R. C. SOWDER APPOINTED

The appointment of R. C. Sowder of Picacho as a member of the State Highway Commission was confirmed the first part of this week and Mr. Sowder, accompanied by his wife, left for Santa Fe on Tuesday to take the oath of office and to be present at the first meeting of the new board which convenes after organization is effected.

Lincoln County has been unconscious of the fact that there is a nice sum of money to its credit and not until Mr. Sowder investigated the matter, did it become known. There is available in the gasoline fund, the sum of $7,800 and in the Red Line Federal Aid projects, the sum of $70,000, all of which is now available and can be put into use for the benefit of road projects inside the boundaries of the county for road purposes.

There is an enormous amount of road equipment at Los Lunas in the form of tractors, road plows, trucks, lanterns, etc., which is in idleness and Mr. Sowder is determined to put this vast amount of equipment into use. The valuation of this immense amount of machinery amounts to over one million dollars and he is going to make a tour of the state, visiting the commissioners in every county and ascertain what portion each county can use, making a proposition to the different counties of terms for payment of the same that will be safely within the lines of reason with time extensions for payment to suit all concerned. The new commissioner will be on the job for the good and welfare of all districts, especially this of ours and he not only solicits the confidence of the people, but pledges himself to be considerate, impartial and just to every locality, preferring to please the people rather than to please and satisfy his own ideas and satisfy self gratification. If all of Governor Hinkle's appointments were like that of Mr. Sowder's the public would be abundantly pleased.

Ancient Pictures

You are interested in the civilization that existed before the time of David, the manner of living of the people of that day, their mode of dress and the articles used in their homes.

When the tomb of King Pharaoh Tut-Ankh-Amen, Ruler of Egypt, 3500 years ago was opened recently, there was found vast quantities of things that show the civilization of the ancient world.

We consider it a rare streak of luck to be able to present to the readers of The Outlook this week a series of pictures taken inside this tomb showing the many articles it contained, and we do not want our readers to lay the paper aside without turning to this section and looking over these pictures for you will surely find them to be of intense interest.

B. of R. T. Dance St. Patrick's Night

You will only have eight more days to wait till the above event takes place and you cannot afford to miss it. The best reminder would be to paste this in your HAT. Ferguson's four-piece orchestra and a good time guaranteed to all. That's the ideal

School Notes

(Supt. E. E. Cole)

The total enrollment in the Carrizozo schools for the school year 1922-1923, up to the present date, is 418, with practically one third of the year left.

The two High school pianos were tuned last week by Mr. F. M. Denton, of El Paso. Mr. Denton seems to be a first-class man at his work and left our pianos in fine condition. Mr. Denton seems to have tuned about all the pianos in town.

Some time ago Supt. Cole stated to the high school that he was generally at the High school building from four to five, one hour after school, on school days, and that any student wishing help over the hard places might get that assistance by remaining. Not so many as we wished are taking advantage of that offer. Would it not be well for some of your parents to see that your children did do so? Very often a little personal help at the right time means all the difference between succeeding and failing in a study or any other undertaking in life. At this time of the year a little help may mean the getting of a school credit. We have nothing to give away, in the nature of credits. We are surely trying to give credits only where they are earned.

Boy Life for March is especially good. "Any Boy's Dog," "Boys Who are Making Good," "A Boy and John Wannamaker," "The Ranger of Tascany Mountain," "In the Quarry Pit," "Pops of Popular Science," "Some Fundamentals of Radio," are especially good. You see from the titles that those articles must be both instructive and entertaining. Other articles in the paper are very good indeed. There is no better paper in the United States for boys or girls and parents would do well to subscribe for their boys. Better still, for the boys to work and buy their own papers.

The Carrizozo basketball team of our high school goes to El Paso Saturday of this week to play a return game. Some time ago the Carrizozo girls defeated El Paso's team of high school girls by the score of 27 to 6. The El Paso team seems confident it can wipe out that defeat but we are betting on the Carrizozo team. Bring their seals back with you, girls.

Friday afternoon of last week, after school was out, Miss Shrader and Mrs. Clarke chaperoned the girls of the high school at a "weenie" roast, at the big bridge north of town. They report a good time, lots of fun, and that one of the autos holds seventeen girls. The girls of the Carrizozo high school are healthy and husky girls, too.

The girls of the first domestic science class have been making soups lately and good ones, too. If you don't believe it come up some time and we will see to it that you have a chance to determine for yourself. The second class in domestic science is now making cakes and have finished the making of salads. Mrs. Clarke is certainly a good teacher of the art of cooking.

The class in chemistry is now beginning the analysis of compounds. This week they are identifying barium, calcium, strontium, and magnesium. Analysis is what makes them think as nothing else will.

Gives Prisoners Books and Music

Mrs. Westley Westbrook, wife of the warden of the Cook County Jail in Chicago, believes that good books and good music tend to improve prisoners, and by her own personal efforts has established a library and secured phonographs and records from her friends for the boys prisoners in the county jail. They all know her as their friend, and many, after their discharge from prison, seek her aid and advice.

Apprehended in the Act of Robbery

Last Tuesday morning at 1:15, Mr. A. J. Rolland, whose suite of rooms are directly across the street from his place of business, Rolland Bros. Drug Store, was awakened by a pistol shot and rushing to the window, saw night Marshal Anton Vega in front of his store having fired the shot to attract attention and help so that all places of escape might be guarded and yelled to Mr. Rolland that a burglar was inside of the store. Mr. Rolland hurriedly donned his clothing and telling the Marshal to guard the back entrance, opened the front door, covering the intruder with his revolver. The burglar begged for mercy and told the proprietor that he had made an attempt to loot his place and on being searched, some change to the amount of about $2.00 was taken from him and was in the act of getting the balance in the cash register when in lighting matches, his presence was betrayed to the officer.

He gained entrance to the store by placing a barrel below one of the back windows and an empty can that once contained sweeping compound added to the barrel, raised him to the height desired to reach the window. Why the burglar did not break the glass in the lower sash of the window, instead of the upper, is hard to imagine, as it would have been much easier; but he chose the upper, breaking out but a small portion of the pane and forcing his body through the opening, landed on a row of letter file boxes on an upper shelf below the window. The man gave his name as Joseph Maloney, which is a strong evidence that he wished to pull the stunt before St. Patrick's day. He offered a plea of guilty, which was the only course for him to pursue and was taken to Alamogordo, where Judge Mechem will sentence him to several years in the state penitentiary.

The man was a stranger in these parts and it was his misfortune that he failed to stay here long enough to have formed the acquaintance of Mr. Rolland, for had he known him, he could never have even meditated on an act such as he attempted to commit. His heart would have failed him.

Of course you will attend the big dance at Lutz Hall tomorrow night. Westland's orchestra will furnish the music.

Mrs. Emma Mudge Gone to Rest

After months of suffering which she endured with Christian fortitude, Mrs. Emma Mudge, beloved wife of F. F. Mudge, caretaker of the E. P. & S. W. Club House, passed on to rest at Hotel Dieu on Monday night at 9:15. Mrs. Mudge had been ailing since last July and on Christmas night, she was taken to her bed from which she failed to rally. During the period of her illness she desired to be at home, rather than to be taken to a hospital, up until the last few days, when she consented to go to Hotel Dieu and on Monday Mr. Mudge arranged for the trip. They arrived there on No. 3, but the change seemed to avail nothing in her favor and at the time mentioned above, she quietly fell asleep like a child in its mother's arms.

The remains were brought up on Wednesday morning and at 2:30 p. m. many friends of the family gathered at the Kelley Chapel and followed the remains to the local cemetery where in accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Mudge, a chapter of sacred scripture was read and a simple, devout prayer composed the ceremonies. These solemn impressive services were carried out by Mr. A. V. Adams on account of high esteem in which he was held by the deceased, as an old friend of the family and his Christian character.

Mrs. Mudge was well known and much loved by the community in general; her preference for the feelings of others, her kindness of heart, charitable, motherly nature and many beautiful traits of womanhood, caused her list of friends to grow as her acquaintances increased. She believed that Christian character carried out in the daily life regardless of creeds and professions, was the only acceptable service to the Master. The Outlook extends its sympathy to Mr. Mudge, whose devotion to his wife through their many years of married life never faltered. In another place in this paper will be found his expression of thanks to the many friends of the family for their love and esteem.

Commander Warner of Fort Stanton, accompanied by Mrs. R. S. Fagan and daughter Virginia Frances, were over this morning, returning about 10 o'clock accompanied by Rev. T. M. Blocklock, who will preach at the Fort this afternoon.

