CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1921

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

LOANS TO FARMERS AND STOCK GROWERS

(By Guthrie Smith.)

Santa Fe, Nov. 1.—The huge sum of $12,000,000 will be made available for loans to the farmers and stock-growers of New Mexico...

The total authorized capital of the four loan companies is $1,200,000.00, which has been largely subscribed.

The Drovers Finance corporation, of Carlsbad, was the second company to get its incorporation papers on record.

ARMISTICE DAY PROCLAMATION

Santa Fe, Nov. 1.—November 11, 1921, anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, has been designated by Gov. Mechem as a legal holiday in New Mexico.

ARMISTICE DAY

I respectfully suggest that the American Legion take charge of the ceremonies of the day; that solemn tributes of gratitude be paid to our heroic dead; that we join with the national government at Washington in mourning at the grave of the unknown American soldier to be buried at Arlington park...

LAS CRUCES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NAMES COMMITTEE ON NATIONAL PARK

Las Cruces Citizen:

Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated on the selection of the personnel of its park committee named Thursday morning to make the preliminary arrangements for the organization of the Southwestern National Park Association in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona.

The committee will meet in a few days to discuss ways and means to push the park project as suggested by Secretary of the Interior Fall in a recent conference with Mr. Brook and Atty. Mark B. Thompson at his Three Rivers ranch.

Judging from newspaper reports and letters received by the Chamber of Commerce the proposal to establish a national park in southern New Mexico is popular with the people throughout the southwest.

The El Paso Herald discussed the park plan in a leading editorial in its issue of October 26, saying the new playground would be something more to advertise, an added attraction to tourists from eastern and central states, adding:

The federal government in spending large sums of money from time to time on its parks, and as much as is needed can be put into a southwestern park. The fact that this project originated with the Secretary of the Interior insures its favorable consideration, especially if the people of the Southwest give it their cordial endorsement.

The Albuquerque Journal said this among other things in a long editorial in its issue of October 25: "Mr. Fall favors an all-the-year national park in southern New Mexico. We favor it. The people down there and in Western Texas are entitled to it. The whole inter-mountain country would benefit."

Writing to Mr. Brook, who brought the project to the attention of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce Francisco G. Tracy says the Commercial club of Carlsbad, N. M., at its joint luncheon, October 22, gave unanimous endorsement to the park proposal to include the three practically contiguous forest reserves—Lincoln, Mesquero and Alamo, adding:

"There is a class of rugged scenery in the Alamo forest reserve which is not found either in the Lincoln or Mesquero reserves and, indeed, would be difficult to match in so small a compass anywhere in the United States. In addition to that, during the summer months, tourists from the South would be able to get into cool temperature nearly a day sooner than if they had to go to the Mesquero reserve before reaching good roads."

The Citizen favors the new national park, believing it will be a great benefit to the people of New Mexico, Texas and Arizona, as well as to the hundreds of thousands in other parts of the country. The Citizen also commends the Chamber of Commerce in its wise selection of the men to form the organization committee. The project is well worth working for, and we believe that Mr. French and his colleagues will work it out in a satisfactory way.

FOREST SERVICE ADVISES HOW TO PROTECT YOUNG EVERGREEN TREES OVER WINTER

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 31.—Herman Krauch of the U. S. Forest Service, who was in charge of the Gallinas Forest Nursery last spring when Douglas fir and Engelman spruce seedlings were distributed to the public for ornamental planting, now tells how to keep them alive over winter.

Mr. Krauch says: "People who planted evergreen trees received from the Forest Service last spring are advised to keep the soil in a moist condition during the dry fall season. This is essential because, unlike broad-leaved trees which shed their leaves, evergreens continue to transpire water and this must be constantly replaced through the roots. Failure to take this precaution may result in the death of many trees during the winter. It is well to place a mulch of leaves or dead grass about the base of the trees in order to keep the ground from freezing. Where severe winter conditions obtain, it is also advisable to give the planted trees some form of protection from the wind. This is best accomplished by placing a bit of brush over the tops. The idea is to give protection yet not entirely shut out the light."

"This treatment should be repeated each fall for a few years, that is, until the roots of the trees have become well developed. After that, no further treatment, except mulching—which is always beneficial—is necessary."

Diphtheria Rapidly Increasing

Washington State Adopts Wide Child-Feeding Campaign

Diphtheria promises to be one of the most serious public health problems in the United States this winter, according to a bulletin issued by the New Mexico Bureau of Health. From all parts of the country come reports to the U. S. Public Health Service which indicate an increasing prevalence," says the bulletin. "This condition has already made itself felt in New Mexico and there is every indication that we shall experience a pronounced increase in the disease, if it prevailed through the summer months in greater amounts than usual and there have been many deaths this fall. A total of over eleven hundred cases have been reported to the Bureau this year. The Bureau will do all in its power to prevent the spread of the disease, but the cooperation of the people is absolutely necessary if real results are to be had.

"The following suggestions are made and, if followed, will prevent many needless deaths from diphtheria.

- 1. Keep children away from others who may be sick with sore throats or colds.
2. Stay away from houses in which cases of diphtheria exist.
3. If your child is exposed to diphtheria, have the doctor or health officer give him a small, protective dose of antitoxin, at once.
4. Have the doctor or health officer give your child the diphtheria vaccine, which is called 'toxin-antitoxin' and which is given in three small doses, a week apart. This vaccine is good as a preventative for at least five years, while the plain antitoxin is good for only thirty days. It takes about two months for this vaccine to work, but it is almost an absolute protection, after it has started to produce its effect.
5. If your child gets diphtheria or any suspicious sore throat, call a doctor at once and have the antitoxin given. Practically no children die of the disease if they have antitoxin on the first or second day of illness. After that time the antitoxin has a much poorer chance to cure the case. Do not take chances with any sore throat. One of the characteristics of diphtheria is that the symptoms are usually more mild in the beginning than those of tonsillitis or a simple sore throat. It is frequently impossible to recognize the difference between a case of diphtheria and ordinary sore throat in the early stages, without a laboratory test. Be on the safe side and call a doctor, if your child shows any sign of inflammation in the throat. This may give him his only chance to get well.
6. For the sake of your neighbors' children, observe all the instructions of the health officer, if you have a case of diphtheria in your home. Treat your neighbor as you would want him to treat you, if the circumstances were reversed. It is just as much a criminal act to allow a child to expose others to infection as it would be to fire a gun or drive an automobile recklessly through a street full of children. It may be that no one would be killed, but the chances are that some innocent children would be victims. Furthermore, do not wait until you are sure of the nature of the trouble before you take precautions. Start to protect other children as soon as you find your child ailing.

Diphtheria antitoxin is distributed at cost price by the State Bureau of Health for those who are unable to pay the regular price and for the use of the health officers and physicians for preventive purposes. This price is less than half that which was formerly charged. A small protective dose costs only sixty-five cents, while the largest dose used for treating a sick person, is $2.30. The former cost of this latter dose was from $7 to $9. The Bureau of Health also sells the vaccine (toxin-antitoxin) at twenty cents a dose, or sixty cents for the three doses necessary to protect a child for five years at least.

