Exemption Law Upheld By The Supreme Court

Santa Fe, Oct. 8.—The soldiers' exemption law of the Sixth State Legislature was upheld by the supreme court as constitutional, except as in one particular, in an unanimous opinion. This one particular was a provision that sought to relieve soldiers, sailors and marines from payment of the $3 road tax for 1922. This was declared unconstitutional. The rest of the act, however, was declared valid. As the result of this decision, it is now the law of the state that soldiers, sailors and marines, their unmarried widows and army nurses are exempt from the payment of property tax upon $2,000 valuation and if they are heads of families they are exempt upon $200 more.

This applies to 1922 and every following year. Soldiers, sailors and marines further are exempt from the $3 road tax for 1923 and every following year. The women never have been subject to this tax. The opinion was written by Associate Justice C. M. Botts and concurred in by Chief Justice Frank W. Parker and Associate Justice Sam G. Bratton.

Increased Delegation

Washington, Oct. 3.—New Mexico will have 8 delegates in the next Republican national convention, instead of six as in 1920, under the tentative apportionment of delegates which has been announced by John T. Adams, chairman of the national committee. Arizona and Nevada make the same gain, while Colorado is increased from 12 to 14. The total number of delegates in 1924 will be 1036, an increase of 52 over 1920, but the democratic "solid south" will have 23 delegates less. There had been a long and insistent demand for a reduction in the representation of the southern states, which had able party leaders, but comparatively few Republican votes. Under this new apportionment, the states which "go democratic" no matter who may be the candidate, will have somewhat less influence in selecting the candidate.

Georgia is reduced from 17 to 9; Mississippi from 12 to 4; Louisiana from 12 to 9; S. Carolina from 11 to 4, and Texas from 23 to 17.

Alabama with 14, Arkansas with 13, Kentucky with 26, and N. Carolina with 22, remain unchanged.

The southern states that have shown an increase in Republican voting strength are increased as follows: Florida from 8 to 10; Tennessee from 20 to 26; Virginia from 15 to 16; and West Virginia from 16 to 18.

Court Convenes and Adjourns

District Court convened here on Monday, and after setting cases for next week, adjourned until October 15.

Mrs. W. P. Loughery and Mrs. W. J. Knoy underwent operations during the past week at Johnson's hospital and are recovering nicely.

BORN—On Oct. 6, at the Johnson hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wallace, a girl.

The Women's Club Holds an Interesting Meeting.

The Carrizozo Women's Club met last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. H. Harvey, with the president, Mrs. W. W. Stadtman, in the chair. After the business session the meeting was turned over to Mrs. R. M. Treat, who had arranged a most enjoyable program on "Citizenship," as follows:

Members Response to Roll Call on "The Progress of the Foreign Born," Piano Solo, by Mrs. Donaldson.

Questions on Local Government, by Mrs. Stadtman, answered by the members. Piano Solo, by Otto Prehm. Clippings bearing on the subject of "A Good Citizen's Creed" read and discussed by all present.

An interesting and well prepared paper on "Citizenship," read by Mrs. Blaney. An instructive educational paper on "Lincoln County Schools," prepared by Mrs. Louise H. Coe, read by Mrs. Nickles. Vocal Duet, by Mrs. T. E. Kelley and Miss Carolyn Roberts. Immediately following the program, delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mesdames Harvey, Harris and Richard.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. J. B. French, on the afternoon of Friday, October 19th. The subject of the day will be "Fire Prevention." Come and boost. —Reporter

Attending I. O. O. F. and Rebekah Convention

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Dinwiddie, Mrs. J. K. Farris and Miss Minnie Wahl left last Sunday by motor for Las Vegas, where they attended a State Convention of I. O. O. F. and Rebekahs which was in session Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. They returned on Thursday.

Yes, Bill Is Not

Wm. Humphrey is erecting a building, a portion of which will be used for living apartments and the balance for a garage. No, William is not about to attempt a voyage on the sea of matrimony—he will have comfortable bachelor's quarters in the living portion.

A Local Artist in Embryo.

Andreas Sandoval, an eighth grade pupil in the Carrizozo schools, is quite an artist, from the fact that a number of his cartoons have made their appearance in the El Paso papers of late. Merit should not fail of its proper recognition.

Mrs. C. L. Phillips Meets With Accident

Mrs. C. L. Phillips, who, with her father, T. Y. Luce, were on their way to California, met with an accident on Nogal Hill last Saturday which caused the fracture of one of her ankles. She was brought to Dr. Johnson's hospital, where, after two days, she was enabled to resume the trip.

Mrs. Louise M. Coe, county school superintendent, returned on Monday from Roswell, where she attended the Cotton Carnival.

School Notes

(Supt. E. E. Cole)

At the Box Supper last Friday night the Athletic Association netted $52.50. There was a large attendance and everyone had a good time. The basketball teams are starting off in fine style and under the efficient management of Coach Bryan Cazier, expect to repeat the fine record of last year.

The second year Home Economics class gave another of their delightful dinners last week, and the dinner of this week will be given Thursday. This gives the girls excellent practice in serving good meals in an attractive and charming style. Divorces are going to be less numerous in a few years. Eh, what?

Friday of last week the High School gave another one of its fine literary programs. The following program was carried out so far as time allowed:

Reading, Mary Tuton
Current Events, Chas. Ross
Debate: "Resolved, That the Government should seize and control the Coal Mines of the United States." Affirmative; Miller French and Clinton Branum. Negative; Fred Lalone and Lee Stimmel. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

Reading, Jeanne Reilly
Piano Solo, Lucille Fite
Wit and Humor,
Reading, Jessie Rustin
Don English
School Paper, Gwen Climer
and Kastler Taylor

These programs should be of considerable value to the High School students. The literary effort is of great worth and there is some fun mixed in with it.

The school board has had electric lights put into the Domestic Science room. Miss Meux and the girls of her classes are, of course, delighted. It will help them so much in the giving of their "State Dinners."

We are proud of the attitude of the pupils of the Carrizozo schools, their morals and manners, their spirit with reference to their teachers and to each other. Recently one of the new teachers said she was greatly surprised to find such a fine class of boys and girls; much better than she had expected; that she had not, in the six weeks of school already gone, had a single impudent word or improper expression of any kind from any of her pupils. Whenever the opportunity offers, our teachers talk to their pupils on manners and morals, their duties as citizens, and how they should behave in a hundred ways. Character building is one of our greatest duties and privileges.

Baron Auriemma Here.

Baron Auriemma came in Tuesday night from Alamogordo, where he carried on a campaign, raising $450 for the Salvation Army Fund. After looking over the ground, he decided that one month later would be better than the present time to wage a campaign here, and he will return Oct. 10, at which time he will sing and hold meetings at different places over the county in the interest of the fund.

Our Vanishing Forests

Americans are using up their timber supply four or five times as fast as new trees are being grown. Three-fourths of our original soft wood supply has been cut down. So warns Colonel Henry Solon Graves, head of the Yale Forest School.

The Senate Committee on Forestry has been holding sessions in the Western lumbering states devoted to taking testimony of experts of the question of reforestation.

Senator C. L. McNary of Oregon, chairman of the committee, brought out the fact that the Federal Forestry Department alone was capable of dealing with national reforestation.

The facts developed show that it is clearly a national problem, the timber supply being a national need and the entire United States being engaged in literally destroying the existing forests.

The states containing the large acreage of logged-off lands have been impoverished by removal of the forests and are least able to carry on large reforestation projects.

The private owner of timberlands cannot be compelled to replant devastated areas, so there is nothing left but for Uncle Sam to do it.

Next Week at the Crystal Theatre.

On both Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 16-17, the Crystal will offer its patrons a special treat in the form of a big double bill. Two productions will be shown on these dates, both pictures of exceptional merit. "Nanook of the North" is the story of a real Eskimo and his family, enacted among the frozen snow-lands of the far north. It faithfully portrays the perpetual battle of the Eskimo for existence, with a beautiful love story interwoven.

Harold Lloyd will split the sides of the most confirmed old grouch, in "Never Weaken," one of the funniest pictures ever produced.

On Friday, Oct. 19, you will be greatly amused at the efforts of the village of Pointview to keep pace with the newly returned college girl in "Keeping Up With Lizzie." It was only a simple little American village, but before Lizzie (Enid Bennett) finished with it, it had all the airs and graces of a Buckingham Palace! It's a scream!

On Saturday, Oct. 20, Famous Players presents the eminent screen star, Lionel Barrymore, in a "different" Paramount production, "Boomerang Bill."

This is the story of a life that the world called "bad." But when you've thrilled and laughed and cried through it all, you'll see how little the world really knew! It is one story you won't forget—plus the wonderful acting of Lionel Barrymore.

Eastern Star Basket Picnic a Huge Success.

Comet Chapter, No. 29, Order of the Eastern Star, gave an old-fashioned Basket Picnic in Nogal Canyon last Sunday. Eleven cars went from Carrizozo and a number of others from neighboring towns. Nearly a hundred participated, they being members of the order and their families.

The affair began at 1:30 p. m. and lasted until 6:30 p. m., and a most enjoyable time was experienced by all who attended.

Nogal Nuggets

Earl C. McDaniel, who is taking his second year in science at the Agricultural College, unexpectedly dropped in Friday afternoon, surprising his folks. Earl is a popular and ambitious young man, and we bespeak for him success. He left Saturday night for school.

A family of tourists created quite a sensation Saturday at 2 p. m., when the brakes on their Ford car failed to function while descending Nogal Hill. It is reported that a fourteen year old boy fell from the car, and his married sister, a frail girl, jumped out after him, breaking her ankle. The neighborhood was alarmed by the cries of "Help" and "Murder!" R. L. Hust went to the rescue and the injured woman was taken to Carrizozo for treatment. We are informed she was ready to go on her way Sunday. The car was not seriously damaged.

