

State Convention At Albuquerque

Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 7.—The only thing that seemed certain when the New Mexico Republican state convention met here today was that the gathering was filled with many uncertain elements.

If there are any certainties that Judge Stephen B. Davis, of Las Vegas, will be the nominee for United States senator and that Mrs. Adelina Otero-Warren, of Santa Fe, will be the nominee for congress, there is a strong possibility that the gubernatorial nominee will be a "Spanish-American."

Friends of H. B. Holt, of Las Cruces were claiming his nomination, but most of the politicians were figuring that Judge Davis would be nominated on the first ballot. It might be, they said, that former attorney general Geo. W. Prichard would get enough complimentary votes on the first ballot to prevent a nomination. In that event, Judge Davis was expected to get the nomination on the second ballot.

Francis G. Tracy, of Carlsbad, has been a candidate for the senate but he formally withdrew this morning and it was announced that the Eddy and Lea county delegations pledged to him would vote for Davis. At Davis's headquarters it was said this clinched his nomination on the first ballot.

Leaders in both the Holt and Davis factions are largely supporting Mrs. Otero-Warren for the congressional nomination.

Republican Convention

The Republican delegates elected at the primaries Sept. 2, met in convention last Saturday at Lutz Hall and called to order by Robert Brady, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, who with J. B. French, Secretary of said committee were chosen temporary officers of the convention. After all committees appointed by the chair had reported, a recess was taken until 7:30 when the convention again assembled at the Court House where permanent organization composed of J. B. French as chairman and A. W. Varney as secretary was effected and the following delegation of 14 selected to attend the state convention at Albuquerque which convened Sept. 7: Wm. Blanchard, S. W. Kelsey, Rinaldo Duran, Robert Brady, H. P. Clark, Tom DuBois, A. J. Rolland, Modesto Ulibarri, Porfirio Chavez, Chas. Grey, Henry Lutz; Messames Farley, Fisher and Salas. The convention adjourned after a few remarks by Judge Chavez in which he complimented the convention on its harmonious deliberations.

Home from the Coast

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lemon and son Morris returned from Los Angeles last Monday, where they have been visiting old Carrizozo friends. Mrs. Lemon left here on June 27, and after visiting friends at different places in Arizona, went to Los Angeles, where for the balance of the time she visited former Carrizozo people at that place and Long Beach. While there, a Lincoln County picnic was held, at which time about seventy-five former Lincoln County people attended.

Animal Hero Worship Demonstrated at Studio

Hero worship is an attribute of nature to which all animals are as prone as human beings. When Strongheart, the huge police dog, who features in the "Silent Call," at the Crystal Theater next Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 13 and 14, breaks away from the bonds of civilization, he is the object of unrequited affection from a full-blooded she-wolf, who idolized the dog.

Director Laurence Trimble declared that this incident of the picture is true animal life and that learned students of animals will back the author in recording this scene.

The theory worked out even more realistically in real life than in reel life. When Nayhee, the huge she-wolf who was brought to the studio to pose for the part in the picture, saw the dog, she built a hero out of him. When the camera ceased clicking and the demand for "acting" had ended, the dog stalked away or jumped upon some distant shelf for refuge. Not so with the wolf, however, which kept prowling around, looking for her mate! "Hero worship" is the diagnosis which Jane Murfin, adaptor of the story, placed upon Nayhee's actions.

"Lady Godiva," Sept. 8

Women who have sacrificed; women who have given unselfishly for an ideal, will be interested in seeing "Lady Godiva," that noble creature who rode through the town to set her people free. Her shame was her glory; for he who peeped was stricken blind! "Lady Godiva" is a continental-made production, aglow with gay color, aflame with pomp, ceremony and fanfare of trumpets. It is a sensational spectacle; a big production. See the tremendous coronation ceremony in which over twenty thousand people took part. See the ride of Lady Godiva on her milk-white steed. See the final climax; the crash of the mighty; the destruction of the castle. Read the poem by Alfred Lord Tennyson. It will thrill you. See the photoplay. It will give you the thrill of your life!

This picture has been secured from Pathe by the Carrizozo Entertainers and will be produced at the Crystal Theater, Friday evening, Sept. 8, 1922. We are assured by the management that the picture is educational, historical and elevating in character. Your attendance will be appreciated. The proceeds will be applied on the debt of the Redpath Lyceum Committee.

Signal Blasts Believed Heard From Argonaut

Jackson, Calif., Sept. 4.—Jackson was still thrilled tonight with the report that explosions had been heard which apparently were answering signals from the 46 miners who have been entombed in the Argonaut mine for a week, although officials in charge of the work declined to discuss the matter and insisted Thursday was the earliest date on which men could be reached.

