system.

Dogs Rout Tobacco Pests. Marlett, Pa.—Marlin S. Stoll, a tobacco grower, who resides on a farm several miles east of this place, has two dogs, one a spaniel and the other a fox terrier, which he has trained to hunt worms from his tobacco. From the time they enter the patch until they leave they are busy with their noses, sniffing and smelling tobacco bugs from the leaves. They take the worms from the leaves without damaging the plants, and as a result the tobacco on the Stoll farm is among the finest in the country, being almost free from worm holes.

Left Husband 150 Times in 14 Years' Wedded Life

Melan Caldwell of Detroit, Mich., left her husband, John, 150 times during their married life from 1907 to 1921, John told Judge Harry J. Dingsman. He asserted his wife was fond of dancing; that, on coming home from work at midnight, he would find her little boy sitting on the front steps waiting for him and that his wife would come in later, saying she had been to a dance. He was given a decree.

Cattle Rustlers Busy.

Houston, Tex.—The old cattle rustling days are coming back to southern Texas.

Wholesale cattle thefts here and in surrounding counties have been reported. Deputy sheriffs armed with search warrants visited a farm nine miles from here. They found the hides and heads of three calves. The brand had been cut off.

Officers say there is a ring of cattle thieves operating in the state.

Health is Your Most Valuable Asset Here is How to Take Proper Care of It

Bonnie, N.Y.—"I know Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to be a wonderful help to women during pregnancy. Always during that time I took it and it was the means of keeping me in a strong, healthy condition, made the ordeal much easier, and my children were stronger and healthier than they would have been if I had not taken their medicine. I can highly recommend it to all at this critical period; they will find it an excellent medicine."—Mrs. Edith Roberts, 524 W. Conserving Wheat.
An odd suggestion was recently made as to conserving wheat. It is proposed to crush or rough grind wheat, then soften with super-heated steam and compress in hard blocks and store until wanted, when a simple crushing process would fit it for flour manufacture. — Indianapolis News.

WIRE FENCE PHONES ARE IN USE

Farmers in South Dakota Use the "Barbed-Wire System."

County Agricultural Agent Assists Farmers to Install System at Cost of Less Than $20 Each.

Washington.—There are still many rural homes that do not have telephones and, as at present economy in all lines is imperative, interest is reviving in the "barbed-wire system," which was more or less common in parts of the West 30 years ago.

In Carbon county, South Dakota, the county agricultural agent has assisted farmers to install such a system at an average cost of material per farmer of less than $20. Carbon County is 27 miles long and very sparsely settled, although the agricultural lands are fenced. Standard telephone lines appeared to be too expensive, yet there was a great need of facilitating communication. The county agent furnished information regarding the cost of installing the line, using porcelain nail knobs for insulation, which cost about $5 per mile. These knobs work satisfactorily when the barbed wire is tied to them with a short piece of wire.

In order further to reduce the cost some farmers used pieces of rubber cut from automobile inner tubes as insulators. Pieces of the tubing 1 1/2 inches square were wound around the barbed wire and fastened to the post with staples. The county agent reports that this insulation is giving satisfaction, although, of course, the rubber will deteriorate in time.

The farmers were able to obtain second-hand phones at from $5 to $20 each and 50 cents bought a lightning arrester, so that the total cost per farmer was comparatively nominal. Each farmer has his own special Record Rainfall in Panama.

When 2.47 inches of rain fell in three minutes at Porto Bello, Panama, during the night of November 20, 1911, it was the heaviest rainfall ever recorded. This rainfall exceeded by 100 per cent the rate measured at Curtea do Arges, Roumania, in July, 1853, heretofore held to be the world's record, says B. C. Kadel of the United States weather bureau.

So great was the Panama rainfall that all the conditions under which it was measured were carefully examined, in order that there might be no question as to the accuracy of the record. It was found that the circumstances corroborated the testimony of the recording instrument.

More Hunters Out This Year Than Ever Before

In conversation with Mr. T. E. Kelley, local Winchester dealer, he believes last year's record of 7,000,000 hunters will be broken. Statistics furnished by the Department of Agriculture, which department keeps close tabs on the license figures and game conditions in the United States, show that more than 4,000,000 persons took out hunting licenses in 1920 and that an additional 3,000,000 hunted with out license on their own grounds. These figures will be surpassed in 1921, according to Mr. Kelley, of the local Winchester Store, who ventures the opinion that game is more plentiful this season than for a number of years and in consequence the demand for shotguns is greater than in years.

"Users of guns are the most discriminating people in the world," according to Mr. Kelley. "They are," he continued, "satisfied only with a shotgun that is unquestionably the best. A man might deliberately purchase a second grade pair of shoes, but no one who knows anything about firearms would ever select a gun that he knows will not give him accuracy and durability. It isn't being done, that's all."

