SOME WOMEN ARE ADROIT POLITICIANS

Several weeks ago quite a stir was precipitated throughout the state of New Mexico by a report from the office of the state auditor to the effect that there had been great laxity and possibly some incompetency in the office of a former state superintendent of education. His assistant at that time, Mrs. Ruth Miller, who is also an assistant and in charge of the home economic section of the state educational work was asked to resign. Thus far the lady has refused and is apparently making it stick. We contend that the main question is that the people have a fair return for their money. If the servants of the people, more generally known as public officials, are not making good they should be ousted. We republish an editorial from the Albuquerque Morning Journal which we believe is exactly to the point:

Time to Call a Halt. The public generally, but more especially the women should be on guard not to allow themselves to be victimized by an adroit appeal to sentiment which is being inaugurated in behalf of Mrs. Ruth Miller, assistant to the state superintendent of public instruction, in charge of vocational work. The fact that the person in charge of this work chances to be a woman should not enter into the matter at all. Nor should the fact that there have been deplorable misfortunes in Mrs. Miller's private life be a factor in attempting to determine her fitness for present position. The department is in no sense a charitable institution, although due consideration to the feelings of everyone could be shown.

If the ultimate facts show that Jonathan H. Wagner has been guilty of waste, extravagance or gross negligence in handling the taxpayers' money, the Journal will insist that he carry out his announced determination to resign as president of the Normal school that prove to be the case. If he has shown himself to be incompetent as state superintendent to properly safeguard public funds he should not be continued where he can expend further public monies. Whether or not such is the case will become fully known in a short time. If Mr. Wagner can clear his shirt, the Journal will say so.

So, also, if Mrs. Miller can show that she did not grossly waste the taxpayers' money, we will tell the public that such is the fact. But the truth is that Mrs. Miller was not asked by the state board of education to resign merely because of her extravagance in management, although she asked for no time in which to make rebuttal on that score. The simple truth is that a large and growing element of people has seen for a long time that Mrs. Miller is a wasteful manager. The demand for her removal has been growing for the past year or more. Probably even this did not move the state board to act.

On the day on which the demand for Mrs. Miller's resignation occurred she had appeared before the state board to settle questions concerning the finances of the department. The newspaper men were present and heard all that occurred. Mrs. Miller was demanding that Mr. Conway sign his approval for the payment of $4,000 which his bookkeeper told him was not in hand. John Joerns school auditor, was called in and confirmed the position of the bookkeeper. Mrs. Miller quarreled with Mr. Conway and Mr. Joerns in a most scandalous fashion and insisted that the papers be signed. She squarely accused Mr. Conway of speaking a falsehood. The proceeding was undignified, even disgraceful. It showed a turmoil in the office of the superintendent which could not be continued without ruinous results to education in the state.

An investigation showed that Mrs. Miller was at variance with virtually every one in the office. The board felt that either Mrs. Miller must resign or else Mr. Conway. Such was the real cause of the board's action. What considerations led the board to rescind its action at a later date the Journal does not know. The implication that Mrs. Miller is being made "the goat" is not true. As far as politics plays a part in this matter the pressure is all for Mrs. Miller and not against her. Strong political pressure is being used to protect her.

No hearing is necessary. Superintendent Conway and the state board all know that the department is disorganized for lack of harmony, and that everyone in the office except Mrs. Miller is out of step. Keeping or discharging her is a personal matter for Mr. Conway. No hearing can help him decide whether or not she is out of harmony with his program. If she is she should have the grace to resign. Mr. Conway was elected by the people and is responsible to the people. He cannot yield his authority or responsibility to Mrs. Miller. The route to harmony is for Mrs. Miller to resign.

The good ladies who have down to her defense are in a mistaken position. If sex is to be used as a defense against charges of public dishonesty, people will be afraid to put women into office. The women of New Mex-

4 CITIES HEAR OPERA BY RADIO

What a Vista of the Future!

El Paso Herald. An audience of 80,000 persons in Kansas City, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg and places between have heard the Chicago Opera Company sing in the Auditorium in Chicago, and it has heard the Opera company's splendid orchestra, conducted by Giorgio Polacco.

This seeming miracle was achieved through radio telephony. Ample notice had been given of the test, and there were crowds wherever a wireless station was found. All stations were equipped with telephone devices and amplifiers. At the conclusion of the performance, all reported back enthusiastically.

Only selections were sung on this first occasion, but now a complete opera is promised. A little receiving device high up in the wings of the Auditorium can take an entire opera just as well as a single note and turn it over to a wire which carries the splendid harmonies to the top of the building and sends them off in concentric waves through space.

Completely transformed, grand chords pass through the atmosphere. You cannot hear them, cannot grasp them with your senses. But they are there. In the Auditorium where you can hear them a factory whistle would ruin them. When the radio has transformed them, all the noises of a busy world do not mar them. Perhaps the souls of the dead can hear them, but they have passed out of mortal bounds.

But only for an instant, for they travel with the speed of light and hundreds of miles away (as much as 1,000 in this test) the antennae of radio stations intercept them, and they pass down through wires, and come out through the amplifiers in scores of stations in all their pristine beauty, melodious, inspiring.

When radio telephones are common as ordinary telephones are now, how pleasant it will be, if we do not care to dress for the opera, or are kept at home by illness, to mail a small sum to the opera management in advance of the performance, receiving therefor a ticket. On it, instead of row and seat number will be printed the exact length—400, or 250, or 300 meters, or whatever other number is decided on—after accessibility tests and then at 8:30 p. m. we shall tune in to that wave length and enjoy an evening of opera while taking our ease in our own homes.

ASYLUM BOARD DOING BEST IT CAN, REPORT

Head of Probe Committee Says Conditions Are Sanitary, No Mistreatment.

