Entertained Big Audience Monday Night

Last Monday night at the Crystal Theater, the Carrizozo Entertainers pleased an audience that filled that popular resort to overflowing. It was an All-Carrizozo entertainment and lived up to all expectations. From the opening to the closing chorus, there was not a dull moment. Miss Lorena Sager and Mrs. Albert Ziegler in their piano duets, Miss Carolyn Roberts in her vocal solo, and Miss Hilary Cooper in her impersonation of the Southern "Mammy" were all received with the most deserving applause. The opening chorus, with the Misses Cooper, Roberts, White and Taylor, the Messrs. Prude, Jones, Appelget and Rowland performed their parts in an admirable manner. Cards were placed near the left wing of the stage by the little Miss Ruth Brickley announcing each number on the program as they came in regular order, and, as the orchestra number from the stage was announced, there was a slight lull as that organization shifted its position from the pit to the stage.

As the big curtain was raised, the most successful "gloom-chasing" musical organization Carrizozo has ever had faced an appreciative audience. In the beginning, they had given the hearers "Poet and Peasant," but this time the great audience was ready for the merrier side of music. It was well rewarded with the "Wabash Blues." The players added to the hilarious selection with gestures and jazz movements, producing a like sensation of humor on the audience which swayed and applauded with the jazz of the violin, tinkle of the piano, rattle of drums, "tootle out" of the clarinet, the "fantastic" wail of the cornet, long, slippery slides of the trombone, combined with the moaning of the saxophone. The closing chorus marked one of the most successful musical entertainments music lovers have witnessed in Carrizozo. Senator Brickley is to be congratulated on its success and Mr. Geo. Ferguson on his splendid musical organization, without which, success would have been impossible.

Hon. F. G. Tracy

Hon. Francis G. Tracy, candidate for United States Senator on the Republican ticket and A. D. Hill of Lake Arthur, N. M., were in town on Wednesday looking over the ground they could in favor of Mr. Tracy's candidacy. Mr. Tracy is a gentleman who makes friends wherever he goes. There is no camouflage about him. He makes no forward dashes or grand stand plays, but his statements are verified by his honest, conscientious bearing which will cause his candidacy to gain in favor as time goes by. Mr. Hill, his companion, like Mr. Tracy, is a pleasant gentleman and a veritable giant and if the candidate's strength in politics could be measured according to the physical strength that accompanies him on his trip, his success is already assured. But to be serious, Mr. Tracy's chances are good.

Kaiser's Adherents Plan Bloody Stroke

Berlin, June 16.—The independent socialist newspaper, Die Freiheit, today features a sensational communication "from a well informed source" announcing that a Pan-German "Putsch" is impending.

The writer states that various military parades which have been going on throughout Germany recently were not merely displays; but serious preparations for a monarchist coup d'etat, which he says is to be preceded by a sort of St. Bartholomew's night, in which all persons whose names are entered on a special blacklist will be given "short shrift." The writer declares the ministry of defense and the police are implicated in the movement.

Resolutions warning against probable demonstrations against the republic, set for June 28, were adopted yesterday by the directors of the majority socialist party, the socialist Vorwaerts announces.

The resolutions say the nationalists associations, with German officers and ex-soldiers, are reported as intending to hold demonstrations throughout the country on June 28, the anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Versailles. These demonstrations, it is declared, have always degenerated into militaristic and monarchistic displays.

Brotherhood to Go Into Coal Mining

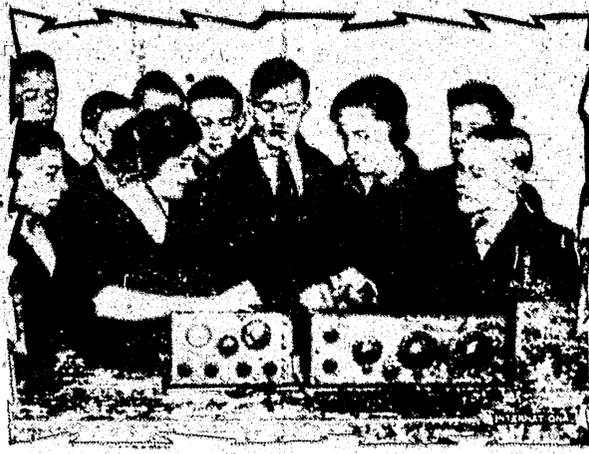

Cleveland, O., June 19.—The Brotherhood of Locomotion Engineers has "tackled the coal problem," according to a statement by Albert F. Cole, editor of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' journal. "The Locomotive Engineers are making a $2,000,000 investment in West Virginia and Kentucky coal mines," said Mr. Coyle, "which means not only a fair deal for the miners but better and cheaper coal for the consuming public."

"The leading officers of the Brotherhood have obtained control of more than 6,000 acres of the best coal land in the United States, situated on the Coal River in Boone county, West Virginia, and in Floyd county, the heart of the Big Sandy Coal district, near Prestonburg, Kentucky. The Coal River collieries, as the new company is called, is owned by hundreds of locomotive engineers throughout the country, who have subscribed in small amounts to the capital stock of $2,000,000."

"The Engineers are not only going into the business of mining coal; they are also planning the establishment of retail yards to sell their coal at reasonable prices to railwaymen and other workers in the large cities. Locomotive engineers and their friends have already organized these auxiliary coal yards in Ohio and Michigan, and have placed contracts with coal companies for delivery direct from the mine pits to the consumers."

RADIO

CRYSTAL DETECTOR EASY TO CONSTRUCT

Telephone Condenser and Receivers Can Better Be Purchased—Mounting the Set.

The material needed to construct a simple crystal detector is as follows: A block of shellacked or stained wood 3 by 3 1/2 inches. A thin strip of sheet copper or brass 1/4 inches wide by two inches long.

Two binding posts, 20 cents. A block of shellacked or stained wood 3 by 3 1/2 inches.

A thin strip of sheet copper or brass 1/4 inches wide by two inches long.

