Published Weekly in the Interest of Carrizozo and Lincoln County

VOL. XVII—NO. 24

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 11, 1922

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

Water System Bonds Purchased

(Official)
Antonides & Company of Denver, Colorado, are the purchasers. Paid $25,000.00 par value—$700.00 premium—$279.17 accrued interest from date of Bonds, June 1st, 1922. Total, $25,979.17 received by the village for bonds.
The purchaser had the bonds lithographed and sent here for execution bearing all expense which gave the village the net sum above. A splendid purchase from an investor's viewpoint, bearing 6 per cent interest payable semi-annually, well secured. A good sale from Carrizozo's side compared to other municipal bonds of this kind sold recently. The village Trustees deserve credit together with Mr. Hudspeth, their attorney, for the business like manner in which this matter was handled. Special sessions and call meetings were frequently held to attend to matters concerning the issuance and sale of these bonds.
As recited in the advertisement of sale these bonds are in $500.00 denominations with coupons attached to each bond for the full 30 years, however they are subject to redemption at the end of 20 years if the Village so desires and is in financial condition to do so.
The Village Trustees have plenty of real hard work ahead of them in getting the water system installed, however there should be no great delay now.

Senorita Starts Something

When Senorita Graciela Manujano, Chilean delegate to the recent Pan-American Conference of Women, asked the names of the twelve greatest American women, so she could write them up for the publications she represents in the South American country, probably she expected some one to scribble them on the back of a card and hand them to her. However, that was some time ago, and in the discussion precedent to a final answer has spread from coast to coast and the question has been the subject of editorial comment in practically every prominent newspaper in America.
The Outlook contains a special illustrated article upon this subject this week, and while not furnishing an answer to the question, will be found to be of great interest. This is one of a series of special illustrated articles which appear in the Outlook regularly.

At the White Mountain Inn

A big dance was held at the White Mountain Inn last Saturday night. Ferguson's "Joy-Makers" furnished the music. A large number of Carrizozo people attended. Johnson Bros., managers of this popular resort have arranged every comfort and convenience for those who may attend this beautiful retreat in the mountain regions. If you are looking for a place to spend a week, month, or evening, the accommodations and scenery could not be excelled.

Inspector in Arizona

Wm. Reilly, Inspector of War Loans for the government, left last Monday for Springville, Ariz., to transact some important business at that place that will consume about three weeks of time.

Jicarilla News

Frank Haskins is very busy branding calves.
Little Miss Vivian Brooklin spent a few days with Mrs. Burnett this week.
The stockmen are beginning to feed their stock. Herbert Boydston brought out a load of feed from the Straley store at Ancho a few days ago.
Sam Wood's children, who are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Cooper at Ancho, spent several days at the Boydston home last week.
Miss Lucy Straley and brother Harry, motored out to the Boydston home last Thursday and took Miss Myra Boydston back to Luna with them. She will spend this week with the Misses Straley and Mrs. Tom Straley, Jr.
Mrs. Dave Forsythe, who has been quite ill in a Carrizozo hospital has sufficiently recovered to be brought back to the "Jicks." She is now convalescing in her mother's home. She will return to her own home in the near future.
Some of the boys are home from the harvest fields in Kansas, Tom Straley being the last to arrive. A number of our boys are still with the thrasher. They will probably "look around in their sliver" for a while and see if they can find some place before returning not quite as dry as New Mexico.

Refreshment

Refreshing showers are beginning to fall locally which encourages us to still hope that we will yet be blessed with rain in time for winter grass. A beautiful cloud hung over the Capitan mountain last Tuesday night and from the amount of electricity that was playing in the heavens, the people in that vicinity and for several miles north and east of the mountains must have received plenty of water for one time. Arrangements are being made by most of our stockmen to move their cattle by September if it doesn't rain in time to save our range.

The Ball Game

The ball game last Sunday between Luna and the Jicarilla "Wild Cats" resulted in a score of 5 to 9 in favor of Luna. The game was played at Ancho and was enjoyed by all in spite of the fact that the "rubber heels" smelled so strongly it was thought they were burning several times. The "Cats" could have played a better game if some of the girls hadn't insisted upon holding their "paws" so much of the time. Oh well, you know there are tricks in all trades, but girls, look out, the "Cats" have terrible claws and it might be better to leave them alone, even if they win every game.