PETITION IS SIGNED FOR NATIONAL GUARD COMPANY AT ARTESIA

Artesia, N. M., Oct. 26.—A committee consisting of members of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion, have been working on the movement, in securing a unit of the New Mexico national guards at Artesia. Artesia was the home of Company C, of the old national guard of pre-war existence.

About 100 men have signed a petition, asking that a motor transport corps be organized at this place. Each signer signifies his intention to join the organization, if organized. The petition will be sent to the adjutant general's office at Santa Fe.

A large number of Artesia men are members of the cavalry troop at Carlsbad. However, a membership of one hundred men can be obtained according to the statements of a member of the committee.

Washington State Adopts Wide Child-Feeding Campaign

Washington State Adopts Wide Child-Feeding Campaign

Twenty-two counties in the State of Washington will concentrate this fall on special nutrition work for underweight children and their parents, under the supervision of home demonstration agents. Demonstrations of the best methods of bringing underweight children up to normal weight will be given and will be closely correlated with hot school lunch and supplementary nutrition demonstrations.

The interest in child feeding has been largely to the statistics that have been accumulated during the past few years, indicating that a large number of American children of school and pre-school age are underweight for their height. This condition apparently bears no relation to the prosperity of the community or to the financial or social status of the family. Irregular habits, late and hurried breakfasts, cold, unpalatable, and poorly selected lunches, delayed chores, late hours, lack of sufficient daytime rest, and the common use of tea and coffee are contributing to this very prevalent condition of malnutrition.

The plan in Washington state is to organize nutrition groups in individual communities until a sufficient number of nutrition workers and project leaders are trained for county and State-wide work. The cooperation of the county nurse is secured to weigh and measure all the children subjected for each demonstration. The children are examined by the nurse for defects. Then the parents of the children chosen are asked to sign agreements as home demonstrators to carry on the instructions given in the home.

Eight weeks are devoted to intensive work. Parents and children meet with the project leader each week, then for three months the progress of each child is carefully followed by monthly consultations with the parents, including weighing and measuring. A daily rest period, the use of at least 3 pints of milk daily, elimination of tea and coffee, and adherence to a diet recommended by the home demonstration agent, are the main elements in the systematic procedure for bringing underweight children up to normal.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 26.—Invitations will be sent to Governor M. C. McChesem, John V. Conway, state superintendent of public instruction, Prof. J. H. Wagner, president of the State Normal university, and about 100 other men of the state especially interested in Boy Scout work, to attend a conference to be held on November 21.

This conference will be for the general development of the Boy Scout idea in the state, and the possible forming of a state organization of Boy Scouts. It has been called at the request of J. P. Fitch, of Dallas, who is regional director of the Boy Scouts of the Southwest.

Dr. George Fisher, deputy scout chief of the country from New York City will also attend the conference. He has written to Glen O. Ream of this city, stating that his stay in New Mexico would be indefinite, but that he expected to put in several weeks traveling over New Mexico for the interest of Boy Scouts.

The meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. here, and will probably be in the form of a luncheon.

HEARING POSTPONED ON TELEPHONE RATES

Santa Fe, Nov. 2.—Through courtesy of W. A. Keeler, of Albuquerque, the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company has been given a postponement of 30 days time on the hearing on the proposal to increase telephone rates in New Mexico, beginning on September 28, and lasting three days, the state corporation commission conducted a hearing, and experts of the company read into the record comprehensive and lengthy reports dealing with the situation from the company's point of view. In order to allow time for the study of these records, and also to enable the company to furnish further information that had been requested, hearing will be continued to Dec. 8.

EFFORTS TO COPE WITH THE JOBLESS PROBLEM ARE BEING REDOUBLED

Washington, Oct. 30.—Efforts of the administration to solve the unemployment problem, interrupted by the threatened rail strike, are being redoubled, officials declared tonight. Secretary Hoover, officials said, is expected to call a meeting next week of the standing committee of the national conference on unemployment to begin the study of phases of the question in line with the perfection of permanent measures for insuring work for the wage earners.

In connection with the recommendations of the conference to increase employment through public work, Secretary Hoover made public reports from the twenty-seven states comprising the north-eastern section, showing the award of more building contracts in September than any other month this year, or any September in 1920.

SCHOOL NOTES

(By SUPR. E. E. COLE)

Did you ever try to edit a newspaper? At the request of Supr. Cole and through the kindness of Mr. Hanks, the editor and owner of The Outlook, the students of the High School will edit one issue of The Outlook which will be known as the Armistice Edition. The students will call upon the business and professional men of the city; so be prepared to receive them, and give something for the paper. Armistice Week is also known as Good English Week and is to be observed by the schools all over the country. The students of the Carrizozo High School who do good work on these articles will receive credit in English for written work of that week.

Through the kindness of Mr. Haley, the High School will edit the News on Commencement Week, about the middle of May.

World Cotton Conditions Generally Look Promising

Economic conditions in Europe, outside of Russia, are gradually improving, according to William R. Meadows and William L. Pryor, of the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, recently returned from a four months' trip through Europe and Egypt studying general market conditions for cotton, especially as bearing on the prospective demand for the American product. The department's representatives report that the consumption of American cotton may be expected to show a considerable increase, perhaps 10 to 30 per cent over that of a year ago.

Armistice Dance at Lutz Hall Friday night; Ferguson's "Blacksmiths" or "Joy-Makers" will furnish the music. Tickets $1.00.

CURB ON RADICAL LITERATURE

Kansas City, Oct. 26.—More drastic legislation governing transmission of anarchistic and radical literature through the mails was recommended by the Americanism commission of the American legion here today through the report of the commission of the American legion of Denton, Texas. The commission, opened its annual meeting today and began consideration of a large number of recommendations to be submitted to the national convention of the legion here next week.

The director's report recommends the passage of a law which would prohibit the sending through the mail of any printed, written, photographic or pictorial matter that has an un-American tendency and also a clause prohibiting the sale of such matter.

Concerning the Dobs case, Lindsey Blaney, of Texas, said: "Dobs violated certain statutes of the United States. He was found guilty and sentenced to serve a term in the federal penitentiary and the American legion proposes to see that he pays the penalty meted out to him by constituted courts. The American legion stands for upholding law and preserving order and this is determined to do in this and all cases."

WHITE OAKS ITEMS

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Less Harmon Oct. 26, a fine 10 1/2 pound girl. Mother and baby doing nicely.

Mrs. Chris Schale was called to her home in El Paso Tuesday morning by the illness of her husband. Her health had greatly improved while here.

The Masquerade dance was the nicest of the season; the score prize was won by Miss Dora Walker and Mrs. J. B. Culler. Many Carrizozo folks, including Ancho and Jearilla attended.

A merry crowd spent Sunday up in Dark Canyon on a picnic. After the lunch on the rocks the hike was made almost to the top of Carrizo mountain. Those in the party were: Mrs. Van Shuyek, Mrs. Schale and children, Mrs. H. S. Hanner, Misses Dora and Ruthy Walker, Lulu Current, Birds Gleason, Ploy Jones, Betty Ward, Messrs. John Little, John and Ben Walker, Miller, Price, McChastain, Jerry Current.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Speck have moved from the power house to their new home and ranch they purchased from Mr. Brazel.

Mrs. Paine of Vaughn was a week-end guest of Mrs. A. N. Price.