Silver and Lead Booming

The exceptional strength of the lead situation has been further demonstrated by additional advance in New York spot quotations to a new high mark of 8.00 cents a pound, the highest since April, 1920. It is practically double the 30 year price average of 4.75 cents a pound.

Silver markets have exhibited practically all the elements of a severe "short" corner with prices up more than 3 cents and with a premium of about 2 cents on immediate or "cash" deliveries. The situation in India is understood to be even more acute than in 1917, when an appeal was made to this country to protect the banking position there.

The run on the government paper notes resulted in cashing into coin 64,900,000 old paper rupees Oct. 7 and Dec. 22, and besides that amount, the entire issues of new paper rupees create and omitted in this interval.

The silver drain out of the reserve amounted to 38,500,000 silver rupees (13,234,000 fine ounces silver) in fifty-two days between Oct. 31 and Dec. 22, besides all the new silver injected into the reserve during that interval.

While total silver in the Indian office reserves are comparatively large legal requirements call for a 50 per cent minimum silver reserve against paper notes. It is evident that there has been a drain in gold reserves because of the same conditions. —The Manufacturer.

MET WITH SAD ACCIDENT

James Roselle, known and highly respected by this entire community was either the victim of a cowardly assault or met with a sad accident last Tuesday night at his ranch home about five miles from town. "Jimmie" as he was known by everybody, had been in the employ of Ziegler Brothers' store for the past four years and had, of late, been spending his evenings at the ranch. On Tuesday night, he attended a meeting of Carrizozo lodge No. 31 I. O. O. F. and after the meeting returned to the ranch.

Failing to appear at the store for work on Wednesday morning at the usual hour, a messenger, Ben Sanchez was sent to the ranch to ascertain the cause of his absence. On his arrival he found Mr. Roselle in bed with his face horribly cut, bruised and in an unconscious condition. Sheriff Harris and a local physician were notified, arrived and conveyed the injured man to a local hospital where on examination he was found to have been shot, the ball entering the top of the head and passing out through one of his eyeballs. Feeling ran high throughout the day until further investigations disclosed the theory that the shot was accidental, when a Smith & Wesson revolver was discovered in his coat pocket, which hung just above his head and a bullet hole in the coat pocket and but one shell in the gun had been fired, it is now apparent that in some manner he touched the gun, which had no safety device and from the manner in which he was shot, the undisputed fact has been revealed that it was an accident. He was taken to El Paso on No. 1 Thursday morning where he is said to be improving.

J. D. Stearns Passes Away

On Tuesday of this week, J. D. Stearns, father of O. S. Stearns of this city, passed away after a short illness. He came here from his home in Cleveland, Ohio, last October to spend the winter with his son. About one month ago, Mrs. Stearns became ill at her home and her son went east on that account, but instead of recovering, she passed on shortly after his arrival. On returning home, Mr. Stearns broke the sad news to his father, and his grief was so intense that an illness followed from which he failed to recover. The remains were prepared for shipment and on Wednesday, accompanied by Mrs. O. S. Stearns, the body was taken on No. 4 to Cleveland for burial.

Card of Thanks

In loving recognition of the kindness to Mrs. Emma Mudge during her illness, the tokens of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes of love and esteem at the last sad rites, I wish to thank one and all of our many friends for their never failing kindness. F. F. Mudge.

Piano Solo, "1st Movement from Pathetique Sonata," Beethoven, Mrs. J. H. Mirra.

It was voted to have a St. Patrick's Day Program, followed by a social hour, in connection with the art exhibit which will be held here the week ending March 14.

"Thorne! Thorne! It's all right, it's all right!" cried Gale, in piercing tones. "Mercedes is safe! Yaqui saved her! Rojas is done for! Yaqui jumped down the wall and drove the bandit off the ledge. Cut him loose from the wall, foot by foot, hand by hand! We've won the fight, Thorne!"

For Thorne these were marvelous strength-giving words. The dark horror left his eyes, and they began to dilate, to shine. He stood up, dizzily but unaided, and he gazed across the crater. Yaqui had reached the side of Mercedes, was bending over her. She stirred. Yaqui lifted her to her feet. She appeared weak, unable to stand alone. But she faced across the crater and waved her hand. She was unharmed. The Yaqui waved, too, and Gale saw in the action an urgent signal.

Hastily taking up canteen and rifle, Gale put a supporting arm around Thorne.

"Come, old man. Can you walk? Sure you can walk! Lean on me, and we'll soon get out of this. Don't look across. Look where you step. We've not much time before dark. Oh, Thorne, I'm afraid Jim has caught in! And the last I saw of Laddy he was badly hurt."

Gale was keyed up to a high pitch of excitement and alertness. He seemed to be able to do many things. But once off the ragged notched lava into the trail he had not such difficulty with Thorne, and could keep his keen gaze shifting everywhere for sight of enemies.

"Listen, Thorne! What's that?" asked Gale, halting as they came to a place where the trail led down through rough breaks in the lava. The silence was broken by a strange sound, almost unbelievable considering the time and place. A voice was droning: "Turn the lady, turn! Turn the lady, turn! Almond left. All swing; turn the lady, turn!"

"Hello, Jim," called Gale, dragging Thorne round the corner of lava. "Where are you? Oh, you son of a gun! I thought you were dead. Oh, I'm glad to see you! Jim, are you hurt?"

Jim Lash stood in the trail leaning over the butt of his rifle, which evidently he was utilizing as a crutch. He was pale but smiling. His hands were bloody. A scar had been bound tightly round his left leg just above the knee. The leg hung limp, and the foot dragged.

"I reckon I ain't injured much," replied Jim. "But my leg hurts like h—l, if you want to know."

"Laddy! Oh, where's Laddy?" "He's just across the crack there. I was trying to get to him. We had it hot an' heavy down here. Laddy was pretty bad shot up before he tried to head Rojas off the trail. . . . Dick, did you see the Yaqui go after Rojas?"

"Did I?" exclaimed Gale, grimly. "The finish was all that saved me from runnin' loco. I reckon our chances are against findin' Laddy alive. . . . I tell you, boys, Rojas was h—l-bent. An' Mercedes was lame. I saw her about him. . . . But mebbe bullets couldn't stop him then. If I didn't sweat blood when Mercedes was fightin' him on the cliff! Then the finish! Only a Yaqui could have done that. . . . Thorne, how about you? Dick, is he bad hurt?"

"No, he's not. A hard knock on the skull and a scalp wound," replied Dick. "Here, Jim let me help you over this place."

Step by step Gale got the two injured men down the uneven declivity and then across the narrow lava bridge over the fissure. Here he bade them rest while he went along the trail on that side to search for Laddy. Gale found the ranger stretched out, face downward, a reddened hand clutching a gun. Gale thought he was dead. Upon examination, however, it was found that Ladd still lived, though he had many wounds. Gale lifted him and carried him back to the others.

"He's alive, but that's all," said Dick. "He had the ranger down. 'Do what you can. Stop the blood.' Laddy's tough as cactus, you know. I'll hurry back for Mercedes and Yaqui."

Gale, like a fleet, sure-footed mountaineer, slipped along the trail. He came upon Mercedes and the Yaqui. She ran right into Dick's arms, and then her strength, if not her courage, broke, and she grew lax.

"Mercedes, you're safe! Thorne's safe. It's all right now."

"Rojas!" she whispered.

"Gone! To the bottom of the crater! A Yaqui's vengeance, Mercedes."

He heard the girl whisper the name of the victim. Then he gathered her up in his arms.

"Come, Yaqui!"

The Indian grunted. He had one hand pressed close over a bloody place in his shoulder. Gale looked keenly at him. Yaqui was inscrutable, as of old, yet Gale somehow knew that would mean little to him. The Indian followed him.

Gale carried Mercedes up to the top and along to the others. Jim Lash waved awkwardly over Ladd. Thorne was trying to assist. Ladd, himself, was conscious, but he was a pallid, apparently a death-stricken man. The greeting between Mercedes and Thorne was calm—strangely so, it seemed to Gale. But he was now calm himself. Ladd smiled at him, and evidently would have spoken had he the power. Yaqui then joined the group, and his piercing eyes roved from one to the other, lingering longest over Ladd.

"Dick, I'm figger'n hard," said Jim, faintly. "In a minute I'll be up to you an' Mercedes. I've about shot my bolt. . . . I reckon you'll do—best by bringin' up blankets—water—salt—stewwood. Laddy's got—one chance—in a hundred. Fix him up—first. Use hot salt water. If my legs broken—set it best you can. That hole in Yaqui—only'll bother him a day. Thorne's bad hurt. . . . Now rustle—Dick, old-boy."