Mount the two binding posts on the block of wood as shown, fastening under one binding post a strip of copper or brass—see sketch—and under the other binding post a coiled up spring of fine springy copper or brass wire. By placing the button of metal con-ments, the tuner, the crystal detector and the telephone condenser, can be mounted on a stained base of wood, say, eight inches square and one-half inch thick. This will keep the component parts of the set together, making a compact unit of the whole and also be advantageous in that it will hold the instruments while adjustments are being made.

The sketch shows how the instruments are connected with each other and to the ground. The condenser is connected to one side of the tuner and to the crystal detector. The ground is connected to the other side of the phone and the condenser and the tuner.

Lamp cord is excellent for connecting up small radio sets of this kind—it being a good conductor, well insulated and easy to handle.

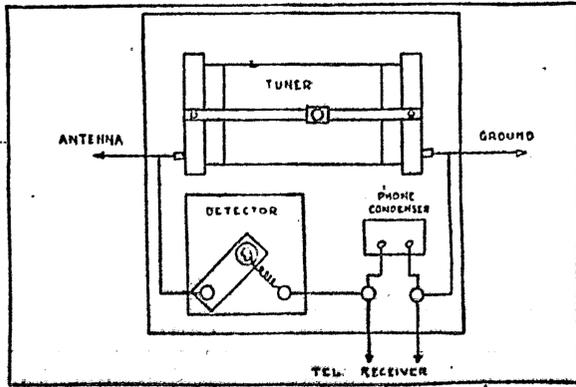

HOW TO LISTEN IN

There are two variables in our radio receiver that require adjustment when it is desired to listen in; first the detector, and second, the slider position on the tuner. Once the slider position has been determined for any given transmitting station, it is only necessary to adjust the detector to pick up that same station again.

To operate the receiver for the first time it is best to wait until some station like KDKA is transmitting between 8:30 and 9:30 p. m. Then ad-

The Crystal Detector.

Set Mounted on Base, With Connections Shown.

taining the crystal of silicon or galena on the strip of metal and allowing the spring to make contact with the surface of the crystal the detector is complete and ready for operation.

A complete crystal detector can be purchased from 75 cents to $2, depending upon the type.

Two other pieces of apparatus are necessary that cannot be readily constructed—they are the telephone condenser and the receiver. A telephone condenser to be used in shunting across the phones can be purchased for about 50 cents.

For use with a radio receiver of this type it is recommended that a pair of 3,000 ohm, Murdoch type, No. 50 receivers, costing $6, be purchased. These are all the necessary parts needed for the complete receiver.

If it is desired, the three instruments, the tuner, the crystal detector and the telephone condenser, can be purchased from 75 cents to $2, depending upon the type.

After a station is once picked up it is an easy matter to adjust the detector and slider position until maximum response is obtained in the telephone receiver. With a simple set of the kind described in this and preceding articles and a little practice one soon becomes adept at picking up a given station. The entertainment derived from listening in is usually well worth the time spent and the money invested.

J. J. Sullivan Dies at His Ohio Home

A telegram was received Thursday morning by Bernit Humphrey from Lima, Ohio, announcing the death of J. J. Sullivan, who was for years foreman of the boiler department of the local E. P. & S. W. shops at this point. Mr. Sullivan's health had not been encouraging for some time previous to his leaving here about two months ago, when he accompanied his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Murphey, back to Ohio on their return trip from the coast. Mr. Humphrey had received several letters from him since his departure, all of which contained words of encouragement and this sudden news will be a sad surprise to his many Carrizozo friends. In torment, said the message, will be in Lima.

Double Header Last Sunday

Last Sunday afternoon, the Tularosa base ball team crossed bats with the Carrizozo East-Siders in a game that was full of pep and good plays. The game was umpired by Ernie Dingwall and Wayne Van Schoyck and resulted in favor of the visitors by score of 5 to 2.

The next game was played by the White Oaks team and the Carrizozo Nationals, and while this was not so exciting as the former one, there was enough interest to keep the fans going until the close of the game. It finally resulted in a victory for the Nationals 10 to 5. The Nationals will play the Tularosa team at Tularosa next Sunday and Corona will be down to play the East-Siders across the track.

Gratefulness

Mrs. S. C. Gray is in receipt of a letter from Mrs. J. E. Palmer, sister of Mrs. Frederick who at one time lived in Lincoln county and whose husband died here. In the letter, which was written for her sister, Mrs. Palmer, thanks Mrs. Gray for a past kindnesses and wishes her to convey the same word to her many friends here, who performed acts of kindness during her trouble and bereavement. She is now in a hospital in Kansas City, but is able to be taken out occasionally in a wheel chair.

Neighbor Saves Child After Fall Into Well

Mescalero, N. M., June 20.—Martha Leah Cohen, age 8, narrowly escaped drowning early yesterday morning, when she fell into a cistern at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. M. E. Prude, aroused by Mrs. Prude's screams, Frank Finney, who lives nearby, jumped into the cistern and succeeded in rescuing the little girl.

FLOWER THOUGHTS

There never was a flower
On earth that blew in vain,
No matter where it's smiling
In sunshine or in rain;
The world is sweeter for it
When its grace is shed
And in the dust it's lying,
Shattered, withered, dead.
There never was a tiny
Kindly little thought
Born in the lowest bosom
But to the world it brought
And left a gentle fragrance
Beyond the thinker's hour,
An ethereal immortality,
A sweet and fearless power.

Beautiful Washington Memorial

Washington, June 21.—(Capital News Service)—The first spadeful of earth has been turned on Shooters Hill, just outside of Alexandria, Va., where will be located the beautiful memorial to George Washington, the Mason, now being erected by the Masonic fraternity of the United States.

Washington, as Master of what is now known as Washington-Alexandria Lodge, F. A. A. M., left many relics of the most important historic interest. These now in the possession of the lodge in the old Virginia city, will be suitably housed in the beautiful fireproof temple to be erected on a commanding elevation between Alexandria and Washington, D. C.

The building is to cost two and half millions of dollars and is to commemorate the Masonic activities of the Father of his country, who carried Masonic teachings into his every official act, and who gave an impetus to the Masonic activities of the United States which is still a guiding force.

