PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

Of Interest To Sheepmen

Albuquerque, N. M., June 26.—Following the hearing of reports by the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, its own members and a number of prominent sheep raisers throughout the state, the State Sheep Sanitary board last week decided to modify the general sheep dipping law. The board, however, delivered the opinion that sheep which were infected with scabies or within an area where scabies are prevalent and which are declared quarantined areas by the field inspector of the federal and state organizations are to be subjected to general dipping law requirements.

In regard to non-infected sheep, the board stated that all sheep, other than bucks which are found by the field inspectors of the board or of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry to be free from the scabies infection are not required by the order of the board to be dipped under supervision this year.

The board declared, however, that all buck sheep within the state or which may enter the state during the present year are to be dipped twice under the supervision of field inspectors at intervals of 10 to 14 days, the first dipping to occur not earlier than October 1. Buck sheep which are driven or shipped into the state are required to be dipped twice, the first dipping to occur within 5 days after date of entrance into New Mexico and prior to the dispersion or division of the herd or lot consignment. The board approved of lime, sulphur and nicotine as the ingredients of the dipping mixture.

Special regulations for the sheep on Navajo Indian reservations were formulated by the board. In the case of areas where it was determined that the sheep should be dipped twice within a period of 10 to 14 days under the supervision of field inspectors. In the areas which the inspectors discovered to be free from scabies the herds of sheep should be subjected to a general dipping under supervision as a precautionary measure against scabies.

Sport Ahead

According to information, we are to have some good athletic exhibitions here this summer and fall. Ben Sanchez has rented the rooms back of Judge Wetmore's office and will fit up an up-to-date athletic quarters where he will arrange to stage some encounters between boxers and wrestlers from El Paso and other places. Full particulars will be given in The Outlook as soon as dates and contracts have been made. He will also open a school for boxing and other athletic sports, but this will require some time to arrange for and secure the proper amount of encouragement from lovers of the sport. This is something we have needed for a long time and the move is a good one.

Moral Upheaval at Herrin

One encouraging sign in Herrin is, that after all the murder, pillage and savagery, the city council without referring to the recent outrages, declared itself against public crap shooting and placed a heavier tax on bootlegging. A reform wave has certainly struck the city.

Let the People Think

As the people complain about growing tax burdens, they are slowly coming to a realization of the fact that the load they are carrying is largely a result of their own acts; that is, they have been willing to adopt without counting the cost in advance, every new-fangled idea proposed relative to city, county or state government, or our system of public education.

The public has a right to demand that candidates for public offices be qualified for the positions they are to fill and they have a right to demand business administrations of public affairs. It is unfair, however, to elect a man to office on an economy and business platform and in the same election vote for the passage of various measures which add millions to the tax burden of the state. If the people do this, they have but themselves to blame when the tax collector comes around.

As the family keeps within its income, prospers and produces good citizens as a result of the example set by the father and mother in the daily life of the family, so will the state grow and develop and keep its tax requirements reasonable in proportion to the thought and intelligence manifested by the members of this great collective family, namely, its citizens.

Public officials are merely the hired employees of the people. The average employee will furnish good or bad service according to the example set him by his employers. Go to the poles and vote as carefully on public affairs as you would on matters affecting your family life. Do not vote to expend public funds and then kick on your tax bill. Such a course is as foolish as to contract family bills and then complain at the collector for insisting on payment. Here is the first step the people must take in any program of economy and business management in public expenditures.—The Manufacturer.

"Out of the Bible"

The Sunday School of the M. E. church will present the pageant "Out of the Bible" Sunday evening, July 9. The children taking part in this entertainment will endeavor to interpret the characters of the best loved and best remembered Children of the Bible: Isaac, Joseph, Joash, David, Samuel, Ishmael, Miriam, The Captive Maid and many others.

The children are being carefully trained and the picturesque oriental costumes will add charm and beauty to the entertainment, which gives promise of being one of the most elaborate performances the Sunday School has attempted for some time. The public is cordially invited. Further announcement as to where the entertainment will be given, will be made later.

Mining Promoter Here

J. E. Krepps, mining promoter from Los Angeles, is here this week looking over some good propositions in the mountain regions nearby, with Attorney W. T. Brothers. Mr. Krepps is highly pleased with localities he has visited so far and will remain with us for the next ten days.

THEME

The earth has got this loveliness by rote,
Where season after season she must learn
How plum trees wear a necklace at the throat,
And aisles of shaken tulips must return;
Strange, where these poppies burn the dusk away,
And daffodils light by the feet of Spring
That this should seem a new and matchless thing.

What ended loveliness has come to birth,
Of rains and rains conspiring, year by year,
Through all the million summertimes of earth,
Building a rhyme too hushed for us to hear,
Whose half-completed music waits and fills
With this last line of windy daffodills.

Extinction Threatens Livestock Industry

Raton, N. M., June 26.—Condition of the cattle business has reached a condition so desperate that it has become necessary to adopt positive defensive measures against inequality in taxation, is the substance of a resolution adopted by the executive board of the New Mexico Cattle and Horse Growers' association at the meeting here today.

In the discussion which preceded the work of the special committee appointed by George L. Webster, vice president, to draft the resolutions, the excessive cost of government was assailed.

Resolutions were adopted that New Mexico has reached a point where the livestock industry, the principal source of the state's wealth is, under the present system of excessive taxation, threatened with extinction and that livestock interests are assessed greater than any other industry; that the valuation has reached the level of 1914 prices while the revenue exacted from taxpayers in 1921 was increased 278 per cent, the assessed valuation based on war boom values. All members were urged to appeal against the unjust taxation by the State Tax Commission, and to defend resulting suits in their respective districts.

New Mexico Women Attend Convention

New Mexico was represented at the seventh biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Chautauqua, N. Y., by Mrs. Frank W. Parker of Santa Fe, president of the state federation; Mrs. J. G. Gould of Albuquerque, president of the Woman's club; Mrs. Charles O'Malley, Las Vegas, state chairman of music, and Mrs. Grace T. Bear of Roswell, president of the Woman's club. Mrs. O'Malley played "O Fair New Mexico" on the violin at Tuesday's session. Mrs. Gould left Monday for Washington, D. C., by way of the St. Lawrence river and Montreal and Quebec.

Mrs. Coldren Entertains

Yesterday at the Carrizozo Eating House, Mrs. Eva Coldren entertained at a dinner in honor of Mrs. S. A. Coldren of Kansas City, who is visiting here. There were seventeen guests present. The menu was as follows: Celery; Ripe Olives; Assorted Nuts; Fruit Cocktail; Clear Consomme; Filet Mignon; Parisienne Potatoes; Green Peas in Case; Perfection Salad; Grape Sherbet; Assorted Cakes; Cafe Noir. After the dinner, the guests repaired to the Wetmore Apartments where Bridge was played until 4:30 p.m.

Herrin People Hold Carnival While Men Die

Herrin, Ill., June 27.—Herrin, its men and women and its babes in arms, tonight held a carnival across the street from the hospital where the wounded strike breakers of Thursday's massacre, lay covering—one or two dying—from their wounds.

Laughter and jokes floated across the summer night; paper caps adorned the heads of the gay throng, and last week's "incident" was forgotten in the happiness of social intercourse.

The occasion was the installment of a local chapter of an international club. It began with a parade and a band blaring dance music from a truck. The mayor was there, and the chief of police and all the local dignitaries.

"Just trying to forget last week's unfortunate event," it was explained.

There were present representatives of Duquoin, Cartersville and neighboring mining towns.

Omaha Bad Man Once in New Mexico

Santa Fe, N. M., June 26.—Fred Brown, alias Ernest Busch, the Omaha bad man, charged with kidnapping two Omaha women and holding them prisoners in his shack and recently caught in Medicine Bow, Wyo., country after being shot over the heart, once spent two months in hiding on Charles A. Siringo's ranch in Santa Fe county.

Mr. Siringo, writer of "The Life of Billy, the Kid" and other western books, was then in the employ of the Pinkerton detective agency and known as the "cowboy detective" and, he said today, was trying to get a confession from Brown, or Busch, as he was known then.

Brown then was suspected of killing Silas Bailey, aged farm hand in Dundy county, Neb., robbing the body and then dragging it to a frozen lake where an attempt was made to hide it under the ice.

Cloudcroft Baptist Assembly

The eighth annual session of the Cloudcroft Baptist Assembly closed last Sunday. The main speakers were: Dr. E. P. Alldredge of Nashville, Tenn., Dr. J. M. Carroll of San Antonio, Tex., Mrs. J. W. Byars of the Woman's Training School at Ft. Worth, Mrs. Geo. A. Miller, El Paso, Tex., Miss Lillian May, Albuquerque, Rev. W. R. Hill of Roswell, Rev. T. C. Mahan, Carlsbad and Princess Rahme Haider of Damascus, Syria. There were two hundred and five registered attendants. The Assembly is under the management of the Lincoln Baptist Association. The session next year will likely be month or six weeks later in the season.