Lash's voice died away in a husky whisper, and he quietly lay back.

"Thorne! Thorne! It's All Right, It's All Right!" cried Gale, in piercing tones. "Mercedes is Safe!"

stretching out all but the crippled leg. Gale examined it, assured himself the bones had not been broken, and then rose ready to go down the trail.

"Mercedes, hold Thorne's head up in your lap—so. Now I'll go."

On the moment Yaqui appeared to have completed the binding of his wounded shoulder, and he started to follow Gale. The descent to the arroyo was swift and easy. Gale hastily put together the things he needed; and, packing them all in a tarpaulin, he turned to retrace his steps up the trail.

Darkness was setting in. The trail was narrow, exceedingly steep, and in some places frosted on precipices. Gale's burden was not very heavy, but his bulk made it unwieldy, and it was always overbalancing him or knocking against the wall side of the trail. At last they reached a level, and were soon on the spot with Mercedes and the injured men.

Gale then set to work. Yaqui's part was to keep the fire blazing and the water hot, Mercedes to help Gale in what way she could. Gale found Ladd had many wounds, yet not one of them was directly in a vital place. Evidently, the ranger had almost bled to death. He remained unconscious through Gale's operations.

Jim Lash came out of his stupor. A mushrooming bullet had torn a great hole in his leg. Gale, upon examination, could not be sure the bones had been missed, but there was no bad break. The application of hot salt water made Jim groan. When he had been bandaged and laid beside Ladd, Gale went on to the cavalryman. A currow had been plowed through his scalp down to the bone. When it had been dressed, Mercedes collapsed. Gale laid her with the three in a row and covered them with blankets and the tarpaulin.

Then Yaqui submitted to examination. A bullet had gone through the Indian's shoulder. To Gale it appeared serious. Yaqui said it was a few bits. But he allowed Gale to bandage it, and obeyed when he was told to lie quiet in his blanket beside the fire.

Gale stood guard. The hour had come for him to face his great problem. It was natural that he hung back a little at first; natural that when he went forward to look at the quiet sleeper he did so with a grim and stern force urging him. Yaqui stirred, roused, yawned, got up; and, though he did not smile at Gale, a light shone swiftly across his dark face. His shoulder drooped and appeared stiff, otherwise he was himself. Mercedes lay in deep slumber. Thorne had a high fever, and was beginning to show signs of restlessness. Ladd seemed just barely alive. Jim Lash slept as if he was not much the worse for his wound.

Gale awoke Mercedes. Swiftly she sat up.

"Mercedes—come. Are you all right?"

Laddy is alive. Thorne's not—not so bad. But we've got a job on our hands. You must help me."

She bent over Thorne and laid her hands on his hot face. Then she rose—a woman such as he had imagined she might be in an hour of trial.

Gale took up Ladd as carefully and gently as possible.

"Mercedes, bring what you can carry and follow me," he said. Then, motioning for Yaqui to remain there, he turned down the slope with Ladd in his arms.

Neither pausing nor making a mistake nor conscious of great effort, Gale carried the wounded man down into the arroyo. Mercedes kept at his heels, light, supple, lithe as a panther. He left her with Ladd and went back. When he had started off with Thorne in his arms he felt the tax on his strength. Surely and swiftly, however, he bore the cavalryman down the trail to lay him beside Ladd. Again he started back, and when he began to mount the steep lava steps he was hot, wet, breathing hard. As he reached the scene of that night's camp a voice greeted him. Jim Lash was sitting up.

"Hello, Dick. I woke some late this mornin'. Where's Laddy? Where's Thorne an' Mercedes? Look here, man! I reckon you ain't packin' this crippled outfit down that awful trail!"

"Had to, Jim—an hour's sun—would kill—both Laddy and Thorne. Come on, now."

For once Jim Lash's cool good nature and careless indifference gave precedence to amaze and scorn.

"Always knew you was a husky chap. But, Dick, you're no hoss! Get me a crutch an' give me a lift on one side."

"Come on," replied Gale. "I've no time to monkey."

He lifted the ranger, called to Yaqui to follow with some of the camp outfit, and once more essayed the steep descent. Jim Lash was the heaviest man of the three, and Gale's strength was put to enormous strain to carry him on that broken trail. Nevertheless, he went down, down, walking swiftly and surely over the bad places; and at last he staggered into the arroyo with burning heart and reddened eyes. When he had recovered he made a final trip up the slope for the camp effects which Yaqui had been unable to carry.

In the labor of watching and nursing it seemed to Gale that two days and two nights slipped by like a few hours. Then Gale succumbed to weariness. After his much-needed rest he relieved Mercedes of the care and watch over Thorne which, up to that time, she had absolutely refused to relinquish. The cavalryman required constant attention. His condition slowly grew worse, and there came a day which Gale thought surely was the end. But that day passed, and the night, and the next day, and Thorne lived on, gauntly, stricken, raving. Suddenly, and to Gale's amazement and thanksgiving, there came an abatement of Thorne's fever. With it some heat and redness of the inflamed wound disappeared. Next morning he was conscious, and Gale grasped some of the hope that Mercedes had never abandoned. He forced her to rest while he attended in Thorne. That day he saw that the crisis was past. Recovery for Thorne was now possible, and would perhaps depend entirely upon the care he received.

Jim Lash's wound healed without any aggravating symptoms. It would be only a matter of time until he had the use of his leg again. All these days, however, there was little apparent change in Ladd's condition, unless it was that he seemed to have away as he lay. Then Yaqui asked for the care of Ladd. The man seemed himself from camp for a while, and when he returned he carried the roots and leaves of desert plants unknown to Gale. From these the Indian brewed an ointment. Then he stripped the bandages from Ladd and applied the mixture to his wounds. That done, he let him lie with the wounds exposed to the air, at night covering him. Next day he again exposed the wounds to the warm, dry air. Slowly they closed, and Ladd ceased to bleed externally.

Days passed and grew into what Gale imagined must have been weeks. Yaqui recovered fully. Jim Lash began to move about on a crutch; he shared the Indian's watch over Ladd. Thorne lay a haggard, emaciated ghost of his former rugged self, but with life in the eyes that turned always toward Mercedes. Ladd lingered and lingered. The life seemingly would not leave his bullet-pierced body. The tireless, implacable, inscrutable savage was ever at the ranger's side. His great somber eyes burned. At length he went to Gale, and with that strange light flitting across the hard bronzed face, he said Ladd would live.

The second day after Ladd had been given such thin nourishment as he could swallow he recovered the use of his tongue.

"Shore—this's h—l," he whispered. That was a characteristic speech for the ranger, Gale thought; and indeed it made all who had heard it smile while their eyes were wet.

From that time forward Ladd gained, but he gained so immeasurably slowly that only the eyes of hope could have seen any improvement. Jim Lash threw away his crutch, and Thorne was well, if still somewhat weak, before Ladd could lift his arm or turn his head. His whispers grew stronger. And the day, arrived when Gale, who was perhaps the least optimistic, threw doubt to the winds and knew the ranger would get well.

"Boys, come round," said Ladd, in his low voice. "An' you, Mercedes. An' call the Yaqui."

Ladd lay in the shade of the brush shelter that had been erected. There seemed little of him but long, lean lines, and if it had not been for his keen, thoughtful, kindly eyes, his face would have resembled a death mask of a man starved.

"Shore I want to know what day is it an' what month?" asked Ladd. Nobody could answer him. The question seemed a surprise to Gale, and evidently was so to the others.

"Look at that cactus," went on Ladd.

"I reckon according to that giant cactus it's somewhere along the end of March," said Jim Lash, soberly.

"Shore it's April. Look where the sun is. An' can't you feel it's gettin' hot?"

"Supposin' it is April?" queried Lash, slowly.

"Well, what I'm drivin' at is it's about time you all was hittin' the trail back to Forlorn River, before the waterholes dry out."

"Laddy, I reckon we'll start soon as you're able to be put on a horse."

"Shore that'll be too late."

A silence ensued, in which those who heard Ladd gazed fixedly at him and then at one another. Lash unceasingly shifted the position of his large leg, and Gale saw him moisten his lips with his tongue.

"Charlie Ladd, I ain't reckonin' you mean to ride off an' leave you here?"

"What else is there to do? The hot weather's close. Pretty soon most of the waterholes will be dry. You can't travel then. . . . I'm on my back here, an' God only knows when I could be packed out. Not for weeks, mebbe. I'll never be any good again, even if I was to get out alive. . . . You see, shore this sort of case comes round sometimes in the desert. It's common enough. I've heard of several cases where men had to go an' leave a feller behind. It's reasonable. If you're fightin' the desert you can't afford to be sentimental. . . . Now, as I said, I'm all in. So what's the sense of you waitin' here, when it means the old desert story? By gosh, now mebbe you'll get home. Shore now, boys, you'll see this the right way? Jim, old pard?"