It is the plan of the association to erect a building which will be a Mecca for Masons throughout the world and one which will compare favorably in beauty with the Lincoln Memorial recently dedicated in Washington and the House of the Temple, magnificent home of the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite for the Southern Jurisdiction, which has brought to Washington, D. C., the boast of having the most beautiful fraternal temple in the entire world.

Pussyfoot Balks; Won't Ride on Booze Scows

New York, June 21.—When W. (Pussyfoot) Johnson sails to resume his prohibition drive in Liverpool tomorrow, it will be on a British steamer, Schythia. "I will not ride on American bootleg scows," he said, "I don't consider such ships as being safe to ride on."

"The managers of the United States shipping board have spent much money in advertising in American newspapers, appealing to Americans to ride on their ships for patriotic reasons, while they advertise in European papers to ride on American ships because there is plenty of 'booze' on board. I don't know what these shipping board folks could do to make America more ridiculous in the eyes of the world."

German Military Mission Causes Concern

Paris, June 21.—French official circles are displaying considerable concern over the arrival in Moscow of a German military mission of which Colonel Bower, chief aide to General Ludendorff, and Colonel Hentza, an assistant of Hugo Stinnes, are members.

The officials say they have reason to believe the military men have gone to Moscow to make a survey of the soviet army with a view to a possible military accord between Germany and Russia.

The presence of German officers in Moscow and the recent warlike utterance of M. Freundt, chief of staff of the bolshevik army, are regarded with significance by the French officials.

Washington.—Sale of liquor on shipping board vessels at sea will be continued, Chairman Lasker reiterated here, until a separate decision has been rendered holding such practice illegal under the prohibition laws or until he "has been convinced of its illegality."

Mr. Lasker maintained the position taken by him in his letter to Adolphus Trusch, III, vice president of the Anheuser-Busch Brewery Company, St. Louis, despite indication that it would be made the subject of attack in Congress and by dry organizations.

Officials of the Department of Justice refused to comment on the situation, but in some quarters attention was called to an opinion on file there which was rendered by former Acting Attorney General Frierson in 1920.

Mr. Frierson held that the national prohibition act was effective upon ships flying the American flag wherever they might be.

According to high department officials a decision of an attorney general retains the official interpretation of a law until it has been revoked by court decision or by a superseding opinion. Furthermore they added such opinion always stands unless request for a review comes from the same department or agency which originally requested the ruling.

Mr. Lasker's stand as to liquor sales on board American vessels was taken, he informed Mr. Trusch, on the authority of an opinion rendered by General Counsel Schlesinger of the shipping board.

The chairman conferred with Attorney General Baugherty and while there were some copies of the correspondence with the St. Louis brewer. The matter of liquor sales at sea was not the primary purpose of the conference, Mr. Lasker indicated, but it was brought up incidentally.

Referring to discuss his talk with Mr. Baugherty Chairman Lasker declared he would not ask the department for a new opinion, being entirely satisfied with that rendered by Mr. Schlesinger. He added that he would not answer further letters on the subject of liquor selling.

While there was no indication that there would be any move by an executive department in the matter, at the capital the Lasker-Lasker correspondence provoked considerable discussion among prohibition leaders ensuing as to the best of the attack on the board by Representative Galligan, Democrat, Massachusetts, for permitting the sale of liquor on American ships.

Neither the Galligan speech nor the opinion of the chief correspondence was indicative leaders their first knowledge of liquor selling at sea. During recent months many of them have received wire news from American vessels mailed in all parts of the world with forcible comments.

Merce Battle With Smugglers

Customs Guard Has Desperate Fight With Rum Runners on Mexican Border.

WIFE TELLS OF ENCOUNTER

Knives and Pistols Were Used in Battle in Brush on the Banks of the Rio Grande—Automobile Is Riddled.

Hidalgo, Tex.—One of the most desperate single-handed encounters which ever took place between a United States customs officer and a gang of Mexican smugglers on the Rio Grande border fell to the lot of Dick McConnell, a government river guard here, a few nights ago. McConnell, accompanied by his wife and two little daughters, was riding in an automobile along the Rio Grande, near town. Leaving the car, McConnell started toward the river bank. He had gone but a short distance when he was fired upon from ambush.

A bullet knocked off his hat. He rushed toward the spot from which the bullets were coming. He returned the fire as he ran into the brush and there came upon the two Mexicans. One of them grabbed him by the back of neck and a scuffle ensued, during which he received knife wounds and had his pistol holster cut to pieces. He drew a small gun, which he carried in the holster under his shirt, and fired at his assailant, whom he killed, and the body fell into the rapidly rising Rio Grande.

Mrs. McConnell, who was in the car at the time of the attack, gave the following account:

Wife's Account.
"I and the children were in the back seat of the car when we drove up near the river bank, near the small boat ferry landing. As my husband got out of the car and started to go down the bank there came a flash of a gun, almost in his face, and his hat fell off and something struck the car. Dick jumped back, pulled his automatic and began to shoot. Again and again came the flash and something struck the car again. The children and I could see the man who was shooting at my husband backing down under the bank and my husband walking toward him, shooting.

"They both disappeared under the bank when we heard a noise like men fighting or struggling. I was getting nervous and did not know what to do. We heard three more shots and I heard some one yell out in Mexican. Shortly after my husband came to the top of the bank holding his hands to his face and told me to drive to Deputy Collector J. R. Clark's house and bring him and also a lantern. I drove as fast as I could and returned with Clark and the lantern.

"We found my husband's hat near the car with a bullet hole in the top

WILL BUILD AERIAL HARBOR

Corporation at Gothenburg, Sweden, Prepares Plans for Joint Municipal Field.

Gothenburg, Sweden.—This city, with its extensive marine shipping facilities and its new free port, is now preparing to build an aerial harbor. It will have all the facilities required by sky pilots, an up-to-date service department and the latest conveniences for landing and taking off.

A corporation has been formed to build the air station and operate it in conjunction with the city authorities of Gothenburg. It is proposed that the city shall have the privilege of buying the company's shares in the enterprise after ten years and thus take over full control of the air port.

Airplane Search for Grain Pests

Remarkable Survey Being Conducted in Texas by U. S. Agricultural Department.

RUST SPORE BEING SOUGHT

Annual Loss in Wheat Alone Due to Stem Rust is Estimated at $4,000,000—Bushels—Mexico Believed to Be Source of Spore.