Saneness in Celebration

(Capital News Service)

July Fourth, America celebrates her independence. But not as of old. No longer with many fires, numerous deaths and a small army of children maimed, blind and burned. It is within the memory of us all when Fourth of July meant the burning of much powder, shooting of firecrackers, the amateur handling of high explosives. Only a few years ago the death toll and the injured list was a standing feature in all newspapers on July fifth. Today, how different! In practically all of the smaller municipalities, fireworks are under police ban except such as are used for community celebrations and fired by experts.

Washington, D. C., will have a chorus of three thousand school children to sing patriotic songs on the steps of the Capitol, William Tyler Page, author of "America's Creed" will read his famous prayer; Chas. B. Hanford, who really was with "with Booth," will recite the "Star Spangled Banner," and the Navy Department will broadcast it to thousands.

It is American to exult loudly, to make a noise, to want to be heard. But it always was un-American to maim and kill little ones in an effort to show the rest of the community how patriotic one could be, via a firecracker. Lucky the country which needs no other flame on its independence day than the real fire of patriotism!

Dog Rescues Woman And Man From Water

Tacoma, Wash., June 27.—Rex today is basking in the sunshine of his own glory which has made him the most talked-of dog in the state following his heroic rescue of his master and mistress, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Smith, as they were drowning in Spanaway lake yesterday.

The Smiths were bathing together when Smith stepped into a deep hole and became confused. His call for help brought Mrs. Smith and he clutched his wife in a hold she was unable to break, adding her cries to those of her husband.

The dog heard his master's calls for help, swam out and brushed across Smith's half submerged face. Smith caught at the dog's collar, got a firm grip and the canine started for shore, snorting and struggling hard to prevent Smith's weight from dragging him under. Freed from her husband's grasp, the wife was able to swim safely back to shore alone.

Found Guilty

Estancia, N. M., June 27.—C. Rentera, Isidro Mirandes, Francisco Biza and Luis Medrano, who have been held here on charge of slaying A. J. Coury, a storekeeper at Duran last September, were to day found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury in the district court. The penalty is death and Judge Edwin Mechem, before whom the men were tried, will pronounce sentence later. J. Benson Newell, district attorney and his assistant, K. Simonds and a former Supreme Court Justice of Santa Fe, conducted the prosecution. The men were convicted of entering Coury's store on the night of September 21 and killed the proprietor. They escaped, but were captured in the vicinity of Roswell.

Strike Vote's Majority Large

Chicago, June 27.—A strike of the 400,000 railway shopmen of the country will be called for July 1 unless the railroads agree to stay the $60,000,000 wage cut due the shop workers on that date and to restore certain working conditions formerly in effect, it was made known tonight through a telegram from B. M. Jewell, head of the shop crafts, to the Association of Railway Executives.

Decision to call a strike came late today after lengthy discussion by the executive committee of the six shop crafts unions, based on the strike vote of the men thus far received.

Burn Tipples And Bridges At Colorado Mines

Denver, Colo., June 29.—Two mine tipples were burned, one coal mine flooded, and two bridges burned in the Colorado coal fields in Boulder and Huerfano counties during the night, according to reports of Colorado state rangers to headquarters here today, it was announced by Col. Patrick J. Hamrock, state adjutant general.

Governor Oliver H. Shoup, who was in Colorado Springs this morning, is on his way to Denver for a conference with the adjutant general to determine what measures are to be taken, Colonel Hamrock stated. Col. Hamrock declined to state what action will be taken until after his conference with the governor. He stated, however, that 1,500 men can be thrown into the two counties by tomorrow night if necessary, to enforce order.

LINKING MOVIE AND RADIO

British Scientists Have Some Success in Wireless Transmission of Motion Pictures.

British scientists are reported to have met with more or less success in developing a method of transferring motion pictures by radio. Some months ago a photograph was transferred by wireless from the Copenhagen newspaper, the Politiken, to England, and later from England to a ship in mid Atlantic, so that the possibility of linking the movies with the new art is not remote.

If perfected the new development of the already versatile art will make it possible for one to see on his own receiving instrument things that are happening at a great distance. For instance, a ship is sinking at sea. The transmitting station of the vessel, instead of sending a message of the disaster, sends a picture that anyone with a receiving set will be able to see just as the present broadcasting programs are heard.

That all sounds remote now, but the telephone was considered even more so, and the wireless, even after Marconi's immortal message had bridged the Atlantic, was generally believed to be akin to the idea of perpetual motion.

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

A crystal detector cannot be satisfactorily amplified. Insulate ends of heral wires with several small insulators. Whenever possible run aerial wires at right angles to electric light wires. The lead wire should be the size of the combined number of wires in the aerial. Gas piping makes a poor ground, but the cold water pipe ground is excellent. A crystal detector is never as efficient as a vacuum tube detector no matter what instruments are connected to it. Within three to five miles from a broadcasting station indoor one wire aerials about 40 feet long stretched from room to room, are generally satisfactory with crystal detectors.

Hearst hall and Hearst hall annex were destroyed and the pathology building of the University of California was damaged in a campus fire, with estimated loss of $100,000 recently. The university infirmary was threatened by the flames and its patients were removed, but the building was not reached by the fire. The origin of the fire was undetermined.

More than 100 pieces of firearms have been turned in to the National Guard by strikers in the Carbon county, Utah, coal district. Women took most of the guns to military headquarters. Some of the women called members of the guard to their homes and gave them weapons, while others called at headquarters and asked that militiamen be sent to their homes.

Two hoboes were killed outright and George Welch, a third knight of the rail, so badly injured he died in a hospital at Redding, Calif., when a freight train on which they were riding was derailed near Stima. The three were riding in a car laden with lumber and when the sudden stop, due to the derailment, came over them beneath the lumber. One of the two killed outright was a boy aged 18.

The American Federation of Labor may yet be torn apart by internal strife before it really gets down to work and prepares to adjourn. Friends of John I. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and opponent of Samuel Gompers for the presidency of the Federation last year in Denver, have started a full fledged boom for him again.

The use of radio to cure the external manifestations of cancer was explained recently by Dr. T. Howard Plank of Chicago before the National Society of Physical Therapies.

The Ford offer for Muskego Shoals cannot come before Congress at this session. Senator Norris stated in the Senate during debate on charges that propaganda is being carried on in favor of adoption of the Ford offer.

A bill denying entrance to American ports of any ship, foreign or domestic, on which liquor is sold, has been introduced by Representative Edmond, Pennsylvania, ranking Republican of the merchant marine committee, which drafted the ship subsidy bill.

The purchase of 74,023 acres of land to form the nucleus of the new Allegheny national forest in Pennsylvania has just been authorized by the National Forest Reservation Commission in Washington. Twenty-seven tracts of cut-over and burned lands, on the headwaters of the Allegheny river in Warren, Elk, Forest and McKean counties, were contracted for at an average price of $2.75 per acre.

J. Morton Howell of Ohio was nominated by President Harding to be the first American minister to Egypt. Dr. Howell is the present diplomatic agent and consul general for this government in Egypt, having been named to the post about ten months ago by President Harding. He has been a practicing physician, and for many years a close personal friend of the President. Dr. Howell's home is in Dayton. Senate Republicans in conference recently voted 36 to 11 against laying aside the tariff bill to consider the soldier's bill.

An agreement between the striking employes and the Mexico City Treasury Company has been reached following the intervention of President Obregon, and an immediate resumption of the street car service is expected.

A mysterious disease in the south-eastern districts of Queensland is puzzling the medical authorities and has forced them to seek aid from the United States in determining its cause and, if possible, a cure. The malady is described as being similar to meningitis, with the difference that the brain and not the spinal cord is affected. In one town twelve out of fifteen persons afflicted died.

King George and Queen Mary have accepted invitations to be guests at dinner on June 24 of Ambassador and Mrs. Harvey, Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft, who will be in London at that time, also will be present. Ambassador and Mrs. Harvey arranged the dinner for the king and queen several weeks ago. When they learned that Mr. and Mrs. Taft would be in England at the time they included them in the small company invited.

The allied council of ambassadors, including Myron T. Herrick of the United States, recently decided that the situation in Austria was so desperate that they sent pleas to all the governments interested to suspend their claims against Austria for twenty years in order that the Termeucon scheme of credits may operate. All the great powers, including America, already have suspended their claims, but a few of the smaller ones have not.