On this theme he continued: "Winchester guns are the standard the world over and have been for more than half a century. During this time they stood for power, accuracy and durability. Rifles were first produced by the Winchester organization and later shot guns were turned out. From a one-room affair the Winchester plant in New Haven now occupies 80 acres."

In eastern wholesale fresh meat markets, beef, veal and lamb prices were generally higher than a week ago. Mutton and fresh pork loins were practically steady. Veal advanced 1c to 1 1/2c; lamb, 1c to 1 1/2c. Good grade meats: Beef, $14@15.50; veal $13@20; lamb, $17@19; mutton, $12@13; light pork loins, $24@28; heavy, $19@22.

Dairy Products. Butter markets firm under steady demand for fancy grades. There has been more shifting to storage goods, which at present prices show a profit. Cooling exists in some quarters, but markets are becoming top heavy, following the steady advance this month. Confidence in the whole is a fairly confident one at present. Closing prices, 10c score: New York, 42 1/2c; Chicago, 46c; Philadelphia, 46c; Boston, 46 1/2c.

Grains. Wheat market displayed better upturning on Oct. 15, with prices in Sterling and Continental exchange and improved cash and export demand were main bullish features. Country wheat and feed grades were steady to 1c higher, and fairly good. Corn markets were dull and featureless. Disappointing returns were received from Illinois districts. Closing prices at Chicago cash markets: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.22; No. 3 hard winter, $1.18; No. 4 mixed corn, No. 2 yellow, 60c; No. 3 white, 58c; No. 4 white, 56c. For the week Chicago December wheat gained 8 1/2c, closing at $1.15 1/2; Chicago December corn, closing at 47 1/2c; Minneapolis December wheat, gained 6c, closing at $1.20; Kansas City December wheat, closing at $1.07 1/2; Winnipeg, gained 9 1/2c, closing at $1.17 1/2; Chicago May wheat, closed at $1.10 1/2; May corn at 53 1/2c; Minneapolis May wheat at $1.25 1/2; Kansas City May wheat at $1.15 1/2; Winnipeg May wheat at $1.22 1/2.

Cotton. Spot cotton prices declined 54 points during the week, closing at 19.27 1/2 per lb. New York October down 65 points, at 19.50c.

Fruits and Vegetables. Potato shipments continued heavy, totaling 10,000 carloads. Demand limited in consuming centers; markets fairly steady. New York bulk round whites up 10c in New York, at $2.00@2.10; Philadelphia, at $2.05@2.20; sacked down 15c, at $2.35@2.50; Northern round whites up 6c to 10c in Chicago, at $1.75@1.90; round whites steady at $1.75@1.90 c. a. b. shipping points.

Danish type cabbage firm at $30@32 per ton. Local shipping points: firm in most city markets at $2.50, but down 15c in St. Louis at $40@45.

Hay. Receipts generally were not large but increased at Minneapolis and Chicago. Demand improved at Cincinnati and Kansas City. Local conditions determine price trends. Prices showed some changes during past week. Quoted prices: No. 1 timothy, New York, $28.50; Cincinnati, $20; Chicago, $23.50; Minneapolis, $18.50; Kansas City, $14.50. Alfalfa, Kansas City, $23.50; Memphis, $25; Chicago, $25. Corns, Prairie, Minneapolis, $15; Kansas City, $13; Chicago, $12.

DENVER LIVE STOCK.

Cattle. Demand seemed fairly good, but traders were slow in getting together and buyers were exhibiting a bearish attitude. Some were made at steady figures for the most part and traders were confident that the market would hold up fairly well.

The offering included nothing of particular note. The butcher material on hand was not attractive and in the cow and heifer department, where demand was the greatest, the largest shortage was noted.

Activity in the feeder department was the best and good cattle were being sold at prices ranging from $5.50 to $6.50. Some southern cattle sold for $6.50. Beef steers were quoted at $5.50 to $6 and good cows ran from $4.50 to $5, with plainer types running as low as $4.

Light hogs are favored on the local market, but all types move to good advantage. Packers and small traders figured equally in the trade and most buyers were able to secure all the stock they desired. Top sales here and at Chicago were made at 10c over, $5.50, but Chicago's bulk ranged higher. Bulk of sales at the local yards were made between $5.25 and $5.50. The latter figure represents the best. Choice hogs were quotable around $5.50 to $5.75. Eighty-five head of stocker pigs sold for serum purposes at $5.