San Antonio, Tex.—One of the most remarkable surveys ever made under the direction of the United States Department of Agriculture is now in progress in Texas. It is that of searching the air for the spore that causes rust on growing wheat and oats. It is estimated that the annual loss in wheat alone due to stem rust is approximately $4,000,000 bushels. It is the theory of some agricultural scientists that the source of the spore which causes this enormous loss is in Mexico or perhaps South America and that it drifts through the air to the wheat fields of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and other states.

Airplane Search in Progress.
During the last two weeks an airplane search for the spores has been made at high altitudes above San Antonio. For this purpose an airplane from Kelly field is used, with Lieut. T. R. Booker as pilot and Wallace Butler as scientist.

Armed with a "spore trap" Mr. Butler has made six exposures at varying altitudes on each aerial journey. These plates have been sent to the office of cereal investigation for examination. Thus far no reports have been given out of the findings.

Anyone who walks through an oat field in this part of the state now will come out with his shoes covered with a yellowish powder which has brushed off from the innumerable little yellow leaves.

This powder any farmer will tell one is rust. In this case the leaf rust of oats. Every little yellow spot on the leaf is a pustule of leaf rust, each pustule being made up of from one to several thousand tiny seed bodies or spores which are pushed up through the epidermis of the leaf from a sort of root structure or mass of threads which are growing within the leaf. These threads are very minute and can be seen only by the aid of the microscope. The spores which are borne in such multitudes on the ends of little branches from these threads are also microscopic in size. The powder on the shoes after a trip through the oat field consists of millions of these spores.

Dew Helps.
When one of these spores falls on a drop of dew or other moisture on a leaf of oats it soon sends out a little root-like projection which, curling around this way and that, finds its way into the breathing pore or opening in the epidermis of the leaf and so gets into the leaf tissues. In due time it becomes the mass of threads which again send up the mass of spores, and so the process is repeated with favorable weather conditions about every two weeks.

The city authorities now have given notice that the curfew ordinance means just what it says and that it will continue to be strictly enforced, regardless of whose children may be affected and that negligent parents will be taken into court no matter how prominent they may be in the community.

Petersburg Resident Says She Had Almost Lost Hope of Getting Better—Now Well and Happy.

"Tanlac has been such a blessing to me I can't help singing its praises," said Mrs. T. J. Archer, highly esteemed resident of 1147 Shepard St., Petersburg, Va.

"I had indigestion so bad I couldn't eat a thing without being in misery for hours, and the pain around my heart caused by the gas seemed all I could stand. I constantly had headaches and awful spells of dizziness. Then to make matters worse rheumatism in my arms, shoulders and knees almost drove me to distraction, and for three months I couldn't do a stroke of work.

"I had just about decided it was no use to take any more medicine when my husband brought me a bottle of Tanlac. Now I never have a touch of indigestion. Headaches and dizzy spells are a thing of the past, and rheumatism has left me entirely. I never have known a medicine to equal Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Pay your debts first and give presents afterward.

WOMAN HAS HISTORIC PEN

Used by President Harrison When He Signed the Present American Copyright Bill.

The recent celebration by the League of American Pen Women of their twenty-fifth anniversary, or "silver jubilee," makes this story timely.

During the administration of Benjamin Harrison, the present American copyright bill was passed. William McKinley, then a member of the house of representatives, offered the bill, the data for which was supplied by Margaret Sullivan Burke, newspaper correspondent, and afterward first president of the League of American Pen Women. She gave this league its first home and its name.

Afterward, when President Harrison signed this bill, the pen with which he signed it was presented to Mrs. Burke by Elijah Halford, his private secretary, and one of her old Indiana friends. This pen is now in the possession of her daughter, Hilda Burke.

If you want "Uncle Sam to do it," of course, he is going to take your money to do it with.

THE PRAYER OF A HORSE

By Laurence E. Case.

O MAN, my Lord and Master, hear Thy prayer:

Water me, feed me, keep me clean and work me in reason. O Lord, when my day's work be done give me shelter from rain, wind and cold and a clean, dry bed in a stall wide enough for me to lie down in comfort. Do not tie my head in an unnatural position or cut off my tail, which is my only defense against flies. Do not, O Man, drive me rapidly down hill. O Lord, do be merciful and considerate of me in hot weather, and do not kick, strike or otherwise abuse me when I do not understand your desires. Prod me not with merciless spurs. Teach Thou me to understand Thy desires. Speak gently unto me, O Lord. Thy voice means more to me than whip and reins. I have a sense of humor. Play with me, and pet me, O Man, and I will gladly lend myself to Thee in willing service.

Have mercy on me, O Master, when I have colic, and do give me one spoonful of Di-Col-Q. It will relieve me quickly. When I have scours drench me with Di-Col-Q. And, O Master, when I be galled, have sores on shoulders or back, wire cuts, scratches, munge or swellings, apply Thou Di-Col-Q to mine affected parts and I will praise Thee for relief from mine afflictions. Di-Col-Q will enable me to do Thy bidding with delight.

O Man, Di-Col-Q is just as good for similar human ills.

Remember, O Lord, Di-Col-Q is made in mercy by New York Drug Concern, 401 Lafayette Street, New York City. Praise Thou this firm for their alleviation of beastly ills.

O Master, when I fail to eat examine my mouth for the cause. Do not work me when I can not eat. Be merciful unto me, O Man, and I will serve Thee and Thy family many years with a glad heart.

Finally, O Lord, when my youthful beauty and strength be gone, and my days of service ended, neither turn me out to starve and freeze, nor sell me to some cruel man to be tortured. O Man, if Thou be financially unable to care for me in my old days, take Thou my life in the kindest way.

Hear and answer my prayer, O My Lord, and YOUR God will reward you both here and in the hereafter.

With all reverence I so pray unto Thee in the name of Illm, who was born in a manger.—AMEN.

Like Father, Like Son.

Billy had received a small book for Easter containing Bible verses, on the cover of which appeared a picture of Jesus as the Good Shepherd seated amidst His flock and holding a lamb in His arms.

