Marshal Brady In Trouble

(Albuquerque Herald)

Deputy United States Marshal John E. Brady, who was arrested last night on the charge of a statutory offense, has been removed from office.

This was the announcement made today by U. S. Marshal Secundino Romero, who arrived in Albuquerque to investigate the charges against his deputy, growing out of an automobile ride in which it was said Miss Mary Davidson, a 22-year-old orphan girl was drugged and assaulted. The removal of Brady is to be permanent, Marshal Romero announced this afternoon. He said he would not be able to name a successor for at least several days.

Following the announcement made by Marshal Romero, Patrolman Thomas Hogan early this afternoon arrested Salomon Barcala for investigation into the charges growing out of the Brady case.

The hearing was postponed because of the condition of Miss Davidson, one of the two girls who is said to have been attacked a week ago when two men invited them for an auto ride and took them north of the Manual school. The defendant was represented by W. C. Heacock. The prosecution is being conducted by T. J. Marbury.

Brady was placed under $5,000 bond immediately after his arrest and being unable to furnish same, spent the night in jail. He had failed to make bond this morning when he appeared in the court of Judge George Roddy on Gold avenue. Brady appeared nervous in court this morning.

The condition of Miss Davidson was considered extremely serious last night. Able to see partly out of but one eye, she is lying on a small bed at the charity colony on North Third street last night and told Assistant District Attorney Mabry, Capt. Guest, Rabbi Bergman, a stenographer and Mrs. Guest her story.

She said that she was walking down the street with her chum when two men in an auto approached and asked them to take a ride. Miss Davidson said she did not know the men and refused to go with them, saying she never spoke to or went with any one she did not know.

Her chum said she knew them and they were introduced. Miss Davidson told how she was supposed to get to her home on Eleventh street by 6 o'clock, and when the men kept taking them farther from town, she became frightened. She said she heard them talking in Spanish and knowing some Spanish, could understand them.

Miss Davidson said she was riding in the front seat with the other man. She said as the men talked she told them she wanted to get out of the car. She said she tried to jump out of the auto but that Brady was too strong and held her close to him as he steered the car with the other.

"I told him (Brady)" said Miss Davidson, that I would have him arrested if he did anything like that" referring to what he said in Spanish to the man in the back seat.

According to the girl Brady replied: "Why, girl, you could not do that." I am the United States deputy marshal. I am over all the police in this state.

Life's Sunset

After several months of suffering in which his ailment failed to respond to medical treatment, Napoleon B. Taylor passed away at his home last Tuesday evening. During his illness, Mr. Taylor accompanied by different members of his family made several trips to El Paso and consulted what was considered the best of medical authority, but receiving no assurance of relief from his trouble, returned home to await the end.

The funeral services were held at the family residence Wednesday afternoon with Rev. Bentley conducting the same and the singing of "Abide With Me," "Beautiful Island of Somewhere," was rendered by Messrs. James J. W. and Louis Adams, the Misses Marjorie Branum, Hilary Cooper and C. H. Haines. Rev. Bentley paid a fitting tribute to the deceased and delivered an impressive sermon on the resurrection and at the cemetery spoke a few words of consolation after which under the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," the body was lowered to its last resting place.

Mr. Taylor was one of the old settlers of Lincoln County, coming to White Oaks from Vernon, Tex., in the year of 1894 and engaged in blacksmithing and gunsmithing at which he was a mechanical expert. He remained in White Oaks until 1905 when he moved his family to Carrizozo where until his death he conducted the Taylor Hardware store and with his two sons, Robert and Julian, conducted the Taylor Garage of which these two gentlemen are still the proprietors. Mr. Taylor was a good neighbor, a courteous business man and his popularity was plainly noticeable by the large attendance at the last sad rites. He was 73 years of age. Those who knew him best will testify that he saw and appreciated many things of importance in life that were overlooked by others. He leaves a wife who ministered at her husband's bedside with Christian fortitude which never deserted her in her patient faithfulness; a daughter, Mrs. Joe White, and sons Robert and Julian, besides many grandchildren and other relatives to mourn his loss, and to whom the sympathy of the entire community is extended.

The Local Strike Situation

About two weeks have elapsed since the strike was ordered and the men who laid down their tools are still out. From different points over the country come reports of disorders, but these have not been at all serious. As far as the local men are concerned, they have kept away from the company's property and abstained from interfering in any manner with anything or anybody connected with the road. These gentlemen are to be commended on their wisdom, carefulness and honesty of purpose which has won for them the admiration of all.

You could not arrest Me!

Miss Davidson said that he then showed her his badge. She said that when the car stopped she was attacked. She said that she believed that someone had thrown something in her eyes. She said that she saw a bottle of something Brady carried.

(Brady is the son of Robert Brady, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee).

Strike of Harem Attendants

Constantinople, July 14. — Constantinople harem attendants have gone on a strike for more money and shorter hours. Many of the capital's finest harems have been left unguarded and their owners have been trying distractedly to find suitable substitutes for the strikers. Numbers of Russian refugees have volunteered their services, but it was found they were not fitted for the job.

The strikers insist that their "24 hour day" and their unceasing vigil they are required to keep on the women of the harems justifies better remuneration especially during the present hard times. Many of them have protested that their wages have not been paid for more than a year, and in several instances they have appealed to the American committee on relief in the Near East for aid. The fact is, that their masters, who in many cases are officials or employees of the government have not drawn any salaries for months.

The strikers include the Eunuuchs and other attendants.

Jicarilla News Items

Fourth of July will long be remembered by the people who were fortunate enough to be among those present at Jicarilla. The main feature of the day, of course, was the basket dinner which was so abundant that after having "dinner all day on the ground" there was still plenty of food left. An other important item was the homemade ice cream which was pronounced delicious by all.

