ARBUCKLE ACQUITTED; JURY PRAISES 'FATTY'

San Francisco, Calif., April 13.—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, film comedian, stood acquitted today after undergoing three trials on a charge of manslaughter for the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, screen actress, who was taken to a hospital fatally ill after a party at which Arbuckle was host in hotel rooms here.

"I am going to take a good rest and get rid of some of this surplus flesh," explained the actor whose picture fame was associated with his weighty physique.

"If the public doesn't want me," he added, "I'll take my medicine. But after the quick vindication I have just received, I am sure the American people will be fair. I believe I am due for a comeback."

The management of this popular resort arranged everything possible for the comfort and convenience of the guests and served a dainty lunch in the dining room at three, after which the parlors were thrown open and tables arranged for bridge which consumed the balance of time until five.

SCHOOL NOTES

(By Supr. E. E. Cole)

One day last week we very much enjoyed a visit from Mr. Allen, rector of the Episcopal church at Tucumcari. Mr. Allen spoke to the High school for a short time, promising to return and give a talk on the subject "The Mountaineers of the Southern Alleghenies."

The musical given Monday evening of last week was a success in every particular. The full program was rendered in spite of the fact that it was a rainy night. The work of the chorus and glee club was of a very high order; better than we often see in towns with a very much greater population.

The Boy Scouts made a trip to Water Canon last Saturday, going up the canon as far as the big spring. The weather was delightful and the bushes beginning to leaf. Peach and plum trees were in full blossom. There were two cars of scouts. Mr. T. E. Kelley took out one load and Mr. E. M. Brickley brought them back in the afternoon.

The class play to be given by the senior class assisted by the under-graduates, will consist of two short plays, each about three-quarters of an hour long. The first play is "Everystudent," a modern morality play, depicting trials and temptations of student life through symbolic character representations of various virtues, vices and conditions.

The health claims examined and ordered paid from 1921 health fund amount to $649 00. All W. A. B. claims examined and approved.

The board, having considered making an application to the State Highway Commission to allow $1250 and Lincoln County will add a like amount for the working of road between Carrizozo and the county line which joins Otero county, the board hereby orders that an application to the State Highway Commission be made and sent to them.

The Clerk ordered to pay $319.14 on Salaries for Quarter ending Sept. 30, 1921.

Amounts to be pro-rated and paid from the 1920 Salary fund, $318.28. Clerk ordered to pay $136.00 of the Wild Animal bounty claims, $136.00.

There being no further business, the board adjourns, subject to call.

Board of County Commissioners Chas. H. Lutz, Chairman.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

On Friday of this week the Woman's Club held a most interesting meeting at the home of President Mrs. Geo. Ulrick. The subject of Community Welfare was very ably discussed by Mrs. McDonald, the chairman of the afternoon; also Supt. E. E. Cole of the public schools and Mrs. Maude L. Blaney, County School Supt. Mrs. W. W. Stadman spoke for the "Citizen of the Community." Dr. Cole spoke on "Playground Equipment" and at the close of the program the club voted the sum of fifty dollars to be used for the Playground of the schools.

Mr. Stadman's 68

In the recent election, City Clerk W. W. Stadman received but 68 votes which caused him to fall some short of the Mayor and Trustees, therefore, some seemed to think this due to the lack of popularity on the part of the clerk. Such was far from being the case for more than one reason. First, at the big mass meeting where the ticket was selected, other candidates were in the field for Mayor and Trustees, but not a single vote was cast against Mr. Stadman. His record as clerk for the past two years had been sufficient to gain him the confidence of all concerned, hence the lack of opposition. In the second place, his name appeared below those of Mayor and Trustees, divided by a rule and the average voter lost sight of this, giving all his attention to the foregoing part of the ticket. But he was the people's choice from the beginning; silence would have been a majority for him.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

The School Board of District No. 7 met in regular session at the Court House, Monday night, April 10th.

After the regular business was transacted the election of teachers and the salaries paid come up for consideration.

A few years ago when prices were so extremely high it was deemed necessary to raise all teachers' salaries so that our teachers could meet the high cost of living at that time. Now that living expenses have been reduced very materially and prices in practically all lines have been lowered it was decided to cut all teachers' salaries six and one-fourth per cent.

The Board regretted very much the necessity of making this cut, even though it was a slight one, but owing to the high tax rate existing at this time the Board considered it their duty to the tax payers to assist in the re-adjustment going on at this time.

Two years ago, the local Board, as well as many other boards, through out the country, put into operation a new system of paying the teachers. Under this new system teachers were paid, at the end of each calendar month, or twelve times a year. During the time this new system had been tried a good many objections to it have developed so it has been decided to go back to the old method of paying teachers at the end of each school month, or nine times during the scholastic year.

Under the plan decided on for the coming year most of our teachers will receive $125 per month for nine months. None of our old teachers will receive less than that amount and some of them will get more. New, inexperienced teachers will be started at smaller salary. The teachers, as a body, are willing to co-operate in this new movement and practically all of them have expressed a desire to work under the new plan.

The entire school budget, however, including salaries is subject to the approval of the State Auditor.

"Husbands on Approval"

For the last several weeks, the local talent of Carrizozo has been rehearsing for the play, "Husbands on Approval" and last night the same was given to a crowded house at the Crystal Theatre. The characters on the whole were exceptionally good and the play abounded with interest throughout. We wish it were possible to go into detail and mention each one separately, but space forbids. The singing between the acts sharpened the interest and was much enjoyed by the audience. After a month's trial out of her four noble suitors, the lady who had given herself this amount of time to make a selection, chose the one she had seemingly rejected during the month's period. Everyone seemed satisfied with the match between Hippy Bamberger and the maid; he certainly deserved her.

MAUNDAY THURSDAY; MASONS MEET

Yesterday was an Scottish Rites observance, "Maundy Thursday" and in view of this fact, about twenty Scottish Rite Masons met at the Carrizozo Eating House to observe and preserve the rule. Speeches were made, a banquet served and a local organization effected. After the meeting they attended the special meeting of Carrizozo lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., at Masonic Hall where the first degree was exemplified on several candidates. A friendly contest was had in the work, between the Past Masters and the regular officers of the lodge, each body performing a certain amount of the work, thus bringing out that friendly contention, or rather emulation, as to who best can work and best can serve. Decision of the judges has not been rendered but the same is not for publication.

Easter Facts and Fancies

HOLY WEEK leads us through the deep shades of penitence and sorrow to Gethsemane, the Last Supper, Good Friday and the Cross, leaving us in silence and darkness at the sepulchre. But now, lo, as at Christmas, an angel brings joyful tidings to them. Here again an angel voices the greatest, gladdest, most blessed truth that ever thrilled the ears and elevated the souls of men: "Christ is risen."