The list of missing men was reduced to 46 today by the discovery that one of the men supposedly underground in the Argonaut mine had quit shortly before the explosion and had gone to work at the Kennedy mine. As his name had not been taken off the Argonaut payroll, it was at first believed he was entombed.

Ft. Bayard, N. M., Sept. 6.—The first social service building ever put into a hospital by a fraternal organization, other than the Knights of Columbus war time activities branch, will be the handsome building of the Sojourners' club, which will be built at Ft. Plans for the building were drawn by Forrester & McCollough, architects of Washington, D. C. The Scottish Rite Masons have raised $20,000 to $30,000 which it is estimated the building will cost.

The Sojourners' club is an organization of all Masons at Ft. Bayard, including officers employees and patients. They announce as their ideal the service of all mankind, regardless of whether he belongs to their order and they especially interest themselves in relieving the condition of gassed and sick soldiers unable to secure compensation from the government; due to their inability to trace their disability to military service.

The walkout did not affect passenger traffic at Summit, and freight service was not seriously hampered, officials asserted.

Car Goes Over 200 - Foot Cliff

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 3.—An automobile plunged over the cliff near the cataract at Niagara Falls this afternoon and was dashed to pieces 200 feet below on the river's margin. Mrs. Agatha Miller, 54 years old, wife of D. H. Miller of Cleveland, fell of her death with the car.

The accident happened just north of the upper steel arch bridge. Mrs. Miller was alone in the car in the rear seat. The car was parked on the grass near the customs office at the American end of the bridge, facing the river on a slight slope. There is no guard rail at the cliff edge. The owner and driver of the car, Edward Meyers of Buffalo, had left it, as he thought, safely parked. For some reason it began to slip down the slope and Mrs. Miller, who was of very heavy build, realized her danger. Her screams aroused bystanders and two men, Harry Andrew, a negro of Buffalo, and Joseph Goldberg, Toronto, grabbed the rear fenders and strove desperately to stop the car. They kept their holds until it reached the very brink and plunged into the gorge.

Mrs. Miller tried to extricate herself but she was not quick enough. The Millers and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kerrigan, also of Cleveland, came to Buffalo this morning.

Davis Favors Budweiser

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—James Davis, Secretary of Labor announces a stand in favor of beer for steel mill workers in a chapter of his autobiography. "The Iron Puddler" which is now on the press.

As a preface to his observation on that subject, Secretary Davis, likened the temperature of the tin mills in the summer to the Fourth of July in Abyssinia.

"Water doesn't agree with the stomach as well as does beer" is one sentence in his autobiography where Secretary Davis quotes himself directly in conversation with what he termed an "up-lifter."

"You never worked at terrific muscular exertion handling white hot iron in a mill like this" he states.

"You haven't got the muscle to do it and, I doubt, if you've the condition a man is in when he hits his hardest licks here. But they know and I know."

"Some of the men feel that they can't drink water at that time. My pal tells me that his stomach rejects it; his throat seems to collapse as he gulps it. But beer he can drink and it eases him."

"The alcohol in beer is a blessing at that time. It soothes his laboring stomach until the water can get into his system and quench the man's thirst. Iron workers in the old world have used malt beverages for generations. Why take away the other man's pleasure if it doesn't injure you?"

In another chapter the secretary writes:

"Capitalism as the Communists call it, is an imperfect system. But it is the only system that has banished famine. Under Communism and feudalism there was hunger."

"Nature is using Communists, slackers, sick men and fools to undermine the race that has conquered her. The man who says 'Quit work and divide our cake and eat it' is opening the way for nature to strike suddenly with a famine."

"The man who advocates 'one big strike' to destroy our capital is the secret agent of starvation."

ARMY MARCHING ON GERMANY

POINCARÉ'S CABINET DECIDES TO USE COERCIVE MEASURES TO FORCE PAYMENTS.

SITUATION DESPERATE

SCHROEDER PLEADS IMMEDIATE RELIEF TO PREVENT TOTAL COLLAPSE OF MARK.

Paris.—Grim determination to obtain reparations from Germany, seize guarantees and enforce such payments in the event that the reparations commission's decision should grant a moratorium to Germany without exacting the securities demanded by France, is everywhere evident in French official circles.

The war office also is very busy and is in constant communication with General De Couette's headquarters at Mayence. Large movements of troops were reported from Nancy, Metz and the Rhineland and there seemed to be no doubt in the minds of officials generally that the occupation of the Ruhr was a foregone conclusion should the commission's decision go against France.

While official announcement is withheld, in order not to interfere with the work of the commission, and owing to the desire of the French government to allow the German delegates every possible opportunity to make a final proposal which might be acceptable to France, French officials talk and act as if the plan were adopted and France's decision to take coercive measures against Germany had already been decided upon.