Mrs. Will Coe, a daughter of Sam Vella, was operated on in Roswell last week. We are glad that Rile is now well enough to return home.

BEER AS MEDICINE ENJOYS LEGAL STATUS ONCE AGAIN

Washington, Oct. 25.—Beer as a medicine, enjoys a full legal status today, through the unexpected action of the treasury department in promulgating regulations permitting its use for that purpose.

Issued in accordance with the opinion submitted by former Attorney General Palmer last March 3, holding the medicinal use of beer to be legal under the prohibition laws, and after being withheld since then, in anticipation of early action by congress on the pending anti-beer measure announcement of the beer regulations came as a complete surprise to prohibitionists, and after being withheld since then, in anticipation of early action by congress on the pending anti-beer measure announcement of the beer regulations came as a complete surprise to prohibitionists.

Predicting an immediate reaction to the treasury's announcement in the direction of increased pressure to effect enactment of the anti-beer bill, dry advocates in and out of congress did not conceal their disapproval of the department's action. Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, described it as "less defensible than at any other time."

John Moreland turned up the light a little and cracked a worn but timely joke; then he looked toward one of the men whom he had fought throughout many years, and muttered into his thick brown beard:

"Saul, friend, will ye do us the favor o' axin' the beastin', ef ye please?"

"Shore, John, o' course."

Saul Littleford, the very illiterate, faced his big fingers together across his plate, bent his head, and told the good Almighty that they were all very much obliged to Him for the fine supper they had before them, for Adie Moreland who had cooked it, for once, and for Bill Dale.

It was almost midnight when the visitors left. They had been sitting outside, on the honeysuckle-scented front porch and in the cabin yard. At last Bill Dale and John Moreland were left together on the porch.

"There's a thing that has puzzled me since the moment I got here this evening," said Dale. "Why in it that nobody seems to be grieving over Adie's being in jail?"

"The big hillman's answer came almost sharply: "No Moreland ever grieved over a sufferin' Bill."

"Dale sat up straight. "A sufferin'! What do you mean?"

"This time the big hillman's answer came slowly. "I mean 'at Cale he's a-takin' all o' the load off o' your shoulders 'at he can. Cale he's a-takin' your place in jail until the trial comes off, which'll be at the October term o' co'te. He trusts you to come back and set him free on the day o' the trial. O' course you'll do it; we hain't never doubted that fo' one little minute, Bill. But it wasn't all done fo' your sake. You're the hope o' the Morelands, and you can do a heap more here 'an Cale can."

He leaned toward Bill Dale and went on in a confidential tone.

"And I can tell ye this here o' your're found guilty o' killin' Adam Ball and sentenced fo' even one year, the Morelands and the Littlefords in a cove'll to take ye from the officers and turn ye loose with a good, long start on the law."

"Wouldn't that be rather . . ."

Dale broke off because he had seen the tall figure of a man appear in the open gateway. It was by Heck, and he spoke:

"Hello, John Moreland!"

"Hello yesself!" growled Moreland who was out at all pleased at the interruption.

Heck advanced, carrying his rifle by its muzzle. He halted with one foot on the stone step.

"I've got news fo' ye, Bill," he said, recognizing Dale even in the darkness. "I've been a-covetrappin' up at old Ball's house, and I had to choke about ten days to do it. Bill, old boy, them Balls has done swore by everything on earth and in Heaven and in Torment 'at they'll kill you if the law don't 'ign, ye'd better watch out, Bill."

John Moreland rose from his chair. "Much obliged to ye, By. And good-night to ye. Let's go into the house, Bill. I didn't think them d-d polecats had that much nerve—and I don't hardly believe it yet. It might ha' been white licker a-talkin. Their kind o' white licker ain't hawtcut. Like By Heck's in, though his'n is bad enough. Their kind'll make a man resurrect his dead inmates out o' the graveyard and shoot 'em up all over again. It ain't a goin' to do a great deal o' harm, Bill, ef ye don't light no lamp when ye go to bed. A man can't never tell just what's a-goin' to happen."

"And the Ball-Torrey outfit—?" Dale began, when the Moreland chief cut in:

"Ef the Ball-Torrey outfit pesters you, they're every one purty durnd out to dis with what is knowed generally in this section as the rifle-bullet disease."

CHAPTER XIII

Centenced to Hang.

Rhertif Tom Flowers and four able deputies rode out of Cartersville very early on the following morning. They went to the Big Pine mountain country, and by a scheme that entailed some show-down on the part of the chief officer, arrested two Balls and two Torreys on suspicion and took them away without trouble.

The two Balls and the two Torreys were lodged in the Cartersville jail and afforded their liberty and exonerated from all blame in the dynamiting affair if they would give the names of the other guilty parties and appear against them. The mountaineers declared stoutly that they knew nothing whatever of the matter, and when pressure was applied they grow sullen and refused to talk at all.

It was plain to Flowers that they did know something about it, and he finally ordered that they be kept in a cell on a diet of bread and water until (their tongues loosened. At which the Balls and Torreys swore loudly and swore that they would rot in jail first unless their kinsmen came and shot up the town and liberated them by force!

"Fo' me that is proof that you four are guilty," grimly smiled the sheriff. "And if your folks want to try stormin' the jail, let them. A full company o' militia can be rushed here within an hour, at any time, and we'll give your folks all the fun they want." It may be recorded that the four hillmen never confessed.

Bill Dale, closely shadowed by one lanky Samuel Heck with his inevitable, ever-ready rifle, went among the workers with a cheer that he did not feel. For Caleb Moreland was in jail, and Caleb Moreland was innocent. But there was one sincere delight for Dale:—Hayes was driving the little railroad ahead with all his might and all the might of his men. Hayes was in high favor with those under him; they worked even harder when he was absent than they worked when he was standing over them.

The days ran on, and there was no sign of a hostile demonstration from the Balls and Torreys. Judging from appearances, they were wholly satisfied with Caleb Moreland's being in jail.

Henderson Goff had disappeared. Dale, hoped that he was rid of the man for all time, but he wasn't. Goff was not so confident as was Major Bradley that he could establish his innocence in the matter of the dynamiting of the two buildings and the trestle. He wished very much to steer clear of arrest, for reasons of his own, and he was biding his time in a little town in western North Carolina. When the dynamiting affair had blown over, he would go back and try again, perhaps by an altogether new scheme, to get himself into possession of the Moreland coal.

Then there came to the neighborhood a man whom no Moreland, and none of the Littlefords, had ever set eyes upon before. He was a very uncouth mountain man, with long black hair and shaggy beard; his clothing was outlandish and ragged. He had not much to say; there was about him, somehow, an air of mystery.

Two days after his arrival, in the afternoon, the stranger met Dale midway between the Halfway switch and the opening of the coal vein, and stopped him with an unpraised hand.

"What Do Ye Think o' This Here?" He Wanted to Know.

"Do you know good coal when you see it?" he drawled.

"Why?" asked Dale, on his guard.

The stranger looked sharply in all directions, as though he wished to make sure that no person was within earshot of them. Evidently satisfied, he drew from a trousers pocket a shining black lump of coal, which he held out for Dale's inspection.

"What do ye think o' this here?" he wanted to know.