Gen. Chen Chiung Ming, formerly civil governor of Kwantung province, whose troops seized Canton, announced that the south China, or Canton government, has been terminated and that henceforth Canton would unite with the north in recognizing the old republican parliament. Dispatches from Canton describe the collapse of the southern government as complete. Sun's military forces crushed and the former Canton president himself a fugitive.

Querechi, the noncooperational leader in British India, who succeeded Mohandas Gandhi when the latter was arrested and imprisoned on charges of sedition, has been sentenced to a year's rigorous imprisonment and to pay a fine of 500 rupees, with a further three months' imprisonment in default of payment. Querechi was arrested after publication of alleged seditious articles in the newspaper, Young India. The publisher and printer of Young India received a similar sentence.

A petition signed by more than 2,000 Tulsa, Okla., negroes asking that a special election be called to permit them to vote on withdrawing their section of Tulsa and incorporating it as a new town, was presented recently to Governor Robertson. The petition was not in proper form and was returned for corrections before being considered.

Assertions that the United States does not need an army were met by Secretary Weeks of the War Department, in an address at the graduating exercises of the United States Military Academy at West Point with a statement that "the civilization of the world rests on no surer foundation than did the civilization of Boston" at the time of the police strike nearly three years ago.

At New York City, Morvich, hailed as the successor of Man o' War, met his master in Whitkaway, a colt that he defeated last year. It happened in the Carlton stakes at Aqueduct before a monster crowd that was amazed to see Benjamin Block's wonder colt trailing eight lengths behind H. P. Whitkey's entry at the finish. Whitkaway caned up, came within four-fifths of a second of tying the American record for the mile.

Cal. Marcellus H. 15,000 CHINESE TROOPS MUTINY

THOUSANDS DIE IN KIANGSU AS REBELLIOUS SOLDIERS REVOLT.

DR. SUN HELD CAPTIVE

AMERICAN AND BRITISH GUNBOATS PROTECT FOREIGNERS IN NANCHANG, CHINA.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

Shanghai.—Between 10,000 and 15,000 northern forces sent against Sun Yat-sen's army in Kiangsi province mutinied at Kiangfu, burned portions of Kiangfu and other nearby cities and killed thousands of the residents, according to reports from various sources at Hankow and Nanchang. The troops were under command of Gen. Teal Chan-Hsun, military commander of Peking.

The rebellious soldiers are reported marching back northward and nearing Changshu KI, a city about 100 miles north of Kiangfu and fifty miles north of Nanchang.

A dispatch from Hankow says the British gunboat Cockchafer is speeding up the Kan river toward Nanchang to bring out the foreign residents. The American gunboat Monocacy is coaling at Klunking and will proceed to Nanchang as soon as possible. The American gunboats Isabel and Culros, and the British gunboats Bee and Foxglove are held in readiness at Klunking to rush to the disturbed area if necessary to protect nationals.

The situation at Canton is quiet but ominous. Messages from adherents of Sun Yat-sen's southern government at Canton and Hong Kong say Sun has ordered his main force in Kiangsi to abandon the expedition against the north and return to Canton. Dr. Sun, Wu Ting-fang and other leaders of the Canton government are reported to be still aboard Chinese warships in the neighborhood of Canton, awaiting the return of the Kiangsi army.

If Dr. Sun persists in his determination to regain control of Canton from Chen Chiung-Ming, who drove him out last week, the return of these troops may precipitate serious fighting for possession of the city. The report that Sun's army is to return to Canton was given color by reports from Hankow and the Kiangsi cities of Klunking and Nanchang, indicating fighting in Kiangsi province between the northern and southern troops had ceased.

The protest of the American consul at Canton against bombardment of the city by Sun's gunboats will, it is believed, insure cessation of his firing on the city.

Peking.—Dr. Sun Yat-sen, formerly president of the south China republic, has been taken prisoner by the United China forces and is being held captive on the Chinese cruiser Haheli in the West river, near Canton, according to advices received by the foreign legations here from Canton.

Senate Approves Bonus Compromise.

Washington.—The compromise program of Republican leaders to defer action on the soldiers' bonus bill until after the tariff measure has been disposed of, was approved at a conference of majority senators. The vote was 27 to 11. At the same time the conference went on record as favoring final action on the bonus before any recess or adjournment of Congress.

Weeks Favors Beer and Light Wine.

Chester, Pa.—Secretary of War Weeks, in an interview here, was quoted as saying he favored a modification of the prohibition law. He said he had found a general sentiment in favor of an amendment to the Volstead act. The people, the secretary was quoted as saying, want beer and light wines.

Referring to the statement of Senator Capper of Kansas that Secretary Weeks should resign because of his speech in Ohio recently, the secretary said that Senator Capper did not appoint him.

Eighteen Slain in Mine Attack.

Herrin, Ill.—Several persons were reported killed and a number injured when shooting occurred six miles east of here between striking miners and men employed at the strip mine of the Southern Illinois Coal company. One report was to the effect that fourteen or fifteen bodies of the nonunion men were lying in the pit of the surface mine, where they had barricaded themselves and exchanged numerous shots with the attacking miners.

Bandit Returned to Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb.—Fred Brown, wounded and captured recently near Medicine Bow, Wyo., by a Wyoming posse after eluding officers who sought him for several weeks as the man who chained and held prisoners two Omaha women, was brought to Lincoln and taken to the state penitentiary, where he will be confined pending recovery. He made no statement following arrival here. Sheriff Gus Hyatt of Nebraska accompanied the prisoner, by train from Wyoming.

E. H. Raunkmaker left Douglas recently to give testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission in a case filed by the Arizona Corporation Commission in complaint of railroad fares both into and out of Arizona. The lowest fare per mile is 4.5 cents. A demand will be made for the same cut down as in other states. The Arizona commission recites in its complaint that there are no winter tourists tickets sold at special rates to Arizona points, though such fares are sold in El Paso and coast points. The Arizona commission again attacks the railroads in demanding a 10 per cent reduction in grain rates.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Women Rallied Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Emporia, Kansas.—"I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines years ago when I was a girl. For several years I had severe pains at menstrual periods, making me very weak and interfering with my regular duties. I tried several remedies without obtaining relief. I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and it restored me to normal health. I often have occasion and do recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to my own. You may use these facts as a testimonial."

—EVA ALDRICH, 213 Union St., Emporia, Kansas.

There are many women who first used our Vegetable Compound during their girlhood days. They found it a valuable help during trying periods. In later years they use it whenever they feel those annoying symptoms which women often have. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is prepared carefully from the best quality of medicinal plants, whose properties are especially adapted to correct the troubles women have.

No Whiskers. Teddy, age four, was not particularly fond of her sister's frequent caller, in spite of the many efforts on his part to make friends with her. "Muvver," she said wearily one Sunday evening, "please make that kid do home."

"Why, dear!" exclaimed mother, "he isn't a kid; he's a man."

"Well," Teddy said, surprised, "he hasn't dot any whiskers!"

He swapped a gold mine for a can of Edgeworth

Of course William didn't know how much gold there was in the mine or he wouldn't have paid so high a price even for his beloved Edgeworth.

As he writes the story with lead pencil on the back of a map—

Dear Mister Larus & Bro. Co., You'll notice I ain't going to let them people that put that damn (this was the name of a competitive friend's product) stuff get away by their loss in the high price class; cause they're just thimbles anyway alongside of me, what I traded a claim in the Didgrod country one time for a small tin of Edgeworth. And the sordid what got the claim from me for the Edgeworth took eighty thousand dollars out of the ground what I did's think was in it.

William Craig

Calhoun Post-office, Alaska

That was the most expensive can of Edgeworth that ever was bought. We have many letters from our friends who have gone to great lengths to get their favorite tobacco. We prize them all, but this one has a particularly warm place in our hearts.

We don't want any Edgeworth smoker to have to pay more than the regular price for Edgeworth.

We do want every pipe-smoker to try Edgeworth, and it's just as pleasant for us to send free samples to any pipe-smoker as it is for a pipe-smoker to hand his can over to someone who's run short.

If Edgeworth doesn't suit you, it's no use trying to cut you any. If it does, the samples will soon tell you, and you'll be like the rest of us—happiest with a pipe of Edgeworth between your teeth.

Send us your name and address on a postcard. If you want to help us further, give us the name of the dealer from whom you usually buy your tobacco.

Just as soon as we receive your request we will mail you generous samples of Edgeworth in both forms—Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed.

Edgeworth Plug Slice comes in flat cakes, cut into thin, moist slices. One slice rubbed between the hands makes a fragrant pipeful.

Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is exactly the same tobacco, but ready to go into your pipe.

Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to meet the requirements of many different customers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are put up in pocket-size cans, in attractive tin humidors and glass jars, and in various quantities in between those sizes.