Herr Schroeder's propositions to the commission are described as "absolutely unacceptable."

The Germans were given two hearings but failed to produce any new concessions. Herr Schroeder, as spokesman, asserted that the situation in Germany is desperate. He pleaded with the allies to grant immediate relief, in order to prevent the total collapse of the mark and the probable fall of the Wirth government. The Germans spoke their final word at a brief afternoon session and left without receiving any encouragement from the commission.

Herr Schroeder's final proposal to the reparations commission was a request for a moratorium for cash payments during the remainder of 1922 only, with a new plan for 1923, namely, that if a moratorium were granted then the German government would secure coal and timber by private contracts with the industrialists.

The proposal involves huge amounts of wood and coal, which are not yet estimated, but Herr Schroeder later pointed out that at the present time 1,600,000 tons of coal alone are being delivered monthly. It was specified that the proposal must generally be accepted by all the members of the reparations commission.

Premier Poincaré had a long conference with M. Viviani, and the minister of finance, M. DeLasteysie. Later he received Andre Lefevre, former minister of war, a most persistent advocate of the adoption of strong measures toward Germany.

M. Lefevre appeared in great spirits as he emerged from the Poincaré cabinet.

"Our only chance to get anything from Germany," he said, "is for us to go and take it. This is what I have been preaching since the signing of the peace treaty. I am happy to find that my viewpoints will prevail."

Berlin. The cabinet has decided to reject new demands sent through Herr Schroeder of the German finance ministry by the reparations commission in Paris for some productive or gold guarantees as a condition to the granting of a moratorium to Germany.

Dominant Feeling Among Settlers in Western Canada.

Despite "Newness" of the Country, There Are No Better Institutions of Learning Anywhere.

There is frequently hesitation expressed by those whose minds are almost made up to move to the agricultural lands of Western Canada, that the children will not enjoy the school privileges afforded them in their present surroundings. This is a reasonable doubt. The country is new. It is within the memory of many who will read this that the bison roamed these prairies at will, that there were no railroads, no settlements beyond that of some of the Hudson Bay posts, a few courageous ranchmen and Indians. It was a country of unknown quantity. It is different today, and it has been made different in that short time because of the latent stores of wealth hidden in the land, which has been made to yield bountifully through the daring enterprise of the pioneer and the railways that had the courage to extend their enterprising lines of steel throughout its length and a great portion of its breadth. Villages and hamlets have developed into towns and towns into cities, supported and maintained by those who, coming practically from all parts of the world, and many, yes, thousands, from the neighboring states to the south, have taken up land that cost them but a trifle as compared with what they were able to dispose of the holdings upon which they had been living for years. These people brought with them a method in life that electrified and changed the entire Canadian West. Today things are different, and a trip to Western Canada will show a country new but old. Now because changes have been wrought that give to the newcomer the opportunity to become part of a growing and developing country—it gives the chance to say what shall be made of it; old because there has been brought into its life those things that have proven useful in older countries, while there has been eliminated everything that would tend to a backward stage. A writer, dealing with social matters, treats of the schools, and says:

"Everywhere the school follows the plow. Cities which a few years ago were represented by scattered shacks are proud today of their school buildings. The web of education is being spread over the prairie. Lately, however, a new policy has been adopted. Instead of many rural schools, big central schools are being established—each serving an area of fifty square miles or so, and children who live a mile and a half away are conveyed either in well-warmed motor cars. In the summer, of course, they come on bikes or ponies.

"And the young idea is thought to shoot in many directions. The instruction is not limited to the three R's but nature study and manual crafts are taught, in order that the future agriculturist may have his education at foundation laid. Many rural schools have pleasant gardens attached, with flower and vegetable beds, and the visitor to one such school deep in the country says she will never forget the pride with which a little lad showed her the patch of onions in his plot. Thrift is also taught in the schools by means of the dime bank.

"Following the primary schools there are secondary schools, where training is free. This includes classics, modern languages, science, mathematics, advanced English, and often agricultural commercial, and technical subjects and—but this concerns the girls—household economics. For three years this lasts, and then comes matriculation into the university, a matriculation which admits direct to the arts or science degree, or the educator may be completed by a course in some special subject at a technical institute."—Advertisement.

Costs Nothing to Try!
The Times invites you all to take part in this unique Fun Game. It's full of fun and excitement and interesting to everyone. This is not a subscription contest and you don't have to send in a single subscription to win a prize. Just make up your list of "P" words and mail to T. J. Desmond, Puzzle Manager, the El Paso Times.