Dale took the lump and examined it closely. It was apparently as good as the Moreland coal, which had sent the expert Hayes into raptures. Dale then looked closely at the stranger. He appeared to be honest; his gaze was steady, and seemed very innocent.

mine is the only vein in the whole country?"

"Where did you get this?" Dale repeated.

"Do ye think," drawled the other, "at I'm plumb fool enough to give my find away fo' nothin'?" I been pore all o' my life, mister!"

"How am I to know," frowned Dale, "that you've really got a find?"

"Ye'd believe your own two eyes, wouldn't ye?"

"Yes," Dale agreed, "I'd believe my own two eyes, of course? What's your name, and where are you from?"

"What do I git outen it? I don't own the mountain it's in, but it shore can be bought fo' fifteen cents a acre. And nobody knows about it but jest me. It lays closer to the railroad 'an this here Moreland vein, too. What do I git 'outen it, mister?"

The mountaineer seemed more honest than ever, but Dale was still on his guard. He asked again:

"What's your name, and where are you from?"

This time the answer came readily: "My name it's Walt Turner, and I'm from Turner's Laurel, Madison county, state o' Newth Gallier. But my find it ain't nowhere close to home. 'Taint no more'n about two hours' walkin' from right here, mister. Ef you'd jest up and go along w' me, I'd show it to ye."

Dale considered. There might be a considerable vein of this new coal. Even if he was sent to the state penitentiary for a term of years, Hayes was entirely capable of carrying on the mining operations.

"I'd like to take my mining man, Hayes—"

"No!" quickly objected Walt Turner. "I don't want nobody else to know what it's at but jest you and me. That away, ye see, ef I'm treated crooked I'll know exactly who done it—and I'll shore git you! But I heard tell 'at you was pow'ful square, mister."

"Could I get back here before night-fall?"

"Then lead the way," ordered Dale.

Walt Turner from Turner's Laurel, Madison county, state o' North Carolina, crossed the little creek on stones and went straight to the northeast, missing the Ball settlement by a good mile, and hard on his heels followed the Moreland Coal company's stalwart general manager.

The way was exceedingly rough. The two men climbed rugged cliffs, threaded dense thickets of great laurel, mountain laurel, sheep laurel, and huckleberry bushes. They were one hour in a stretch of woods where the hemlocks, poplars and hickories stood so thickly that the intersecting branches overhead shut out completely the light of the sun and half the light of day. Fearing a panther, or a wildcat, Dale kept his revolver loosened and ready in its holster. Walt Turner armed himself with a long staff—for snakes, he said; and then he proved it by killing a rattler that had eight rattles to its tail.

But they traveled rapidly, notwithstanding the fact that the going was difficult; and two hours after the beginning of the little journey Dale saw before him a small and almost circular, level-bottomed basin walled in by low cliffs. A small creek ran through this basin and made two easy ways of entrance. In the hollow they saw clumps of laurel and huckleberry bushes, and wild grasses knee-high; toward the center stood a solitary big and gnarled black walnut tree.

They entered at the point at which the creek ran in, and went to the walnut tree. There Turner halted and faced Bill Dale with a peculiar glint in his eyes. Dale was looking at the rugged walls of stone, and at the thick green forest that rose above them; he was marvelling, as only a true lover of beauty can marvel, at the wonderful grandeur of it all.

Walt Turner, of Turner's Laurel, opened his ale of a mouth and spake, "Here's the kiddy!"

Dale was brought out of his enjoyment most rudely. From his clumps of laurel and huckleberry bushes, from the tall grasses, from everywhere—it seemed from nowhere—there sprang dozens of Balls and Torreys with rifles in their hands! Bill Dale had walked, as gently as a kitten, straight into a trap.

His right hand moved toward the butt of his revolver, then dropped at his side. It was foolish, worse than useless, to show fight; dozens of rifles were staring at him with their frowning, murderous eyes, and their bullets would riddle him if he showed fight. He glanced toward Walt Turner, kinsman of the Balls.

Turner was laughing openly. "Pore little kiddy!"

"If ever I have the chance," muttered Bill Dale, "I'll thrash you for this cute little joke of yours."

"You won't never have the chance," laughed Walt Turner.

The Balls and the Torreys began to close in on all sides, and a solid ring of dark and for the most part bearded, wickedly triumphant faces formed itself around Dale. Adam Ball's father, the acknowledged leader of that band of cutthroats that was now the Ball-Torrey faction, glared at Dale with black eyes that were filled with the fire of intense hatred; then he scolded Dale's revolver and thrust it inside the waist-band of his worn jeans trousers. Dale felt the grip of rough hands on his shoulders and arms. He fully realized his great danger; but he strove to keep all signs of fear out of his countenance, and he was not unsuccessful.

"I presume this is what you call taking the law into your own hands, isn't it?" he said with a smile that was forced.

"Exactly," snapped old Ball. "We ketcht ye fo' the law, and we held ye fo' the law, and we turned ye over to the law; and 'en, by gonnie, the law turned ye loose the very next day! And 'en the sheriff he comes out here and arrests four o' us! Ef the law won't try ye and punish ye fo' a-sheddin' my son, Adam in cold blood, by gonnie, we'll try ye and punish ye fo' a-doin' it. But ye needn't be skeered none at all. Ye're plumb shore to git justice. I'll promise ye justice."

"You've evidently overlooked the fact that another man confessed to the killing, and that that was why they liberated me," said Dale.

"It's some cussed frame-up," snarled the leader of the gang. "No man on earth don't like no other man well enough fo' that. Asides, you're the one 'at killed my son Adam, by gonnie, and you're the one 'at must suffer fo' it. Right here under this here walnut tree we're a-goin' to hold co'te and have your trial, by judge and jury, and you'll shore git what's a-comin'!"

Bill Dale Had Walked, as Gently as a Kitten, Straight into a Trap.

fer fo' it. Right here under this here walnut tree we're a-goin' to hold co'te and have your trial, by judge and jury, and you'll shore git what's a-comin'!"

Bill Dale cut in with some bitterness: "And you'll be the judge, and your plans have already been laid, and I'm to be hanged by the neck until dead; eh? Well, you'll pay dearly for it. I promise you. We always have to pay for what we get, you know. The Morelands and the Littlefords will be quick to settle the account. You know that."

"No," old Ball disagreed hotly. "I don't know that!"

He turned to the others.

"Set down, boys. It's the same price as standin'. The jury will please set over that," pointing to his right. "The prisoner and his gyards will please set right over that," pointing to his left. "The honorable judge, which same is me, will please set right that." Indicating a spot at the base of the gnarled walnut. "The rest," he finished, "will set anywhere they d--n please. Set down, men."

His orders were obeyed. Dale found himself sitting on the ground between two pairs of mountaineers—and facing a line of twelve mountaineers—the so-called jury. To his left was the self-appointed judge, and to his right lounged a score or more of men whose attention was then being turned toward a jug of fiery new whiskey that had never been near to a revenue stamp or anything else that was honest. The jug traveled rapidly from one hairy mouth to another.

Old Ball passed the jug to a member of the "jury," and announced: "Well, dammit, co'te's open now."

"Kitty, kitty, kitty!" taunted Walt Turner. "Pore little kiddy!"