Returned from East

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Sager arrived from the east last Saturday where they have been for the past several months. Mrs. Sager left here after receiving word of her mother's death which occurred May 9 at Warner, Ohio. Mr. Sager following on June 1. They remained at Warner for a short while after which they visited relatives and friends in Kalamazoo, Mich., and spent the remainder of their time near that place in which county there were 200 lakes containing fish of the finest variety.

Carl Magee Badly "Beaten Up"

Santa Fe, N. M., Aug. 5.—Carl C. Magee, publisher, and a resident of Albuquerque, is lying in a local hotel suffering from injuries received in a fist fight in which he engaged with Ed Safford, state auditor, at the capitol building this morning.
The fight, which occurred after an argument which arose between the two, over alleged publications made in Magee's paper by Magee, criticizing Safford and his department, started in the hall of the capitol building.
The fight was later carried outside of the building, and Safford finally left Magee bleeding on the lawn. With Magee at the time was his small daughter, who had him taken to a hotel where he had been staying. It was said that he was badly hurt.

Relieved of Hard Earnings

Rolla Parker, who fired on the road during the canteloupe rush, went to El Paso on Aug. 1 to draw his check after which he went about to settle certain bills, returning to his room with something over $100, but on the following morning found that he had been relieved of every cent. Rolla says he noticed two parties watching him when he paid a bill at a certain restaurant, but they could not be located by the police, and it is presumed they made their way across the border during the night after the robbery.

Prosperity is "Just Around the Corner"

New York, Aug. 8.—A telegraphic business survey by the Journal of Commerce, indicates that the leading dry goods merchants of the country agree that prosperity is "just around the corner." Such sentiments are particularly expressed by the leaders in the southern merchandising fields in the general business survey.

The merchant has been unwilling to buy for distant requirements due largely to the general uncertainty existing. Not until prices have adjusted themselves to what appears to be a stable basis will the merchants be tempted to stock up their shelves as they have in times past.

Good Rain

The first good rain Carrizozo has had for the past six weeks fell last Tuesday. From six to eight o'clock, rain fell in torrents, doing a vast amount of good and saving the lives of many cattle which have been on the point of starvation on the nearby ranges.

Eastern Star Meeting

In keeping with the regular custom, Comet Chapter No. 29 O. E. S., met in regular session last Thursday evening, the Masonic hall being as usual, crowded to its capacity. Refreshments of a dainty nature were served after the meeting.

White Oaks-Water Canyon Picnic Grounds Opened

Judge Hewitt was in from White Oaks Thursday and informed us that the old road leading to the old Water Canyon picnic grounds has been made passable for automobiles and is now ready for picnic parties. A force of workmen have been employed for the past week in making the old road over and fitting it so that access to the grounds is easily made. There is an abundance of shade there and the first picnic will be held next Sunday. Come out and enjoy yourselves in this beautiful resort. Plenty of pure mountain water; altitude about 7,000 feet—just right.

Announcement

With the endorsement of many Republicans, both men and women, I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Representative from New Mexico in the United States Congress.

I believe that the judgment of the people in electing a Republican administration has been sufficiently vindicated; therefore, I will stand with the National Administration in its efforts to make the United States a factor in promoting world peace and world justice.
If elected, I will attempt to represent consistently the interests of all the people of New Mexico with special attention to the Reclamation Bill; the tariff schedules; the extension of necessary credits to farmers and stock raisers; the just liquidation of the debt the nation owes to those who defended it during the late war.

I highly endorse the Budget System, because I believe that, as we begin to get results from this system, the tax burdens will be lessened without reducing the efficiency of the government.

I will, further, work for all possible federal aid which will help the state to progress in matters of health and child welfare; and I will favor an amendment to the Constitution, if necessary, to make a child labor legislation effective.

If I am the choice of the Republican Convention for this office, I shall consider it an honor and an opportunity for service.
ADELINA OTERO-WARREN.
Santa Fe, N. M., August 3, 1922.