Sheep. The sheep run on the local market established a new mark for the season. All available pens were filled and hog alloys also were commandeered. A fat ram and one load of jacks was sold for $1.25 and front stock at this time generally was quoted at $7.00 to $7.75, with less desirable animals at $6.00 to $6.50. Choice ewes were quotable around $5 and possibly higher. The highest sale was that of 700 head of 74-pound lambs at $7.40.

Feeders and good stock, weighing 60 pounds, sold for $6.75, and fair types were quotable at $5 to $5.50, with choice ranging around $7. Little live stock was noted in the cow and heifer department. Fat ewes were quotable at $3.50 to $3.75, with choice running at high as $4. Feeder ewes would have sold at $3.00 to $3.25.

Wheat Market.

Colorado settlement prices: Bar silver (American), 58 1/2; Bar silver (foreign), 57 1/2; Copper, 13 1/4; Lead, 4 1/2; Zinc, 4 1/2.

HAY AND GRAIN PRICES.

Corn, No. 2 yellow, per cwt., 33.00; No. 3 mixed, per cwt., 32.00; Wheat, No. 1, per bushel, 1.15; Oats, per cwt., 1.10.

U. S. REALTORS TO HELP JOBLESS

BULLETINS SENT OUT URGING REAL ESTATE MEN TO AID MOVEMENT.

ENCOURAGE BUILDING

MONEY PAID IN WAGES WILL BRING COUNTRY BACK TO NORMAL.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

Chicago.—Methods by which realtors may lead great assistance to President Harding and Secretary Hoover in their efforts to relieve unemployment and stimulate action in the building industry were outlined in a bulletin sent to the presidents of the 383 local real estate boards in the United States by E. B. Hiett, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"Activity in the building industry will provide employment for hundreds of thousands," he said. "Millions of dollars a day paid in wages would be used to buy products of farm and factory and so bring employment to men and women in other fields."

"Persuade your local authorities to establish a special committee on building activities. Instruct your committee on federal co-operation to survey the building situation. Turn the light of publicity on any lines that persist in maintaining unjustifiable prices and bring all pressure available to bear for proper readjustments of selling prices."

"Urges building and loan men and savings bank officers to provide additional capital for construction work. If sufficient capital is not obtainable, organize building and loan associations in your offices. Use publicity to urge the public to deposit funds in institutions that loan for building."

Denver.—Action looking toward co-operation with national bodies on the unemployment situation was taken by the Denver Civic and Commercial Association following a members' council meeting held at the Civic and Commercial building.

W. O. Winston of Minneapolis, W. A. Rogers of Chicago, D. A. Garber and Frederick L. Crawford of New York City, all nationally known contractors, addressed this meeting. These men are members of the Associated General Contractors of America and are touring the United States at their own expense to lay before the people the necessity for a revival of building as one of the means of bringing the country back to a normal business basis, and of relieving the present unemployment situation.

Bomb Wrecks Herrick Home.

Paris.—A bomb exploded in the house of Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador, seriously injuring the valet who opened the package containing it. Ambassador Herrick arrived at the house two minutes after the bomb blew up. The bomb explosion followed receipt of threatening letters which have been coming to the ambassador in the last few days in connection with the cases of two Italians recently convicted of murder in Massachusetts.

Wood Gets Vote of Confidence.

Manila, P. I.—A joint resolution, offering support to and co-operation with the administration with Governor General Leonard Wood, and expressing the hope that the concessions already granted the Philippines will be extended as a result of his administration, in order to hasten the coming of final complete independence, was adopted by the Legislature.

Postal Savings May Increase.

Washington.—Congress has been asked by the Postoffice Department to help get vast sums of money hidden in the old family sock out for deposit in postal savings banks. Payment of a higher rate of interest, as proposed in a pending bill, was urged by Courtland Smith, a representative of the postal savings system, in testimony before the House postoffice committee.

Posse and Bandits Battle.

Omaha, Neb.—One man was shot to death and two others will die and a fourth was severely wounded in a plot battle between bandits and a sheriff's posse ten miles southwest of Osceola, Iowa, after the bandits had looted the postoffice and three stores at Columbia, Iowa.

Dr. Brumfield Found Guilty.

Roseburg, Ore.—Dr. R. M. Brumfield was found guilty of murder in the first degree here in connection with the death of Dennis Russell. In Oregon the penalty for murder in the first degree is death by hanging.

Harding Gets Honorary Degree.

Williamsburg, Va.—President Harding was given the honorary degree of doctor of laws by the College of William and Mary at exercises of installation of Dr. J. A. C. Chandler as president of the institution. In cap and gown, Mr. Harding, in an address, appealed for increased patriotic attention to the national educational system and praised the part played in American history by the institution, which is the second oldest college of the country.

