PRICE $2.00 THE YEAR

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK

WHO PAYS?

IT VE just been up, at their country place visiting the Simpkinses...

I had met Simpkins at the end of August, and he had told me what a grand the summer had been to him...

The Beta Tau Sigma party, the papers said, had set a new standard for social events in this community...

I wondered who was paying; father-at home getting up early and going to bed late? Sister teaching, or clerking or nursing? Mother going without the new gown or the vacation trip of which she was very much in need?

Parker cut a pretty wide swath last year in college. He had the latest cut, up-to-date clothes; he never misses a good show—or a bad one; if anything was going on he could be found sitting in the front row, and there were unpleasant rumors about his associates...

A letter was read regarding Education Week Nov. 17-23. Pictures by the famous artists, Helen Hyde and James Scott, were on display.

A delightful musical program under the direction of Mrs. McDonald-Haley followed the business session as given below:

Piano solo, "Dance of the Bella," Mrs. Albert Ziegler; Viola solo, "I Love You Truly," Miss Lucy Council.

Reading history and comments on artists, Helen Hyde and James Scott. Song, by the Club.

The hostess served refreshments, assisted by Mesdames McCammon, Rose, and Miss Ella Brickley.

Thanksgiving Rates Made By Railroads

Reduced passenger fares will be put into effect by all California railroads for Thanksgiving Day, according to a joint announcement made today by all lines in the state.

The reduced rate tickets will be sold between all points in California where the one-way fare is $20.00 or less. They will be 52 per cent cheaper than the regular fares.

Tickets will be on sale at all stations from Nov. 25 to 27 with final return limit December 2.

Minutes of the last meeting held on Oct. 13th, were read and approved.

The following bills were audited and allowed for payment.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes A. M. Vega, Marshal's salary for October $100.00; E. P. & S. W. System, Water bill for September $5.98; Lincoln Abstract & Investment Trust, stationery 2.00; P. M. Bailey, Special Marshal duty 4.00; Henry Lutz, Receiver for Light Co., Oct. Light bill $75.00; Jose Apolaca, salary for street work last half of Oct. $5.00; Mountain States Telephone Co., Fire Dept. phone bill $3.75; W. W. Stadtman, Water Clerk's salary for October $5.00; R. H. Taylor, Water Supt. salary for October $40.00; W. W. Stadtman, General clerk's salary and office rent $26.00; B. K. Sweeney, for lamp $24.00.

Total $400.98

MESCALERO INDIANS SELL 1400 STEERS

Fred Crosby, stock superintendent for the Mescalero Indians, is in Alamogordo for several days this week on a visit to the home folks. His son, Christy, is also with him, and several others who have been assisting in the round up of cattle on the agency, are here.

The round up was completed the latter part of last week and 1400 steers were sold to Imperial Valley people mostly. The steers were from two year-olds up and were in fine condition. With a little fattening in the Imperial Valley they will be ready to go to the big city markets.

It is said the range on the Mescalero agency is in fine shape out there is a scarcity of stock water and most of the tanks are empty.—Alamogordo News.

Carrizozo Woman's Club

Mrs. W. W. Stadtman was hostess to the Carrizozo Woman's Club at her home Friday afternoon, Nov. 7 and Mrs. L. A. McCall presided over the meeting.

The Rummage Sale to be held Nov. 21, was discussed and all plans were arranged for the event.

A letter was read regarding Education Week Nov. 17-23. Pictures by the famous artists, Helen Hyde and James Scott, were on display.

Railroad News

Club House Manager P. F. Mudge has returned from a two-weeks visit with his sister, Miss Addie S. Mudge, at St. Joseph, Mo. On his return here, Mr. Mudge presented Carrizozo lodge No. 41 A. F. & A. M. with a portrait of George Washington, as he appeared in the prime of manhood and in full regalia as Worshipful Master of his lodge surrounded by all Masonic emblems. The picture was handed down from one generation to another and had been in the Mudge family nearly seventy years. The Masons responded with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Mudge for the donation.

Operator J. T. Gaines has checked in at Oscura to relieve station agent Burns, who is on his vacation. Mr. and Mrs. Burns will be absent for six weeks visiting relatives in the east.

Engineer Oscar Clouse has been assigned a turn on this district from the A. & S. M.

C. F. Hanson, traveling auditor of the S. P., spent a few days here this week.

Engineer W. W. McLean has been assigned a turn in El Paso.

Mrs. A. W. Depew of El Paso is here this week as a guest of Mrs. J. R. Green. Mrs. Depew is identified in all ladies auxiliaries of the different railroad organizations and while here she will visit with Mesdames T. E. Armstrong, A. V. Swearingen and other ladies with whom she has been connected in the organization work.

Mrs. Henrietta Belknap has returned to her station at Ancho after a pleasant vacation in the east.

Fireman V. T. Springer has been assigned to a turn in El Paso.

Last Saturday morning, No. 3 came in bearing the remains of Mrs. Annie Stuppy, aged 63, "In the Baggage Coach Ahead." Mrs. Stuppy, accompanied by her son and his wife, had been visiting in the east and were on their return trip to their home in California, when near Vaughn, the mother, who was afflicted with heart trouble, succumbed to the ailment. The remains were given proper care here by Undertaker T. E. Kelley and shipped to Los Angeles, accompanied by the son, who waited over for the body.

Spence & Sons shipped 300 cows and 300 calves this week to Wm. Spence at Deming. There will be, with this addition, 13 car loads to be shipped out of Elmendorf, N. M., over the Santa Fe for eastern markets.

Spence & Sons sold 2 car loads of yearling steers to Stratton & Jeffreys which were loaded here and shipped to Kansas pastures.

Fireman George Strauss came in from Frisco last Friday and is again in service here. George tells about visiting Ray Byron, one of our Carrizozo boys, who as one of Uncle Sam's soldiers has been confined in the Letterman Military Hospital, but his many friends at home will be glad to know that he is improving rapidly and made his first down-town trip with George before his departure.

Fort Stanton News

Captain J. B. West is on his vacation at El Paso for a few days and Fort Librarian Wm. Clark, who is also on a vacation is being relieved by Mr. Mitchelmore this week.

Messrs. Jensen and Fernandez were on a shopping trip to Carrizozo last Monday.

Majors Warner, Anderson and families went hunting and returned with well-filled bags of quail. They are planning another trip the latter part of this week on the same quest to Carlsbad. Messrs. Hale, Howard, Shulver and Pulaski, made a good haul on a hunting trip to Roswell last Friday.

Many groups are holding social meetings at the Fort. Mrs. Dr. Anderson gave a delightful bridge party last Tuesday evening.

Miss Taubee, chief nurse, and others will entertain next Saturday; the bridge club is meeting regularly. Dr. and Mrs. Warner are to entertain Dr. and Mrs. Rasmussen and family; Messrs. Byrne, Hendren and others entertained at bridge and dinner Wednesday night. Mr. and Mrs. Kincheloe are entertaining frequently at Radio parties and it is expected that Major and Mrs. Warner will be entertaining in like manner as they have just installed an Atwater and Kent Radio on which they heard concerts as far away as Schenectady, N. Y. and Kilgarry, Canada. It is said to be an excellent set.