Amusements of different kinds filled the entire day and most of the night. Broncho riding and base ball furnished fun enough to last until an other 4th of July comes again.

Mr. Norton decorated the ground with the Stars and Stripes, and the sight of Old Glory waving in the breeze kept us reminded of the real reason of the celebration.

The Luna ball team and the Jicarilla Wild Cats crossed bats in a real game on the 4th which resulted in a score of 23 to 11 in favor of the Wild Cats. This victory showed the result of real team work which has been accomplished under the management of A. H. Norton. We take off our hats to the Luna team for being real sports and bearing defeat in good spirit. The Wild Cats are ready to play Luna (not Kansas City or Dallas) a return game at any time.

While the sun was sinking in the western horizon the Forsythe-Montoya orchestra began playing and those who danced enjoyed themselves until the wee small hours of the morning and in this way we came "to the end of a perfect day."

Mrs. Mercer, who has been residing in Jicarilla for several months and who holds a large interest in the mining company which has been operating in Jicarilla for some time, left Thursday, July 6th, for San Francisco, Cal. Her many friends are sorry to see her go and hope she will return to the "Jicks" with her smiles and genial companionship.

Mr. Warden Visits His Old Home

Guy L. Warden, of Warden Brothers, prominent stockmen of this locality, left for his boyhood's home in Wardensville, W. Va., last Saturday, to spend several months with his relatives and many friends in his home town. Mr. Warden has been in Carrizozo and vicinity for the past eight years and this being his first visit to his home since coming west, he seems determined to make it a good one.

Some of his local friends are of the opinion that he has serious intentions besides the mere pleasure of the visit, and were he to return as he left, (single handed,) they would be disappointed. However, his return will settle the controversy and the agony will be over.

Dance at White Oaks

Dempsey-Wills Ring Bout

New York, July 11.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, signed a contract today, through their respective managers to box for the heavyweight title. The time and place of the contest will be determined later.

The contract, which it is expected will eventually bring the champion and his negro challenger together in the ring, is of the blanket type. It requires the heavyweights to box within sixty days after the acceptance of a satisfactory bid extended by a reliable promoter. The time and place for the bout will be announced at or shortly after the acceptance of such bid by the principals or their managers.

In today's conference between Jack Kearns, representing Dempsey, and Patrick Mullins, manager of Wills, the latter held out at first for the proposals he made at Saturday's meeting, but Kearns was obdurate and Mullins finally capitulated. Mullins desired that bids be limited to those received within thirty days and that the bout be fought within three months after the acceptance of the best offer.

Kearns stated that the offer submitted was the best ever tendered by a champion to a challenger and left the conference with the statement that Mullins could either sign it or drop negotiations for the bout. Mullins finally withdrew his objections and placed his signature to the contract, also withdrawing his proposal that the bout be fought under the boxing rules of the New York state boxing commission in case the contest was held in territory not provided with an up-to-date ring code.

New Ensigns to Help Out Navy

With Latest Additions United States Is Still 3,800 Officers Behind Treaty Strength.

SHIPS ARE NOW UNDERMANNED

Young Annapolis Graduates Will Materially Help Destroyer Force—Many Destroyers Now With but Single Officer Aboard.

Washington.—The graduation of the class of 1922 of the Naval Academy relieves a very trying situation relative to our officer personnel question. Last year there were approximately 7,500 officers, including reserve officers on active duty. But the first of this year brought about the return of the reserve officers to inactive status. As this affected close to 500 officers, our service up to the time of the graduation consisted of only 7,000 regulars.

At the same time the British navy had in active service about 12,000 officers, and the Japanese more than 8,000. These figures are very important. We are supposed to be 40 per cent more powerful than Japan, yet we have 1,000 less than their complement of officers. We were supposed to be equal to Great Britain, yet we lacked 5,000 officers of their total.

Since that time the British officer personnel has been reduced to approximately 9,200 of all ranks. But still, it is to be seen, we are 1,800 officers behind our "parity" nation, despite the graduation of 400 new and inexperienced but well grounded ensigns. Our officer strength relative to Japan, based on the 5-5-3 ratio established at the armament conference, should be 11,200 for America to 8,000 for Japan.

And so, it is apparent that in spite of our material strength we are still 3,800 officers behind our treaty strength.

GLAD TO GET NEW OFFICERS.

The navy is very glad to get these new officers. Since the reserves have returned to inactive service we have had a hard time maintaining even 50 per cent of the navy which we retain under the various treaties. So soon as their few months of leave is up these young men will go to their assigned stations, on the battleships, the gunboats, the destroyers and the shore stations.

For some time we have been forced to maintain destroyers in reserve commission with but a single officer aboard. Not only this, but some destroyers have had to be maintained without a single commissioned officer in their cabins—with petty officers commanding. Such a condition has not existed in any other navy in the world for a period of twenty-five years. It will now be possible to reassign our destroyer officers to do away with this condition and to bolster up the officer strength of the forces as a whole.

Our battleship forces, our first line of defense, has had but 80 per cent of its officer strength for some time. By assigning these new officers to the big ships it is hoped to bring the officer strength up to about 85 per cent of the necessary strength.

However, if the navy is cut from 98,000 to 80,000, as provided in the naval appropriation bill, the enlisted complements of the battleships will have to be reduced further, for it is impossible to put a single ship of this type out of commission without a tremendous loss of power.

Destroyers in active commission will have to be placed in reserve with from 50 to 75 per cent of their required complements aboard and some of those in reserve will have to be placed entirely out of service.