Santa Fe, Nov. 28.—The New Mexico insane asylum board is doing the best it can with the funds at its disposal, conditions are sanitary and there are no charges of mistreatment of inmates, according to Benjamin M. Read of the committee appointed by the governor to investigate and who returned today after the committee completed its examination. A verbal report was made to the governor and a fuller report will be made later following another meeting of the committee.

Medical Director Refuses to Give Up Key

Las Vegas, Nov. 23.—Suit for mandatory injunction requiring Dr. H. B. Tracy to show cause why he should surrender the keys to the New Mexico Hospital for the Insane and cease to exercise the functions of medical superintendent of the institution was filed in the district court at San Miguel county, November 20 has been set as the date for the hearing, which will be before Judge David J. Leahy. The board of directors of the hospital made the complaint.

The complaint sets out that Dr. Tracy was medical superintendent of the hospital prior to Nov. 17, when he was notified of his removal; that he has retained the keys, including those to the front door, to the superintendent's office and wards. The request is made that the court issue an order compelling Dr. Tracy to show cause why a mandatory injunction should not be issued requiring him to surrender the keys and desist from interfering with the management and conduct of the medical superintendent's office.

Rev. T. M. Blacklock, the new pastor of the Baptist Church, arrived last week and filled the pulpit at that place last Sunday. Mrs. Blacklock and the children will arrive soon from Des Moines, N. M., where the Reverend has been leader of the congregation for the past year. We welcome the new pastor and extend an additional welcome to the family in advance of their coming.

Who will be the victims of the error of these women. Public officials must measure up. They should all look alike as officials.

These women are more concerned than anyone else in seeing that this is true.

The Journal is opposed to Mrs. Miller in spite of the fact that she is a woman and not because of that. We prefer chivalry to sandor in dealing with woman. But the public welfare knows no sex.

PURPOSES OF 1921 TAX LEVIES

The tax levies for 1921 are to carry on the government, state and local, for 1922. Other revenues will, of course, be available in addition to the proceeds of general property taxes. Incomes from lands and permanent funds, interest on deposits and fees received by various officers will supplement the receipts from taxes. Upon the levies approved by the State Tax Commission, the following amounts would be realized if fully collected:

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Includes State levies, County levies, School district levies, City, town, village levies, Total, State levies included, State depart, insul., State school, State road, The County Levies are as follows, Year 1921.

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Includes Within 5 mills, Court, Wild animal bounty, Court house, jail and Rep., General county, Indigent, Agricultural extension, Transcript, Judgment, Special bridge, Special road, County road, Salary, Cert. of indebtedness.

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Includes Total, Outside 5 mills, Interest, Sinking, County health, County school main, County high school, Special road, Federal aid roads, Cert. of indebtedness.

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Includes Total, For school district purposes levies are as follows, Building, Equipment, Interest, Sinking.

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Includes Total, For city, town and village purposes the levies for general purposes amount to $622,597.12.

The total of all these levies is $1,019,125.50 for 1921. The corresponding levies for 1920 amounted to $1,019,334.00.

The decrease is due to loss of $40,000.00 in total assessment for the state and in the reduction of levies for state roads and Federal projects. The reduction in the amount of the levies does not mean lower tax rates, however, except in the two counties of Hidalgo and Luna. An analysis of tax rates will show increases in all other counties which are due almost entirely to school maintenance levies.

Crude Oil Will Check Blue Bug.

(Extension Service Bulletin)

Blue bugs are so-called because of their color. This bug is a detourment to egg production because of its method of living. The blue bug visits the fowls at night on the roosts and hides in cracks about the house in the day time. Because of the size of these bugs they are capable of consuming large amounts of blood, making it impossible for the hens to produce while infested with these bugs.

The cheapest and best method of controlling the blue bug is by painting the interior of the poultry house, roosts and nests with crude oil, says Prof. Bardsley, poultryman at the Agricultural College. It is desirable to mix kerosene with the crude oil to make it penetrate wood better. Care should be taken to keep the fowls closed out of the house until the oil has had an opportunity to dry. If this precaution is not followed, the eggs will become stained and perhaps tainted slightly.

Be sure to use plenty of good, clean nesting material after the use of the crude oil in order to prevent the discoloration and staining of the eggs.

MAY ASK REHEARING ON 3 CENT R. R. FARE

Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 24.—The fight against a 3-cent fare in New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada is only started, provided the other two states wish to continue, Hugh H. Williams, corporation commission chairman, stated, commenting on the decision of the Interstate commerce commission upholding it.

The next step, he said, will be to file a petition for a rehearing before the Interstate commerce commission and "to endeavor to show where the three states are discriminated against."

The decision in dismissing the petition by the three states was unanimous. Williams received word that three members, Atchison, Eastman and Campbell, dissented to the ruling.

ONE MAN HELD IN THE KEMPENICH DEATH CASE

Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 28.—One man is under arrest and the detention of two others is expected within a few hours in connection with the death on October 7 of Eugene Kempenich, former state highway commissioner, local officials announced today. They refused to give out the name of the man held pending the arrest of others wanted.

Mystery Killing. Detectives and officers have been working in the case since Kempenich, a bachelor, was found mysteriously slain in his apartments at Porajito, 15 miles south of here. Both suicide and murder theories were advanced. Officers said today they were convinced Kempenich was murdered and that the true story would be known shortly, following other arrests.

OPPOSE WATER DIVERSION IN RUDDOSO AREA

Roswell, N. M., Nov. 28.—Roswell delegates attending the national park meeting to be held at Las Cruces, Saturday, December 3, are going to contend that in the event the national park is located in the Capitan and White mountains, the water is not to be diverted from its present course and nothing is to be done to interfere with the summer homes in the Ruidoso valley and those to be built later.

Dr. Austin D. Critt' Hiram M. Dow, Rev. S. E. Allison, George B. Jewett, Byron O. Beal and Robert Kellahan will represent Roswell at this meeting.

