Mass Meeting Friday Night

In response to a cordial invitation to the public, issued by the committee of the local shop craft of the E. P. & S. W., the Crystal Theatre was filled to overflowing last Friday night to listen to addresses from local and out-of-town speakers. W. J. Fetter, chairman of the committee, opened the meeting, stated the object of the same and introduced the speakers.

M. C. Idair, National Representative for the American Federation of Labor and C. A. Perkins, General Chairman of the Shop Craft of the E. P. & S. W., delivered addresses which were attentively listened to by the big audience as they set forth the claims for their organization in its efforts to reach a satisfactory and peaceable understanding with the railroad companies. They were followed by several local speakers who commended local members of the craft for their manly observance of law and order, setting forth the friendly relations existing between all concerned in this community. Ferguson's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion and the meeting was productive of much good.

Prayers for Rain

Las Vegas, July 25.—For nine miles, in a sun that parched throats and burned through clothing, men, women and children of the Sapello district carried images of saints.

From the throng there came prayers for rain for the baked land in which crops are struggling; rain for the seared pastures through which weary cattle wandered in search of grass. Then there were services without the march. All this was a week ago. It was predicted then by one of the petitioners that their prayers would be answered July 23. Sunday, a rain fell in the Sapello canyon that brought cheer to the residents. Their prayers were answered with a generous fall.

The prediction was that it would begin raining July 23 and continue every day after that until the danger to crops was over.

In Mrs. Gallacher's Honor

There will be an entertainment and dance given by the ladies of White Oaks Saturday evening, July 29, in honor of Mrs. Jane Gallacher. Mrs. Gallacher's name is a household word in all homes of this community. Her motherly kindness to those in distress, her never-failing devotion to her many friends and her mindfulness of strangers within her gates, has, in all the years of her usefulness, made her one of the most known and beloved characters of our region and in recognition of these natural traits of womanly virtue, her old-time friends have set aside the above date in order to demonstrate, if even to a small degree, their love and esteem for her. If Mrs. Gallacher is your friend (and she certainly must be) you are invited to the affair in her honor tomorrow (Saturday) night.

Big Wool Shipment

A shipment of 61,000 pounds of wool was made from this point to eastern market, the buyer being E. L. Moulton of the Moulton-Ilfeld Company of Las Vegas. Of the above named amount, Frank Maxwell sold 47,000 pounds, the remaining 14,000 pounds being sold by John Gallacher. Two cars were chartered for the shipment which went forward on Wednesday.

Severe Condition

Will Ed Harris came in this week from an extended trip to different parts of Texas and New Mexico. He says that in many localities where he visited, cattle were actually dying for the want of food and water. At one place he saw cattle feeding from dry sticks on which they had walked for months, and springs that have heretofore given heavy volumes of water, the pipes are barely dripping. In other places, people are cutting down trees to furnish feed for cattle from the foliage.

Talk About High Freight Rates

An example of what is meant by high freight rates was contained in a report at the office of Leonard Pence, El Paso cattleman, that he recently shipped a registered bull to Tularosa, the carriage charges being $35.15.

Undertakers Fight Over Body Of Man Who Lived In Peace

San Francisco, Calif., July 27.—After having lived for 80 years a singularly peaceful life, Joseph Renusat became in death a center of turmoil, when two undertakers here fought for possession of his body.

Renusat's body was sent from the French hospital to one undertaker, but the dead man's son, saying his father had expressed a preference for another undertaker, ordered the body removed.

The first undertaker, however, would not give it up until, after a personal encounter, a writ of replevin had been served by three deputy sheriffs.

Narrow Escape

Yesterday morning about nine o'clock as Coatney Berry, brother of Mrs. George Rustin, who is visiting his sister's family, was riding from the ranch toward town, the horse fell and in rising, Berry's foot was caught in the stirrup and he was dragged for the distance of two hundred yards before the horse was stopped and the young man extricated from his perilous condition. His back is badly lacerated and the ligaments of one of his arms are badly torn, caused by the by the kick from the horse. He is reported to be resting easier today and his physician is of the opinion that nothing serious will result, although he will be confined to his room for several weeks.

Mrs. Coury Will See

Hanging of Men

Albuquerque, N. M., July 27.—Mrs. Anton Coury, according to friends here, will witness the hanging Friday morning at Estancia, N. M., of the four men who killed her husband in his store at Duran, N. M., last September. Mrs. Coury was badly wounded by the four men, who escaped and were later captured by possees. The men are Carlos Renteria, Ysidoro Miranda, Francisco Vaisas and Luis Medrano. The bandits attacked Mrs. Coury, and her husband while they were attending their store, according to the story told by the woman in an El Paso hospital, where she was taken following the raid and her serious injury. One of the men, she said, asked for water and when her husband went to get it, the others pulled down the blinds and began to loot the store. One drew a gun.

As Mr. Coury returned, the widow said, the man with the gun opened fire, sending three bullets into Mr. Coury's body. Mrs. Coury said she grappled with the man who fired, seeking to save her own life, but that he was able to twist the gun sideways and fire into her body.

Then she fell and the bandits proceeded to thoroughly loot the store, getting away with a quantity of merchandise.

Vaisas and Renteria later were arrested in Roswell. The men made a confession in which they implicated Miranda and Medrano, who later were arrested by a posse.

Chas. Henry Lutz, Receiver

The appointment of Major Chas. Henry Lutz as receiver for the Roswell Land Office stands out as one made in which the appointee received it without the least effort on his part, but quite to the contrary, he had, on being advised of the application of a certain friend, withdrawn in favor of the party above mentioned, this fact being verified by the records at Washington. Major Lutz is a man who shrinks from entering a contest of any kind, particularly in politics, but this was not so much politics, as a recognition of services rendered during the late war in which he was badly wounded on the battle field and for many long dreary months, lay at the point of death in a hospital. After his letter of withdrawal, a message came from Washington stating that the American Legion was interested in his appointment and if it were made it would please those who believed this recognition should be made. Hence, the honor conferred and coming as it did, Major Lutz should, and no doubt he does, feel a sense of pride for this mark of recognition. There have been so many appointments made wherein past services to country or party have not been considered, that it affords a great pleasure to be able to mention one on whom "Honor to Whom Honor is Due," has been bestowed. We congratulate Major Lutz on the honor and commend the appointive power on its wisdom.