DETERIORATION OF DESTROYERS.

No type of ship, except the submarine, deteriorates with the lack of upkeep quite so fast as a destroyer. The reduction in the upkeep forces will mean that the 150 odd destroyers now wasting away will be augmented. This waste will have to be made good in the near future; the conditions of the naval treaty demand it.

However, the reduction will not be wholly in the sea forces. Our naval

"Bill" Names Nine Boys in Fancy Poetic Style

Marshall, Ark.—William Shoen of this town always thought his Christian name was too common. So, when he married he decided to give romance to the names of his children.

Today "Bill" has nine little boys, and their names follow: Basco, Tasco, Lasco, Cicero, Marsilio, Rosco, Otto, Woodrow and Vanko.

The father says the names rhyme, sound like music, make poetry and express individuality and distinction.

bases, built up to efficiency at great expense during the war, will have to be cut down. For if there is to be a reduction it must be proportionate. One branch must not suffer too much. The navy must be made sound as a whole no matter how far the reductions progress. It is probable that the navy yards at Portsmouth, N. H.; Boston, Philadelphia and Charleston, S. C., will have to go, together with a number of undetermined submarine bases of great value.—New York Herald.

Go to Europe to Study Livestock

Three Boys Won Prizes for Efficiency in Judging Value of Farm Animals.

OLDEST OF THE YOUTHS IS 17

Boys Learned That Fat May Be Added to Cattle and Hogs Without Profit—Will Attend the English Royal Stock Show.

College Park, Md.—Because Warren Rice, Joseph Glackin and George Worrilow of Cecil county, Maryland, learned that a dairy cow may produce milk and no money, that beef cattle may increase in weight without increasing in worth, that hogs may add fat without adding profits and that sheep may grow wool without growing in value, they were given a free trip to Europe to find out what the Old World has accomplished in the efficient breeding and management of livestock.

They carry round-trip tickets to Liverpool, complimentary tickets to the English Royal Stock show at Cambridge, numerous letters inviting them to visit some of England's famous estates and what they have left of $115 in prize money.

Warren Rice is seventeen years old, Joseph Glackin is fifteen and George Worrilow comes right between with the handy age of sixteen. They are all farm boys, raised on Cecil county farms, and the dairy calf, the baby beef, the gamboiling lamb and the squealing porker may be said to have been a part of the atmosphere of their early environment.

It was agricultural club work, conducted by the University of Maryland extension service in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture, however, that first taught the Maryland boys to extract the nefarious secrets from unproductive animals. They soon discovered that some of their best friends among the barnyard tribes were merely the recipients of charity instead of faithful servants, as they had supposed.

The truth became more and more apparent as they traveled about in their own and neighboring counties in company with their county agent, W. C. Snarr, who was coaching them for the state dairy cattle judging contest at the Timonium state fair. They learned to note the difference between the bovine eyes and heads, shapes and sizes of body, textures of skin, udders and milk veins and other characteristics which distinguish the cow that has been bred for generations for milk production. They became expert in rating one fine cow above another fine cow and in giving reasons for their decisions.

When the state contest was held, in September, each of the three Cecil county boys went home with cash awards of from $15 to $25 and a purebred bull calf, in addition to a loving cup offered as a team prize.

Following their experience in matching wits with other farm boys the three young Marylanders were polished up and sent to the National Dairy show at St. Paul in October to represent their state in the junior dairy cattle judging contest. Here, in the dust of the judging rings, they met boys from all parts of the United States and came away with fifth place. Warren Rice, however, did better than his teammates and ran up the highest individual score in the contest.

WIN CASH AWARDS.

From St. Paul the team went, in easy stages, to Atlanta, picking up along the way interesting bits of information that came in handy on October 20, when the Marylanders again went into action against 13 other state teams.

In this contest the boys were required to pass judgment on dairy cattle, beef cattle, hogs and sheep and to give oral reasons for their selections. They did it so well that the judges handed them $115 in cash awards and planned to them the big prize of a trip to Europe which was offered by the Southeastern Fair association.

Now they are in England, with six weeks of travel before them. The prize they won includes the expenses of County Agent Snarr, who trained them; E. G. Jenkins, state boys' club agent for Maryland, and C. L. Chambers of the United States Department of Agriculture, who are the other members of the party.

The 30 pieces of gold, which was probably an enormous fortune in the days of the first gold currency, are thought to have been hidden by some wealthy Lydian in 540, while Sardis was besieged by Cyrus. They were found in a tomb.

Some of the coins were a little rubbed, indicating that they had been in circulation a few years. The fresh minted condition of some of them makes it almost a certainty that they were fashioned during or immediately after the reign of Croesus.

400,000 Poles Emigrate in Year.

Warsaw.—One hundred thousand emigrants left Poland for the United States and Canada during 1921, according to figures published here. During the same time 40,000 re-emigrants came into Poland, bringing with them money estimated at 900,000,000 marks, or about $300,000,000.

High Temperatures Favor Crops.
Washington.—High temperatures and abundant sunshine were declared by the weather bureau in its weekly weather and crop review to have been generally favorable for crop growth, cultivation and harvesting throughout the country.

Exceptions to the generally favorable conditions were noted by the bureau in the extreme Northwest, where it was too wet, in the district from the lake region eastward where the nights were rather cool and in many regions from the Ohio and Mississippi valleys westward, where there was no need of additional rain.

Spring wheat generally made good progress with beneficial rains in North Dakota. Rain, however, was needed in Minnesota and some parts of South Dakota.

The crop deteriorated or made only poor progress in Iowa for the same reason, and in most Rocky mountain and far northwestern districts, where not irrigated, the same damage was reported.