"No, Laddy, I ain't figger how you could ever ask me."

"Shore then leave me here with Yaqui an' a couple of the hosses. We can eat sheep meat. An' if the water holds out—"

"No!" interrupted Lash, violently. Ladd's eyes sought Gale's face.

"Son, you ain't bull-headed like Jim. You'll see the sense of it. There's Nell a-waitin' back at Forlorn River. Think what it means to her! You'll go, now, won't you?"

Dick shook his head.

The ranger turned his gaze upon Thorne, and saw the keens, glinting eyes had blurred.

"Thorne, it's different with you. Jim's a fool, an' young Gale has been punctured by chora thorns. He's got the desert poison in his blood. But you now—you're no call to stick—you can see that trail out. Take your mule an' go. . . . Shore you'll go, Thorne?"

Deliberately and without a moment's hesitation the cavalryman replied "No."

Ladd then directed his appeal to Mercedes. His face was now convulsed, and his voice, though it had sunk to a whisper, was clear, and beautiful with some rich quality that Gale had never before heard in it.

"Mercedes, you're a woman. You're the woman we fought for. An' some of us are shore goin' to die for you. Don't make it all for nothin'. Let us feel we saved the woman. Shore you can make Thorne go. He'll have to go if you say. They'll all have to go. Think of the years of love an' happiness in store for you. A week or so an' it'll be too late. Mercedes, don't make it all for nothin'. Say you'll persuade Thorne, if not the others."

For all the effect his appeal had to move her, Mercedes might have possessed a heart as hard and fixed as the surrounding lava.

"Never!"

White-faced, with great black eyes flashing, the Spanish girl spoke the word that bound her and her companions in the desert.

The subject was never mentioned again. Gale thought that he read a sinister purpose in Ladd's mind. To his astonishment, Lash came to him with the same fancy. After that they made certain there never was a gun within reach of Ladd's clutching, clawlike hands.

Gradually a somber spell lifted from the ranger's mind. When he was entirely free of it he began to gather strength daily. Then it was as if he had never known patience—he who had shown so well how to wait. He was in a frenzy to get well. His appetite could not be satisfied.

The sun climbed higher, whiter, hotter. Every day the water in the lava hole sank an inch.

The Yaqui alone spent the waiting times in activity. He made trips up on the lava slope, and each time he returned with guns or boots or combs, or something belonging to the bandits that had fallen.

Those waiting days grew into weeks. Ladd gained very slowly. Nevertheless, at last he could walk about, and soon he averted that, strapped to a horse, he could last out the trip to Forlorn River.

There was rejoicing in camp, and plans were eagerly suggested. The Yaqui happened to be absent. When he returned the rangers told him they were now ready to undertake the journey back across lava and cactus. Yaqui shook his head. They declared again their intention.

"No!" replied the Indian, and his deep, sonorous voice rolled out upon the quiet of the arroyo. He spoke briefly then. They had waited too long. The smaller waterholes back in the trail were dry. The hot summer was upon them. There could be only death waiting down in the burning valley. Here was water and grass and wood and shade from the sun's rays, and sleep to be killed on the peaks.

"Wait for rain," concluded Yaqui, and now as never before he spoke as one with authority. "If no rain—silently he lifted a speaking hand."

"Only a Man."

Edith Wharton, the writer, told this war story: "The American wounded were being brought in from the second Marne battle," she said, "and a fussy-looking woman in a khaki uniform and Sam Browne belt knelt over the stretcher and said, 'Is this an officer, or only a man?'"

"The brayay corporal who stood beside the stretcher gave her a grim laugh and said: 'Well, lady, he ain't no officer, but he's been hit twice in the haards, both legs busted, he's got two bullets in both arms and we skipped him three times without the fella's gettin' a scratch, so I guess he can call him a man.'"

Chicago.—Willbur Glenn Voliva was found guilty by a jury here on a charge of criminal libel. The action was brought by the Rev. Thomas Nelson, pastor of an "independent" church in Zion City. He charged Voliva with publishing a pamphlet, in which the over-zealous returned to him as a "blatant liar," "boon rock," and "billy goat."

A. Y. Smith, state's attorney, prosecuting the case, argued that Voliva's action was an attempt to make religious liberty.

Washington.—More meat was consumed in the United States last year than in any previous year, the Department of Agriculture announced here recently. The total consumption was estimated at 16,333,000,000 pounds, which amounts to 149.7 pounds per person, applying the July 1, 1922, estimate of population. The per capita consumption showed an increase of six pounds over 1921 and 8 1/2 pounds over 1920.

"Coupled with the decrease in the exports and somewhat higher prices to purchasers in 1922," the department report said, "these figures evidence a satisfactory state of the home market due doubtless to the prosperous condition and better purchasing power of the people generally."

The average meat bill per person in 1922, according to the estimates, was made up of 61.4 pounds of beef, 7.3 pounds of veal, 5 pounds of mutton and lamb and 70 pounds of pork. All classes of meat except mutton and lamb showed increased consumption. The largest increase was in beef, 3.6 pounds per person, while the increased consumption of pork was only slightly less, 3.1 pounds per capita. Lamb and mutton decreased 1.2 pounds per capita.

The conversion of corn into lard by means of the hog is one of the major industries of the country, the product of which goes to all parts of the world, the department announced. The 67,050,745 hogs slaughtered in 1922 yielded more than 6,000,000,000 pounds of meat and 2,333,000,000 pounds of lard. This is the highest production of lard on record, and as the exports, although considerable, were less than in 1921, it follows that the total consumption also was highest. The per capita consumption, however, was exceeded in 1910.

Logarithms of German Origin

Scientist Denies Computation Was Devised by Scotsman, as Commonly Believed.

WORKED OUT BY WATCHMAKER

Lord Napier, a Scottish Nobleman, Has Hitherto Been Given the Credit of Having Originated the Logarithmic Tables.

Cassel, Germany.—Logarithms were originally devised by Jobst Bürgi, a German watchmaker in the employ of Landgrave William IV of Hesse, and not by the Scotsman, Lord Napier, as commonly believed, according to statements made by Doctor Brethaupt, a prominent Cassel scientist, addressing a meeting here of the Hessian Historical association.

Doctor Brethaupt's assertions were made in the course of an address on the life of William IV, or "William the Wise," who he described as one of the most renowned of royal astronomers. William lived during the middle of the sixteenth century and founded the elder line of the house of Hesse, known as Hesse-Cassel. The speaker discussed also William's chief assistant, Eberhard Baldewin, who was a tailor in Marburg by profession, but won high favor with the landgrave because of his clever and inventive mind.

Smith Makes Wonder Clock

William IV, the speaker related, erected a workshop in which he employed several hand laborers, one of whom was a smith whose handiwork still occasions general amazement. Baldewin also showed exceptional aptitude in carrying out and improving William's designs. Among his creations still in existence is a large planetary apparatus, the so-called astronomical clock, which belongs to the provincial museum of Cassel.

"The landgrave was the first astronomer to introduce time as an element capable of observation," Doctor Brethaupt declared. "A Nuremberg clockmaker made him a clock showing seconds, and Baldewin enlarged upon it in such a way that the landgrave could simultaneously observe the stars and listen to the clock's ticking of seconds, in the celestial globe. It was thought for a long time that the landgrave already possessed a pendulum clock.

Give Credit to German

"Then he took into his employ a watchmaker, Jobst Bürgi (Justus Byrgius), and this man it was who, while in Cassel, originated logarithms. Hitherto it has been understood that the Scottish Lord Napier, baron of Merchiston, who issued logarithmic tables in Edinburgh in 1614, was the creator of logarithms, and that Bürgi acquired this distinction at the same time, without knowing of Napier's work."

Doctor Brethaupt declared that Johann Kepler, founder of modern astronomy, who was born in Wuertemberg in 1571, and became renowned as father of the Keplerian planetary laws, had given Bürgi the credit for originating logarithms in one of his published works.

Bürgi was born in 1579 and was for a time attached to the imperial court as watchmaker and manufacturer of celestial globes. He died here in 1632.

POSES AS 1812 PENSIONER

Woman of Sixty-Six Represented Herself as Widow of Veteran for Seven Years.

Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. Matilda Tyler, sixty-six years old, was arrested charged with unlawfully receiving a government pension by representing herself as the widow of a veteran of the War of 1812.

Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mary E. Poskelly, also is under arrest on a charge of conspiring with Mrs. Tyler to defraud the government of a $30 quarterly pension payment.

Mrs. Tyler was alleged to have accepted payments since 1916, and her husband, who died in that year, was said to have received vouchers since the death of his mother, the rightful pensioner, in 1898. When questioned Mrs. Tyler told authorities she thought the money was due her as a widow of a Civil war veteran.

The arrest of Mrs. Tyler was the out-

ASK MAILMEN TO FEED BIRDS

Postmaster General Work Directs Rural Carriers to Scatter Grain in Winter.

Washington.—Starving country birds soon may be watching as vigilantly for the mailman as letter-hungry humans do. Postmaster General Work has issued orders to rural route mail carriers to distribute grains along their routes for starving birds, when supplies of such bird feed are furnished to them. The order resulted from a request of a state game warden who asked that the carriers be permitted to participate in the benevolent work of furnishing food to birds when the ground is covered with snow. Rural route carriers were asked to render all possible assistance in the good cause.

SINGS WITH JOY WHILE AT WORK

Mrs. Banes Says Tanlac Ended Indigestion, Sourness and Palpitations and Made Labors Light.

"Tanlac has helped me so much I wish everyone suffering like I did would follow my suggestion to use it," said Mrs. Saddle Banes, 2087 Washington St., Kansas City, Mo., the other day.

"Before I took Tanlac my appetite was so poor it seemed beyond cultivation, and the little I managed to eat gave me indigestion and caused awful sourness and palpitation. I was simply miserable from nervous headaches, dizziness and knife-like pains in my back, always slept poorly, and felt so bad that at times I just had to quit my housework and lie down.

"Tanlac was so well suited to my case that it has only taken three bottles, half of the full treatment, to restore me to perfect health. It makes me so happy to be without an ache, pain or trouble of any kind that I go about my work humming and singing. I just can't help rejoicing over what Tanlac has done for me."

Thousands Live Kildee Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kildee's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kildee's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

CHILDLESS HOMES MADE HAPPY

Presence of Little Ones a Great Blessing

Four Interesting Letters

Cortland, N. Y.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was weak and wanted to become strong and have a child. My husband read about it in the 'Cortland Standard' and thought it might help me. It certainly did for I now have a lovely boy fifteen months old who weighs forty pounds. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my friends and you can certainly use my testimonial in your little books and in the newspapers, as it might help to make some other childless homes happy by the presence of little ones as it has done mine."—Mrs. CLAUDE P. CARFIELD, 10 Salisbury St., Cortland, N. Y.

St. Louis, Mo.—"I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me seven years ago. I was run down and had a weakness such as women often have. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after being married sixteen years became the mother of a sweet little girl. I now have four lovely children—three fine boys and the little girl six years old. I had longed for children all the while and went many a day and envied every woman with a child. I was 50 years old when my first baby was born. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is ailing with female weakness."—Mrs. J. NAUMANN, 1517 Benton St., St. Louis, Mo.

Hungry Ducks Saved Britain

Tests at Zoo Resulted in Perfection of Device for Detecting Submarines.

WAS MENACED BY STARVATION

Hydrophone Was Developed as Result of Experiments Made With Stethoscopes by Two Medical Men in London Zoo.

London.—Rome, they say, was saved by the cackling of geese. It may be well that the Livy of the future will assert that Britain in her hour of peril was saved by the quacking of ducks.

How ducks eating biscuits thrown to them at the pond in the London zoo led to the discovery of U-boat detectors was a bit of "inside" war stuff told by Prof. J. T. McGregor Morris at the Scientific Novelties exhibition here recently.

Old invention incomplete. Before the war, it is true, there were submarine detectors—a microphone to which was attached a diaphragm. But unfortunately this device was non-directional—that is, it didn't indicate from which direction the underwater boat was coming.

Horns and even trumpets were used to assist the instrument, but up to June, 1915, the detectors were of little use. Meantime the submarine campaign was increasing in intensity and the United Kingdom was faced with the possibility of being starved to death.

Then, according to the story told by Professor Morris, putting one's head under water when sounds could easily be heard suggested to Sir William Bragg and Sir Richard Paget the use of the stethoscope, the instrument that is to the doctor what the brief case is to the lawyer.

Test Succeeds at Zoo. The two medical men went to the zoo to try out their scheme. While Sir William threw biscuits to the ducks his colleague by means of an instrument on the lines of the stethoscope and with a part in the water, tried to hear the ducks eating.

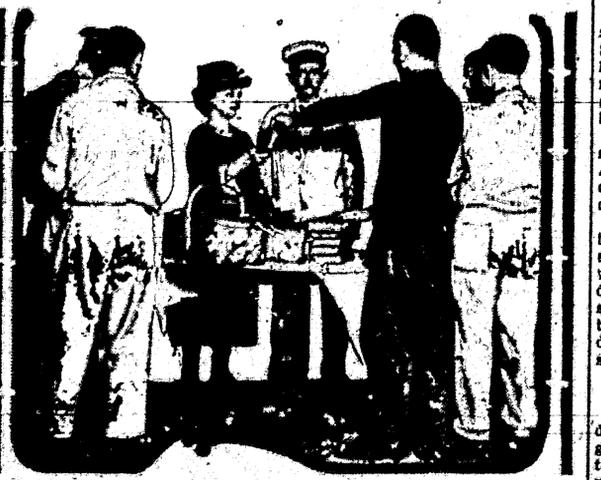

Suddenly Sir Richard threw his instrument down with an impatient jerk. A duck had attempted to eat the part of it under water and the noise was deafening.

Out of this incident was evolved the hydrophone—a device which looks like an old-fashioned warming pan. This, when turned slowly in the water, indicates the direction from which a submarine is coming. It could detect the presence of a submarine five miles distant and the steam turbine of a destroyer ten miles away.

Women Gamblers Bad Losers. Glasgow.—Scottish mill owners have decided on drastic action to check the gambling craze which is said recently to have obtained a great hold on female workers.

MOBS KILLED 83 WOMEN SINCE 1889

Cruel Tortures Applied to Some of Them, Says Church Report.

But Four States in the Union Navar Had to Report Lynching—Only Sixteen Free of the Crime in Last Ten Years.

Washington.—An alarming number of women have been killed by mobs in the United States in recent years, the Federal Council of Churches declared in a statement.

"Since 1889" the council said, "there have been 83 women killed by mobs. Some of them were put to death with savage tortures, such as burning and disemboweling."

Such brutality, the council declared, might be expected "in pagan times of heathen countries, but by no means in a civilized land today."

"The total number of persons lynched by mobs since 1889 is 1,000."

Lawlessness, the council said.

"There is a slow decrease from the climax in 1892 and 1893 down to 1908. During the latter year and 1909 there was an increase, then another slow decrease until 1918, when the tendency to increase was again manifested."

Only four states have never had a lynching, according to the council—Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont. Three states have had no lynchings since 1890—New Jersey, Utah and Connecticut.

"Eight other states," the council said, "have had a clear record during the last ten years. They are Nevada, Colorado, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Delaware and Pennsylvania."

"This means that only 33 per cent of the states have not had a lynching in the last ten years."

Such is Human Nature. For one man who sincerely pities our misfortunates, there are a thousand who hate our success.—Colton.

Something Wrong

(Capital News Service.)

An organization of eminent lawyers formed "to promote the clarification and simplification of the law and its better adaptation to special needs, and to secure the better administration of justice, and to encourage and carry on scholarly and scientific legal work," has been formed at a meeting held in Washington, D. C., which was attended by four hundred of the leading jurists of the country.

Former Director of the Budget Dawes says the country is tired of rule by organized minorities which thwart the will of the unorganized majority.

The Right Reverend Thomas F. Gailor, Bishop of Tennessee, lays at the door of the "reformer" much of the disrespect of law, of which the country complains, and says that laws which restrict personal freedom and make crimes of natural acts cause contempt of courts.

Evidently something is wrong! When the lawyer, the layman, and the churchman all agree that something is wrong in our legal structure, something probably is!

One man's guess is as good as another's as to what; but there is a decided undercurrent of belief in many quarters that one of our troubles, if not the cause of all our legal tangles, is too much law; too much adding statute to statute, regulation to regulation, practice to practice, without any clearing out of the dead wood of old and worn out ideas.

There are even those who say that much legal trouble is caused by lawyers; there is too much reverence for tradition and precedent, and not enough common sense, and therefore not enough common sense, and therefore not enough expedition in law processes.

That the lawyers themselves are forming an association to investigate and initiate reforms is comforting; that they may have the vision to call to their aid some common sense viewpoints from laymen and churchmen, for whom the laws are made, is devoutly to be hoped!