Mayhew Kurtz

At the home of J. M. Rice at Parsons last Wednesday at high noon, occurred the wedding of Mr. Clyde L. Mayhew of Palestine, Ohio, and Miss Anne Kurtz of Ellis Grove, Ill. The newly married couple have both been connected with the Fort Stanton Military Hospital of late, the bride being Secretary to the Commanding Officer for the past six months, while the groom held the position of Property Clerk at the Fort. Miss Louise Kurtz, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and in the absence of the mother, gave the bride away. The ceremony was performed in a bower arranged expressly for the occasion and decorated with pine branches interwoven with various kinds of beautiful flowers and the double ring service was ably managed by little Miss Mary Edith Weber as ring bearer, the children present forming a semi-circle around the happy couple as the ceremony was pronounced. The bride wore a white pussy-willow tafetta dress and veil entwined with orange blossoms, while the groom was attired in the regulation costume.

A delicious wedding breakfast was served, after which the couple motored to Carrizozo and from thence to Albuquerque, where they will reside for an indefinite time, and where Mr. Mayhew, who is an ex-service man, will take a course in vocational training. Those present on this happy occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rice and daughters Charlotte and Helen, Mrs. Julia Molyneux, Mrs. J. H. Fulmer and son of Parsons; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wunsch, the Misses Goodwin and Louise Kurtz of Fort Stanton; Mr. and Mrs. Kinney and family, Mr. Lovejoy and Miss Mahon of Socorro; Mrs. Welch and daughter Myra Jo of Dawson; Mrs. Weber and children, Ft. Bayard. The many friends of the newlyweds wish them a world of happiness in their future life.

Discuss Strike Settlement

Washington, D. C., July 27.—Having presented the views of the striking railroad shopmen to president Harding at a morning conference, B. M. Jewell and other strike leaders returned to the white house this afternoon for another conference at which it was believed president Harding might present some sort of a proposition designed to settle the strike.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 27.—Conferences of international officers of the United Mine Workers and district leaders of the anthracite and bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana on the strike situation continued here today.

Although the district representatives were summoned here by international president John L. Lewis, primarily to report on conditions in their districts, it is said the situation generally probably will be discussed before the meeting finally adjourns.

Intimation was given by John Hessler, president of the Indiana miners, that definite action looking to a joint conference of operators and miners' representatives in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana would be taken.

Chicago, Ill., July 27.—Reports from 13 states to secretary J. W. Coverdale of the American farm bureau federation show that farmers are becoming anxious over the continuance of the shortage and rail strikes, fearing that shortage of fuel or transportation may seriously interfere with harvesting and marketing their crops.

Washington, Wisconsin and Illinois have reported a shortage of coal.

It was said by the officials in various states that serious shortage of transportation would result if the strike continued.

Normal conditions were reported in Texas.

Montreal, Can., July 27.—Canadian shopmen employed by the Grand Trunk railroad are being practically forced to declare an immediate strike because that system is determined to continue repairing engines and cars sent to its shops by lines in the United States whose repairmen are on strike, said an announcement today by R. J. Tallon, president of division No. 4, railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 27.—Gov. Warren T. McCray in a statement addressed "to the people" announced today that "if the strike is not determined within five days from this date I will take over one or more mines and supply the people of Indiana with fuel."

Ruth and Pipp Fight

On Players' Bench

St. Louis, Mo., July 27.—It was reported that Babe Ruth and Wallie Pipp came to blows during Wednesday's game, while the New York players were on the bench during the sixth inning, but neither player showed any signs of the reported encounter, as both finished the game in their positions.

When asked about the incident manager Huggins replied:

"There were no injuries, who ever had the argument."

Both Ruth and Pipp told the Associated Press the reported encounter was "only a little argument" and that they had agreed not to say anything about it.

Rudy Knepper, golfer de luxe, is the newly crowned trans-Mississippi champion, defeating the reigning title holder, George Von Elm, by 5 up and 4 to go in a stirring match at the Omaha Country Club course. It required thirty-two holes to decide the issue, although there was scarcely ever a doubt as to the final outcome.

Sheriff George White of Santa Cruz county was killed and Manuel Martinez and Placido Silva, convicted murderers, escaped when an automobile in which the prisoners were being taken to the state penitentiary at Florence, Ariz., overturned on the Nogales-Tucson highway near Continental, eighteen miles south of Tucson.

A coroner's inquest in Los Angeles found Mrs. Clara Phillips responsible for the death of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, her supposed rival for the affections of A. L. Phillips, her husband. The law having had its way with the smiling prisoner, husband and wife were then permitted to see each other for the first time since she was arrested. Mrs. Meadows was benten to death with a hammer.

Twenty men and women, passengers aboard the Tourist, an excursion boat, which became disabled ten miles off Newport, on the Orange county coast, south of Long Beach, Calif., were rescued by the fishing smack Muncie and brought to Long Beach. When the Muncie sighted the Tourist the latter was wallowing in the trough of the sea, engine disabled and a sail set to keep her head in the wind.

WASHINGTON

Clerks employed in postoffices throughout the United States will, during the remainder of the summer season, be permitted to enjoy a half holiday each Saturday, providing the work assigned to them has been completed by noon on that day, under an order issued by First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett.

Ordinary expenditures of the government during the fiscal year just closed fell off by $1,333,000,000 as compared with the previous year, while public debt disbursements showed a decline of $2,131,000,000, according to a statement of classified expenditures for the twelve months ending June 30, issued by the treasury.

While optimism as to the outcome of the railroad strike was reflected at the White House, there was further evidence that the administration intends to keep a firm grasp on the situation and that every force at the command of the government will be utilized to insure maintenance of necessary interstate transportation.

The final official step in the consummation of the Japanese-American treaty of Yap, concluded during the armament conference was taken by President Harding when he issued a presidential proclamation to the effect that the treaty had been concluded. The treaty recognizes Japan's mandate over the little island, but stipulates that America shall enjoy "open door" privileges and equal rights with Japan.

A charge by Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, that threats to slash rates in the agricultural schedule has been used in an effort to keep Republican senators in line on rates in the cotton schedule of the pending tariff bill, enlivened Senate debate recently on that measure.

The farm population of the United States on Jan. 1, 1920, was 31,014,233, or 23.9 per cent of the total population of the country according to returns of the last census announced in Washington by the census bureau. Of this number, 31,550,610 were enumerated in rural territory and 233,220 on farms located within the limits of cities and other incorporated communities having 2,500 inhabitants or more.

President Harding recently sent telegrams directing the operators of all bituminous mines shut down because of strike conditions to resume operations at once, and requesting the governors of those states in which the mines operate to furnish such military protection as may be needed. If state troops find it impossible to cope with the situation, federal troops, it was understood, may be employed eventually.

Urging Congress to enact new legislation to destroy an alleged Standard Oil monopoly in the gasoline trade, the federal trade commission charged the corporation with "perpetrating the very monopolistic control which the United States Supreme Court sought to terminate."