Thus our week of sorrows and our way by the Cross, lead us to this brightest morn of time, to the shining mount of immortality, to the glorious vision of eternal life. What a gift is life! What a joy it is to live! The joys of sight and the visions of the eye; the joy of activity and work, the joy of high and noble aims, the joys of the heart, of friendship, and love; the joy of elevated thoughts; the manly joy of overcoming difficulties; the high transports of doing good and sacrifice for truth's sake; the joy in the songs of the beautiful and sublime in nature; the ecstasies in the rapt harmonies of music; the joy in religious worship and prayer—what tongue of archangel can tell the joy, the bliss, the rapture, embraced in this all in all—life!

But sweet, varied and glorious as is this gift of life, we see confronting it the black, spectral, inevitable figure of death. Who, then, but must study this question which concerns his happiness more deeply than all else? This death, which steadily creeps toward me, will it really wrest from me this priceless possession of life? This is the supreme thought for every living soul to reflect upon on Easter Day. To study in the light of the Gospel of the Resurrection.

Nature here is our first teacher. She is full of emblems of the Resurrection. Could you forecast the golden fruit from the withered blossom, or the bird from the broken shell, or the brilliant, plumaged insect wings from the chrysalis coffin from which it emerges? So spring is full of signs. Every spring, in forest, garden and field, death is swallowed up of life. All winter the trees stand stripped and bare; the shrubs, the grasses, the flowers sleep in a cold white sepulchre of snow. But to the spring comes the dawn of a new life. The drifts melt, the fountains flow, the rivers burst their ice bonds, the trees put forth buds and leaves, the grasses awake from their chill slumbers, and the crocus and myrtle peep from the ground—the advance guard of that lovely army of flowers which will decorate the whole summer with their plumage.

It is the Resurrection time of the visible creation. It is the Easter of the world. It is nature's prophetic answer to the inquiring soul of man, and it is full of hope. It is the grand Epistle of Immortality, written by the finger of God upon the strata of the earth.—Rev. J. B. Romanczyk.

There is one day in the year on which custom requires that the grounds of the White House, ordinarily sacred against intrusion, shall be thrown open to all comers. It is Easter Monday, which is par excellence the children's day in Washington. On that occasion the little ones come from far and near to roll eggs on the smooth lawns in the rear of the executive mansion, and their prerogative in this regard is of long standing.

It is one of the prettiest customs of the festive kind that survive in this part of the world, and nobody knows exactly how or when it originated. Ever so long, perhaps a century ago, in the neighborhood of Baltimore and adjacent counties of Virginia, it was the habit of the children to go out in little parties on Easter Monday and roll eggs. For some reason unexplained the sport has become in a manner localized in Washington, and in earlier days the egg rolling was done on the capitol grounds as well as at the White House. But on one unfortunate occasion so much damage was done to the grass that un sympathetically legislators for the nation promulgated a decree forbidding the practice.

Thus it has come about that the children all assembled at the White House, where the grounds are specially adapted to that purpose, being of a rolling contour, with many small mound-shaped hills, down the slopes of which the eggs easily travel. McKinley took much interest in this Easter pastime, and usually found time to go out himself into the crowd and watch the sport for a few minutes. General Grant used to do the same thing, a cigar in his mouth, and Nellie Arthur, who was a child when she lived in the executive mansion, herself took part in the games. Benjamin Harrison's grandchildren did the same thing.

The festival is one to which nearly every child in Washington looks forward when Easter time comes round, and not the least part of the fun is the decoration of the eggs, which must be dyed beforehand in all sorts of colors. The older youngsters take pride in coloring their own eggs, while the younger ones depend upon mamma. By Saturday night the eggs must be ready, arranged in a little basket, with some green excelsior, if possible, as counterfeits of grass. Then, when Monday's sun has risen, with promises of favorable weather, the solemn start for the festive scene. In most cases accompanied by parents or aunts.

It is an all-day affair, this business of egg rolling, and the children are anxious to begin it as early as possible. They gather in crowds outside the tall iron fence that encloses the White House grounds, and when the gates are thrown open, at exactly nine a. m., they flock in pell-mell and distribute themselves in gladsome squads over the grass-covered hillocks. No time is lost, the sport beginning at once, and soon it is in fast and furious progress, the greensward speckled with eggs of rainbow hues, and the echoes of merry childish voices gladdening the spring air.

All the children wear their best clothes, which are destined to be sadly mussed and more or less torn before the day is over, yet a thoroughly democratic spirit reigns, the youngsters being of all classes. The fashionable northwestern section of the city is largely represented, as well as the commonality, and there is not even any distinction of color, the small black urchin joining in the play with the aristocratic offspring of a cabinet member.

Some of the children make races with their eggs, starting them simultaneously from the top of a hillock, with the understanding that the one to reach the bottom first is the winner. If it is "for fair" the egg of the loser passes into the possession of the successful contestant. Another way is to roll an egg down hill, to be received at the bottom on the point of a second egg. If the thing is properly done, and failure or success in this object gives rise to much merriment. Or, again, two children may roll their eggs toward each other on a flat piece of ground, and when they have met the one cracked is lost.

"Pickling eggs" is a form of the sport peculiar to the boys, requiring as it does some degree of expertness, while having about it the thrilling suggestion of a gamble. One boy holds an egg in his fist, so as to expose the smallest possible bit of the point, and this is attacked by the point of another boy's egg, a series of taps deciding which is the harder of the two. First it is point to point, then butt to butt, and then finally "siders," the upshot of the affair being a transfer of the cracked egg to the owner of the one that remains unbroken.

Now and then along comes a knowing youth, with wisdom beyond his years, and a guinea hen's egg, which, inasmuch as it is much harder than any hen's egg, is a sure winner. But it is a green youngster that does not know enough to be on his guard against an egg that has speckles on it, even though it be artfully explained to him that it was laid by a speckled hen. Occasionally a china egg is similarly worked as a "ringer."

When the eggs are rolled down hill, it is customary for the owners to roll after them—a performance somewhat calculated to injure clothes and incidentally liable to result in the smashing of the eggs. But this latter is a matter of no great importance, inasmuch as a broken egg is something to be immediately eaten, and the devouring of it is a pleasant incident. Necessarily the eggs are all hard boiled, and, therefore in condition for off-hand consumption.

At twelve o'clock it is time for lunch, and then mamma or nurse spreads a delightful meal on the greensward—a feast, which, owing to the joyful circumstances, is vastly more appetizing than the most elaborate banquet at home could be. Eggs, as is proper, furnish the piece de resistance usually, but there is milk in bottles for the very small tots, the children of all ages are present, and many of them even come in baby carriages, being not yet old enough to walk. Outside the grounds are many hucksters with goat wagons and donkey carts, who have for sale plentiful supplies of candy, peanuts, pies, apples and oranges. On the whole, it is somewhat like a circus.

To make things altogether joyful, the marine band, which is the President's own troop of musicians, usually plays for the benefit of the little ones, being stationed on a platform near by.

Between 3 p. m. and 1 p. m. no grown-ups are admitted unless accompanied by children. Strictly no effect is necessary to prevent children from being out to adults who wish to see the sport but are without the necessary yester. Every year leads him out to outsiders at 25 cents each and pass them through the gate.

