VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

By C. E. Anderson, President of the Union Co. Farm Bureau.

Note:—This article was originally written by Mr. Anderson for his local paper but its contents so thoroughly express the value of agricultural education that it justifies a much wider publicity.

Union county is strictly an agricultural county. Every resident who gets his living from Union County gets it either directly or indirectly from agriculture.

If your son is to be a farmer it goes without saying that he ought to have some special training in the science of agriculture.

He needs to know something of chemistry and geology in order to intelligently keep up the fertility of his fields and properly balance rations for his live stock.

If your son is to be a banker, a merchant, a lawyer, a doctor, a teacher, in fact if he is going to live in a town that depends upon agriculture for its support he needs to know the fundamentals of agriculture.

The federal government has recognized the need for universal education in the science of agriculture and has sought in various ways to supply the need.

For example, in order to get a trained specialist to give full time instruction in agriculture in the Clayton High School, it would be necessary for the local school board to furnish some equipment and pay half his salary.

It is like having a small sized agricultural college in our midst. We old timers have made a habit of farming in many respects. We owe it to the next generation of farmers to give them a chance to succeed.

As at present mapped out, the course of study would cover such subjects as: A general study of plant life, soils, field crops, seed testing, grain judging and grading, uses and by-products of field crops, insect pests and diseases, weeds, rotation of crops, fruit growing, propagation, orchard insects and diseases and their control, storage and marketing, grading and packing, judging live stock, diseases and their treatment, meat packing industry, feeding, butchering, curing meats, ringing, marketing, breeding, food materials, computation of rations, commercial feeding stuffs, heredity and its importance, dairying, milk testing, best poultry, friends and pests of the farmer, etc.

If your boy takes a high school course which includes training under a specialist in the above subjects, don't you think he will make a better farmer than you have made? And don't you think that training will remove some of the drudgery of farm life? Understanding our work makes us interested and being interested takes away the drudgery.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS IN AND AROUND LA LUZ

The La Luz correspondent for the El Paso Herald had the following interesting dispatch in the Herald of March 14th:

Considerable improvement is going on at La Luz, which is one of the important orchard and farming districts of Otero county, located six miles northeast of Alamogordo.

Judge W. A. Hawkins of El Paso, general counsel for the Phelps-Dodge interests, has purchased 30 acres of irrigated land here and is improving it for a summer home. The property includes a right to a 36-inch steam of water for about 25 hours every week, and contains two good orchards.

Workmen are completing the new residence on the Hawkins property. It is modern and consists of 15 rooms. The structure is of adobe and concrete, with thick walls and is built on the Spanish mission plan.

Mr. Hawkins has also started the construction of a concrete reservoir for the purpose of storing the night irrigation water. A car load of cement arrived this week for the project. The reservoir is to be six feet deep, 125 feet square, with a capacity of 650,000 gallons.

Plan Improvements. J. M. Hawkins, also of El Paso, has purchased the Ralph Morgan property here for a summer home and extensive improvements are to be begun at once.

Harry H. McElroy, El Paso attorney in the E. P. & S. W. offices has let a contract for a new summer residence on his La Luz property. The building is to be modern, constructed of adobe and concrete.

Dr. J. R. Gilbert, of Alamogordo, and T. A. Murehead are making extensive improvements on their La Luz places, and have prepared 15 acres of new land, which is to be planted to Jonathan apples this spring.

Big Fruit Crop. The prolonged cold weather has held the fruit back until orchardists feel that there will be little danger from the late frosts.

J. A. and Charles Thomas, of Alamogordo, who have extensive ranch interests adjoining La Luz, including 55 acres of alfalfa, will start the erection of a large hay barn within a few weeks.

Another improvement here is the straightening of the Tularosa-Alamogordo highway in the vicinity of La Luz. There has been a dangerous turn in the road at its entrance to La Luz.

National Forest Grazing Fees Payable on Installment Plan.

As a measure of relief to livestock owners who have suffered from the widespread depression in the cattle and sheep industry, the Secretary of Agriculture, on the recommendation of the Forest Service, has waived the requirement that grazing fees on stock using National Forest ranges be paid 30 days in advance of the beginning of the grazing period.

Under the new regulation stockmen this year will be permitted to pay the amount of fee due in two installments, first payment to be made on or before the date the stock enters the National Forest, and final payment on or before December 1, 1922, without interest on the deferred amount.

Grazing permits will be issued at the time of first payment, but each permit will contain a stipulation that failure to make final settlement by December 1 will be cause for the revocation of grazing preference, together with the institution of legal action for the collection of the value of the forage consumed.

In 1921 over 39,000 live-stock owners grazed 2,129,500 cattle and horses, and 7,455,500 sheep and goats largely in the National Forests of the Western States.

Teachers in agriculture, residing at Sedan and spending one day per week at each of the nearby consolidated schools, Haydon, Amistad, Mansker and Sedan. Mr. R. W. Ford, state supervisor of agricultural education, was very successful in working out such an itinerary in Dona Ana county.

With a live county agent, a live club leader, a live home demonstration agent, with vocational teachers in our high schools and consolidated schools with a live county Farm Bureau, Union County agriculture will soon get out of the ruts and make rapid strides toward the promised land of up-to-date, prosperous and attractive farm life.

WHITE OAKS SCHOOL NOTES

The Parent-Teachers' Association met in regular session last Friday, March 10. The chairman being absent the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Edna C. Burnett. Several school matters were discussed and plans made for a general meeting of the association April 14th.

On Saturday 11th the Ancho school baseball team came over to White Oaks to play our boys. They were good sports and went back home delighted although the score stood 5 to 8 in favor of White Oaks.

The young people were delightfully entertained at Mrs. Will Kelt's last Saturday evening. Games were played and refreshments served. The guests remained until the wee morning hours. All report a splendid time.

The Walker Brothers have resigned all of their interest in White Oaks and moved to their sheep ranch about fifteen miles northeast of Sicarilla. Their mother and the rest of the family will follow as soon as school closes.

The Misses Straley, Clyde Collier, Frank Haskins, Bunk Boydstrup and the Burnett brothers spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mrs. Burnett and Mrs. Virden, the teachers of White Oaks, and Mrs. Virden's son who resides with her.

John Owens, who attends High School in Carrizozo has been sick for the most part of two weeks. His friends are always glad to have him home, and we are glad to report that he is convalescing.

Mrs. Edith Van Schoyck, our newly appointed postmistress has been duly installed and is cheerfully performing her duty.

John Littell came up from El Paso last Saturday and remained over Sunday with his parents.

Miller Price is gathering cattle from the mountains and taking them to a better range.

Mrs. A. N. Price is looking for a couple of young ladies from El Paso to spend the week-end in her home.

Mrs. Owen, Nicko and Miss Davis spent Sunday with Mrs. Crenshaw.

Grandma Starkey has gone to Oklahoma to visit her children.

Mr. Phil Blanchard spent last Sunday night with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cleghorn. He was on his way to Carrizozo with cattle he intended to ship.

Mr. Phil Reasoner is leaving White Oaks next Thursday for Arizona.

Haying paid all due honors to the February heroes with appropriate programs the White Oaks Public School will not entertain the public again until the close of school, May the 19th.—A Reader.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

Scandinavian music and literature is the subject of the program to be given by the Music Department of the Woman's Club at the residence of Mrs. A. Ziegler, Tuesday evening, March 21, at 8 o'clock sharp. All members of the Woman's Club, and their families, are welcome.

The program is as follows: Sketch of Norwegian and Swedish music. Miss Loreya Sager.

"Shepherd Girl's Sunday." Violin and Piano. Messrs. Fitts and Ferguson.

"Life in Sweden." Mrs. J. Farley.

"Last Night." Vocal Solo. Kyoruli Dr. E. E. Cole.

"Scandinavian Customs." Mrs. Ellen Crutcher.

"Norwegian Bridal Procession." Piano Solo. Mrs. B. S. Burns.

"Life of Orlog." Miss Jewel Miller.

"Works of Orlog." Miss Audrey Miller.

Reading from "Peer Gynt." Miss Pauline Rosenberg.

Selections from "Peer Gynt Suite." Piano Solo. Miss Belle Lutz.

"Morning." Miss Belle Lutz.

"Amira's Dance." Mrs. D. S. Donaldson.

"Solveig's Song." Mrs. D. A. Saunders.

"I Love Thee." Vocal Solo. Grieg Mrs. E. D. Boone.

"To Spring." Piano Solo. Grieg Mrs. T. E. Kelley.

SCHOOL NOTES

(By Supr. E. E. Cole)

The state examination for the eighth grade occurred Thursday and Friday of this week. We believe the students have done well as they seemed very confident of success. The grade is an unusually fine one and we hope the students will continue in school till they complete the high school.

Mrs. Nellie Clarke and Mrs. West made a week-end trip to Carthage and adjacent points last Saturday and Sunday and report a most delightful time. Mrs. Clark's half brother lives at Carthage.

The Camp Fire Girls and guardians enjoyed a trip to Indian Rocks last Saturday. They wish to thank Mr. Wetmore and Mr. Finley for taking them out to the Rocks in their cars. All of the "hikers" were very tired when they reached home as they walked the entire distance back to town.

The basketball girls had their pictures taken during the last week. The positives are fine and show the best looking bunch of basketeers in this part of the state.