Major Fulton, Captain Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Reese, Miss Cummings, all of Roswell, visited the Dr. Rasmussen family and the O. T. Department, also other points of interest at the Fort last Tuesday.

The home of Mrs. Brockwell still continues to be a meeting place for a group of singers among whom are Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs, Mrs. D. C. Parker and daughters, Mr. Mitchellmore and others.

At the basket ball game Sunday between Lincoln and Fort Stanton, the score stood 36 to 0 in favor of Fort Stanton. The dance at Lincoln last Saturday night was a success that has caused much favorable comment. The dance was given by the Women's Athletic Club and the Fort orchestra furnished the music. Coffee and rolls were served and everybody had an excellent time, it is said.

Much gratitude is expressed by the patients for the magazines sent from Rollands Drug Store recently. Any who have magazines to donate to the patients, may leave them at the Outlook office and they will be sent to the Fort—Thanks.

We are all saddened by the recent relapse of Dr. Lamb, who was transferred to the hospital.

Carrizozo High School Notes (By Robert Poaze)

Superintendent Helm, Mrs. M. L. Blaney, the Misses Igo, Tapscott, and Mr. Hester, attended the N. M. E. A. convention at Albuquerque last week, and Carrizozo was honored by Mrs. Blaney being elected President of the State Administrative Council of Women.

On Armistice Day, the High School gave a program which was prepared on a very short notice. All classes were gathered in the Assembly Room to hear and to take part in the program. Patriotic songs were sung in which pupils of the grades took part and each high school pupil gave an appropriate, patriotic quotation. Mr. Hester gave a very instructive, interesting talk on the World War. Miss Higginson followed with a talk on the way the soldiers who could not read and write, were taught to do so.

State Result Uncertain

The forces at both state headquarters are, at the present time claiming the election and it will require the official canvass which takes place today, to determine the result. Many bets have been made during the week on the favorite candidates and the final count is awaited with much interest. The Republicans are claiming Otero elected by a small majority, while the Democrats, while admitting this, claim that the votes of a few outstanding precincts will overcome Otero's majority and elect Hannett by a small margin. We are giving now, the result of the county as shown by the official count which was made last Monday.

A LESSON FROM THE ELECTION

The election of President Coolidge is the greatest evidence yet offered to prove that the American people think straight in basic questions. The vote for Coolidge was not a vote for the man so much as a vote for sound principles of government.

The present vote shows that the American people cannot be stampeded by professional political practices which seek to cloud the main issue.

The election year has also shown that questions like the tariff and discussion of changes in the Constitution no longer seriously disturb business and industries as they have done in the past. From the day of the national conventions our country has enjoyed confidence and the stimulation of rising markets.

Candidates Davis, Coolidge and LaFollette were all highly respected by the people for their ability and sincerity as political leaders, but all departures from fundamental political traditions were bitterly opposed and all inclinations to try experiments at public expense lost the proponents public confidence.

All political parties would do well to learn a lesson from this election, namely, the voters are able to differentiate between men and measures and can no longer be so easily fooled as on persons think.

We will continue to advance along the pathway to success under one flag, governed by a constitution the equal of which has not yet been written, if we forget not the words of the great Emancipator, "With Malice Toward None, With Charity for All."

Let the public officials in power remember that they are only the servants of the people and that no political party can survive except as it gives a better government to citizens who are daily becoming more enlightened on public questions.—The Manufacturer;

TALES OF THE OLD FRONTIER

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON.

A RESCUE AND A ROMANCE

ONE spring evening in 1774 a young girl named Rebecca Martin was paddling a birchbark canoe along the Ohio river. She was returning to her home at the mouth of Grove creek after visiting a sister 50 miles up the river. Her relatives had tried to persuade her not to attempt the trip alone, but she laughed at their fears.

Shortly after sundown she approached a clearing where she expected to spend the night, in the cabin of a "treed." But as she drew near she saw a war party of Indians dancing and yelling around the blazing cabin. The river was brightly illuminated by the flames and at any moment she might be discovered if she attempted either to advance or retreat. So she silently paddled close to the bank and hiding as best she could beneath the overhanging brush, breathlessly waited.

Finally the fire died down and the Indians departed, some of them going upstream in their canoes. By this time the moon had risen and made traveling dangerous, but she knew she must try to escape. She did not try to paddle but trusted to the current to carry her out of danger. After traveling several miles thus she felt safe to begin paddling again.

Suddenly like a drifting shadow another canoe emerged from the opposite shore, followed immediately by three others. Seeing that she was discovered, Rebecca began to paddle desperately.

Bullets began to sing over her head and to whip the water around her. Finally one of them struck her paddle and shattered it. The girl tried desperately to guide her bark toward the shore but its progress was agonizingly slow. The savages had almost surrounded her when there was a blinding lightning flash and a roar as of thunder. One of the Indian canoes went down to pieces and its occupants thrown struggling into the river.

A big canoe swept out into the stream and from the avial gun mounted on its prow a raking fire was poured into the other Indian boats. As the savages frantically paddled out of range the big boat drew up alongside. Rebecca's canoe and a brown arm saved her from where she clung dumbly, half-unconscious, in the bottom of the bark.

Her rescuer was Capt. Isaac Williams, the noted hunter and scout. Add as an appropriate aftermath to this rescue, a few weeks later a wedding ceremony at which Rebecca Martin became Rebecca Williams.

COOLIDGE GIVEN BIG PLURALITY

SMITH WINS GOVERNORSHIP IN NEW YORK OVER THEO. DORE ROOSEVELT

G. O. P. TICKET ELECTED

EASTERN STATES GO REPUBLICAN WHILE DAVIS CARRIES THOSE IN SOUTH

New York. The full measure of the Republican victory at the polls is not yet taken, but the returns continue to show that President Coolidge will have at least 100 votes to spare in the electoral college and the largest popular plurality in history.

An the presidential figures stood with only a handful of electoral votes still in doubt, the indicated strength of the three candidates in the electoral college was as follows:

Table with columns: STATE, Coolidge, Davis, La Follette, Doubtful. Lists states from Alabama to Wyoming with corresponding electoral votes.

The future of the Democratic party which now has suffered two crushing defeats in succession, also will become a subject of sober discussion among its titular leaders when the full effect of Tuesday's groundswell of Republican strength has been assessed in a brief public statement Mr. Davis acknowledged "the decisive character" of the popular verdict against him.

He also sent a message of hearty congratulations to his successful Republican opponent and began preparations for a vacation that will take him away from the political vexations and jealousies into which he was plunged almost without warning by the breakup of the long Democratic deadlock in Madison Square garden.

Even the most sanguine of the Democratic chieftains was forced to concede as they surveyed the vast area of the political map which had been devastated of Democratic electoral votes, that the passions loosed in the sweltering convention hall last summer must have lived on to plague the party in more than one state.

What steps may now be taken to reorganize the party will have to be determined only after long cogitation.