Notwithstanding the present process of purification and holiness of the state democratic administration, Carl Magee is still wearing the "crown of thorns."

Concerning the newly appointed game warden, one thing you may be assured of—being a woman, she will see that the "docs" are well protected.

Do You Know That

On January 27th dealers had orders with the Ford Motor Co. for 148,407 cars and 15,283 tractors for February shipment. Since Feb. 1st additional orders for 45,000 for immediate shipment have been placed.

The Ford Motor Co. cannot possibly build more than 124,304 cars and trucks and 9,000 motors during February.

The shortage is here. If you contemplate buying a car this spring place your order now. "First come first served."

OUT-O'-LUCK

By DOROTHY PIPER

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Jimmie Dutton was one of those fellows who run out of luck on the very day of their birth. If any kid got caught and chastised for going swimming in April it was Jimmie.

Jimmie was crazy about Nellie Reed and when he was twenty-three he asked her to marry him. Jimmie's humble salary would not permit him to support two homes, and when he told his bride-to-be that she would have to share his mother's abode that little lady created such a scene that Jimmie was forced to postpone their marriage indefinitely, or, at least, until he could establish himself in a more profitable business.

Nellie refused to wait, and when she returned Jimmie's unpretentious little diamond—the diamond that was not yet paid for—it was the last straw. After that Jimmie did his work in listless silence, and every evening after he had made his mother comfortable for the night he would whistle to Pal, his dog, and the two would go down to the sea beyond his home. There they would romp and swim in peaceful solitude.

The boy suffered nastily when Nellie broke their engagement, but his suffering then was nothing compared to the sorrow caused by his mother's death shortly after. He missed lifting her in and out of bed, he missed combing her hair with his clumsy, willing fingers, and how he yearned for the soft, "That you, Jimmie?" when he opened the door!

Jimmie resigned his position at the drug store because there was always a trace of a tear in his eye and a conspicuous sob in his throat that made him ashamed to meet his patrons. He still sought the sea at the end of the day, but, instead of lulling his troubled spirit, it seemed to be mocking him in his misery and to be beckoning him on to eternal solace in its cold, slimy depths.

"Why not?" thought Jimmie. Fate had been exceedingly cruel to him. Had he offered him happiness only to snatch it away. Why pretend to get any joy out of living, why continue this loathsome farce called life? There was no one left to care, so Jimmie planned—

He awoke early next morning and was pleased to find that he had not weakened in his purpose. He bathed and dressed immaculately, then went to his mother's well-stocked medicine closet and pocketed a bottle marked "poison." Pal followed him about, seeming to wonder, and Jimmie kissed him between the eyes as he tied a note to his collar. The note read: "Won't someone please adopt Pal? I know what loneliness is, and wouldn't wish it for a dog."

Jimmie was all unmindful of the beauties surrounding him. He went swiftly and directly to the cliff, and without hesitation uncorked the bottle. He was about to place it to his lips when a girl in a dilapidated motor boat arrested his attention. She had evidently lost control of it, and the heavy surf was driving her toward the rocks. Her fatal cries for help were barely audible. Forgetting his own trouble, Jimmie dived and went to the girl with powerful, overarm strokes.

The girl had swooned when Jimmie reached her, but with considerable difficulty he managed to drag her from the boat and to tow her to the shore, where he was confronted by a strangely garbed group of people. One man, wearing puttees waded a megaphone with one hand and tore his hair with the other. "Great guns!" he bellowed at Jimmie, "you've gummed up the whole scene!"

"Gummed up nothing," interrupted another man, "this gentleman has saved your star's life! Why, look at her! She's out-head spill open. Tell one of the boys to call a doctor. Some craft that captain let us take—busted rudder!"

The man held out a friendly hand and congratulated Jimmie. "Great work, my boy," he exclaimed, "Prettiest swimming I've seen for some time. Say, what's your name and what's your form of employment? I need a man like you for some South Sea island stuff I expect to shoot next week. If you photograph as well as you swim, I'd like to take you on."

Jimmie Dutton did photograph well, and proved to be one of the celebrities that "grow" overnight. The salary he received astounded him, and the first thing he did was to erect a magnificent mausoleum over his mother's grave. Old Pal escaped adoption, and rides on the front seat of an expensive car with his master—that is, he rides on the front seat when Polly Graham, whose life Jimmie saved, does not; then Pal is relegated to the tonneau.

One night, after a strenuous day on location, the two sat together in the twilight.

"Jimmie," Polly whispered, "why were you seeking the great unknown that day on the cliff? Didn't you know that there is never one door closed without another first being opened?" "I do now, dear," he smiled. "The gates of Paradise have been opened for me."

And while Jimmie makes love to Polly in real life and in real life, Nellie sits in a deserted theatre and sadly reminds her friends: "That I love a star, that I love a star, that I love a star."

THE WORLD IN PARAGRAPHS

A BRIEF RECORD OF PASSING EVENTS IN THIS AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

IN LATE DISPATCHES

DOINGS AND HAPPENINGS THAT MARK THE PROGRESS OF THE AGE.

WESTERN

Governor Moore of Idaho vetoed the statewide direct primary bill, for the passage of which Senator William E. Borah made a spectacular campaign last fall.

Robbers obtained jewelry and money aggregating about $5,000 in value, but "plashed" diamonds valued at $10,000 after they had forced their way into the residence of Mrs. L. Baron at Los Angeles, according to her report to the police.

"Big Tim" Murphy, who has flouted the law for many months, and who appeared to be more powerful than the United States government, is finally in the actual hands of federal officials. Incessant clamor of bondsmen who stood to lose $180,000, led him to surrender.

Bert Willis, who served in France with the Ninety-first Division, was shot and killed at Butte, Mont., by his friend, Bill Jenkins. The shooting followed an argument over the Simonish-Bross boxing bout at Helena. When arrested, Jenkins said: "Take me out and hang me. I'm sorry it happened."

The state of Utah has received several million dollars' worth of detrimental advertising through the arrest of smokers, declared Lester Freed, prominent business man, who acted as chairman of the downtown mass meeting of the Freeman's League of Utah, in Salt Lake City, in protest of the anti-cigarette and other so-called "freedom" measures.

Acting in her own attorney, Margaret Jean Hamey, 18-year-old Fresno State College co-ed, addressed a combination letter petition to the Superior Court, seeking annulment of her marriage to William Earl Swaney of Sparks, Nev. In her letter the girl declared that while on her honeymoon she discovered she was No. 6 in a chain of brides.

Los Angeles police recently stated that they had received additional information which supported their theory that Earle Remington, slain in his own doorway, Feb. 15, was the victim of a bootlegger's war. They said they were searching for a former employee of the electrical engineer reported absent from his home and business since three days before Remington was killed.

Permission has been given the Utah Central Railroad Company, a new corporation with $1,000,000 in authorized capital stock, to proceed with construction of fifty miles of railroad in Utah, by terms of an Interstate Commerce Commission order issued in Washington. The new line will extend from Wellington to Huntington, with a branch to a Utah Junction and will make available for operation of a large coal mining area.

WASHINGTON

Mrs. Harding, wife of the President, has made such progress in her recuperation from the severe illness of last year that she recently received informally at tea a group of more than thirty women in her private drawing room at the White House. The guests, with one or two exceptions, were newspaper or magazine writers.

Postponement of action until the next session of Congress upon President Harding's request for authority to enter the international court set up by the League of Nations, was decided on by the Senate foreign relations committee.

Possibility of Senate action before Congress adjourned on the administration request for authority to participate in the Hague International court of justice, under the League of Nations, was removed through conference between Senate leaders. Leaders of all Senate factions exchanged views and, it was said, all were of the opinion that the matter would have to go over until the next Congress.

Continental American membership in the international court set up by the league of nations was proposed by President Harding. In a message to the Senate, asking that it advise and consent to such a step, the President declared participation in the tribunal offered an opportunity through which the United States could demonstrate its willingness to aid in preserving world stability without in any manner assuming "any legal relation to the league."

Failure of the administration's ship subsidy bill in Congress will result in the establishment of "radical and unexpected policy" for the operation of the American merchant marine, A. D. Lasker, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, declared after a conference with President Harding at the White House.

Selection of Postmaster General Work to succeed Albert Fall as secretary of the interior, and of Senator Harry E. New of Indiana to become postmaster general has been announced at the White House.

It is expected that twenty-five or more will be a collision at Chicago, Ill. The accident was due to one train having been switched onto the wrong track.

Armed men raided the income tax offices in Nassau street, Dublin, recently and burned a number of documents. A shot fired in the street wounded a civilian.