The mockery began. It was ridiculous, and yet it was grim. Adam Ball's father himself furnished most of the evidence; also he acted as prosecuting attorney. Of course there was no counsel for the defense, and it wouldn't have helped if Dale had had a proverbial Philadelphia lawyer on the grounds; all the proof and eloquence and pleading in the world never would have changed, in the slightest degree, the sentence that had been cut and dried for Bill Dale. The mock trial was being held solely because the Balls and Torreys felt that by holding it they were insulting the majesty of the law and making their vengeance sweeter. It became worse than a travesty.

Night fell during the wordy and profane harangue of the Ball leader, and it was ordered that a fire be built at once. At once a fire was built, dry brushwood being used, and in its red and flickering glare the faces of the hillmen looked doubly dark and doubly wicked. Then the judge begged a chew of tobacco and deliberately kept the whole twist, and told the jury to go out and bring back a verdict without losing time.

The twelve mountaineers rose unsteadily and went to the creek, and there one of them uncovered another jug of fiery new whiskey that was alien to a revenue stamp. They drank heavily and returned to the walnut tree court without mentioning the trial.

The foreman was a Torrey, and a particularly bad one. His swarthy face, with its high Cherokee cheekbones and its thin-lipped mouth, was ultra-cruel, ultra-vicious. He entered the circle of red and flickering freight slowly, smiling evilly, and the other eleven crowded up close behind him.

He cleared his throat, spat between two fingers at the fire, and turned to the judge.

"Gentlemen o' the jury," growled the ruling Ball, "have ye reached a verdict?"

"We have, your honor," very promptly answered the Torrey who was foreman. "And we ha' found the prisoner guilty o' the wust kind o' coldblooded, premeditated murder in the first degree, your honor."

Old Ball leveled a knotty forefinger toward Bill Dale.

"Fo' the killin' o' my son Adam," he pronounced sentence, "you sh'll hang by the neck until dead, from a limb o' this here walnut tree, by gonnie, at sunrise in the mornin'."

Although he had well known what the sentence would be, Dale went suddenly ashen. Then he took a firm grip on himself and began to reason.

He could not hope, he decided, that the Morelands and the Littlefords would find him before the sun rose. They would miss him, of course, and they would suspect foul play and look for him; but finding him in that wilderness—it was impossible. It became plain to him that he would have to save himself if he were saved. He believed his best chance lay in his proving that he was anything but a coward; the worst mountaineer, he knew, admired a brave man.

So he turned slightly toward the self-appointed judge and asked calmly:

"Is there anything really game about you?"

"Shore, by gonnie!" quickly. "I'm all game. I'm the feller 'at showed wildcats how to fight. What about it?"

"I'll see if you're all game," Dale said, and he smiled when he spoke. "I'll make you this proposition: I'll fight any ten of you, two at a time, with five minutes' rest between fights; if I whip them all I go free, and if I don't whip 'em all I hang immediately. All parties to be barehanded, no guns and no knives. Are you that game?"

Ordinarily, it would have been a thing well nigh impossible to do, much as Dale knew of the pugilistic art, great as was his strength and endurance. But now most of those about Dale were drunk and therefore weakened, and he believed he had a chance if old Ball accepted.

But Judge Ball didn't accept. Doubtless he remembered his son Adam's fight with Dale.

"The' can't be no fightin' in co'te," he said. "You sh'll hang by the neck until dead, at sunrise in the mornin'."

There was a mumble of approval from the others. Doubtless they, too, remembered that the young man whom they held a captive had once whipped Black Adam Ball, the mountaineer Gollath, with his bare hands. They did not have the one good trait that Dale had hoped they possessed; while they must have admired him for his courage, they were afraid to fight him without weapons. Dale recalled the fact that the Balls were not originally hillfolk; but lowlanders who had taken to the mountains in order to avoid being forced to fight during the Civil war, a people without a principle. The Cherokee Torreys, of course, were even worse.

"Kitty, kitty, kitty!" Walt Turner called tauntingly again. "He walked into the trap like a pore little kiddy!"

A plowline of half-inch cotton rope was produced, and the condemned man was securely bound, standing on his feet and facing outward, to the big walnut. Desperate as was his case, Dale couldn't help being a trifle amused at that part of it. It was so very melodramatic. And yet, it was so grimly real, and his hopes seemed so thin. . . .

The Morelands and the Littlefords would eventually learn the truth and make the Balls and Torreys pay a dear price, no doubt, but that—that wouldn't give him back his life!

Happy Ending.

"I have just heard of a woman who went to a hotel unaccompanied and discovered that the acoustic properties of her room were such that every time she spoke aloud there was an echo. She then made a bold attempt to get in a last word, and in so doing talked herself to death."—Fortuna Express and Advertiser.

JOY BROUGHT INTO HOME

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Restoring Mrs. Benz to Health

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We have had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. As I was going to have another, I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says, 'That is some healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show this letter."—Mrs. C. W. Benz, 151 1/2 Ave., Altoona, Pa.

No woman can realize the joy and happiness this healthy babe brought into the home of Mrs. Benz, unless they have had a like experience.

Every woman who suffers from any ailments peculiar to her sex, as indicated by backaches, headaches, bearing-down pains, irregularities, nervousness and "the blues," should not rest until they have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

A Confession. A little girl whose father is widely known as a writer of humorous stories, was recently approached by a visitor who said:

"It must be nice to have a papa who knows so many fine stories."

The little girl blushed and hung her head.

"Aren't you proud of your papa?" the visitor asked.

"Yes," the little girl answered, "but I think I ought to tell you something."

"What is it?"

"The stories of my papa's aren't stories at all."

"Not stories?"

"No."

And in a deep hoarse whisper, the child confessed.

"He makes them all up out of his own head."—Youngstown Telegram.

She Couldn't Be Sure. The rather flashily-dressed woman took her fourteen-year-old daughter to the domestic science teacher. "I want her to learn to cook and sew," she said, "so that she can get a husband."

For one minute the teacher stared at the woman. Then a twinkle came into her eyes. "Oh, I don't know about that being so sure a way," she laughed. "You see I teach both and I haven't yet obtained a husband."

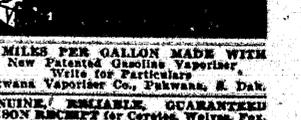

Switching Facilities. "Did I understand you to say Senator Shortsworthy has a single track mind?"

"You did not. Judging from the number of times the senator has reversed himself on important questions his mind must resemble a railroad yard."

It's seldom selfishness that prompts a man to keep his troubles to himself.

DISTRIBUTION OF NATION'S INCOME

Shown by Figures Made Public by Bureau of Economic Research.

WEALTH INCREASE NOT REAL

Country's Income in 1918 Almost Double That of 1913, but Actual Total of Commodities Produced Was Not Great.

New York, Oct. 27.—The total national income of the United States in 1918 was $1 billion dollars, as compared with $4.4 billions in 1913; but this increase in dollars did not represent a like increase in production.

These are the most important findings of the National Bureau of Economic Research, made public today in advance of the formal publication of the results of a year's study of "Income in the United States."

This table exhibits the main findings, including the equivalent value of per capita income in terms of the 1913 purchasing power:

Table with columns: Year, Total Nat'l Income (Billions), Per Capita Income (Dollars), Per Capita Income in '13 Dollars.