In the afternoon great numbers of grown folks come to see the fun, enjoying it almost as much as the youngsters do. By the time the sun goes well over into the western sky most of the eggs have been broken, and then it is that colored persons with large grins and cavernous stomachs come around, suggesting a willingness to devour all the eggs the children will give them. This is great sport from the children's point of view, and the number of eggs consumed by some of the volunteers is really astonishing.

Finally it is all over. The wreck that is left behind is doleful indeed. Everywhere the grass is strewn with a litter of broken eggs, brown paper and other debris, and little feet have made many a hole in the turf. It cost $114 one year to repair the damage done on this one day of jollification. But Uncle Sam paid the bill without a murmur—the fun was worth the money.

In Jerusalem, Holy week, between Palm Sunday and Easter, besides being the occasion of solemn services inside the churches, sees many associated ceremonies that are as picturesque as devout. The Via Dolorosa (Sorrowful Way), (supposed to be the road over which Christ bore the cross to Calvary), is thronged with pilgrims from all parts of the world, who follow the route on their knees.

In Rome, in a small building near the Lateran palace, similar devotes climb, upon their knees, the whole length of a flight of 29 steps—the Scala Santa (sacred stairway), which once stood in Pilate's palace at Jerusalem, and was trodden by the Man of Sorrows, whom Pilate delivered up to death.

In New Mexico a religious fraternity known as the Brothers of Penitence for over a century celebrated the week before Easter with self-tortures of the most sickening description. The members of the organization are not monks, but men who live the rest of the year like their neighbors, as commonplace farmers, herdsmen and traders. Only at this season they take it upon themselves to offer heaven the gruesome sight of human creatures whipping themselves with rawhide thongs and pressing cactus thorns into their own flesh. Not many years ago they even used to nail one chosen out of their own number to a tall wooden cross, set up in the wilderness. Efforts, in the main, successful, have been made of late years, to stop the observance.

In Russia the Easter salutation is a picturesque survival from apostolic customs. Friends and neighbors, or even strangers, who chance to meet on the street, say: "Christ is risen!" "He is risen indeed!" the other person responds. And very often a kiss is exchanged even by two men, in token of the day's significance. The religious observance is elaborate. This, of course, was in the old Russia. Nobody seems to know what observance there is, under Soviet rule.

Our Filipino cousins, after going to church Easter morning, will think the afternoon wasted unless they see a good cock fight. In Spain and most Spanish-speaking countries a bull fight is both popular and distinctly fashionable as entertainment for the afternoon of Easter day.

Greece has local celebrations that are full of dignity and beauty. One of these is the famous choral dance, which takes place each year at Megara, a few miles from Athens. It is performed out of doors, in the presence of thousands of spectators by country girls of marriageable age, all dressed in a special holiday costume of singular beauty and elegance. The dance is sedate and stately to the last degree, and is said to have close resemblance to the religious dances of Greek widows 2,000 and 3,000 years ago. But, though the dancers are most demure in their manners, it is an open secret that their appearance now is practically a bid for offers of marriage. One would suppose this could be necessary to encourage wedlock, but the fact is the modern Greek stands out rather stiffer for a good dervy with his bride, and a girl whose face is her fortune has to advert to it.

EX-SERVICE MEN DESIRE FARMS

MANY INQUIRIES CONCERNING AVAILABLE FARMS REACH SECRETARY FALL.

VETERANS SEEK LAND

FORMER SOLDIERS REQUEST OPPORTUNITIES TO GET BACK TO SOIL.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

Washington.—Evidence of the desire of former service men to go back to the farm constantly is reaching the Interior Department, Secretary Fall has announced here, adding that more than 100,000 such applications have been received for employment in developing land. In addition, inquiries concerning available land are coming in by the hundreds of thousands, the secretary stated.

The correspondence is largely from farm-trained men who are "not appealing for a gratuity," he said, "but are seeking an opportunity to acquire a home on the land by utilizing their labor and experience."

"It is significant that the bulk of these inquiries generally come from states wherein the price of land has reached such heights that opportunities for men of small capital to acquire a home are extremely limited. Among these states, Illinois ranks first, with 18,600 inquiries and applications for land."

"Farm land prices in this state average among the highest in the Union."

"Conditions are much the same in Indiana, Ohio, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, where land hunger on the part of the war veterans is shown by 46,020 inquiries received. Of these 28,000 made application for work in order to secure a home."

"The arid and semi-arid states show up with a total of 61,840 ex-service men interested in home-making on the land. The Southern states are represented by 27,760 and the Eastern states, including Pennsylvania, by 25,000. In the Northern states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas there are 14,400 veterans who have indicated a desire to obtain a farm home."

The reclamation service, Secretary Fall said, during the past two years has been able to offer former soldiers only 400 farms, although 50,000 inquiries were received and 7,450 service men applied for farms.

In none of these cases, he asserted, could the government offer financial assistance, and the successful applicants were required to put up from $3.50 to $5.00 per irrigable acre and an annual charge of upwards of $1 per acre.

Investigate Morosco's Marriage.

Detroit, Mich.—Investigation of the residence of Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer, who was married at Santa Ana, Calif., to Miss Selma Paley, Los Angeles actress, only three days after he was granted a divorce here from his first wife, has been ordered by Circuit Judge Harry J. Dingman of Detroit. Edward Pokorney, friend of the court, was instructed to make the investigation in an effort to learn whether collusion existed.

Delegates Show Interest in Lenin.

Genoa.—Premier Lenine of Soviet Russia is more talked of in pro-conference conventions among the Genoaese than any other man who will have anything to do directly or indirectly with the economic conference.

Deportation Measure Passes House.

Washington.—By a vote of more than three to one, the House late today passed and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing the deportation of aliens convicted in state or federal courts on charges of having violated the narcotic and Volstead acts. Representative Mann, Republican, Illinois, warned prohibitionists that they were going too far, that there was danger of disrupting the whole system of law enforcement and that jurors would be unwilling to convict those who ought to go to jail, if it also meant deportation.

Master Mind Rules Greece.

New York.—Detectives assigned to the $80,000 jewel robbery in Washington square have been struck with the similarity that has marked spectacular coups made on the homes of the wealthy within recent months and are seeking to determine whether New York is infested with a band of super-artists. The police incline to the belief that the band comprises members, each specialized in one form of criminal pursuit, working under the direction of a master crook.

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored My Health

Hornell, N. Y.—"I was in bad health but there didn't seem to be any one thing the matter with me."

I was tired out all over and it was an effort for me to move. I was irritable and could not sleep nights and had trouble with my bowels and a very nervous system. It seemed that nearly everyone around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it, so at last I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as it would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you like.—Mrs. CHAS. BAKER, 21 Spencer Ave., Hornell, N. Y.

Shaw and His Critic.