Many Summer Homes.

More than 40 summer homes have been built during the past few years on the Ruidoso valley and here people come from all sections of the southwest every summer to spend their vacations. The farming section of the Pecos valley, in the arctic winter belt, is also dependent on the Ruidoso water in a large part and the taking away of this water for any purpose would be regarded here as a calamity.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Extension Service, N. M. State College:

Are your picture frames soiled? Clean with a soft cloth or sponge dipped in oil or turpentine. Very good; the oil evaporates, leaving the frame clean.

Brush the TUB from your bath once in a while. If you wish it to wear longer. A soft brush or piece of velvet may be used.

Save fat and make your doughnuts more delicious and digestible by immediately dipping them in boiling water for about one-half second, after removing from the fire. When the water is cool remove the fat.

Put spoons on nails in your closet, thus preventing the garments from being torn.

Do not allow your ham and bacon to mold where it has been sliced. Rub lard over the exposed surface. The mold will then form on the lard. Paraffin run over the fresh surface will also prevent it from molding.

Keep the heat in your oil stove by lining it with asbestos.

To prevent gems or bread from sticking to aluminum gem or bread pans, heat slightly, grease, then fill with the dough.

Clover leaf biscuits can be made by placing three small pieces of dough in each muffin pan. These are delicious for afternoon tea.

Remove ink stains from white cotton by covering the spot with salt saturated with lemon juice and let stand in the sun for a number of hours. Then wash it out thoroughly in clear water.

LITTLE THREE YEAR OLD BOY LOST IN THE MOUNTAINS

From the Alamogordo News: Word was received by the News Tuesday over long distance phone that the little 3-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gullion, who lives at Bluewater, the eastern part of Otero county, had been lost Sunday at 11 o'clock and had wandered over the bleak mountains until 3 o'clock Monday.

The little boy told his mother Sunday morning that he was going out to meet his papa. The mother thought that he saw his father coming and did not pay any attention to the matter. Later the father came in and the little babe was not with him. The parents with neighbors instituted a search which lasted for more than twenty-four hours.

The little boy was finally found by hunters over in Bear Canyon a number of miles from his home. He was still crying for his papa. It is thought that the child will not suffer any great inconvenience from having been out in the mountains 26 long.

SECRETARY FALL LEAVES FOR TRIP WEST

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—Secretary Fall left today on another western trip which will take him to the Pacific coast. He will attend a meeting of the Southwestern league at Riverside, Calif., December 3, when the utilization of water power of the Colorado river will be discussed. He will also hold a hearing at San Diego, December 12, on questions relating to use of the waters of the Colorado river for power and irrigation.

SCHOOL NOTES

(By SUPT. E. E. COLM)

Wednesday, Dec. 7, is the next "Visitor's Day." No preparation is supposed to be made by teacher or pupils for that day. The regular work of the day is to be carried on. Parents may see for themselves what their children are doing, confer with the teacher and better cooperate with the schools. If parents have any suggestions to make the teachers and superintendent will be glad to receive them.

Do not forget the basket ball game between Carrizozo High School and Tularosa High School Saturday, Dec. 3. It is to be a double header and is to be the last game in Carrizozo for several weeks.

This year, as in the years past, the teachers received a warm welcome in Albuquerque. The programs arranged were interesting as well as instructive. Supt. Blair of Springfield, Illinois, gave several fine lectures. One was entitled "The Face at the Window" and tried to impress upon the teachers the importance of having all the faces which come back to us in after years, bright, happy ones. In addition to the meetings which were very helpful, we enjoyed visiting with old friends and class mates.

BAZAAR AND TEA

The Ladies of the Methodist Church have all their plans made for the Bazaar and Tea Saturday afternoon, Dec. 3, from 2 to 7 o'clock at Lutz Hall. The articles on sale are especially suitable for Christmas gifts and are of a very useful kind. There are some beautiful pieces of wearing apparel for father and brother, as well as for mother and sister. Come and bring the family for luncheon. Good sandwiches, cake and coffee, 25 cents.

CARRIZOZO TOWN TEAM WINS

On Nov. 18, Carrizozo and Corona Town Basket Ball teams played a game at the local ball park, which resulted in a victory for Carrizozo to the tune of 38 to 2. A return game was played at Corona last Saturday and while the score was not so one-sided as the previous game and notwithstanding the fact that our boys were unaccustomed to indoor playing, the Carrizozo won by a score of 18 to 7. The excitement throughout the game was intense, Bryan Casler and Harry Norman being the star players.

PARK PROPOSITION MEETING

In response to calls by Justice Watmore, a large crowd of business men met at the office of Justice Watmore last night (Thursday) to consider the National Park proposition, and to send delegates to Las Cruces today. It seems that Roswell is only willing to vote for the park if no water is diverted from the adjoining mountains to other territory than that in its natural course, and will oppose the project unless such clause is inserted.

Carrizozo merchants and professional men went water and so put themselves on record last night, by the unanimous declaration that if left to choose between the Park and water, they want the water. Headed by Mayor Rolland, a committee of six started this morning for Las Cruces to put up a fight for Carrizozo, the Park and Water for Carrizozo.

PRELIMINARY HEARING

The preliminary hearing of Dr. Davis was had last Saturday for the killing of Dr. J. T. Stone, with Justice I. O. Wetmore presiding in the District Court room. Witnesses present both for the defense and prosecution, all of whom testified to the killing which agreed with the accounts published in the papers. Taking of testimony consumed about 12 hours of time. At the close, Justice Wetmore placed the bonds of the defendant at $5,000.00, the same being furnished shortly after the hearing. J. A. Ranehan of Santa Fe and W. C. Marchant of this city represented the defense, while W. C. Whately, assistant district attorney conducted the case for the State.