Some time ago Supt. Cole received a note signed by several of the alumni of the Carrizozo high school asking that the high school change from the present colors, purple and gold, back to the colors of several years ago, red and gold. The note was read to the high school and a week given in which to consider the matter.

We are very sorry we could not entirely please the splendid young men and women who are the graduates of the Carrizozo high school. We should have been glad to gratify their wish, but a school has both the legal and moral right to change its colors just as a nation has the right to change its constitution, when it wishes.

When Mr. Cazier and Mr. Cole, came to the Carrizozo high school three years ago, purple and gold seemed to be the colors of the school, so far as they could find out. The students all claimed purple and gold. A drawer of the high school desk was full of purple and gold crepe paper and other decorations in the same color.

Another drawer contained a pennant in purple and gold. The basket ball and baseball teams are uniformed in purple and gold at the present time. All these considerations, and others, influenced the school to vote unanimously to retain the present colors.

EDUCATIONAL NEWS

(By Mrs. M. L. Blaney)

Teachers—Capitan—March 24th and 25th, 1922.

Teachers attending the Lincoln County Teachers' Association will, on arriving in Capitan, call at Howard Hall for assignment of rooms.

Superintendent Klapp was in town last Saturday looking after school affairs.

The Athletic Association of the Lincoln County Association has made $1,163.00 since January 1st, 1922. This organization is self-supporting and is fostering several minor projects.

The Lincoln County Board of Education convened at a call of the President Thursday, March 16th, for the purpose of considering some very important matters concerning the school at San Patricio.

Mrs. S. H. Nickels was down from the Nogal school last Saturday and brought with her several pieces of hand work done by the pupils as "Home Project" work, which was very creditable to the pupils.

Since bonds are receiving better markets than for some time past, the County Board of Education will not doubt be able to dispose of the $4,000.00 bonds voted for the San Patricio School District in 1920 for the purpose of erecting a suitable building for that district. The law does not permit the acceptance of less than 90 cents on the dollar and if it did we would not feel that we could accept a smaller offer as the entire amount is needed for the building.

Letters recently received from the out of town speakers of the Lincoln County Teachers' Association assured us of their presence, and we know from past experience that their messages will be invaluable to teachers and patrons. Come.

FALL, WALLACE AT 'OUTS' OVER POLICY CHANGES IT IS SAID

Secretary of the Interior Resents "Propaganda Emanating From the Department of Agriculture."

Regardless of whether or not Secretary of the Interior Fall intends to resign, as has been rumored, it appears that there is friction in President Harding's cabinet. The Chicago Tribune last Monday printed a dispatch from its Washington correspondent to the effect that there is a controversy between Secretaries Fall and Wallace and the former has protested to President Harding. The article follows:

The controversy between Secretary of the Interior Fall and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace reached an acute stage today when Mr. Fall disclosed that he had protested to President Harding against the circulation of "vicious propaganda emanating from the department of agriculture."

The row has grown out of Secretary Fall's advocacy of legislation which would transfer the forest service from the agricultural department to the interior department and place the disposition of natural resources in Alaska under the interior department.

Secretary Wallace and Forester Greely have vigorously opposed the reorganization sponsored by Mr. Fall, who also has been attacked by Gifford Pinchot and other conservationists on the ground that the proposed legislation would open the way to selfish exploitation of the forest and other resources.

Reports have been current for some time that Mr. Fall is becoming dissatisfied with his position in the administration and contemplated resigning shortly. That such is his intention he denied tonight. Secretary Wallace declined to comment on the row, remarking:

"When the time comes I will make a statement and there is much to be said."

It was a letter to a congressman that Mr. Fall referred to a press clipping sheet issued by the American Forestry association and said:

"I was absent when this sheet appeared. The chiefs of several of the bureaus of this department whose efforts to administer the public lands are so frequently hampered by activities of the forest bureau and of Gifford Pinchot, were outraged at this vicious and unwarranted attack."

"I was urged to take the matter up directly with the president, and to call his attention to the impropriety (to say the least) of such practice. I replied by wire to the administrative secretaries of the department that it would be all right to call the attention of the president to the matter."

Declaring he is aware that his ideas "do not meet with the approval of certain narrow-minded and biased bureaucratic government officials and their followers," Secretary Fall asserts he is being held up to "execration, public abuse and private calumny."

It has not been announced what action President Harding has taken in the controversy.

ALASKA FOR EX-SOLDIERS

Open up Alaska, with its wealth hidden in mountain ranges, to the ex-soldiers of the world war, as Lincoln opened up the Golden West to the disbanded hundreds of thousands of soldiers of the Great Civil war—fathers of the present day veterans.

This is the plan of Secretary of the Interior A. B. Fall, advanced in a 16-page circular explaining the attitude on development of Alaska, sent to the U. S. Land Offices throughout the country.

Mr. Fall discusses at length his charge that he has been subjected to "vicious propaganda," and he gives details of what might be termed the friction between the Interior and the Agricultural departments over some of his recent suggestions concerning the administration of affairs in Alaska. He quotes from a pamphlet by William A. Babbitt, "Forest Conservation by Scientific Utilization of Forest Products."

Mr. Fall declares that he brought down on his head the wrath of one Gifford Pinchot because he approved the passage of either the bill authorizing the road to be allocated and coordinated the duties of the different bureaus now having jurisdiction over activities and property of the national government in Alaska, or the bill vesting the authority in the Interior Department.

Defends Alaskan Policy. Mr. Fall defends his Alaskan policy and says:

"I have been impressed with the conviction that what Alaska needs for its development is the brain and strength of the virile young American manhood, no conspicuously represented by the veterans of the World War."

Mr. Fall says that Mr. Pinchot accuses him of attaching the Forestry Bureau years ago in the Senate, and he admits that he did make a speech attacking the Forestry Bureau administration in 1912. He says his speech opposed the administration by the Forestry bureau and not the conservation of forests.

Fires a Broadside at 'Em. Mr. Fall continues:

"I understand perfectly well that my ideas as to the development of our natural resources and making them accessible to our returned soldiers and other citizens, do not meet the approval of certain narrow-minded and biased bureaucratic government officials and their sponsors. Nevertheless I am proud to be rather a follower of Lincoln, and here he quotes Mr. Lincoln's speech on the gold and silver in the west.

Appeals to Ex-Servicemen. Concluding Mr. Fall says: "Firmly believing as I do that the American spirit still animates our young American citizens, I am convinced that a similar appeal to our returned soldiers now would meet with a prompt response as this appeal uttered with Lincoln's last breath was met by their fathers in 1865."

"I am equally well convinced Pinchot and Pinchotism, Greely and Greelyism, to the contrary notwithstanding, that results fully as great would be attained in their future magnificence and in their present value to the overburdened taxpayers of the United States as were the results brought about by Mr. Lincoln's farightedness."

MASS MEETING AT LUTZ HALL NOMINATES CITY TICKET

A bumper crowd gathered at Lutz Hall last night for the purpose of discussing the water proposition and also to place in nomination, a full city ticket for the spring election. Mayor Rolland called the meeting to order after which the Mayor was chosen as chairman of the same. Attorney A. H. Hudspeath responded to a call from the chair and gave a brief but rolling account of how we were to obtain city water from a legal point of view.

Senator E. M. Brinkley followed by relating how the bill engineered first by Representative Henry Lutz in the lower house had passed and was handed to him, the same being pushed to its completion in the Senate. Both gentlemen urged the people to vote favorably on the bond issue which though small to what we should have, would be enough to furnish water for Carrizozo homes for the present time at least.

Nominations being in order for Mayor, Messrs. T. E. Kelley and Julian Taylor were placed in nomination. Mr. Taylor received 53 votes and Mr. Kelley, 50 votes. Mr. Taylor was declared the nominee of the meeting for Mayor. In the contest for Town Trustees, those receiving the highest number of votes cast, being a majority of all cast were G. T. McQuillen, F. E. Richard, Fred Lalone and Chas. Lutz. W. W. Stadman was unanimously chosen for Town Clerk to succeed himself.

CALE HIDES IN AIRPLANE

Fr. Worth, Texas, March 10.—The arrival of Harry Hart of Okamuniger, Okla., with his Hereford calf, by airplane, was awaited here today in connection with the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show.

As far as known, this is the first time an animal has been brought to a livestock exposition by airplane.

Working on Radio Problems.
Washington.—The radio conference through three committees in secret session, to formulate plans for controlling the use of radio telephones, is making some progress. It was said at the Department of Commerce, in working out control in three or four directions, involving allocation of wave lengths, a priority plan for the dissemination of materials and a time schedule for operation.

America in the Lead.
New York.—American people exceed all others in the use of modern appliances. It is demonstrated in the annual report of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. "Forty-five years after the invention of the telephone," says President H. B. Thayer, "Europe has only one telephone to each 100 of the population, while the United States with only one sixteenth of the population of the world has two-thirds of the world's telephones."

SEARCHING FOR BALL PLAYERS.
Magnates Determined to Give City Winning Team.

Denver.—Now comes the job of procuring worthy players for the new Denver Western League baseball club—players who are capable of carrying the team standing well up toward pennantville. Stellar diamond performers are the one big need at present, for although the Joplin reserve list numbers more than thirty players, very few of these are classed as being Western League caliber.