For the free samples, address Larus & Brother Company, 41 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-ounce carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

MR. ELEPHANT

Billie Brownie was paying a call on Mr. Elephant.

He had promised to take back to the other Brownies the latest news from the elephants, and Mr. Elephant was ready to tell Billie Brownie what they had been thinking and talking about.

Billie Brownie was always delighted to call on Mr. Elephant, for he was a great friend of his. Oh, yes, he was very fond of Mr. Elephant.

Sometimes Mr. Elephant danced for him and that always delighted Billie Brownie.

Now and again he would dance with his keeper and show off all his tricks. But this time Billie Brownie just wanted to have a chat with Mr. Elephant so as to hear the news.

"I've been thinking about many things," said Mr. Elephant after he and Billie Brownie had greeted each other.

"Of course when I speak about fashions I never know but what everything may change before I so much as get out my opinions on fashions."

"I never really knew you had opinions on fashions," chuckled Billie Brownie. "I'm learning."

"On this fashion in particular," said Mr. Elephant.

"It has taken me a long time to get all my thoughts together on this subject, for I do not think of fashions often, so you are right when you say I have no opinion on fashions.

"You don't say just that, to be sure. But you were surprised to hear that I had opinions on fashions."

"And you may still be surprised, for it is only once in awhile that I do have opinions on this subject."

"As I say, I've been a long time thinking all this up, because I've been busy thinking of other things—not because I'm stupid about thinking."

"I know that you're not stupid," said Billie Brownie.

"Good," said Mr. Elephant, "for I'd hate to be thought stupid—especially by my good friend, Billie Brownie."

"And then, too, as I was saying, the fashions may change before I even tell my story—I'm taking a long enough time about it!"

"I don't know what we'd do if there were fashions in elephant land as there are in the people's world."

"Now, for example, this fashion for ladies to hide their ears. Young girls do the same. They cover their ears with their hair."

"I've not seen any boys or men do this as yet—but maybe the fashion will spread to them too."

"There's no telling. Far be it from Mr. Elephant to say."

"Of course they'd have to let their hair grow if they were going to follow the fashion. That is one of the reasons we could never follow such a fashion."

"We'd have to grow long locks—perhaps they wouldn't have to grow but they'd have to be fairly long. And then we'd have to wind our hair about and over our ears."

"And as I see no way of our getting hair I'm sure the fashion will never come our way."

"And if it did, what a horrible time there would be! How would people know us apart? Ears are so important in our world."

"Now Miss Smith, doubtless, looks quite different from Miss Jones, even though they both have their ears covered."

"But how could folks know Miss Smith unless they could see her dainty, triangular or three-corner shaped ears? And how could they recognize the West African elephant family if it weren't for their lovely little round ears?"

"And the pride and joy of the great African Elephant family are the large flapping ears—they can show!"

"Oh, it would be a fashion that would never do in elephant land."

"The ears of humans are so unimportant that it matters not if they cover them up, poor dears!"

"With elephants it is so very, very different!"

And Billie Brownie agreed as he thought amusedly of how absurd it would be if there were fashions in elephant land such as there are among people!

Shortly after there was a smaller flash from the small cloud, and the other cried out: "Oh, there is some pillowcase lightning!"

The Mardi Gras Mystery

By H. BEDFORD-JONES

Copyright by DOUBLEDAY, PAGE AND COMPANY

The tale of a carnival joke that led to grim realities.

CHAPTER I. — Carnival.

Jachin Fell pushed aside the glass curtains between the voluminous overdraperies in the windows of the Chess and Checkers club, and gazed out upon the riotous streets of New Orleans. Half an hour he had been waiting here in the lounge room for Dr. Cyril Ansley, a middle-aged bachelor who had practiced in Opelousas for twenty years, and who had come to the city for the Mardi Gras festivities. Another man might have seemed irritated by the wait, but Jachin Fell was quite unruffled.

He had much the air of a clerk. His features were thin and unremarkable; his pale eyes constantly wore an expression of wondering aloofness, as though he saw around him much that he vainly tried to understand. In his entire manner was a shy reticence. He was no clerk, however; this was evident from his attire. He was garbed from head to foot in soberly blending shades of gray whose richness was notable only at close view. One fancied him a very precise sort of man, an old maid of the wrong sex.

Doctor Ansley, an Inverness slung over his evening clothes, entered the lounge room, and Fell turned to him with a dry, toneless chuckle. "You're the limit! Did you forget we were going to the Mallards' tonight? However, we need not leave for fifteen minutes yet, at least."

Doctor Ansley laid aside his cane, stick and hat and dropped into one of the comfortable big chairs. "You intend to mask for the Mallards'?" Ansley cast his eyes over the gray business attire of the little man.

"I never mask," Jachin Fell shook his head. "I'll get a domino and go as I am. Excuse me—I'll order a domino now. Back in a moment."

Doctor Ansley followed the slight figure of the other man with speculative eyes. Well as he knew Jachin Fell, he invariably found the man a source of puzzled speculation.

During many years Jachin Fell had been a member of the most exclusive New Orleans clubs. He was even received in the inner circles of Creole society, which in itself was evidence supreme as to his position. At this particular club he was famed as a wizard master of chess. He never entered a tournament, yet he consistently defeated the champions in private matches—defeated them with a bewildering ease, a shy and apologetic ease, an ease which left the beholders incredulous and aghast.

With all this, Jachin Fell was very much of a mystery, even among his closest friends. Very little was known of him; he was a lawyer, and certainly maintained offices in the Maison Blanche building, but he never appeared in the courts and no case of his pleading was known.

Ansley knew him as well as did most men, and Ansley knew of a few who could boast of having been a guest in Jachin Fell's home. There was a mother, an invalid, of whom Fell sometimes spoke and to whom he appeared to devote himself. The family, an old one in the city, promised to die out with Jachin Fell.

Ansley puffed at his cigar and considered these things. Outside, in the New Orleans streets, was rocketing the mad mirth of carnival. The week preceding Mardi Gras was at its close.

Now, as ever, was Mardi Gras symbolized by masques. In New Orleans the masquerade was not the pale and pitiful frolic of colder climes, where the occasion is but one for display of jewels and costumes, and where actual concealment of identity is a farce. Here in New Orleans were jewels and costumes in a profusion of splendor; but here was preserved the underlying idea of the masque itself—that in concealment of identity lay the life of the thing!

When Jachin Fell returned and lighted his cigar he sank into one of the luxurious chairs beside Ansley and indicated a newspaper lying across the latter's knee, its glaring headlines standing out blackly.

"What's that about the Midnight Masquer? He's not appeared again?"

"What?" Ansley glanced at him in surprise. "You've not heard? Good heavens, man! He showed up last night at the Lapeyrouse dance, two minutes before midnight, as usual! A detective had been engaged, but was afterward found locked in a closet, bound with his own handcuffs. The Masquer wore his usual costume—and went through the party famously, stripping everyone in sight. Then he bucked through the doors and vanished."

Fell pointed his cigar at the ceiling, and sighed. "Ah, most interesting! The loot was valued at about a hundred thousand!"

"I thought you said you'd not heard of it?" demanded Ansley.

Fell laughed softly and shyly. "I don't. I merely hazarded a guess."

"Wizard!" The doctor laughed in unison. "Yes, about that amount."

"The Masquer is a piker," observed Fell, in his toneless voice.

"Eh? A piker—when he can make a hundred-thousand-dollar haul?"

"Don't dream that those figures represent value, Doctor. They don't! All the loot the Masquer has taken since he began work is worth little to him. Jewels are hard to sell. Of course, the crook has obtained a bit of money, but not enough to be worth the risk."

"Yet he has got quite a bit," returned Ansley thoughtfully. "All the men have money, naturally; we don't want to find ourselves bare at some gay carnival moment! I'd warrant you've a hundred or so in your pocket right now!"

"Not I," rejoined Fell calmly. "One ten-dollar bill. Also I left my watch at home. And I'm not dressed; I don't care to lose my pearl studs."

"Eh?" Ansley frowned. "What do you mean?"

Jachin took a folded paper from his pocket and handed it to the physician.

"I met Maillard at the bank this morning. He called me into his office and handed me this—he had just received it in the mail."

Doctor Ansley opened the folded paper; an exclamation broke from him as he read the note, which was addressed to their host of the evening.

"Eh? A Piker—When He Can Make a Hundred Thousand Dollar Haul!"

"Joseph Maillard, President, Exeter National Bank, City."

"I thank you for the masque that you are giving tonight. I shall be present. Please see that Mrs. M. wears her diamonds—I heed them."

"THE MIDNIGHT MASQUER."

Ansley glanced up. "What's this—some hoax? Some carnival jest?"