Rain was needed, according to reports, in many parts of the corn belt, including western and northern portions of Iowa, central Illinois, north-central and western Nebraska, and the greater part of Indiana. Rain helped the crop in eastern Kansas, eastern Nebraska and Missouri.

Old Age Telling on Mother Earth.
Waycross, Ga.—Old age is telling on Mother Earth and she is losing some of her attractiveness, according to discovery made at Waycross recently by scientists from Carnegie Institute. Prof. J. W. Green and W. H. Love of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Washington Institution, making observations at the Waycross station in an effort to determine the circular or annual variations of the globe, developed that the magnetic power of the earth is decreasing. This, the scientists stated, may be due in part to the earth getting older. No one knows the exact cause, however, they said.

Collinger Reports Liquor Taxes.

Washington.—Collections of all taxes on alcoholic beverages and narcotics during the last twelve months amounted to $3,629,856.77, according to a report prepared by F. S. Collinger, head of the assessment section of the prohibition unit. Approximately 50,000 field officers' reports were received during the year, involving over 42,000 liquor violations and more than 9,000 violations of the narcotic act.

U. S. Content With Dye Arrangement.

Washington.—The communication from the Washington government sent through Commissioner Hayden in relation to the American attitude on disposition of German dyes received by the reparations commission, was described at the State Department as not technically a note, but merely the intimation that the American government was content that the present arrangement should continue pending action by Congress on the Shortridge resolution.

Touch of Winter in the Summer

This isn't a winter picture, just a summer scene in Rainier National park, Washington, snapped at Paradise Inn, 5343 feet above sea level. These tourists have driven from Seattle, only a few hours away, and are viewing the snow banks which are to be found here during the entire summer.

FIND FIRST GOLD EVER MINTED

Coins of the Time of Croesus Discovered by Americans.

Thirty Gold Pieces Unearthed by Archeologists in Buried Ruins of Sardis, Ancient Lydian Capital in Asia Minor.

New York.—Thirty gold coins belonging to the first series ever minted have been unearthed by American archeologists who are working on the buried ruins of Sardis, the ancient Lydian capital in Asia Minor. Fifteen of them may come to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

They are the coinage of Croesus, the last king of Lydia, and the first great international banker, whose name has been a symbol of wealth for nearly 2,500 years.

when he was captured by Cyrus, the Persian king, in the battle before Sardis. Some of the 30 "staters," as they are called, are as bright as new minted pieces of United States gold money. They are lighter in hue, as they are of pure gold.

Before this find, which is considered one of the great archeological discoveries in years, there were only five "staters" known to be in existence. Four of these were so rubbed and worn that the lion's head and bull's head were nearly effaced. One was in good condition.—These five are in the British museum.

News of this discovery was brought to the United States by Dr. T. Leslie Shear, an archeologist of Columbia university, one of the members of the expedition who were present when the discovery was made. Other members of the party were Mrs. T. Leslie Shear, an authority on ancient painting and decorative work; W. R. Berry; H. R. Hilden, an architect; Edward Stoeber, engineer of the party; Cyrus

Equipment That An Angler Needs

This has been a great season for fishing.

Reports from all sections are that more fish are being caught than ever before, and there are more fish to catch, thanks to the efficient system employed by most fish and game commissions.

This brings us to the matter of equipment. In selecting equipment it is not necessary for the angler to over exercise his pocket book.

The cost of an outfit depends greatly on the individual. To the man of means, money is no object in procuring the things he desires, and he will spend hundreds of dollars for his equipment.

is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed con-

you have a rumbling sound or imperfect deafness is the result. Unless the in-

A Century of Brazilian Independence

PRESIDENT EPIPTACIO PESSOA

JOSE BONIFACIO

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

OBSEVANCE of the Fourth of July in celebration of the winning of American independence naturally suggests two thoughts: That the nations of Central and South America are also free and independent and that America set the example.

When the American congress adopted the Declaration of Independence it was not only announcement to the world of the independence of the original thirteen colonies, but also, a prophecy of the forthcoming independence of most of the Western Hemisphere. So there are many Independence Days on this side of the Atlantic.

Mexico celebrates September 16. It was on that day in 1810, that Miguel Hidalgo, pastor of Colores, rang his church bell and proclaimed independence to his flock. For ten years his head was to be seen on a spike on a corner of the Alhondiga de Granaditas in Guanajuato and independence was not secured until 1821.

The Central American countries celebrate September 15. Guatemala declared independence on that date in 1821, the other countries following its example soon after.

In South America Venezuela deposed its royal governor April 23, 1810. July 5, 1811, Bolivar brought about a formal declaration of independence and a Republican constitutional form of government. So Venezuela observes a holiday on each of these days.

Chile celebrates September 18. In 1810 it organized a government when Napoleon tumbled Ferdinand VII off from the throne of Spain.

Other South American countries celebrate Independence day on the following dates: Argentina, May 25; Bolivia, August 6; Colombia, July 20; Ecuador, August 10; Paraguay, May 14-15; Peru, July 28-30; Uruguay, February 28.

Brazil dates its independence from September 7, 1822, the date of the separation of Brazil from Portugal, though the nation did not become a republic till the revolution of 1889. That is why Brazil will celebrate a century of independence by an international exposition to be opened this coming September.

This centennial exposition will be held in Rio de Janeiro. It will open September 7, and continue until March 31, 1923. Rio de Janeiro is a city with more than a million people. It is most picturesquely situated on the Bay of Guanabara which is dotted with islands and surrounded by mountains. Its odd name—River of January—comes from the fact that January 1, 1531, Martin Alfonso sailed through the gateway dominated by Sugar Loaf Peak into the almost land-locked bay and thought it was the mouth of a mighty stream.