The owners of the new team declared they are going to get a real team—a winning team—together, no matter what it costs.

Infielder Shantley will remain with the Denver team. It has been announced, although the Tulsa, Okla., club has offered $1,000 for him. Shantley is a real player, according to the reports of his work last year.

Opens Fire on Treaty.
Washington.—Fire on the four-power Pacific treaty was opened in the Senate from both Republican and Democratic quarters when it was called up for debate after ratification of the treaty. The debate, however, was declared to be only a skirmish with the real fighting scheduled for next week. Resolutions against the four-power treaty were introduced by Senator Stewart of Nebraska, and Senator Beach of Idaho and Francis of Maryland.

Ramsey Milholland

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

HIS FIRST LOVE.

Synopsis.—With his grandfather, small Ramsey Milholland is watching the "Decorative Day Parade" in the home town. The old gentleman, a veteran of the Civil war, endeavors to impress the youngster with the significance of the great conflict, and many years afterward the boy was to remember his words with startling vividness. In the schoolroom a few years afterward, Ramsey is not distinguished for remarkable ability, though his pronounced dislike for arithmetic, "Recitation" and German. In sharp contrast to Ramsey's backwardness in the precocity of little Dora Yocum, a young lady whom in his bitterness he denigrates "Teacher's Pet." In high school, where he and Dora are classmates, Ramsey continues to feel that the girl delights to manifest her superiority, and the vindictiveness he generates becomes alarming, culminating in the resolution that some day he will "fellow" her. At a class picnic Ramsey, to his embarrassment, appears to attract the favorable attention of Miss Milholland, a young lady about his own age and the acknowledged belle of the class.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

"I don't see it," he murmured huskily, afraid that she might remove her hand. "I can't see any fish, Milia."

She leaned farther out over the bank. "Why, there, gee!" she whispered. "Right there."

"I can't see it."

She leaned still further, bending down to point. "Why, right there—"

At this moment she removed her hand from his shoulder, though unwillingly. She clutched at him, in fact, but without avail. She had been too amiable.

A loud shriek was uttered by throats abler to vocalize, just then, than Milia's, for in her great surprise she said nothing whatever—the shriek came from the other girls as Milia left the crest of the overhanging bank and almost horizontally disappeared into the brown water. There was a tumultuous splash, and then of Milia Rust and her well-known beauty there was nothing visible in the superficial world, nor upon the surface of that creek. The vanishment was total.

"Save her!"

Several girls afterward admitted having used this expression, and little Mila Floy Williams, the youngest and smallest member of the class, was unable to deny that she had said, "Oh, God!" Nothing could have been more natural, and the matter need not have been brought before her with such insistence and frequency, during the two remaining years of her undergraduate career.

Ramsey was one of those who heard this exclamation, later so famous, and perhaps it was what roused him to heroism. He dived from the bank, headlong, and the strange thought in his mind was "I guess this'll show Dora Yocum!" He should have been thinking of Milia, of course, at such a time, particularly after the little enchantment just laid upon him by Milia's touch and Milia's curls; and he knew well enough that Mila Yocum was not among the spectators. She was half a mile away, as it happened, gathering "botanical specimens" with one of the teachers—which was her idea of what to do at a picnic!

Ramsey struck the water hard, and in the same instant struck something else harder. Wesley Bender's bundle of books had given him no such shock as he received now, and if the creek bottom had not been of mud, just there, the top of his young head might have declined the strain. Half stunned, choking, spluttering, he somehow floundered to his feet; and when he could get his eyes a little cleared of water he found himself wavering face to face with a blurred vision of Milia Rust. She had risen up out of the pool and stood knee deep, like a lovely drenched figure in a fountain.

Upon the bank above them, Willis Parker was jumping up and down, gesticulating and shouting fiercely. "Now I guess you're satisfied our fishin' is spollin'! Why'n't you listen me? I told you it wasn't more'n three foot deep! I and Helnie waded all over this creek gettin' our bait. You're a pretty sight!"

Of Milia he spoke unwittingly the literal truth. Even with her hair thus wild and sodden, Milia rose from immersion blushing and prettier than ever; and she was prettier of all when she stretched out her hand helplessly to Ramsey and he led her up out of the water. They had plenty of assistance to scramble to the top of the bank, and there Milia was succored and borne away with a great clattering and tugging. Ramsey sat upon the grass in the sun, robbed his head, and experimented with his necktie as if it would "work." The sun-shine was strong and hot; in half an hour he and his clothes were dry—or at least "dry enough," as he said, and except for some soreness of head and neck, and the general completeness of his apparel, he seemed to be in all ways much as usual, when shouts and whistles summoned all the party to hasten to the rendezvous. The change that made him different was invisible.

Yet something must have been seen, for someone appeared to take it for granted that he was to sit next to Milia at the pastoral meal. She herself understood it, evidently, for she drew in her puckered skirts and without any words made a place for him beside her as he driftingly approached her, affecting to whistle and keeping his eyes on the foliage overhead. He still looked upward, even in the act of sitting down.

"Squirrel or something," he said feebly, as if in explanation.

"Where?" Milia asked.

"Up there on a branch." He accepted a plate from her (she had provided herself with an extra one), but he did not look at it or at her. He continued to keep his eyes aloft, because he imagined that all of the class were looking at him and Milia, and he felt unable to meet such publicity. It was to him as if the whole United States had been scandalized to attention by this act of his in going to sit beside Milia; he gazed upward so long that his eye-balls became sensitive under the strain. He began to blink. "I can't make out whether it's a squirrel or just some leaves that kind of got fixed like one," he said, "I can't make out yet which it is, but I guess when there's a breeze, if it's a squirrel he'll pop his head around some then, if he's alive or anything."

It had begun to seem that his eyes must remain fixed in that upward stare forever; he wanted to bring them down, but could not face the glare of the world. But finally the brightness of the sky between the leaves settled matters for him; he sneezed, wept, and at five o'clock everybody was summoned, again to the rendezvous for a ceremony preliminary to departure; the class found itself in a large circle, standing, and sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Ordinarily, on such an open air and out-of-school occasion, Ramsey would have joined the chorus uproariously with the utmost bluntness of which his vocal apparatus was capable; and most of the other boys expressed their humor by drowning out the serious efforts of the girls; but he sang feebly, not much more than humming through his teeth. Standing beside Milia, he was incapable of his former inelegance and his voice was in a semi-paralyzed condition, like the rest of him.

Opposite him, across the circle, Dora Yocum stood a little in advance of those near her, for of course she led the singing. Her clear and earnest voice was distinguishable from all others, and though she did not glance toward Ramsey he had a queer feeling that she was assuming more superiority than over, and that she was icily scornful of him and Milia. The old resentment rose—he'd "show" that girl yet, some day!

When the song was over, cheers were given for the class, "the good old class of Nineteen Fourteen," the school, the teachers, and for the picnic, thus officially concluded; and then the picnicers, carrying their baskets and faded wild flowers and other souvenirs and burdens, moved toward the big "express wagons" which were to take them back into the town. Ramsey got his guitar case, and turned to Milia.

"Well—g-by."

"Why, no," said Milia. "Anyhow, got yet. You can go back in the same wagon with me. It's going to stop at the school and let us all out there, and then you could walk home with me if you felt like it."

"Well—well, I'd be perfectly willing," Ramsey said. "Only I heard we all had to go back in whatever wagon we came out in, and I didn't come in the same one with you, so—"

Milia laughed and leaned toward him a little. "I already 'tended to that," she said confidentially. "I asked Johnnie Flake, that came out in my wagon, to go back in yours, so that makes room for you."

"Well—then I guess I could do it." He moved toward the wagon with her. "I expect it don't make much difference one way or the other."

"And you can carry my basket if you want to," she said, adding solicitously, "unless it's too heavy when you already got your guitar case to carry, Ramsey."

This thoughtfulness of her almost overcame him; she seemed divine.

"I'll be glad to carry the basket, too," he faltered. "It—it don't weigh anything much."

"Well, let's hurry, so's we can get places together."

Then, as she maneuvered him through the little crowd about the wagon, with a soft push this way and a gentle pull that, and hurried him up the improvised steps and found a place where there was room for them both to sit, Ramsey had another breathless sensation heretofore unknown to him. He found himself taken under a dove-like protectiveness; a wonderful, inexplicable feeling seemed to have become his proprietor.

"Isn't this just perfectly lovely?" she said softly, close to his ear.

He swallowed, but found no words, for he had no thoughts; he was only an incoherent tenant. This was his first love.

"Isn't it, Ramsey?" she urged. The clear voice had just the hint of a reproach. "Don't you think it's just perfectly lovely, Ramsey?"

"Yes."

The agonizingly progressive, Ramsey and Milia, gently "keeping company."

He stated his first class of inexpressible bliss, had a chill or so along the spine, and at intervals his brow was bedewed.

Within his averted eyes there dwelt not the Milia Rust who sat beside him, but an iridescent, fragile creature who had become angelic.