"Maillard pretended to think so." Fell shrugged his shoulders as he re-pocketed the note. "But he was nervous. He'll have a brace of detectives inside the house tonight, and others outside."

Ever since the first ball of the year by the Twelfth Night club this Midnight Masquer, as he was termed, had held New Orleans gripped in terror, fascination and vivid interest. During the past month he appeared at least once a week, now at some private ball, now at some restaurant banquet, but always in the same garb: the helmet, huge goggles and mask, and leathern clothes of a service aviator. On these occasions the throbbing roar of an airplane motor had been reported, so that it was popular gossip that he landed on the roof of his designated victims and made his getaway in the same manner—by airplane. No machine had ever been seen, and the theory was believed by some, hooted at by others.

Doctor Ansley glanced at his watch, and deposited his cigar in an ash tray.

"We'd best be moving, Fell. You'll want a domino?"

"I ordered one. It'll be here in a minute."

"Do you seriously think that note is genuine?"

Fell shrugged lightly. "Who knows? I'm not worried—Maillard can afford to be robbed."

"You're a calm one!" Ansley chuckled. "Oh, I believe the prince is to be there tonight. You've met him, I suppose?"

"No. Heard something about him, though. An American, isn't he? They say he's become quite popular in town."

Ansley nodded. "Quite a fine chap. His mother was an American—she married the prince de Gramont; an international affair of the past generation. De Gramont led her a dog's life. I hear, until he was killed in a duel. She lived in Paris with the boy, sent him to school here at home, and he was at Yale when the war broke out. He was technically a French subject, so he went back to serve his time."

"Still, he's an American now. Calls himself Henry Gramont, and would drop the prince stuff altogether if these French people around here would let him."

A page brought the domino. Fell, discarding the mask, threw the domino about his shoulders, and the two men left the club in company.

They sought their destination afoot—the home of the banker Joseph Maillard. The streets were riotous, filled with an eddying, laughing crowd of masquers and merry-makers of all ages and sexes; confetti twirled through the air, horns were deafening, and laughing voices rose into sharp screams of unrestrained delight.

At last gaining St. Charles avenue, with the Maillard residence a half-dozen blocks distant, the two companions found themselves well away from the main carnival throngs.

As they walked along they were suddenly aware of a lithe figure approaching from the rear; with a running leap and an exclamation of delight the figure forced itself in between them, grasping an arm of either man, and a bantering voice broke in upon their train of talk.

"Forfeit!" it cried. "Forfeit—where are your masks, sober gentlemen? This grave physician may be pardoned, but not a domino who refuses to mask! And for forfeit you shall be my escort and take me whither you are going."

Laughing, the two fell into step, glancing at the gay figure between them. A Columbine, she was both cloaked and masked. Encircling her hair was a magnificent scarf shot with metal designs of solid gold—a most unusual thing. Also, from her words it was evident that she had recognized them.

"Willingly, fair Columbine," responded Fell in his dry and unimpassioned tone of voice. "We shall be most happy indeed to protect and take you with us."

"So far as the door, at least," interrupted Ansley, with evident caution. But Fell drily laughed aside this wary limitation.

"Nay, good physician, farther!" went on Fell. "Our Columbine has an excellent passport, I assure you. This gauzy scarf about her raven tresses was woven for the good Queen Hortense, and I would venture a random guess that clasped about her slender throat, the queen's collar of star sapphires—"

"Oh!" From the Columbine broke a cry of warning and swift dismay. "Don't you dare speak my name, sir—don't you dare!"

Fell assented with a chuckle, and subsided.

Ansley regarded his two companions with a sidelong curiosity. He could not recognize Columbine, and he could not tell whether Fell was speaking of the scarf and jewels in jest or earnest. Such historic things were not uncommon in New Orleans, yet Ansley never heard of these particular treasures. However, it seemed that Fell knew their companion, and accepted her as a fellow guest at the Maillard house.

"What are you doing out on the streets alone?" demanded Fell, suddenly. "Haven't you any friends or relatives to take care of you?"

Columbine's laughter pealed out, and she pressed Fell's arm confidently.

"Have I not some little rights in the world, monsieur?" she said in French. "I have been mingling with the dear crowds and enjoying them, before I go to be buried in the dull splendors of the rich man's house. Tell me, do you think that the Midnight Masquer will make an appearance tonight?"

"I have every reason to believe that he will," said Jachin Fell, gravely.

Columbine put one hand to her throat, and shivered a trifle.

"You—you really think so? You are not trying to frighten me?" Her voice was no longer gay. "But—the jewels—if they are taken by the Masquer—"

"In that case," said Fell, "let the blame be mine entirely. If they are lost, little Columbine, others will be lost with them, fear not! I think that this party would be a rich haul for the Masquer, eh? Take the rich man and his friends—they could bear plucking, that crowd! Rogues all."

"Confound you, Fell!" exclaimed Ansley, uneasily. "If the bandit does show up there would be the very devil to pay!"

Some thrills await you in the next installment.

Pope's Good-by to Cardinal Gibbons.

I cannot help recalling an instance where a lady, a guest at the White House at luncheon, asked the late Cardinal Gibbons whether he really believed that the pope was infallible in all he said. The cardinal smiled and answered: "I can only respond to that, madame, by saying that when the pope bade me good-by the last time he said, 'Addio, Cardinale Gibbons!'—Maurice Francis Egan in the Review of Reviews.

Supreme Court and Child Labor Law

The child labor law, which has been of so much benefit to everyone except the owners of sweat shops and soulless corporations has at last, after many years of operation in which it has protected children from slavery and sent them to school, where they should go, has been declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court. A certain exchange at Washington in its last issue says that acts of the Supreme Court should never be criticised, but if this was the case, monarchical rule, should it mean ruin in the long run, must receive our sanction.

Under the law annulled by the court, a child was compelled to keep himself in school until he had reached the age of fourteen and anyone employing a child under this age was prosecuted according to the provisions of the law. Before the child labor law was enacted, children were found in factories and sweat shops that were not only ignorant of the doings in the outside world, but could neither read, write or converse in an intelligent manner with anyone except those with whom they were eking out a miserable existence. Being so confined from daylight to dark, they became old men and women before they were really young.

Without protection for children of our country, illiteracy and savagery would be the result and why should the greatest body of jurists in the land declare such a law unconstitutional, is beyond the power of reason and justice to discern. Millions were made from child labor without a law to protect the little ones, but come will say, "what about poor people who are not able to live without the child's help and how can they buy books and keep up the child's expenses while at school?" In the eastern states, the law made provisions for such cases, the different states furnishing books for children so situated and so arranged that only the boards giving out books had the knowledge of the matter, thus saving the children from humiliation among their schoolmates.

The plea is made that children, boys in particular, should learn trades and engage in professions, but how can the child accomplish anything without education of some sort. A child can only arrive at an age of understanding and possess an idea of business until it has had the advantages which only an education can give, and we are all ready to admit that it is not of an age sufficient to profit by instructions either professional or mechanical until it has passed the age of fourteen. Out of the dust of the disgraceful annulment of the child labor law must arise one that will be more of a benefit to humanity than the old one was, regardless of what has been done, or illiteracy will increase, degeneracy, ignorance and crime will multiply. One that will be for the greatest good for the greatest number, which is the heritage of a free people under the folds of the flag.

NOTICE OF CONTEST
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office, Roswell, N. Mex., Contest No. 10561
June 19, 1922

To William A. Dodson of Carrizozo, N. M., Contestee:

You are hereby notified that Rufus Hughes who gives Carrizozo, New Mexico as his post-office address, did, on June 10, 1922, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your homestead entry, Serial No. 045446 made August 2, 1920, for All of Section 33, Township 5-S, Range 10-E, N. M. P. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that "William A. Dodson has never established residence upon the above described land and claim; that he has no house or other habitation thereon; that he is not now residing thereon; that he has abandoned said land for more than two years last past without having earned title thereto; that he has not cultivated or improved any part of said land; and that said absence from the land was not due to entryman's employment in the military or naval organizations of the United States or in the National Guard of any of the several States."

You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken as confessed, and your said entry will be canceled without further right to be heard, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically responding to these allegations of contest, together with due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail.

You should state in your answer the name of the postoffice to which you desire future notices to be sent to you.

Mystery, love and adventure in the land of Creole delight!

The Mardi Gras
Mystery

By H. BEDFORD-JONES

If you love dear, old New Orleans—and who that has ever spent much time there does not?
—you have a treat before you in this story; for in addition to a pleasing, pulse-quickenng romance, which introduced the gayeties of Mardi Gras and the most charming characteristics of a people of Latin descent, you are taken into the inner life of the modern city.

You see a city which has changed in outward form with the times, with its aristocracy in lineal descent from chevaliers of France and dons of Spain, one might almost say princes of the blood, graduated into merchant princes and men high in the profession—the prideful, boastful, loveable Creole as a man of affairs.