James H. Wilkerson, a Chicago attorney, has been nominated by President Harding to be United States district judge for the northern district of Illinois. He succeeds Judge K. M. Ladd, who resigned to become high commissioner of Brazil.

FOREIGN

The publicity department of the Irish irregular army has announced that Manannan de Ylona is at field headquarters, serving on the staff of the director of operations. It is believed headquarters has been transferred from Malloy to Limerick. The provisional government reaffirms its determination to suppress the revolt.

Chen Chung-Ming's troops have broken the drive of Sun Yat Sen's forces in the vicinity of Shihkwan, inflicting considerable losses. Chen Chung-Ming, who controls the railway between Canton and Shihkwan has sent 14,000 troops northward from Canton. Reserves around Shihkwan appear to have lessened Sun's chances of recapturing Canton.

Famine and plague in Russia are under control, President Harding was informed by Secretary Hoover in a preliminary report on the use of United States Grain Corporation funds for relief work. The situation, Mr. Hoover added, promises to be much better after the harvest although it is too early to determine whether American relief work will be extended.

Chang Tso-Lin, rebellious Manchurian super-titan, still is holding onto the rolling stock he took from the railroad lines between Peking and Mukden when he made peace and retreated northward. As this amounts to about 75 per cent of the line's available equipment, resumption of normal traffic is impossible, despite the more peaceful conditions caused by his withdrawal.

Hermann Fischer and Edwin Kern, who for many days have been pursued by the German police as the assassins of Foreign Minister Rathenau, committed suicide, according to a dispatch to Berlin from Halle. The two men shot themselves, the dispatch said, as they were about to be captured in the turret of Sauleck castle, near Bad Koesen, whether they had been traced by the police.

A grave political situation is developing in Poland as the result of hostility between President Pilsudski and Adalbert Korfanty, the newly appointed Polish premier, according to notices in London from Warsaw. The Polish army is said to be supporting Pilsudski, but the supporters of Premier Korfanty are standing firm and assert Korfanty will not heed the president's request that he resign.

Formal and official announcement that Great Britain will pay her debt of $4,200,000,000 to the United States, was made in the House of Commons by Sir Robert Horne, chancellor of the British exchequer. "Our debt to the United States is a solemn obligation and it will be met," said Sir Robert. It is expected this announcement will put an end to discussions of "debt cancellations."

Talk in Dublin continues to center around approaching operations on a big scale against the Republican irregulars, but the Free State commanders so far have successfully bidden their plans. Meanwhile the National army troops continue to reap scattered successes, including the prisoners captured by Free State troops during the recent fighting in Dublin, the Nationalists now hold approximately 2,000 prisoners.

Charles Bouzek, a deputy sheriff of Stock Creek, died in the Lutheran hospital at St. Louis of a fractured skull caused by a blow over the head with a baseball bat in the hands of Charles Woolsey of Valley Park. Millions of dollars are to be spent for building during the ensuing year by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, according to the report of retiring Grand Exalted Ruler William Wallace Mountain, presented at Atlantic City. The assets of subordinate lodges now amount to $53,000,234, and the elaborate building program for the year shows that there are to be erected in various parts of the country thirty-one new homes.

Edward G. Workman, of Watertown, New York, evidently miscast the war, so he brought it to his porch, in the form of a 165-millimeter shell, "a dud," salvaged from the artillery range at Pine Plains. Either the heat of the sun or the blow from a child's croquet mallet exploded the shell, killing eight children and wrecking the concrete house in which Workman's family and that of William L. Sallisbury lived.

Grand jury action to fix responsibility for the recent coal mine warfare near Herrin, Ill., will begin as soon as the community has had a chance to "cool down," Attorney General E. J. Brundage of Illinois declared in Chicago upon his return from a personal trip of investigation in Williamson county. Brundage said that "it looks as though the mine owners were indiscreet in their display of armed strength." He declared that the mine guards were accustomed to terrorize the community.

Gene Sarazen of Pittsburg a little 21-year-old native-born American of Italian descent, pushed his way out in front of the world's greatest golfers many of them old enough to be his father, and won the national open golf championship at Glenview, Ill., with a score of 288 for seventy-two holes of play, lasting two days.

SENIORITY IS BIG PROBLEM

RAIL CONFERENCES AGREED ON ALL POINTS EXCEPT SERVICE RIGHTS.

PEACE PLANS FAIL

LABOR BOARD WILL DISCONTINUE PEACE EFFORTS IN SHOPMEN'S STRIKE.

Chicago.—The failure of all efforts to bring about the settlement of the country-wide strike of the railway shopmen was announced in a statement issued by Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States Railway Labor Board.

"As there does not seem to be any probability of reconciling the antipodal views of the carriers and the men on the question at issue, the labor board and none of its members is now engaged in any further effort along that line," the statement said. At the same time the statement pointed out that virtual agreement had been reached between the rail heads and the strike leaders on all of the five points in dispute except that of the return to the strikers of their seniority rights—an incidental question which was not originally in dispute between the roads and their men.

Railroad executives through the western presidents' committee on public relations of the Association of Railway Executives, issued a statement corroborating Chairman Hooper's statement that no further peace conferences were being held and that the seniority issue was the principal stumbling block.

"There are now no conferences in progress looking to a settlement of the shopmen's strike," the executives statement said. "Chairman Hooper of the labor board has held informal conferences with some railway executives, but these have had no results and are now at an end."

"Since the strike was called the so-called question of 'seniority rights' has arisen and has now become one of importance."

"The men who have stayed at work or accepted employment during the strike have been given assurance of protection, not only by the railroads, but by the government itself."

"Thus it will be seen the fact that the men who are now working have claims upon the railways and the public."

Mr. Jewell, when informed at strike headquarters of the statements of Chairman Hooper and the railroad executive, refused to comment on them.

E. F. Grube, head of the maintenance of way union, made public a letter he received from Mr. Jewell, disposing of reports that there was hard feeling between the shopmen and maintenance of way union because the maintenance of way organization had decided against a strike.

The letter asserted that the shopmen were "delighted" that the maintenance of way union had found a way out of the difficulties confronting it that will bring justice to the membership.

Two Killed in Train Smash. Muskogee, Okla.—Two men were killed and more than a half dozen other persons injured in a head-on collision between a passenger train and an extra freight train on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway four miles east of Tulsa. The freight crew missed orders. The engineer and fireman of the passenger train were killed.

Governors Support President. Washington.—Replicas from governors of coal-producing states, who were called on by President Harding to cooperate with the federal government in protecting mines at which operations are resumed, have been received in the White House. Most of the governors said they would support the federal policy, if any emergency should arise, and outlined their plans for so doing. Meanwhile plans went forward to put the government fully in a position to fulfill the pledge of "every assistance at its command," given by President Harding.