It is the manifest hope of the La Follette element to take a place as the recognized "opposition party" at the expense of the Democracy. Such a purpose, of course, will be opposed stubbornly by many Democrats in places of high titular command or in positions of potential leadership.

It would occasion no surprise among the friends of Democratic National Chairman Shaver if he stepped out after the affairs of the Davis campaign are wound up and gave someone else an opportunity to try a hand at a campaign promise that would cement again such a winning organization as the party had in the days of Cleveland and Wilson.

about a reorganization thus far has been in the nature of gossip and speculation only, for the Democratic leaders confess that the present moment of disappointment and confusion is not the time for serious planning.

As for President Coolidge and his personal friend and political associate from Massachusetts—Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican national committee, they conceded, have secured by the election a grasp on their party's national machinery "not likely to be challenged in the near future."

New York—New York state's plurality for President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes stood at more than 850,000 when returns from 7,519 out of the 7,543 election districts, including the New York City vote, had been tabulated.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith was leading his Republican opponent, Col. Theodore Roosevelt by more than 133,000 on the returns from 7,281 districts in the state, including virtually the complete vote of the metropolis.

The vote for President was: Davis, 642,490; Coolidge, 1,774,246; La Follette, 453,763.

The vote for governor: Smith 1,533,430; Roosevelt 1,400,207.

New York—Belated returns gave the Republicans the best of it in the upsets in both the House and Senate.

But it appeared that final reports from all districts would be necessary before there could be a determination whether President Coolidge could expect a regular working majority in the next Congress.

Returns from 520 of the 425 congressional districts gave the Republicans an actual majority—218—but in this total are included nearly a score of the La Follette insurgents.

The Democrats, meantime, had made certain of 170 seats and the Farmer-Labor party of two.

On the basis of these returns the Republicans had made a net gain of sixteen over the Democrats, recapturing twenty seats as against four now held by Republicans which were moved over into the Democratic column.

At adjournment last June the House lineup was Republican 225, Democrat 207 and three scattered.

In the Senatorial contests, the most surprising result was in Iowa where Smith W. Brookhart, Republican, who publicly repudiated his own national ticket had conceded his defeat at the hands of Daniel F. Steack, a Democratic lawyer of Ottumwa. Mr. Steack was generally credited with receiving support from many regular Republicans.

These were in Massachusetts, Kentucky and Oklahoma. The Democrats had elected eleven senators, while seventeen Republicans had been chosen or had such leads as to make their election practically certain. In the six remaining contests, all in Western states where returns were coming in slowly, the results were uncertain.

In Minnesota, Representative Thomas D. Schall, Republican, had what his supporters regarded as a commanding lead over Senator Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor. Johnson insisted, however, that the missing rural precincts would return him a winner.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democratic prosecutor in the Teapot Dome investigation, led the field in Montana. The result in both New Mexico and Wyoming were surrounded with much of the slowness in gathering of returns.

In gaining a seat in Massachusetts the Republicans elected Frederick H. Willett, speaker of the House, over David I. Walsh, the Democratic incumbent. In Kentucky, Fred M. Sackett, Republican, won over Senator A. Gwaley Stanley, Democrat, while in Oklahoma it appeared that W. B. Pine, Republican, had defeated J. C. Walton, the Democratic candidate who ran on an anti-Ku Klux Klan platform.

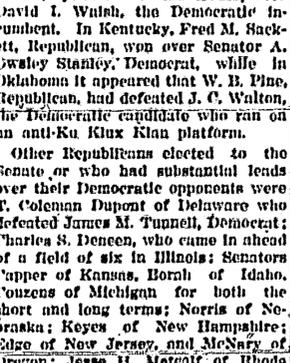

Other Republicans elected to the Senate or who had substantial leads over their Democratic opponents were T. Coleman Dupont of Delaware who defeated James M. Tunnell, Democrat; Charles S. Deneen, who came in ahead of a field of six in Illinois; Senators Capper of Kansas, Borah of Idaho, Cappers of Michigan for both the short and long terms; Norris of Nebraska; Keyes of New Hampshire; Edge of New Jersey, and McNary of Oregon; Jesse H. McManis of Rhode Island; W. H. McManis of South Dakota, and Guy D. Goff of West Virginia.

Democrats elected are: Hefflin, Alabama; Robinson, Arkansas; Harris, Georgia; Ransdell, Louisiana; Harrison, Mississippi; Simmons, North Carolina; Blunge, South Carolina; Tyson, Tennessee; Sheppard, Texas, and Carter Glass, Virginia.

Carries Marion Stronger Than Harding. Marion—President Coolidge carried the home precinct of the late President Warren G. Harding by a bigger vote than Mr. Harding did four years ago. That precinct—precinct 4 of the Fourth ward—gave Coolidge 154, Davis 64, and La Follette 15. Four years ago it gave Harding 145 and Cox 110.

Whether there again would be one Socialist in the House remained in doubt pending returns on a close contest in which Victor Berger of Wisconsin first was behind and then was leading.

Oil business in the San Juan county fields is booming according to reports and several new wells are about to be spudded in soon.

The Santa Fe Company, S. C. Munoz and associates, owners of the Rattlesnake well on the Navajo reservation, and the Mutual Oil Company together will construct a pipe-line from Ship Rock to Farmington or Aztec and erect a refinery with a minimum daily capacity of 250 barrels, to handle the output of the Rattlesnake well.

Sugar beets are now being delivered to the new sugar factory at Maxwell, and there is every indication that the fall run will be a success in every way.

The machinery has been given a thorough test and is working fine and well able to take care of the 20,000 tons which are to be harvested in the district this fall.

That the lamb crop in the Vaughn territory this year will bring in half a million dollars of new money was the estimate made by the Vaughn News, as shipment of lambs to the feeders began. Thousands of fine lambs are being loaded out each day, the daily average loadings being about fifty cars.

The two railroads, the Santa Fe and the El Paso & Southwestern reported, that 250 cars had already been loaded or ordered for loading.

W. P. Pitts, who lives in the eastern part of Portales, claims the record as a pepper grower for the eastern part of the state.

Pitts planted a small tract of land of about one-fourth of an acre to sweet bell peppers and has furnished 5,000 pounds of peppers from this land to the markets at Amarillo, Tex., and 1,000 pounds to the local market, all at five cents per pound net.

The plants at the present time are loaded with what is known as the top crop of peppers, and several hundred pounds of peppers can still be gathered.

Scout reports from the Navajo Oil Company's No. 1 oil well on the beautiful mountain structure near Aztec are to the effect that the Wingo sand is making oil in quantities which it is believed will mean a commercial proposition.

There is still some water in the hole and the testing of the quantity and quality of the oil is impossible at the present time.

This sand was tapped at the depth of 1,727 feet and the gravity of the oil is reported as 41, indicating that the drill is nearing the mother pool. It is the plan of the officials to continue drilling to the lower sand which is expected to be reached at the depth of about 2,700 feet.

At the Stanley school house the first girls' club under the direction of State College was recently perfected for the Estancia Valley.