Mrs. J. T. Stone, wife of Dr. Stone, deceased, arrived from Lone Mountain, Tenn., Thursday and left in the afternoon for her home in Corona. Mrs. Stone accompanied the body of the Doctor to Tazewell, Tenn., where the same was received by the Masonic order. The funeral cortege headed by the different Masonic bodies from the 22 degree down to the Eastern Star Blue Lodge, where he was made a Mason, traveled over a large turnpike, a distance of about eight miles to Lone Mountain, where interment was made. Mrs. Stone will remain in Corona for the present, at least.

WHITE OAKS ITEMS

Mr. Edward Lane, who has been attending school in Los Angeles is at home again. "Homesickness Blues" to see his new mother we suppose.

Mr. Philip Walker returned home from Camp Travis Friday.

The patrons of the school and others, gave an entertainment for the school in the church Wednesday. The song sung by little Wayne Van Schoyck was the most delightful part of the program. Sandwiches and cocoa were served, after which a dance at the hall was enjoyed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Virden spent the week-end at her home in La Luz.

Mrs. Robt Leslie, Sr., returned from the Hot Springs Wednesday.

Mrs. Ches. Spence is very ill with pneumonia in Iowa.

The dance Saturday night was enjoyed by all. There were some visitors from Fort Stanton, Capitan, Ancho and Jicarilla.

DEER HUNTING OVER

No "buck fever" seems to have possessed Carrizozo deer hunters this season. T. E. Kelley and party brought in two; Wm. Kelly killed a fine 10 pointer, a nice portion of which graced the table of the Outlook, for which we return our thanks. Ed Long's aim was good for a nine pointer; A. G. Snow came in with a fine 10 pointer. There has been about 35 deer killed this season, besides other game, such as turkey, quail, etc. We can account for this increase for it shows what game protection will do.

Watch for our Special Announcement on Lutz's Home-Made Candies and Box Chocolates for Christmas—Pure Food Bakery.

Miss Helen Rice of Pa. zona is spending the week-end with Mrs. Jack Callahan.

Mrs. Ches. F. Grey, postmistress at Ocuire, was a Carrizozo visitor on Wednesday.

Mrs. Geo. Ferguson, daughter and mother are spending a pleasant season on the Pacific coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben West have moved from Bisbee, Ariz., to Tucson, where Mr. West has been transferred. Their many Carrizozo friends wish them prosperity in their new home.

Miss Margie Brannum returned this week from Albuquerque where she visited with former schoolmates and friends in the Duke City. The Brannum boys, Rufus and Linza, will be home from the college about Dec. 17, to spend the holiday season. W. W. Stadman, Mrs. Stadman, and children returned Monday from Oklahoma, where Mrs. Stadman had been visiting her parents, during which time she was ill which caused Mr. Stadman to make two trips to her bedside. Her condition since their return has improved nicely.

Soon the thunder of the many rifles became almost a steady roar. The air was filled with the pungent odor of burning powder. Bill Dale emptied the magazine of his repeater, and sank behind the big chestnut to fill it again with cartridges from his belt. Bullets now whined on both sides of him; they cut greenish white furrows in the bark of both sides of the tree, and knocked up little spurts of black earth to his right and to his left; they cut off twigs within an arm's reach of him. A dozen Balls were now firing at him, seeking to avenge the death of their kinsman, the Goliath. John Moreland's strong voice came to him through the din and roar: "Don't show no part o' yourself now, Bill; if ye do, ye'll shure be hit!"

Dale fired again, pumped a fresh cartridge into the chamber of his rifle and slipped another into the magazine, and arose behind the chestnut. "Down, Bill!" cried John Moreland. If Dale heard, he gave no sign of it. He fired four shots rapidly, and before the wind had carried away this blinding smoke he was behind another tree and shooting toward the Balls again. Soon there came a short, loud peal of laughter from his left; he turned his head and saw Ben Littleford taking a careful aim at a long angle toward the side of a boulder. Then Littleford fired, and a puff of smoke dust showed that his bullet had gone true to its mark.

"What's that for?" demanded Dale. "We haven't any ammunition to throw away!" "Why, Bill," replied Littleford, "didn't ye never bounce a bullet often a rock and make it go toward a man behind a tree?"

It lasted but for two hours, but the casualties were comparatively few, because there was so much cover available. From the beginning the Balls and the Turners had the worst of it, which was due to uphill shooting, white whisky, and lack of the iron that makes real fighting men. The cartridges of those below were giving out; they had fired too many shots needlessly.

"It's about time to rush them," Dale said to John Moreland, who had crept up beside him. "Just give the word," Moreland nodded.

A few minutes later, Bill Dale sent the wings of his line down the mountain side, forming a half-circle of his force once more; then the whole line rushed, surrounded the enemy and called for a surrender.

But the Balls and their kinsmen wouldn't give in yet. They left their cover and started to run, found themselves facing Morelands and Littleferds in every direction, clubbed their rifles and fought. It was not true courage that prompted them to offer resistance; it was utter desperation; they had never been givers of mercy. Dale's men forebore to fire upon them, which was at Dale's command, and met them with clubbed rifles. The woodland rang with the sound of wood and steel crashing against wood and steel. Everywhere there were groans and threats and curses from the losing side, victorious cries and further demands for a surrender from the winners.

Bill Dale, over a lover of fair combat, threw down his repeater to grapple with a big North Carolinian whose clubbed weapon had been knocked from his hands. The two fell and rolled down the mountain side, locked in each other's arms.

John Moreland. "They're all shut up tight in the downstairs of the office building, under guard. The ain't but one of 'em plumb tetotally dead, fo' a wonder; but the's a whole parcel of 'em hurt. I've done sent Luke to town on horseback, after a doctor fo' you and Saul and Little Tom; and he can tend to them 'crippled Balls, too, I reckon, ef you think it's best. What're we a-goin' to do with them fellers, Bill?"