He spent the rest of the day dawdling helplessly about her; wherever she went he was near, as near as possible, but of no deliberate volition of his own. Something seemed to tie him to her, and Milia was nothing to him for longer than an instant, and more rarely still did he speak to her except as a reply. What few remarks he ventured upon his own initiative nearly all concerned the landscape, which he commended repeatedly in a weak voice, as "kind of pretty," though once he said he guessed there might be bugs in the bark of a log on which they sat; and he became so immoderately personal as to declare that if the bugs had to get on anybody he'd rather they got on him than on Milia. She said that was "just perfectly lovely" of him, asked where he got his sweet nature, and in other ways encouraged him to continue the revelation, but Ramsey was unable to get forward with it, though he opened and closed his mouth a great many times in the effort to do so.

At five o'clock everybody was summoned, again to the rendezvous for a ceremony preliminary to departure; the class found itself in a large circle, standing, and sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Ordinarily, on such an open air and out-of-school occasion, Ramsey would have joined the chorus uproariously with the utmost bluntness of which his vocal apparatus was capable; and most of the other boys expressed their humor by drowning out the serious efforts of the girls; but he sang feebly, not much more than humming through his teeth. Standing beside Milia, he was incapable of his former inelegance and his voice was in a semi-paralyzed condition, like the rest of him.

Opposite him, across the circle, Dora Yocum stood a little in advance of those near her, for of course she led the singing. Her clear and earnest voice was distinguishable from all others, and though she did not glance toward Ramsey he had a queer feeling that she was assuming more superiority than over, and that she was icily scornful of him and Milia. The old resentment rose—he'd "show" that girl yet, some day!

When the song was over, cheers were given for the class, "the good old class of Nineteen Fourteen," the school, the teachers, and for the picnic, thus officially concluded; and then the picnicers, carrying their baskets and faded wild flowers and other souvenirs and burdens, moved toward the big "express wagons" which were to take them back into the town. Ramsey got his guitar case, and turned to Milia.

"Well—g-by."

"Why, no," said Milia. "Anyhow, got yet. You can go back in the same wagon with me. It's going to stop at the school and let us all out there, and then you could walk home with me if you felt like it."

"Well—well, I'd be perfectly willing," Ramsey said. "Only I heard we all had to go back in whatever wagon we came out in, and I didn't come in the same one with you, so—"

Milia laughed and leaned toward him a little. "I already 'tended to that," she said confidentially. "I asked Johnnie Flake, that came out in my wagon, to go back in yours, so that makes room for you."

"Well—then I guess I could do it." He moved toward the wagon with her. "I expect it don't make much difference one way or the other."

"And you can carry my basket if you want to," she said, adding solicitously, "unless it's too heavy when you already got your guitar case to carry, Ramsey."

This thoughtfulness of her almost overcame him; she seemed divine.

"I'll be glad to carry the basket, too," he faltered. "It—it don't weigh anything much."

"Well, let's hurry, so's we can get places together."

Then, as she maneuvered him through the little crowd about the wagon, with a soft push this way and a gentle pull that, and hurried him up the improvised steps and found a place where there was room for them both to sit, Ramsey had another breathless sensation heretofore unknown to him. He found himself taken under a dove-like protectiveness; a wonderful, inexplicable feeling seemed to have become his proprietor.

"Isn't this just perfectly lovely?" she said softly, close to his ear.

He swallowed, but found no words, for he had no thoughts; he was only an incoherent tenant. This was his first love.

"Isn't it, Ramsey?" she urged. The clear voice had just the hint of a reproach. "Don't you think it's just perfectly lovely, Ramsey?"

"Yes."

The agonizingly progressive, Ramsey and Milia, gently "keeping company."

He stated his first class of inexpressible bliss, had a chill or so along the spine, and at intervals his brow was bedewed.

Are You a Smoker In The Club?

We smoking a pipe-tobacco in a club or when a good pipe-tobacco is not available? We know that pipe-tobacco is to be found in the hands of the few who have the good taste to buy it. Here is one who has found his own.

CROWN MARGARIN COMPANY
Park & Virginia Aves.
St. Louis, U. S. A.
Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 4, 1924.

Larus & Bro. Co.,
Richmond, Va.
Gentlemen:

I have been a user of Edgeworth for ever these years and during that time I have never met its equal in flavor, smoothness and high quality. Occasionally it happens that I am unable to get Edgeworth in my travels, so I change to other brands, but I get in a town where it is to be had.

Last week I ran out of tobacco and was unable to replenish my supply. So I bought another brand of tobacco in its place.

I went into a cigar store upon my arrival here and when I got my hands on a can of Edgeworth, it made me think of Briggs' cartoon, "Ain't it a Grand an' Gorgeous Feeling!" It was like meeting an old friend.

Put me down as a permanent member of the Edgeworth Satisfied Smokers' Club.

Yours truly,
(Signed) J. A. Flores,
General Representative

CROWN MARGARIN COMPANY
Como Hotel, Hot Springs, Ark.

This man tried cigars; he tried out at least one other brand of pipe-tobacco. He was so glad to lay hold of Edgeworth again that he sat down and wrote us how good Edgeworth smoked.

That means something. We have never told you that Edgeworth wasn't an equal for flavor, smoothness and high quality. But we are more than willing to let one of our customers tell you that. Do you smoke a pipe-tobacco that no other can take the place of? If not, we would be glad to have you join this new Edgeworth Satisfied Smokers' Club.

It will cost you a postcard. The tobacco will come to you post-paid.

It may be the pipe-tobacco you have always hoped to come across. Merely set down your name and address on a postcard. If you will add the name of the dealer to whom you will go for more in case you like Edgeworth, we will make sure he has it in stock.

We will mail to you samples of Edgeworth in both forms—Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed.

Edgeworth Plug Slice is formed into flat cakes and then sliced into thin, moist wafers. One slice rubbed for a moment between the hands furnishes an average pipeful.

Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is rubbed up for you. You pour it straight from the little blue can into the bowl of your pipe.

Both kinds pack nicely, light quickly, and burn freely and evenly.

For the pipe sample, which we invite you to judge, address Larus & Brother Company, 41 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants—If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

STATESMEN AT THE FLEM IN IRELAND

Out of the bitter struggle that preceded the ratification of the treaty with Great Britain creating the Irish Free State emerged a government headed by Arthur Griffith, one of the signers of the treaty in London, who, with Michael Collins, fought for it against the opposition of Eamonn de Valera. Other officers are: Michael Collins, minister of finance; G. G. Duffy, minister of foreign affairs; Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense; Bryan O'Higgins, minister of economic affairs.

SAINT PATRICK IN HISTORY AND LEGEND

St. Patrick was born in North Britain, in what is now Dumfries, during the second half of the fourth century. His parents were Christians and of noble family. His father, a Roman citizen, Calpornius by name, held the rank of decurion, and was an ordained clergyman; the mother Concessa, was the sister of St. Martin, bishop of Tours.

Although his parents were rich, St. Patrick was brought up very simply, living for the most part with his foster parents, on a farm. Early he began to work those miracles and wonders for which he is so famous.

In those days the Picts and Scots made frequent incursions upon the British coasts and on one of these invasions a band of marauders alighted from ships upon the shore near the farm where Patrick, now a lad of about sixteen, was playing in company with some of his younger brothers and sisters.

The pirates kidnaped St. Patrick, carrying him off to Ireland, where he was sold as a slave to Milcho, king of the Dalruidia, and given the task of tending the swine. It was during his years of serfdom that Patrick acquired his knowledge of the Irish tongue and his love for the country folk.

front and at the back of its head. When asked who and what it might be, the creature answered, "I am a servant of God, and with my eyes in front I see the apparent actions of men, but with the eyes at the back of my head I saw a certain monk concealing a piece of meat, that he might eat it in secret. . . . Then the apparition vanished.

Falling upon his knees, and smiting his breast Saint Patrick begged to be forgiven and promised never to eat meat for the rest of his life, which promise, it is said, he faithfully kept. His angel returned to him and telling him he was pardoned told him to take the offending piece of meat and cast it into the water. When he had done this, publicly confessing his guilt, the meat was suddenly changed into a quantity of fresh and shining fishes, which sufficed for all the brothers.

After the death of St. Martin, Patrick spent fourteen years in Auxone, and a few years more in the Isle of Lerins, where St. Vincent was among his companions.

But all through these years, the voices of the children of Folchut Wood kept on crying to St. Patrick: "All we Irish beseech thee, holy Patrick, to come and save us from the wrath to come. O holy youth, come once more and walk among us!"

Finally the angel appeared again to Patrick and said: "Go to Ireland, for thou shalt be the apostle of its people." Patrick at last set out for Rome to seek advice from its Bishop Celestin. It was while on his way to Rome, that Patrick received his wonderful staff.

Patrick and a band of foreign mission workers landed on the eastern coast of Ireland, where St. Patrick stooped and picked a leaf of shamrock to illustrate to his simple hearers the doctrine of the Trinity, the Three in One, and so the shamrock is to this day the symbol of St. Patrick.

After various tests and proofs, the king Lagaire with his entire court and thousands more besides, submitted himself to baptism and promised to accord his permission and protection to the spreading of the Christian faith throughout his realm, which made the beginning of the saint's great work.

Year after year he traveled, preaching and exhorting, founding monasteries and convents, erecting churches, baptizing thousands, and tens of thousands, ordaining priests, consecrating bishops, rebuilding some of the churches still remaining from the older Christianity preached there in earlier days. All the while he had to fight against enemies both bitter and powerful who opposed and tried to thwart him at every step.