Bernard Shaw is not the hardened skeptic that he has sometimes been called. He is full of good humor. Some time ago he was reading a particularly bitter attack on himself, brought to him by one of his friends. He read the clipping attentively, and then, turning to his friend, said: "How appalling this fellow punctuates his sentences!"

As a man grows older he swaps his ideals for ideas.

Husbands Wild Over Mixed Jury

Looking Up of Men and Women Together Over Night Causes Furore in St. Paul.

NOT EVEN CURTAIN IN ROOM

Irate Spouses Storm Court and Berate Judge—Governor Declares Provision Must Be Made for Separating Jurors.

St. Paul, Minn.—What to do with mixed juries over night?

This question has started a furore in St. Paul following the story told by seven women and five men who were locked up for two nights while deliberating the fate of George Thoenke, accused of stealing an automobile, and finally found guilty.

Irate husbands of the women stormed the court and one of them was released from a charge of contempt of court by Judge Catlin because the court held that there were extenuating circumstances and that the objector was not in a rational frame of mind.

St. Paul citizens, including Governor Preus, sympathized with the angry husband and clubwomen clamored for better treatment of the women.

Not Even a Bit of Drapery. The first night, according to the story told by Miss Grace Williams, the only unmarried woman on the jury, there wasn't even a curtain in the room the men and women had to use as sleeping quarters.

"We argued until late, and finally a man yawned and said something about going to bed," she said. "It was very embarrassing. We had to put out the lights and get ready for bed in the dark. It was inconvenient, but we did it."

"Every little while the bailiff would come in and say that there were five husbands outside the door who wanted to know how things were going. They were very angry."

"The second night we had a thin curtain between the men and the women. It was not much better."

After the first night one of the women told her husband how she had to undress in the same room with five strange men with the light showing in from the moon, it was stated. This husband went to Judge Catlin and, according to the judge, "used a full and unexpurgated vocabulary in describing his feelings."

The second night was described by Mrs. Josephine Brown, another member of the jury.

"The curtain was transparent and we had no protection, and the men all faced the wall, while some of us pulled sheets from the bed to protect the other women while they disrobed," she said.

said. "We didn't sleep much, but that was mainly because one of the women talked all night. The men snored on peacefully."

Men First to Weaken. Jailer Hart said the women were "better sports than the men," for it was one of the male members of the jury who first demanded segregation.

"It was an intolerable situation," said Governor Preus. "I certainly would not consent to my wife undergoing such an ordeal. This situation must not continue. Some provision must be made so that women jurors may have at least a little privacy."

The governor said that steps would be taken to see that men and women on juries are separated hereafter when it is necessary to lock them up overnight.

But hundreds of husbands here say this precaution will be unnecessary, for their wives are never going to serve on any jury.

REACHES 114 DEGREES; LIVES

Girl's Return to Health After High Fever Described as First on Record.

Bristol, England.—The extraordinary figure of 114 degrees Fahrenheit was the recorded temperature of a girl here, who had the grip.

When first summoned to see the girl, the physician said he was astonished to find that his clinical thermometer recorded a temperature of 112 degrees. Thinking his thermometer was out of order, he requisitioned two others, only to find that they both recorded the same high point.

During the night the patient's temperature advanced two degrees. She has now recovered. Medical journals here do not record an instance of such temperature being followed by recovery.

Back From Trip to Wonderland

Alice Bradley, Six Years Old, Member of Expedition Into Wilds of Belgian Congo.

HAS EXCITING ADVENTURES

Sees Lions and Other Inhabitants of Jungle Shot and Giant Gorillas Captured—Finds and Found by Pygmies.

New York.—Carl E. Akeley, big game hunter, returned on the Baltic from his fourth expedition to the Belgian Congo, bringing back five huge gorilla skins to be mounted and a wealth of new data for the American Museum of Natural History.

But this is of scientific interest in subordination to the chief figure in his party, who is six-year-old Alice Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley of Chicago. Mrs. Bradley is Mary Hastings Bradley, the novelist. While her parents and the others of the party gathered mere specimens and cold facts, Alice experienced a series of Alice-in-Wonderland adventures.

Finds and Found by Pygmies. In the Congo belt, west of Nyanza Victoria, she saw the pygmy tribe of Africa, and they discovered her, the first white child they had ever seen. They "considered her distinctly mature, however, for she was taller than the tallest member of the tribe."

"The chief," she could report with pride, "was very much surprised by my curls. He thought they came off."

So far as known, no white women had ever before been to the inner reaches of the Belgian Congo, where the trail of the expedition led. Alice, maintaining perfect health throughout the journey, was reported by her nurse, Miss Priscilla Hall, to be an irreplaceable source of constant apprehension.

She watched in spellbound delight while lions, known to most children only in the relative docility of the circus cage, were shot with other inhabitants of the jungle. Of the five gorilla trophies selected to be brought home, one stood 5 feet 8 inches in height. His chest measured nearly 5 feet and he weighed 350 pounds.

Soft About Gorillas. Miss Martha Miller, Professor Akeley's secretary, also one of the party, seemed tender-hearted about the gorillas, unless one caught the suspicious twinkle in her brown eyes.

"The co-called man eating gorillas," she said, "are really very tame creatures and I do not believe they would fight unless they were cornered and absolutely compelled to do so. It seemed cruel to shoot them."

Mrs. Bradley participated in the hunting and bagged two gorillas and several lions. Miss Miller likewise brought down a lion or two.

Professor Akeley, also noted as an inventor of the cement gun and the Akeley camera, set out on this latest crusade for science in August, 1921, for the American Museum of Natural History, where many of the specimens of his former trips are mounted, among them giant elephants, which he has also sculptured in clay. His epicurean purpose on this trip was to get gorilla specimens.

Lad Invents Tiny Wireless Outfit

Kenneth R. Hittman, who is only twelve years old, has invented a wireless receiving apparatus that fits neatly into a safety match box. The lad lives in Plainfield, N. J. Kenneth and his brother, both "scouts," allow how the little outfit works when you are lost in the woods in the dark.

Radioactive Ray Cures Disease

Inventor Sees Wonderful Possibilities in New Discovery.

Radioactive Ray Can Cure Disease or Destroy Battleships or Cities at Will—Speediest Ray Yet Discovered.

San Francisco.—Elicton has again been made by fact by the claims of Edgar L. Hollinghead, Pasadena scientist and electrical engineer, hold good.

He announced here the discovery of a radioactive ray that can cure disease or destroy battleships or cities at will.

The new ray has far greater speed and penetrating power than any yet discovered, Hollinghead claims, and works miracles on all forms of matter. Some of his remarkable claims are: It increases or reduces weight of metals.

Radioactive Ray Cures Disease

Penetrates 1 1/2 inches of solid steel, makes rocks as transparent as water.

At its highest rate disintegrates the heaviest substance, so that it passes away fast, air.

Unlike radium, which radiates in all directions at one speed, the new ray can be controlled as to speed and direction.