Several years ago when the authorities decided to improve and modernize Rio de Janeiro, this plan included the condemnation and removal of nearly 600 small buildings in order to construct a wide avenue, known as Avenida Rio Branco. It extends north and south a distance of about a mile and a half, and is 110 feet wide. Rows of Pau Brasil, the species of tree from which the republic derives its name, occupy the center, the sides being used for traffic. This avenue also serves as a connecting link between sections of the bay. Along Avenida Rio Branco stand many of the capital's business structures, hotels, cafes, newspaper plants, and office buildings. At approximately the halfway point of the Avenida the electric street car system of Rio de Janeiro centers.

Avenida Rio Branco will unite the two sections of the exposition grounds. The several areas designated for exposition purposes lie along or near the water front. The site where native or Brazilian products will be exhibited is a plot of ground having water on two sides; and from this plaza a street extending along the water front to the Monroe Palace, one of the city's most beautiful and commanding structures, has been designated as the "Avenida do Nacao" (Avenue of Nations), along which will stand the official pavilions of foreign governments. By far the largest area available for exposition purposes is that lying at the opposite end of the Avenida Rio Branco, in the vicinity of the new docks and warehouses, where large exhibits, such as machinery and locomotives, find abundant space.

In a general way, Brazil will endeavor to show the world some of the vital influences that have made the country grow and prosper. The exposition will reflect agricultural development, progress in mechanical industries, transportation progress on land, rivers, and along the coast; postal and telegraph services; the work of Brazilian artists and scientists; the development of commerce; and the production and conservation of foods.

The United States is to be represented. Plans for its participation have been completed by a special commission appointed by President Haring to arrange for official exhibits exemplifying American progress in science, industry and commerce. Seven government departments, interior, commerce, agriculture, postoffice, labor, war and navy and the United States shipping board, have prepared exhibits.

DONA ISABEL

DOM PEDRO SEGUNDO

Twenty-five nations will participate in the celebration, which is regarded of peculiar interest to the United States because of the fact that Brazil has already participated in eight exhibitions in this country. Congress appropriated $1,000,000 to defray expenses of participation by the United States in the exposition. The State department will have charge of the expenditure of this fund.

Out of it a permanent building, costing $350,000, has been erected on the Avenue of Nations to house the exhibit to be sent by this government. After the close of the exposition this building is to be converted into a permanent embassy for this government.

The exposition building will be two stories in height and of granite construction. The upper floor will be devoted to reception rooms and the lower floor to departmental exhibits.

Preliminary to Brazil's achievement of independence in the reign of Dom John. He arrived in Brazil as prince regent in 1808. In 1815 the colony was raised by royal charter to the rank of a royal kingdom along with Portugal and Algarves. Dom John then became King John VI. When Dom John came over he brought royal treasures in the form of art and books—to save them from Napoleon. He founded an academy of art, a museum of natural history, libraries and educational institutions. He fostered industries and opened ports to trade. But he was not wise in political affairs, outlived his popularity, and returned to Portugal in 1821.

King John left as regent Dom Pedro, his son, who became the champion of the Brazilian cause against the Portuguese reactionaries who desired to reduce the kingdom to its old colonial status. The home government demanded his return. The people asked him to remain. He remained. A few months later in Sao Paulo a letter was delivered to him from the Portuguese court. In a burst of anger he tore off the Portuguese insignia, drew his sword and shouted the historic words, "Independence or Death!" The scene has been immortalized in a painting called "The Cry of Ypiranga."

Actual independence was quickly achieved by overcoming hostilities on the part of the Portuguese garrison and fleet.

The most prominent of the political events of the first reign under independence include these, according to Langworthy Marchant in the bulletin of the Pan American Union:

"First in order is the fusion of all parties into one in support of the newly installed head of the nation, Dom Pedro I, Constitutional Emperor and Perpetual Defender of Brazil; then follows the convocation of the Constituent Assembly for the purpose of establishing a constitution; later, the violent dissolution of the same assembly by the Emperor, because it proposed to curtail his privileges and establish a virtual republic; then in swift succession the arrest and banishment of the parliamentary leaders, among them the illustrious Jose Bonifacio de Andrada e Silva, who goes down in history with the title of 'Patriarch of the Independence'; the promulgation of the constitution of the Empire by Dom Pedro Primeiro—a most liberal document, notwithstanding the extraordinary circumstances in which it was promulgated; the Republican Revolution of 1889 in Pernambuco, which was repressed by Dom Pedro in a way which raised up against him the deep resentment of the Brazilians and led to his abdication April 7, 1889.

"A curious incident in connection with the abdication of Dom Pedro Primeiro was his appointment of Jose Bonifacio, the exiled Patriarch of the Independence, as the guardian and tutor of his son, Dom Pedro Segundo, whom he entrusted at the age of five, with his baby sisters, to the loving care of the subjects with whom he had quarreled.

"Dom Pedro Segundo was proclaimed Emperor of Brazil by a joint committee of Senators and Deputies amid the joyous shouts of the whole population. A regency of three members was constituted, and Jose Bonifacio was invited to assume the personal guardianship of the Emperor."

Dom Pedro was declared to be of age at fourteen and assumed personal direction of public affairs. It was not until 1845 that all the provinces of Brazil were united in peace.

An outstanding event in the political evolution of Brazil's century of independence is the abolition of slavery, by two successive steps, under the auspices of Dona Isabel, daughter of Dom Pedro Segundo, when serving as regent of the Empire. The first decree was signed on September 28, 1851. By this decree slave mothers bore only free children. The final abolition of slavery was effected by Dona Isabel on May 13, 1858.