O. W. Bamberger at Eastern Markets

O. W. Bamberger is in the east at the present time and while there, he will purchase a fall and winter stock of goods for the Carrizozo Trading Company. Mr. Bamberger is a careful buyer and understands just what the needs of our locality are. Nothing but the latest, best and of the most economy to local purchasers, will be contracted for.

Masonic Regular

Carrizozo Lodge No. 41 A. F. & A. M., held its regular monthly communication last Saturday at Masonic hall. A large attendance was had and work was exemplified in the second degree on Major Jones of Fort Stanton, who left for the east on Sunday. Refreshments followed the work. A good representation of visiting Masons was noticeable.

Mr. Fulmer Returns

J. H. Fulmer of the Lincoln County Light & Power Co., returned from the east last week after spending several months stay-of-business importance. He looks well, weighs more than he has for years. His report on business conditions in the east is very encouraging.

Great Benefit Game Yesterday

Yesterday was an off-day for Carrizozo—everybody being interested in the ball game between the Carrizozo Nationals and the Carrizozo East-Siders, for the benefit of the striking shopmen. The managers of both teams, Ben Lujan for the East-Siders and Dolan for the Nationals, gladly rendered the services of their teams and the crowd that witnessed the game certainly got a run for their money. The line-up on both sides was made up completely of Carrizozo boys, and from start to finish the game was one of intense excitement and interest in which the best of nature prevailed. The game was replete with good plays with the exception of a bad error in the first inning that let two men of the East-Siders reach home plate. After that, the game was close, good playing being displayed on both sides. Harry Norman twirled for the East-Siders and Pat Dolan worked the gattling gun for the Nationals.
Mike Barnett umpired the game and as usual, gave the utmost satisfaction to all concerned. Mike is in the wrong pew; he should be umpiring professional ball. His decisions are made with careful judgment and he is on the job from beginning to ending of the game. The ninth inning told the tale of 4 to 2 in favor of the East-Siders. Harry Norman struck out 6 men and Pat Dolan struck out 13, according to scorekeeper, Frank Lesnet. Business houses were closed during the game and judging from the size of the crowd at the ball park, EVERYBODY WENT.

Carrizozo Entertainers

Entertain Big Crowd
Last Monday night at the Crystal Theatre, the Carrizozo Entertainers carried a musical program that pleased the large audience that attended. From beginning to ending, mirth and merriment pervaded the atmosphere, as the program in its entirety was of a comic nature. Notwithstanding the fact that several of the east who were to have taken part were absent, some who were sick and others who were out of the city on important business, the program was exceptionally good, all performing their parts in a commendable manner. Through a misunderstanding, the Outlook announced last week that this would be the last of the series of entertainments. We wish to correct the statement as such is not the case and there will be more to follow until the indebtedness under which the business men are obligated, is satisfied. The people who have supported these entertainments have expressed themselves as being more than satisfied with the different numbers rendered, and our local talent has not only proven itself on an equality with that of other places, but has far exceeded it. Watch for the announcement of the next number which will far surpass all previous efforts of the Carrizozo Entertainers.

Whether the administration tariff bill will be enacted before the November elections has again become the subject of private discussion at the capitol. There is a more or less general belief now in the Senate that the measure cannot be brought to a final vote in that body before Sept. 15, and there are those who believe the ironing out of differences between the Senate and the House in conference will be such a slow and tedious process that it cannot be completed before Congress goes home for the fall recess.

NEW STRIKE IS THREATENED

MAINTENANCE OF WAY MEN WILL TAKE ACTION ON NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES.

45,000 WILL WALK OUT

RESULT OF ROAD'S REFUSAL TO ACCEPT HARDING'S PLAN FOR SETTLEMENT.

New York.—A strike of 45,000 maintenance of way men on the New York Central is predicted by W. M. Parker, chairman of the system organization, as the result of the road's refusal to accept President Harding's plan for settlement of the long-pending strike.