The discovery, according to Hollinghead, has led to other startling scientific discoveries, including: Force cannot have weight within itself.

The law of cohesion has a third and dominant factor—solar influence. Gravitation is stronger in daytime than at night time because of the sun's influence.

This accounts, Hollinghead states, for clocks running faster at night than by day.

A man without a conscience is a man without principle.

Seven Points of Supremacy 1. The sole leather used in "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. Even the insoles are cut from standard outside leather. 2. "FOOT-FITTERS" are the only shoes in the world having full length vamp and sole leather box toes. This feature prevents ripping at the tip and makes a smooth outer and inner surface. 3. The insoles are shoulder channelled so that they fit tightly against the outsole. There is no need or room for a cork filler. A small piece of duck is used to prevent squeaking. 4. The Calskin inside counter pocket is of great value, for it saves the wear on the socks. There is no rough surface to rub against. 5. "FOOT-FITTERS" heels are 1/4-inch longer than generally used. They give additional support to the arch and increase the comfort and wear of the shoe. 6. The vamp is reinforced with 8-oz. duck. This absorbs the moisture from the foot, thus keeps the vamp from cracking and holds the shoe in shape. 7. Edmonds' "FOOT-FITTER" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTERS" because they fit the foot snugly. Built on combination lasts they support the foot like a doctor's bandage. "FOOT-FITTERS" give Comfort, Service and Appearance.

James Randol, who shot and killed Mrs. Gertrude Holstein, wealthy Fresno widow, who often had spurned his attempts at love, died in the county hospital at Fresno, Calif., from a bullet wound in the head which he inflicted after he killed Mrs. Holstein.

Alfred Hertz, conductor of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra for seven years, has offered his resignation. Lack of finances made the board of governors of the Musical Association of San Francisco unable to offer him another contract. President J. D. McKee said.

Three masked men held up and robbed the cashier of the Dairy Delivery Company at San Francisco of $9,321. The robbers, in an automobile, crowded the machine of the dairy company to the curb and forced Charles E. Benedict, the cashier, to hand over the money which was being taken to a bank.

Tommy Milton won the championship sprint automobile race at the speedway at Los Angeles, taking the second preliminary 2.5-mile sprint in 13 minutes, 1.40 seconds, an average speed of 115.02 miles an hour, and the final 50-mile event in 28 minutes, 1.92 seconds, an average of 115.2 miles an hour.

Organization of a central body by the representatives of eighteen women's auxiliaries of the order of B'nai B'rith was completed at a meeting at Sacramento in connection with the annual district convention of the B'nai B'rith, representing eight western states and British Columbia. It will be known as the Women's Central Committee, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith.

The National Silver League was organized at a meeting in San Francisco, with the announced purpose of renouncing the coinage ratio at not less than 15 1/2 ounces of silver to 1 ounce of gold. Frank H. Norcross of Reno, former chief justice of the Nevada Supreme Court, was chosen president, and Charles B. Thomas, former United States senator from Colorado, vice president.

Two-year-old Velma Anderson's parents consider training her for some future Olympiad. Recently the baby fell into a pond three feet deep near her home in Sacramento. She came to the surface and swam. She had swum nearly half way across the pond when her mother caught her and undressed her. The mother, a brother and a sister, who witnessed the spectacle, reported that little Velma kicked her little feet and swung her arms in a natural unison, propelling herself sturdily.

WASHINGTON

Enactment of the administration's ship subsidy bills without radical change, is the hope of President Harding and shipping board officials. Chairman Laaker told members of the Senate commerce commission and House merchant marine committees at the session of joint hearings on the measure.

Telegrams have been dispatched by Congress to operators in the central competitive field, representing approximately three-fourths of the coal production of the nation, asking them to meet officials of the miners' union for the purpose of negotiating a new wage agreement and ending the strike.

A bold attempt to rob the Merchants Bank, a block from the United States treasury, was made by three bandits recently. The three men smashed a big pile of bills containing $20,000 and dashed for the door. The cashier fired three shots at them. One of the bandits was captured when a guard in football fashion brought him down with a flying tackle. The money was recovered.

The killing of Dr. Lorey Shelton, medical missionary of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church), by bandits in Tibet last month followed the doctor's refusal "to accept the advice of local authorities" against proceeding into a disturbed area, according to correspondence between the State Department and the Chinese government, copies of which have been transmitted to and were made public in Washington by Senator Spencer of Missouri.

Nearly 200 army officers now on duty in the District of Columbia are to be relieved from duty as the result of an investigation conducted by the inspector general's department with a view to the reduction of the military establishment in Washington, it was announced at the War Department.

Work in the harbor at Genoa, which has been suspended by a strike in sympathy with the striking port workers at Naples, has been resumed.

The Chamber of Deputies at Paris, after discussion of the interpellation on the government's foreign policy, voted confidence in the Poincare ministry. The vote was 484 to 78.

The French and Belgian governments accepted the full American claim for reimbursement for the cost of the United States forces on the Rhine, as outlined in the recent notes by Secretary of State Hughes.

The overwhelming victory of Prime Minister Lloyd George in the House of Commons when he was given the confidence of the house by a vote of 372-94, has had the effect of a quick, violent thunder storm in clearing the political atmosphere.

M. Jeanne, betrayer of Edith Cavell, British war nurse, was found guilty in Brussels and sentenced to death for his act. Miss Cavell was executed by the Germans during their occupation at Brussels, on the ground she was a spy and revealed secrets to the allies.

A cabinet bill authorizing the government to raise a forced loan of 1,500,000,000 drachmas (now about $87,500,000) was introduced in the national assembly at Athens. The measure provides that all persons possessing paper currency must lend 50 per cent to the state.

Death of former King Charles in Madeira has been announced in Budapest. The news of the death of Charles caused widespread feelings of regret among all classes of the people. Even those who were opposed to the former king were moved to expressions of sympathy by the tragic and lonely end of his career.

The remarks of Alazon B. Houghton, American ambassador to Germany, on the occasion of the farewell dinner tendered him recently prior to his departure for Berlin, are given unusual prominence by the German newspapers. Some of the newspapers call Mr. Houghton as a "peace-ambassador," whose sentiments accord him a "hearty welcome."

GENERAL

Five cars of the Dominion express on the Pennsylvania railroad slid down a twenty-foot embankment into the old Pennsylvania canal at Halifax, near Harrisburg. The train was bound from Buffalo to Washington.

Several thousand railroad employees—members of coal crews—found themselves out of employment as a result of the coal-mine suspension. In the Wilkes-Barre, Penn., district, some 2,000 railroad men were idle.

Paul Hartung, 24, confessed, according to Chicago police, that he had committed more than 300 burglaries during the last four months. During the burglaries, he said, his wife accompanied him and acted as lookout. And, because there was no place to leave the 1-year-old baby, they took it along in a perambulator, in which the stolen articles were concealed.