After the abolition of slavery, the old Conservative Party began to disintegrate very rapidly, its members going over to the Republicans.

Gen. Benjamin Constant Botelho de Magalhães, the chief exponent of the Positivistic doctrine, was president of the military college. Under his patronage a plan was worked out among the higher officers of the army, with the assistance of the chiefs of the Republican Party, for the deposition of the dynasty and the proclamation of the Republic. The revolution declared itself on the 15th of November, 1889, and a provisional government was organized under the presidency of Gen. Deodoro da Fonseca.

The last imperial cabinet, headed by the illustrious Viscount of Ouro Preto, finding itself powerless to act, simply ceased to exist with the arrest of its members. The imperial family were banished.

Says Hello Lobo, Consul General of Brazil in New York:

"You Americans are proud of having given the world a lesson in democracy which still endures, and it was indeed admirable, for it shaped the destiny of the whole continent and became the source of widespread inspiration, Jamestown, with its first elective assembly, the stirring events which took place in Independence Hall, the vote, freedom of speech, trial by jury—all the guarantees of civil and political life—for these the world is deeply indebted to you.

"Brazil did not forget this after she threw off the colonial yoke, although we were governed by a liberal-King who, above the crown, placed the nation's will, your example gave us strength. As during the incumbency of Pedro I, the regency, and Pedro II this practice of government remained unchanged, so, when the Republic came into existence and, thereby, the federation, our liberal tradition was already established and universally respected. Although borrowing its Constitution in 1890 from the United States, Brazil did not borrow your political wisdom by copying it entirely. With a Charter which for more than half a century had found its inspiration in the most liberal principles of the English Constitution—namely a source of inspiration to the Constitution of the United States—Brazil, in its Republican and democratic form of government, found at last its natural pattern."

THE WISE CAT

"People think they are so smart," said Aphro, the cat, which is to its friends usually known as Kitty-Cat.

"I Enjoy Watching."

But no one except a human being would think there was a cat about upon hearing him.

"I have heard people mistake the sound he made for the sound one of my family would make. Yes, they would hear my master and they would say:

"Where is the cat? Now my master thinks that is very fine and oh, how he would like to fool me.

"He has tried it again and again and again, but I am not fooled."

"No, no, indeed. Sometimes I think I will pretend to be fooled so, as to make the master happy, but then that would make me out to be very stupid, and I could not bear that.

"It would be a disgrace to the family.

"I live at a naval station. It's a very interesting place. We have bands of music and sailors and all such things, and a number of nice cats.

"That is the most important—to have nice, sociable friends.

"We have a very fine Cat Glee club. The sailors have one and so we thought we'd do the same thing. The sailors sing their songs and we sing ours.

"For, I trust you know, a glee club is a club where everyone sings. And they give concerts.

"We give fine concerts too. I don't know how much the rest of the creatures on the station regard our concerts, but I do know that we think they're very fine.

"And cats should know how other cats sing. They are the best judges surely.

"A tarantula came to the station not long ago. He is a kind of a spider, you know. And he came on a bunch of bananas. That was the way he traveled.

"He was fed and made his home on the bunch of bananas for a long, long time, but after a time he went away. No one knew where he went.

"You see I am giving you all the station news.

"Me-ow, me-ow, there are some dogs outside. I think I shall watch them play for a bit. I don't feel like playing but I enjoy watching them from this window.

"I look at them in an interested way and then I take a short snooze or nap. I know how to enjoy life.

"I have traveled quite a bit too. I have been to many other places. You see my master does not stay in one place. He moves about and I go too.

"But I find life much the same in one place as in another. If it is cold I find a stove to lie under and if it is hot I go under a nice cool shading tree.

"But wherever I am I sleep and eat and me-ow and purr and of all the places I've been I've never found a human being who could fool me when trying to make the me-owing sound of a real cat.

"No one has ever fooled me, and I do not believe anyone ever will.

"I am the wise cat. And I come from a wise family.

"Now there was a lioness in the city park not so very far away.

"She was jealous because the keeper walked by with his wife, and she put her paw through the bars and gave the keeper's wife a bad injury.

"I wouldn't bother to get as angry as that as long as I'm treated all right. I'm jealous, but my comfort means more to me than anything and nothing else is as important.

"Oh, well, I'm a wise cat, me-ow, me-ow."

BOWRON SOURCE

RELIEF 40 YEARS

"Tanlac has done me more good than all other medicines and treatments combined, and that's saying a great deal for I was a sufferer from indigestion forty years and have tried every kind of medicine that came my way," said R. H. Bowron, 1635 W. 17th St., Los Angeles, Cal.

"I could hardly stand the bad spells I frequently had with my stomach. I was weak and nervous, had no appetite, and I felt miserable generally. Nothing I took gave me more than temporary relief and I gradually grew worse.

"About two years ago Tanlac put me in splendid condition and it has been my standby ever since. Whenever I get to feeling a little off, a bottle or two puts me in fine shape. I eat heartily now, sleep fine, have no distress after meals, and, in fact, am enjoying splendid health. Tanlac is just the thing for those who suffer as I did."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

GOT RID OF HIS AUDIENCE

Indiana Youth Cannot Be Dented the Faculty of Arriving at a Quick Decision.

In Sullivan county there are still many rural phonés, the sort that when the bell rings on one it rings for all the others, too, reports the Indianapolis News. But each patron is supposed to be honorable and answer the phone only when his or her own call is given. Many, being rather lonely, answer all calls and do the listening stunt to perfection.

A recent graduate at one of the schools received a present from his "girl" and also one from several of the neighbors at the exercises. But when the girl's came he decided to thank her right away. And he went to the telephone and called her number.