Miss Long of State College assisted in the organization. The whole community was interested and many local women gathered to encourage the girls in this splendid new venture.

Some time previously Mr. M. V. Dunning, who resides on a ranch some miles west of Stanley, had written the college for bulletins and assistance in this work.

The girls, acting as an independent body, nominated Mrs. G. C. Gerhart for their leader. Mrs. Gerhart was unanimously chosen leader. Seventeen girls enrolled.

Upon the basis of actual returns for twenty-nine counties and estimates for two counties, the Taxpayers' Association of New Mexico finds that the total 1924 taxes levied on general property for state, county, municipal and school district purposes in New Mexico will amount to approximately $8,500,000.

The average tax rate to produce this total is $27.00 per $1,000 of assessed value as compared with $25.00 in 1923 and $26.00 in 1922. The state tax rate is $4.50 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Of this levy, $3.00 is for general state purposes, $1.00 for the state road fund and fifty cents for the state current school fund. These rates are the same as for 1922 and 1923. The 1924 county levies show increases over the 1923 levies in twenty-four counties and decreases in seven counties.

In nineteen counties, the 1924 rates are higher than those of 1922, in spite of the fact that the Federal Aid Road levy was $1.50 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation in 1922 and $1.00 for 1923 and 1924. The reduction in the Federal Aid Road levy was made possible because of the issuance of $2,000,000 road bonds.

BEFORE TWINS WERE BORN

Was Very Miserable. Felt Lots Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wyoceca, Wisconsin.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my twins were born because my sister used it and recommended it to me. I was so I could scarcely go about my daily work I was in such misery. But after I began taking the second bottle I was feeling lots better. I took three bottles and a half before I was confined and finished the bottle while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins alone ever since. I recommend the Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."

Mrs. Ina Gessner, Wyoceca, Wis.—"It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after child-birth, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother both before and after child-birth. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It can be taken in safety by nursing mothers."

Appropriate Revision. A Chinese student in the X-ray section of the Shantung Christian university at Tsinanfu, which has just been granted a charter by the Chinese parliament, suggested that a motto should be placed on the wall of the classroom.

He proposed that it should be: "Let your light so shine through men that you may see their bad works."

Eighty special United States marshals and fifty special state deputies appointed at the request of the Silver Bow (Mont.) county Republican central committee, guarded the polls at last Tuesday's election.

Superstition against hunting on Sunday has received strong support at Laramie, Wyo., through events of the last six weeks. Nine violent deaths have occurred. Eight of the dead were hunters and seven were killed on Sunday. Robert Benedict, 10, died at a Laramie hospital. He was using a small rifle attempting to force a rat out of a hollow tree. He held the rifle muzzle toward him. The gun was discharged and the bullet entered his chest, piercing the lungs.

The fame of Charles N. Hatfield as a result of his rain-making undertakings in California has reached Africa, where he may have an opportunity to try his cunning on the Sahara desert. The Kings County Chamber of Commerce announced it had received an inquiry concerning Mr. Hatfield from Tunis, in French West Africa. The chamber will reply that farmers in this vicinity recently had paid Hatfield $3,000 for making it rain. Whether Mr. Hatfield was responsible or not, it did rain 2.29 inches between March 15 and April 15 this year over an area seventy-five miles in diameter after the "rain maker" had "shot the skies" with fumes from chemicals.

Francis Winfield Hart, 24 years old, a singer in a church choir and living in the apartment of his pastor, was arrested by police in Washington and accused of a long series of Jimmy robberies which have been keeping the northwest section of the city on edge. Police declare Hart admitted perpetration of a dozen robberies and they also said lost-estimated to be worth $15,000, was found in his room. The Rev. Meade B. MacBryde, in whose home Hart lived, said that the latter, after a disagreement a month ago with his parents, had sought his assistance and that he had taken him under his own roof.

During September class one railroads had operating revenues of $540,741,000, against expenses totaling $381,573,750, with a net operating income of $116,718,000, according to reports compiled in Washington by the Bureau of Railway Economics. While the revenues were 1 per cent under the corresponding ones last year, the operating expenses were decreased by 3.4 per cent under those of September, 1923. This, the report said, was due partly to a reduction of $23,510,000, or about 12 per cent, in maintenance expenses as compared with the same month last year. Expenditures during September for maintenance of way and maintenance of equipment were reduced by 5 per cent and 16 per cent, respectively, below the corresponding figures last year.

Maj. Gen. William A. Haan, who commanded the Thirty-second division, composed of Michigan and Wisconsin troops in the Argonne and other severe engagements in France, died in Washington at Mount Alto Hospital.

Two armed robbers held up Mrs. May Crowley, teller of the Roy State Bank at Roy, Wash., obtaining $3,800.

At a conference with General Lord, budget director, President Coolidge approved next year's departmental estimates for all the activities of the federal government except the treasury, the navy and the District of Columbia. The estimates approved, Lord said after the conference, have been returned to the various departments for final allocation. "The budget total, leaving out interest on the national debt and the postoffice department, will be well below 1,300 million dollars," said Lord. The budget will be presented to Congress when it meets.

Russian emigrants to the number of 235, who have been housed and fed at the Atlantic Hotel, in Cherbourg, France, for nearly a year by the White Star line, which contracted to transport them to the United States, but cannot get them to that country under the immigration quota, declared a hunger strike recently, much to the delight of the hotel, because the White Star line gave them notice to leave.

Warfare between the Wahab and King Ali of the Hejaz is expected to be resumed in the next few days around Jeddah, according to advices from the Red Sea port. The Wahabi forces are said to be preparing for a new offensive and King Ali is reorganizing his army and receiving reinforcements through Akkaba. John Philby, British political adviser in the trans-Jordanian government, has arrived in Jeddah. It is stated that the purpose of his mission is to start peace negotiations.

The political position in Spain has become extremely critical. Admiral Marquis De Magaz, temporary president of the military directorate in the absence of Premier Primo Rivera, has been in daily communication with the premier, but the latter declines to accept responsibility for occurrences in Spain while he is in Morocco. Admiral De Magaz is believed to have tendered his resignation, together with other members of the directorate, and it is understood that changes are imminent whereby another government will be formed.

John Ashley, famous leader of the Ashley gang of outlaws, Hanford Mobley, his lieutenant, and two unidentified members of the gang, were shot to death in a gun fight with Sheriff Merritt of St. Lucie county, Florida, and six deputies. The death of the outlaw and his followers wiped out of existence a gang which for years had terrorized south Florida. The sheriff came upon the outlaws on the Stuart, Florida East Coast railroad bridge. The outlaws were taken by surprise by the sheriff and his deputies. The Ashley gang, notorious for more than fifteen years along the east coast from St. Lucie county to the Florida keys below Miami and across the Gulf stream in the Bahamas, are charged with a long list of crimes ranging from bank robbery and piracy on the high seas down to "moonshining" and petty thievery.

THE WRETCHED WORRIES

The Wretched Worries were having a very good time of it.

As Active as Could Be.

It may seem strange to think of such creatures as Wretched Worries having a good time, but you see they didn't worry themselves.