His father carefully explained the significance of the picture and added: "And you, my son, are one of His little lambs."

The child studied the picture a moment. "And you are one of the old sheep, are you, daddy?" was his guileless comment.

How It Is at College.

At one of the dormitories of a well-known college for women two young housemaids were comparing notes on academic life.

"Well," said Nora, dimpling, "the faculty has the brains, and the college girls has the clothes, but, believe me, the maids has the looks!" —Youth's Companion.

Disturbed Slumbers.
My sister and her two young sons visited grandmother last summer. The older one, who had a new toy dog, was much disturbed lest his dog's slumbers be disturbed by the noisy young brother.

One afternoon, shortly after their arrival, an elderly neighbor in answer to a persistent ringing of the bell, discovered my young nephew at the door with his woolly dog tucked under his arm.

"Would you please put my little dog to sleep in your bed?" he queried. "It is too noisy at grandmother's."—Chicago Tribune.

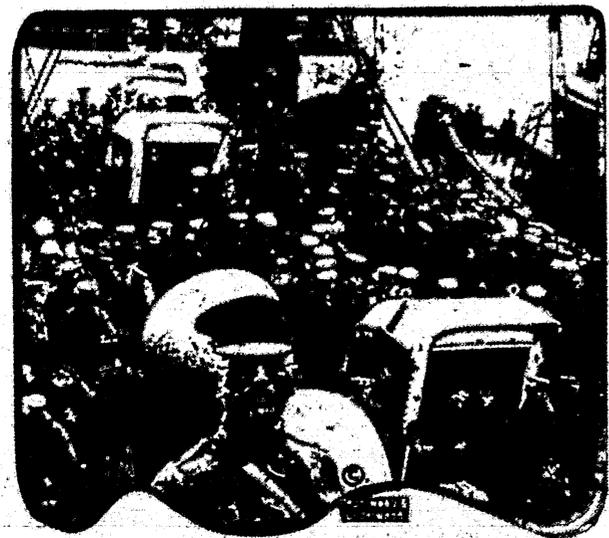

Anxiety.
The fortune teller held his hand and followed his lines.

"You are about to have serious trouble," she said, "with a dark gentleman who—"

"A moment," he said, nervously. "See if his name is Mose, and if he is my janitor."

THIS CURFEW HITS PARENTS ALSO Held Guilty With Children in Violation of Ordinance.

City "Dads" of South Dakota City Believe Parents Are Largely to Blame for Children Running About Streets at Night.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—The city of Leavenworth, S. D., has one of the most unique curfew ordinances in existence anywhere in the United States. The parents are held equally guilty with the children for violations of the curfew. The ordinance provides that boys and girls under seventeen years of age must be off the streets and at home after 9:30 o'clock each evening. If they are on the streets or other public places after that hour they must be accompanied by their parents or some authorized guardian. The city "Dads" believe that parents are largely to blame for their children running about the streets at unseasonable hours of the night, and therefore placed a provision in the ordinance making the parents responsible with the children for violations of the provisions of the ordinance.

Some of the parents who have been in the habit of permitting their children to remain away from home until quite late at night have regarded the ordinance as of no interest to them, and as a result when their children were found running at large after 9:30 o'clock at night the parents themselves were required to appear in court and explain why their children were not required by the ordinance to be home by 9:30 o'clock.

At one time several parents were in court on the charge of permitting their children to violate the curfew ordinance, and in each case a small fine was imposed, with the admonition that further violations by their children would subject them to heavier fines.

Lead Us Not Into Temptation

Is the United States of America the biggest bootlegger in the world? This must certainly be the case if the information furnished President Harding by August and Adolphus Busch concerning the sale of intoxicating liquors on United States vessels on the high seas is true. It must first be remembered, that National sea-faring vessels, being American property, it is as much of a violation of the Volstead act to sell intoxicating liquors there, as it is to sell the same on land in our own country. In the beginning this was the legal view of the matter, but when reports were handed in that foreign vessels were getting all of the business, the shipping board made the plea that we could not compete with foreign vessels and obey the constitution and either by direct or indirect means, we overstepped the law and engaged in bootlegging, in order to get our share of patronage that had deserted us when we put the ban on booze.

Mr. Busch renders his report to the President from his state room on board the good ship, "Washington." Just think of it! In this report, he furnishes a list of the different wines, beers, whiskies and intoxicating drinks of all kinds, follows this with the fact that such conditions are as much in violation of the National law as if committed on land and adds: "We should submit to the President that the government's toleration of the violation of the law by the shipping board, is proof that prohibition laws as now written are either impractical and non-enforceable, or are being disregarded deliberately." That it is a violation of the Volstead law for ships of our country, floating the American flag to sell liquor is a fact undisputable. With this fact established that we are, for the sake of business, making the Nation the greatest bootlegger of the world, is it asking too much that we beg Uncle Sam to "Lead Us Not Into Temptation" and has not the individual as much right to violate the law, as the Nation? We pay high salaries to prohibition sand-baggers to arrest, imprison and even kill people who are acknowledged violators of the law, when at the same time the government tolerates the same evil on the high seas and under its own flag. If this condition exists in one place, with government sanction, why not in another? Either do away with an obnoxious law, or let the government lead not its own people into temptation.

Mardi Gras Mystery

By H. BEDFORD-JONES

If you love dear, old New Orleans—and who that has ever spent much time there does not?
—you have a treat before you in this story; for in addition to a pleasing, pulse-quickenig romance which introduces the gayeties of Mardi Gras and the most charming characteristics of a people of Latin descent, you are taken into the inner life of the modern city.

You see a city which has changed—in outward form with the times, with its aristocracy in lineal descent from chevaliers of France and dons of Spain, one might almost say princes of the blood, graduated into merchant princes and men high in the professions—the proud, the boastful, loveable Creole as a man of affairs.

The author has written an enchanting tale which we take unusual pleasure in reprinting as a serial for the readers of Little Marcia's baby dress though made of the finest linen was ultimately worn threadwas sold to the junk dealer. When the rag sorter touched the discarded garment he detected in a flash the fine quality of the flax and set it aside for a journey to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washing-

CHAPTER XVI.