"We're going to take them to the Cartersville jail," Dale answered promptly. "I had a different plan 'an that planned out, John," said By Heck, winking at Ben Littleford. "I had it planned out to hang 'em all on a big green hemlock as a Christmas tree fo' Bill! Some devilish rough Christmas eve ye're a-havin', Bill, old boy, ain't it?"

"Rather," smiled Dale. He closed his eyes. His head ached, and he was somehow very tired. Within the hour he went to sleep, and when he awoke it was daylight on Christmas morning. Ben Littleford, half dressed, was stirring the coals to life in the wide-mouthed stone fireplace. Dale felt better than he had expected to feel; he greeted Littleford with the compliments of the season, arose and dressed himself.

Littleford had just gone with a handful of kindling wood toward the kitchen, when there was a low, light tapping at the outside door of Bill Dale's room. Dale arose from his sheepskin-lined rocker before the cheery log fire, went to the door and opened it. Before him stood a slim, barefoot boy in the poorest of rags; in the pitifully slender arms there was something wrapped rather loosely in crumpled brown paper. Dale did not remember having seen the lad before, but he knew it was no Littleford.

"Come in, son," he invited cordially. "Come in and warm yourself. My goodness alive, it's too cold to go barefooted like that! Haven't you any shoes, son?" "Shoes?" muttered the boy, queerly. "Shoes?"

He was shivering from the cold. His thin face looked pinched and blue, his eyes big and hollow. Dale stooped, picked him up bodily, carried him to the old rocker he had just vacated, and put him into it with hands as gentle as any woman's.

"H—!" began the boy, staring hard—what? "Now stick your feet out and warm them, son—that's it," and Dale chafed the poor little, dirty, half-frozen feet and legs.

"Son," he went on after a moment, his heart throbbing out of sheer pity, "you go to the commissary clerk and tell him to dress you up like the crown prince of England, if he's got it, and charge the same to the account of Bill Dale. It will be my Christmas gift to you, little boy. What's your name?"

"The only Christmas present you could git from a Ball would be a bullet," frowned Ben Littleford. He stepped to the rocker and took the bundle from the boy's lap; he took away the crumpled brown paper—and there in his hands was a loaded and cocked revolver!

"By George!" exclaimed Bill Dale. "What'd I tell ye?" smiled Ben Littleford. An hour later Dale and a score of Littleferds and Morelands entered the big downstairs room of the office and supplies building. The defeated Balls and Turners lounged here and there, sullen and silent, on the rough-board floor of their temporary prison.

Dale walked into their midst and addressed them quietly. "You'll admit, won't you, that I've got what you fellows call 'the dead-wood' on you? And that it lies in my power to send every single one of you to the state penitentiary?"

"I reckon so," admitted Adam Ball's father. He was pretty well cowed, and so were the others. "But I've decided not to do it," went on Bill Dale. "I can't forget that this is Christmas day. You may have your liberty as a present from the man, you've tried so hard and so unjustly to kill. After the doctor gets through with Little Tom and Saul Littleford, he will come here to dress all your wounds; then our guards will give you back your rifles, and you may go home. I'm not asking you to promise me anything, you understand. I'm simply trusting the human heart, and I don't believe I'll be disappointed."

Dale turned to John Moreland. Moreland's rugged face wore a puzzled, displeased smile. "If your brother David was here," Bill Dale demanded with a brief shade of anger in his voice, "what do you think he'd do about it? It's Christmas day, isn't it?"

The old Moreland chief's countenance softened; his grey eyes brightened. "Yes," he said, "it's Christmas day, Bill." He looked toward the Balls and Turners. "Merry Christmas, gentlemen!" he said. Adam Ball's father immediately asked him for a chew of tobacco.

CHAPTER XIX. A Perfect Crease. On the floor of the richly-furnished library of the Dale home, near a west window, Miss Elizabeth Littleford sat reading by the fast fading light of an early March afternoon. Somehow she liked to sit on the floor, and always she liked to read; for one thing, books helped her to forget that she was lonely.

There were footsteps behind her, soft footsteps because of the thick velvet carpet; then a low voice inquired: "Aren't you afraid you will injure your eyes, Elizabeth? Better have a light, hadn't you, dear?" The old coal king turned toward the switch on the wall.

"No!" she answered quickly. "I'm through reading for today, and I like this twilight." Her improvement in speech and in manners had gone on at a surprisingly rapid rate. She rarely spoke with any but the simplest words, but she never fell into anything more than bare semblance of the old drawing hill dialect unless it was while she was under the stress of some strong emotion.

She closed the book and looked up with eyes that were like the first stars in a summer sky. Her beauty was wonderful; it was fiercer and sweeter than it had ever been before.

Old Dale stood looking thoughtfully into her upturned face. He was a little pale, and he seemed troubled and uneasy. Elizabeth shook her head. "You're worrying again!"

He dropped into a nearby chair, leaned slowly forward and let his head fall gently on her thick and silky chestnut-brown hair. "I wish," he said as though to himself, "that I had a daughter like you."

He took his hand from her head, lay back wearily in his chair and closed his eyes. Then he bent forward again. "The Morelands, Elizabeth—they're never away from the settlement, are they?"

"Yes; Bill Dale has done wonderful things for them," the girl answered. John K. Dale was silent for a moment, after which he said suddenly: "I want to see you, Elizabeth."

"Of course, I'll go with you," she thought she knew what it was that called him. By intuition, perhaps, or by Bill Dale's occasional cryptic allusions, she guessed out by his tradition, Elizabeth Littleford gradually had come into possession of the old coal man's grim secret.

Neither of them knew that John Moreland was then visiting his beloved old hills for the sake of some shooting. The following day John K. Dale and Elizabeth Littleford alighted from a northbound passenger train at the Halfway switch. The mountains were covered with three inches of snow, and the hemlock and pines bore heavy burdens of the beautiful white stuff; but the air was still, and it wasn't very cold.