Mrs. May, wife of Jesse May, in company with her sister, Mrs. Marion Hust, left on No. 2 Sunday, for Mayo Sanatorium, Rochester, Minn.

Again we had a dance, and this time the old, as well as the young, "tripped the light fantastic," to the music of Jim Cooper's String Band until about midnight Saturday. It was the consensus of opinion that Mrs. Cooper and two sons were adepts in their line and all (did we say all?) had a good time.

J. K. Bureh, of Red Lake, spent a few days visiting and gathering fruit in the vicinity. He returned home Sunday.

We are glad to note that Eula Lea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Emerson, after a two weeks' absence from school, due to a severe attack of tonsillitis, is again with the first grade.

Mrs. O. C. Davis made a business trip to town (Carrizozo) Monday.

George Hust, a Carrizozo freshman, came up Sunday to spend the evening with home folks, returning Monday for school.

Miss Ada Corn, a popular young Carrizozoan, spent the week-end with Miss Dessie McDaniel and --- (?). Well, after all, we can't blame Earl for driving two days and nights to spend a few hours with the "home folks."

"Lest you forget, we say it yet"—you need a safety signal to protect the school children from reckless drivers. Why not put up that sign, "School—Drive Slow?" Perhaps this might avert a serious accident.

Ye scribe had a visitor Sunday while he himself was making a call. (Sorry we were absent.) The notation read "Came to see you,—signed, F." Come again Professor, and we'll ALL be at home!

Mrs. Amanda Foreman, a near resident of Carrizozo, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. O. C. Davis, for a few days. She returned home Monday.

W. R. White, Manager of the Ruidoso Saw Mill Company, is reported to be quite ill, and word to that effect has been wired to his relatives in the east.

Dual Closing Of Lincoln County Banks

Monday morning the Exchange Bank, the oldest in Lincoln County, closed its doors and was followed on Tuesday by the First State Bank of Capitan. As the cause of this unfortunate affair, the Exchange Bank had issued loans to our stockmen on long-time paper which, due to the long droughts and a depreciation in stock valuations in which stockmen were helpless to redeem pledges, is given as the principal cause for the closing. The Bank Examiner is here and more particulars will be made public after investigation.

As to the closing of the First State Bank, there seems to have been no cause except to a void a run which is likely to follow in a fever of public excitement, for in its last statement printed in this paper in our issue of Sept. 28, it rendered the healthiest statement made since its organization. Mr. Patterson, cashier of the bank, enjoys the confidence of depositors and will open in a few days.

The First National, Lincoln State and Stockmen's State are serving the public in a creditable manner. The Lincoln State has issued a letter to the public, a facsimile of which appears on page 4 of this paper and is very interesting.—Read it. Other banks are also inviting the public to investigate their methods of safeguarding depositors. Let the people be calm, considerate, being ever mindful that confidence in our banking institutions which are still alive, is the one thing necessary just now to growth and advancement of our commonwealth.

Theresa Sheehan Company

Don't fail to hear the famous Theresa Sheehan Concert Co., at the Crystal Theatre Wednesday, Oct. 24. This is one of the best attractions that ever appeared in Carrizozo, and a full house should be on hand.

Entertainers' Farewell

The Carrizozo Entertainers will give their farewell number Thursday, Nov. 8. Karma Dean will come back and dance and train the chorus. Ethel May Copeland, of the famous Bridgeport Players, will give a humorous reading, and all the old favorites of the Entertainers will appear in one way or another and make their final bow to the audience. Do not forget the dates: Theresa Sheehan Concert Co., Oct. 24th; Entertainers, November 8th.

Miss Jennie I. Boone, of Capitan, formerly connected with the First State Bank, has accepted a position with the First National Bank of this place.

Mesdames A. L. Burke, R. T. Lucas and A. J. Pace visited Dr. and Mrs. Carl E. Freeman at their ranch home yesterday.

E. A. Prehm, who left about ten days ago for Las Cruces to accept a position with Manasse Brothers Dry Good and General Merchandise firm of that place, says he is well pleased with his position, is doing well, and sends regards to old friends.

Mesdames Mann, Anderson, Fagan and Berry were over from Fort Stanton during the past week.

Mrs. Alice J. Pace will leave Sunday for Temple, Arizona, to pay a visit to the R. E. Stidham family.

AN UNKNOWN VOICE

SYNOPSIS.—Arriving at the lonely little railroad station at El Cajon, New Mexico, Madeline Hammond, New York society girl, finds no one to meet her. While in the waiting room, a drunken cowboy enters, asks if she is married, and departs, leaving her terrified. He returns with a priest, who goes through some sort of ceremony, and the cowboy forces her to say "Al." Asking her name and learning her identity the cowboy seems dazed. In a shooting scrape outside the room a Mexican is killed. The cowboy lets a girl, Bonita, take his horse and escape, then conducts Madeline to Florence Kingsley, friend of her brother. Florence explains her, learns her story, and dismisses the cowboy. Gene Stewart, next day Alfred Hammond, Madeline's brother, takes her to task. Madeline accuses him of any wrong instant. Alfred, action of a wealthy family had been dismissed from his home because of his dissipation. Madeline sees that the West has redeemed him. She meets Stillwell, an employer typical western ranchman. Stillwell tells her how Stewart beat up the sheriff to save her from arrest and then lit out for the border. Danny Malin, one of Stillwell's cowboys, has disappeared with some of Stillwell's money. His friends link his name with the girl Bonita. Madeline gets a glimpse of life on a western ranch. Stewart sends Madeline his horse Majesty. She buys a horse, and becomes famous. She finds her life work under "The Light of Western Stars." Learning Stewart had been hurt in a brawl at Chihuahua, Madeline visits him and persuades him to come to the ranch as the boss of her cowboys. Jim Nels, Nick Steele and "Monty" are Madeline's chief riders. They have a feud with Don Carlos vaqueros who are really guerrillas. Madeline makes Stewart promise that peace is kept. They raid Don Carlos' ranch for contraband arms. Madeline and Florence, returning home from Alfred's ranch, run into an ambush of vaqueros. Florence saves them, and Madeline gets home safely.

She entered the last room. There was no lock or bar upon the door. But the room was large and dark, and it was half full of bale of alfalfa hay. Probably it was the safest place in the house, at least time would be necessary to find any one hidden there. She dropped her valuables in a dark corner and covered them with loose hay. That done, she felt her way down a narrow aisle between the piled up bales and presently crouched in a niche.

With the necessity of action over for the immediate present, Madeline became conscious that she was quivering and almost breathless. Her skin felt tight and cold. There was a weight on her chest, her mouth was dry, and she had a strange tendency to swallow. Dull sounds came from parts of the house remote from her. In the intervals of silence between these sounds she heard the squeaking and creaking of mice in the hay. A mouse ran over her hand.

She listened, waiting, hoping, yet dreading, the clattering approach of her cowboys. There would be fighting, men injured, perhaps killed. Even the thought of violence of any kind hurt her. But perhaps the guerrillas would run in time to avoid a clash with her men. She hoped for that, prayed for it. Through her mind flitted what she knew of Nels, of Monty, of Nick Steele, and she experienced a sensation that left her somewhat chilled and sick. Then she thought of the dark, brooding, greyed Stewart. She felt a thrill drive away the cold nausea. And her excitement augmented.

Waiting, listening, increased all her emotions. Nothing appeared to be happening. Yet hours seemed to pass while she crouched there. Had Florence been overtake? Could any of these lean horses outrun Majesty? She doubted it, she knew it could not be true. Nevertheless, the strain of uncertainty was torturing.

Suddenly the bang of the corridor door pierced her through and through with the dread of uncertainty. Some of the guerrillas had entered the east wing of the house. She heard a babel of jabbering voices, the shuffling of boots and clinking of spurs, the slamming of doors and ransacking of rooms.

Madeline lost faith in her hiding place. Moreover, she found it impossible to take the chance. The idea of being caught in that dark room by those ruffians filled her with horror. She must get out into the light. Swiftly she rose and went to the window. It was not more of a door than a window, being a large aperture closed by two wooden doors on hinges. The iron bars yielded readily to her grasp, and one door stuck fast, while the other opened a few inches. She looked out upon a green slope covered with bushes and bunches of sage and cactus. Neither man nor horse showed in the narrow field of her vision. She believed she would be safer hidden out there in the shrubbery than in the house. The jump from the window would be easy for her.

It had caught at the bottom. Pulling with all her might proved to be in vain. Pausing, with palms hot and bruised, she heard a louder, closer approach of the invaders of her home. Fear, wrath, and impotence contested for supremacy over her and drove her to desperation. She was alone here, and she must rely on herself. And as she strained every muscle to move that obstinate door and heard the quick, harsh voices of men and the sounds of a hurried search she suddenly felt sure that they were hunting for her. She knew it. She did not wonder at it. But she wondered if she were really Madeline Hammond, and if it were possible that brutal men would harm her. Then the tramping of heavy feet on the floor of the adjoining room lent her the last strength of fear. Pushing with hands and shoulders, she moved the door far enough to permit the passage of her body. Then she stepped upon the sill and slipped through the aperture. She saw no one. Lightly she jumped down and ran in among the bushes. But these did not afford her the cover she needed. She stole from one clump to another, finding too late that she had chosen with poor judgment. The position of the bushes had drawn her closer to the front of the house rather than away from it, and just before her were horses, and beyond a group, of excited men. With her heart in her throat Madeline crouched down.