That thunder in the soil, at first, too deep within it to be audible, had come to the surface now and gradually became heard as the thunder of a million feet upon the training grounds. The bugles rang sharper; the drums and fifes of town and village and countryside were the drums and fifes of a war that came closer and closer to every hearth between the two oceans.

All the old symbols became symbols bright and new, as if no one had ever seen them before. "America" was like a new word, and the song "America" was like a new song. All the dusty platitudes of orating candidates, seeking to rouse bored auditors with "the old flag"; all the mechanical patriotic of school and church and club; all these time-worn, faded things leaped suddenly into living color. The flag became brilliant and strange to see—strange with a meaning that seemed new, a meaning long known, yet never known till now.

And so hearts that thought they knew themselves came upon ambushes of emotion and hidden indwellings of spirit not guessed before. Dora Yocum, listening to the "Star-Spangled Banner," sung by children of immigrants to an out-of-tune old piano in a mission clubroom, in Chicago, found herself crying with a soul-shaking heartiness in a way different from other ways that she had cried. Among the many things she thought of then was this: That the banner the children were singing about was in danger. The great country, almost a continent, had always seemed so untouchable, so safe and sure; she had never been able to conceive of a hostile power mighty enough to shake or even far it. And since so great and fundamental a thing could not be injured, a war for its defense had appeared to be, in her eyes, not only wicked but ridiculous. At last, less and less vaguely, she had come to comprehend something of the colossal German threat, and the shadow that touched this bright banner of which the immigrants' children piped so briskly in the mission clubroom.

She began to understand, though she could not have told just why, or how, or at what moment understanding reached her. She began to understand that her country, threatened to the life, had flung its line those thousands of miles across the sea to stand and hold Hindenburg and Ludendorff and all their kaisers, kings, dukes and crown princes, their Krupp and Skoda monstrous engines, and their monstrous other engines of men made into armies. Through the long haze of misted sea-miles and the smoke of land-miles she perceived that brown line of ours, and knew it stood there that Freedom, and the Nation itself, might not perish from the earth.

And so, a week later, she went home and came nervously to Ramsey's mother and found how to direct the letter she wanted to write. He was in France. As the old phrase went, she poured out her heart. It seems to apply to her letter.

She wrote: "Don't misunderstand me. I felt that my bitter speech to you had driven you to take the step you did. I felt that I ought to be killed for doing it, but I knew that you had other motives, too. I knew, of course, that you thought of the country more than you did of me, or of any mad thing I could say—but I thought that what I said might have been the prompting thing, the word that threw you into it so hastily and before you were ready, perhaps. I dreaded to bear that terrible responsibility. I hope you understand. "My great mistake has been—I thought I was so logical—it's been in my starting everything with a thought I'd never proven; that war is the worst thing, and all other evils were lesser. I was wrong. I was wrong, because war isn't the worst evil. Slavery is a worse evil, and now I want to tell you I have come to see that you are making war on those that make slavery. Yes, you are fighting those that make both war and slavery, and you are right, and I humbly reverence and honor all of you who are in this right war. I have come home to work in the Red Cross here; I work there all day, and all day I keep saying to myself—but I really mean to you—it's what I pray, and oh, how I pray it: God be with you and grant you the victory! For you must win and you will win."

"Forgive me, oh, please—and if you will, could you write to me? I know you have things to do more important than 'girls'—but oh, couldn't you, please?"

"This letter, which she had taken care not to dampen, as she wrote, went in slow course to the "American Expeditionary Forces in France," and finally found him when it patiently sought. He delayed not long to answer, and in time she held in a shaking hand the penciled missive he had sent her: "My dear girl: all that comic talk about my talking because of your telling me to. I'd written my father I was going at the first chance a month and a half before that day when you said it. My mind was made up the first time there was any talk of war, and you had about as much responsibility for my going as some little sparrow or something. Of course I don't mean I didn't pay any attention to the different things you said, because I always did, and I used to worry over it because I was afraid some day it would get you into trouble, and I'm mighty glad you've cut it out. That's right; you be a regular girl now. You always were one, and I knew that all right. I'm not as scared to write to you as I was to talk to you, so I guess you know I was mighty tickled to get your letter. It sounded blue, but I was glad to get it. You bet I'll write to you! I don't suppose you could have any idea how glad I was to get your letter. I could sit here and write to you all day if they'd let me, but I'm a corporal now. When you answer this, I wish you'd say how the old town looks and if the grass in the front yards is as green as it usually is, and everything. And tell me some more about everything you think of when you are working down at the Red Cross like you said. I guess I've read your letter five million times, and that part ten million. I mean where you underlined that 'you' and what you said to yourself at the Red Cross. Oh, murder, but I was glad to read that! Don't forget about writing anything else you think of like that."

"Well, I was interrupted then and this is the next day. Of course I can't tell you where we are, because that darned censor will read this letter, but

They Were Soldiers.

I guess he will let this much by. Who do you think I ran across in a village yesterday? Two boys from the old school days, and we certainly did shake hands a few times! It was that old foolish Dutch Krusemeyer and Albert Paxton, both of them lieutenants. I heard Fred Mitchell is still training in the States and about crazy because they won't send him over yet.

"If you have any idea how glad I was to get your letter, you wouldn't lose any time answering this one. Anyhow, I'm going to write to you again every few days if I get the chance, because maybe you'll answer more than one of 'em."

"But see here, cut out that 'sent you to be killed' stuff. You've got the wrong idea altogether. We've got the big job of our lives, we know that, but we're going to do it. There'll be mistakes and bad times, but we won't fall down. Now, you'll excuse me for saying it this way, Dora, but I don't know just how to express myself except saying of course we know everybody isn't going to get back home—but listen, we didn't come over here to get killed particularly, we came over to give these Dutchmen a—"

"Perhaps you can excuse language if I write it with a blank like that, but before we get back we're going to do what we came for. They may not all of them be as bad as some of them—it's a good thing you don't know what we do, because some of it would make you sick. As I say, there may be quite a lot of good ones among them; but we know what they've done to this country, and we know what they mean to do to ours. So we're going to attend to them. Of course that's why I'm here. It wasn't you."