Chicago.—Full acceptance of the peace proposals submitted by President Harding was voted by leaders of the striking railway shopmen (who, however, have their own interpretation of each of the three suggestions. "We accept reluctantly, it is true, but commit ourselves to carry out the terms of the settlement in utmost good faith and in aid of the general welfare," said the message of acceptance which was sent to President Harding. "If these proposals fail to bring about the results which you desire, the responsibility of failure will not rest with representatives of the organized employes."

On the proposal to restore unimpaird seniority rights to the strikers, which was rejected by railway executives at a meeting in New York, the message declared: "It would certainly be a wholesale injustice of unparalleled extent if hundreds of thousands of experienced men who have given four to forty years service and whose value to the transportation industry is proportioned to the length of their service, should be placed in a position of inferiority to a limited number of men who have been employed as substitutes for these experienced railroad workers."

Replying to the President's suggestion that railroads and workmen agree to abide by decisions of the railroad labor board, the reply said the shopmen had always taken the position that so long as they continued to render service, they should abide by the rules and working conditions and accept the wages agreed upon by proper negotiations or determined by the labor board after a hearing of a dispute.

Violations of the law and refusal to abide by decisions of the board "have been exhibited only by the railway managements," the reply said, and asserted that suspension of work under unacceptable conditions was not in violation of the board's decisions. On the President's proposal that lawsuits growing out of the strike be withdrawn, and that railroad labor board decisions to which exception is taken by either side may be taken to the board by either side for a rehearing, the message said that it was the understanding of the union leaders that the labor board would give a prompt rehearing and decision of questions in dispute, that there would be no question as to "who are the property accredited spokesmen of the vast majority of railway employes."

Herbert's Poems. "I must confess, after all, that next to the Scripture-poems there are none so savory to me as Mr. George Herbert's. Herbert speaks to God like a man that really believeth in God and whose business in the world is most with God; heart-work and heaven-work make up his book." —Richard Baxter.

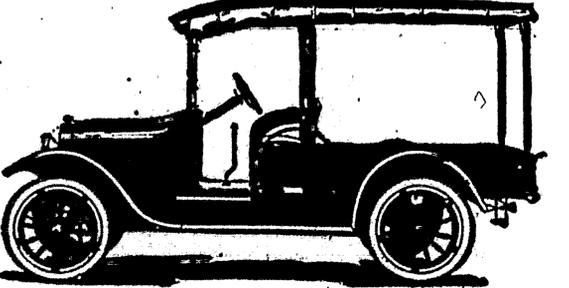

Must Beware of Backward Step. Dante tells us that the realm which lies just below the strata of honest industry and toil is the realm of deceit occupied by the human wreckage of the vagrant and the petty criminal. Modern civilization would break down completely if men were to return to the animal era of treachery and lying. —James A. M. Aikens.

"The Marplot"

The smoke of battle in Missouri between Breckinridge Long and Senator James A. Reed for the senatorial nomination has rolled away revealing Senator Reed the victor to the handsome plurality of 6,000. This victory is highly significant from the fact that Mr. Long was the favorite of Ex-President Wilson, whom he had chosen to completely bury politically for all time to come, the man who had denounced Wilson's pet policy, the League of Nations. Not only had he been scored for differing with the once executive, but Wilson had exercised his power together with that of Tumulty and McAdoo, to contest his seat in two conventions and had ordained that this last blow would disgrace, humiliate and rule him entirely out of the Democratic party.

But Reed was from Missouri and had to be "shown." He refused to believe that the people of his home state would ratify the insults and anathemas hurled at him simply because he differed with his chief in opinions here and there and branded as a marplot and traitor. He entered the contest with a vim characteristic of the old Missouri fighter that has a cause at stake and now as the figures stand on the dial, the Ex-President, Tumulty, McAdoo, (et cetera), have received a setback equal to that they experienced in the last National election, and the "marplot" has returned to Washington to carry on in the interest of the people who admire the courage of a man who though mangled, and slandered has had the courage to fight and win in the face of apparent defeat. Hail to "marplots," in defense of the right.