FINDS NEW YORK IS MANLESS

Bobbed-Haired Blonde Girl Gets Tired and Decides to Go Back to Dixie.

"Yes," said the serious-bobbed-haired blonde, "I've at last made the decision, so with trunk packed and some regrets I'm going back to Dixie. When I came up to New York I came straight from college, full of pep, enthusiasm, modern in every way, I thought, and confident that a great place was waiting for me—maybe star for Belasco. I'd always been told I was a born actress."

"So I arrived in the big town, and you know my rugged road, trying to do something, to be independent, and loving it all—hall bedrooms, uninteresting work and what not. But I have come to my senses. I know I shall miss New York, its theaters, bright lights and Fifth avenue. But I see the little southern country town, with its friendly gossip, its 'socials' and sewing parties, its simplicity, and I find I love it best."

"What, how did you guess? Well, I have known him for ages, and always declared I wouldn't, but three years of New York and never meeting the man I wanted to know, for New York is a manless place for most girls, made me ready to go back. Yes, late fall perhaps, and you must come down. I'll see that you meet the catch of the town."—New York Sun.

A Broken Journey.

"I'm not a common tramp, your honor," said the tattered individual who was charged with vagrancy. "What are you then?" "I'm a tourist. I started out to see America."

True Praise.

"I don't believe she liked your jelly." "Why not? She praised it very highly." "I know that, but I notice she didn't ask you for the recipe."—Detroit Free Press.

Dangerous Curves.

"Does your chauffeur watch out sharply for the curves?" "Altogether too sharply. You should see him rubber, whenever we pass a well-formed woman."

She Had the Best of It.

"And you tell me several men proposed marriage to you?" he said, savagely. "Yes, several," the wife replied. "In fact, quite a number." "Well, I only wish you had married the first fool who proposed." "I did."—London Tit-Bits.

A COAT OF NATURAL CARACUL

JACK O'LANTERN.
"Well, what are you doing?" asked Billie Brownie.

"I'm waiting for Halloween," said Mr. Jack O'Lantern.
"Do you think I am handsome?" he asked after a moment.
"Very handsome," said Billie Brownie.

"I was made by a very fine boy," said Jack O'Lantern. "I thought he would make me handsome. I was pretty sure that he would. I was a little nervous when he was cutting out my nose for fear he'd give me a crooked nose."

"But he didn't; no, he didn't. I have a fine nose, haven't I?"
"Indeed your nose is a thing of beauty," said Billie Brownie.
"And my eyes are nice, eh?" asked Jack O'Lantern.

"There is nothing the matter with your eyes," grinned Billie Brownie.
"Good," said Jack O'Lantern.
"And," he added after a moment, "I have just one more question to ask you."
"By all means, ask it," said Billie Brownie.

"I do hope you feel like admiring my mouth," said Jack O'Lantern. "It is such a nice big mouth."
"It is a nice big mouth," laughed Billie Brownie. "Yes, I think you're a fine fellow, and I love the head piece of a bit of green stalk you wear at the top of your head. It makes you look quite dashing."

"And I'm sure your candle will shine through you beautifully when it is lighted," Billie Brownie added.
"And then I will go calling," said Jack O'Lantern. "What joy that will be!"

"Yes, I will go calling on many people, and I will sit on their doorsteps all by myself with no one to tell me what to do and no one to tell me how to act."
"For I will know how to act. I will smile at the people and that is why I am glad my mouth is big, for if I hadn't a big mouth I might look as though I were smiling. I might look as though I were granting my best grin."

"I tell you, Billie Brownie, I'm a cheerful fellow. I never say anything that is cross."
"Now the boy who was making me had had such an unkind thing said to him the other day. I am sure the person who said it didn't realize how unkind it was."

"Well, the person said to this boy: 'I remember you in your baby carriage and I used to hold you in my arms when you were just a little bit of a baby.'"
"Now you know, Billie Brownie, no one wants to have that said to them. Of course I don't think the person meant to be unkind but no boy likes to be met and told of how he was carried when he was a baby."

"He doesn't like to talk of the days when he was a baby. And he doesn't like to be told every few moments that he has grown. He knows that without being told!"
"Dear me, some people are thoughtless at times, Billie Brownie."

"But I never make any unkind speeches. Of course I cannot talk. But even if I could talk I wouldn't say anything like that."
"A pale green bug came to call on me today," Jack O'Lantern went on. "and this bug was a fine looking one. He hopped like a grasshopper and he had long feelers. He didn't frighten me in the least, and I didn't turn a hair."