It was toward the end of his days that Patrick built the glorious church of Armagh and here he would fain have lain him down to finish this earthly course. But it so happened that when he was at Saul, he realized that death was near and started to travel back to Armagh; but the angel met him on the road and said: "Go back—go back—not at Armagh is it God's will that thou shouldst die. Go back to Saul, for at Dichu's Barn where thou didst say thy first service on Irish soil shalt thou die."

As ever, Patrick bowed to God's will and there he breathed his last.

Where he was buried is not known for certain, though it is supposed he lies with Columbcille and Bridget at Downe.

ON GOOD ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Worthy Time for Irishmen to Reflect on Proud History of Their Race and Nation.

It is an exceedingly good thing that on this one day of the year, at least, people of Irish nativity and race should assemble around the festive board to hear something that shall take them away from the miserable, selfish thought of their business, of their own even laudable though at the same time petty domestic cares, and remind them of their ancestors, to tell them something of the place of their race and nation in the history of the world, and in the work that the universal Father surely has to do for each of the races that He has placed upon earth, as He has given work for each of the individual children that He sends into the world.—Dr. Edward McGlynn.

Length of skirts important. A superstition that is seasonal with the short skirts of the present day is told by Yeats in the Celtic Twilight. "A lady I once knew saw a village child running about with a long trailing petticoat upon her and asked the creature why she did not have it cut short. 'It was my grandmother's,' said the child; 'would you have her going about yonder with her petticoat up to her knees and she dead but four days!' I have read a story of a woman whose ghost haunted her people because they made her grave clothes too short so that the fires of purgatory burned her knees."

THE THRUSH at BALLYBOWER

I wonder in the evening,
In the dusky evening hour,
If a thrush is singing sweetly
In the glen at Ballybower;
If his notes are rapturous, golden
As on dusk-sweet eyes I know,
When the fairies crept to listen,
As I stood alone with you.

I'm hoping in the evening,
In the calm, sweet evening hour,
That there's a thrush in a thrush's song
In far-off Ballybower;
That a lingering note of longing
Falls upon your listening ear,
Stirring vague regrets and yearnings
For a voice you cannot hear.

And That's That. On Eighteenth street yesterday, two negroes driving motors. One driving truck thrusts out his arm for a turn. Other driver, coming from behind, sounds horn and attempts to pass. Both cars stop. Fenders touching, both drivers pile out to argue. "Didn't you see my arm?" asks the truck driver. "Didn't you hear my horn?" counters the other. "Sure I heard your horn." "Why didn't you stop, then?" "Cause, ain't my arm as good as your horn?" Drivers get back in and both machines proceed.—Kansas City Star.

FOUND THE GOING DIFFICULT

But at Least Profiteer Must Be Given Credit for the Possession of Persistence.

Police Chief Charles Fitzmorris of Chicago, whose fight against bootlegging Chicago policemen has made him famous the country over, said at a recent banquet:

"These bootlegging policemen want to get rich, dine at the Blackstone and climb into society like the profiteer.

"A profiteer, you know, moved to New York with his family and spent so much money and devoted such indefatigable energy to pushing his way into society that a society leader said of him—we'll call him Blane—"Sometimes, in the dead of night I am awakened by a curious and persistent sound, I listen intently in the darkness again with a sigh of relief, murmuring to myself:

"It is only Mr. Blane, climbing—climbing—climbing."

OBEEDIENCE AS AN INSTINCT, PROVISION MADE FOR PETS

Apparently Birds Possess and Exercise It Even Before They Have Left the Shell.

The obedience of young birds to the mother has been the subject of many stories. Two young thrushes had remained perfectly still, while Mr. Robinson, was passing near a nest when he saw come young ones leave it and disappear into the water in that wonderful way common to all amphibious creatures right up to the hippopotamus, almost without a ripple. He found in the nest one egg, which was being cracked from the inside—all birds are hatched with a little projection something like a glazer's diamond on their bills for this purpose—and the youngster was cheeping as it wriggled slowly round. As he watched, back came the mother. She saw him and gave one short, harsh cry. Immediately the little bird in the egg stopped cheeping and made no further sound or movement while he remained. Here was a case of instinctive obedience even before the bird was hatched.—London Times.

Seemingly It is Not Unusual to Make Bequests by Which Animals Benefit.

An elderly French spinster died, leaving a will bequeathing most of her property to charity and a substantial sum to "my silent, sympathetic and best-loved friend, Minnette." Minnette was her cat. A Frenchman was moved by this incident to investigate the subject and he found that cats, among all animals, have most frequently been made legatees.

In 1671 a noted player on the harp and lute, Jeanne Felix Dupuis, bequeathed her executor to give the keeper of two cats 50 sous a week for their food, which she specified should be meat broth, "of the kind we ourselves eat, rich and sufficient without being eked out by bread crumbs, and served upon individual plates, belonging one to each cat." Her relatives broke the will, and this provision of separate plates for the pussies was a point up on which they strongly dwelt in the attempt to prove that her mind was enfeebled.

"It's never touched me yet," he explained when they pointed out the risks.

That's the answer a good many people make when they hear that the drug element in tea and coffee often harms nerves and health. They say it's never touched them yet.

Sometimes they only think it hasn't.

Wakeful nights, drowsy days, headaches that keep coming more frequently—often are blamed on bad luck when the blame belongs on bad judgment in taking needless chances with harm.

Over on the safe side is Postum, a pure cereal beverage, delicious and satisfying—containing nothing that can harm nerves or digestion. Thousands who used to try their luck with tea or coffee are enthusiastic over having found safety and satisfaction in Postum.

It's worth your while to make the test with Postum for ten days. Postum is a delightful drink for any member of the family, at any meal.

Your grocer has both forms of Postum: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Fastened into a barber shop... other day and asked if I could shave in five minutes. 'Yep,' the reply. The barber quickly applied the soap. He began lathering and lathering and kept lathering until I felt sure I had massaged my train. Still he went on applying the lather. I turned to myself, 'Why doesn't he quit this process and get busy with his razor?' That would have been my way of shaving if I had been in a hurry. When he did finally take up his razor the job was over in a jiffy. And I caught the incident, for some reason or other, he got this thought in his mind: Lathering is to shave very much like the same as advertising is to selling. You do enough preliminary work and do it properly, so that the ground work has been thoroughly prepared, then the resistance has been very greatly reduced, and it is possible either to sell with less trouble or to sell to business men as no foothold would have been in trying to have myself in a hurry. 'Don't use enough advertising before starting to try to get to. They don't apply high advertising lather. Is it so? X

Beautiful Life

Mrs. W. W. Stadtman) the passing of Mrs. B. Hamill... her friends and the entire community experienced a loss, but we have the privilege of knowing that she lives in our memory. She came into our homes as a ray of sunshine; she brought to us a spirit of carefulness, willingness to serve and capable hands for its performance. She was a true service and brought to it all dignity and the duty of any duty which is willingly and perfectly performed. The secret of her success was faith in our Heavenly Father and His loving care. Her devotion to serve, her devotion to her and her loyalty should give us all a larger vision of our real life. We do not think of her as one whose life has ceased, but as one whose limitations and restrictions have been removed. Her career here reminds us of a sailor at sea, beset by appointments and misunderstandings, but now calling peacefully on an untroubled sea.

There is no sharing of real leadership. Since it was brought out more than six years ago, the Hudson Super-Six has led fine car sales without interruption.

That expresses how surely and consistently it has always given greatest value for the price asked.

Today Hudson offers the finest Super-Six ever built. That is a broad declaration, for past Super-Sixes have in every way deserved the wonderful position they won.

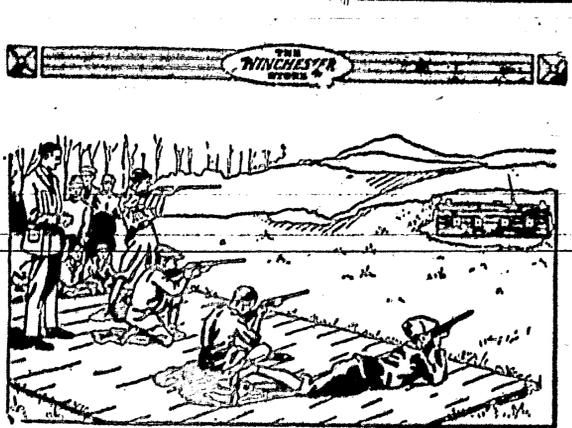

But we know the character of performance and quality in the present Super-Six will readily gain your assent to its supremacy.

Perhaps you will agree, too, that at $1695 it is the greatest automobile value ever offered.

Hal's Catarrh Medicine
 Those who are in a "red cloud" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly increased by constitutional conditions.
HAL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a pure and safe remedy for the blood and

Revival at the Baptist Church

The Baptist Revival is in progress with good spiritual messages by Rev. O. C. Wilcoxson.
 Services each day at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Wilcoxson delights to preach to young people and is the pastor of a good church made up largely of young people.

The subject Sunday morning will be "Christianity and the Modern Home." The evening message will be on "Wisdom vs.
 Folly." Come to the services and get the benefit of the meeting. If you don't come there will be some preaching that will go to waste and you ought to get the benefit. We invite the cooperation of all Christian people.