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. Wonderful Word

We saw by the papers that the "sometime secretary of the treasury" Wm. G. McAdoo, in ascending the narrow Tenaya Trail in California on horseback, was confronted by a pack train headed by a large stubborn mule, who refused to give passage to the "sometime secretary," until that notable whispered some magic word into the ear of the emblem of the Democracy. There seems to be no doubt in our minds as to what this magic, mysterious word was, for this word, or name rather, will make any apostle of Wilson stand aside; the magic word was "Reed!"

"YOUNG MAILLARD!"

SYNOPSIS.—During the height of the New Orleans carnival season Jachin Fell, wealthy though somewhat mysterious citizen, and Dr. Ansel, are discussing a series of robberies by an individual known as the Midnight Masquer, who invariably dressed as an aviator, has long defied the police. Joseph Maillard, wealthy banker, is giving a ball that night, at which the Masquer has threatened to appear and rob the guests. Fell and Ansel, on their way to the affair, meet a girl dressed as Columbine, seemingly known to Fell, but masked, who accompanies them to the ball. Lucio Ledanola, recently the ward of her uncle, Joseph Maillard, in the Columbine. At the ball, Bob Maillard, son of the banker, again proposes to her and is refused. He offers to buy some of her property. A Franciscan monk interests her. He turns out to be Prince Gramont. In his library Joseph Maillard and a group of his friends are held up and robbed by the Midnight Masquer. Lucio Ledanola, the last of an old family, is in straitened circumstances. Joseph Maillard's handling of her affairs and the Masquer. Gramont's chauffeur, Hammond, sergeant in the A. E. F., lives with him. He was the original Midnight Masquer, and Gramont had assumed the role. Where Hammond had been a robber for financial gain, Gramont, of course, is not. He arranges to return the "loot" to those whom he has robbed.

"Well, I was followed today; at least, I think I was. And let me tell you something about that same quiet little man! His name is Jachin Fell."

"Hold a name," commented Hammond, and wrinkled up his brow.

"Jachin, huh? Seems like I've heard the name before. Out o' the Bible, ain't it? Something about Jachin and Boaz?"

"I imagine so." Gramont smiled as he replied. "This chap Fell is sharp, confoundedly sharp!" he went on, while the chauffeur listened with frowning intentness. I think that he is on to me, and is trying to get the goods on me."

"Oh!" said Hammond. "And someone was trailin' you? Think he's put the bulls wise?"

Gramont shrugged his shoulders. "I don't know. He almost caught me last night. We'll have to get rid of that aviator's suit at once, and of the loot also. I suppose you've reconciled yourself to returning the stuff?"

Hammond stirred uneasily, and laid down his pipe.

"Look here, cap'n," he said, earnestly. "I wasn't runnin' a holdup game because I liked it, and I wasn't doing it for the fun of the thing, like you are. I was dead broke, I hadn't any hope left, and I didn't care a d—n whether I lived or died—that's on the dead! Right there, you come along and picked me up."

"You give me a job. What's more, you've treated me white, cap'n. You've given me something decent to live for—to make good because you got some faith in me! Why, when you went out on that first job of ours, d'you know it like to broke me up? It did. Only, when we got home that night and you said it was all a joke, and you'd send back the loot later on, then I began to feel better about it."

Gramont nodded in comprehension of the other's feeling.

"It's not been altogether a joke, sergeant," he said, gravely. "To tell the truth, I did start it as a joke, but soon afterward I learned something that led me to keep it up. I kept it up until I could hit the Maillard house. It was my intention to turn up at the Comus ball, on Tuesday night, and there make public restitution of the stuff—but that's impossible now. I dare not risk it! That was Fell is too smart."

"You're not going to pull the trick again, then?" queried Hammond, eagerly.

"No. I'm through. I've got what I wanted. Still, I don't wish to return the stuff before Wednesday—Ash Wednesday, the end of the carnival season. Suppose you get out the loot and find me some boxes. And be sure they have no name on them or any store labels."

Hammond leaped up and vanished in the room adjoining. Presently he returned, bearing several cardboard boxes, which he dumped on the center table. "I'm blamed glad you're done, believe me!" he uttered, fervently, glancing up at Gramont. "Far's I'm concerned I don't care much, but I'd sure hate to see the bulls turn in a guy like you, cap'n. Here we are. Want me to keep each bunch separate, don't you?"