"I don't suppose you could have turned a hair when you have no hairs," laughed Billie Brownie.
"I suppose not," said Jack O'Lantern. "but then, I wouldn't have done so anyway."
"For I was made by a fine boy and I must act like a fine boy's Jack O'Lantern and mustn't be frightened by anything like that."
"Well, Billie Brownie, I see my master is coming to me now. Night is coming on and I'm going calling."
"I tell you I am excited. Oh, but I'm just as excited as I can be. I shall enjoy this evening, I know."
"Good-by! He's coming for me now!"

One-Side Parting Is the Craze of the Moment in Paris, Fashion Writer Says.

Hair always has been a subject of absorbing interest and its arrangement a matter of real importance. Poets would have been bereft of one of their best subjects had short hair for women become the fashion that it once threatened to be.

Viewed from the standpoint of the practical and the sensible, says a Paris fashion writer, long hair hasn't a ghost of a chance against short tresses for women. But fortunately the beautiful and the individual usually win over the merely practical when it comes to a matter of the personal adornment of women, and the fact remains that many of those who hastily cut off their tresses have repented at their leisure.

Hair has played a great part in history and in romance and will doubtless continue to do so despite the advocates of short hair for all women of all ages.

The people of the Orient consider it a woman's chief beauty and sacred from public view. While beautiful women have not as yet reached the advanced stage where they are willing to part with their hair, many of them are making a compromise between short and long hair by adopting a style of hairdressing which gives a bobbed effect without actually resorting to the scissors.

It does not consist of the puffed effect at either side of the face, of which everybody has long since tired, but the hair is parted slightly to one side and arranged in soft rolls from the crown of the head to the nape of the neck so that the whole appearance is that of a cropped curlure.

Bobbed effects from long hair with the soft one-side parting are the craze of the moment in Paris. For those who find this arrangement too difficult to be done at home the hairdressers have brought out bobbed transformations so that any woman who has long straight hair and does not like it, may appear at a moment's notice in bobbed curls.

THE SOFT BROWN FELT HAT

There is dash to this sport hat of soft brown felt with the crown slashed into bands to hold the broad satin ribbon.

Remove Glue.
The white of an egg will remove glue or the paste of fly paper from material. Rub the white over the soiled spot and it will roll up.

Some Fancy Trimmings.
Bridals, ribbons, galleons, fur and applique with beads and sequins are among enhancing trimmings.

NEW AUTUMN VEILS ARRIVING

Face and Headgear Decorations of Variety to Suit the Demand for Any Occasion.

Along with autumn days come veils in a multitude—capricious little duds trailed by swathing scarfs to guard against the consequences of rough weather beating upon the complexion. The new misty lace veils that merely are enhancements for the face have a wider border in fine-thread embroidery—one has a wide border in big dots while another type has a wide border in rows of stitchery in silk floss.

The usual border of these filmy veils is an embroidery design in blossom and leaves woven into the fabric. These veils are popular in black and in white. Those in colors are discordant notes. A fine net veil has chrysanthemums sprinkled over it, and a leaf design provides the border.

The net veil thickly strewn with dots and finished with a border in leaf and rosebud design is pronounced a leader for chilly days—and it is a revival of a stately vogue. The new lace veils in a thicker thread are plain, some with sparsely scattered leaves over the fine weaving, and others have conventional designs. Few small face veils are shown. The scarf veils that afford novelty in drapery over the hat brim and falling straight over the face have no fault in the market, both in lace and thin fabric. They are swathed over the hat, if so preferred, and the long ends fall behind, secured at the edge of the brim at the back in a big loose knot.

Beaver is to be popular this winter. A smart as well as practical coat of natural caracul, high collar and cuffs of beaver, proves to be a favorite.

BUCKLES WORN ON FOOTWEAR

Colonial Ornaments Are Back in Style With the Return of the Tongue Pump.

Colonial buckles on feminine footwear have returned in style with the revival of the tongue pump, one learns from the shop talk in the larger cities. Mostly the mode is modified colonial but the larger buckles also are in demand. Jet, gunmetal and nickel finishes are preferred.

The strap pump, fashion oracles say, will still be favored by smart dressers this fall. Buttons in metallic combinations to go with this footwear include bright and "matin" silver and similar effects in gold.

When Baby Eats.

By all means get a feeding spoon for baby as soon as he can sit up and hold one. You will be surprised how soon he will take hold and feed himself, and is a great help to a busy mother. A food masher goes with these spoons but isn't necessary. If a deep soup plate is used to put baby's food in, the sides of the dish afford protection from food being pushed off. Soup plates are handy and save the expense of a regular baby plate.

Linoleum Polish.

The best and most economical polish for linoleum is made from the old-fashioned ingredients of beeswax and turpentine. But the method of mixing is important. Instead of shredding the beeswax into the turpentine and letting it stand in a warm place, as is usual, melt the wax and stir it into the turpentine. Apply in small quantities with a woolen cloth and polish off with a piece of soft linen.