They gave worries to other people—free and without even being requested.

Of course they never had what most people would consider a good time.

They didn't enjoy themselves in a beautiful care-free, gay, happy-go-lucky fashion.

They enjoyed themselves by causing others to worry. They were as active as could be doing up the most enormous bundles of worries you ever did see.

Some were not so big but they were sharp-edged parcels and they were marked with labels.

"Annoying small worries" these were called.

There were all sorts of parcels already wrapped up and some of these were marked "Examination Worries," "Lesson Worries," "Punishment Worries."

"Children-lost-that's-why-they-haven't-come-home Worries." These last were marked "For Parents."

They were sending off worries all the time, too, and they kept on doing up more parcels.

"It's absurd," said Grandfather Worry, "but we really do a thriving business."

"Our payment is not money but it is in the success that we have."

"We make people worry. Yes, we're very successful."

"But it is really quite absurd to think of what a big business we do when there is really no reason or excuse for our being in business anyway."

"And then we have so-called enemies who're really our friends."

"There are those who say: 'It won't get you anywhere to worry,' and 'worry never got anyone anywhere.'"

"But they act so superior and unsympathetic when they make these speeches that really they help us along rather than hinder us in our work."

"If they understood and were sympathetic they might be real enemies of ours."

"Well, we've been in business a long time and we doubtless will be for some time to come."

"We always have a big demand for our worries. Now there are a lot of worries going out about examinations and whether boys and girls will pass examinations."

"They will be graded up at once so that we'll have to restock."

"Then there are the worries going out about the Christmas entertainments. Some of these go to children and they'll be afraid that they'll 'break down.'"

"There is no reason for their breaking down in their parts except that we send the worries and they grab them and think that after all they may break down and how terrible it would be if they got stage fright and they get it just thinking over the worries we send."

"Why should they get stage fright? They know every one in the audience and they're not afraid of them at other times. It is all because we send the worries."

"Then we always have a beautiful supply to send to parents when their children are out later than they expected them to be."

"We send drowning worries and run away worries and then when the children get back home a little late their parents say: 'Oh, we didn't know what could have happened to you. We thought everything possible.'"

"All those worries are supplied by us."

"Yet it is surprising how busy we are. There is a real need for a business that handles clothes to be worn or books to be studied and books for companionship and pleasure, and a business that handles toys and games and boats and bicycles—but we are busy just the same!"

"Just the same," shouted the rest of the Wretched Worries as they all looked pleased in such a horrid way about the work they were doing.

COME UNDER HEAD OF POOR "WRITERS"

Famous Authors Noted for Their Bad Chirography.

The quill is nearly extinct, and it almost looks as if the steel pen would follow its example. Authors now as a rule seem to use typewriters or dictate their words, though some still stick to pen and ink. The change of practice is a blow to those professors who make a living by describing characters from handwriting.

One good result will be the abolition of the numerous mistakes made by the compositor in "setting up" writing which he is unable to decipher. If Shakespeare habitually wrote, as badly as his signatures imply it is no wonder that there are a large number of doubtful words in his text. Yet Shakespeare appears to acknowledge the importance of clear writing, for he makes Hamlet say:

"I once did hold it, as our statist do, A baseness to write fair."

Coming to more recent times, we find that many authors, for some reason, were addicted to microscopic writing. Charlotte Bronte was one.

Miss Mitford was another. Like Southey, she used to boast that she could send more for her money than anyone else. Thackeray wrote a small but beautifully clear hand. He boasted that he would be able to write the Lord's Prayer on his thumbnail. Captain Marryat, R. D. Blackmore, William Black and many others wrote in an extremely small hand.

Charles Dickens used blue ink on blue paper, and his interlineations were numerous. There are several of his MSS. in the Forster library at South Kensington. Sidney Smith described his own handwriting as "a swarm of ants, escaping from an ink bottle, had walked over a sheet of paper without wiping their legs."

That of his friend, Lord Jeffrey, was still more illegible. Sidney Smith once acknowledged one of his letters as follows: "We are much obliged by your letter, but should be still more so were it legible. I have tried to read it from left to right, and Mrs. Sydney from right to left, and we neither of us can decipher a single word of it."

Hawthorne was a terribly bad writer, and some of his MSS. found after his death remain unpublished, as they cannot be deciphered. Of Horace Greeley's manuscript a compositor said that if Belshazzar had seen that writing on the wall he would have been still more terrified.

Carlyle's script was the despair of the compositors. Balzac's was so bad that the printers insisted that they should not work at it for more than an hour at a time. Dean Stanley was asked by a New York editor for an article, but when it arrived no one could read it, and it had to be sent back to England to be rewritten. By the time that it reached the editor again the topic was out of date.—John O' London's Weekly.

Dog Does Town's Greeting

A huge St. Bernard dog is the reception committee at the little mining village of White Horse, Alaska. Tourists returning here relate how impressed they were with the cordiality of the unique welcome accorded them there. Mrs. C. C. Puffer of Brackton, Mass., world traveler, told this story, according to the New York World.

"As we alighted in the town we were met by a large curly-haired St. Bernard dog. He carried a sign which read, 'Reception Committee of White Horse. Welcome, Snake.'"

"We stretched out our hands and the smiling dog with massive head and blindly eyes raised a powerful paw for our handclasp."

"At the slightest squeeze of his foot the big dog welcomed every one by a hoarse bark, which immediately started all the malamutes in the village, until it became one hoating pandemonium."

Dog Must Stay Out

"I don't mind the children having a dog," explained a Trumbull avenue woman recently, "but hereafter, the animal has got to be kept out of the house while I'm cooking. I had just made a batch of light rolls, and had them in a pan in front of the fire to raise. They had just got a good start, and I left the room. When I came back, the dog had got into the kitchen some way and was just finishing the last of the rolls. They must have been pretty good, too, for he swelled up until he was almost twice as big around as he ought to be. It didn't do him any permanent damage physically, but I guess it hurt his feelings when I told him what I thought; anyway he wouldn't look me in the eye for a week."—Detroit News.

John C. Coolidge, President Coolidge's father, who recently celebrated his seventy-ninth birthday at Plymouth, Vt., has a quiet and trenchant wit. He said at the Plymouth general store the other day:

"There are only two kinds of husbands, namely, the henpecked husband and the despot."

"The henpecked husband gives in at once. The despot gives in after supper."

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways. Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem. Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious. Hundreds of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Down-town city streets are jammed with traffic. Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars. If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population. Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities. Your highway officials will do their part if given your support. Why postpone meeting this pressing need? An early start means early relief. PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION 111 West Washington Street CHICAGO. of National Organization to Improve and Extend the Use of Concrete. Offices in 27 Cities.

CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION

The great Republican victory on November 4 may be attributed largely to the wide-spread education of the people—particularly of people who work. During the campaign, and long before, systematic efforts were made to convince the working people that they were oppressed by the tariff, ground under the heel of monopoly, forced to pay tribute to Wall Street.