Father Girma left Monday morning to visit the different towns on his route where he will hereafter preach. He will visit
 Capitan, Lincoln, Hondo, Picacho, Arabela and White Oaks before returning to Carrizozo for the coming Sunday services.

THE WORLD IN PARAGRAPHS

A BRIEF RECORD OF PASSING EVENTS IN THIS AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

IN LATE DISPATCHES

DOINGS AND HAPPENINGS THAT MARK THE PROGRESS OF THE AGE.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

WESTERN

Col. John Lambert, one of the pioneer organizers of the steel industry in the United States, millionaire and prominent in Republican politics, died at his winter home in Pasadena, Calif., following ten days of illness, which developed into pneumonia.

An automobile hit J. W. ("Hard Luck") Mitchell, Los Angeles, and knocked him unconscious. Pedestrians let him lie in the street while they phoned for an ambulance. Meanwhile another automobile ran over him. He's recovering, anyhow.

Diplomatic negotiations were opened recently to have Alvin Thayer, associate English professor at the University of California, return to the freshmen class at Berkeley, whence he abruptly walked out because certain girl students would not stop powdering their noses.

Arrangements have been made for a review of each moving picture that is prepared. The report of this review will go to Mr. Hays at Los Angeles and his decision will be final. If he orders the picture changed it will be changed. If he orders it "scrapped" it will be discarded without argument.

Overstudy and an excessive interest in radio construction and operation were advanced at San Francisco by Frederick J. Pack of Salt Lake City as possible reasons for an attack of amnesia suffered by his son, Eugene G. Pack, a missionary of the Mormon church, assigned to Eugene, Oregon.

Josephine Besky, who was shot and struck by an ax in the hands of her former husband, Steve Kislay, died recently in a local hospital at Butte, Mont. Kislay is believed to be dying from the effects of cutting his own throat and stabbing himself. Victor Leasky, who was cut with a razor by Kislay, has a chance for recovery.

The most important series of freight rate reductions since last October will be put into effect as soon as concurrence is obtained from lines east of Chicago and the transcontinental carriers. It was announced by the Southern Pacific Company at San Francisco recently. The rate cuts will range as high as 50 per cent and apply on both east and west freight traffic, and on both import and export commodities as well as domestic.

WASHINGTON

John H. Bartlett of New Hampshire has been nominated by President Harding to be first assistant postmaster general. Mr. Bartlett, who at present is chairman of the Civil Service Commission, will succeed Dr. Herbert Work, who succeeded Will Hays as postmaster general.

The $500,000 free seed item, carried for years in the agricultural bill, has been lopped off by the appropriations committee. Members of the committee said it would be extremely doubtful if senators and representatives would be able in future to contribute their bit to the gardens and flower beds of their constituents as they have in the past.

Untold petroleum riches await development in South America, if the predictions of United States geologist David White, one of the world's best known oil experts are realized.

Increased moisture has improved the condition of winter wheat in Kansas while a lack of it has resulted in a poor condition of crop in parts of Nebraska, Colorado and New Mexico, the Department of Agriculture reported in its crop review for the last half of February.

Not only does President Harding plan to hold himself entirely aloof from any of the Republican primary fights that are threatening party harmony in several directions, but he also plans to take very little part personally in the coming fall election campaign, according to word circulating among Republican leaders.

President Harding at the end of his first year in the White House, told members of the National Press Club he felt he had been on the job for twenty years. The President threw off the mantle of dignity and said: "If anything is wrong with the White House job, it is the inability of the President to be a human being."

An appropriation of $34,073,063 to meet expenses of the Agriculture Department during the coming year is recommended in a bill reported by the House appropriations committee. The total is $3,710,000 less than the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year and $1,844,630 less than budget estimates.

FOREIGN

Mr. Donald MacKintosh, member of the House of Commons from Stirling, died in London recently.

An official decree issued recently in Paris confers the Medal of Honor of the Municipal Police on fifteen members of the New York City police force.

Max E. Green, chairman of the Irish prison board, was shot and killed in Dublin, a message announces. He was a son-in-law of the late John Redmond, Irish Nationalist leader.

A feminine invasion of both houses of parliament was forecast in London following the action of the committee on privileges in the House of Lords in admitting Lady Rhonda to a seat.

Viscount Grey of Fallodon, former secretary of state for foreign affairs, underwent an operation recently in London, for ulcer. Although the operation was declared successful, the patient is considered to be in quite a serious condition.

The Daily Herald, London, has defended the veracity of its recent report that George Harvey will be recalled as American ambassador to the court of St. James. "Wait and see what happens," the newspaper advised its critics.

Statements that France will not pay her financial debt to the United States were repudiated in official quarters in Paris. It is understood, however, that France will not take any steps toward payment until the American government sends a note upon the subject.

U. S. DECLINES CONFERENCE

REFUSAL OF AMERICA TO PARTICIPATE IN MEETING TRANSMITTED TO RICC.

EUROPE IS ASSAILED

WARNING ISSUED AS TO DANGER LYING IN RUSSIA'S NON-PRODUCTIVITY.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

Washington.—The American government declined the invitation to participate in the international economic and financial conference to be held at Geneva next month, on the ground that the conference is not primarily an economic one, but is rather a conference of a political character, in which the government of the United States could not helpfully participate. The refusal to enter the conference was contained in a note from Secretary Hughes to Ambassador Ricci of Italy, who had presented the invitation on behalf of his government, which in turn was acting for the allied ambassadors. Ambassador Ricci immediately communicated the text of the note to his government.

The note stated that while the American people were desirous of suitably assisting in the recovery of the economic life of Europe, the United States government could not be unkind to the "clear conviction" of the people "that they should not unnecessarily become involved in European political questions."

The conviction also was expressed that all considerations of economic revival would be futile without the establishment in Russia of the essential bases of production outlined in the public declaration of the American government on March 23, 1921, and urged that "adequate action" to that end be taken on the part of "those chiefly responsible for Russia's present economic disorders."

In that connection, it also was pointed out in the note, that the American government believes nothing should be done looking to the obtaining of economic advantages in Russia which "would impair the just opportunities of others," and warning was issued that "fair and equal economic opportunity" in Russia was expected by the United States in the interest of Russia itself as well as that of all the powers.

In conclusion the note expressed hope that progress would be made in preparing the way for "the eventual discussion and settlement of the fundamental economic and financial questions which press for solution."

Irish Free State Bill Passes.

London.—The Irish free state bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons by a vote of 235 to 62. The report stage was completed without any amendment, the only interesting point being the size of the Irish army. Winston Churchill, secretary for the colonies, explained that the treaty allowed of considerable latitude in this matter, but the army would probably be between 20,000 and 30,000 men.

Voters Bill to Reduce Salary.

Jackson, Miss.—Governor Russell sent a message to the Senate vetoing the bill reducing the salary of the governor from $7,500 to $5,000 a year. The governor said the chief executive could not maintain himself on a salary less than $7,000. Under the constitution the bill could not be made applicable to the salary of the present governor.

Railroads Defend Rates.

Washington.—Railroads have begun their final defense of existing levels of freight and passenger rates before the Interstate Commerce Commission when attorneys gave oral arguments which will conclude the hearings that have continued for several months. Henry Wolf Biele of the Pennsylvania system, Fred H. Wood of the Southern Pacific and Frank Gwathmey for the Southern railroad, insisted that neither on legal or economic grounds had the mass of testimony taken disclosed ground to make general reductions of rates.

President on Vacation.

Washington.—Accompanied by Mrs. Harding and a small party of friends in official life, President Harding left Washington several days ago to spend a week in Florida in rest and recreation. The President, it was said at the White House, plans to spend most of the time at St. Augustine. It was added that the President expects to spend the entire week resting and seeking recreation.

Bars in Hospital Littered.

Boston.—The passing of bar rooms and social clubs that had liquor licenses has been followed by the opening of private hospitals which serve the same purpose, it was asserted at an executive hearing recently. George F. Murphy, former representative, appearing in support of a bill for the inspection and supervision of all private hospitals, declared that many new private hospitals to take the place of the bar rooms and social clubs had already appeared.

Feel Stiff and Achy After Every Cold?

Do You Have Constant Backache? Feel Old and Lame and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old and lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache with a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just can't stand it any longer?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills are mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys must filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold leaves you with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

But don't worry! Simply realize that your kidneys are over-worked at such times and need assistance. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them, also, by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Kidney Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Grateful Folks:

Mrs. J. W. Ormsby, Hoyt Colo., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and I am glad to recommend them. For several months I utterly despair of ever getting rid of the constant aching and pain in the small of my back. If I took cold it settled in my kidneys and made the pains more severe. I had dizzy spells and felt utterly worn out. Doan's Kidney Pills did me much good. They stopped the attacks and corrected the action of my kidneys. I have felt like a different woman since I used them."

Robert Jones, 442 E. Meyers Ave., Cripple Creek, Colo., says: "Heavy lifting and catching cold while working out in storms put my kidneys in bad condition. My back began to weaken and hurt me. I never felt well and every once in a while I was taken suddenly by sharp piercing pains and could not move for a minute. My eyes blurred and when I put my arms above my head I felt an ache between my shoulders. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me of this attack."