"Don't forget to write pretty soon, Dora. You say in your letter—I certainly was glad to get that letter—well, you say I have things to do more important than 'girls.' Dora, I think you probably know without my saying so that of course while I have got important things to do, just as every man over here has, and everybody at home, for that matter, well, the thing that is most important in the world to me, next to helping win this war, it's reading the next letter from you."

"Don't forget how glad I'll be to get it, and don't forget you didn't have anything to do with my being over here. That was—it was something else. And you bet, whatever happens I'm glad I came! Don't ever forget that!"

"Dora knew it was 'something else.' Her memory went back to her first recollection of him in school; from that time on he had been just an ordinary, everyday boy, flourishing somehow through his lessons in school and through his sweetheating with Milia, as the millions of other boys floundered along with their own lessons and their own Milias. She saw him swinging his books and romping homeward from the schoolhouse, or going whistling by her father's front yard, rattling a stick on the fence as he went, care-free and masterful, but shy as a deer if strangers looked at him, and always "not much of a talker."

She had always felt so superior to him; she shuddered as she thought of it. His quiet had been so much better than her talk. His intelligence was proven now, when it came to the great test, to be of a stronger sort than hers. He was wise and good and gentle—and a fighting man! "We know what they've done to this country and what they mean to do to ours. So we're going to attend to them." She read this over, and she knew that Ramsey, wise and gentle and good, would fight like an unchained devil, and that he and his comrades would indeed and indeed do what they "came for."

"It wasn't you," he said. She nodded gently, agreeing, and knew what it was that sent him. Yet Ramsey had his own secret here, and did not tell it. Sometimes there rose, faint in his memory, a whimsical picture, yet one that had always meant much to him. He would see an old man sitting with a little boy upon a rustic bench under a walnut tree to watch the "Decoration Day Parade" go by—and Ramsey would see a shoot of sunshine that had somehow got through the walnut tree and make a bedazzlement of glinting fine lines over a spot about the size of a saucer, upon the old man's thick white hair. And in Ramsey's memory, the little boy, sitting beside the veteran, would half close his eyes, drowsily, playing that this sunshine spot was a white bird's nest, until he had a momentary dream of a glittering little bird that dwelt there and wore a blue soldier cap on its head. And Ramsey would bring out of his memory thoughts that the old man had got into the child's head that day. "We know that armies fighting for the Freedom of Man had to win, in the long run. . . . We were on the side of God's Plan. . . . Long ago we began to see hints of His Plan. . . . Man has to win his freedom from himself—men in the light have to fight against men in the dark. . . . That light is the answer. . . . We had the light that made us never doubt."

A long while Dora sat with the letter in her hand before she answered it and took it upon her heart to wear. That was the place for it, since it was already within her heart, where he would find it when he came home again. And she beheld the revelation sent to her. This ordinary life of Ramsey's was but the outward glinting of a high and splendid spirit, as high and splendid as earth can show. And yet it was only the life of an everyday American boy. The streets of the town were full, now, of boys like Ramsey.

At first they were just boys in uniform; then one saw that they were boys no more. They were soldiers. [THE END.]

THOUGHT IS NOT REALLY RAPID

Mind Moves Comparatively Slowly, Notwithstanding Expression That Has Become Common.

"As quick as thought" is an expression much used to denote the swiftness of action, but, like so many popular expressions, this one is misleading. Thought, or at least the mental registering of a sensation, is not an exceedingly speedy process, the thought impulses moving at the comparatively slow speed of 110 feet a second, or 75 miles an hour. Light travels nearly nine million times as swiftly. Thought would be hopelessly beaten in a race with a motorcar. Perhaps a good illustration of the comparative slowness of thought waves is to assume that a man had an arm 75 miles long and that, when he was not looking, a friend should wrap his hand. Before the owner of that arm became conscious that his hand had been touched, the friend would have released it, and had time to walk four miles or eat a very extensive dinner—Kansas City Star.

SUMMER TALKS

"I had a talk with Willie Weasel," said Billie Brownie to Witty Witch, "and I do think he is a dreadful little animal."

"He told me that he was indeed smart, for he could chase his enemies from one branch to another of a tree, underground if they happened to live underground, in the water, on land and everywhere."

"He said that he was very bloodthirsty and that all the smaller animals dreaded him more than any other animal."

"Yes, he told me he was a very dangerous enemy and that he even attacked animals bigger than himself."

"He said that he would kill each of his enemies so quickly with one good stroke, but when I asked him if sometimes he didn't consider it was a bad stroke to be so cruel he said he didn't think of it that way at all."

"He told me that he had no feeling about being cruel. He said that he was not afraid of anything and that he was rather proud of being cruel."

"Then he also said that there were not very many weasels which made me feel particularly pleased, as you can well imagine."

"Yes," said Witty Witch, "that is a good thing to know."

"Willie Weasel also informed me that when the winter comes he changes his suit to a white one—in there is snow and if it is cold enough."

"He likes to match the weather, though I told him if that was the case he should be wearing a green suit now instead of a brown one."

"But he said the earth was brown, not green, and that it was the earth's covering that he cared about."

"Then I told him that the grass was very green and that moss was very green, but he said he couldn't talk to me any more."

"He had some engagements—cruel ones I suppose."

"I was glad when he left me and I went and talked to Mr. Bald Eagle."

"He told me how proud all his family were because they had been chosen as the American bird of Freedom."

"He told me how different they were from other birds in many ways—bigger and stronger—but mostly I was thrilled by hearing that their eyesight was so wonderful and that they felt it was because they could see such distances that they had been chosen as the American birds of Freedom."

"You see, Mr. Bald Eagle said that he thought that it was because of the fact that they could see such distances that they had been chosen because that meant that they were birds of a country who were going to look ahead to an ideal and a goal rather than grasp the nearest thing!"

"He sang me a little song, too, which I'll tell you."

"Do," said Witty Witch.

"This is the song: "The finest thing I have to say, "Is that we're the birds of the U. S. A. "Wasn't that a nice little song?" asked Billie Brownie. "It was short of course, but I liked it, and Mr. Bald Eagle told me that it was their Fourth of July song, though they sang it at other times of the year, too."

"It's a fine little song," said Witty Witch enthusiastically.