Every man who works in a factory knows that his employment depends upon the continued activity of the mill, and that the mill cannot operate unless it has a market for its product. He also knows that if a foreign mill ships into the United States a product that competes with the product of the mill in which he works, there will be that much less demand for the commodities he is helping to manufacture.

Every workman who has read enough to know which party is opposed to protection, is able to form an opinion as to where his own interests lie. Because American workmen do read newspapers and do know party policies, million of them went to the polls on November 4 and voted the Republican ticket.

Just before election the Democrats were denouncing the straw ballots and the betting odds as "fakes." The returns are so fully in accord with both the straw votes and the betting odds as to prove that there was no fake in either.

You can enjoy Republican prosperity even if you didn't vote for it.

Davis and Bryan carried only those states which they would have carried if they had neither of them made a single speech and remained in their cellars.

Mr. Butler carried the Coddge-Dawes campaign into the enemy's territory, and won. There's nothing like having the courage to try.

W. J. Bryan said that Davis was impossible, and the voters agreed with him, for once.

Educational Notes

The New Mexico Education Association Meeting held at Albuquerque November 6th, 7th and 8th was attended by nearly one thousand teachers from different parts of our State. The principal speakers were Prof. W. L. Hughes from Texas, A. and M. College and Dean R. A. Schwieger of Kansas State Teachers' College. The following Carrizozo teachers attended the Association: J. M. Helm, Mrs. M. L. Blaney, S. G. Hester, Marie Tongeman, Noda Igo, and Mrs. Louise A. Coe, Co. School Supt.

The schools of Lincoln County are requested to observe American Education Week November 17 to 23. 1924 Programs for American Education Week may be secured from this office.

Much interest is being manifested over the County in the essay contest launched by the State Insurance Department. These essays are written by eighth grade pupils on the subject "How Can My Community be Protected From Loss by Fire?" Papers should be in this office not later than Nov. 15th, 1924.

The best attendance of any one room, of the schools of Lincoln County during the month of October, was in the primary room at Arabela. The Attendance Banner has been awarded this teacher, Miss Sofia Luna.

RICHER LIFE SOUGHT BY FARMING PEOPLE

Comfortable Home, Leisure for Worth While Pleasures, Would Come With Electric Service.

That it is the enrichment of life, in all that this term represents, which the average farmer hopes electricity will ultimately bring him is the reflective opinion of H. W. Riley, professor of rural engineering of the New York State College of Agriculture. Professor Riley, who has lived with farmers and studied their problems for years, appreciates that the immediate ambition of the farmer, in respect to electricity, is to obtain a larger cash return from his farming; but he maintains that the farmer looks beyond this, and has in his mind, as the final goal, a greater share of the stimulating social and mental possibilities of life, which he hopes will come with an increased cash return.

Showing that so far as getting through season after season of farm work and actually producing marketable crops is concerned, the farmer could doubtless "get along" if he never secured electric power, Prof. Riley asks why, then, is there such an insistent demand for rural electric lines and what is the real service that electricity from such lines is to render?

"The answer to these questions," he asserts, "can be found readily enough when it is realized that the farmer's central objective in life is the maintenance of an independent and comfortable home, where he and his wife may live, where his children may grow up strong in body and resourceful in mind, and where he may live in peace to the end of his days. "Money must come in reasonable amounts sometimes, to be sure, or, like any other man, he will not count his work successful, but money is of value to him mainly as it enables him to improve his farm and home and to enjoy some of the pleasures and amenities of modern life. The ready sale of automobiles and small electric light plants to farmers, the extension of country telephone lines, the demand for rural free delivery of mail are instances that prove this point. Now interest is starting to concentrate on the extension of electric power lines into the country for the very evident reason that the whole farming population have seen what electricity has done in the cities and they want the same benefits for themselves. "The farmers want electricity mainly because they know that it will make their lives better with the living. They do not want it to cost too much because each penny is scarce with them, but they want it mainly for what it will do for them and not primarily because of a possible low cost for the service."

Romance of the Orient Sealed HOT in Tins

Gain romance and machinery take hands. One man crowded the tea flavors of the Far East into a tin and sealed the lid. Sealed it in vacuum while it was still hot from its toasting, which is the point of the story. For in San Francisco, in an ultra modern, magical way, tea with a zest of the Orient is now perfected in the Occident in the latest vacuum way.

To most of us tea production is a legendary sort of process, vaguely suggestive of romance. Dainty Oriental maidens, in warm, flower-filled fields—vast sultry areas in India, China and Japan—Mongols, Hindus, tolling in the drying and rolling and packing of fragrant leaves—and for us solace, satisfied thirst and intimate gossip over the dainty tea cups.

Too often romance goes down before the machine of today. But in this case, the machine brings to all the essence of Oriental romance in tea perfection. By this latest movement of the wheel of science, thousands of miles removed from cherry blossom maidens and temple bells, the crowning glory of the tea drinking Orient is preserved for us and hermetically sealed in the modern tea tin.

Tea, and few of us know this, must be roasted like coffee. First, in the Orient. This for preservation. And again in the Occident. This for perfection.

August Schilling of San Francisco is responsible for this newest, startling method of preservation. He is a pioneer master in his own line. A man who planned the poet's fancy into the art by putting on the American table a drink such as princes paid fortunes for in ancient Russia.

It was he who conceived the idea of roasting the tea leaf for the second time after its journey across the Pacific to restore its original flavor and fragrance.

Hidden in the veins of the rose-like leaf of the tea plant is the essential oil of tea. This is the soul of its flower. The second roasting, or toasting as it is called in the tea vernacular, draws this essential tea oil to the edges of the leaf ready for release when drenched with hot water. And that is the secret of delicious tea. But tea preservation was a different matter and a difficult art.

Curiously enough Schilling has been an outstanding figure in the packing of teas in America.

In 1881 he introduced to the American public the first tea to be packed in tins. This was known as the Perfection Tin. Before this, tea had always been sold in bulk form. The Perfection Tin was the first move toward packaged tea in America. And ladies with very thin waists and very large bustles accepted with pleased astonishment this radical improvement on the paper bag. His next development was the parchment lined cartons which became the standard method of packing teas all over America.

It seems natural that this man should present the latest development in tea packing—sealing HOT in vacuum tins.

(Supt. F. S. Copeland) We are glad to record that Helene Titsworths is well along towards recovery and will probably be back to school within a few days.

Corona was beaten by the Capitan boys last Saturday on the latter's court by 18 to 8. The visitors have a fast, snappy team that put up a good brand of ball and are capable of entertaining any team in this section. The second team went on to play Lincoln and won from them 10 to 6. Superintendent Smith and Coach Greer accompanied the squad.

As a fitting close to American Education Week there will be given a free public program at the high school on Friday evening, November 21.

A general high school party was held at the school house last Friday evening. Miss McClure played two piano numbers and Mrs. Copeland gave a couple of clarinet solos. Miss Townsend and Miss Fleming supervised the games, and Mrs. Carter, with the home economics girls, provided and served the excellent refreshments.