Follow These Rules:

- This puzzle is open to any man, woman, boy or girl who is not an employee of the El Paso Times or member of an employee's family and is a bona fide resident of El Paso or El Paso territory. It costs nothing to take part in the game.
- Answers should be written on one side of the paper only and numbered consecutively—1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address on the top of each sheet. All answers must be mailed before midnight September 15, and addressed to T. J. Desmond, Puzzle Manager, the El Paso Times.
- Only words which are found in the English Dictionary will be counted. Compound, hyphenated and obsolete words will be considered as errors. If the singular of a word is used the plural can not be counted, and vice versa. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though used to designate different objects. The same object can be named only once, although any part of the object may also be named. There may be more than one word equally applicable to the picture, any one of them will count.
- The person sending in the largest and nearest correct list of words beginning with the letter "P," naming objects shown in the picture, will win First Prize; second nearest, Second Prize, etc. One point will be given for each correct word sent in, and one point off for each incorrect word or omission. Nonsense, slips or hand-writing have no bearing upon the counting of the winners.
- All answers will receive the same consideration regardless of whether or not a subscription is sent in.
- Persons may work together in preparing their list, but only one prize will be awarded in any one household. Not more than one prize will be awarded to any group outside of the family, where two or more have been working together.
- In the event of a tie for any prize offered (in full amount of the prize) will be paid to each correct list.
- The three following well known ones of El Paso, having no connection with the El Paso Times, will act as judges:
A. Chamberlain, president El Paso Chamber of Commerce; Fabian H. Hester, president El Paso School; C. M. Hester, president El Paso National Bank.
They will use as their reference Webster's New International Dictionary, and contestants agree to accept their decision as final and binding.
- These judges will meet directly following the close of the Picture Game and the names of the prize winners and the winning list of words, together with the correct list which is made up by the judges from the correct words submitted by contestants will be published in the Times and the prize awarded just as quickly thereafter as the judges can complete their checking.

The Soul of America

"ON TO PARIS!"

"MARTYR'S GOOD" "OVER THERE"

SIXTY blind veterans of the World war were guided into the gallery of the national house of representatives one day this summer. From there they went to the senate, then to a garden party at the White House. These veterans from the navy and from every European battlefield where Americans fought are being rehabilitated in the Evergreen School for the Blind in Baltimore. They want congress to grant them an incorporation for an association which shall keep them together and enshrine their common sacrifice.

It is Representative Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota who has introduced the incorporation bill. Calling the attention of the house to the visitors in the gallery, he made an eloquent speech that stirred even the blasé house and brought forth many bursts of applause. Probably one reason the speech was eloquent was because the speaker knew what he was talking about. For he had been under fire with the boys on the firing line. He was on the American transport Mount Vernon when she was torpedoed off Brest September 5, with a loss of 37 killed. He was in France during July and August of 1918 and followed the Americans in the Chateau Thierry drive. As he said in his speech:

"I was with Major Fuchs in Colan, where ghastly hot fragments of shell lay smoking in the street, the town being shelled every 15 minutes. I experienced creeping upon hands and knees for about half a mile to avoid exposure to the enemy. I saw the heavy white dust, the flies, the heat, and the stinkiness of water; the smell of decaying flesh, where the human dominated the animal. I heard the mighty uproar of night attacks, where the heat lightning the barrage played along the sky, the boom of artillery and the burst of shell; the heavy rattle of trucks bringing troops, munitions and supplies to the front, and ambulances setting out with the wounded.

"From actual contact with soldiers in action, in field and camp, I know something of what our boys suffered and what they accomplished over there. I lined with them at mess and commuted with them in bivouac in the night, at a time when men's tongues are loosed and they talk. Today they narrowly missed death. Perhaps it would be their turn tomorrow, and so on the verge of eternity they spoke their hearts and told the plain truth without fear or favor. No winners among them. No losers. Just matter-of-fact, pure stuff, the dross burned away in actual fellowship with death, leaving their souls vibrant instruments of truth. If I had but one word with which to describe the American soldier, I would describe him with the word 'courage.' No nation in all the annals of war has produced average individuals with such predominant courage, such unheard-of heroism, such willing offering of life."

But Mr. Schall's speech was eloquent for another reason also: He himself is a blind man—"lost sight through electric shock," says the Congressional Directory. Said he, in his introduction: "No doubt every one of these boys has cried out in his hour of trial, 'O Lord, if possible, take this cup from me, and would have chosen to have remained upon the battlefield, with no wakening to hear, day after day, the heavy cross of silent waiting. The constantly recurring thought in the early days of blindness is, 'Is not death to be preferred?' for they then reason with the mind of the seeing. I can remember upon losing my sight, acquaintances meeting me after a lapse of time would say, 'Schall, I heard you were dead.' I replied, 'Not dead, just blind!' But I could never interpret what they thought. When they heard that I had lost my sight, they said to themselves, 'I would rather be dead.' And so, having said it, they concluded that I was dead. But I am not dead. [Applause.] And I am quite sure that the blind soldiers who are here in the gallery today will prove that they are not dead. [Applause.] These men are making good under their trials.