The British debt funding arrangement is one step nearer completion, congressional approval of the act ratifying the recently negotiated settlement with Great Britain having been completed.

Seven hundred Germans have been arrested in the Bochum district. They were taken to Hattingen. There have been twenty additional deportations from the occupied areas, including several editors.

A Heuter dispatch received in London from Essen says a patrol of troops which was attacked in the streets of Essen arrested all their aggressors. A French sentry who was molested at Oberhausen by a number of Germans wounded one of his assailants.

It will take four years to clear the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen in the opinion of Sir Hercules Reed of the British museum, who has taken a deep interest in the discovery, and has had ample opportunity to estimate the work yet to be done. A boom in fake antiques is now in full swing.

Sluice gates have been installed to prevent water from entering the tomb of Tutankamen of Luxor, Egypt, and ruining the antique relics in event of a cloudburst during the rainy season. Throughout the summer Egyptian military police will stand guard before the ancient burial shrine to protect it from grave robbers or from those who would destroy the mummy to prevent the "marriage of public exhibition."

Reduction of Argentina's wheat crop by 21,240,000 bushels is made in the second estimate of the season as received from the International Institute of Agriculture by the Department of Agriculture at Washington. The crop is now placed at 104,078,000 bushels, which is about 14,500,000 bushels larger than last season's crop. The second estimate of Argentina's flux crop reduces it from 60,270,000 bushels to 46,207,000 bushels.

The allied powers are making repeated concessions to the Turks in an effort to induce the national assembly at Angora to ratify the Lausanne peace treaty. Postal inspectors and railroad police declared that the robbery of mail pouches on a Chicago train with through mail from San Francisco by a lone bandit was the third that took place on the same train within two months. The bandit escaped. Both postal inspectors and railroad police of New York city declared it their belief that the robber had boarded the train at some upstate point and had made his way into one of the steel mail cars before reaching Grand Central station. The bandit's side haul was said to have been one registered package.

A world conference on education at which more than 400,000,000 school children will be represented has been called by the National Education Association, to be held in San Francisco and Oakland, June 23 to July 2, it was announced at a meeting of the executive committee of the department of superintendents of the association at Cleveland, Ohio.

Costs of $7,278.10 were assessed against the Cerrado Coal Company at Fort Smith, Ark., by Federal Judge Frank A. Youngman, who ruled that the company must reimburse the United Mine Workers of America, defendants in the prosecution of a writ of error from a $300,000 judgment handed down Nov. 3, 1917. The original suit was filed in 1914.

SHIPPING BILL DIES IN SENATE

ADMINISTRATIVE LEADERS GIVE UP FIGHT AFTER HOPELESS STRUGGLE.

FILIBUSTERS SUGGED DEATH OF SHIP SUBSIDY MEASURE COMES QUIETLY YEAR AFTER INTRODUCTION.

Washington. — The administration shipping bill died just a year after it was born.

On Feb. 23, 1922, President Harding, appearing at a joint session of Congress, urged enactment of legislation designed to build up an American merchant marine through government aid and identical bills embodying the views of the administration were introduced in the Senate and House. The bill, after having passed the House in the meantime met its death in the Senate through adoption of a motion to lay it aside.

The end of the legislation leaves the administration where it was a year ago, in dealing with the $3,000,000 investment in war-built ships. Future plans under consideration are to be announced.

The death of the shipping bill came quietly. Under agreement the Senate proceeded to vote on the motion of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the acting Democratic leader, to send the ship measure back to the committee.

Administration leaders, including Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, who has been in charge of the legislation in the Senate, had indicated their opposition of this course and the motion was voted down, 45 to 30.

The final blow then was dealt the bill, which had been given up as lost by its supporters after a four-day filibuster. Senator Ladd, Republican, North Dakota, moved that it be laid aside in favor of the filled milk bill, and the motion was carried, 63 to 7, with the Republican leaders voting with the majority. The action meant the death of the shipping measure.

The shipping bill, between the time it was presented to Congress a year ago and its death, passed through the following stages:

It was the subject of hearings before the Senate commerce and the House merchant marine committees, in joint session, beginning last April 4 and continuing until May 10. In amended form it was reported to the House June 14 but President Harding consented to postponement of action on it at that session. The Executive called Congress in special session Nov. 20 to consider the measure and on Nov. 21 delivered another message in its support. It was passed by the House Nov. 23, by a vote of 203 to 184.

It was referred to the Senate commerce committee Dec. 4, the day Congress met in regular session, and five days later was reported to the Senate with some amendments. It was made the unfinished business of the Senate Dec. 11 and until Feb. 23 had occupied that privileged position most of the time. The President, in the meantime, renewed his appeal for its enactment in the course of a message delivered Feb. 7, but opponents began an active filibuster Feb. 10, which after running through day and night sessions four days, resulted in proponents giving up the fight Feb. 23.

Workers Called from Ruhr Mines. Essen.—Fifty per cent of the miners in the Ruhr valley are to be given a vacation on full pay during March and the others are to be granted April on the same terms, according to information received by the French. By this means the German mine directors will further their campaign of obstruction to the Franco-Belgian occupational authorities, as it is conceded that such vacations will reduce the present production of the Ruhr mines approximately one-half, or to about one-fourth of normal.

Resort in Capital City Raided. Washington.—A police squad recently raided the Bon's Nest, an alleged fashionable gambling house in the capital, arrested twenty-five men and confiscated a quantity of cards, dice and other paraphernalia. About seventy-five men, among them "several members of Congress" were surprised in the place, according to police. The headquarters book, however, failed to reveal that any of those arrested were members of Congress.

Want Fixed Price on Wheat. St. Paul, Minn.—Resolutions demanding a fixed price on wheat were adopted at the closing session of the Northwest agricultural price stabilizing conference here. Minnesota's delegation outnumbering delegates from other states by a ratio of four to one, swung a substantial majority in favor of the price-fixing program, as was shown from certain sections in Minnesota.

CHILD'S MIND TOO LITERAL. Teacher's Apparently "Simple Rule" Failed Disastrously Under a Practical Application.

The teacher who gives her pupils "simple rules" outside of the authorities for determining questions which confront them, and particularly grammatical questions, is apt to find that her rules disastrously fail to fit all cases.

Once the county superintendent of schools was questioning the pupils of a country school. He wrote on the blackboard the sentence, "The fly has wings," and asked the class what part of speech each word was. They missed the "the" without serious trouble.

"What part of speech is 'fly'?" asked the superintendent.

"Adverb," shouted the class in unison.

"What! 'Fly' an adverb?"

"Yes, sir," shouted the children with great positiveness.

"What makes you think it is an adverb?"

"Because, teacher, you told us that all words that end in 'ly' are adverbs!"

TOO-DARING MOTH

How Lola Montez Scorched Her Wings in Royalty's Flame.

Humble Brooklyn Grave Holds Dancer Who Once Swayed Palaces of Powerful European State.

America may have forgotten Lola Montez. A gravestone in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y., bearing the inscription: "Mrs. Eliza Gilbert; died Jan. 16, 1861, aged 42," may mean little to the residents of Brooklyn who happen to pass it, but Europe will never forget the celebrated dancer whose dust lies beneath that stone, says an Associated Press dispatch from Berlin.

Lola Montez died in a New York almshouse, alone and penniless. Thirteen years previously she was the toast of all the European capitals and a prime favorite of King Ludwig I of Bavaria, whose tottering throne she saved by fleeing from Munich and becoming a world wanderer. The dancer's romantic life is now being shown daily in the theaters of Berlin and other German cities in a moving picture play which is attracting more attention than the romance of Mme. Pompadour or of Mme. Du Barry.

Lola Montez' life story requires little embellishment for the cinema. Gaby Deslys and other more modern favorites of kings never swayed Europe as did Lola. Poets, novelists, dramatists and painters have perpetuated her fame. She overthrew one government in Bavaria which opposed her political sway and forced the succeeding government to make her countess of Ladfeldt. When Ludwig I was urged by his ministers that he either must give up Lola or his throne in order to save Bavaria he is said to have replied: "Without Lola there can be no Ludwig."

Queen Therese was powerless to combat her dancer rival. The famous dancer was born in Montrose, Scotland, the daughter of an officer named Gilbert. After an adventurous youth in England she became popular in Paris as a Spanish dancer. She represented herself as an Andalusian, and always was spoken of in Europe as "the Spanish dancer." She went to the Munich upon in 1844 and won instant success and Ludwig's devotion. For two years she maintained a supreme position in the face of violent opposition in political and artistic circles.