Prince of Wales Assists at Wedding. London.—The prince of Wales was best man at the wedding of Prince Louis Mountbatten, nephew of King George, and Miss Edwina Ashley, richest girl in Great Britain. King George, Queen Mary, Viscountess Lascelles and other members of the royal family were present. It was announced that the bride and groom would postpone their honeymoon until autumn, when they will go to the United States.

Accuse Republicans of Filibuster. Washington.—Senate Republicans were accused by Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, of conducting a filibuster against their tariff bill. His charge came after Senator Gooding of Idaho, chairman of the Republican agricultural-tariff bloc, and Senator Ladd of North Dakota had consumed four hours in reading prepared addresses. Senator Robinson declared that Senator Gooding's speech was "a general treatment of the tariff—was irrelevant and meaningless."

I. P. Beck, a ranchman living at Five Mile, thirty miles up the Pecos valley from Roswell, N. M., was killed when he became entangled in a rope and was dragged to death by a mule.

William Acker, confessed accomplice in the assault on Iver Engle, who died in a hospital in Prescott as a result of a beating and stabbing suffered June 11, pleaded not guilty when he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace McLane on a formal charge of murder. Acker was held for trial without bail.

Mrs. Clara Phillips was arrested at Tucson, Ariz., charged with the slaying in Los Angeles of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, who was beaten to death with a hammer and a boulder. The arrest was based upon admissions said to have been made to the sheriff by her husband, A. L. Phillips, a Los Angeles oil promoter.

J. D. Whitten was taken into custody in Miami, Ariz., on a warrant charging him with murder in connection with the killing in Angleton, Tex., in February, of an alleged member of the Ku Klux Klan and the wounding of another man in what was said to have been a klan raid on a rooming house where Whitten and his wife were living.

Preliminary plans are being made by officers of the Chamber of Commerce, the Farm Bureau and the New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts for the entertainment of officers and delegates of the Horse and Cattle Growers' Association of New Mexico, which will have its fall meeting in Las Cruces and at State College next September or October.

Commercial truck crops most promising for production in car lot quantities in the irrigated valleys of the Rio Grande are cabbage, Spanish onions, lettuce, spinach and cantaloupe, says O. D. Miller, assistant in marketing, Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in his report of a survey made recently in the Mesilla and El Paso valleys.

For gallant service, Harry D. Stewart, agent for the American Railway Express Company, has been presented in Los Angeles with a check for $1,000, an engraved gold watch and a letter of appreciation from George C. Taylor, president of the company. Stewart, who resides in Los Angeles, killed one bandit and drove off eight more during an attempted holdup of a train near Tucson, Ariz., several weeks ago.

Cattle men in the southern part of New Mexico are cutting down trees to provide forage for cattle that are dying by the scores, according to a letter received by the New Mexico Cattle and Horse Growers' Association at Albuquerque from Hugh L. Hodge of Silver City, a leading cattle man of that section. The drought and hot winds have dried up and completely parched the grass, the letter states, and water is scarce. Conditions are called the most deplorable in years.

Superior Judge S. L. Pattee of Nogales has set August 23 as the date for the opening of the fourth trial of Placido Silva, accused of having participated in the bandit raid on Ruby, Ariz., last August, in which Postmaster and Mrs. J. Frank Pearson were shot to death. In his second trial Silva was convicted of the murder of Pearson and was sentenced to life imprisonment. His third trial, for the murder of Mrs. Pearson, ended in a disagreement, the jury standing 11 to 1 for conviction.

H. Gordon Glore, Nogales contractor, whose fishing schooner sank in a gale in the Gulf of California recently, was found by a searching party wandering aimlessly along the barren Sonora coast about seventy-five miles west of Nogales. Glore was clad only in pajamas and had not tasted food in seven days. The rescue was effected by a marching party from Ajo, Ariz.

Mmanuel Martinez and Placido Silva, convicted murderers who escaped recently, were recaptured by a posse headed by Sheriff Harry Saxon about two and one-half miles southwest of Amado, which is thirty miles north of Nogales. The slayers, exhausted and hardly able to move, were discovered lying among rocks. Martinez is under sentence of death and Silva is facing a term of life imprisonment for the killing of Postmaster and Mrs. J. Frank Pearson of Ruby, Ariz., last August. The two escaped when Sheriff George White of Santa Cruz county, who was taking them to the state penitentiary, was killed in an automobile accident near Tucson. Deputy Sheriff Leonard Smith also was fatally hurt, dying from the injuries he suffered in the accident.

James Burke, aged 36, was almost instantly killed, his neck being broken, when a heavy car turned over several times and hit a telegraph pole in Santa Fe, N. M. Another occupant of the car was unhurt and the car was only slightly damaged.

Plans for remodeling the Old Dominion Company's mill at Globe, Ariz., when carried out, will increase its capacity from 700 tons per day to 1,000 tons and should insure higher extraction of metal and lower the cost of concentration, according to General Manager W. G. McBride.

"Tanlac has restored my health and built me up fourteen pounds in weight," said H. W. Morrison, 4768 Thrush Ave., St. Louis, Mo., agent for the National Life Insurance Co.

"Two years ago my stomach went wrong and I could not eat anything without suffering agony afterwards from heart palpitation and shortness of breath. Some nights I was in so much misery my wife had to get up and try to get me some relief. My health got to be so poor I had to stay in bed for weeks at a time."

"What Tanlac has done for me is nothing short of wonderful. I now eat anything I want, sleep fine, and am working full time every day; in fact, I'm in splendid health. I can't praise Tanlac too highly."

Recruit's Answer Offers an Explanation of Why Some Army Drillmasters Go Insane.

The sergeant major was reaching the end of his patience in his examination of the recruit's squad.

"For the last time," he yelled, going almost purple in the face, "I ask you the simple question: 'What is a fortification?'"

Shoulders dropped and with faces void of intelligence as a vacuum of air, the recruits stood fast as a man; no one answered.

Rushing up to the most intelligent-looking man, the Irato N. C. O. bawled: "Tell me, my man, what is a fortification?"

The answer came like a cork out of a bottle: "Two twentifortions, sir"—London Answers.

Two Months Could Not Turn in Bed. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Finally Restored Health.

Seattle, Washington.—"I had dragging pains first and could not stand on my feet, then I had chills and fever and such pains in my right side and a hard lump there. I could not turn myself in bed and could not sleep. I was this way for over two months, trying everything until my sister brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly until all the hard pains had left me and I was able to be up and to do my work again. The hard lump left my side and I feel splendid in all ways. I know of many women it has helped. —Mrs. J. RICHARDSON, 4840 Ocean St., Seattle, Washington.