A shrill yell, followed by running and shouting guerrillas, roused her hope. They had sighted the cowboys and were in flight. Rapid thumping of boots on the porch told of men hurrying from the house. Several horses dashed past her, not ten feet distant. One rider saw her, for he turned to shout back. This drove Madeline into a panic. Hardly knowing what she did, she began to run away from the house. Her feet seemed leaden. She felt the same horrible powerlessness that sometimes came over her when she dreamed of being pursued. Horses with shouting riders streaked past her in the shrubbery. There was a thunder of hoofs behind her. She turned aside, but the bounding grew nearer. She was being run down.

As Madeline shut her eyes and, staggering, was about to fall, apparently right under pounding hoofs, a rude, powerful hand clapped round her waist, clutched deep and strong, and swung her aloft. She felt a heavy blow when the shoulder of the horse struck her, and then a wrenching of her arm as she was dragged up. A sudden blighting pain made sight and feeling fade from her.

But she did not become unconscious to the extent that she lost the sense of being rapidly borne away. She seemed to hold that for a long time. When her faculties began to return the motion of the horse was no longer violent. For a few moments she could not determine her position. Apparently she was upside down. Then she saw that she was facing the ground, and must be lying across a saddle with her head hanging down. She could not move a hand; she could not feel where her hands were. Then she felt the touch of soft leather. She saw a high topped Mexican boot, wearing a huge silver spur, and the reeking flank and legs of a horse, and a dusty, narrow trail. Soon a kind of red darkness veiled her eyes, her head swam, and she felt motion and pain only dully.

After what seemed a thousand weary hours some one lifted her from the horse and laid her upon the ground where, gradually, as the blood left her head and she could see, she began to get the right relation of things.

She lay in a sparse grove of firs, and the shadows told of late afternoon. She smelled wood smoke, and she heard the sharp crunch of horses' teeth nipping grass. Voices caused her to turn her face. A group of men stood and sat round a campfire eating like wolves. The looks of her captors made Madeline close her eyes, and the fascination, the fear they roused in her made her open them again. Mostly they were thin-bodied, thin-bearded Mexicans, black and haggard and starved. Whatever they might be, they surely were hunger-stricken and squalid. Not one had a coat. A few had scarfs. Some wore bolts in which were scattered cartridges. Only a few had guns, and these were of diverse patterns. Madeline could see no packs, no blankets, and only a few cooking utensils, all battered and blackened. Her eyes fastened upon men she believed were white men; but it was from their features and not their color that she judged. Once she had seen a band of nomad robbers in the Sahara, and somehow was reminded of them by this motley outlaw troop.

They divided attention between the satisfying of ravenous appetites and a vigilant watching down the forest aisles. They expected some one, Madeline thought, and, manifestly, if it were a pursuing posse, they did not show anxiety. She could not understand more than a word here and there that they had uttered. Presently, however, the name of Don Carlos revived keen curiosity in her and realization of her situation; and then once more dread possessed her breast.

A low exclamation and a sweep of arm from one of the guerrillas caused the whole band to wheel and concentrate their attention in the opposite direction. They heard something. They saw some one. Grimy hands sought weapons, and then every man stiffened. Madeline saw what hunted men looked like at the moment of discovery, and the sight was terrible. She closed her eyes, aghast with what she saw, fearful of the moment when the guns would leap out.

There were muttered curses, a short period of silence followed by whistling, and then a clear voice rang out, "El Capitan!"

A strong shock vibrated through Madeline, and her eyelids swept open. Instantly she associated the name El Capitan with Stewart and experienced a sensation of strange regret. It was not pursuit or rescue she thought of then, but death. These men would kill Stewart. But surely he had not come alone. She heard the slow, heavy thump of hoofs. Soon into the wide aisle between the trees moved the form of a man, arms flung high over his head. Then Madeline saw the horse, and she recognized Majesty, and she knew it was really Stewart who rode the roan. When doubt was no longer possible she felt a suffocating sense of gladness and fear and wonder.

Many of the guerrillas leaped up with drawn weapons. Still Stewart approached with his hands high, and he rode right into the campfire circle. Then a guerrilla, evidently the chief, waved down the threatening men and strode up to Stewart. He greeted him. There was amaze and pleasure and respect in the greeting. Madeline could tell that, though she did not know what was said. At the moment Stewart appeared to her as cool and careless as if he were dismounting at her porch steps. But when he got down, she saw that his face was white. He shook hands with the guerrilla, and then his glittering eyes roved over the men and around the glade until they rested upon Madeline. Without moving from his tracks he seemed to leap, as if a powerful current had hooked him. Madeline tried to smile to assure him she was alive and well; but the intent in his eyes, the power of his controlled spirit telling her of her peril and his, froze the smile on her lips.

With that he faced the chief and spoke rapidly in the Mexican jargon Madeline had always found so difficult to translate. The chief answered, spreading wide his hands, one of which indicated Madeline as she lay there. Stewart drew the fellow a little aside and said something for her ear alone. The chief's hands swept up in a gesture of surprise and acquiescence. Again Stewart spoke swiftly. His hearer then turned to address the band. Madeline caught the words "Don Carlos" and "peace." There was a brief muttering protest which the chief thundered down. Madeline guessed her release had been given by this guerrilla and bought from the others of the band.

Stewart strode to her side, leading the roan. Majesty reared and snorted when he saw his mistress prostrate. Stewart knelt, still holding the bridle.

"Are you all right?" he asked.

"I think so," she replied, essaying a laugh that was rather a failure. "My feet are tied."

Dark blood blotted out all the white from his face, and lightning shot from his eyes. She felt his hands, like steel tongs, loosening the bonds round her ankles. Without a word he lifted her upright and then upon Majesty. Madeline reeled a little in the saddle, held hard to the pomel with one hand, and tried to lean on Stewart's shoulder with the other.

"Don't give up," he said.

She saw him gaze furtively into the forest on all sides. And it surprised her to see the guerrillas riding away. Putting the two facts together, Madeline formed an idea that neither Stewart nor the others desired to meet with some one evidently due shortly in the glade. Stewart guided the roan off to the right and walked beside Madeline, steadying her in the saddle. At first Madeline was so weak and dizzy that she could scarcely refrain her seat. The dizziness left her presently, and then she made an effort to ride without help. Her weakness, however, and a pain in her wrenched arm made the task laborious.

Stewart had struck off the trail, if there were one, and was keeping to denser parts of the forest. Majesty's hoofs made no sound on the soft ground, and Stewart strode on without speaking. Neither his hurry nor vigilance relaxed until at least two miles had been covered. The soft ground gave place to bare, rocky soil. The horse snorted and tossed his head. A sound of splashing water broke the silence. The hollow opened into a wider one through which a little brook murmured its way over the stones. Majesty snorted again and stopped and bent his head.

"He wants a drink," said Madeline. "I'm thirsty, too, and very tired."

Stewart lifted her out of the saddle, and as their hands parted she felt something moist and warm. Blood was running down her arm and into the palm of her hand.

"I'm—bleeding," she said, a little unsteadily. "Oh, I remember. My arm was hurt."

She held it out, the blood making her conscious of her weakness. Stewart's fingers felt so firm and sure. Swiftly he ripped the wet sleeve. Her forearm had been cut or scratched. He washed off the blood.

"Why, Stewart, it's nothing. I was only a little nervous. I guess that's the first time I ever saw my own blood."

He made no reply as he tore her handkerchief into strips and bound her arm. His swift motions and his silence gave her a hint of how he might meet a more serious emergency. She felt safe. And because of that impression, when he lifted his head and she saw that he was pale and shaking, she was surprised. He stood before her folding his scarf, which was still wet, and from which he made no effort to remove the red stains.

"Miss Hammond," he said, hoarsely, "it was a man's hands—a Greaser's fingers—that cut your arm. I know who he was. I could have killed him. But I mightn't have got your freedom. You understand? I didn't dare."

Madeline gazed at Stewart, astounded more by his speech than his excessive emotion.

"My dear boy!" she exclaimed. And then she paused. She could not find words.

He was making an apology to her for not killing a man who had laid a rough hand upon her person. He was ashamed and seemed to be in a torture that she would not understand why he had not killed the man. There seemed to be something of passionate scorn in him that he had not been able to avenge her as well as free her.

"Stewart, I understand. You were being my kind of cowboy. I thank you."

But she did not understand so much as she implied. She had heard many stories of this man's cool indifference to peril and death. He had always seemed so hard as granite. Why should the sight of a little blood upon her arm pale his cheek and shake his hand and thicken his voice? What was there in his nature to make him implore her to see the only reason he could not kill an outlaw? The answer to the first question was that he loved her. It was beyond her to answer the second. But the secret of it lay in the same strength from which his love sprang—an intensity of feeling which seemed characteristic of these western men of simple, lonely, elemental lives. All at once upon Madeline rushed a tide of realization of how greatly it was possible for such a man as Stewart to love her. The thought came to her in all its singular power. All her eastern lovers who had the graces that made them her equals in the sight of so world were without the only great essential that a lonely, hard life had given to Stewart. Nature here struck a just balance. Something deep and dim in the future, an unknown voice, called to Madeline and disturbed her. And because it was not a voice to her intelligence she deduced the ears of her warm and throbbing life and decided never to listen.

"Is it safe to rest a little?" she asked. "I am so tired. Perhaps I'll be stronger if I rest."

"We're all right now," he said. "I can get you home by midnight. They'll be some worried down there."

"What happened?"

"Nothing much to any one but you. That's the—the hard luck of it. Florence caught us out on the slope. We were returning from the fire. We were dead beat. But we got to the ranch before any damage was done. We sure had trouble in finding a trace of you. Nick spotted the prints of your heels under the window. And then we knew. I had to fight the boys. If they'd come after you we'd never have gotten you without a fight. I didn't want that. I had to rope Monty. However, I tied him to the porch. Nels and Nick promised to stay and help him till morning. That was the best I could do. I was sure lucky to come up with the hand so soon. I had figured right. I knew that guerrilla chief. He's a bandit in Mexico. It's a business with him. But he fought for Madero, and I was with him a good deal. He may be a Greaser, but he's white."