"You'd get your clothing all black on the coal train," Dale said to his companion, "so you'd rather walk over, wouldn't you? Anyway, the train isn't here. I'm good for six miles, I think."

"Yes," smiled Ben Littleford's daughter, "I'd rather walk—if you're sure that six miles won't be too much for you."

Together, with the girl leading the way, they set out across David Moreland's mountain. The old trail showed not one footprint ahead of them; it was not so much used now. They said little. Each thought their own thoughts, and neither cared to speak them to the other.

Just before they reached the mountain crest, they passed a group of snow-laden pines that concealed a big, brown-bearded man who had been stealthily following the trail of a lone wild turkey. He wore khaki hunting clothes and high laced boots, and there was a certain English fineness about him. In his bare hands he carried a repeating rifle, which marked him as one born in the hills; a lowlander would have had a choke-bored shotgun.

When he saw John K. Dale he stopped suddenly. It might have been intuition, or it might have been sheer curiosity, the average hillman being a stranger to neither—he followed and watched the two, unseen by them.

On the pine-fringed crest, Elizabeth Littleford halted to view that which lay around and below him. Old Dale stopped close at her side, and he, too, looked at that which lay around and below them; and to his mind also there came memories crowding.

The young woman brushed back a wayward wisp of brown hair and turned to the man beside her. "The Moreland part o' the settlement looks lonesome, don't it?" she said. "See, there's no smoke comin' from their cabin chimneys. . . ." She went on absently, "But the Littleferds are there yet."

BEAR LAYS DAVID MORELAND THE BEST MAN GOD EVER MAID KILLED

BY JOHN K. CARLILE

MAY GOD DAM HIS SOLE

It was a living curse, a breathing curse—a terrible anathema. If dead David Moreland himself had arisen from the tomb and uttered it, it would not have struck John K. Dale with greater force. He grew weak, as though with a fatal sickness. He sank to his knees in the snow, and his iron-gray head fell forward to his breast, Elizabeth Littleford knelt in the snow beside him. She tried to find comforting words, for she loved him and was sorry for him, but no words would come.

YOUTHFUL BANDITS LOOT BANK

Roy, Wash.—Three masked bandits, one of them said to be a youth under 20, held up the Roy State bank here at closing time and five minutes later escaped with $4,200 in cash, leaving E. S. Emigh, the cashier, and Mrs. May Crowley, bookkeeper, locked in the bank vault. Ten minutes later Emigh liberated himself and gave the alarm, but no sign of the robbers had been reported by the deputy sheriffs who are scouring the country. The trio made their escape in an automobile.

THE RANGE OF THE FLY

A most interesting experiment was conducted by the Bureau of Entomology, U. S. Department of Agriculture, to determine the range covered by flies.

Approximately 234,000 flies of different species were dusted with powdered red chalk and liberated. Fly traps, baited with food highly relished by flies, were placed at various distances. By this means the direction and flight of different species were determined.

Some of the flies traveled 1,000 feet in a few minutes. The screw-worm fly covered a distance of half a mile in three hours, while the black blow-fly covered anywhere from half a mile to eleven miles in two days. The house fly covered over six miles in less than one day.

MURINE Night Morning Keep Your Eyes Clean and Healthy

Blind 57 Years, Yet Built City

IS STILL HARD AT WORK

At Eighty-Eight He Looks Back Over Practically All of the History of Texas—Lost Eyes in Battle in Kentucky.

Austin, Tex.—Blindness is a serious impediment to most men, but it did not prevent Gen. A. R. Johnson of Burnet, Tex., from accomplishing whatever purpose he had in mind—and he has had many purposes. After he had lost the sight of both eyes the general built the city of Marble Falls, made several trips East to interest capital and succeeded; built a water power plant, a school house, a shoe factory, a cotton mill, secured a railroad for his town, fought Indians and raised and educated six children he never had seen. He also has taken a prominent part in Texas politics and civic work since losing his sight. The general is now eighty-three years old and is as enterprising as ever.
 Brilliant War Record.
 Johnson's record in the war between the states was as brilliant as his work after the conflict had closed. It was along in 1864 that he lost his sight from explosion of a shot. Johnson is one of the few remaining generals of the Confederacy and has been a resident of Texas for more than sixty years.

When Johnson came to Texas before the Civil war, Kentucky being his native state, he had charge of a section of the Overland Mail Route, one of the links in the Butterfield Mail Route between New York and San Francisco. The Comanche Indians often attacked and killed the station agents, and in the fights with them Johnson always took a hand.
 When the war came he hurried to Kentucky and joined General Forrest. Johnson had two brothers in the federal army and having been absent in Texas so long it was supposed his sentiments were similar and so he obtained valuable information for Forrest. It was at this time that Johnson earned the sobriquet "Stovepipe Johnson." Learning that there were 500 stands of guns at Newberg, Ind., he took 30 men across the Ohio river, found some broken down wagons and joints of stovepipe. Mounting the pipe on the wagon wheels, he was able to deceive the people at Newberg into thinking that he had several powerful cannon trained upon their town and when he demanded of the Federal officers that they surrender their supplies they did so promptly.

 Lost Eyesight in Battle.
 The general lost his sight during a fight at Grubbs Cross Roads, Ken., and was left for dead upon the battlefield. His obituary was published all over the South, but the Federals picked him up with other wounded and sent him to Boston harbor prison. Later he was exchanged, and spent the remainder of the war period filling cartridges. After Lee surrendered Johnson and his wife returned to Texas, where he still found his old enemy, the Comanches, on the war path, and he accompanied several expeditions against them. Then he began his plans to build Marble Falls, liking the location because of the falls in the Colorado river at that point and the natural dam. Thus the "Blind Man's Town," with its fine water power plant and factories, became a reality.