He heard central ring her phone, and then counted six clicks before she answered him. He knew he had an audience. So quite politely he said, "Now that you are all together I want to thank you individually and jointly for the nice presents you sent me for my graduation."

A silence, and then gently six receivers clicked back on their hooks. The boy, sure he had privacy with his girl, immediately told her what he wished to say about her present.

Cascara Bark.

The supply of cascara bark is limited. Although barberry trees are found in California, Oregon and other states, they are not as numerous as in Washington. The supply there is being rapidly depleted, each year the gatherers going further into the swampy depths of the forests. The bark renews itself in time, but the second growth is not as desirable as the old and contains less pungent medicinal sap.

Many kinds of medicines, flavors and drugs are made from the barberry bark and it is used around the world.

"MIDNIGHT MASQUER!"

SYNOPSIS—During the height of the New Orleans carnival season Jachin Fell, wealthy though somewhat mysterious citizen, and Dr. Ansel, are discussing a series of robberies by an individual known as the Midnight Masquer, who, invariably attired as an aviator, has long defied the police. Joseph Maillard, wealthy banker, is giving a ball that night, at which the Masquer has threatened to appear and rob the guests. Fell and Ansel, on their way to the affair, meet a girl dressed as Columbine, seemingly known to Fell, but masked, who accompanies them to the ball. Lucie Ledanois, recently the ward of her uncle, Joseph Maillard, is the Columbine. At the ball, Bob Maillard, son of the banker, again proposes to her and is refused. He offers to buy some of her property. A Franciscan monk interests her.

"So," the girl smiled a little, "you would betray your business friends in order to make a bit of money for me?"

Maillard stared at her. "Well, if you put it that way, yes! I'd do more than that for—"

"Thank you," she interrupted, her voice cold. "I don't think I'd trust your sagacity very far, Robert. Good-night."

She turned from him and was gone, dancing through the great rooms like a true Columbine.

Midnight neared, and brought a concern to many; the Midnight Masquer had gained his name by invariably appearing a moment or two before the stroke of twelve. Jachin Fell, who divided his time between enjoying the smoking room and wandering about among the masquers, perceived that Joseph Maillard was watching the time with anxiety.

A large man, stern and a bit scornful of look, Maillard was imposing rather than handsome. He appeared the typical banker, efficient, devoid of all sentiment. Amused by the man's evident uneasiness, Jachin Fell kept him in view while the moments dragged. One might have thought that the little gray man was studying the financier as an entomologist studies a butterfly on a pin.

Shortly before twelve Columbine plouretted up to Fell and accepted the arm he offered her. They were for the moment alone, in a corner of the ballroom.

"I must see you tomorrow, please," she breathed.

"Gladly," he assented. "May I call? It's Sunday, you know—"

"If you will; at three. Something has happened, but I cannot speak of it here. Does any one else know that you— that you are interested in my affairs?"

The pale gray eyes of the little gray man looked very innocent and wondering.

"Certainly not, my dear! Why?"

"I'll tell you tomorrow." Then she broke into a laugh. "Well, it is midnight—and the Masquer has not appeared. I'm almost sorry."

The lights flickered off for a moment, then on again. The signal for unmasking!

The dancing ceased. From the whole room arose a babel of voices—cries of surprise, exclamations, merry laughter. Columbine removed her mask. An instant later Joseph Maillard

"So," the girl smiled a little, "you would betray your business friends in order to make a bit of money for me?"

Maillard approached them, chuckling to himself and looking hugely relieved.

"Ha, Lucie! I guessed you beneath the Columbine daintiness! Have you examined your favor yet?"

Remembering the girl caught at her corsage. Crises of delight were arising on all sides as the favors were revealed—most handsome favors, even for Mardi Gras! From the heart of the rosebuds in her hand Lucie removed a brooch of old filigree work set with a group of pearls. She glanced about for Jachin Fell, but he had vanished with Maillard. A voice rose at her elbow:

"Mademoiselle, you are not less lucky than beautiful! Fear is to the pearl!"

She turned to see the Franciscan—no longer masked, but now gazing at her from a frank, laughing countenance, still partially veiled by the brown cowl that was drawn up close about his head.

"Henry Gramont!" she exclaimed.

"Oh, I half suspected that it was you!"

"But you were not sure?" he chuckled. "You're not offended with me, Lucie?"

"I should be." She tossed her head. "You were impertinent, M. le prince!"

He made a distasteful gesture.

"None of that, Lucie! You know I don't like it—"

"Oh, la, la!" she mocked him. "M. le prince is seeing America, n'est ce pas? He has come to America to find a rich wife, is it not?"

Gramont's face lost its smile, and suddenly became almost harsh.

"I shall call upon you at four tomorrow, Lucie," he said, abruptly, and turned. Nor did he pause to get her reply. An instant afterward Lucie was surrounded by a merry group of friends, and she saw no more of Henry Gramont.

About five minutes later those in the ballroom distinctly heard, through the open windows, the heavy pulsations of an airplane motor.

CHAPTER III.

The Bandit.

Joseph Maillard's library was on the ground floor of the house; it was a sedate and stately room, and was invariably shut off to itself. Not even tonight, of all nights, was it thrown open with the remainder of the house.

Here Maillard summoned half a dozen of his particular cronies and friends, after the stroke of midnight had assured him that there was no danger to be expected from the bandit. His son was not among the number. The half dozen were nearly all elderly men, and, with the exception of Jachin Fell, all were men of prominent affairs.

About the table grouped Maillard and his guests. Maillard, standing before a small wall safe that flanked the open hearth, lifted his silver goblet, astern with beads. The moment for which he had been waiting was here; he launched his little thunderbolt with an air of satisfied importance.