"Sure, I'll be writing some notes to go inside."

Gramont went to a built writing desk in the corner of the room, and sat down. He took out his notebook, tore off several sheets, and from his pocket produced a pencil having an extremely hard lead. He wrote a number of notes, which, except for the addresses, were identical in content:

"Dear Sir:

"I inclose herewith certain jewelry and articles, also currency, recently obtained by me under your kind auspices.

"I trust that you will assume the responsibility of returning these things to the various guests who lost them while under your roof. I regret any discomfort occasioned by my taking them as a loan, which I now return. Please convey to the several owners my profound esteem and my assurance that I shall not in future appear to trouble anyone, the carnival season having come to an end, and with it my little jest.

"THE MIDNIGHT MASQUER."

Gathering up these notes in his hand, Gramont went to the fireplace. He tossed the pencil into the fire, following it with the notebook.

"Can't take chances with that man Fell," he explained. "All ready, sergeant. Let's go down the list one by one."

From the trunk Hammond produced ticketed packages, which he placed on the table. Gramont selected one, opened it, carefully packed the contents in one of the boxes, placed the proper addressed note on top, and handed it to the chauffeur.

"Wrap it up and address it. Give the return address of John Smith, Bayou Teche."

One by one they went through the packages of loot in the same manner. Before them on the table, as they worked, glittered little heaps of rings, brooches, watches, currency; jewels that flashed garishly with colored fires, historic and famous jewels plucked from the aristocratic heart of the southland, heirlooms of a past generation side by side with platinum cradles of the present fashion.

There had been heartburnings in the loss of these things, Gramont knew. He could picture to himself something of what had followed his robberies: family quarrels, now purchases in the gem marts, bitter reproaches, fresh mortgages on old heritages, vexations of wealthy dowagers, shrugs of unconcern by the nouveau riche; perchance lives altered—divorces—

"There's a lot of human life behind these bubbles, sergeant," he reflected aloud, a cold smile upon his lips as he worked. "When they come back to their owners, I'd like to be hovering around in an invisible mantle to watch results! Could we only know it, we're probably affecting the lives of a great many people—for good and ill. These things stand for money; and there's nothing like money, or the lack of it, to guide the destinies of people."

"You said it," and Hammond grinned. "I'm here to prove it, ain't it? I ain't pullin' no more gunplay, now I got me a steady job."

"And a steady friend, old man," added Gramont. "Did it occur to you that maybe I was as much in need of a friend as you were?"

He had come to the last box, now, that which must go to Joseph Maillard. On top of the money and scarfpins which he placed in the box he laid a thin packet of papers. He tapped them with his finger.

"These papers, sergeant! To get them, I've been playing the whole game. To get them and not to let their owner suspect that I was after them! Now they're going back to their owner."

"Who's he?" demanded Hammond.

"Young Maillard—son of the banker. He roped me into an oil company; caught me, like a sucker, almost the first week I was here. I put pretty near my whole wad into that company of his."

"You mean he stung you?"

"Not yet." Gramont smiled coldly, harshly. "I fell right enough—but I'll come out on top of the heap."

The other frowned. "I don't get you, cap'n. Some kind o' stock deal?"

"Yes, and no." Gramont paused, and seemed to choose his words with care. "Miss Ledanola, the lady who was driving with us this afternoon, is an old friend of mine. I've known for some time that somebody was sneaking her. I suspected that it was Maillard the elder, for he has had the handling of her affairs for some time past. Now, however, those papers have given me the truth. He was straight enough with her; his son was the man.

"He worked on his father, made his father sell land, owned by Miss Ledanola, and he himself reaped the profits. There are notes and stock issues, among those papers that give his whole game away, to my eyes. By the way, get that tin box out of my trunk, will you? I want to take my stock certificates with me in the morning, and must not forget them."

Hammond disappeared into the adjoining room.

Gramont sat gazing at the boxes before him. He shook his head gloomily, and his eyes clouded.