The author has written an enchanting tale which we take unusual pleasure in reprinting as a serial for the readers of the Outlook.

INDEPENDENCE DAY-1922

THE FLAG GOES BY

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky;
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

Blue and white and crimson it shines
Over the steel-tipped, ordered lines.
Hats off!
The colors before us fly;
But more than the flag is passing by!

Sea-fights and land-fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State;
Weary marches and sinking ships;
Choirs of victory on dying lips;
Days of plenty and years of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law;
Stately honor and reverend awe;
Sign of a nation, great and strong,
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride and glory and honor—all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums;
And loyal hearts are beating high;
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

By JOHN DICKINSON OHERMAN

INDEPENDENCE DAY is the American holiday devoted to the celebration of the Declaration of Independence in 1776. Of course that was nearly 150 years ago. Since then we have had five wars. Since then we grown from a nation of about three millions to a nation of about 120 millions. So the American people may fitly celebrate more on the Fourth of July than the Declaration of Independence.

Doubtless the Fourth will be observed in this year of A. D. 1922 in a multitude of ways, some good, some bad, some indifferent, necessarily so in a country so big, with so vast a melting-pot population.

We Americans have an attractive list of holidays. Christmas, New Year's and Easter we share with all mankind. Thanksgiving Day, Mother's Day and Arbor Day are our own. So are Washington's Birthday and Lincoln's Birthday and Flag Day. Memorial Day is the day the nation greaves over its soldier dead and pays tribute to its fighting heroes at their last resting place.

The Fourth of July should be different from all our other national holidays. It should have something of Washington and Lincoln's Birthdays in it, much of Thanksgiving Day and more of Flag Day.

The Fourth of July should be most of all, as many good Americans see it, a day of nation worship, unadorned and unadorned.

The Government of the United States of America secured its existence through war. Every generation of Americans has had its war. As one generation of fighting heroes passes away another rises to take its place. Some have gone, others are going, all will go. None should be forgotten, for their deeds are the basis of the tradition around which our nationalism is built. The heritage of the next generation has been made possible by their sacrifice.

There are those Americans who profess to see in the American nation a peace-loving people, slow to wrath and averse to war. It is true that we are slow to take up arms. This is because war with us is a war, not of a professional army, but of the people. Our people go slow to war because they will not fight unless the provocation is great and the cause is just.

But those who believe America is not a fighting nation are utterly and entirely wrong. We are not afraid to fight. We know how to fight. As a matter of fact we are the most warlike people on earth. When America goes to war the nation's heart goes with her soldiers. We are the most desperate in battle.

The flag has waved over our battle-fields for a century and a half. Never has it trembled in defeat.

Out of America's wars have been in the cause of humanity. America has cause to blush for none, to apologize for none, to feel regret for none. So why should not the Fourth of July be just devoted to nation-worship and to remembrance of the deeds of the heroes who kept the flag victorious from the Philippines to France! In an appreciation of our national history it is not necessary to acclaim war or to deify the fighting man. Hand in hand with appreciation of America's valor in war go an appreciation of the evils of war and an appreciation of the lessons of war.

MARINES IN THE WILDERNESS

The Fourth of July is surely the day of days on which to salute the flag, remember the heroes who have died for it, applaud the living who have fought for it and declare again, with the poet:

In spite of rock and tempest's roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Fall on, nor fear to breast the sea;
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with these, and all with thee.

So first a thought of reverent praise for the five immortals who drew up the Declaration of Independence—Jefferson, John Adams, Franklin, Sherman and Livingston. And then a thought of the many heroes of '76, from the villagers who fired the first shot at Concord to Washington, the leader of our armies, not forgetting such leaders as Marion and Wayne and Stark and John Paul Jones, or such patriots as the three millitamen whom Major Andre's gold could not corrupt; Hale, the martyr, and Molly Pitcher, the heroine of Monmouth.

Next, remembrance for Hull, Brainbridge and Decatur and the Constitution and United States—they beat the "Mistress of the Seas" at her own game, put the American navy on the Seven Seas and kept the flag flying. The War of 1812 was won on the ocean. And don't forget Jackson at New Orleans—he won for the United States the mouth of the Mississippi. None of the 1812 heroes is now alive; 49 of their widows still live.

In 1840 once more the bugle blares and the drum beats—this time against Mexico. Have a thought for Scott and Taylor and Kearney and the heroes who fought their way from Vera Cruz to Chapultepec. Of these heroes 73 still live. All honor to them!

The foe himself recoiled against
When, starting where his strongest lay,
We swooped his flanking batteries past,
And braving full their murderous blast,
Stormed home the towers of Monterey.
We were not many—we who pressed
But who of us have not confessed
Beside the brave who fell that day:
He'd rather share their warrior rest,
Than not have been at Monterey?

And then came real fighting—American against American! Christendom stood astounded at the vigor of the struggle and the spirit of the combatants. But that is over now.

No more shall the war cry cover,
Or the winding rivers be red;
They banish our anger forever
When they laurel the graves of our dead:
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day,
Love and tears for the Blue,
Tears and love for the Gray.

A statue of Stonewall Jackson was recently unveiled at Charlottesville, Va. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, the orator of the day, said in part:

"A nation torn by fratricidal strife, when reunited, is like welded iron, given increased strength and durability."
"From the gulf that separated the sections in sixty-one has come an understanding making for the progress of each and the common welfare of both. This could not have been but for the courage, conviction, and ideals of a whole people."
"The sharp battles revealed in its leaders military genius unsurpassed, and in its men and women an courage and fortitude that reflected credit on both sections and left a priceless legacy to a great and united country.

"The men who filled the ranks of the northern armies were prompted by a conception of duty far greater than those who fought under the Stars and Bars. Glorious victories or crushing defeats did not the bravery and sacrifice of either. When we view those four years of titanic struggle in the light of the present day, either through northern or southern eyes, there is so much glory reflected from both that each merits the greatest praise and has won imperishable renown. It has been the record of these gallant heroes that has inspired and led our sons to victory in every war in which this country has since engaged.

"At San Juan Hill the boys from the South, under Wheeler, charged with those from the North under Roosevelt. On the cactus plains of Mexico the lads in khaki from Virginia marched by the side of those from Vermont. At Belleau Wood, Chateau-Thierry, and Argonne, when civilization trembled in the scales the brave boys from every part of this land, under the folds of the Stars and Stripes and to the tunes of "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle Dandy," followed Pershing for humanity and their country. And today, it matters not in which war they were engaged, the names of northern and southern heroes illumine the pages of history and are enshrined in the hearts of a common country.

The Blue and the Gray,
In fierce array,
No local hates discover,
Strike hands once more
From shore to shore,
The North and South forever.

"The stirring sentiment that prompted a few weeks ago these brave marines encamped on the historic fields of the Battle of the Wilderness, who discovered the little graveyard covered with weeds and briars, with inclosure down, in which, among unmarked graves, was buried the arm of that gallant hero to whom we today pay tribute, is inspiring. These boys from every part of the country wearing the uniform of the American fighting man, sworn to defend the flag of a common country, and ready to give their lives for its protection, went immediately to work, cleared the graves, resurrected the fence, and clothed the surroundings with an air of attention and care. It was the American spirit, the spirit of the present-day American soldier, whose heart was thrilled, whose soul was touched, and whose patriotism was aroused when he saw that in this modest way he could pay tribute even to the arm of an true soldier and as daring a leader as ever marched to the tune of martial airs."

The Spanish-American war, though a little war in comparison with the Civil war and the World war, was an important war. It was won by volunteers. It was marked by valor and efficiency on land and sea—at Las Guisimas, San Juan Hill, and El Caney, at Santiago and at Manila Bay. It hastened the day for complete reconciliation between the North and the South. It gave us a realization of our vast resources and man power, and it made us a World Power over night.

And surely we can Fourth-of-July over the record of our fighting men in the World war. No need to call the roll of heroes, either; or to ask "who won the war?"

Oh, the English and the Irish, and the 'owlin' Scotchie,
The Canucks and Austrians, and the 'airy French polly;
The only things that bothered us, a year before we knew,
Was 'ow in 'ell the Yanks'd look, an' 'wet in 'all they'd do.
My word, it 'appened quicker 'en the drive 'ad first begun;
We seen the Yanks a-runnin'—Gaw Blimey, how they run!
But the only thing that bothered us that soon the chase begun,
Was 'ow to 'talk to 'em 'em 'ere they got into town.

WENT ALL UNSUNG

Tragedies in the Wake of Undelivered Speeches.

Men Have Sewed to Fate, but Will Women, Pedestal of "Rights," Survive Disappointment?