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but money trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive a sample size bottle by Express Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

TEMPERATURE OF MILK IMPORTANT

Results of Experiments Obtained by Dairy Experts Explain Why Product Sour.

SURFACE COOLER IS FAVORED

Coldest Water Obtainable Should Be Used and Cans Set in Well Insulated Tank—Protection Needed in Shipping.
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Milk of ordinary quality held at 75 degrees Fahrenheit, a temperature not uncommon in the summer, soured in 80 hours, while the same quality of milk held at 55 degrees kept sweet for 80 hours, and at 40 degrees for 180 hours. These results were obtained in an experiment carried on by the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture, to determine the effect of temperature on the milk; and the results explain in a large measure why milk which has not been cooled on the farm—and kept cold—often is sour when it arrives at its destination.
The best and quickest way to cool milk to 50 degrees Fahrenheit is over a surface cooler. Use the coldest water available, and then set the cans of milk in a well-insulated tank filled with water below 40 degrees Fahrenheit. A 10-gallon can of milk precooled with water at 55 degrees Fahrenheit and set in a tank of ice water at 37 degrees Fahrenheit was cooled at 50 degrees in 20 minutes.
The use of a surface cooler is especially necessary when the time between milking and shipping is short. If warm milk is run over a surface cooler, and then set in a tank of water cooled with ice to 40 degrees Fahrenheit or below, it should not be difficult to cool milk to 50 degrees within an hour after it leaves the cow. Because precooled with a surface cooler is not practiced and ice is not put into the cooling tank before the milk, much milk reaches the shipping station in summer at so high a temperature that it sours on the way to the city.
On many farms the water used for cooling milk comes from the general storage tank or from a spring. The temperature of such water when it reaches the cooling tank is much higher than when it leaves the well or spring. Well or spring water that has a temperature of from 50 degrees to 55 degrees Fahrenheit frequently is warmed up to 70 degrees or 75 degrees

INJECTING SWINE IN FLANK MEANS SAVING

Use of Ham or Shoulder Often Results in Infection.

Department of Agriculture Urges Veterinarians to Avoid Possibility of Injury by Selection of Some Other Place.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Complaints from packers indicate that there are still many veterinarians and farmers who persist in immunizing hogs against cholera by making injections in the ham or shoulder, a practice that often results in infection and the formation of deep abscesses in the hams and shoulders where the serum and virus were injected. The United States Department of Agriculture has long advised against using these parts as points of injection, and the department veterinarians are instructed to avoid the possibility of such injury by selecting some other place. The ham has been favored as a place for making the injections because they can be made more rapidly and easily at this point, but they can be made with equal success in less valuable parts, such as the flank or auxiliary space, where there is loose connective tissue that readily absorbs the serum. In making an auxiliary injection the front legs should be spread apart so as to stretch the superficial muscles between the legs, and the needle should be directed so as to avoid the muscles of the shoulder.

It is desirable to make the injections at a point that will make drainage easy should an abscess form. Serum should never be injected into a mass of fatty tissue, as it is not sufficiently absorbent. Although the serous membrane lining the abdominal cavity takes up serum readily, abdominal injections are not recommended because of the danger of puncturing the internal organs with the needle or of carrying infection into the cavity.
Small pigs and sows up to 80 pounds in weight may be held up by the hind legs, with the forefeet resting on the ground, and the injection made into the loose tissue of the flank. A pig so held is in a good position for the taking of temperature, cleansing the area of operation, and making the injection. Farmers' Bulletin 834, which has been recently reprinted, contains full information regarding hog cholera and the methods of control.

ILLINOIS LEADS IN BUILDING

State Constructed 341 Miles of Permanent Hard Roads in 1920, Setting New Record.

One of the most interesting developments of the last ten or fifteen years has been the complete rehabilitation of the road, in its age-long role as one of the chief means of communication. The years that intervened between the coming of the railway and the coming of the motorcar saw a great silence and a great quiet settle down over vast numbers of the world's highways, says Christian Science Monitor. The motorcar, however, has changed all that, and today states and countries are vying with one another in the matter of road building, as to both quantity and quality. All honor, therefore to the state of Illinois with its 341 miles of new permanent hard roads, last year. "A record for such construction in any state in the Union prior to 1920."

COW WILL INCREASE INCOME

Animal Is Most Efficient Money Maker on Farm and Is Entitled to Good Treatment.

E. A. Hansen, dairy extension specialist at University farm, renews the inquiry: "Are you keeping cows or are they keeping you?" in a collection of feeding suggestions recently issued by him.
"Put the cow to work," he says, "and she is the most efficient money maker on the farm today. A cow producing 25 pounds of 4 per cent milk daily makes one pound of butterfat a day, worth about 50 cents. This cow needs rations and hay and silage which should not cost more than 25 cents daily, leaving 25 cents daily above the cost of her feed. Where can you invest your time and efforts to better advantage? Give your cows a chance. They are all capable of doing better when properly fed."

BIDDLE'S NEWEST TRICK

"Virginia, the walking doll," said Daddy, "belonged to a little girl named Kitty."

"She also had another doll named Francis, who looked just like a baby. Francis wore little black patent leather shoes with buckles and white stockings and when Kitty would move his head he would say, 'Mama, or 'Papa,' just as nicely as could be.
"Never Got Tired." Then Kitty had another doll called Marion, named after a great friend of hers. Marion was a very much smaller doll than the other two, but she was a great pet all the same. "In fact, Kitty took her three dolls almost everywhere with her.
"They were the greatest friends in the world.
"Francis had little hands, just like a baby's, and when you took hold of Francis' hand it almost seemed as though his fingers curled around yours as a baby's will. He had a head shaped just like a baby's too, and Kitty thought he was a most adorable baby doll.
"As for Virginia, the walking doll, Kitty never got tired of walking her up and down the room, taking hold of her hand so that she would stand up quite straight.
"Now Kitty was visiting her cousins, the Birdsalls, who owned the cut known as Biddle Birdsall.
"Oh yes," said Nancy, "we haven't heard about Biddle in ever and ever so long and Biddle is such a clever cat."
"What has Biddle been doing this time?" asked Nick.
"Biddle has been doing something interesting," said Daddy.
"I almost feel as if I had seen that cat," said Nancy, "and looked at his great green eyes and smoothed his soft gray fur.
"I can almost hear his bell tinkle as he walks along, the bell which jingles when he moves so the birds will know that he is coming, and which he wears on his collar.
"Yes, I feel as though I know Biddle Birdsall and all of his family."
"So do I," agreed Nick. "Do tell us what he has been doing now, Daddy."
"Well," said Daddy, "Biddle Birdsall said to himself that he simply couldn't stand for all this attention that the dolls were getting. He wanted some of it himself.
"Now one day the family were all sitting about admiring Kitty's dolls. Biddle was in a corner of the room and no one had spoken to him, and Biddle didn't like that particularly.
"To be sure he had just had an excellent meal and there was nothing he needed except a little attention and a little praise.
"He didn't know what to do. He purred quite hard but they didn't pay any attention to him then, as Francis, the baby doll was saying:
"Mama, 'Papa,' over and over again.
"It was just too much for Biddle. So he got up and jumped over on the keyboard of the piano.
"And what did he do but walk up and down that piano several times, trying to strike every note with his paw!
"Now if you won't notice 'me' he was trying to say.
"And, to be sure, he succeeded.
"No one paid any more attention to the dolls but they laughed at Biddle and thought it was the greatest joke. At first they had jumped with surprise as they couldn't imagine who could be playing the piano!
"And Biddle was delighted. He had made them look at him instead of at the dolls. And, too, he had made up a new trick. He did this many times afterward, when everything was quiet, so they'd be sure to notice him, or when he wasn't getting as much attention as he thought he ought to have.
"Everyone in the family told of Biddle's latest trick and Biddle was so much pleased.
"I have to give them a new trick once in a while," he said to himself, "for I've spilt them so, they expect it."
"And Biddle was really right. He had made up so many fine tricks that they quite expected them, but were none the less pleased and surprised and admiring of each new one."

"It was just too much for Biddle. So he got up and jumped over on the keyboard of the piano.
"And what did he do but walk up and down that piano several times, trying to strike every note with his paw!
"Now if you won't notice 'me' he was trying to say.
"And, to be sure, he succeeded.
"No one paid any more attention to the dolls but they laughed at Biddle and thought it was the greatest joke. At first they had jumped with surprise as they couldn't imagine who could be playing the piano!
"And Biddle was delighted. He had made them look at him instead of at the dolls. And, too, he had made up a new trick. He did this many times afterward, when everything was quiet, so they'd be sure to notice him, or when he wasn't getting as much attention as he thought he ought to have.
"Everyone in the family told of Biddle's latest trick and Biddle was so much pleased.
"I have to give them a new trick once in a while," he said to himself, "for I've spilt them so, they expect it."
"And Biddle was really right. He had made up so many fine tricks that they quite expected them, but were none the less pleased and surprised and admiring of each new one."