The Munich students were her loyal supporters, she danced at their banquets and won their hearts so completely that they paraded and rioted whenever attempts were made to force her to leave Bavaria. She overshadowed all other political issues, and when finally she decided to flee rather than force Ludwig to abdicate the throne, the Bavarian government had to close the university to prevent students from making demonstrations against Lola's official enemies.

From Bavaria Lola fled to Paris, where she wrote her memoirs and published many daring essays on the emancipation of woman. From Paris she went to England, where she married an officer named Heald, from whom she was soon separated. She toured India and Australia, and in 1852 went to the United States and appeared in San Francisco, New York and other cities in a spectacular tour of her experiences in Munich, which now 70 years later, are being shown in moving pictures.

Substitute for Cotton and Wool. Flax and cotton may be deemed to displace by a newly discovered fiber called by South American Indians "arghan." This fiber, discovered by Sir Henry Wichham, a pioneer of the rubber industry, is half as strong again as the best hemp and flax, resists the action of sea water, weaves into the cloth that bleaches and dyes easily, and has unexcelled wearing qualities. Arghan may replace some, at least, of the textiles most familiar to us. These are odder few. There must be thousands of substances capable of supplying clothing fibers, yet throughout the ages dependence has been mainly placed upon the big four—wool, flax, silk and cotton. Hence, the discovery and evolution of another new and promising textile fiber must be recognized as of considerable importance.

National Board to Build Highways. It is expected that the Australian government will introduce a main road bill for New South Wales at the next session, creating a board to take charge of and finance the main roads for that province, says Consul H. Wormuth, Sydney, in a report to the Department of Commerce. At present there is a lack of coherence and consequent inefficiency in the matter of road building, because the control is divided among hundreds of shires and municipalities. Motor vehicles are already competing strongly with the railroads, but their successful operation is badly hampered by poor roads.

A Simple Method. "How did you manage to escape from the footpad unharmed and without being robbed?" "When he pointed his pistol at me and demanded my money or my life I stepped forward, took him by the button hole and said, 'I have just heard a dandy! Once there was an Irishman named Pat who met another Irishman named Mike, and said to him—'The bank's uttered a shriek and fled like a scared rabbit.'—Kansas City Star.

IN ZOOLAND SOCIETY

The Giraffe Family are still the leaders in Zooland society. There are none, it is said, who stand higher than they do.

Miss Libby Hippopotamus is the debutante daughter of Mother Chlois Pygmy Hippopotamus. This means, the mother states, that her daughter is ready to be a Pygmy Hippo society bud.

The daughter was named after Liberia where the mother was born. The old homestead was given up when the family moved to the zoo in the city.

Four American Bison have arrived at the zoo this year. They are all very choice and fine and Zooland society welcomes them.

The Indian Mongoose is giving a series of Friday afternoon talks on "Snakes We Have Killed," and other interesting topics. The Indian Mongoose is famous in India for the number of deadly King Cobra snakes which it kills so bravely, even though the Mongoose is a little creature.

The Mongoose sees, and acts quickly and knows just how to catch a snake behind the head. The Cobra, strange as it may seem, has a weak heart, and after the Mongoose has caught the snake behind the head he whirls him about so fast that the Cobra becomes dizzy and his heart gives way. These and other interesting facts the Mongoose will tell in his Friday afternoon talks. No admission charged. The Cobra would kill many thousands of people in India were it not for the brave members of the Mongoose family. As it is the Cobra does a great deal of wicked work.

Two pairs of Rocky Mountain Sheep and one pair of Mountain Goats have arrived in the zoo.

Another young Giraffe leader is expected to arrive with his mate almost any day now. They, of course, will add greatly to zoo society. Besides, they give the visitors so much to talk about. They are almost as popular as a topic of conversation as the weather is, they say.

The zoo is hoping to get a West African Pygmy Elephant before long. The other animals say that this will be an addition to zoo society.

Some Royal Elephants are expected to arrive, too. They will surely give an aristocratic touch to the society of the zoo.

The Rifle Bird is trying out his voice, which, it is said, sounds something like shots being fired. He says he has never been robbed for he is his own policeman and burglars would always be afraid of him.

Maudie, the Australian Kangaroo, is celebrating the approach of spring by coming out of her den, also bringing with her a fine young daughter which she carries in her pouch. She also carries a handsome son in her pouch, too, for Kangaroo mothers think baby carriages are not nearly so smart as pouches for carrying children about in.

A porcupine arrived at the zoo last week and it is said to be a handsome and a worthy creature for Zooland society.

A South American beaver, whose name among those who know him well is Coypu, has also taken up his residence in the zoo.

A white-faced monkey has arrived and is a charming young monkey, it is said.

Khartoum, the African Elephant, has been getting fixed up for spring society by having a massage or rub and a fine bath. His toe nails, too, have been cut.

The Lions and the Tigers are greeting spring in their usual restless fashion by pacing up and down their yards.

Silver King, the Polar Bear, spends all his time in his bath. Spring is here and warm weather is on its way, he announces.

The Frogs have begun to croak and the Frog Glee club meets every evening for practice in preparation for the great spring concert. The other creatures say that the frogs need plenty of practice.

The Squirrels and Sparrows about the Park are still boasting about the Christmas party they had when the children came and hung bags of nuts and suet on the trees and wished them a Merry Christmas.

These are some of the latest items of news in Zooland society.

TO BE HISTORICAL MUSEUM

Stephen Collins Foster Memorial Museum Has Purchased Fine Home at Bardstown.

The Stephen Collins Foster Memorial association has recently purchased a fine old mansion at Bardstown, Ky., in which Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home." The original draft of the composition has been secured and it will occupy a conspicuous place in the new memorial hall. The society also intends to make its new home a historical museum for this section of the state, which teems with legends of frontier days on the "dark and bloody ground."

Bardstown is one of the oldest settlements in the Blue Grass state. The first Catholic cathedral west of the Alleghenies was built there. Louis Philippe, a sojourner for some months at Bardstown as the guest of his old friend, Bishop Flaget, gave the church some rare paintings by Rubens and Van Dyke. It was at St. Joseph's college, Bardstown, that Theodore O'Hara, the gifted poet, who wrote "The Bivouac of the Dead," received his education.

SHE DYED A SWEATER, SKIRT AND CHILD'S COAT WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her worn, shabby dresses, skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything, even if she has never dyed before. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is sure because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to spot, fade, stretch, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—Advertisement.

SURELY CASE OF DISABILITY

But Irishman's Claim for Accident Compensation Didn't Seem to Be Backed by Logic.

A dejected looking Irishman entered the office of an accident insurance company and, handing a soiled and crumpled paper to the clerk in charge, said: "There's me policy, and it's meself wants it paid up this day." "On what do you base your claim for total disability?" inquired the clerk, after a comprehensive survey of the sturdy though shiftless looking man who stood leaning against the desk. "Sure, it's meself that came over to this country to be a butter in the furst families," returned the Celt, sulkily, "an' havin' no recommendation O' me was waken without a place; an' when O' got wan, the very next day me feet, bad 'cess to 'em, tripped under me, an' broke zolve illgant plates an' three cups of coffee. An' they discharged me, an' niver a stroke of wurk can O' get since. Ah! if that ain't total disability O' would like to know what is!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

"Growing Most to Ten"

Last Friday afternoon, Mrs. A. C. McCammon entertained in honor of the sixth birthday of little daughter Ardene. There were forty-one little guests present and the mammas of a portion of the guests numbered eleven. The McCammon home was decorated in colors to carry out the spirit of St. Patrick's Day. The tables were decorated with flowers intermingled with green candles and place cards which strongly reminded one of the "auld sod." Games were played and prizes awarded as features to furnish additional interest to the little guests. After refreshments, in which Mrs. Louis Adams assisted, Mrs. McCammon in preparing and serving, favors of green toys were presented to the tiny guests. Little Ardene had but lately recovered from a spell of illness and the above event cleverly arranged by her mamma served as a delightful diversion for the tiny Miss as well as an affair of much enjoyment for the attending guests.

"Black Beauty" at the Crystal Theatre

Millions of readers have read with delight Anna Sewall's wonderful book "Black Beauty" and probably most of them have thought of it only as a remarkable and appealing work of fiction. As a matter of fact, the qualities of mind which made the production of this masterpiece possible were a faculty of alert and keen observation, a warm sympathy with the lives and feelings of the lower animals and a power of effective literary expression.

Thousands of questions have been asked as to how and in what manner "Black Beauty" was to be put into motion pictures. The best and most satisfactory answers will be given at the Crystal Theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, March 13 and 14, when "Black Beauty" will be shown.