Bloch Clearly Master of the "Double Cross" Bloch and Arakellan were invited to dine at the house of a rich banker. It was agreed that Bloch would keep the attention of the guests distracted while his accomplice pocketed as much of the silver as possible. After dinner Bloch whispered to Arakellan: "How much did you get?" "Six spoons." "Give me three of them." "No. I'm the man who got them." Bloch said nothing more. He crossed the room and began to be agreeable to the hostess. All at once this lady called out: "Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Bloch tells me he is a clever sleight-of-hand performer. He has agreed to give us some amusement." "Will you please get me six teaspoons?" asked Bloch. "The teaspoons were brought." "Thank you. Now observe that I wrap them up in my pocket handkerchief. Then I put the handkerchief in my pocket, so I pass my hand over my pocket three times, so, and you will find the six teaspoons in the pocket of Mr. Arakellan." -Chicago News.

Rightly Felt It Was No Time for Poetry Sun Lung was busy in one of the great warehouses south of Market street, San Francisco, rugging at a ponderous bale of burlap, when a large motortruck came backing silently through the door loaded with more burlap. Another Chinese who had been helping Sam, seeing the oncoming truck, stepped aside and began in the quaint sing-song of their people to inform him of the danger. "If you do not care to have your bones rest in unholy ground of the white devils for a long spell, then in time taken up and removed to the land of your ancestors, you had better..."

Just then, as the heavily loaded truck was about to smash Sam, his companion finished his warning with the exclamation, "Look out!" Sam jumped in time to escape being crushed. With a frightened face he exclaimed to his helper, "What for you no talker Mellean first time?" -Argonaut.

Truly Wonderful On a hotel veranda at a seaside resort a visitor approached, in the dark, the spot where a beautiful girl with golden hair and melting baby-blue eyes was sitting with an adoring youth. As he neared the pair the newcomer heard her say: "Aren't the stars beautiful tonight? I love to sit and look at the stars on a night like this and think about science. Science is so interesting, so wonderful; don't you think so? Now, take astronomy. Astronomers are such marvelous men! I can understand how they have been able to estimate the distance to the moon and to all the other planets and the size of the sun and how fast it travels, but how, do you suppose, they ever found out the right names of all those stars?"

Had Geologists' Puzzles Fossils of prehistoric animals, which lived during the great Ice age are found in certain layers of blue clay in Tennessee. Man, it has been asserted, arrived on the earth thousands of years after these blue clay deposits were made. Recently, however, geologists working near the site of an old Indian earthwork found some of the same sort of blue clay. Underneath this clay were human bones. The discovery was exciting—the geological evidence seemed to place the first Tennesseans back with Ice age fossils. Then some kill-fossils in the party discovered that the Indians had evidently transported this clay from some distance and packed it down into flat layers resembling geological strata.

Queen Lover of Cherries The rich and ruddy cherries for which England is famous, were introduced into that country from France in the year 1540. The establishment of their popularity was due in no small measure to Queen Elizabeth who had a great liking for cherries ripe. Whereby hangs the tale of St. Francis Carey, who delayed the ripening of his cherry tree until a month after the end of the season in order that the cherries might attain maturity when her majesty stayed with him. This he accomplished by erecting a tent over the tree, and on the queen's arrival the fruit was at perfection.

Liquid Floats Stones Of all liquids, mercury possesses the greatest specific gravity, but another has been discovered which is also so heavy that stones of all kinds—granite, limestone, quartz, etc., float in it. It is a saturated aqueous solution of tungstoborate. Its specific gravity is 3.3, whereas that of ordinary rocks does not surpass 2.7. Only a few precious stones have a specific gravity greater than that of this liquid, for which reason it is proposed to employ it for the separation of such stones from the masses of broken rock.

What You Should Know About Satin

Kinds, Qualities, Textures by Dozen—Manufacturers Use Trade Name.

You won't question the certainty of satin's place among the silks after one trip through the "yard goods" department. For there you are sure to see alluring lengths of the lustrous fabric draped profusely about, observes a writer in the Kansas City Star.

Since you will find satins put out by different manufacturers almost every year under new names, however, and since you are sure to find different kinds, qualities and weights of satin by the dozen, from the extremely lightweight "wash" satins to the heavy stiff-backed satins, the important thing to remember is not the mere names of the cloths, but certain general rules which will guide you in your selection.

Now, satin is always made in the characteristic satin weave—the fine silk warp passes over a group of the filling threads, say seven of them, and then under one, so that nearly all the warp is brought to the surface and nearly all the weft is left underneath. This manner of weaving is chiefly responsible for the high luster all satins have; the variation in gloss comes with the quality of the silk used, since the better the silk the higher the luster; and with the method of finishing and extent to which the goods is "glendered" or pressed between hot rollers. When first taken from loom, satins are somewhat lustrous and rough, and so must be dressed, which process removes the fibrous ends, and also increases the natural brilliance.

You must remember, however, that the higher the gloss of the fabric, that the more easily it will wear shabby. For this reason you should select the fine, high-priced satin only for "dress" wear, then you will find that it gives quite satisfactory service. Hard, everyday wear will "rough up" the surface, and give the material a greasy shine. For hard wear you should select short-boat satin.

Look at the back of the satin you buy, too, when you consider its durability. A crepe back gives a soft satin which is an excellent choice for gowns of draped styles. But the plain-backed satin is stiffer and will wear much better. Cotton-backed satin is a "good buy" for a lining satin.

When satin first appeared in the trade it was called "accetuin"; the term slipped through Italian lips as "zetaina"; western tongues dropped the "i" and smoothed the name into our silkier-sounding "satin." The material is known to have been in use in England as early as the fourteenth century, and in France and Spain probably earlier than that.

For Stout Women
The stout woman's coat should not be extremely thick and heavy, though it may still be warm. Soft materials that will not increase the wearer's bulk are best. It is doubtful if the short, stout woman should ever wear a fur coat, unless the fur is extremely soft and pliable. Corded materials, or materials with a faint up-and-down stripe, should be becoming. Dark colors with, of course, black leading, are best for the stout woman's coat.

Fads and Fancies in Fans of the Present Time

A darling debutante of today; a stoups Spanish lady of yesterday; a famous "fan-bearer" of King Tut's time—all, and each infinitely, contribute to the fame of the ever-fashionable fan, to its spirit of fickleness, flirtatiousness, frivolity.

Now, there are fans and fans, from the humble "palm leaf" up. And one is likely to think, first of all, of some delectable bit of feminine fluff, feathers or lace, such as the belles of old used when they spoke in the coquetish "sign language" of the fan. When you buy such a fan, you are more concerned with its suitability as a dress accessory than with its cooling capabilities.

These fragile fans, made up in styles following all sorts of fads and fancies, and in many materials, you will usually find in the jewelry departments. The sticks may be made of wood, bone, ivory, celluloid, tortoise shell or mother-of-pearl. If you choose a fan whose sticks are of wood, you cannot make a better selection than sandalwood, which is often handsomely carved, and which has a fragrance, elusive but lasting, that adds ever so much to its charm. Mother-of-pearl, together of the most popular materials, is made up of calcium carbonate. Just like the true pearl. It comes from the inside of certain sea shells, and is usually cut in thin strips, which give to the wood foundation a lovely, iridescent color.