"Then Kitty had another doll called Marion, named after a great friend of hers. Marion was a very much smaller doll than the other two, but she was a great pet all the same. "In fact, Kitty took her three dolls almost everywhere with her.
"They were the greatest friends in the world.
"Francis had little hands, just like a baby's, and when you took hold of Francis' hand it almost seemed as though his fingers curled around yours as a baby's will. He had a head shaped just like a baby's too, and Kitty thought he was a most adorable baby doll.
"As for Virginia, the walking doll, Kitty never got tired of walking her up and down the room, taking hold of her hand so that she would stand up quite straight.
"Now Kitty was visiting her cousins, the Birdsalls, who owned the cut known as Biddle Birdsall.
"Oh yes," said Nancy, "we haven't heard about Biddle in ever and ever so long and Biddle is such a clever cat."
"What has Biddle been doing this time?" asked Nick.
"Biddle has been doing something interesting," said Daddy.
"I almost feel as if I had seen that cat," said Nancy, "and looked at his great green eyes and smoothed his soft gray fur.
"I can almost hear his bell tinkle as he walks along, the bell which jingles when he moves so the birds will know that he is coming, and which he wears on his collar.
"Yes, I feel as though I know Biddle Birdsall and all of his family."
"So do I," agreed Nick. "Do tell us what he has been doing now, Daddy."
"Well," said Daddy, "Biddle Birdsall said to himself that he simply couldn't stand for all this attention that the dolls were getting. He wanted some of it himself.
"Now one day the family were all sitting about admiring Kitty's dolls. Biddle was in a corner of the room and no one had spoken to him, and Biddle didn't like that particularly.
"To be sure he had just had an excellent meal and there was nothing he needed except a little attention and a little praise.
"He didn't know what to do. He purred quite hard but they didn't pay any attention to him then, as Francis, the baby doll was saying:
"Mama, 'Papa,' over and over again.

On and after April 1, the local postoffice will close promptly at the hour of six, each evening and all incoming mail beyond that hour will not be distributed until the following morning.

Windows will not be opened on Sunday, but the lobby will be open so that patrons having boxes may have access to the same. Early mailing should be done hereafter to avoid the delay.

Engineer John Ulrey received word by wire last Tuesday of the death of his father, David P. Ulrey. He died Tuesday morning at his home in Grand Junction, Neb., being seventy-two years of age. Mr. Ulrey made hurried arrangements and left on No. 2 that night for Grand Junction to attend the funeral, after which he will remain for a time to comfort his mother and other relatives. The Outlook extends its sympathy.

Austin Wooten's Second Birthday

Last Saturday, March 11, Mrs. Austin Wooten entertained in honor of her son James Austin's second birthday. None of the little guests were beyond the ages of three years, and of course, were accompanied by their mammas. Refreshments of everything that was best for the wee tots were served. The entertainment, being an exclusive affair for the little folks we will omit the names of the mammas and name the guests as follows: Mildred and Albert McCall, Thompson Kelley, Mary and Warden Maxwell, Mary Jane and Ed-ton Boone, Wilma Lorene and Charlie Snow, Fred, Homer and Glenneth English, Irene and S. W. Herron, Ruth and Nellie Janis, Keith and Earl Stadtman, Vienna Louise and Jack Snow, Jennie and Selma Lamay, Ruth Barnett. This charming affair was unique in its nature and one that should be patterned after by other homes, as the gathering of "little ones" on birthday occasions has a tendency to cement the entire community closer together in bonds of neighborly friendship through associations like the one mentioned above.

Passes On

Last Sunday afternoon, between the hours of two and three, Mrs. Carrie Hamilton, wife of A. B. Hamilton, died of an illness of short duration. As heretofore announced in this paper, her daughter, Maude, had been suffering from an ailment which she went to El Paso for treatment of, about two weeks ago, accompanied by her mother. After placing her daughter under treatment, Mrs. Hamilton returned, but shortly after that she was attacked with an ailment resembling influenza which caused her death.

The funeral services were held at the Baptist church, the Rev. Blacklock conducting the same. The afflictions of the family had attracted the sympathy of the entire community, and on account of the girls being pupils of the schools, the board ordered the closing of the same at 2 o'clock, so that all who so wished, might attend the funeral. The church was crowded and the floral offerings were beautiful. Classes from the schools and Sunday schools attended in bodies, as also people of the city in general, regardless of denominational affiliations. The remains were interred in the local cemetery with fitting services. As to the Christian character of the deceased, we refer the readers to an article written by Mrs. W. W. Stadtman, which appears in another part of this paper.

Lice Should Be Eradicated

(Extension Service Bulletin.)
Mr. Stockman, look at your cattle with a little more than your usual interest. If they are in poor condition, itching, and show a loss of hair, on a close examination you will likely detect lice. Give them a bath. It doesn't pay to feed lice-infested cattle high-priced feed and expect to get results.
Up-to-date stockmen are building dipping vats and preparing to dip all infested cattle. One of the most effective and economical dips is the arsenical solution. It has been used successfully by stockmen in most parts of New Mexico.
The United States Department of Agriculture prescribes and the Extension Veterinarian of the New Mexico Agricultural College recommends the following formula where but one dipping is to be given the stock:
Arsenic acid 10 pounds
Sal soda 25 pounds
Fine tar 5 pounds
You can easily dissolve the sal soda by boiling in a tank or kettle. You should then add the arsenic acid and when it is dissolved, withdraw the fire and slowly add fine tar, stirring all the while. This mixture will make 500 gallons of dip.
A washing dip can be made by using eight pounds of arsenic with other ingredients, but for one dipping the stronger solution is recommended.
Your county agent can secure for you the means to test the dip and he can also furnish blue prints for

ROAD BONDING UP TO TAXPAYERS

Western states have been spending hundreds of millions of dollars for "permanent" roads.
Virtually anything which would keep a vehicle from riving in the mud has been classed as a permanent road.

Permanent highways are built on the supposition that their life will be at least ten years and bonds are issued for their construction on this basis.

In the first hysteria of road building the necessity for really permanent construction has been lost sight of in the mad race to spread down the greatest number of miles of hard surfaced road.

In many sections of the West the taxpayers are now learning to their regret that instead of lasting for a ten year period, many miles of their so-called "permanent" highways are going to pieces and that the cost of "maintenance" which comes out of the taxpayers' pockets is likely to equal the original cost for hard surfacing before the ten year period has expired.

As the taxpayers awaken to these facts they are paying more attention to the arguments of reliable road engineers showing the necessity for a non-jarring or cushioning surface to absorb the shock on any hard foundation road.—Manufacturer.

COPPER WITHSTANDS THE AGES

The man who has put copper water gutters and drain spouts on his house and copper screens over his windows has built for all time and will have no further expense for painting or protection for these parts in any manner.

The statue of William Penn and other statues on the city hall in Philadelphia, all of which are made of bronze, and which were put in place at the same time the tower of the hall was built are in perfect condition and will be a thousand years hence; the tower of the hall was covered with iron plates, instead of copper sheeting. These plates are now being repaired at a cost of $75,000 and in a few years the entire tower will need rebuilding due to failure of the iron sheeting to withstand the elements. Thus, does copper withstand the ages.

Western copper mines employ thousands of workmen and the use of copper for domestic purposes in cooking utensils, screens, water gutters, etc., will enable these mines to operate on a steady and permanent basis giving employment to thousands of men who are now idle.—Manufacturer.

Mrs. West, mother of Miss Meda and Joe West, came up from her home in Alamogordo and spent a few days this week with her daughter and son.

HOW PHONOGRAPHS RECORD THE SONG

By Alexander H. Edson, in the April Popular Mechanics Magazine.
Manufacturers of phonograph records ordinarily refuse to let out the secret of how these disks are made, because they all design their own machinery, lay out their own electrical apparatus, and often use special machines of their own invention. For this reason the public knows little about the process.

The first step in the manufacture of phonograph records is the making of the original wax disk, which is about 1/16 in. larger in diameter than the finished record, and about 3/4 in. thick. These disks are made of a fairly soft wax composition. This original, or master record, is placed on a recording machine, similar to a phonograph, but more delicately made and with the needle action reversed; that is, instead of the needle falling into a groove it is forced into the soft wax by the vibrations of the transmitting diaphragm.

Copper matrices are made from the wax disks by much the same process used in electrotyping.

The electric current circulating through the anodes and the solution deposits particles of copper on the wax disks, completely covering the face and grooves. After 24 hours the disks, covered with a coating of copper, are removed from the tubs. The copper shell is carefully stripped off, and the rough edges trimmed. These disks become the master matrices.

After coating the backs and edges of a master matrix with wax so that copper will not adhere to these parts it is suspended in the solution exactly as the wax disks were suspended. Again after 24 hours it is removed and stripped of the newly deposited coating. This second copper-disk is known as the mother matrix, and by repeating the process with the mother matrix, there is produced what is called the pressing matrix. This last matrix is the one used for pressing records for the trade. The finished record is placed in a trimming lathe and the film or overflow is trimmed off. It is then tested on an ordinary phonograph and, after being labeled, is ready to be shipped.

STATE ROAD BONDS SOLD TO KANSAS FIRM

New Mexico's state road bonds in the sum of $1,000,000 sold by State Treasurer Charles U. Strong, brought a premium of $17,984. The bonds bear five per cent interest, but the premium received will reduce the interest rate to 4.77 per cent. A Kansas City firm working with two other bond houses, was the successful bidder. When the bids were opened there were present 12 agents representing 17 firms. All of the bids carried a premium.