"And then," Billie Brownie continued, "I made a few calls upon the wild flowers."

"I chatted with the Queen Anne's family, 'Jack-in-the-Pulpit,' Bouncing Bet (and how gay and amusing she was!), the Iris family, and heard from them how they treated the bees right royally."

"So many flowers told me of their deep, great banquet halls; some of them were reserved for the Humming-Birds."

"And the Fire-Weed told me how it tried to cover up shabbiness. "All told I had a series of delightful calls and while I don't care for Willie Weasel I was glad to hear there were not so many of them—and then the Bald Eagle and the flowers were such a nice ending to my day."

Was From Missouri. The Sunday-school superintendent was reviewing the lesson. "Who led the children of Israel out of Egypt?" he asked. There was no answer. Pointing to a little boy at the end of the seat, he demanded a little crossly: "Little boy, who led the children of Israel out of Egypt?" The little boy was ready to cry as he piped out, with a quivering voice: "Please, sir, it wasn't me. We just moved here last week. We're from Missouri."

All my pains and weakness are gone, my stomach is all right and I do my work at home and also work for Swift's Packing Company. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. LULU LUCAS, 719A Vandeventer St., St. Louis, Mo.

ARMY AND NAVY GOODS—Everything in clothing, shoes, boots, hats, mess, saddles, bridles, blankets and camping equipment. Anderson Bros. 1625 Arapahoe St., Denver—Fueblo, Colorado and Cheyenne, Wyoming

Commercial Inquiries answered and information gladly furnished without cost. Address any firm above.

Federal Aid Given State Highways.

Denver.—Federal aid has been authorized the State Highway department in connection with the construction of a steel bridge across the St. Charles river east of Pueblo and on the old Santa Fe trail and for the construction of five and eight-tenths miles of gravel-surfaced road between Delta and Grand Junction. The cost of the two projects is estimated at $122,000.

Officials of the State Highway Department announced they would receive bids on these two projects in addition to bridge projects to be undertaken in Lincoln, Adams and other counties. Bids will be received until June 23 for the construction of eleven small timber bridges in Lincoln county to replace those destroyed by floods, in addition to a proposed 320-foot bridge across Sand creek, one-half mile east of Denver. The estimated cost of the Lincoln county bridges is placed at $40,000, while that of the Sand creek bridge is estimated at $11,000.

Bids are to be advertised soon for the construction of four and four-tenths miles of concrete paved road on the O. L. D. route into Denver, southwest of Sterling and extending toward Brush. The estimated cost is placed at $175,000. Federal aid to the extent of 50.12 per cent has been requested of the United States bureau of public roads.

Approximately $1,000 has been set aside and approved for the construction of a 100-foot bridge over Breckenridge creek, eleven miles north of Ordway, in Crowley county.

Another Slash in Pay.

Chicago.—Another slash in the pay of railroad employes is imminent. Members of the United States railroad labor board went into executive session recently to consider a reduction in the salaries of all the railway clerical forces. It was reported that this cut would be the largest yet made, exceeding even the $100,000,000 annual slash into the wages of 1,200,000 other railroad men.

Men Get Increase.

Canton, Ohio.—Announcement of an increase in wages of 10 per cent throughout the large plant, effective June 1, was made by Timken Roller Bearing Company of Canton. This will put the pay of the men back to where it was before a cut was made in September, 1921.

Thousand Telegrams Received.

Pittsburgh.—More than a thousand telegrams of sympathy and condolence, attesting the admiration and esteem of friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Lillian Russell Moore have been received at the home in Pittsburgh of the former actress. Among these was one from President and Mrs. Harding.

Arrested for Train Holdup.

Portland, Ore.—Ernest Miller, alias Frank Foster, was arrested at Portland recently and turned over to a postoffice inspector to answer an indictment returned in Denver, charging participation in a train holdup eighteen months ago. He first was arrested on a ranch near Portland in connection with the robbery, but the evidence was not sufficient to warrant an indictment, so he was sent to Portland for trial on a charge of sending someone money through the mail to his wife in Idaho.

"MORE BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT"

This apt phrase was used in President Harding's first message to Congress and applies particularly in postal management where postmasters are being impressed with the fact that they are managers of local branches of the biggest business in the world.

HERE COMES A STRANGER!

Let's make our post office look neat. Mr. Postmaster. Straighten up the rural letter box. Mr. Farmer. Tidy up some, Mr. Rural Carrier. First impressions are lasting. Maybe Mr. Stranger, taking notice of these improvements, will come back, bringing you benefits. Start these with "POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK" May 1-4.

HUMANIZING THE POSTAL SERVICE

"There is no unimportant person or part of our service. It is a total of human units and their co-operation is the key to its success. In its last analysis, postal duties are accommodations performed for our neighbors and friends and should be so regarded, rather than as a hired service performed for an absentee employer."—Postmaster General Hubert Work.

The Tale of a Carnival Joke That Led to Grim Realities

The Mardi Gras Mystery

By H. BEDFORD-JONES

The setting of this charming story is not the New Orleans which General Jackson defended, neither is it the New Orleans of George W. Cable; but the modern commercial metropolis made rich by shipping, industrialism and the development of oil, sulphur and other nearby resources. However, the author does throw in some of the atmosphere that still clings to the historic place in the undiminished gayeties of Mardi Gras and Mi-Carême and in glimpses of "Gajunism" and the surviving pride and hospitality of Creole aristocracy. It is an engaging narrative in every respect with a delightful love interest, two heroes of most contrasting types and a mystery that will capture you and keep you guessing until the end.

Know Your Telephone Man

THE telephone people in this town are jealous of the reputation of their service.

You cannot do them a better turn than to report an irregularity in the telephone service. Give them prompt and intelligent information about the slightest discourtesy, the smallest fault in equipment or the least aggravating delay, and they will thank you.

They have no higher material ambition than to move upward in the ranks of telephone employes, and they know that as they give better service the road to promotion grows easier.

It pays any business man to get better acquainted with the people who help him do business. The telephone man in this town is worth knowing better. Tell him your telephone troubles, if you ever have any, and watch him get busy to correct them. And he'll thank you.