This is another case where Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought results after "trying everything until one could not be helped."

If you are suffering from pain, nervousness and are always tired, if you are low spirited and good for nothing, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You may not only relieve the present distress, but prevent the development of more serious trouble.

A Severe Test

Albuquerque, N. M., July 25.—Drouth, continuing through the ordinary rainy season, is causing more fires in the National Forests of the Southwest this year than ever before, according to District Forester P. C. W. Pooler, of the Forest Service, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, who stated that already 695 fires had been extinguished this year in Arizona and New Mexico. The spring dry season began early, especially in New Mexico, and although there was some rain in June, the country as a whole, remained dry and many fires started. Toward the end of June, the number of showers increased. All of them, however, were light and very local. Severe lightning during the light showers has been responsible for most of the fires which occurred in July.

Up to the present time, no general rains have fallen. Lightning fires continue at the rate of about 20 per day for the whole Southwest. This is keeping the rangers busy fighting fires at a time when they ought to be doing much other work. It has been necessary also to keep the extra protective force on the forego. During the past 10 days, there have been 196 fires on the National Forests of the Southwest. Many of them threaten to become large, but through the prompt action of the rangers, all but 11 were extinguished before they reached a size of 10 acres. Of the remainder, 131 never became larger than 1.4 acre before being put out. Forest Officers point out that the drouth is not effectively broken and that the least carelessness with camp and other fires in the forests might cause a serious conflagration. They therefore hope that fishermen will exercise extreme care with their camp fires and when smoking in the woods.

College Fraternities

COLLEGE fraternities—"Greek-letter societies"—are much discussed in these days of increased public interest in the higher institutions of learning. The public is discussing the colleges and universities freely—their place in the American scheme of life and their measure of success in fulfilling their mission. Consequently the college fraternities are criticized and defended, since they are a feature of student life of large importance. Are the fraternities an influence for good? Are they a detriment rather than a benefit to the student? What are they? What is their purpose? Should a boy join or keep out? These are the questions asked by fathers and mothers and guardians.

The titles of nearly all of these societies are Greek letters, which usually refer to a motto expressive of the purpose of the organization. They are secret societies, with grips, badges, rituals and initiatory ceremonies.

Probably the fraternities should be put in four classes: General, local, professional and women's. In the first group there are about fifty fraternities of established reputation. Their chapters vary greatly as to numbers; the range is probably from seven to eighty. Corresponding to these are the societies for women, perhaps twenty in number.

Phi Beta Kappa was the first society with a Greek letter name. It was founded in 1776 at the college of William and Mary, and was originally a secret society. Other chapters were established. Owing to an early prejudice against secret societies, its secrets were exposed in 1831. The letters stand for Greek words translated "Philosophy is the Guide of Life." Since 1831 Phi Beta Kappa has been an honorary society in most of the large colleges and scholarship rank determines the membership. Women have been admitted since 1975.

In 1825 at Union college a group of congenial students began the organization of a secret Greek-letter fraternity. They divided over the ritual. Some of them founded Kappa Alpha. The rest founded Sigma Phi in 1827. This was the beginning of the college fraternities of today.

Membership in the Greek-letter fraternities is probably over 500,000. Alumni usually retain active interest. There are executive committees or councils composed of alumni, which are corporations and hold legal title to the property of the fraternities—which is worth millions. Most fraternities own their chapter houses. Conventions are held with supreme legislative power. The Inter-Fraternity Conference has met annually since 1900 to act on questions of common interest.

Thomas Arlio Clark, dean of men at the University of Illinois, has an interesting article with the title, "Shall I Join a Fraternity?" in the American Boy. Mr. Clark was not a fraternity man in college; therefore he is able to speak from the viewpoint of the outsider. On the other hand, he did join a college fraternity five years after graduation, has visited fraternities all over the country and has made a study of them. Moreover, as a college dean of men for more than twenty years he has had intimate relationships with thousands of undergraduates, including the active members of many fraternities. Mr. Clark, in short, is considered a competent authority on college fraternities. In general he approves them. Moreover, his article before publication was read to several college presidents and professors and high school superintendents, some fraternity men and some not, and approved by them. Here are some of the points he makes, pro and con:

The young man entering college is confronted with a good many problems which his father before him did not have to solve, and one of these is the fraternity question; for though the college fraternity was in existence thirty years ago, it did not, to anything like the extent it does today, dominate college life and control the direct undergraduate activities. Its influence was then confined pretty largely to a limited number of small colleges in a restricted territory; its membership was not large, and its members not closely associated.

In speaking of the college fraternity I do not wish to have it confused with the fraternity in the high school. Excepting, perhaps, in academies and boarding schools where the boys are away from home and need the training and the associations which come from an organized home life and the responsibilities which arise from bringing these things about, the high school fraternity has been pretty generally a detriment both to the character and to the scholarship of its members. It has often taken them away from the restraints of home when they were most needed. It has developed selfishness, extravagance and social excesses which have been harmful to the general morals of the schools. It has had many of the evils of the college fraternity without any of its advantages. I have seen a good deal of the high school fraternity and the product which it turns out, and I am free to say that if I had a son I should not want him to join such an organization.

The college fraternity first came into existence almost one hundred years ago when college attendance and the conditions surrounding college life were very different from what they now are. In those days colleges were small, and the undergraduates were housed in college dormitories or scattered about the town and fed at boarding houses. There was perhaps no thought in the minds of the men who founded the first Greek letter fraternities of developing a home and home life for their members. The main purpose was to strengthen character, to develop good scholarship, and to emphasize and encourage certain qualities of friendship. Often there was a literary purpose. The men who founded the first fraternities were mostly very religious men who believed sincerely in the principles of life and conduct as expounded by the founder of the Christian church.

Fraternity rituals today still emphasize these principles and hold up to fraternity members the highest standards of daily life. The teachings of fraternities are distinctly religious in their influence, and the secret work to which some of the enemies of fraternities object has nothing sinister or vicious in it, but is really of the most harmless and innocent character.

It was not until within very recent years, when the attendance upon colleges began to increase and the conditions of undergraduate living began to change materially, that fraternities began to expand and to emphasize as they had never done before the function of the fraternity in developing for the undergraduate in college a normal and a healthy home life.

In fact, fraternities are not only increasing their own membership but they are doing everything they can to encourage the organization of new fraternities, so that every man who wants to join may have a chance to do so. Colleges, also, whose doors have hitherto been closed to the admission of fraternities are relaxing their regulations and are giving permission to fraternities to come in—and all this because those who know most about fraternities think their influence a good one.