The general, though living at Burnet, a short distance from Marble Falls, takes great interest in the welfare of the projects begun by him, and is still planning new enterprises.

HAS BOUT WITH AN ELEPHANT

Big Game Hunter Has Exciting Experience in Africa.

J. Merewood Dowsett is Surprised When Big Beast Turns and Runs Away After Downing and Trying to Trample Him.

London.—A good elephant yarn is told by J. Merewood Dowsett, a well-known big game hunter, who has just returned from a hunting trip in South Africa.
 He was hunting elephants in Uganda when information was brought him of the whereabouts of a large herd. With a native chief and a house boy, he started to find them. The party came upon the herd in the forest. Mr. Dowsett got several photographs within 20 yards of the beasts when the chief warned him that they had been "scented" and that the animals were coming for them. Snatching up his rifle Mr. Dowsett shot and killed the leader, a big bull.

While some surrounded their leader many of the beasts stampeded, and, running the wrong way, Mr. Dowsett was cut off from the party. Reloaded his gun, the hunter dashed off for safety and ran into a big bull elephant which crashed through the bush six yards in front of him.
 Trunk aloft, ears extended and trumpeting wildly, the beast rushed at Mr. Dowsett and swept him to the ground with his trunk and turned rapidly in its own length ready to trample him.
 The hunter took a flying dive under the monster's belly, realising he would then be on the right side of the wind, but the beast turned rapidly round and again tried to trample him. Instead the animal rolled him over and over with its legs and the hunter saw above him the two great tusks as the beast tried to maneuver his body into position and pick him up. Mr. Dowsett managed to roll behind the animal and get to his feet and make a rush for cover. To the hunter's relief and surprise the furious beast set off in the opposite direction and disappeared.

Women's Influence Slowly Approximating That of British and American Women.

City Population of Japan Increasing Thirteen Times as Fast as That of Country—Million Men Engaged in Factory Work.

Honolulu, T. H.—A unique feature of the gradual rise of women's influence in Japan, until their position is now slowly approximating that of American and British women, is that they are giving up smoking, just at the time when great comment has arisen over the increase of smoking among their sisters in America and England.
 The subject was discussed by Dr. T. H. Haden, dean of the theological department of Kwansai Gakuin, a mission college in Japan, who attended sessions here of the Pan-American educational conference as one of the empire's representatives.
 "Formerly all classes of women in Japan smoked in public as well as in their homes," Doctor Haden said. "The influence of the West has almost stopped this custom, although it is to the interest of the government to foster it, as tobacco is a government monopoly."

 New Word for "Home" Coined.
 Doctor Haden said that a new word for home—"katel"—has been coined in Japan to express the meaning and idea of home life in Western civilization as is being learned by the Japanese.
 "The changing conditions of Japanese women is only begun, but it is proceeding with a rapidity and intensity which are very significant and hopeful," he said. "The Japanese language has a word expressing house and household, but they had no conception of home life in the Occident, where women are on an equal footing with men. This is now expressed by 'katel,' with the new appreciation of home as a thing to be shared by husband and wife and the gradual rise of the Japanese women to the position of their American and British sisters."
 Doctor Haden said that the city population of Japan is increasing 13 times as fast as that of the country, due to the change of industry from agriculture to manufacturing. More than 1,000,000 are engaged in factory work and more than one-half of these are under twenty years of age, he said.
 Women Discard Sandals for Shoes.
 "A significant and interesting indication of the change in progress in Japan now," said Doctor Haden, "is the fact that, while the Japanese women retain the kimono as their chief attire, they have discarded the obi—the folded square of cloth worn on the back—and over their kimonos many of the women now wear a full, divided skirt, which ties around the waist with a wide sash hanging at the side. Many of them also wear shoes instead of their sandals."
 Divorce laws also have been revised in accord with other transitions. Formerly a man could send his wife back to her parents without excuse or explanation. This act constituted legal freedom for him. Now he can only divorce her for infidelity or by agreement with her. The woman as yet has no recourse against the infidelity of her husband, not even though he bring a concubine into the home, as frequently has been done.
 "The example of Americans, their homes and schools in Japan, gradually has altered the hearts and feelings of the Japanese until now they have been induced to effect these changes."

Great Discovery.
 "Did you ever notice," remarked the country boy to his city cousin, "that when a bunch of cattle are grazing they all move along with their heads in the same direction?"

In order to do your best work, you must be healthy. You must sleep soundly at night, your nerves must be strong, steady and under perfect control.

If you are accustomed to drinking tea or coffee with your meals or between meals, you may be loading yourself with a very great handicap. Your nervous system may be stimulated beyond what is natural for you.

For tea and coffee contain their caffeine. These are drugs as any doctor can tell you. They are known to irritate the nervous system by their action and to cause restlessness and insomnia, which prevent the proper recuperation of the vital forces.

If you want to be at your best, capable of doing the very best work that lies in you, why not stop drinking tea and coffee? Drink Postum, the rich, satisfying beverage made from scientifically roasted cereals.

Postum contains absolutely no drugs of any kind, but in flavor tastes much like rich coffee. It helps nerve and brain structure by letting you get sound restful sleep.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

We Need a Community Hall - But We Need Water First

There is a movement on foot to establish a Community Hall in Carrizozo, and the movement is a good one. The Carrizozo Woman's Club was the originator, several of the leading ladies bringing up the proposition, chief among whom was Mrs. T. A. Spencer, who proposed the same at a meeting of the Club on April 1. At that meeting, Mrs. Spencer's proposition was, to deed amount of land necessary for the building which was to be a combination of a Woman's Club and Community House, the same to be separated by heavy walls. Now, we must admit that this would be a good movement, but why should we not first consider the water proposition as being paramount over all others? We should have both - but WATER first!