"My friends, I have a confession to make!" he announced. "Today I received a note from the Midnight Masquer stating that he would be with us this evening, presumably at the hour of midnight, his usual time."

These words brought an instant silence. The half-dozen men were tense, watchful, astonished. But Maillard swung up his silver cup and laughed gaily.

"I took full precautions, gentlemen. The hour of danger is past, and the notorious bandit has not arrived—or, if he has arrived, he is now in the hands of the law. So up with your cups, my friends—a lifelong health to Mardi Gras, and damnation to prohibition and the Midnight Masquer!"

From everyone broke a swift assent to the toast, a murmur of relieved tension. The silver goblets were lifted, touched in a musical clinking of edges, and the aromatic breath of juleps filled the library as the drinkers, in true southern fashion, buried noses in the fragrant mint. Then, as the cups were lowered, from the recess of the curtained windows at one end of the room came a quiet voice:

"I thank you, gentlemen! But I must remind you, Maillard, that there was not a time limit set in the note."

With a simultaneous gasp everyone turned. Maillard staggered; his face went livid. Every eye was fastened upon that amazing figure now advancing from the shadows of the recess.

It was the figure of an aviator, clad in leather from top to toe, the goggles and helmet shield completely masking his head and features from recognition. In his hand he held an automatic pistol, which covered the group of men before him with an unerring long mouth.

"Not a sound, if you please," he warned, his eyes fixed and unflinchingly directed. "I trust that most of you gentlemen in a group, because I am very quick on the trigger. A very pleasant surprise, Maillard? Round given me up, eh?"

For an instant no one spoke. Then Maillard moved slightly, moved his hand toward a button set in the wall near the safe. The voice of the bandit leaped out at him like thin steel: "Quiet, you fool! If you touch that button—"

Maillard stiffened, and gripped the table edge with his shaking hand.

The bandit bowed slightly, and addressed the gathering in a tone of dry gallantry:

"The rights of property are to me far more sacred than human life; there I agree with the law. So, gentlemen kindly empty your pockets on the table." His voice became crisp.

"The jeweled scarfpins which you received as favors this evening may be added to the collection; otherwise, I shall not touch your private possessions." No watches, thank you, Maillard, kindly begin! I believe that you carry a wallet? If you please."

The banker could not but obey. His hands trembling with fear and rage, he took from his pocket a wallet, and emptied a sheaf of bills upon the table. One after another, the other men followed his example. When it came his turn, Jachin Fell drew a single bill from his pocket, and laid it down.

"You put some faith in that warning, Mr. Fell?" The bandit laughed.

"If You Don't," Was the Cool Threat, "I'll Shoot You Through the Abdomen."

"Do you think that you will know me again?"

"I hardly believe so, sir," answered Fell in his apologetic fashion. "Your disguise is really excellent."

"Thank you." The bandit's voice held a thin mockery. "Coming from you, sir, that compliment is most welcome."

"What the devil does the fellow mean?" exploded Judge Forester.

"Then you are not aware that Mr. Fell is a man of large affairs?" The bandit's white teeth flashed in a smile. "He is a modest man, this attorney! And a dangerous man also, I assure you. But come, Mr. Fell, I'll not betray you."

Jachin Fell obviously did not appreciate the pleasantry. His shy and wondering features assumed a set and hardened look.

"Whoever you are," he responded, a subtle click of anger in his tone, "you shall be punished for this!"

"For what, Mr. Fell? For knowing too much of your private affairs?" The bandit laughed. "Fear not—I am only an amateur at this game, fortunately! So do your worst, and my blessing upon you! Now, gentlemen, kindly withdraw a few paces. All but you, Maillard; I'm not through with you yet."

The automatic pistol gestured; under its menace everyone obeyed the command, for the calm assurance of the bandit made it seem extremely likely that he would use the weapon without compunction. The men withdrew toward the far end of the room, where a word from the aviator halted them. Maillard remained standing where he was.

The Masquer advanced to the table and gathered the heap of money and scarfpins into the leathern pocket of his coat. During the process his gaze did not waver from the group of men, nor did the threat of his weapon lift from the banker before him.

"Now, Maillard," he quietly ordered, "you will have the kindness to turn around and open the wall safe behind you. And don't touch the button."

Maillard started.

"That safe! Why—why—d—n you, I'll do nothing of the sort!"

"If you don't," was the cool threat, "I'll shoot you through the abdomen. A man fears a bullet there worse than death. It may kill you, and it may not; really, I care very little. You—you—financier!"

Scorn leaped into the quiet voice, scorn that lashed and bit deep.

"It was natural then that Lucie should take Jachin Fell into her confidence."

The Young Mother.

THE ILLS OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria—a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

A Word About Truth.

"Great is Truth, and mighty above all things." So says the Old Testament, yet it is equally true to-day. Truth shows no favors, fears no enemies.

From the inception of Fletcher's Castoria, Truth has been the watchword, and to the conscientious adherence to this motto in the preparation of Fletcher's Castoria as well as in its advertising is due the secret of its popular demand.

All imitations, all substitutes, all just-as-good preparations lack the element of Truth, lack the righteousness of being, lack all semblance even in the words of those who would deceive.

And you! Mothers, mothers with the fate of the World in your hands, can you be deceived? Certainly not.

Fletcher's Castoria is prepared for Infants and Children. It is distinctly a remedy for the little ones. The BABY'S need for a medicine to take the place of Castor Oil, Paregoric and Soothing Syrups was the sole thought that led to its discovery. Never try to correct BABY'S troubles with a medicine that you would use for yourself.