There is one young lad up there, deaf in one ear, both hands gone, blind, yet he is studying law. He has learned the typewriter, and he writes as fine a letter as any one of you can do with your sight. [Applause.] They are all very much alive. They have refused to be downed. They have tackled their handicap with the same spirit and go and dash that they bucked the stonemate of the trenches, and with a yell, "Come on, boys, do you want to live forever?" sent the American spirit up and down the allied lines to win the victory for the world." [Applause.]

Here are some of the good things in the eloquent speech of this blind legislator speaking for the blind ex-service men:

"We have been accustomed to believe the European propaganda that everything overseas is far, far better than our home product; that to produce a soldier up to European grade, they must be drilled year after year. But here were these raw American boys performing deeds of judgment, decision and valor that forced from their war-trained allies and opponents the admission that they had never seen or heard the like.

"A heroic soul here and there would have been within the bounds of expectation, but the constant grade of the whole product of the nation, drafted and volunteers, with whom you came in contact there on the death fields could not but give you pause and force the thinking mind to ask why a nation had produced such universal phenomena.

"In touch with these wonderful men day after day, in whom heroism was as common as the dirt under foot, comparing them with the other soldiery, I was impelled to ask myself what made this vast gap in the fortitude, courage, judgment, between human individuals of the same civilization, and the answer was driven in upon me that the difference lay in their greater soul power, because at last God had reared a government under which the soul, that thing akin to Him, could grow; a government whose aim was the development and fostering of initiative of the individual, where they had freedom to choose between right and wrong; where any citizen could aspire to the highest office in the land; where religion was unhampered, their thoughts unrestrained, where they dared to think and feel out loud; where equal opportunity was their birthright, and no high wall of 'Verboten' is endured; where each stands upon his own resources, for what he is and what he can do, and every man is the equal of his neighbor; where the Stars and Stripes from the towers of our public schools speak the spirit of America and beckon her children to a heart of understanding that can discern between right and wrong.

"It is true the allies furnished the guns, but America furnished the soul that won the war. [Applause.] Until that soul was loosed in combat upon the battle fields defeat of the allies was inevitable. Paris had been ordered evacuated. Big Bertha shells were bursting everywhere in the streets. Contagion prevailed. Lines of refugees were streaming from the city. A German army, headed by the Prussian Guard and commanded by the crown prince, was advancing with the steady precision of clockwork at the rate of four to five miles a day. German patrols had been captured within six miles of Paris. The terrible bombardment and onslaught of the stock troops had forced the French back and back until the Germans, gaining possession of the heights about Belleau Wood, had cleared the roads for eight miles in advance.

"With their march unresisted for several miles ahead, the Prussian Guard was ordered to put on their dress uniforms with spiked helmets. The officers decked themselves in dress regalia, with starched bosom shirts. The Germans had no other thought but that they were going triumphantly into Paris. The French believed it, the English believed it, the Belgians believed it, the Italians believed it, all the world believed it. But the boys of four American regiments did not believe it. The Fifth and Sixth Marines, the Ninth and Twentieth Infantry of the Second Division, being the advance guard, were crowded into trucks as close as they could stand and hurried in the night to striking distance of the enemy. As they passed the retreating French they were met with cries of, "You're zigzag; you're crazy. Sure death ahead. There is no hope; go back." But these eager, smooth-faced Americans, who had never smelled the smoke of battle were not made of the stuff that goes back when the enemy is in front. Unperturbed, they landed in the mud, and under cover of the woods formed their lines and calmly waited for the dawn, when about 15,000 Americans met and held and stopped five German divisions. [Applause.] So fierce and unflinching was the attack that the enemy took it for granted that there were unlimited reserves in the rear.

"The miracle was performed, the march on Paris stopped, the oncoming hordes turned back, the Chateau-Thierry drive began, the destiny of civilization changed. [Applause.]

"The soul of America had won because it had broken the cocksure spirit of the enemy, had kindled in the breasts of the drooping allies a morale that ran from one end of the lines to the other. For the supersoldier of the world, with tremendous advantage of numbers, had been out-suppered by a few simple, modest, untrained Americans; and these same Americans were here in great numbers, and they were coming by the thousands. The war could end in but one way. At the height of the Chateau-Thierry drive, when the pall of that terrible certain daily advance, when the shelling of Paris and the nightmare of air raids was too recent to be forgotten, not a soul could be found in the ranks of any army or in any walk in life so base but he was free to admit that it was the American soldier who won the war turned the tide, saved them when they had their backs to the wall. Yet now, when it is all safely over, there are those who gratefully say, 'We would have won, anyway.' They would, like I. [Applause.]