In conversation with our business men of Carrizozo since the propaganda for water began, not one was found but who readily joined in the chorus - "We Want Water!" If we had a Community House, its principal need would be water; if an Athletic Club such as we have advocated at different times, water is the first great necessity; it is the greatest of all our needs. Carrizozo ladies see the need of water in the homes, but some are of the opinion that it cannot be obtained. The Woman's Club, headed by Mrs. Geo. L. Ulrich, who spoke of a Community Hall long before it was brought to the attention of that important society, believes we should, by all means, have water first.

The Civic League which she organized a few years ago, gave the city such a renovating that the increase in the valuation of real estate was wonderful. "How much more beneficial to the home; how much more valuable to real estate; how infinitely much more attractive would our city become; how gardens would flourish, flowers bloom, industries locate and thrive, if we had water. Carrizozo has grown to the extent that we must have water. With this much needed improvement, we can offer inducements to manufacturing interests to locate here wherein as it is, nothing along this line can be secured, for the first question asked is, "How are you fixed for water?" Let us get the water and all things that make for improvement and advancement will be added to it.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS.
Is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts directly on the inflamed mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring nature in restoring normal conditions free. All Druggists.

Governor Thomas E. Campbell issued a proclamation of emergency, authorizing the board of directors of state institutions to expend $3,750,000 in repairing damage done to the capitol building and grounds by the Cave creek flood. Conservative estimates of motor vehicle production for 1921 forecast a total of 1,700,000 passenger cars and trucks. This compares with 1,028,000 for 1920. Inasmuch as it was predicted that 1921 would be a "million-car year," this output is highly gratifying to the industry, for it demonstrates conclusively that the sale of motor vehicles is established on a solid foundation regardless of general industrial conditions.

GERMANY NOT BUILDING ARMY

BERLIN GOVERNMENT TAKES ISSUE WITH BRIAND'S CHARGES AT CONFERENCE.

ASSERTION DISPUTED

STATEMENT THAT REICHWEHR IS NUCLEUS FOR ARMY DECLARED INCORRECT.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

Berlin.—In a statement to the Associated Press, the German government takes issue with the charges of Premier Briand of France in his address before the Washington conference that the German police forces and reichwehr constituted a nucleus for a future German army.

It declares M. Briand's assertion that the reichwehr is composed exclusively of officers and noncommissioned officers of the old army is incorrect, and says that the bulk of the reichwehr is made up of youths between the ages of 18 and 21, recruited since the war.

The statement says that the "protection police" were created at the bidding of the entente, and adds: "The reichwehr is wholly unaffiliated with the Schutz Polizei, which took the place of the security police when the entente ordered the latter's dissolution.

"The Schutz Polizei is primarily an agency to maintain law and order. It takes orders solely from the civilian ministries of the federated states. Its numerical strength and its composition with reference to the ratio of officers and men are designated and supervised by the entente control committee.

"The number of rifles and small arms it is permitted to have is specified. It does not possess heavy calibered arms. The elpwohnerwehr, or civilian guards referred to by M. Briand, have been dissolved, and their arms have been surrendered and destroyed."

The statement disputes M. Briand's assertion that Germany still possessed numerous arsenals equipped to turn out war materials, and asserts these plants are limited to two or three and supplied and that their output is supervised by the entente control committee.

The government's statement refers to the French premier to the address from the throne in which King George of England declared satisfactory progress had been made by Germany in execution of her financial and disarmament obligations.

Newspaper comment generally characterizes M. Briand's speech as "flat falsehood," but most of the journals express fear that America may believe what he said. The opinion generally expressed was that his attitude was likely to undermine and nullify the whole effort toward disarmament.

Shoppers Ask Increase.
New York.—Wage increases of 13 cents an hour have been requested of virtually all carriers in the country by the heads of shopcraft unions, representing about 400,000 employees, who have asked railroad executives for conferences Dec. 20. Sets New Standard of Etiquette.
Washington.—Diplomatic dinners and luncheons incident to the armament conference have set up a new standard of etiquette for Americans. This was praised by one American official, as follows: "When I go to a friend's house and wine is served at dinner, I drink very sparingly, because I know his supply is very limited, but when Premier Briand of the French delegation renders me refreshments of the same kind I go as far as I like in honor of diplomatic duty."

Choice of Evil.
For a long time a beggar occupied a position in the street with a "blind" placard on his breast. One day the benevolent Mrs. Holmsterna finds him with the word "dumb" on his money box. She looks at him in surprise and says:

"Son, this fellow RUTH—Babe RUTH you call him—is he the mascot for the team?"

"No, dad," replied the lad with an embarrassed grin. "he's heavy litter for the Yankees. What made you think he was a mascot?"

"Why, Babe, you know. Babe, I thought he was a little fellow. And what is it you say, 'Yank'?"

"No, dad, Yank, Yank." Then, after a moment, disgusted: "Say, dad, didn't you ever hear of John McGraw?"

"McGraw, McGraw. No, I can't remember that name."

The lad was visibly perturbed, and getting closer to dad, he whispered: "Say, dad, when we get home I'll slip it to you who some of these birds are so you will know next time."—Indianapolis News.

The Block Signals Are Working—

In some respects, human experience is like railroad.

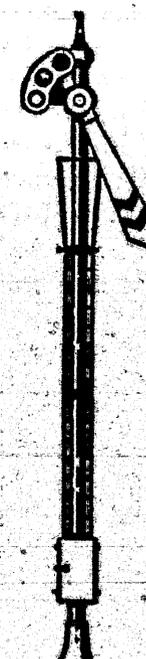

Every moment of the business and social day the block signals are giving right of way to keenness and alertness—while the slow and the heavy must wait on the sidetrack for their chance to move forward.

The ability to "go through" and to "get there" depends much on the poise of body, brain and nerves that comes with correct diet and proper nourishment.