"How did you effect my release?"

"I offered them money. That's what the rebels all want. They need money. They're a lot of poor, hungry devils."

"I gathered that you offered to pay ransom. How much?"

"Two thousand dollars Mex. I gave my word. I'll have to take the money. I told them when and where I'd meet them."

"Certainly. I'm glad I've got the money." Madeline laughed. "What a strange thing to happen to me! I wonder what dad would say to that? Stewart, I'm afraid he'd say two thousand dollars is more than I'm worth. But tell me. That rebel chieftain did not demand money?"

"No. The money is for his men. We were comrades before Juarez. One day I dragged him out of a ditch. I reminded him. Then I—I told him something I—I thought—"

"Stewart, I know from the way he looked at me that you spoke of me. I heard Don Carlos' name several times. That interests me. What have Don Carlos and his vaqueros to do with this?"

"That Greaser has all to do with it," replied Stewart, grimly. "He burned his ranch and corral to keep us from getting them. But he also did it to draw all the boys away from your home. They had a deep plot, all right. I left orders for some one to stay with you. But Al and Stillwell, who're both hot-headed, rode off this morning. Then the guerrillas came down."

"Well, what was the idea—the plot—as you call it?"

"To get you," he said, bluntly.

"Me! Stewart, you do not mean my capture—whatever you call it—was anything more than mere accident?"

"I do mean that. But Stillwell and your brother think the guerrillas wanted money and arms, and they just happened to make off with you because you ran under a horse's nose."

"You do not incline to that point of view?"

"I don't. Neither does Nels nor Nick Steele. And we know Don Carlos and the Greasers. Look how the vaqueros chased Flo for you!"

"What do you think, then?"

"I'd rather not say. Once I heard Nels say he'd seen the Greaser look at you, and if he ever saw him do it again he'd shoot him."

"Why, Stewart, that is ridiculous. To shoot a man for looking at a woman! This is a civilized country."

"Well, maybe it would be ridiculous in a civilized country. There's some things about civilization I don't care for."

"What for instance?"

"For one thing, I can't stand for the way men let other men treat women."

"But, Stewart, this is strange talk from you, who, that night I came—"

She broke off, sorry that she had spoken. His offense was not pleasant to see. Suddenly he lifted his head, and she felt scorched by flaming eyes.

"Suppose I was drunk. Suppose I had met some ordinary girl. Suppose I had really made her marry me. Don't you think I would have stopped being a drunkard and have been good to her?"

"Stewart, I do not know what to think about you," replied Madeline. Then followed a short silence. Madeline saw the last bright rays of the setting sun glide up over a distant crag. Stewart rebrided the horse and looked at the saddle-girths.

"I got off the trail. About Don Carlos I'll say right out, not what Nels and Nick think, but what I know. Don Carlos hoped to make off with you for himself, the same as if you had been a poor peon slave-girl down in Sonora. Maybe he had a deeper plot than my rebel friend told me. Maybe he even went so far as to hope for American troops to chase him. The rebels are trying to stir up the United States. They'd welcome intervention. But, however that may be, the Greaser meant evil to you, and has meant it ever since he saw you first. That's all."

"Stewart, you have done me and my family a service we can never hope to repay."

"She fell asleep with her head on Stewart's breast."

"Grocery" Stores.

Webster's dictionary gives as one of the meanings of the word "grocery" in the United States a "retail grocer's store." It is quite correct to use it in this sense and to pluralize it, so as to make it unnecessary to say "grocery stores," just as we have "bakeries," etc.

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS

Doctor R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, was not only a successful physician, but also a profound student of the medicinal qualities of Nature's remedies, roots and herbs, and by close observation of the methods used by the Indians, he discovered their great remedial qualities, especially for weaknesses of women, and after careful preparation, succeeded in giving to the world a remedy which has been used by women with the best results for half a century. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is still in great demand, while many other so-called "cure-alls" have come and gone. The reason for its phenomenal success is because of its absolute purity, and Dr. Pierce's high standing as an honored citizen of Buffalo is a guarantee of all that is claimed for the Favorite Prescription as a regulator for the illa peculiar to women.

Aside From Mathematics.

The teacher had been explaining fractions to her class. When she had discussed the subject at length, wishing to see how much light had been shed, she inquired:

"Now, Bobby, which would you rather have—one apple or two halves?"

The little chap promptly replied: "Two halves."

"Oh, Bobby," exclaimed the young woman, a little disappointed. "Why should you prefer two halves?"

"Because then I could see if it was bad inside."—Chicago Daily News.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists at its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

NEW FALL HATS ARE OF FELT AND SUEDE

Upward Rolling Brim One of the Newest; Tams for Young Girls.

The fall line of hats is divided among suedes, taffetas and felts. Combinations of suede and taffeta are shown and quite a large number of these models is made up in red. Two shapes predominate in the suede and taffeta and combination models. The brimmed hats nearly all show an upward roll from the face, and there are chic little turbans with a wing of taffeta or suede, darting from one side with a downward bend.

Many of the fall taffeta hats have the roll brim closely shirred, the shirring put in with a picot stitch. In most cases the under side of the brim is of a different shade from the top and the crown. Some of the loveliest of these hats have the upper side closely covered with varicolored embroidery.

The felt hats are all of the cloche shape and extremely small and close-fitting. Many of these are trimmed with kid, forming narrow bands and cocardes.

With the hats are a number of matching scarfs and bags of suede and taffeta.

The young girl will glory in the new tams. In fact, adaptations of tams have arrived from Paris so smart and so different that even the more mature members of the feminine sex will be seen wearing them. They are made of velvet, plush and brocaded ribbons. Those made of the velvet are intricately embroidered with narrow satin, grosgrain and moire ribbons. Some of the new tams made of fallie ribbons are richly embroidered with vivid shades of velvet ribbons. Some have gone to the extent of adding a touch of beads to the ribbon embroidery, to add to the elaborateness of the effect.

Some of the tams have a little framework about the face entirely covered with tiny ribbon loops, narrow velvet ribbons and shaded metallic ribbons being especially favored for this purpose, while variations of the ribbon cocarde are exceedingly popular, giving a colorful and flower-like effect to the hat which makes it becoming to almost any face.

Sable Neckpiece With Hat of Black Beaver

The sable neckpiece is very appropriate when worn with a smart hat of black beaver. The model is trimmed with Japanese sigrette.

Chic Short Coat for Fall and Winter Wear

This winsome short coat for fall and winter is beautifully designed to please the careful dresser. The creation here shown is of taupe caracul, with squirrel collar and cuffs.

They are good with the more severe style of top coat, with the short fur jacket, with the one-piece dress, with the coat frock and with the tailored suit, leaving but little more that can be considered a part of the modern girl's wardrobe for everyday wear just now.

Trimmings at the sides of all these hats are notable and most effective when it comes to telling the tale of modern styles. Sometimes they are straight and stiff and applied to one side only. At other times they are softer and are placed on either side in exactly opposite positions. Again they are loose and flowing and graceful, being applied to one side only and allowed to droop or flow over the neck and shoulders with a graceful framing for the face which makes them most attractive.

May Use Lace Scarf for Picturesque Touch

Silver cloth tinted with an apricot shade is used for a model featuring a trailing chiffon scarf. The foundation, which is long and slim, has a deep scalloped hem and a low-blowing waistline accentuated by a thickly padded girde of fruits made of green and yellow silk. The scarf is hand-painted in colors to match the girde and covers the entire back of the bodice as well as the arms, the ends trailing on the ground at the front.

These scarfs are particularly effective when made of metallic lace or of lace dyed in a color to match the foundation. The use of lace lends a picturesque touch to the boudoir gown, and designers have been quick to take advantage of this. Aside from the scarf, lace may be introduced in a yoke, sleeves, cuffs or godet panels.

Over-Neatness Causes Agony in Some Homes

There is a woman who prides herself on being such a flawless housekeeper. It is true that she makes life a burden for her family and friends, and no one really likes her, but that signifies nothing when she reflects that her house is as neat as wax. Do you suppose for a moment that she would allow her husband and children to enter by the front door? No—a thousand times, no. That front hall is in perfect condition, and—someone might call. If that someone should chance to be a woman, she wanted to show her a thing or two and make her feel small. What her own husband and children think doesn't matter. They have always to enter at the back door, and to be sure their feet are well dusted before entering.

None of her family loved her—they couldn't—but always had a cringing, quaky feeling when they came home. Her will is law. Better to die than drop a speck of anything greasy on the immaculate floor, or spill anything on that sacred table linen.

With her order is life itself. Neatness is her fetish, before whom she worships every moment of her life. She has a certain day for everything, and the mountains must be removed, and the sun change its course, before she would change her day for any duty. When a friend asks her if she is going on Friday afternoon to that lecture on "How to Make a Home Happy," she replies icily, "I go anywhere on Friday, when that is my sweeping-day. Well, I guess not!"

If she comes in and finds a chair a little out of the position in which she has placed it she always flies into a rage. If a book is not at a certain angle or a newspaper not folded correctly it makes her furious.

She is always trying to think of some corner left uncleaned, and worrying for fear her bread will not rise on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

For church or society she has no time. She hates to go out because she always sees so many things that are not straight, and then she does not care to mingle with women who are not neat housekeepers: women who are foolish enough to enjoy life and do not care a rap whether the table cover is at the right angle or not; whose happy children and husband come rushing in at the sacred front door any time they wish, regardless of clean floors and carpets.