Cotton picking in the Pecos valley in the vicinity of Roswell, N. M., is going ahead rapidly and there is a small colony in the fields every day. It is estimated that the total production for the valley for the season will be about 9,000 bales.

William Singletary of Clovis, N. M., has a fine crop of peanuts this season. Some of the samples will be sent to the big fair which is soon to be held in Dallas, Texas. The acreage will be increased during the next year throughout the county.

Believing that the boys of the city can do much to aid in the prevention of fires, the Las Vegas, N. M., fire department has enlisted the aid of the local Boy Scouts in the work. At the suggestion of the firemen a lecture was given by the district attorney on the prevention of fires to the troops of scouts at the Y. M. C. A.

Patrick T. Brennan, who, in company with two other navy enlisted men, is accused of having absconded with $72,000 of the paymasters' office in the navy yard at Norfolk, Va., on Dec. 22, 1920, was arrested at Phoenix. Brennan's story was told in a written confession made by the prisoner, according to agents of the federal Department of Justice.

The contract for the Grady highway out of Clovis, N. M., will be let the 1st of November and the work will be started as soon as the material and equipment can be placed on the ground. The new highway will run north out of the city for thirteen miles and will be hard surfaced with caliche, and when the job is completed the total cost will be over $100,000.

W. P. Walkow, former deputy Cochise county treasurer, on trial since Oct. 10 at Tombstone, Ariz., for alleged embezzlement of county funds, brought his trial to a close by entering a plea of guilty to the charge of misappropriating $234.48, the first of eighteen charges filed against him involving shortages in the county treasurer's office said to total $35,000.

Perry Hooper, a negro, one of the twelve prisoners who escaped from the Santa Cruz county jail on June 9, was reported from Mexico at Nogales, Ariz., and was immediately arrested by Sheriff George White and placed in the county jail. Hooper was taken to Florence to serve a life sentence in the state prison for killing Della Rogers, also a negro, last November.

Returns to the Farm Bureau Marketing Association from C. H. Weaver & Co., Chicago, who handled part of the cantaloupe deal in the Mesilla valley, N. M., this season, show $20,575.41 total net for 55,707 crates or an average of 36.9 cents a crate. Thirty-three growers in this deal devoted 234 acres of land to melons. The average yield was 238.2 crates. The average net acre return to the growers was $80.91.

A limit of 40 per cent was fixed by the Automobile Club of Arizona with respect to the number of auto dealers who may be signed up as dealer-members of the club in any one community. This action was taken as protection against dealers who have already signed up and who felt that they would receive no particular benefit from this membership if every garage and repair shop in the town should become members.

Miss Edith Snowden of Phoenix was appointed chairman of the State Board of Nurse Examiners by Governor Thomas E. Campbell to succeed Miss Bertha C. Howe of Tucson, resigned.

New Mexico's first state fish hatchery is now completed and will be ready to start hatching fish by the first of the year, according to a report by Game Warden Thomas P. Gable. The superintendent's cottage is now under construction and it is thought by next spring the hatchery will be in position to release at least a million trout for the streams of the state. The total cost of the hatchery, including the cottage, will be about $35,000.

The county supervisors of Pinal county, as well as Santa Cruz, have voted to co-operate with the Automobile Club of Arizona in the posting of permanent road signs, according to an announcement from state headquarters of the club. Santa Cruz agreed to help pay for the signing two weeks ago. Agreements have been entered into whereby the counties will contribute at the rate of $1.25 for each mile of road signed, this being equivalent to about 30 or 40 per cent of the entire cost.

Promises have been made at Phoenix that silver, zinc and lead mines in the vicinity of Patagonia will be developed on an extensive scale as soon as machinery, which has been contracted for, arrives. Work will be done by the Montana Development Company, owner of the property.

The New Mexico Construction Company broke all records in the paving work at Las Vegas during the month of September, over 10,000 yards of macadam being laid. With good weather it is thought that the paving contract will be completed this fall.

MOTHER! OPEN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

A Joke on the Judge.
An old man had been found guilty of theft, and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.
"Thank you, yer honor," he said, on hearing the sentence; "I'm very glad; I didn't think at my age I'd got half as long as that to live."

TAKE ASPIRIN ONLY AS TOLD BY "BAYER"

"Bayer" introduced Aspirin to the Physicians Over 21 Years Ago.

To get quick relief follow carefully the safe and proper directions in each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin." This package is plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross."

The "Bayer Cross" means the genuine, world-famous Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years.—Advertisement.

Does Your Tobacco Sift Down into the Stem of Your Pipe?