Of all the tragedies of masculine experience ever since the Stone age none has been more poignant than that of the undelivered speech. And now one wonders whether the women, the dear souls, will prove more or less sensitive to the blighting sorrow of preparing a graceful speech for some important occasion and then being cheated by fate of the opportunity of delivering it.

And when it's a clever speech, a truly brilliant speech, with a carefully prepared climax seasoned with flashes of wit and droll anecdotes that would make 'em roar—what a tragedy is there, Horatio!

How different the history of the village, of the county, of the world might be if all the speeches that were ever prepared had been actually delivered according to schedule! But some pesky accident happens. The hour grows late. Earlier speakers hog more than their share of the time. Careless people in the audience get sleepy and go home. The chairman has to catch a train. Somebody has to move a vote of thanks and you—Alas! poor you, after hours of anguishing suspense, you with that magnificent speech in your pocket, you who have so fulsomely clapped for the other tiresome speakers—you, the most promising orator in the place, are left biting your nails "with all your might in you." It's maddening.

That blighted sorrow fell upon a nice woman in Washington the other day, remarks the New York Sun. She was the head of a distinguished female delegation that called at former President Woodrow Wilson's house to present their respects to him in a formal way. She had prepared a speech, perhaps a most able and moving one. But the delegation was accorded no more than a fleeting and dramatic glimpse of the inviolated statesman.

It's an old story for the hardened male sex, but a new one for the women—a silver-tongued orator "left with the mouth open," as the Spanish say. And it sets the imagination wandering into the highways and byways of history in search of the speeches that might have been delivered if things had gone a little differently.

For instance, it is probable that among the papers of the former kaiser is a manuscript of the speech that he was going to deliver at that Christmas dinner in Paris.

And then there's the speech that General Semenov was just about to deliver when he arrived in New York and mistook Sheriff Nagle and a bunch of deputies for the mayor and aldermen. He thought they had come to the station to present him with the freedom of the city, and he was just opening his mouth to make a properly rhetorical response when somebody explained to him in Russian that the paper the sheriff was showing him was a warrant for his arrest.

Frederick MacMonnies may have prepared a speech to deliver to any delegation of women who should dare to board him on the subject of the manners of the stalwart young man who symbolizes Civic Virtue in the sculptor's statue of that name. But as feminine agitation over the statue is simmering down the sculptor's speech to his amateur critics may be fated to pass into the limbo of speeches that never got themselves spoken.

A New Way to Pay Debts.

Conjuring tricks with bank notes are being attempted by the Greek government, says the Montreal Family Herald. Finding itself faced with a deficit on its budget of $140,000,000 and with its military expenditure excluded from this reckoning the government brought in a bill for a forced loan of $300,000,000. The loan will bear interest at 7 per cent and by an ingenious device will be realized immediately and automatically. All the notes of the national bank now in circulation will be cut into halves, one of which will remain in circulation and will represent half the value of the whole note, while the other half will be converted into a bond of the loan and will bear interest at 7 per cent. The national bank will be obliged to lend the state immediately half the amount obtained from the division of the notes. The conditions of the loan do not affect foreign securities.

Canadian Immigration.

The extent to which Canadian immigration has been encouraged is revealed in the annual report of the Canadian Pacific railway, which has just been presented to the shareholders by E. W. Beatty, K. C., president. Since the company's land-selling policy was instituted, some 54,000 settlers have been placed on the company's lands alone, and the cost of the company's activities in land selling, irrigation and colonization has been extremely large, amounting in the aggregate to approximately $68,000,000, an amount in excess of the total expenditure of the Dominion government for immigration during the same period.

TAX COMMISSION VALUES

UTILITIES AT $226,763,360

Denver.—The assessed valuation for 1922 on all utilities in Colorado under the State Tax Commission has been placed at $226,703,360, according to information given out by the commission here. Last year's valuation on these same utilities, which include railroads, telephone, telegraph and express companies and electric, power and water companies, was placed at $226,418,000.

The assessed valuation of the Denver Tramway Company is placed at $12,050,200, the same as last year. The valuation of the Denver Gas and Electric Light Company has been increased from $12,100,000 for 1921 to $12,700,000 for 1922.

The Colorado Springs Light, Heat and Power Company will be assessed at $2,096,550, the same as last year. The valuation of the Colorado Power Company has decreased, according to the tax commissioners, from $5,002,400 for 1921 to $4,587,480 for this year.

Assessment on the properties of the Arkansas Valley Railway, Light and Power Company, which supplies electric power for the Cripple Creek district, Fremont county and Pueblo, is given at $4,513,490, the same as last year.

All "local" public utilities, consisting principally of light, heat and power companies, tramways, reservoir and water companies, are given an assessed valuation this year of $47,577,110, a decrease of $40,840, as compared with last year's tables.

Railroads of the state will be assessed on a valuation of $160,803,010, as compared with $160,314,000 last year; the Pullman company, $1,101,500, the same as last year; the American Railway Express Company, $766,710, a decrease of $143,140, as compared with the 1921 valuation, and private car lines, $961,510, as compared with $769,590 last year.

Telephone companies will be assessed on a valuation of $13,333,590, as compared with $13,213,700 for 1921, and telegraph companies, $2,386,820, as compared with $2,431,240 last year.

Victor.—Mrs. Patrick McDermott, 21 years old, while suffering from dementia, shot her 3-year-old son, Neil, and turned the revolver on herself. The boy is at the district hospital here, with two gunshot wounds in his head. His mother died instantly. Physicians say a spinal disease had affected her reason.

New Tourist Record for National Forests.

Denver.—The rush of tourists through the Colorado national forests is unprecedented for the time of year, according to C. W. Richards, general agent of the Denver-Interurban railway, who declared that the season is now in full blast with the promise of breaking all records of former years. All roads are open to the mountainous regions, he stated, and with no snowbanks to encounter, motorists need not worry about the use of chains.

Hints Clues to "Lost Atlantis"

Englishman's Discoveries Renew Interest in Story of Plato's Submerged Continent.

TAPESTRIES LIKE PHARAOH'S

Believes Indians of San Blas Hinterland Are Survivors of Race Which Inhabited Atlantis—Had Narrow Escapes.

Colon, Panama.—The Lost Atlantis has bobbed up again, this time in Panama. An Englishman, Mitchell-Hedges, recently made a two days' journey into the mountains of the San Blas hinterland, and came back with his suspicions that the Chauquanaqua Indians are the survivors of the once proud inhabitants of Plato's submerged continent.

He brought the suspicions in the shape of tapestries with designs, so much like those of Pharaoh's wives that he must have the experts of the British museum and of all the world to pronounce upon them. Incidentally he put President Harding's name on the map in the shape of a "new" mountain, some 8,000 feet high; King George got another of similar altitude, and Doctor Porras a whole range.

The explorer had the usual narrow escapes from imminent death by sea and land, and has set tongues wagging about the likelihood of the isthmus being the tail-end or head-end of the Atlantean continent.

Both Sides of the Case.

Although an American ethnologist, William H. Babcock, has buried Atlantis for the last of many times in his present book, "Legendary Islands of the Atlantic," published by the American Geographical society, this latest resurrection is likely to stir the protagonists of the missing link between Gibraltar and Panama to life again also.

The biggest friend of the long-lost isle is a German, Herr Prof. Frobenius of Berlin, who traversed much of West Africa to see if there were not some leavings of the lost there, and he professed to be quite convinced that there are. Professor Welher of Harvard, from a study of the similarities of plants and animals of Africa and South America, inclines to the hypothesis that the sons of Ham once passed dry-shod from the Senegal to the Amazon, or vice versa.

It is understood that if Hercules had not gotten home-sick when he had the job of holding up Mount Atlas for a while he might have beaten Columbus by some 4,000 years, and that too, by walking over to Colon, but the Greek explorer had enough of it with that little job around Morocco, so he set up his pillars and went home to his wife, thereby leaving disension among antiquarians for 50 centuries.

Tapestries in Evidence.
Mitchell-Hedges comes as the climax of a number of explorers who have been dipping into the San Blas problem, and maybe he has the key. He has the advantage of the labors of many predecessors in his task. He has the tapestries, and they look like the work of the Hebrew children who made clothes for Rameses—or maybe, he says, they are like Aztec work. At any rate they are like the work of other people than mere Indians; and how could those mountaineers get those designs except by having them handed down from the folks who crossed the sea when it wasn't any sea at all?

Moreover, the men in the mountains wore great big earrings of solid gold. Who taught them to dig for gold? The problem is truly formidable, and one may watch the ethnological journals now with interest.

GAINS 8 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS' TIME

Dyspepsia Entirely Overcome and She Eats, Sleeps and Feels Better Than in Years, Says Boston Resident.