Care of Books. Books kept in glass-front bookcases are subject to attacks from bookworms, moths, etc. In greater degree than if on open shelves. To preserve your books from these pests sprinkle shelves occasionally, say once every six months, with half an ounce of camphor, half an ounce of powdered bitter apple (well mixed together). Do not keep books in a very warm room. Gas light affects them very much. Russia leather bindings is particular.

Silhouette. For tailored suits and sports costumes the silhouette for the season is to be as straight as "It has been in past seasons, with the exception of the increased tendency to introduce the circular flounce or the ripple side.

Most Troublesome Pest in Orchards

Oyster-Shell Scale Attacks Apple and Other Fruit Trees.

The commonest, most wide spread and best-known scale insect in the United States attacking not only apple and other orchard trees but about 30 different kinds of shade trees, is the oyster-shell scale, so called because the form of the adult female scale is not unlike that of an oyster shell.

Life History of Scale. The life history of the oyster-shell scale may be used as an illustration for the whole group. The insects pass the winter as eggs under the old female scales, these eggs having been laid the preceding fall. The eggs are very tiny, white, and vary from 80 to 100 in number. In the spring from middle May to middle June, these eggs hatch into young scale insects. The newly hatched young scales are tiny, six-legged, active creatures. Soon after hatching they leave the old mother scale and wander away in search of the new and tender growths of the tree.

They may spread not only by crawling, but by being carried on the bodies of insects or feet of birds. When they have finally settled down they insert their beaks into the tree and begin drawing out sap. They soon lose their legs and antennae and their bodies become covered with white, waxy fibers. These fibers soon mat down to form the scale covering. As the insect grows the scale gradually assumes its characteristic oyster-shell shape, within which the legless, eyeless insect is to be found.

Change into Flies. The male scale insects start out like the female scale insects, but when they have formed a scale and made partial growth they change into tiny winged flies which emerge from under the scales.

The control of scale insects of all kinds is chiefly by spraying, and this operation may be carried on at two entirely different periods of the year and for two entirely different purposes. In one case the spraying is done when the trees are not in foliage, that is, in the late autumn or early spring, and these sprays are known as dormant sprays because of the dormant condition of the trees.

Good Sires Increase Herd Production Rapidly

Further proof of the manner in which a producing dairy herd may be built up by using pure bred dairy bulls on common cows is afforded by the results of a several years' breeding experiment conducted at the South Dakota experiment station. The foundation cows of the experiment represented a blending of Hereford and Shorthorn blood, each cow being sired by a pure bred beef bull and out of a grade cow. Each of the foundation cows was bred repeatedly to the dairy herd bulls in the station herd and the heifers were retained and bred to the dairy bulls, thus producing second generation crosses which had 75 per cent dairy blood. Milk and butterfat records were kept for each lactation period of the grade foundation cows and their graded-off offspring.

The average yearly production of the grade beef cows was found to be 4,155 pounds of milk and 170 pounds of butterfat. The first generation heifers produced by these cows to the service of pure bred dairy sires made records averaging 6,707 pounds of milk and 260 pounds of fat. The first cross of dairy blood therefore brought an increase of 2,552 pounds of milk and 90 pounds of butterfat in each heifer's yearly production. Expressed in per cent, the first cross heifers produced 61 per cent more milk and 52 per cent more butterfat than their dams.

Wheat Is Excellent Feed for Chicks and Layers

Wheat is a good feed for young chickens and laying hens and may be fed with profit when the price is low, says D. C. Kennard, associate in animal industry, Ohio experiment station.

The grain mixture may be of equal parts of corn and wheat, and the mash of 4 parts ground corn, 4 of medium ground wheat, and 2 of high-grade meat scraps or tankage.

If it is desired to use oats, the mixture suggested is corn 4, wheat 4, and oats 2 parts, and a mash of ground corn 3 parts, medium ground wheat 3, finely-ground oats 2 and meat scraps or tankage 2 parts.

Any change of feed for laying hens should be made gradually. It was pointed out, as a sudden change may seriously affect egg production.

Thunderstorm Doesn't Sour Cream, Says Iowa

Folks who are trying to deliver sweet cream to their creameries complain now and then that thunderstorms sour the cream.

The dairy department at Iowa State college says that a thunderstorm will have no effect on cream that is properly kept at a low temperature. For example, if milk and cream are kept in cans in a cooling tank through which flows all water pumped for the live stock, a thunderstorm will not affect either of them. The installation of such a cooling tank is not difficult nor very expensive and it will make possible added income from the dairy herd through a better price for sweet cream.

Hard Spring Wheat Resistant to Stem Rust

Variety Known as Kota Has Been Developed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A hard red spring wheat that is resistant to the principal forms of black stem rust has been developed in North Dakota by the United States Department of Agriculture and the North Dakota agricultural experiment station. This wheat was first introduced from Russia in 1903 by Prof. H. L. Bolley, and is now known as Kota. About 6,000 acres of Kota wheat were grown in 1922, and much more this year.

The particular virtue of Kota wheat is its resistance to the black stem rust which is general throughout the hard red spring wheat region. Its rust resistance was not determined until after the great rust epidemic of 1919. It is also fairly resistant to drought and outyields Marquis in North Dakota, averaging nearly three bushels more per acre during the past five years. It is a bearded wheat which ripens about as early as Marquis. In milling and baking experiments conducted independently by the Department of Agriculture and the North Dakota experiment station, Kota wheat has shown results nearly equal to those obtained with Marquis.

Experiments with Kota wheat have been carried on in a number of other states as well as in North Dakota, and the wheat was found best adapted to the district where durum wheat is extensively grown. Kota wheat could replace much of the durum wheat now grown in eastern North Dakota and South Dakota with profit to both the hard red spring and the durum wheat industries, department workers believe. This variety is recommended for North Dakota and adjacent portions of neighboring states.

Every Dairyman Should Know Profitable Cows

"Every owner of dairy cows should know if his cows are giving enough milk or butterfat to make a profit over the cost of feed," says A. C. Baer, professor of dairying at Oklahoma A. and M. college. "A scale to weigh the milk in the barn can be bought for $4. It takes only a few minutes a day extra time to weigh the milk from each cow and write the weight on a milk sheet tacked up in the barn. Once a month a sample of milk can be tested. Any creamery, ice cream factory, or cream station will usually be glad to do this testing. Every school house can be equipped with a tester at very little expense and the boys at school can do the testing."

"A profitable cow should produce 3,000 pounds of milk or 200 pounds of butterfat in 300 days. Are your cows all profitable? Why not find out? Is milking dairy cows a business proposition with you? If so, why not apply business methods? Write the dairy department, Oklahoma A. and M. college for information."

Soy Beans and Corn Are Well Balanced Hog Feed

Some ask why soy beans and corn make economical gains on swine. The reason is that they are a well-balanced ration, soy beans showing a high analysis in the nutrients in which corn is deficient. For example, soy beans have more than four times as much digestible crude protein as corn, while corn has more than 2½ times as much digestible carbohydrates as soy beans. In other words, one of these feeds is strong where the other is weak and vice versa.

Culling Should Not Be Done at Certain Times

Culling is a constant work in the poultry yard. It should not be relegated to certain periods of the year; it takes too long to stop the appetites of the surplus cockerels and the culls. The fellow who waits until fall to sell the culls is going to lose money two ways—in the extra feed he has fed, and in the lower price paid, due to glutted market. Besides, fowls sold for table use at the right time always bring better prices than those which have been held so long that the flesh is tough.

Immense Loss Caused by Insect Attacks on Trees

Foresters and entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture declare that the losses caused by insect attacks upon living trees and crude, finished, and utilized forest products amount to $130,000,000 annually. A recent report touching upon this and other forestry subjects declares that these vast losses clearly emphasize the need for educational work and the development of systematic control measures which now are woefully inadequate.

Not Difficult Matter to Produce Good Chickens

There isn't any mystery in the poultry business. The essentials of it can be summed up in a few phrases: Breed 'em, feed 'em, keep 'em clean, and don't crowd 'em. Of course, you can write books about breeds and feeds, sanitation and shelter. But it's all just common sense. Farm chickens, which have plenty of range, are practically no trouble after they get three weeks old. They balance their own rations, and look after themselves in the summer time.

"What are you doing there?" the puzzled officer inquired.

"Well, you see, colonel, Maguire here can't read, and he got a letter from his girl this afternoon, so I am reading it to him."

"And you, Maguire, what in the world are you doing?"

"Oh, sir, I'm stopping up his ears. I don't mind his reading my letters, but I don't want him to hear what she's written."

Periscopes for Cars. English street railway cars, or trams they call them, are double-deckers, with seats on the roof, in most towns. Now they are being fitted with a new type of shaftless periscope for "searching" top decks. Experiments made recently have been successful, and there is little doubt about the device coming into general use. It is a mirror fixed at each end of a car, and viewed from the stairway. It enables the conductor to see what is happening on deck without having to go upstairs. From the footboard the conductor can always note if there is any movement on the high level gangway as halting points are approached, and thus time is saved and scrambling avoided.

Essential to Profitable Farming

The Utility Express Truck $550 Chassis Only f. o. b. Flint, Mich.
Fits any Standard Truck Body

No business can succeed unless its product is profitably sold. Most farms have a fine production department but no sales department. They grow crops and stock bought by buyers who set the price.

One of the chief reasons for this unprofitable situation is the average farmer's poor facilities for moving his crops or stock to the place where he can sell or ship to the best advantage. Because of the time and expense of horse delivery millions of dollars worth of produce spoils annually on American farms. The saving of this waste would, in many cases, change a losing farm to a money-maker.