Distribution of Income.

The report says that only one out of a hundred (1 per cent) income receivers in the United States in 1918 had incomes of $8,000 or more, and that this one per cent had 14 per cent of the national income.

Shares of Labor and Capital.

In most of the years since 1912, the bureau finds that in the principal or organized industries, wages and salaries were about 70 per cent of the total income; while capital (including management) received about 30 per cent.

Share of the Farmer.

The farmers, who during the past decade have made up about 16 per cent of the total of gainfully employed, had from 12 to 13 per cent of the national income in the years between 1910 and 1916 inclusive.

Table with columns: Year, Per Cent.

Sources of Production.

As for the sources of national income, the bureau finds, taking a general average since 1910, that agriculture contributes about 17 per cent of the total, manufacturing about 30 per cent, transportation about 9 per cent, government about 5 per cent, mining a little more than 3 per cent, banking a little over 1 per cent.

ties such as education and road-building, produce only about half of the national income. The rest is due to the efforts of small independent workers.

Income Tax Discrepancies.

The report estimates that the number of persons in 1918 having incomes over $2,000, was 5,800,000, and that their total income was over 23 billion dollars.

Contribution of Housewives. The contribution of the 20,000,000 American housewives is not included by the bureau in the national income because they are not paid in money.

Table with columns: Year, Individual Contribution (in Dollars), Total Contribution (in Billions).

Income in Other Countries.

Both the total national income and the per capita income are larger in the United States than in any other country.

Table with columns: Country, Nat'l Income (Billions of Dollars), Per Capita Income (in Dollars).

The report is in press, and will be published early in November.

How the Bureau is Constituted.

The National Bureau of Economic Research was organized after the war by a group of persons who had come to realize the need for accurate and scientific collection of statistical information as a basis for intelligent solution of national problems.

The High School and The Outlook

Next week, Armistice Week, the Carrizozo High School will edit this paper and all articles appearing in the issue will bear the names of contributors. This movement is one of the many instituted by our Superintendent, Dr. E. E. Cole, and is a commendable one from the fact that articles contributed to a newspaper will furnish a new field of interest to pupils, and at the same time, demonstrate their ability to frame into articles their knowledge of the different subjects with which they will deal. Again, parents should be deeply interested in the outcome of the efforts of the students, as each article will be a demonstration of local talent, and an exposition of what our educational institution is accomplishing for the pupils we are intrusting to its care.

In these contributions, we will be able to discern the thoughts, aims and objects of those whom we so love and esteem. In this, the students' first bow to the public (in print) we will catch glimpses of the futures of our men and women that will follow us, for the boys and girls of today, will be the men and women of tomorrow. Let us not place ourselves in the position of critics, less we be found wanting in comparison; for these articles will deal with subjects and problems that will surprise us. As this will be Armistice Week, much matter bearing on the good and welfare of Home and Native Land will undoubtedly appear, as the Nations of the World have representatives assembling at Washington to devise ways and means of limiting armaments, we may expect some brilliant ideas on what should be done by this important assembly. Comments on current events, religious liberty, and educational advancement will form an important portion of this issue. The OUTLOOK accepts the proposition of Dr. Cole and the High School to edit its pages as one would accept a distinguished badge of honor. The columns are at your service.

Contest No. 10346
Oct. 27, 1921

To Eddie Bridge of Carrizozo, N. M., Contestee:
You are hereby notified that Raymond
G. Hobbs, who gives Bogie, N. M., as his postoffice address, did, on Oct. 27, 1921, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your homestead, Serial No.
01370 made Aug. 2, 1920, for all of Section
23, Township 5-S, Range 10-E, N. M. P.
Meridian, and as grounds for his contest
he alleges that you have never established residence on said entry; have never resided thereon; that you have never cultivated or improved any part of said entry; that you have abandoned said land for more than six months past and have never earned title to said land. That your absence from said land was not due to your employment in the military or naval organizations of the United States or the National Guard or any of the several States.

You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken as confessed, and your said entry will be cancelled, without further right to be heard, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the date of this publication of this notice, as shown below your answer, under oath, specifically responding to these allegations of contest, together with due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail.

You should state in your answer the name of the post office to which you desire further notices to be sent to you.

Keeps Tabs on Those Who Move

People of Birmingham Cannot Escape Bills and Rent by Old Expedient.

MUST REPORT ALL TRANSFERS

Ordinance Requires Owners of Vans or Other Vehicles to Report All Moving to Police—Helpful to Authorities.

Birmingham, Ala.—Those who find it cheaper to move than to pay rent or meet other bills, are pretty well reformed in this city, or are in process of being weeded out in either case by means of an ordinance so riveted that offenders cannot escape. The ordinance requires the owner of every transfer or other vehicle to report promptly all moving to the chief of police, and entries of the same are at once made in a book duly alphabetized and dated, and the book is always open for the inspection of any and everyone who may ask to see it.

Of course one who plans to turn delinquent will try to conceal his identity while in the act of moving, but the ordinance makers foresee that impulse and attached penalties for false names or misleading reports, which fairly shut out that form of trickery. Altogether the ordinance has worked so well that Birmingham has been solicited by other cities for copies of the act and for the experiences under it which have made it a magic cure for bill-evasion. It is a fixture in Birmingham, for it has been in force since March of 1913.

Generally Helpful.

Its enactment came about in that year through the Retail Furniture Dealers' association. At the ensuing election it had an able enforcer in Commissioner of Public Safety Arlie Barber, who thoroughly believed in it and kept everybody concerned up to the scratch. He found that some of the colored laundresses had a fashion of suddenly changing their addresses when well stocked with the linen of their clients; that in some districts overdue gas bills gave sufficient cause for families to vacate quarters, and delinquents for rent and for tradesmen's accounts were common in all districts. The telephone company had occasion to compliment the commissioner on the accuracy and completeness of the records in the book of the chief of police, for in one case the company escaped damages for non-delivery of a message, in a suit in which the person addressed had moved, but claimed to be living in his old home at the time of the message. His claim was thrown out of court by the evidence of the chief's records. Furniture dealers who had been behind the original enactment soon found their troubles eased by it, and finally they were almost without bad bills.

Police Are Benefited.

In time the detective department of the city benefited by the ordinance, for it enabled them to locate undesirable, bootleggers, bond-skippers and the kind of women who scattered themselves over the city after the abolishment of the old red-light district.

Once there was a concerted attempt by the transfer warehousemen to undo the ordinance. They obtained a restraining injunction against its enforcement, and went into court on the

May Use Magnet to Raise Ships

Submarine Invention Passes Salvage Test of the British Admiralty.

LIFTS 16 TONS OF METAL

Believed That Much of Steel and Metals Lost Through Operations of German Submarines May Be Recovered.

London.—Fishing with submarine magnets for allied ships which strew the bottom of the North sea and the English channel may be attempted on a large scale in the near future if an invention recently placed at the disposal of the British admiralty proves to be practicable in deep-sea salvage operations. It is believed that the device may recover much of the loss in steel and metals caused by the submarines. It is also probable that it may,

Veteran Served Sentence of Man Who Saved His Life

Because his "buddy" saved his life in France, Harry W. Haley, known as general prisoner No. 32102, assumed his name, and is serving a six months' sentence in the United States disciplinary barracks, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for desertion, alleged to have been committed by his friend.