"Our boys were far from their homes. It put shame into the hearts of men who were fighting for their very hearth sides and families to see such daring and spirit in lads who needed no spur. It began June 6 at Belleau Wood and continued through the Alsace-Marne drive, the Somme campaign, St. Mihiel, Ypres-Lys, through the Meuse-Argonne, clear up to November 11. Six months and the job was done.

"Reared on American soil, imbibing her principles of freedom, the American soldier did not need years of intense training. He was used to thinking and deciding. In a pinch, every man was an officer. The intelligence of the American equipped him to understand the war game quickly. Heroes every one, they dared to move apart twenty, thirty, fifty, sixty feet; they dared to fight alone and die alone. The average run of the European soldier has not the private initiative to fight alone and die alone. He fights best in mass where he sees the form of his companion ahead, feels the rub of the elbow of his pal at his side, hears the tread of his comrade in the rear. He must have a crowd to give spirit and soul to do and die. The American soldier, because of his individual development has soul power that dares stand alone. The European must group this soul power to produce the necessary courage. The American soldier is a lion who dares forage alone. Wolves hunt in packs. The American soldier is an eagle who dares soar aloft in the awful solitude. Swallows hover in thousands. The American soldier dares to die right now. The European soldier tomorrow. Ask the German soldier or officer who won the war, and he will tell you that it was the Americans. That it was the Americans who advanced into no man's land without hesitation, and came on with that dogged determination that sharp-shooter, machine-gun nest, ambush, hand grenades, rifles, concealed mines, gas shells, curtains of fire, small and big artillery, the blasts of hell itself could not stop. [Applause.]

"It is the soul in the breasts of these boys up here in the gallery that is going to count. It is the soul that measures the size of the man, whether on the battlefield or in the conflict of life, and our blind friends in the gallery have been tried and found not wanting."

Requests Provisions in Swing Bill.
Washington.—Arizona's request for specific provision in the Swing bill for the participation of that state in the benefits expected to follow federal improvements for the control of the Colorado river will be presented to the House Arid lands irrigation committee when it resumes its sessions, Representative Hayden of Arizona, ranking Democratic member of the committee, has stated. A delegation from Arizona will appear before the committee, Mr. Hayden said, with a recommendation that the flood-protection section of the bill, contemplating the construction of a dam at Boulder cañon, contain definite apportionment to Arizona of electric power and of storage waters for irrigation purposes.

Washington.—The Senate agricultural committee, informally reporting the Capper-Thacher futures trading bill, declared that the fluctuations in prices since the original futures trading act was held unconstitutional, had done much to "confirm the belief of the farmers that prices were being manipulated and that the committee statement added, but the belief persisted that the drop resulted from "short selling by professional speculators."

International Farm Congress May Move Home from Kansas City to Denver.

Denver.—Sites were considered, new directors were added to those already elected, and plans were made for the furthering of the plan for a gigantic Colorado Industrial exposition at a meeting held recently in the club rooms of the Gentlemen's Driving and Riding Club, 1625 Curtis street.

The idea of a great exposition and annual fair, and permanent exhibits come into being at a meeting held in the club rooms a few weeks ago.

A. J. Simonson, one of the members of the board of directors, read a letter recently received from the International Farm Congress at Kansas City, in which it was said that Denver was being favorably considered for the permanent headquarters of the association. This, according to Mr. Simonson, would mean the bringing to Denver of a large number of persons engaged in the work of the association, and probably of the establishment of the permanent fair or exhibits of the association in Denver.

Romance Ends in a Grand Row

KIN INVOLVED IN CHARGES

Young Wife Says Husband, Kneels on Her Chest, Forced Her to Sign Paper Accusing Her Aged Guardian Uncle of Abuse.

New York.—Staid citizens of Boston as well as of this fair village, debs and subdebs, are getting thrill after thrill as the bones in a dozen family closets are rattling loudly and ominously.

The long buried family skeletons started on their rampage about the time the five-months' romance of young Jack Sanborn and his bride, Eleanor Montgomery Sanborn, blew up with a bang that was heard from Cape Cod to Sandy Hook.

Sanborn is a son of Oren Sanborn, of coffee fame, and his bride was the ward of W. Robert Montgomery, former president of the Hamilton National bank here.

Marriage Made to Order.

Their marriage was made to order. The Sanborns were desirous of marrying off their son, according to reports, and Montgomery, his past unknown, was anxious to see the girl married.

The eighteen-year-old bride charges that Sanborn deserted her after five months of wedded life.

Then came more scandal. In possession of the Sanborn lawyers is a letter signed by Eleanor in which she charges that her aged guardian uncle abused her before her marriage.