Wall street is arming itself against bandits. During the last few months between 10,000 and 12,000 bankers, brokers and others who handle money in the financial district have taken out permits for employees to carry revolvers, according to police department records. The New York police department has issued about 25,000 permits since the first of the year.

The federal power commission has approved the issuance of a final license to the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation of Fresno, Calif., for the construction of a hydraulic power plant on the north and west forks of the Kings river in California. The project will cost approximately $50,000,000, according to the plans submitted will develop 250,000 horsepower and 350,000 kilowatts.

A spectacular fire completely wrecked the southeast wing of the Mammoth Glucose plant at Davenport, Iowa, resulting in a loss of $300,000. The origin of the blaze is unknown. A score of firemen narrowly escaped injury when a wall collapsed under the roof on which they were working.

Mischivous boys playing near the New York Central tracks at Ludlow, New York, almost wrecked the Waterloo express from the west by obstructing the tracks with heavy planks and galvanized pipes. A possible serious accident was averted by the engineer, who saw the danger in time and clamped on the emergency brakes, bringing the train to a stop just as the engine pilot touched the barricade.

Herbert Clayton, 11 years old, under arrest in Portland, Ore., has confessed twenty-two successful forgeries, police detectives say. By representing himself as a caddy at times and at other times as a newsboy, he found it an easy matter to induce merchants to cash checks ranging from $2.50 to $10 each. His twenty-two checks aggregated about $100, according to the police.

Two airplanes from Ellington field crashed near South Houston, Texas, recently and came down in flames. Both pilots were killed. Major Blumonde, pilot of one plane, was burned to death, and Lieutenant Fitzpatrick, pilot of the other machine, died a few minutes after the accident.

An agreement for the evacuation of Japanese from Shanghai was signed in Peking by Japanese Minister Ohata and Foreign Minister Wang. It was announced in Tokyo. The withdrawal agreement is to start April 10 and will be concluded April 20.

THE DEBATE.

Synopsis.—With his grandfather, small Ramsey Milholland is watching the "Decoration Day Parade" in the home town. The old gentleman, a veteran of the Civil war, endeavors to impress the youngster with the significance of the great conflict, and many years afterward the boy was to remember his words with startling vividness. In the schoolroom, a few years afterward, Ramsey is not distinguished for remarkable ability, though his pronounced shyness, arthritic, "recalcitrant" and German. In sharp contrast to Ramsey's backwardness is the precocity of little Dora Yocum, a young lady whom in his bitterness he denominated "Teacher's Pet." In high school, where he and Dora are classmates, Ramsey continues to feel that the girl delights to manifest her superiority, and the vindictiveness he generates becomes alarming, culminating in the resolution that some day he will "show" her. At a class picnic Ramsey is captured bag and baggage by Milla Rust, the class beauty, and endures the agonies of his first love. Ramsey's parents object to Milla and wish her taken up with Dora Yocum. Ramsey kisses Milla. Then Milla suddenly leaves town. She marries. Ramsey enters the state university and there is Dora Yocum again.

Concluding his reading, which was oral, the voluble Mitchell made use of his voice in a manner of heathenish boisterousness, and presently reclined upon a lounge to laugh the better. His stricken comrade, meanwhile, recovered so far as to pace the floor. "I'm going to pack up and light out for home!" he declared over and over. And even oftener he read and reread the card to make sure of the actuality of that fatal coincidence, "D. Yocum, '18."

"If I could do it," he vociferated, "if I could stand up there and debate one of their darn ole debates in the first place—if I had the gall to even try it, why, my gosh! you don't suppose I'm going to get up there and argue with that girl, do you? That's a hot way to get an education: stand up there and argue with a girl before a couple o' hundred people! My gosh!"

"You got to!" his prostrate companion cackled, weakly. "You can't get out of it. You're a goner, ole Buddy!"

"I'll be sick, I'll be sick as a dog! I'll be sick as the sickest dog that ever—"

"No use, ole man. The frat seniors'll be on the job. They'll know whether you're sick or not, and they'll have you there, right on the spot to the minute!"

The prediction was accurate. The too fatherly "frat seniors" did all that Fred said they would, and more. For the honor of the "frat," they coached the desperate Ramsey in the technique of oratorical debate, told him many more things to say than could be said in six minutes, and produced him, despairing, ghastly and bedewed, in the large hall of the Lumen society at eight o'clock on Friday evening.

Four other "twelve-minute debates" preceded his and the sound of these, in Ramsey's ears, was the sound of Gabriel practising on his horn in the early morning of Judgment day. The members of the society sat, three rows deep, along the walls of the room, leaving a clear oblong of green carpet in the center, where were two small desks, twenty feet apart, the rostrums of the debaters. Upon a platform at the head of the room sat dreadful seniors, the officers of the society, and, upon benches near the platform, the debaters of the evening were aligned. One of the fraternal seniors sat with sweltering Ramsey; and the latter, as his time relentlessly came nearer, made a last miserable squint.

"Look here, Brother Colburn, I got to get out o' here."

"No, you don't, young fellow."

"Yes, I do!" Ramsey whispered, passionately. "Honest, I do. Honest, Brother Colburn, I got to get a drink of water. I got to!"

"No, you can't."

"Honest, Colburn, I got—"

"Hush!"

Ramsey cast his dilating eyes along the rows of faces. Most of them were but as blurs, swimming, yet he was aware (he thought) of a formidable and horrible impassive scrutiny of himself, a glare seeming to pierce through him to the back of the belt round his waist, so that he began to have fearful doubts about that belt, about every fastening and adjustment of his garments, about the expression of his countenance, and many other things jumbling together in his consciousness. Over and over he whispered gaspingly to himself the opening words of the sentence with which a senior had advised him to begin his argument. And as the moment of se-

preme agony drew close, this whispering became continuous: "In making my first appearance before this honorable membership I feel constrained to say in making my first appearance before this honorable membership I feel constrained to say in making my first appearance before this honorable mem—"

... It had come. The chairman announced the subject of the fourth freshman twelve-minute debate; and Dora Yocum, hitherto unperceived by Ramsey, rose and went forward to one of the small desks in the open space, where she stood composedly, a slim, pretty figure in white. Members in Ramsey's neighborhood were aware of a brief and hushed commotion, and a fierce whisper, "You can't! You get up there!" And the blanched Ramsey came forth and placed himself at the other desk.

He stood before the silent populace of that morgue, and it seemed to him that his features had forgotten that he was supposed to be their owner and in control of them; he felt that they were slipping all over his face, regardless of his wishes. His head, as a whole, was subject to an agitation not before known by him; it desired to move restlessly in eccentric ways of its own devising; his legs alternately limbered and straightened under no direction but their own; and his hands clutched each other fiercely behind his back; he was not one cohesive person, evidently, but an assembled collection of parts, which had relapsed each into its own individuality. In spite of them, he somehow contrived the semblance of a bow toward the chairman and the semblance of another toward Dora, of whom he was but hazily conscious. Then he opened his mouth and, not knowing how he had started his voice going, heard it as if from a distance.