"All wasted—the whole effort!" he murmured. "I thought it might lead to something, but all it has given me is the reward of saving myself and possibly retrieving Lucio. As for the larger game, the bigger quarry—it's all wasted. I haven't unraveled a single thread; the first real clue came to me tonight, purely by accident. Memphis Izzy Gumberts! That's the lead to follow! I'll get rid of this Midnight Masquer foolishness and go after the real game."

Gramont was to discover that it is not nearly so easy to be rid of folly as it is to do the jester's cap and bells; a fact which one Simplicissimus had discovered to his sorrow three hundred years earlier. But, as Gramont was not versed in the line of literature, he yet had the discovery ahead of him.

Hammond re-entered the room with the tin box, from which Gramont took his stock certificates issued by Bob Maillard's oil company. He pocketed the shares.

"I'll go to Maillard the banker—Joseph Maillard—first thing in the morning, and offer him my stock. He'll be mighty glad to get it at a discount, knowing that it is in his son's company. You see, the son doesn't confide in the old man particularly. I'll let the father win a little money on the deal with me, and by doing this I'll manage to save the greater part of my investment."

"Holy mackerel!" Hammond exploded in a burst of laughter as he caught the idea. "Say, if this ain't the richest thing ever pulled! When the crash comes, the fancy kid will be stinging his dad good and hard, eh?"

"Exactly; and I think his dad can afford to be stung much better than I can," agreed Gramont, cheerfully.

"Now let's take those packages and stow them away in the luggage compartment of the car. I'm getting nervous at the thought of having them around here, and they'll be perfectly safe there overnight—safer than here, in fact. Tomorrow you can take the car out of town and send the packages by parcels post from some small town."

"In that way they ought to be delivered here on Wednesday. You'd better wear one of my suits, leaving your chauffeur's outfit here, and don't halt the car in front of the post office where you mail the packages—"

"I get you," assented Hammond, sagely. "But what about them aviator's clothes?"

"Take them with you—better get them wrapped up here and now. You can toss them into a ditch anywhere."

Hammond obeyed.

Ten minutes afterward the two men left the room, carrying the packages of loot and the bundle containing the aviator's uniform. They descended to the courtyard in the rear of the house. Here was a small garden, with a fountain in its center. Behind this were the stables, which had long been disused as such, and which were now occupied only by the car of Gramont.

It was with undigested relief that Gramont now saw the stuff actually out of the house. Within the last few hours he had become intensely afraid of Jachin Fell. Concentrating himself upon the man, picking up information guardedly, he had that day assimilated many small items which increased his sense of peril from that quarter. Straws, no more, but quite significant straws. Gramont realized clearly that if the police ever searched his rooms and found this loot, he would be lost. There could be no excuse that would hold water for a minute against such evidence.

"Seen anything of an aviator's helmet around here?"

When Baby Complains.

THERE ARE MANY WAYS a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know that a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved.

And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cure-all for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.

Children Cry For

Let's Think It Over.

There is such a thing as saying too much on any subject, and the "grand-stand" talker sooner or later becomes a bore. The truth is always welcomed, and the truth reiterated and confirmed is more than welcome—it reaches your innermost soul.

Fletcher's Castoria is all its advertising has claimed for it. Scrutinized by the microscope of public opinion and used for thirty years; it stands without a peer in the hearts of thoughtful, cautious, discerning Mothers. And once used, mother love—there is no substitute for mother love—will scorn to try a "substitute" or a "just-as-good".

Masquerading under many names—drugs that are injurious to the tender babe have found their way into some households, but the light of experience soon casts them out. Are they cast out before it is too late? MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Went Down in Defeat

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 9.—Candidates favoring wine and beer and progressivism within the republican party went down to defeat in the state-wide primary election in Ohio according to returns early today from more than 4,500 of the 7,836 precincts in the state.

The nine-cornered race for the republican nomination for governor in which these issues were paramount, apparently was won by a large margin by Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland who was strongly supported by President Harding's administration and by the Anti-saloon league. Thompson began life as a coal miner, became wealthy in oil, was elected secretary of state, later became treasurer of the United States and now is engaged in the iron ore business.