"I have actually gained eight pounds in two weeks' time and am now eating better, sleeping better and feeling better than I have in three or four years," said Mrs. Celesta Fell, 32 Prince street, Boston, Mass., recently, in telling of the great benefits she has derived from the use of Tanlac.

"My stomach was in such a bad fix before I took Tanlac that I did not dare eat much of anything, for if I did I would have so much pain and distress from indigestion that I felt like I was going to die. I was so run down and weak from lack of nourishment that I could not do my housework."

"I was so nervous I couldn't keep still during the day nor sleep at night. I can see now if it had not been for Tanlac I would have had to give up entirely. I am now feeling strong and healthy and all the credit belongs to Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Advertisement.

Boy Scouts Adopt Tree.

A prone Juniper, growing near the Masonic home, Elizabeth, Pa., is at least eighty years old, and now measures 48 inches in diameter, and is 24 inches high. The limbs lying on the ground, do not take root. The tree has been given a place in the Hall of Fame of the American Forestry association of Washington, D. C. The boy scouts of Elizabeth have adopted this remarkable tree and erected a fence around it. The nomination for the Hall of Fame was made by Judge George B. Orindy of the superior court of Pennsylvania.

The newest idea for hats is a heat-proof lining. For this purpose the lining of the hat is made of a series of layers of thin, lightweight fabric of different colors, the combination acting as a light-filter. Soap Ought to Help.

The discovery of a lake, rich in carbonate of soda, in the neighborhood of Kulunda, Siberia, has been announced. SORRY SHE DIDN'T LIKE IT

But Anyway, That Particular Hat Wasn't for Sale, and It Made Little Difference.

In and out of department stores and millinery shops went the Woman and her friend, trying on hats trimmed with ribbon, hats smothered in feathers and hats where bloomed flowers that never were on sea or land. The Woman's friend was as hard to suit as the little girl in the "Three Bears." They were all "too" something. The Woman was growing weary, and spying an attractive black hat with some spidery white feathers in a heap before another fussy shopper, she pointed it out to her friend.

"Try to get a chance at that unusual hat. It has a great deal of distinction," she whispered.

The friend sidled up to the showcase, and when the fussy shopper was trying on a yellow-flowered creation, she seized the hat and viewed the effect in the glass, exclaiming: "Ugh! I don't like this one a little bit."

"Excuse me, madam," jolly said the fussy shopper, "that is my own hat I bought in Kenosha. Sorry you don't admire it."—Chicago Journal.

Baked Monkey a Delicacy.

A hunter's paradise is Mexico, and almost within sight of the capital are forests that abound with wild game, offered at all seasons in the Mexico City markets.

Venison is a staple and wild ducks and geese may be purchased for a few centavos. Live quail as well as varieties of pheasants and pigeons are sold on the streets by peddlers. Indians from the hills frequently trudge to the city with a wild boar, and turkeys may be had for the price of a paltry tip to a native hunter.

If one is so inclined, a tender monkey may be procured for Sunday baking, a dish that Mexican epicures, especially of the tropical regions, relish above all others.

Improvement Goes On.

Although recent statistics state that 92.0 per cent of American farm houses have telephones, only 27.1 per cent have electric lights, 21 per cent have vacuum cleaners and 10.2 per cent have electric washing machines.

Must Pay $10 to Enter Germany

Foreign Office Now Charges Same as United States Would Tax Entrants.

VEXTATIONS BESET TRAVELERS

American Tourist Who Crosses Europe Must Be Prepared to Pay $10 to Cross Every Frontier—Resorts Are Crowded.

Berlin.—The German foreign office is now charging foreign visitors to Germany the same amount for passport visas that the respective governments of their countries ask of Germans. Because exchange fluctuates so rapidly the foreign office fixes the number of marks the foreigner must pay anew each month. This means that, while Austrians can now enter Germany on paying the equivalent of 15 cents, Americans must be prepared to pay at least $10 to cross every frontier, and if one should have failed to have fulfilled formalities he is burdened with absurdly heavy fines.

A recent traveler coming from Italy to Munich by way of the Austrian strip of territory through Salzburg was asked by the Austrian authorities to pay the equivalent of $20 for their little rubber stamp. Objecting to paying this amount, the traveler finally induced the authorities to reduce the amount to the customary $10.

Difficulties by both Polish and German governments in crossing Prussia and the Danzig neck of Polish territory will continue to take the pleasure out of travel and to hamper business in this corner of the world. Both states demand full sets of special visas and the universal $10 payment of Americans. The Poles rarely hesitate in the corridor-to turn out all who fail to observe this letter of the law, whatever their nationality is.

Now that reparations, railroad and other international commissions are meeting it is time that another one meets and determines ways to eliminate petty vexations to travel.

German summer resorts, and especially bathing beaches, will be particularly overcrowded this summer, according to the state agents which German hotel proprietors make. They are trying to keep as wide a range of prices as possible for all sizes of pocketbooks, but the steady increase now in cost of living is forcing all prices skyward. The range for rooms in the smaller bathing places today extends from 100 to 800 marks, and for Americans from a half again to double this amount, or in other words from 75 cents to $5.

Ordinarily the German hotels and pensions made pension rates. Now, owing to the wide fluctuations in food prices, they give a price for rooms and leave the amount they charge for meals open.

It is possible at most of the summer resorts to secure three and four rooms with kitchen at prices around 12,000 to 20,000 marks, or in dollars from $400 to $700 for the entire three months' season.

REMOVE TUMOR FROM BRAIN

New York Girl Expects to Have Sight Restored After Unusual Operation.

New York.—An operation described by surgeons as "quite remarkable" has been performed at Ann May hospital, Spring Lake, N. J. Dr. K. Winfield Ney of New York, chief of the neurological-surgical division of the United States army medical corps, removed a tumor from the region of the pituitary gland of the brain of Miss Marian Vogel of Ashbury Park. The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Vogel.

The tumor was the size of a small walnut. To reach it an opening was made in the skull and the left lobe of the brain was lifted. Miss Vogel was on the operating table for several hours, during which a blood transfusion was necessary. The tumor had caused partial blindness. A complete recovery is expected.

American-Made Cheese Now Invading Switzerland

Washington.—Switzerland, the home of the cheese, is being invaded by the American product, according to a report from Consul Murphy at Lucerne, the Commerce department announced recently. Constant improvement of American types of Swiss cheese, he said, has had much to do with their introduction into Switzerland and other new markets and the Swiss cheese has had to make room for its foreign relative.

Here Is a Fine Harbor for Sale

The British ministry of transport is looking for a purchaser of the harbor of Hamsgate. This semi-developed harbor is not needed by the ministry for governmental shipping, and as a result has been put on the market. The Hamsgate corporation, representing the township, has the matter under consideration but probably will be unable to undertake the purchase because of the immense financial investment necessary for further developments. The photograph shows Hamsgate harbor and part of the town.

COURT TRAINS HAVE APPEARED

Economy No Longer Keypnote in British Court Functions.

Only Two Yards, However, Necessary to Gain Sanction of British Rulers—Fashionable Dressmakers Happy Again.

London.—Economy is no longer to be the keynote of court functions at Buckingham palace. No more "economy courts," as they were called, are to be held. These were established by their majesties after the war to set fashionable society, a much needed example in curbing extravagance. The seal of royal approval again has been bestowed on court trains. Indeed, to woman can be presented at court who does not wear one. Of course, as a man the lord chamberlain cannot presume to be an expert in fashionable feminine dress, but it is one of his many official duties to keep the rules and regulations to which women must conform at the most exalted of court functions. That is one of the things for which he is paid $15,000 a year. He has to be a peer, besides, to qualify for the exalted office which is accounted among the political plums that the prime minister has to give away. The present lord chamberlain is in the top class of the peerage. He is the duke of Atholl.

By restoring the court train he has earned the blessings of the fashionable dressmakers. But they would have lengthened their blessings if he had lengthened the trains. Before the war three yards was their regulation length, while Queen Victoria didn't consider four yards too long. By the new regulations they need only two yards in length and should not extend more than nineteen inches from the heel of the wearer when standing. To walk backward before royalty in a train three yards long without getting tangled up in it, imposes a severe

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

Supper at the morning service. Evening worship at 8 p. m. Sunday School at 10 a. m. and B. Y. P. U. at 7 p. m. Prayer meeting each Wednesday at 8 p. m.

Where do we get our Sunday as a day on which business is closed? It is a distinct contribution of Christianity, yet many spend the day in gratifying some selfish desire for pleasure or sport and never think of the Lord who made the day possible. The Book says, "Remember the Sabbath Day, to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work." The Book also says, "Not forsaking our own assembly together." Meet me at Church Sunday and let us worship together!