Issue of constitutionality. The Supreme court ruled that it was both constitutional and reasonable. Minor changes were made in it, not interfering at all with its efficiency, and it is here to stay, with the approval of every reputable interest.

Laughed at Undertaker.

Martins Ferry, O.—Mrs. John Bobb entered the room where her husband lay ill. Believing him to be dead, she telephoned an undertaker and someone gave his obituary to a newspaper. When the undertaker arrived he was greeted with a laugh from the supposed corpse, who was sitting up talking to friends.

HALLOWEEN.

"I am going to tell you," said Daddy, "of the things I did when I was a boy at halloween time."

"Do," said Nancy. "I wonder," commenced Nick.

"What do you wonder?" asked Daddy. "I'll tell you when the story is over, I think," said Nick, "as I'd rather hear the story of what you used to do first."

"First of all I used to love bobbing for apples," said Daddy. "I wore a bathing cap so if it was a cold evening my mother wouldn't be afraid I'd get my hair wet and catch cold because she knew how far down I'd dive into the tub of water!"

"And we all did the same. The girls needed the bathing caps on their heads more than the boys did and they certainly could dive with their hair all held in so dry and safe by their caps."

"Then we would play games and one of our favorite games was to run races carrying peanuts on knives."

"Two would race against each other at a time. The end of the race would be a big bowl set on the floor and we would start off at the other end of the room."

"Then we would each have a lot of peanuts and we would carry as many as we could on our knife until we had gotten rid of all of them."

"We had to take all the peanuts to the bowl without letting any drop off."

"It was most exciting, for though none of the other children could push us or joggle us they could make funny remarks to us and we would start laughing and sometimes our knife would shake and we'd drop the peanuts and have to start all over again."

"Sometimes we would only take one at a time because we could get them all to the bowl more quickly that way in the long run."

"Sometimes the one who starts off fastest does not win, you know."

"Then we would play potato games in the same way. Some of the girls would dress up as ladies and not very proud and would tell us they couldn't play such games. But they didn't stay dressed up very long as they wanted to play."

"They liked to do it for a little while because the dressing up had been such fun. But they didn't like it for long. I can tell you, not when there were games to be played."

"Then we used to make Jack o' lanterns out of pumpkins and put a candle in each Jack o' lantern."

"Such handsome Jack o' lanterns as we'd make and every one would be just a little bit different from the other."

"But they all had great big mouths, and big eyes and fine noses. And the light from the candle in each would shine forth."

"Then we'd take our Jack o' lanterns around to the different houses and would ring the bells and hide behind the houses so we could just look out a little bit and see what was going on."

"Then we'd see if our Jack o' lantern was politely received."

"Sometimes people would be cross, but not usually. Most of them liked to have Jack o' lantern callers. And some would take the Jack o' lantern inside, which of course was a very mean thing to do when we wanted to take the Jack o' lantern to make other calls."

"But most of the people talked to our Jack o' lanterns as we liked to have them do, and they would say how handsome they thought the Jack o' lanterns were and how pleased they were to have had them call."

"Yes, we did all of those things each year. But what were you going to say, Nick?"

"I was going to say," said Nick, "that I thought perhaps you were telling us what you used to do so as to be sure we'd remember to do all these things too, and also because you might like to do some of them with us, you're such a wonderful Daddy-Boy!"

"You're right, Nick," shouted Daddy. "And I'm to be allowed to come to the Halloween party too?"

"You most certainly are," said Nick. "You most certainly are!"

Memorable George.

Billy—Mamma, George Washington must have had an awful good memory, didn't he?"

Mother—Why, my dear? Billy—Because, everywhere I go I see monuments to his memory.

The Sport of Doers

One of this country's prominent physicians recently probed into the question why men smoke.

He turned a deaf ear to the glib prejudices and to accepted but half-thought-out notions. He based his conclusions upon a careful study of the use of tobacco by our men during the War.

He diagnosed smoking as being clearly a diversion which helped rather than interfered with a man's performance of his duty.

Smoking is not a vicious practice but a happy sport. If it were not, this expert declares, men would long ago have begun taking "My Lady Nicotine" in the form of pills or tablets.

That's straight to the point. A man lights up his pipe for a little relaxation, not to interfere with but to improve his work.

He feels in need of a moment's let-up which will add to his power. Back he throws himself in the most comfortable position in the old chair; he scratches his match slowly, carefully, not nervously; he lights up the fragrant weed in the old bowl not in haste but lingeringly; he watches the smoke curl up from his pipe with the same peculiar happiness with which he watched Babe Ruth knock a home run, and then—

"What was that I had to do?" he asks himself. He plans how best to do it.

A good smoke—a good sport. A good sport—a good doer, when things have to be done.

Smoking is the sport of doers. Of course, a good smoke depends greatly upon having just the right tobacco.

We recommend Edgeworth to you as a tobacco that has pleased many but not all smokers.

It may please you beyond words. It may not.

We would be very glad to have you pass judgment upon it.

Just send us your name and address on a postcard. If you feel like doing us a favor, send us also the name of the dealer to whom you will go for supplies, in case you like Edgeworth. We will send you without charge samples of Edgeworth in both forms—Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed.

Edgeworth Plug Slice comes in flat cakes, cut into thin, moist slices. One slice rubbed between the hands fills the average pipe.

Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is simply the same tobacco, rubbed up, ready to go into your pipe.

You're likely to notice how nicely Edgeworth packs. That means that it burns evenly and freely.

Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to meet the requirements of many different customers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are put up in pocket-size packages, in attractive tin humidor, and glass jars and in various quantities in between those sizes.

For the free samples, address Larus & Brother Company, 41 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants—If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

Check Army for Trainers.

San Antonio, Texas.—Orders for a canvass of all military commands in the Eighth army corps area, comprising five states, for soldiers experienced in the operation of railway trains and the maintenance of ways, have been issued at area headquarters, Fort Sam Houston. The report, it was said, would show the number of officers and enlisted men of each concern who have had railroad experience. The men are to be classified under five heads: Officials, train employes, yard and station employes, shopmen and maintenance-of-way and structures.

Estate Goes to Cats.

New York.—Cats all over the world will benefit from the $60,000 obtained by the sale of the Even homestead here. Miss Caroline Ewon, who occupied the property for years with her two sisters, had a passion for caring for cats. She devoted her life to establishing sanitariums and relief organizations for stray cats, and when she died left all her estate, except $500, for carrying on the work. She cut off her two sisters in her will because they were not sufficiently enthusiastic about cats.

Ex-King Manuel Missing.

London.—Fullwell park, the English home of ex-King Manuel of Portugal, refused all information as to Manuel's whereabouts. It was admitted Manuel was not at Fullwell-park, but it was explained everyone who was in authority to speak of the former king's plans had gone away. The foreign office received hazy advices indicating the Portuguese revolt might have been engineered by syndicalists rather than royalists.

King George Won't Race.