"In making my first appearance before this honorable membership I feel constrained to say—" He stopped short, and thenceforward shook viol-ly. After a long pause, he managed to repeat his opening, stopped again, swallowed many times, produced a handkerchief and wiped his face, an act of necessity—then had an inspiration.

"The subject assigned to me," he said, "is resolved that Germany is morally and legally justified in Belgium—Belgium! This subject was assigned to me to be the subject of this debate." He interrupted himself to gasp piteously, found breathing difficult, but faltered on again: "This subject is the subject. It is the subject that was assigned to me on a postal card." Then, for a moment or so, he had a miraculous spurt of confidence, and continued, rather rapidly: "I feel constrained to say that the country of Belgium—Belgium, I mean—this country has been constrained, by the invaded I mean—invaded by the Imperial German Empire and my subject in this debate is whether it ought to or not, my being the infernal, affirmative I mean—that I got to prove that Germany is morally and legally justified. I wish to state that—"

He paused again, lengthily, then struggled on. "I have been requested to state that the German Empire—[that it certainly isn't right for those Dutch—Germans, I mean—they haven't got any more business in Belgium than I have myself, but I—I feel constrained to say that I had to accept whatever side of this debate I got on the postal card, and so I am constrained to take the side of the Dutch. I mean the Germans. The Dutch are sometimes called—I mean the Germans are sometimes called the Dutch in this country, just they aren't Dutch, though sometimes called Dutch in this country. Well, and so—so, well, the war began last August or about then, anyway, and the German army invaded the Belgian army. After they got there, the invasion began. First, they came around there and then they commenced invading. Well, what I feel constrained—"

He came to the longest of all his pauses here, and the awful gravity of the audience almost suffocated him. "Well," he concluded, "it don't look right to me."

"Four minutes!" the chairman announced, for Ramsey's pauses had worn away a great deal more of this terrible interval than had his eloquence. "Opening statement for the negative: Miss D. Yocum. Four minutes."

As Dora began to speak, Ramsey experienced a little relief, but only a little—about the same amount of relief as that felt by a bridegroom when it is the bride's turn to "respond," not really relief at all, but merely the slight relaxation of a continuing strain. The audience now looked at Ramsey no more than people look at a bridegroom, but he failed to perceive any substantial mitigation of his frightful consciousness. He had not the remotest idea of what he had said in setting forth his case for Germany, and he knew that it was his duty to listen closely to Dora, in order to be able to refute her argument when his two-minute closing speech fell due; but he was conscious of little more than his own condition. His legs had now gone wild beyond all control, and he had to keep shifting his weight from one to the other in order even to hope that their frenzy might escape general attention.

He realized that Dora was speaking rapidly and confidently, and that somewhere in his life-assembled parts lurked a familiar bit of him that objected to her even more than usual; but she had used half of her time, at least, before he was able to gather any coherent meaning from what she was saying. Even then he caught only a fragment, here and there, and for the rest—so far as Ramsey was concerned—she might as well have been reciting the Swedish alphabet.

In spite of the rather startling feebleness of her opponent's statement, Dora went at her task as earnestly as if it were to confute some monster of casuistry. "Thus, having demonstrated that all war is wrong," she said, approaching her conclusion, "it is scarcely necessary to point out that whatever the actual circumstances of the invasion, and whatever the status of the case in international law, or by reason of treaty, or the German oath to respect the neutrality of Belgium, which of course was grossly and dishonorably violated—all this, I say, ladies and gentlemen of the Lumen society, all this is beside the point of morals. Since, as I have shown, all war is wrong, the case may be simplified as follows: All war is morally wrong. Quod erat demonstrandum. Germany invaded Belgium. Invasion is war. Germany, therefore, did moral wrong. Upon the legal side, as I began by pointing out, Germany confessed in the rehashing the violation of law. Therefore, Germany was justified in the invasion neither morally nor legally; but was both morally and legally wrong and evil. Ladies and gentlemen of the Lumen society, I await the refutation of my opponent!"

Her opponent appeared to be having enough trouble with his legs, without taking any added cares upon himself in the way of refutations. But the marvelous Dora had calculated the length of her statement with such nicety that the chairman announced "Four minutes," almost upon the instant of her final syllable; and all faces turned once more to the upholder of the affirmative. "Refutation and conclusion by the affirmative," said the chairman, "Mr. R. Milholland. Two minutes."

Therewith, Ramsey coughed as long as he could cough, and when he felt that no more should be done in this way, he wiped his face—again an act of necessity—and quaveringly began: "Gentlemen and ladies, or ladies and gentlemen, in making the refutation of my opponent, I feel that—I feel that hardly anything more ought to be said."

He paused, looked helplessly at his uncontrollable legs, and resumed: "I am supposed to make the refutation of my opponent, and I feel that I ought to say quite a deal more. In the first place, I feel that the invasion has taken place. I am supposed—anyhow I got a postal card that I am supposed to be here tonight. Well, in talking over this matter with a couple of seniors, they told me I was supposed to claim this invasion was morally and legally all right. Well— Here, by some chance, the recollection of a word of Dora's flickered into his chaotic mind, and he had a brighter moment. "My opponent said she proved all war is wrong—or something like that, anyhow. She said she proved it was wrong to fight, no matter what. Well, if she wasn't a girl, anybody that wanted to get her to fight could probably do it." He did not add that he would be the person to make the experiment (if Dora weren't a girl), nor did the thought enter his mind until an hour or so later. "Well," he added, "I suppose there is little more to be said."

It becomes understood that Ramsey is a woman-hater.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE ELVES' VISIT

"The Elves," said Daddy, "had gone to visit their friends, the Willow trees. There was one especially big one on the side of a river. There were many other Willow trees along either bank of the river, but there was one which the Elves loved above all the others. It was very, very big and spreading. Its lovely green feathery leaves hung down so gracefully, and some of them touched the water as though they were drinking from a spring which would make them live a long life and which would always make them beautiful.

"The Elves had gone to visit the Willow tree, early one summer morning. Fly-High, their big black bird with the enormous wings, had carried them there, and Fly-High was taking a rest while the Elves were playing and visiting with the Willow tree.

"Fly-High had been carrying them all and was a little bit weary, and also a little bit sleepy and he loved to take a nap on the soft mossy bank of the river, where all about him were lovely blue forget-me-nots growing in the soft, marshy earth.

"Dear Willow tree," said Elsie Elf, "you have no idea how glad we are to find you at home."

"Then the Willow tree laughed, a lovely low whispering kind of a laugh.

"As though you thought I would not be at home," the Willow tree said.

"Of course," said Elsie Elf, "we're very glad to find you out! That doesn't always sound polite, in fact it would very seldom sound polite if we said it, I mean to say," Elsie went on, "that if we should say such a thing to almost any one else it would be very rude."

"For it would mean we were glad not to have found the person or creature in and that we didn't really want to see them.