But says she: "I signed that paper because Jack held me by the throat, put his knee on my chest and threatened to kill me unless I would write what he told me. He wanted to get $100,000 out of my uncle."

When Uncle Robert heard about the letter and the charges it contained he threw them both out on their own resources. Up to that time he had been supporting them.

Now Eleanor is living in a hotel here with girl friends.

Uncle Refuses to Forgive.

She has tearfully begged her uncle to accept her version of the charges and forgive her but he has shown no sign of relenting.

"I'd heard of lounge lizards around the lobster palaces of New York, but I never heard of such a thing in Boston until I discovered that Jack was hired out as a dancing partner, on a taxi meter basis at the Colonial hotel."

More skeletons. Eleanor's parents.

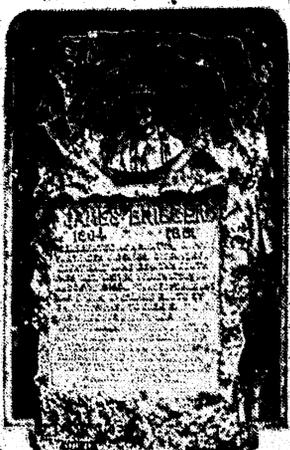

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Montgomery are divorced. So are the Sanborns, Sr. Uncle Robert was convicted of grand larceny ten years ago while president of the Hamilton National bank and now the Sanborn lawyer is deciding on what action to take with the letter of charges placed in his hands.

And Mrs. Eleanor Sanborn, who four months ago was a principal in one of the most brilliant weddings of the season in Boston, is now deserted by her husband, cast off by her parents, spurned by her guardian uncle and compelled to seek shelter with friends.

Ancient Arrow Factory Found

Ruins of an Indian Munitions Plant Is Discovered in a Kentucky Cave.

UNEARTHED BY PROF. MILLER

Geologists Gathered Many Fine Flints and Also Explored Two Rock Houses That Are Promising Grounds for Work of Archeologists.

Lexington, Ky.—Ruins of what once was a flourishing "munitions factory" are sheltered in a cave 14 miles east of Mill Springs, in Wayne county, Kentucky, in the opinion of Prof. A. M. Miller, head of the department of geology at the University of Kentucky. This factory, according to the belief of Professor Miller, produced arrow heads to tip the shafts of Indian braves to whom what is now Kentucky was no-man's land in the days before the squirrel rifle supplanted the bow and the broad ax the tomahawk.

Professor Miller returned recently from a trip to Wayne county, where in addition to re-examining interesting invertebrate fossil-collecting horizons visited 25 years ago in company with an Ohio geologist, Prof. August Forster of Dayton, he said he prospected the region for caves, rock houses and old Indian village sites, favorable ground for archeological exploration and the finding of extinct mammalian remains.

Finds Many Arrow Heads.

"Two rock houses and one cave were examined," he said. "One of the rock houses was in the coal measure conglomerate at Denny's Gay, about 14 miles east of Mills Springs. Numerous arrow heads in various stages of completion, together with flint-flakes scattered at a shallow depth over the floor of an overhanging conglomerate, constituting the rockhouse at this point, furnished abundant evidence that this shelter formerly was inhabited by aborigines and that they had established there an arrow-head workshop."

The other rock house, opening widely to the south, was the Mill Springs camp, in the Mammoth cave limestone. This house, according to Professor Miller, is a most promising spot for both archeological and mammalian paleontological exploration. Half an hour's prospecting with geological hammers and a hand pick showed that every shovelful of deposit on the floor of this shelter was "pay dirt," he said.

Wealth of Fragments.

A wealth of bone and pottery and flint fragments were unearthed, as much as persons could carry away.

The large amount of fine material on the floor of this shelter, which could not have been washed in from the outside, filled everywhere with charcoal, ashes, fragments of pottery, arrow points, flint flakes, bone fragments and teeth prove that it was a popular resort for the aborigines for a very great period—perhaps extending back to the Pleistocene times, Professor Miller declared. No human bone fragments were found here, tending to prove that the shelter was never used as a place of burial.

The third natural grotto visited—a true cave—was near the mouth of a small stream flowing into the Cumberland river at Ford's Island, about four miles above Mills Springs. This cave had been an Indian burial place, as was proved by the finding of a number of human bones, mostly on the rock ledges along the walls.

LIQUID OF THE PAST STRONG STUFF

Ancient Booze Found in Earthen Jar in Kentucky Cave.

More Potent Than Modern Whisky, It May Be an Elixir That Was Manufactured by the Mound Builders.

Middlesboro, Ky.—Were the mound builders of old the first real distillers in what has become America?

This question is asked following the story brought here by two young men from the Mounds section of Bell county mountains.