Edgeworth Tobacco goes out into the world to make its own friends. It is a good smoking tobacco. We don't have to make many claims for it. It makes quite a number of friends for itself. Some of these good friends write to us. One of them recently sent us the following suggestion:

Larus & Bro. Co.
Richmond, Va.
Gentlemen:

Being an occasional smoker and on those occasions usually smoking your tobacco, I am writing to mention a point which might be used in your advertising to your advantage, which to my knowledge has appeared in none of your advertisements to date.

Your tobacco possesses the particular quality of not being rubbed too fine, as a great many of the various brands of tobacco are, and this should be a great selling item, as a smoker invariably experiences a great deal of difficulty in keeping the stem of his pipe clear and clean with the average tobacco, which practically always is drawn into and block up the stem. This is merely a point which I have noticed and hope that it may be of use to you.

If your pipe clogs up too quickly, we believe you'll find that Edgeworth will relieve you of one of the petty annoyances of smoking. You are not likely to become an Edgeworth fan simply on this account. You will want a smoking tobacco which has the flavor and fragrance perfectly matching your individual taste.

Edgeworth doesn't suit all smokers; it suits many—not just because it doesn't clog up the stems of their pipes, but because it's also a pretty good smoking tobacco. We invite you to try it.

Simply send us your name and address on a postcard. If you will add the name of the dealer to whom you will go for more in case you like Edgeworth, we would appreciate that courtesy on your part.

We will dispatch to you samples of Edgeworth in both forms—Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed. Edgeworth Plug Slice is formed into flat cakes and then sliced into thin, moist wafers. One wafer slice rubbed for a second between the hands furnishes an average pipeful.

Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is already rubbed for you. You pour it straight from the little blue can into the bowl of your pipe. Both kinds pack nicely, light quickly, and burn freely and evenly to the very bottom of the pipe.

Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome tin humidors and glass jars, and also in various handy in-between quantities.

COLORADO POTATO CROP PASSES LAST YEAR'S

Denver.—The 1921 potato crop of Colorado Oct. 1 was estimated at 11,800,000 bushels, compared with 10,320,000 bushels in 1920, and the crop this year was 81 per cent on Oct. 1, compared with a ten-year average of 72 per cent. The estimate for the United States was $45,587,000 bushels, according to W. W. Putnam, agricultural statistician of the United States bureau of markets and crop estimates.

Corn and wheat in Colorado showed that the estimate on corn was 15,775,000 bushels, compared to 13,940,000 last year, the latter being the largest crop in the history of the state, and this year's crop taking second place in the records. Wheat showed 30,270,000 bushels, compared with 25,407,000 bushels last year, while oats and barley showed a slight decline.

The apple crop Oct. 1 showed 3,330,000 bushels compared with 3,418,000 bushels last year. The national apple crop figured 109,710,000 bushels, compared with 244,022,000 bushels last year.

Miss McArdle Not Guilty.
Cleveland, Ohio.—Marian McArdle, 20-year-old daughter of Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, was found not guilty of complicity in the murder of Daniel Kaber, her step father, by a jury. Miss McArdle was permitted to leave the courtroom a free girl. The jury of nine men and three women had the case under deliberation several hours before reaching a decision.

Confesses Throwing Wife in River.
Detroit.—Herman F. Rademacher has confessed, according to A. W. Kent, assistant prosecutor, that he murdered his wife by throwing her over the railing of a bridge into Detroit river, where she was drowned. The act, he said, followed a quarrel while he and his wife were out walking.

Hightower Found Guilty.
Redwood City, Calif.—William A. Hightower was found guilty of first degree murder with recommendation of life imprisonment by the jury in the case in which he was charged with the murder of Father Patrick E. Healin of Colma, Calif. A motion for an appeal has been filed.

Tracing Counterfeiters.
Kansas City, Mo.—A nation-wide attempt to circulate counterfeit $20, $50 and $100 bills has been traced to this city, government agents stated. Dr. George Kowertz, arrested on a counterfeiting charge here, was said to have been the "master mind" of the organization.

Holy Cross Road Made State Highway.
Denver.—L. D. Blauvelt, state highway engineer, and H. A. Edmonds, chairman of the state highway advisory board, recently issued a memorandum which declared that the Holy Cross road from Denver to Red Cliff by way of Loveland pass was from that date on to be a state highway.

"We first got the idea three years ago and we have been working on it ever since," said Dr. O. W. Randall of Red Cliff. "The idea originated in Red Cliff and has received the whole-hearted support of the people of the towns along the route."