At the present time national Greek letter fraternities, of which there are perhaps fifty, are the organized force in college activities. They take the place that was once occupied by the college literary societies which taught men to speak, which interested them in the politics of college, and which in general controlled and directed what went on in undergraduate affairs outside of the classroom. But the fraternity does still more than this. There are very few fraternities now which do not have their own houses on every campus. These houses form centers of home life which do much to take the place of the life which the boy has known with his own family before going away to college.

It often costs more to live in a fraternity house than it does outside. The food at the fraternity table is ordinarily better than that the student gets at a boarding house, and the general living conditions are more comfortable and convenient; one has to pay for these. The social life of fraternity men is more active and so requires the expenditure of more money for clothing and social pleasures. Sometimes the living conditions have been made too luxurious for the doing of good work, and at times the social life is excessive and the expenditure of money extravagant; but these conditions do not frequently or generally exist. I do not know any chapter of any fraternity—and I know hundreds of them—which does not contain men, respected by everyone in the chapter and in the college, who are earning their living in college through their own efforts; but in general, unless the man concerned has some special talent, this is not so easy to do unaided when in a fraternity as when out of it.

The man who joins a fraternity loses something of his independence. Being a part of an organized group of men, he is not so free to do as he pleases as he would be if he did not have this relationship. He must submit to regulations, he must learn to adapt himself to the conditions of home life, and to the idiosyncrasies of a score or more of people. He will often have to yield his desires and his rights, perhaps, to the will of the organization, for those who go into an organization must be willing to do what will bring the greatest good to the greatest number. He must learn to get on with people, to give up, to be unselfish, to do that which will be most helpful and advantageous to his brothers. Many fellows do not like to do this, and sometimes parents do not wish them to do this, so that such men would make poor fraternity men, and they would be unhappy and make their friends unhappy in the making.

There is a tendency when a man joins a fraternity for him to be satisfied with the friends he meets within its membership, and so to narrow his interests, to restrict his acquaintances, and to undervalue the broader training which comes from a more general contact with men. It is only the weak and narrow-minded man, however, who will fall into this snobishness and who will restrict his acquaintances and his friends to the men whom he meets within his fraternity. The number of such men is fortunately not large.

But there are advantages in fraternity life and these I believe outweigh these possible evils or disadvantages which I have mentioned. The boy who joins a fraternity establishes himself in a home with many of the same duties and comforts of the home life to which he has been accustomed before going to college, and the fraternity house remains to him a home even after he gets out of college. He gathers around him immediately a group of friends who have his best interests at heart. It has been said by those who oppose the fraternity system, that his choice of friends is made too quickly to be satisfactory; that it is a very mechanical choice seldom based upon the principles which underlie true friendships, and that the friendship thus formed is an evanescent one. But the fact that fraternity brothers in every chapter in every college where fraternities exist are not only close friends while they are in college, but remain so throughout life, tends to disprove such a statement. A fraternity man is seldom dissatisfied with the friends he has chosen.

The ideals of life formally set before the fraternity man, and these as I have said, are practically always based upon Christian principles, are the highest possible. The character of the men who were responsible for the founding of these organizations and the character of the national officers who are now in charge of fraternity affairs in each organization will substantiate this fact. The interfraternity conference, which for the last dozen years has done more to bring fraternities and fraternity men together than any other agency, and which is constantly suggesting methods in the fraternity of developing good scholarship, of strengthening moral principles, and of encouraging loyalty to the college and co-operation with its officers, is composed of a most representative group of business and professional men—lawyers, doctors, ministers—and the best in the country.

Snake IS FIGHTER

South American Reptile Attacks Man on Sight.

Bushmaster Probably the Most Feared and Worst-Tempered of the Earth's Crawling Creatures.

The worst-tempered snake in the world is the so-called bushmaster of South America, writes T. C. Bridges in the London Daily Mail. There are three sorts of bushmasters, of which the largest, called by the Indians the "surucucu," is a yellow monster ranging, when full grown, from nine to thirteen feet in length.

This creature, which is extremely plentiful in the damp forest, attacks on sight. Without the slightest warning it comes hurtling out of a thicket and drives straight at the intruder. And its bite, to a white man, means a speedy and horrible death. The Indians, however, have some herbal remedy which protects them against the effect of this poison.

Last year a man sent on a message from one ranch in Bahia to another did not arrive. Search was made, and his body was discovered with a great "surucucu" wrapped round it.

The brute was killed, and then it was found that the unfortunate messenger's body was one mass of bites. There were literally scores of punctures from the poison-dealing fangs.

The "surucucu" has another peculiarity which, so far as is known, is shared by no other serpent only. This is that it is capable of making a sound, quite apart from hissing. It is described as a low whistling—a sort of "phew! Phew!" If one of these creatures is hidden in a hollow tree—a favorable resort—its presence can be detected by the sound it makes.

The smaller bushmaster is known by the Indians as the "apagafoco." The name means "lover of fire."

Fire, instead of scaring this snake, attracts it, and by campers in wet forest the cooking fire is always extinguished before sleeping. Otherwise the man who goes to re-light it in the morning will probably find one of these deadly creatures coiled in the warm embers, and possibly pay for the experience with his life.

In the swamps of Brazil and in every forest pool anacondas abound. Of these, too, there are three sorts.

The largest is the "dermidera," the greatest and most terrible of pythons. It is black in color, and its native name means "the snorer." This is the other snake which makes an audible sound, apart from hissing, a sound comparable with the loud snoring of a sleeping man.

One of these snakes has been killed exceeding 60 feet in length, but trails seen in the swamps seem to indicate the existence of still more monstrous specimens.

Even the smaller anacondas will attack man, and it is highly unsafe to approach a forest pool to drink without first taking due precautions. The anacondas lie in the water, with heads just above the surface, silently awaiting prey.

The Indians of Inner Brazil all speak of another snake which, so far, has not been identified by the naturalist. They call it the "salamanda," and describe it as a sort of boa about 20 feet long, but of enormous thickness.

Best Extinguisher.

Mr. Budget and his wife were continually at variance regarding their individual capabilities of making and keeping a good fire. He contended that she did not know how to make a fire, or how to keep one after it was made. She, on the other hand, maintained that he never meddled with the fire that he didn't put it out—in short, that he was a regular fire damper; and, as he was always anxious to stir up things in the various fireplaces, she made it a practice of hiding the poker just before it was time for him to come into the house. One night there was an alarm of fire in the village and Budget flew for his hat and coat.

"Where are you going?" asked the wife.

"Why, there's a fire, and I'm going to help put it out."

"Well, my love," responded Mrs. Budget, "I think the best thing you can do is to take the poker with you."

Our Pear-Shaped Globe.