London.—At a meeting of the Yacht Racing Association held recently, Maj. Hunkel made public a statement saying King George would not race his yacht Britannia next year. "His majesty regrets very much that owing to the general need for economy he cannot afford to fit out the Britannia next year," said the statement. The Britannia is the king's yacht in which he races in the Cowes regatta.

Farmer Gets Coat of Tar.

Paris, Ill. S. T. Turner was tarred and feathered at Trowbridge, twenty miles from here by 150 farmers who wore no masks. Turner was captured at his house after an all night siege. He was accompanied by a woman who the farmers declared was not his wife. The woman was permitted to depart unmolested.

Cockroach Saves Woman.

Mrs. Catherine Macks of Cleveland, Ohio, charged with violating the liquor law, was discharged because a roach was found in the liquor. "I cannot accept this as evidence; it is unfit for beverage purposes," said the judge.

Meeting on Livestock Rates.

Chicago.—Hearing a complaint filed by the National Livestock Exchange through Everett C. Brown, president, and D. C. Mosler, chairman of the transportation committee, against all livestock carrying railroads, has been heard by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Stock producers, traders and shippers testified for the exchange, it has announced, and by this testimony the exchange will endeavor to prove that livestock rates are excessive in the face of depreciated values on livestock.

Offer Drink to Corpses.

Paris.—Down in mid-France, they have the belief that when a man dies there is no use for his friends crying about it, and so they make gay. Not long ago, Andre Beaulieu died. His friends gathered, bringing much liquid refreshment. After many "rounds" they invited their dead companion to join them and helped him out of his coffin and put a glass in his hand and stood him in the corner. Joy was so unconfined that the police arrested the mourners on the charge of disturbing the peace.

Shriners to Spend $10,000,000.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Ernest A. Cutts of Savannah, Ga., imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, told Shriners of this city that the organization had pledged itself to the expenditure of $10,000,000 for the care and cure of crippled children regardless of color, creed or sex. Mr. Cutts said there were 400,000 crippled children within the jurisdiction of the shrine and that it is the program of the organization to establish hospitals in various sections of the country to care for them.

They Got Mr. Lloyd George's Number

These two women really got Premier Lloyd George's number. It was K-2252, and he gave it, as required by law, while on his way to vote in Caxton hall during the recent abbey election.

FRANCE IS FAST COMING BACK

Country Making Rapid Recovery From Ruins of War.

Houses Arise From the Ground and Fields Covered With Promising Crops—Population of Devastated Area Optimistic.

Paris.—An impressive picture of the extent of France's achievement in restoring her war-ravaged regions is afforded by M. Loucheur, the minister of liberated regions, in a public statement entitled "The Revival of France."

Official statistics of the destruction caused by the war and the reconstruction accomplished up to May 1, 1921, the minister states, show that "the France of today is the same as France of yesterday, and that in peace as in war she continues to work with steadfastness, courage and confidence."

After showing that 5,154,000 of the 66,400,000 Frenchmen from 19 to 50 years of age mobilized during the war were killed or wounded, the statement presents the following statistics of civic reconstruction.

Inhabitants—Deported because of the war, 2,600,278; returned to France, 1,975,798.

Municipalities—Abandoned, 3,256; re-established, 3,216.

Schools—Before the war, 7,271; re-established, 6,830.

Houses—Destroyed, 789,000; rebuilt, 10,213; repaired, 326,700.

Land—Devastated, 8,240,000 acres; cleared from projectiles, wire entanglements and trenches, 6,881,000 acres.

Agriculture—Farm land devastated, 4,671,000 acres; farms now cultivated, 3,420,000 acres.

Live Stock—Horses and mules carried away, 307,000; restored, 96,903; oxen carried away, 530,000; restored, 120,203; sheep and goats carried away, 469,000; restored, 121,104.

Roads—Destroyed, 82,900 miles; temporarily repaired, 18,825 miles; definitely repaired, 8,426.

Factories (each having at least twenty employees, 1014), 5,297; destroyed, 4,700; resumed operation, 3,645.

"France took up arms only in self-defense, endeavoring at the same time to maintain justice and liberty for the world," said M. Loucheur. "For nearly five years her richest provinces have endured continual martyrdom. And yet by her own means the ruins are reviving, houses arise from the ground, fields are covered with promising crops. The populations of the devastated areas believe that they can rely on the spirit of solidarity of all those who have measured the magnitude of their sacrifice and understood their unquestionable right to the fullest reparations."

Find Buried Treasure.

Berlin.—Twenty million marks' worth of gold and silver, which is believed to have been hidden by Germany's stoic leader "Capt. Kild" Claus Stoorbecker—has just been dug up near the North sea coast, says a Hamburg dispatch to the Neue Berliner Zeitung.

Coal has been found valueless in the best porcelain furnaces, the fumes discoloring the ware.

Paper From Eucalyptus.

Perth.—Good paper can be made from the common eucalyptus, experiments to that effect having been made in West Australia. Various state governments and private interests have contributed upward of $100,000 for the erection of plants and the installation of machinery for further investigation into the matter.

Deputy U. S. Marshal In Town

Deputy U. S. Marshal, John E. Brady was in town Thursday and stayed over until today awaiting orders from headquarters. He expressed himself as being well pleased with the work and has covered a large portion of the State since his recent appointment and is "making good." The Lordburg Liberal in a recent issue has the following to say: John E. Brady, newly appointed deputy U. S. Marshal, under Secundino Romero, was in the city this week on official business.

Mr. Brady is a son of the well known ranchman and farmer, and Republican leader of Hondo, Lincoln county. His grandfather was the late Major Wm. Brady, who a generation ago was killed by the bandit "Billy the Kid," when the Major was sheriff of Lincoln county.

If the U. S. Marshal's appointments are all as good as the one in Lincoln county, the state is to be congratulated.

Woman's Club Convention

The tenth annual convention of the New Mexico State Federation of Women's Clubs closed last Friday with an elaborate program at Roswell and is said to have been one of the most successful ever held. Delegates from all parts of the state were present. Many prominent speakers participated in the program, a feature being a tea and entertainment at the Carnegie Library. Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. F. W. Parker, of Santa Fe; Vice President at Large, Mrs. S. G. Gould, Albuquerque; First Vice President, Mrs. Milley B. Taylor, Springer; Second Vice President, Mrs. A. Delong, Gallup; Third Vice President, Mrs. M. A. Corbin, Artesia; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Walter Mayes, Clovis; Cor. Sec., Mrs. R. G. Ten Eyck, Santa Fe; Treasurer, Mrs. H. R. Parson, Fort Sumner; Auditor, Mrs. M. McDowell Fontana, Meadame Ulrich, Ziegler, Scott and Golden were delegates from Carrizozo and many other home ladies principal among whom was Mrs. W. C. McDonald all of whom were guests at receptions given over the city during the convention period.

Many Hallowe'en parties were given last Saturday night at different homes over the city. Mrs. F. E. Richard entertained the Seventh Grade of the Carrizozo School at her home on Alamogordo avenue; Mrs. C. F. Jones entertained the pupils of the Eighth Grade; Mrs. Sproles entertained the members of the B. Y. P. U., and some classes at the school held parties in the afternoon of the same day. Most of the events were masked parties where costumes of weird witchcraft and uncanny characters of all kinds were noticeable. blended with watermelon moons.