Arbuckle Case Nov. 7th.
San Francisco, Calif.—Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle, motion picture star, entered a plea here of not guilty to the charge of manslaughter filed against him in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe. Arbuckle's trial was set for Nov. 7. Miss Rappe, film actress, died Sept. 8, as a result, it was charged, of injuries received during a drinking party in Arbuckle's rooms at the St. Francis hotel here, Sept. 5.

Twins, 90, Still Hearty.
Leavenworth, Kan.—Although James and Joel Cheatwood, twins, living in Leavenworth county, celebrated their 90th birthday anniversary, they boast of being able to handle a plow and cut as straight a furrow as any of the "young sprouts" who are in their "teens" instead of the last of the "fifties." The brothers, who believe they are the oldest twins in the United States, enjoyed a family reunion at the home of James Cheatwood.

No longer need you put off getting a Great Majestic range. The price is right. It is simply economy to get a Great Majestic at the present price and avoid the waste and inconvenience of using the old range through another winter. Any slight reduction in price next year will not make up for wasted fuel, repairs and baking failures you are sure to have with an old worn out range. Why wait? With a Great Majestic you will do better baking. You will save fuel. The beauty and comfort of your kitchen will be increased greatly. No more uneven baking - no more fussing with damper and grates - no more inconvenience. A Great Majestic is a modern kitchen necessity - time saving and labor saving. Don't be without one any longer.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Comrey were in from their ranch near Capitan on Wednesday.

We have just received a carload of Colorado potatoes. Now is the time to buy - Ziegler Bros.

Prof. W. J. Klopp, efficient, friendly Superintendent of the Capitan High School was a Carrizozo visitor on Wednesday.

L. T. Bacot, Sr., came in from Dawson last Monday following receipt of the news of the auto accident at Capitan last week in which his son L. T. Jr., and family so miraculously escaped death. He left on Tuesday for El Paso to visit his son, who is rapidly recovering at Hotel Dieu.

Mesdames Ziegler, Scott and Children of the Carrizozo Woman's Club and Mrs. R. E. Blaney, representing the Oscuro Woman's Club, are attending the State Federation of Woman's Clubs at Roswell which closes today. The ladies will return tomorrow.

Don't forget the Halloween Dance Saturday night, given under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild of the Episcopal Church. No matter how old you are, a good time is in store for you. Old and new fashioned dances will be had and refreshments will be FREE - Ferguson's "Joy Makers" will furnish the music - That's all. Let's Go!

Harry B. Dawson, former Cashier of the Exchange Bank of Carrizozo, arrived here from his home in Wichita Falls, Tex., last Saturday. He left here when the Texas oil fever was at its height and while some of his ventures were not as successful as they might have been, he remained in the game and came out nicely ahead of it. Mrs. Dawson is visiting her parents in Alamogordo, at which place, Mr. Dawson joined her on Wednesday.

Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Conkin arrived last Saturday from Clayton, N. M., ready to take up the reins of work at the head of the Methodist Church. The Rev. conducted services on Sunday to good sized congregations. Judging from the amount of time Rev. Conkin was pastor of the Clayton Church (two years) we may express the hope that he will remain with us for a good long period, at least. His long stay in Clayton is evidence that his work was doubly acceptable to Claytonites. We extend to the Conkins the hand of welcome.

The basket ball game last Saturday between Carrizozo and Capitan was evenly contested for the first half, the score standing 13 to 13. In the last half, Capitan signed a player from Pularosa, who would have played with the home team, but manager Herron thought it best to play the game with his own team, if he lost. This change strengthened the visitors side and together with the loss of Harry Norman in substituting Bernard Merchant, George Barber, thinking Merchant had been substituted for him, dropped out. These unfortunate conditions assisted Carrizozo to a defeat of 33 to 21. The Capitan boys are a good lot of fellows and good at the game.

WEDDING AT ALTO

Sunday, Oct. 23 Ernest Blood led to the hymeneal altar, Miss Nora Hightower. Just as Rev. Simmons finished his sermon, they came up the aisle of our church and were united in marriage with the beautiful ritual of the Methodist Church. A large congregation had assembled and congratulations were many. The newly married couple are both of Alto, and we are glad to know that they will make Alto their future home. May their honeymoon be dipped enough to pour out life's best and sweetest prospects and their fulfillment. - L. W. Carleton, Alto, N.M.

Baptist Church Notes

Rev. L. M. Edwards of Hagerman, N.M., preached last Sunday at both morning and evening services, to large congregations. There will be no preaching services next Sunday, but Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. Societies will hold regular meetings as usual. The public is cordially invited.

The Woman's Missionary Union met at the home of Mrs. Carl E. Freeman on Wednesday, Oct. 27, with a good attendance. Business of much importance was transacted and some good papers read, after which refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. The ladies of this important society are planning some good work for the fall and