While Dowle insisted that the earth was flat, and his successor, Voliva, sticks to the same opinion, serious scientists now begin to hark back to the theory which Columbus formulated on his third voyage, that the earth is shaped somewhat like a pear.

The eminent geologist Solias affirms that if the earth is tending to become round, it has not yet become so. It even appears that what is today the moon belonged originally to the stem end of the terrestrial pear, which in the course of violent rotation threw off the moon.

This, says the Petit Parisien, is a theory. It is perhaps as good as any other, but anyway it is well not to get excited over it. Men were just as well off when they believed that the earth was flat and did not suspect the existence of antipodes.

A Neater Crimson Gulch.

"What did you do with the bunch of rags who came over from Bearcatopolis and said they were going to clean up the town?"

"They had it their own way," answered Cactus Joe. "We gave 'em brains and brains, and organized a posse to see that they made good."—Washington Star.

Croesus Seen in New Roles

Godfather of the Modern Hotel and Patron Saint of Traveling Salesman.

GOLD COINS OIL WORLD TRADE

Recent Discovery of First Gold Coins Ever Minted Recalls Number of Heritages Civilization Owe to Buried Sardis.

Washington, D. C. — Introducing Croesus—godfather of the modern hotel and patron saint of the traveling salesman.

These are new roles assigned to the erstwhile richest man in the world in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The discovery of thirty gold pieces from Croesus' mint, which were part of the first series of gold coins ever struck off, recalls one of a number of heritages which civilization owes to buried Sardis," says the bulletin.

Gold Oils World Trade.

"These new-found coins and a few other pieces already in museums signalize the Lydian inception of the gold basis for world trade—an instrumentality which lubricates international commerce to this day.

"The hotel, or the humble inn which was its forerunner, was not possible until some standardized and compact medium of exchange was available. Therefore it is not surprising that historians generally agree that the first inns, where board and lodging might be had for payment of regular fees, were established in Lydia.

"Before that time caravans were known. But they were evidences of eastern hospitality, set up at points where constant applications for entertainment grew burdensome, and were maintained as a sort of co-operative guest room, or modern municipal lodging house.

"Now it followed further that when a man might be assured convenient abode when he traveled, and he could close a business 'deal' with a pocketful of gold rather than a herd of cattle, that the trading radius of the ancient world suddenly expanded. Men began to travel for pleasure as well as for business, in fact the Greeks already had ventured forth 'for history and for discovery.' Thus it would seem that not only the trade representative but the tourist and the geographer owe Croesus considerable gratitude.

"The modern man can hardly apprehend, without an effort of his imagination, how great a boon it was to the ancients of the Sixth century B. C.

merely to visit another city. Important events were taking place. It was the time of Buddha and Confucius, of Solon and Cyrus, as well as Croesus, yet any high school boy of today can know more about what was going on in the world then than any one living at that time possibly could have known.

"The casual traveler was unknown. The 'stranger' was always feared and his life was in jeopardy. Traders with caravans, sailors with their cargoes, high officials with stately retinues, a few haggard and religious pilgrims—these were the only travelers of that time.

"Digging for History. "Despite these marked steps toward culture, Lydia has remained only a flash in the pan of history. Until explorers recently began digging in the dust of the land that now is a Greek mandate on the Aegean shores of Asia Minor nearly all we knew of Lydia was the rambling, but colorful story of Herodotus. And some of what we did know, it now transpires, was

Parrot Tells on Poachers

Bird's Squawking and Violent Language Leads to Discovery of Evidence of Crime.

POLLY'S MORALS IN SAD STATE

Waterfront Line of Cussing in the Woods Leads Policeman to Investigate—Poachers Snare Thousands of Blackbirds.

New York.—Patrolman Daniel Burke of the Bronx motorcycle squad, combing paths that traverse the Bronx park hills for bird limers, whose activities in the woods of that section were first reported more than a month ago, discovered evidence of their activities in a patch of timber. Burke found the limbs of a dozen or more trees smeared with the bird lime. The poachers are said to have snared thousands of blackbirds.

Burke's discovery was made in a curious way. A red-headed Mexican parrot, owned by Mrs. Margaret Finsted, who lives at 440 Riverside avenue, escaped from its perch on the Finsted porch and disappeared in the

Sun Hatched Chickens Front Discarded Eggs

Several residents of Newburgh, Pa., were attracted to a chilling ground by the chirping of young chicks. Upon investigation it was found that some one, evidently a poultry breeder, had deposited a large number of eggs, supposed to be infertile, on the dump. The warm rays of the sun, coupled with the exposure to the fresh air, completed the hatch. About 75 chicks were gathered.

wrong. The tale of how Solon, when asked by Croesus to name the happiest man in the world, did not reply that Croesus was the man, as the monarch expected, but mentioned instead some humble and dutiful citizens of Athens, may persist, for its moral but has been ruled out of history.

"Lydia's wealth is thought to have been due to various minerals and principally to her trade. Her capital, Sardis, was set on a hill whose ruins even now betoken an imposing dignity. The site is sixty miles northeast of Smyrna which, in the height of Sardis' power, was a Lydian city."

forest. The parrot was sought until after dark by Theodore Finsted, son of its owner, and nearly all the members of his school class, without avail, though young Finsted reported he had heard the bird squawking.

Shrieks of Anguish.

Patrolman Burke on a motorcycle cruising through dense timber in search for the hand said to be snaring birds, was attracted by shrieks of apparent anguish about 100 feet from the path he was traversing. He shouted several times in hope that an answering voice would give him the location of the trouble, but received no response and was about to resume his way when there proceeded from the woods a volley of oaths, intermingled with screams such as might have been uttered by a woman in distress. The oaths, Burke said, were delivered in a hoarse voice—apparently that of a man enraged.

Plunging into the undergrowth with drawn revolver, Burke made his way in the direction of the sounds, calling at intervals, but again finding no response, until when in the densest part of the thicket he was startled by a series of raucous screams coming from directly overhead.

"Police! Police! There's hell to pay—hell to pay—hell, hell!" howled the voice from a heavily flogged oak. "I know you, Mike Sweeney," pursued the invisible one, repeating the latter remark several times.

Parrot Glued Fast.

Patrolman Burke ordered the supposed man in the tree to "come down o' that," but was met, he says, with a volley of abuse. He recognized some of the oaths used as waterfront talk, he says. While this torrent of bad language was proceeding Burke caught sight of its author. Mrs. Finsted's parrot was flapping its wings as it cowered, in a vain effort to break away from a limed limb upon which its feet were firmly glued.

When the parrot was returned to Mrs. Finsted with a suggestion that an effort be made to improve its morals, she said the bird was formerly owned by a waterfront saloonkeeper at Mariner's Harbor, S. I., and was purchased by her son, then in the United States navy, when the prohibition law forced its former owner out of business.