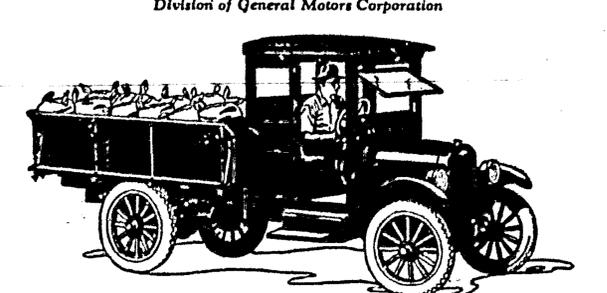

This low-priced, high-grade, reliable truck was designed as a money-saver and money-maker for farmers and business houses needing fast low-cost haulage of heavy or bulky goods. It fits any standard type of ton truck body. Ask any Chevrolet dealer for price of the style of body you require.

Save Highway Building

FROM VANCOUVER, British Columbia, to Los Angeles, there exists now the longest paved highway in the world—1478 miles.

This paved highway is of three kinds, cement concrete, combination of cement, concrete and asphalt, and asphalt concrete.

It is conceded that cement concrete is fine for a foundation, but as a wearing surface it will not stand the impact of heavy trucks.

About two-thirds of the north and south Pacific highway is of various forms of asphalt, some of pure asphalt, some asphalt surfaced.

Asphaltic concrete or bitulithic comprises a large part of the entire pavement on account of its having a waterproof cushion.

While the coast states do not suffer so much from frost deterioration of hard surface pavements, they mostly demand waterproofing.

It is a remarkable fact that repair work on cement concrete roads and resurfacing worn surfaces is all done with asphaltic materials.

Out of the millions spent on hard surface highways and streets by cities, counties, states and nation, sane progress is being made.

The resilient cushion highway, as against the rigid types, and the waterproof wearing surfaces easily replaced are growing in favor.

Taxpayers learn their lessons only in the dear school of experience.

THE LINCOLN STATE BANK

CAPITAL
$25,000.00

SURPLUS
$17,500.00

CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO.

October 8, 1923

The officers and directors of the Lincoln State Bank desire its customers and friends to know that this bank is not in any manner whatever connected with any other bank - that it is absolutely independent.

In the early part of March, the stockholders of this bank acquired by purchase all of its stock held by Exchange Bank interests, paying therefor $150.00 for every $100.00 of stock purchased, thus gaining entire and complete control.

These statements are not made with the intention of injury to others, but for the purpose of informing those interested in the conduct of the affairs of this bank.

We thank our friends and the people of Lincoln County for the confidence and patronage which they have given us, and desire to assure them that this institution will continue to be conducted along conservative lines, and that we shall be glad to extend to them every courtesy which is in keeping with safe banking principles.

Yours very truly,

J. B. French, President.
A. J. Rolland, Vice President.
E. D. Boone, Cashier.

No. 3337
In the District Court, State of New Mexico, County of Lincoln.

The First National Bank of Carrizozo,
a Corporation, Plaintiff, vs. B. D. Zumwalt and May Zumwalt, Defendants.
You, the above named defendants, and each of you, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced and is now pending against you, and each of you, in the above entitled court and cause, and between the parties therein named, the objects of which are to foreclose a certain chattel mortgage executed by the defendants, B. D.
Zumwalt and May Zumwalt, on March 12, 1923, to the plaintiff, to secure the payment of two promissory notes, more particularly described in plaintiff's complaint, which said chattel mortgage was filed for registration in the office of the County Clerk of Lincoln County,
New Mexico, the 18th day of March, 1923, and numbered 7708; and to foreclose the lien of said chattel mortgage upon the property described therein, being the entire herd of cattle of the defendants, increase and additions; and also to foreclose a certain mortgage deed executed by said defendants, on the 12th day of March, 1923, to the plaintiff, to secure the payment of said two promissory notes, and to foreclose the lien of said mortgage deed upon the real estate, situate in the County of Lincoln, State of New Mexico, to-wit:

The southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter;
east half of the southeast quarter; south half of the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter; south half of the north half of the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter, all in section eighteen, township nine south of range thirteen east of the New Mexico principal meridian, New Mexico, containing 120 acres.

You and each of you are further notified that L. R. Hust has been appointed Receiver of said mortgaged chattels and real estate. You and each of you are further notified that unless you enter your appearance in said cause on or before the 24th day of November, 1923, judgment will be entered in said cause against you by default, and plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief prayed for in its complaint, and the chattels and premises above described will be sold, and the proceeds arising from such sale will be applied upon the indebtedness above mentioned.

A. H. Hudspeth, postoffice address
Carrizozo, New Mexico, is the attorney for the plaintiff.

THE WORLD IN PARAGRAPHS

A BRIEF RECORD OF PASSING EVENTS IN THIS AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES

IN LATE DISPATCHES

DOINGS AND HAPPENINGS THAT MARK THE PROGRESS OF THE AGE

WESTERN

In one of the greatest races ever staged in the Western League, Oklahoma City won the 1923 championship when Tulsa, their close rival, dropped the double-header to Omaha, while the Indians were idle with Denver because of wet grounds.

Steve Yovanovich, "king" of the Yovanovich tribe of gypsies, renounced his crown in Los Angeles a few minutes before the time set for his coronation. He announced his conversion to the Christian religion. His action was taken in the Angelus temple in Los Angeles, where hundreds had gathered to see him crowned king of all the American Gypsies.

J. Frank Norfleet of Hale Center, Texas, who for the last four years has devoted practically his entire time to seeking out the men who fled him out of $40,000 in Fort Worth, Texas, in November, 1919, completed his work, as the last of the alleged bankmen is now in the toils of the law. M. P. Hunt, a salesman of Salt Lake City just at present, but formerly known as W. B. Spencer, of Texas, is the man identified by Norfleet as the last of the bankmen.

The ninth Arizona Legislature will not be called into extraordinary session for some time, "at least not for thirty days," says George W. P. Hunt and in Phoenix upon his return from Washington where he headed an Arizona delegation which presented a state plan for development of the Colorado river. The governor asserted he believed the Arizona delegates made progress at the Washington conference with the federal power commission, for the development of the river under the "Arizona plan" of state ownership.

A Colworth, Jr. general passenger agent of the Burlington at Omaha, who was summoned from a tour of his territory to the scene of the wreck near Casper, made the following statement: "The wreck was one of those frightful affairs which, regrettably, cannot be prevented by any amount of precaution. It is a matter of definite record that about 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening the section foreman not only walked over, but climbed under and examined that bridge as a part of his regular duties. Everything at that time was all right, and the water was only about two feet deep in Cote creek. The accident happened less than two hours later, and the creek was then a raging torrent, eighteen to twenty feet deep. A local cloudburst to the north at about that time can be the only explanation to such a sudden change of situation."

WASHINGTON

Declaration that the child labor question is the vital one of the hour was emphasized by President Samuel Gompers in his annual address at the opening of the forty-third annual convention of the American Federation of Labor at Portland, Ore. He discussed this question before he turned his attention to "reds" and radicals.

Revelation of the United States Grain Corporation, with authority to purchase 200,000,000 bushels of American wheat in the open market is the plan most favored by the Coolidge administration for the relief of the agricultural industry. It was learned in Washington. The purchase price would be $1.30 a bushel if the plan is finally adopted.

Treasury operation during September resulted in a net decrease in the public debt of $74,414,370, leaving the government's total outstanding obligations at $22,125,014,247. The figures compiled in Washington revealed also that the general fund which had sunk to $22,454,238 at the end of August, had grown during September to $22,747,012.

Delegates from forty-two nations, including scientists, public health officials and manufacturers of dairy products and machinery, assembled in Washington for the opening session of the World's Dairy Congress. Discussion by experts of the Department of Agriculture of progress in various phases of the industry occupied much of the program for the two days' session.

FOREIGN

A new record for gliders was established in Berlin when a Betsch machine covered more than nineteen kilometers (about ten miles) before it grounded.

The allied occupation of Constantinople formally ended a few days ago. For weeks transports have been evacuating troops and material, while one by one the warships have slipped away.

Baron Ijuni, the new premier of Japan, is quoted by the Tokio Hochi as saying the cabinet favors reopening negotiations with soviet Russia as soon as possible with a view to resuming relations with that country.

Young Hitlerites (Bavarian Fascists) invaded a synagogue in Munich, maltreating aged Jews who were at worship. Passersby in the streets were beaten when they refused to take off their hats to the Fascists. The bands roved through the streets singing antisemitic songs and jeering the Jews.

An impressive farewell was given to David Lloyd George as he left London for a six weeks' tour of Canada and the United States. A large crowd of admirers and former cabinet associates assembled at the Waterloo station, and cheered him with a spontaneity and enthusiasm reminiscent of the days of his premiership.

American Red Cross officials engaged in relief work in Tokio estimated 225,000 persons were killed, approximately 450,000 injured and about 2,000,000 made wholly or partially destitute in Tokio. Yokohama and vicinity by the earthquake. High praise was given to Japanese officials for their co-operation.

Four hundred Nationalists and twelve ring-leaders who seized the fortresses at Kuestrin have all been arrested by reichswehr. It was officially announced in Berlin. After being disarmed they were locked up in the fortress which they had seized. The official statement placed the Nationalists' casualties as one dead and several wounded.

A few nights ago in London it took George Carpentier, the French fighter, just about twenty seconds to put the quietus on the championship aspirations of Joe Beckett, who holds the heavyweight title in Great Britain. Carpentier used both fists and rights in a brief series of exchanges, and Beckett remained on the floor for the final count.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, speaking at Northampton, England, declared that his conference with Premier Poincare in Paris last week had had the effect of restoring the former good relations between France and Great Britain. The atmosphere of restraint and almost of distrust, that prevailed between the two countries when the present British government came into office has been changed, he said, into one of mutual confidence.

GENERAL

Oklahoma voters repudiated Gov. J. C. Walton by authorizing the Legislature to conduct a special session to investigate actions of the state's executive.