They say they were exploring the dense parts of the hill country when they saw the entrance to a cave, whose existence never had been suspected. The youths entered its labyrinthine and far back in the interior discovered an earthen vessel. They opened it carefully and they are quoted as saying:

there came forth a most delicious aroma. Investigation proved the existence of a liquid in the vessel, which the explorers tasted.

Both declare, it is said, that they were familiar with the taste and potency of corn whisky, but this liquid in the long-buffed vessel surpassed "Kentucky liquor" in strength. They said that after a few minutes their senses became dulled and visions of celestial delight burst upon them. Finally they recovered and carried the vessel away with them. They are quoted as asserting that there was an inscription on the vessel which no one they have seen can decipher. It is understood the vessel will be sent to experts in ancient languages in the hope that the letters can be made out.

If the mound builders left the jar and its unusual beverage it is believed unlikely that the words can be deciphered, as it is said the writing of the mound builders never has been translated. The youths who found the vessel declare a single drop of the elixir they found possesses the strength of a quart of corn liquor and that dilution with water is all that is necessary to obtain a "real drink."

Just what the attitude of prohibition authorities would be toward this find in the cave has not been made known, nor has it been sought so far. The mound builders, from strange relics, mounds and other marks, long have been thought by some historians to have made their last stand in the Ohio valley. In Kentucky and Tennessee there are numerous traces of a strange people, the secret of whose origin or disappearance has not been learned.

Mrs. J. P. Saulsbery and family of Alamogordo, stopped over last Monday on their way to Oklahoma, to visit the James Saulsbery family of this place.

Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Lucas, Mrs. A. L. Burke and Miss Rosalind Burke left last Tuesday by motor for Santa Fe, where, after attending the Fiesta, the party, with the exception of Mrs. Burke, motored on to Kansas City, Mrs. Burke returning Friday.

Calvin Carl and family have returned from a lengthy visit to friends and relatives in the eastern states.

Mrs. S. G. Anderson has returned from trips to Albuquerque and Roswell, visiting relatives at the last named place.

Mrs. Minnie Zimmerman of Los Angeles, Calif., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. S. E. Barber of White Oaks.

Mrs. Geo. Ramsdale and children left for their home in Tucumcari, after a pleasant visit with the Verne Shifflette family.

Heavy clouds are hanging over the city today, but the weather man has passed us up so often here of late that there seems to be no cause for alarm.

Seamen's Social Club
Labor Day Dance

The dance given by the Seamen's Social Club of Ft. Stanton on Labor Day was a grand success. People from all over the county attended and were royally entertained. The Seamen's Social Club at the head of any movement, either for entertainment, business or charity, is a guarantee of a successful outcome of any project. McNeff's Jazz Band furnished the music for the affair. Carrizozo patrons claim they were entertained to their heart's content.

Returned From Business Trip

Albert Ziegler of Ziegler Bros. store has returned from his eastern business trip where he made purchases for his fall and winter trade. Notwithstanding the unbalanced business conditions over the country, Mr. Ziegler bought at prices that will enable him to sell at more reasonable figures than ever before and the new stock is of the latest and most up-to-date. Watch the display windows for samples of the new goods.

Welcome, Auriemma!

The people of Lincoln County will have another opportunity to hear the noted operatic baritone, Baron Auriemma, who will be so kindly remembered by the many who heard the singer when he sang for the last Salvation Army Drive about one year ago. To assist in the coming Drive for the Salvation Army, under auspices of the local Advisory Board, the meetings will begin at the Crystal Theater, where, just before the show begins, the noted baritone will be heard as an opening gun for the campaign.

After the singing at the theater, Baron Auriemma will be driven to White Oaks, where a big dance will be given and the Baron will sing. Sunday night at the Crystal Theater a big meeting will be held with Baron Auriemma as a feature. On Wednesday night of next week, a meeting will be held at Hondo; Thursday afternoon at 8 o'clock at Ft. Stanton, and Thursday night at Capitan. The meetings will close with two big concerts at the Crystal Theater on Friday and Saturday nights of next week. Here is a grand opportunity to help a good cause besides hearing a wonderful singer, who is in a class to himself. Baron Auriemma makes friends wherever he goes and for this reason, people are all ways anxious to have him return.

PURE HONEY
WE CATER TO PARTICULAR PEOPLE
FOUR REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY HEDSTROM HONEY
1st: We use Queen Excluders, these separate the young bees from the old. We leave the HONEY on the frames and let the bees ripen it. This gives the HONEY the best flavor and it will keep its true flavor always. We leave artificial ripening alone. 2nd: We extract our HONEY by machinery, so this insures absolute cleanliness. 3rd: We make prompt deliveries and our prices are LOW for this high-grade HONEY.