Dear John Farm Cattle. Marlon Center, Pa.—The deer in this part of the state have little or no fear of human beings and frequently large herds approach quite closely to campers. Some days ago, while Horace Manner, of near this place, was milking, a buck and a doe came up and joined the herd of cattle. While the milker moved among the cows the deer remained and did not leave until a dog appeared on the scene.

suggestions are to be had for the asking. It presents, according to the booklet, an opportunity for many manufacturers, wood users, and timber growers to supplement the information obtained by experience and hard knocks with technical data obtained through scientific research.

FINDS CURE FOR HOOKWORM

U. S. Physician Discovers Medical Value of Chemicals Used as Clothes Cleaner.

Washington.—After extended experiments, Dr. Maurice C. Hall of the Department of Agriculture announces he has discovered what he believes to be a positive cure for hookworm in a chemical known as carbon tetrachloride. The statement says his chemical, which is commonly used as a clothes cleaner, "will likely prove to be a cheap, agreeable and effective treatment for a parasite that is destroying health and reducing human efficiency in millions of people in many parts of the world, including many 'hot-spots' in our Southern States."

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

U. S. TO WAR ON WOOD WASTE

Government in Movement to Reduce the Timber Loss.

Through Co-operation With Forest Products Laboratory Methods Are Being Devised to Curtail Enormous Waste of Wood.

Washington.—Only 30 per cent of the wood in a forest now gets into the form of seasoned, unplanned lumber. Of this an additional 10 to 25 per cent is lost in the process of manufacture. In extreme cases as little as three per cent of the wood in the forest may reach the finished product.

This statement is made in a booklet just issued by the Department of Agriculture, entitled Forest Products Laboratory, describing the work and aims of the experimental laboratory maintained by the forest service, in cooperation with the University of Wisconsin, at Madison, Wis.

The booklet outlines how, through investigation and experiment, the laboratory is devising and broadcasting practical commercial methods by which this enormous waste of the country's timber supply can be reduced. By reducing this waste, it is pointed out, the life of our present forests will be prolonged and the problem of growing new forests made simpler, because by preventing the waste of timber less timber will have to be grown.

Among the various methods studied at the laboratory for decreasing waste of forest products is the treatment of woods with preservatives resisting decay. Through such treatment an annual saving of one and one-half billion board feet is estimated to be possible in the case of railroad ties alone, and the preservation of other classes of timber would, in the aggregate, greatly relieve the drain on our forests.

Wise Bird.

Grandfather was a patient in a hospital. In the yard stood a tree, and in this tree was a robin's nest. The sparrows seemed to take great delight in seeing how miserable they could make things for Mrs. Robin by diving and pecking until she would leave the nest.

One morning when Grandpa was looking out the window he saw a twig fastened with a string just above the nest on which was suspended a card, the ten spot of diamonds. The breeze kept the card whirling back and forth frightening the sparrows away. Mrs. Robin went ahead with her work and hatched her brood unmolested.

"Friendship Day" Aug. 6

Manufacturers of greeting cards have designated a day for renewals of friendship by sending cards to friends and the day so designated is Sunday, August 6. The object is to renew friendships that have been allowed to wane through negligence in correspondence, thus allowing old-time fondness to die. Placards displayed in windows of book stores and gift shops, read: "To distant friends, you are dead until you let them know you are alive and send them your love." The slogan of the greeting card association is: "Scatter Sunshine with Greeting Cards."

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

The higher the aerial the stronger the signals. An increase of five to ten feet in the height of the flat top aerial will increase signals.

Addition of a variable condenser to the secondary or to the primary of a loose coupler often helps to tune out the undesired signals.

The sliders on tuning coils often make poor contacts with the slide rod. Thus much of the signal strength is lost. You can overcome this by soldering a flexible wire to the slider.

Increase length of spreaders of two, three or four-wire aerials from six to ten feet for best results. Each wire should be from four to six feet from its neighbor. Two wires one or two feet apart are no better than one wire. Likewise four wires on short spreaders are no better than one wire.

series and to check either one separately, short circuit the tips of the cord leading to the other receiver just outside of the case. Should it appear that there is an open circuit in the cord, short circuit both receivers where the cord enters the case and with a buzzer or lamp connected to the tips on the end of the cord test for an open circuit.

Care should be exercised by the operator when adjusting a crystal detector to see that his fingers do not touch the surface of the crystal or the contact point of the little spring. The oil secretion that exists in the skin together with the dust that it collects will render a crystal detector inoperative by the insulating film that it will cause to form on the portion of the crystal surface that is touched. Should the surface of the crystal get dirty as evidenced by the received signals becoming weaker and weaker, try cleaning the crystal with alcohol and a little brush. Or if this does not seem to remedy the trouble, chip off old surface so that an entirely new surface is presented to the spring.

Do We Want Action or Argument in Washington?

The Trade for Senator Club makes the careful attention of all republicans and all the voters of New Mexico to the accompanying suggestive editorial taken from the editorial page of the Saturday Evening Post of July 1st 1922.

Extract from Editorial Saturday Evening Post, July 1, 1922.

"It seems impossible for the average American, in office and out, to get any concrete conception of his government as a great business, needing experience, expert knowledge, special aptitudes, and, above all, business brains in its many departments. We run lawyers in government, forgetting that lawyers are not primarily business men and the conduct of their own profession is, on the whole, dilatory and unbusiness like, and that the courts are almost inextricably cluttered up. The leaders of the bar, from Chief Justice Taft down, are aware of these conditions and are striving to correct them, but the fact remains that they have persisted for years, and they still persist. Today the national business, as well as the courts, is lawyer-run, lawyer delayed, and like them, functioning too slowly, too cumbrously and too expensive.

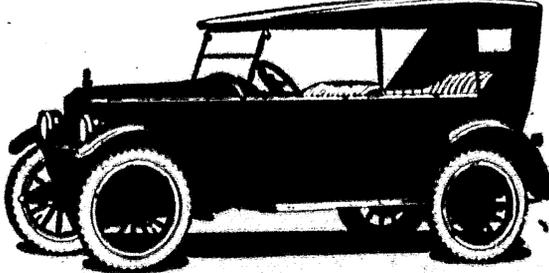

"The theory on which we proceed in government is that a legal training fits a man for any and every kind of office.

"Now we do not underrate the importance or the need of a fair proportion of lawyers in government, doing the work for which lawyers are best fitted by training and experience. But we should retire the great surplus of lawyers now in office to private life, until such time as they have proved, by introducing clean-cut, expeditious business methods in their own profession, and by reforming judicial procedure, that they are better fitted than any other to manage the business of the nation."