"But with you, it is different. For you are always out. And when you are out it doesn't mean that you are not at home to visitors. Nor does it mean that you are not ready to receive visitors."

"Of course," said the Willow tree. "I understand what you mean."

"And so when we say we're so glad to find you at home," Elsie Elf continued, "we not only mean it but we also mean that we know this in your home, and to find you at home means that you are out-of-doors by the river bank, in your dear old home."

"You don't go changing homes all the time. You stay in the same home. You find a lovely place for your home and then you stay there. And so many of your family, too, have chosen to live along this river. Really, it's like a Willow Town. I believe I will call it Willow Town!"

"Do," said the Willow tree. "I would like to have a town named after me, even if it were only a river bank, or two banks of one river. I've never had a town named after me that I know of, though of course one can never be sure. I'd like to hear of it if there were any town named after me."

"Willow tree," said Elsie Elf, "why do people think you're so?"

"I suppose it is because my long leaves seem to be weeping because they hang down and droop down and drop down and drop down as tears would."

"To be sure, I might weep if life were very sad. But I don't need to weep. It would be very seldom that anything would make me weep, I am sure."

"And though my branches hang down and my leaves seem to be weeping, I should think people could see that my green leaves look very bright and lovely, and not at all as though they were covered with tears."

"I'm not sad, though I am known as the Weeping Willow. I am happy, for so many love me and admire me, and come to me for shade and quiet."

"Ah, Willow," said Elsie Elf, "it is good to know that you are happy, for such a lovely tree as you are should never, never, never be sad!"

No, Just Sawdust.

A lady one day observed a small boy sprinkling sawdust on the ice to prevent pedestrians falling.

"That's real benevolence," declared the good lady.

"No, 'tain't," growled the boy, indignantly. "It's sawdust!"

"Carried Them There."

They were drinking from a spring which would make them live a long life and which would always make them beautiful.

"The Elves had gone to visit the Willow tree, early one summer morning. Fly-High, their big black bird with the enormous wings, had carried them there, and Fly-High was taking a rest while the Elves were playing and visiting with the Willow tree.

"Then the Willow tree laughed, a lovely low whispering kind of a laugh.

"As though you thought I would not be at home," the Willow tree said.

"Of course," said Elsie Elf, "we're very glad to find you out! That doesn't always sound polite, in fact it would very seldom sound polite if we said it, I mean to say," Elsie went on, "that if we should say such a thing to almost any one else it would be very rude."

"For it would mean we were glad not to have found the person or creature in and that we didn't really want to see them.

"But with you, it is different. For you are always out. And when you are out it doesn't mean that you are not at home to visitors. Nor does it mean that you are not ready to receive visitors."

"Of course," said the Willow tree. "I understand what you mean."

"And so when we say we're so glad to find you at home," Elsie Elf continued, "we not only mean it but we also mean that we know this in your home, and to find you at home means that you are out-of-doors by the river bank, in your dear old home."

"You don't go changing homes all the time. You stay in the same home. You find a lovely place for your home and then you stay there. And so many of your family, too, have chosen to live along this river. Really, it's like a Willow Town. I believe I will call it Willow Town!"

"Do," said the Willow tree. "I would like to have a town named after me, even if it were only a river bank, or two banks of one river. I've never had a town named after me that I know of, though of course one can never be sure. I'd like to hear of it if there were any town named after me."

"Willow tree," said Elsie Elf, "why do people think you're so?"

"I suppose it is because my long leaves seem to be weeping because they hang down and droop down and drop down and drop down as tears would."

"To be sure, I might weep if life were very sad. But I don't need to weep. It would be very seldom that anything would make me weep, I am sure."

"And though my branches hang down and my leaves seem to be weeping, I should think people could see that my green leaves look very bright and lovely, and not at all as though they were covered with tears."

"I'm not sad, though I am known as the Weeping Willow. I am happy, for so many love me and admire me, and come to me for shade and quiet."

"Ah, Willow," said Elsie Elf, "it is good to know that you are happy, for such a lovely tree as you are should never, never, never be sad!"

No, Just Sawdust.

A lady one day observed a small boy sprinkling sawdust on the ice to prevent pedestrians falling.

"That's real benevolence," declared the good lady.

"No, 'tain't," growled the boy, indignantly. "It's sawdust!"

Jamestown, La.—"I suffered with my right side, back and head. I am forty-two years old now and my health is very good, tho' when I think I need a medicine I get the Favorite Prescription, as it is the only medicine I ever got that did me any good. I tried several doctors, but none of them helped me. Now I am enjoying good health."—Mrs. Ida Youngblood.

Denver Fashion Show Huge Success.

Denver—All Denver was delighted with the recent fashion display. Dame Fashion with Mr. Fashion and all the little fashions, were on exhibition in the windows of a hundred or more stores in downtown Denver.

Even the weather man smiled kindly on the event and fair weather for Denver and vicinity was enjoyed during the show.

Keen interest was shown in the show and so large was the attendance on Sixteenth street that one-way traffic was provided.

"Wild Man" Is Not Fugitive.

Doylestown, Pa.—Quakertown's "wild man" now in the Bucks county prison, is not Adam Weaver, wanted for the slaying of a constable in the Haycock mountains twenty-two years ago, Chief of Police Harry Rhodes has announced. Chief Rhodes said he was convinced the prisoner was Roy Hecox of Homer township, Illinois. Several residents of the neighborhood where Weaver formerly lived had declared that "Hecox bore a remarkable resemblance to the fugitive."

Will Investigate Freight Rates.

Washington—The Interstate Commission has determined to institute an investigation of freight rates on bituminous coal produced in Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Montana and shipped to states further West and to El Paso, Texas. The investigation will be made in response to dissatisfaction manifested against coal rates in the Western part of the United States. A hearing will be held in May.

Princess Will Marry Officer.

Copenhagen—It is understood that the Princess Thira, sister of King Christian, is soon to be married to an officer of the guards not of the nobility.

They are said to have fallen in love with each other several years ago, but the King had steadfastly refused to consent to their marriage. The marriage of Princess Mary of England to Viscount Lascelles, a commoner, however, is reported to have brought about the change in the King's attitude.

Masned Chorus Will Sing.

A mixed chorus of more than 100 voices will sing compositions of Denver composers on the closing night of Music Week in the auditorium, May 21.

"Out Where the West Begins," the famous poem by Arthur Chapman, will be one of two Colorado songs rendered by the mixed chorus, while the other song will be "Sweet Columbine," a selection from the outdoor fantasy, "The Awakening," which will be presented at the auditorium during Music Week.

Colorado Grass Supply Decreased.

Denver—Stocks of grain on Colorado farms the first day of March were nearly 10,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. The reserves of the four principal cereals grown in the state totalled 15,194,000 bushels, compared with 26,695,000 bushels last year, and 10,421,000 bushels in 1920. All cereals showed a reduction with the exception of oats. Smaller crops of each grain except oats, and the producers' need for cash are the principal factors in the greatly reduced stocks of this year.