S. K. Lesky of Ellsworth, Kan., has filed suit in United States District Court at Muskogee, Okla., against the Ku Klux Klan, asking $100,000 damages for injuries he said he incurred when he was tarred and feathered in Tulsa county in July of last year.

One of the outstanding features of the annual convention of the American Mining Congress in Milwaukee was the presentation by William C. Russell, mining engineer of Denver, on behalf of United States Senator Lawrence C. Phipps of Colorado, of a paper on "The Potentialities of the Oil Shale Industry." Senator Phipps stated Colorado alone contains 800,000 acres of oil shale, capable of producing 47,500,000,000 barrels of oil. San Francisco was selected as the place of meeting of the twenty-seventh annual convention at the board of directors' meeting of the congress.

In addition to the Missouri hearing, to be held at St. Louis, Oct. 8, upon the proposed stock issue and sale of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railway Company of Colorado, a hearing also will be held in Kansas City, Oct. 6, according to an announcement made at Jefferson City by Attorney General Jesse W. Barrett of Missouri. Tying other-necked vandals and mistreating them for over an hour, three masked bandits forced James C. Gunning and his two daughters at Duquoin, Ill., to reveal the place of concealment of jewels valued at $1,500. The robbers escaped from the Gunning home with the valuables, leaving Mr. Gunning and the two girls in a serious condition.

Wage increases requests for restoration of schedules in effect before the approximately 12 1/2 per cent reduction handed down by the United States railroad labor board on July 1, 1921, has been presented to many railroads throughout the country by representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, whose contracts expired Oct. 1.

One woman is dead, her daughter probably fatally injured, and another daughter less seriously injured from a fire police say resulted from the explosion of a moonshining still in a Chicago apartment house. Mrs. Pasquale Rodriguez was killed. Carmen, 9 years old, was also killed. Josephine, another daughter, was painfully burned. Heroic work of firemen in carrying the fire victims from the blazing building resulted in citations for bravery for Martin Connor, John Ryan, Chester Sullivan and Daniel Walsh.

GERMAN CABINET HAS RESIGNED

REICHTAG LEADERS BLAME FRENCH PREMIER FOR FALL OF GOVERNMENT

POINCAIRE IS BLAMED

PRESIDENT EBERT URGES CHANCELLOR STRESEMANN TO SUMMON NEW MINISTRY

Berlin.—Dr. Gustav Stresemann and the members of his ministry have resigned from office. President Ebert has called upon the retiring chancellor to form a new cabinet.

The Stresemann government retired from office with the relinquishing of passive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland as its only active accomplishment to its credit. While criticism of its usefulness on this score would seem to be not entirely fair, in view of the hopelessly tangled legacy assumed by it as the successor of the Cuno ministry, the Stresemann coalition in its political composition was such as to preclude, in the long run, any hope of productiveness in the nature of financial and economic reforms on account of the conflicting currents which hampered its deliberations.

With a theoretical Socialist in the ministry of finance and an industrial party man as minister of economics, one chronic point of friction was promptly established. It led to the retirement of Hans von Raumer, who held the latter post as he had apparently wearied of carrying on a running debate with Dr. Hilffending on financial and economic dogmas.

This was only one of the several minor paradoxes with which the Stresemann ministry was handicapped. The chancellor, whose well known optimism was praised as a useful asset when he assumed office, was unable to overcome the Slayphian task of getting an economically and politically moribund Germany back on its feet.

M. Poincare, the French premier, is blamed by the German government and the Reichstag leaders for the collapse of Chancellor Stresemann's coalition government. If Poincare had given the slightest indication of a reciprocal abandonment of passive resistance, official and political quarters believe that Dr. Stresemann's position would have been measurably strengthened, inasmuch as it would have spared the nationalist onslaught, which not only gained momentum through unconditional Ruhr surrender, but also from the swiftly collapsing internal situation.

Both factors sufficed to knock the prop from under the cabinet, whose advent as a "big coalition government" was acclaimed less than seven weeks ago as presaging internal reconstruction, as well as progress in the foreign situation.

As the Socialist members of the Reichstag rejected by a vote of 61 to 54 the compromise proposed by Chancellor Stresemann on the mooted points of the eight-hour law and modification of the authorization law, his four members in the cabinet, Dr. Hilffending, minister of finance; Schmidt reconstruction; Soliman, interior, and Badbruch, justice, apprised the chancellor of their retirement, whereupon the members of the cabinet for a decisive session.

While a government without popular representation as now reflected in the Reichstag would ordinarily be viewed as a return to an ultra-czaristic regime, there is enough sentiment abroad in the land to support such an innovation in view of the nation's present plight.

Chicago Mystery Bandit Freed

Chicago.—Fred G. Thompson, who admitted being the husband of one woman while he lived as the wife of another man, was found not guilty of the murder of Richard Tesmer, wealthy realtor shot in a holdup, by a jury here. The defendant had been arrested by police on a tip that a man dressing repeatedly as a woman was seen going in and out of the apartment of Frank Carrick. This tip came shortly after the fatal shooting of Tesmer at the hands of a "smiling woman bandit."

Farm Marketing Bodies Approved

Washington.—President Coolidge has set in motion a plan designed to ameliorate agricultural depression. He designated Managing Director Meyer and Director Mondell, of the War Finance Corporation, to proceed into the Northwest immediately and assist in the formation of co-operative marketing associations, promotion of which the President believes will result in direct benefit.

John F. Campion Hurlled to Death

Denver.—John F. Campion, 23, a leading figure in Denver's social and business life, was instantly killed when his automobile skidded and turned over, at the bridge over the Arkansas river near Snowden, Colo., nine miles south of Leadville. Huntley McDonald, and Henry Julen, who were riding with him, escaped death. Campion was driving and had just crossed the state bridge near Snowden when the car skidded and plunged over the embankment.

The annual convention of the Odd Fellows and the Rebekah assembly will be held in Las Vegas October 8, 9, and 10, and it is expected that large delegations from the 40 lodges in the state will attend. The Duke City lodge will bring a band of 23 pieces.

C. H. Black, head of the Black Elevator Company, of Clayton, reports that the broom corn crop of Union county will run about 40 per cent this year. Matze is the only crop in the county that will reach anywhere near normal and this is estimated at about 85 per cent.

Four officials of the defunct McKinley County Bank were indicted by the grand jury at Gallup on charges in connection with the failure of the bank August 20. Those indicted are: T. F. Smalling, president; Sam Bushman, vice president; H. V. Blickensdorfer, cashier and C. C. Manning, a director.

An extension of the Navajo reservation in northwestern New Mexico is planned to take in lands in the Crownpoint region, once granted the tribe years ago but later withdrawn—in two sections, the first in 1908 and the second in 1911—according to former Gov. H. J. Hagerman, United States commissioner for the Navajo tribe.

Prospects for an interesting and effective football season for the New Mexico Normal university are excellent, according to Coach Nell W. Mounts who this year succeeds Arnold H. Miller as athletic director. A number of Coach Miller's last year's stellar men are back, both in high school and college, and Coach Mounts has announced that he will put two teams in the field for the first time in the history of the Normal—one a college aggregation and the other high school. Earl Hopping, high-power right half for the Normal high last year, captains this year's eleven.

The lower Pecos valley's cotton crop is estimated to be worth 3 million, according to State Land Commissioner, Justiniano Baca. The east side looks prosperous, according to Mr. Baca. The bumper cotton crop is not the only indication. The alfalfa crop is big. The range is in good condition.

The state game commission has established a refuge on the north side of the Burro mountains of about 10,000 acres, which includes the Ferguson and Sibus ranches. A small herd of deer and a few wild turkey are known to exist in this locality which will eventually increase so as to provide a considerable amount of hunting in the Burros.

Two checks, amounting to almost $60,000 were received at the head offices of the Forest service for use on the highways and trails. This is the revenue from district number 3 for the past year. While plans for the improvement of the roads have been completed it is likely that little will be done until in the spring when the weather will be better for this kind of work. The first check for $17,804.75 was from New Mexico, and the others for $41,693.90 came from Arizona.

The forest ranger examination is to be given on October 23 to qualified applicants between the ages of 21 and 35 at Clifton, Flagstaff, Holbrook, Phoenix, Prescott, Safford, Springerville, Tucson and Williams, Arizona and at Alamogordo, Albuquerque, Magdalena, Santa Fe, Silver City and Taos, New Mexico according to an announcement of the United States Civil Service Commission. The examination is given to fill vacancies in the position of forest ranger in the forest service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Relief When Other Medicines Failed

Winston-Salem, N. C.—"I was weak and run-down and had trouble with my side. I had been taking medicine for a long time and nothing seemed to do me any good. My husband went to the drug store and he said to me, 'I want the best medicine you have for women's troubles.' He gave me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me. In a short time I was able to do my housework, and now I am not only able to do every bit of that and washing and ironing, but I help my husband at the store and feel good all the time."—Mrs. L. K. MYERS, 1409 E. 14th St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Feels New Life and Strength Keene, N. H.—"I was weak and run-down and had backache and all sorts of troubles which women have. I found great relief when taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am able to do my work and feel new life and strength from the Vegetable Compound. I am doing all I can to advertise it."—Mrs. A. F. HAMMOND, 72 Carpenter Street, Keene, N. H.

Suicides. About 10,000 Americans committed suicide last year, according to insurance statisticians. It compares with around 10,500 murders. The suicide rate was 15 out of every 1,000 population. Figuring it on the basis of lifetimes, suicide apparently ends about a life out of every 150. It is a futile attempt to escape from the unescapable, for we take our troubles with us when we pass over.

UNCLE SAM WILL CHECK IN-COME TAX RETURNS FOR 1922

Denver.—Uncle Sam will commence on Oct. 1 to check up on his citizens in Colorado who made income tax returns for 1922.

On that date, a large force of field deputies will commence investigation of the returns made by all citizens who earned less than $5,000 for 1922.

Their probe will be based on the information furnished the internal revenue service by employers and others in explaining moneys paid out.

Howbert's office force has been working night and day for the past several weeks in an endeavor to have this information consolidated and in shape for the field examiners by the beginning of October.

Based on his estimate on the results obtained in previous years, Howbert forecast that at least 10 per cent of the 60,000 returns filed for 1922 would be found incorrect.

Severe penalties may be imposed on citizens who have deliberately lied about their income or who have failed to make returns when earning the amount of money calling for one.

Denver.—Courts incompetent to try mining litigation cases, unjust mining taxes and the passing of the old prospector because the state neglected to extend him aid.

Lower Freight Rates for Colorado Denver.—Lower freight rates for certain Colorado manufactured products into the eastern consuming markets just have been won.

Minneapolis.—Estimates by the department of Agriculture "give every reason to believe that the 1923 farm income will exceed that of 1922 from a half billion to a billion dollars.

Atlantic, Iowa.—The benefit of using pure bred bulls in breeding North Park, Colo., cattle, was shown here when forty loads of yearlings, including heifers and steers, sold for top prices at the first co-operative cattle sale.

London.—Hundreds of thousands of acres of Scottish moors and scores of the most stately Scottish homes have been rented at fabulous prices by wealthy Americans and Brits.

Stately Houses in Demand as Grouse Season Opens. Many members of parliament have also taken "shootings" and agents report that nearly all the best estates have been taken at good rents.

Prices for the season are higher than last year, according to the agents. They attribute this to the high cost of labor and upkeep during the empty season.

Some of the smaller "shootings" can be had for $500 a month, but, as a whole, Scotland is divided into large estates and the cost of these runs into something over five figures.

They have taken over these famous old houses complete for two or three months, with all their staffs and furniture, lock, stock and barrel.

Millionaire Weds Wealthy Woman Who Jilted Him Years Ago Because He Was Poor.

Lincoln, Neb.—Miss Eva Thompson, eldest of David Eugene Thompson, one of Lincoln's few millionaires and former ambassador to Mexico and to Brazil, sprang a surprise on all her friends recently by going to Denver and there marrying her girlhood sweetheart, Edwin A. Brown, a millionaire.

Engaged 40 Years Ago. Nearly forty years ago Brown and Miss Thompson were engaged to be married, but Brown was then poor and his suit was frowned upon by members of her family.

Went into Business. When she heard the news Miss Thompson determined never to wed, and turned to a business life.

Kansas Woman Makes Farm Pay

Raises Hogs, Hens, Cattle and Wheat and Has Valuable Ranch.

Hutchinson, Kan.—Here's a Kansas woman farmer who is making good with a big farm.

Seven years ago Mr. J. E. Ford of Sanford, in this state was suddenly left a widow with a 400-acre farm, a seven-year-old boy, a $3,000 mortgage and no experience as a farmer.

She got right out in the field, did as much physical work as a man, plowed and she listed. She cut wheat and looked after the threshing.

Mr. Ford died late in the summer, seven years ago. He had already plowed up the land for wheat, but the seedling had not been done.

"I raised hogs four years until the drop in price came, and then I quit," she says. "I made money on them all except one year, when I broke even."

Secret of Her Success. Recently the woman farmer has rented 240 acres of her land and is now operating but 160 acres herself.

Girl Breaks Her Arm Saving Drowning Boy

St. Paul, Minn.—With one arm broken at the wrist, Miss Sylvia Rosenthal, twenty-five years old, swam several hundred feet and rescued an eleven-year-old boy in White Bear lake.

The boy, a son of Dr. and Mrs. John Parker of New York, was knocked unconscious by a paddle when his canoe capsized.

Disregarding her own danger, she plunged into the water and finally brought the boy to the surface, struggling in his frantic grasp.

Out of his experience rose a desire to tell the world about them, and he turned author. Two of the best known of these books are "Broke," and "The Man Without a Dime."

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BARNYARD NOISE

"Shriek, shriek," said Mrs. Goose. "Shriek, shriek," yelled Mr. Gander.

"That was a foolish thing to do," said Mrs. White Hen, when Miss Brown Hen came back again.

"You were perfectly safe on this side of the road and you went away out of your way to rush across to the other," Mrs. White Hen added.

"I forgot that I was safe," said Miss Brown Hen. "I heard the tooting of that horn and I thought I must rush. That was my own idea."

"Well, I can't blame you much, if at all," said Mrs. White Hen. "That is the sort of thing I'd do too."

By this time Miss Fidgety Fashionable Hen had eaten the nice juicy worm for she had been the first to get to it and Red Top had said, "First come, first served."

So he had acted as he had said he would and had given the worm to the one who had reached him first.

"Cackle, cackle," said Miss Red Hen. "I am all a-flutter. There is going to be a barnyard concert tomorrow and I am going to sing a solo."

"Were you asked to sing a solo?" asked Miss Fidgety Fashionable Hen. "No," admitted Miss Red Hen, "but I shall take my music along with me. Then when some one says, 'Dear Miss Hen, won't you please sing?' I shall say I am quite out of practice, and really I don't believe I can, and that had I known I would be called upon I would have brought along a song or two."

"And then when I am urged still harder I shall say, 'Dear me, dear me, now isn't this fortunate? I've just discovered that under my right wing is a piece or two of music which I must have put there without thinking.'"

"That is what I shall say," "Who are getting up the concert?" asked Red Top.

"The Ducks," said Miss Red Hen. "Well, I'm glad to know about it," said Red Top, "for I shall be prepared myself to crow."

"I know a splendid early morning bugle song which I made up myself not long ago, and it goes like this."

Red Top got upon a stump and crowed this little song:

Cock-a-doodle-do. This I say to you, Cock-a-doodle-do. I also say this too There's nothing very new In my cock-a-doodle-do.

But oh how very few Can cock-a-doodle-do. It is the rooster's art. From it he'll never part. Cock-a-doodle-do. Cock-a-doodle-do. Well, the word got around the barnyard that there was going to be an entertainment and a concert the following day, and all the animals except the geese began practicing songs so they'd be all ready if they were called upon, and they did indeed hope they would be called upon.

And they all saw to it that they were called upon. Maybe you would have said the barnyard concert was a very queer kind of a concert, but one thing they all did do—they all made a terrific barnyard noise.

So it was voted a great success!

She Had Good Reason. "Bridget, has Johnnie come from school yet?" "Yes, sir." "Have you seen him?" "No, sir." "Then how do you know he's home?" "Cause the cat's hidden under the stove."

Making the Grade. A small boy went to school for the first time. He came home and was questioned as to his experiences. "Nothing much happened," he said. "There was a woman there who wanted to know how to spell cat, and I told her."

LOCAL AND PERSONAL MENTION

W. J. Langston came in from Albuquerque this morning to stay for the winter. Good enough!

W. S. Armstrong, of Coyote, was a visitor here on Monday.

Mrs. W. H. Fisher, of the Fisher Lumber Company, of Capitan, was a visitor here on Monday. Mrs. Fisher sells lumber for the building of mountain residences, and reports business good in her locality.

Mrs. J. M. Rice and daughter Charlotte, of Parsons, were Carrizo visitors on Tuesday.

Miss Helen Rice, of Parsons, returned this week from a pleasant visit with friends at Socorro.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Finley arrived here last Saturday from their ranch home near Valentine, Texas, and after spending two days with old Carrizo friends, left Monday evening on their return trip and stop-over at several places to visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellsworth, of Grand Rapids, Mich., are the proud parents of a nine-pound baby girl, born to them on October 10. Mrs. Ellsworth is a daughter of County Commissioner Robert G. Taylor.

Mrs. W. J. Ayers, who has been suffering from a serious infection in one of her hands, is reported to be improving at her ranch home south of here.

Mrs. Eva Coldren left Tuesday for Salt Lake City, Utah, to join her son Samuel, who is engaged in mining engineering at Garfield, a short distance from the city. Mrs. Coldren will remain in Salt Lake City for the winter season, returning to Carrizo next spring.

The Normans Entertain

Last Saturday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Norman, Mrs. Norman entertained in honor of Miss Leora Taylor. Many games were played, among which was one in which the guests were engaged in a contest over the word "bridges," to ascertain as to how many words could be made from the letters contained in the word. Elmer Eaker and Miss Grace Taylor won the prize.

Refreshments were served by the hostess. Those present were: Josephine Lalone, Leora and Grace Taylor, Charlotte and Lily May Elliott, Irene Russell, Adelaide and Edna Basila, Jesse, Georgia and Stacy Rustin, Mr. and Mrs. Max Taylor, Lorena Dinwiddie, Jeanne Reilly, Marshall Beck, Clinton Branum, Elmer Eaker, Charles Basila, Dayton Herron, Harold Elledge, Albert Lalone and Isaac and Robert Adams.

Novel Irrigating Machine

To create showers of varying intensity over many acres, a novel system of irrigation has been devised by a French inventor. The downpour may be changed from a slight drizzle to a cloudburst at will. Every square foot of area is covered by the artificial showers, the fall being controlled by a single valve. Simple in design, a long steel girder serves as a runway for the arm that distributes the water. To irrigate an area of fifteen acres, a runway is built some 300 feet in length. The sprinkling device consists of two metal arms, which roll up and down the runway, extending at right angles. The water is sprayed from a series of jets which move back and forth across the entire field.--Popular Mechanics.

E. L. Davidson, Land Commissioner, and George Clements, Jr., of Corona, passed through here on Tuesday enroute for Alamogordo on a business trip of a few days, returning home on Thursday.