You can certainly find a fan made in your favorite material, for the leaves may be of silk, satin, gauze, lace or feathers, or even of skins, like parchment, kid—which is sometimes called "chicken skin" or vellum, prepared in special ways. Your paper fan probably comes from China or Japan, where the hardy rice paper is an excellent medium on which their exquisite designs may appear. Japanese fans of gauze, too, and Chinese carved fans, made of ivory and sandalwood, are lovely. Many of the finest fans are French, for the French artists know how to paint pictures on them which artists of other lands despair of imitating. Fans from Spain, Italy and England have decorations of painting, gilding or etching.

Restores Velvet
To restore velvet, let one person hold the velvet tightly while another passes a warm flatiron over the wrong side. Then brush the pile lightly with a soft brush. Also when any portion of a velvet gown is crushed from pressure, hold the part over a basin of hot water, lining side next to the water. The pile will soon be restored.

Needs Touch of Black
One exclusive designer declares that while nothing is more chic than the yellow flannel sports suit, yet a yellow suit or frock is losing half its smartness without a touch of black. He introduces little silk black bows and black silk piping.

Camellia in Favor
The camellia remains in favor. If white, it ornaments dance frocks and afternoon gowns. If bright red it is likely to find a place on the shoulder of a tailored suit or dress.

Flushing Ewes to Bring More Lambs

Flock Owners Always Interested in Any Plan to Increase Crop.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Flock owners are usually interested in anything that will increase the lamb crop. A bulletin put out by the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington on "Flushing Ewes and Other Means of Increasing Lamb Yields," Bulletin 606, gives the results of tests with 17 groups of ewes.

Gain Made by Ewes.
Ewes not fed in breeding season gained 1.7 pounds and had a 120 per cent lamb crop. Those getting feed of various kinds gained eight pounds per head and had a 147 per cent lamb crop. In terms of 1,000 sheep, this would mean 280 more lambs. The ewes got only one-half pound of grain per day at that time.

It made little difference how the ewes were fed so long as they gained. Some got extra pasture, some were fed oats, some corn and oats, and some various mixtures of corn, oats, bran and linseed meal. In the grain fed lots as well as in the pasture lots, some were above the 147 per cent average and some below, showing that the kind of feed was not important.

"Flushing" is an old English term and originally meant turning the ewes on some special green forage crop just before breeding season. In the government experiments the pasture-flushed ewes did better some years. Other years the grain-fed ewes had more lambs.

Have Ewes Gaining.
The main thing seemed to be not to have the ewes in high flesh but to have them gaining in flesh. Of those that gained from one to seven pounds, 34 per cent produced twin lambs. Of those gaining seven to thirty pounds, 44 per cent had twins. The two poorest lots among those getting extra feed were ewes that were already in high flesh.

Old ewes had a higher proportion of twins than did young ewes. There was very little difference between the breeds as to the number of twins dropped. The Dorsets stood at the top, however, with the fine woolled breeds at the bottom. The rams did not seem to influence the number of twins produced.—Charles I. Bray, Animal Husbandry, Colorado Agricultural College.

How Butter Is Formed by Tiny Globules of Fat

Milk really consists of a number of very tiny globules of fat, each one enclosed in a thin "skin" floating in a fluid. If the milk be left to stand, a certain number of these globules rise to the surface and become cream, or the separations can be made artificially.

The cream is then churned, and the violent motion breaks the skins of the globules, so freeing the particles of fat. These particles, under proper conditions (the temperature must be right, and the cream must contain a proportion of acid) then become attached and stick to each other. The result, after treatment by churning with a little cold water, washing and probably salting, is what we call butter.

What is left is buttermilk, or the fluid that has been robbed of its fat.

Roughage for Sheep

Shredded corn fodder is very much more adapted to feeding these sheep than timothy hay. But to make a really good roughage, about 50 per cent of the roughage should consist of good legume hay, such as alfalfa or clover. If this is impossible, you can make up for it in the grain ration, of course, with a little extra quantity of oats. A little bone-meal or partly ground limestone should be given. Allowing the ewes free access to corn fodder, you should adjust the grain ration to the point where a good condition is maintained.

Getting Rid of Mice

To rid the chicken house of mice keep the feed in the mouseproof bins. Prevent the mice from multiplying by removing their breeding places. These will be found under boxes, boards, loose flooring and the like. If a good cat or two can be kept around the premises, they will help hold the mice in check. The use of good traps is recommended, but not poison, unless it can be handled in such a way as to make sure that the fowls will not get access to it.

Large Yield of Milk

In order to secure a large yield of milk, it is quite as important that the cow or herd is handled properly as that proper feeding is practiced. There have been many instances where the best cows were kept and where good methods of feeding were practiced; and still results fell far short of what might be expected, simply because the animals did not receive that kindly treatment which is so essential to a cow giving much milk for a long period.

Keep Best Milk Producers

The dairyman who put a sign on his barn with the slogan "A cow that enters through this door must milk ten thousand pounds or more" set a goal for himself. We can't all have every cow a 10,000-pound producer, but we can eliminate the poorest and keep the best producers in the herd.

Good Sires Should Have Best of Care

Dairy Bulls Need Exercise and Proper Management.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Good sires are absolutely necessary to dairymen, as it is largely through the use of good sires that high-producing herds are built up, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Because of their temperament, dairy bulls are often difficult to handle; consequently they do not always receive proper care, exercise and management; and as a result fail to give best service as herd sires.

Care and Management of Dairy Bulls, is the title of a new bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture as Farmers' Bulletin No. 1412, which discusses briefly the numerous problems on proper management of dairy bulls, how to handle, and how to keep them in good condition.

Newspapers and farm papers frequently tell of persons being injured or killed by bulls, as a result of improper equipment or wrong handling. Because of such occurrences, dairy bulls have come to be looked upon in some cases as necessary evils. This attitude, says the department, often means neglect in such essentials as feeding, exercise, removal of manure from pens, and various other details of care. Proper care and management of the bull will eliminate much of the danger and resultant loss of his use. A copy of the bulletin may be secured, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Sowing Sweet Clover in Spring in Small Grains

Sweet clover starts slowly and it is not often that conditions are favorable enough to get a stand by seeding in August. Some plants may make a start, but will usually not be large enough to live over winter, writes W. J. Fraser, Illinois College of Agriculture. It is much better to sow sweet clover in the spring in small grain. Where wanted for pasture the same spring as soon it can be either sown alone or with oats.

Since sweet clover starts slowly it is not as well adapted to pasturing the first spring, and two months' pasture season is lost over seeding in the spring the year before in small grain. If not used for pasture until the plants are at least six or eight inches high, which usually means two months after seeding. If the seed is sown the middle of April it will be the middle of June before it should be pastured.

I would sow ten pounds of scarified bluish white sweet clover seed per acre. It is absolutely essential that the soil be limed if acid, and inoculated if not already so.

How Capons Should Be Dressed for Shipment

In plucking capons the feathers of the upper neck, the flight feathers and the tail feathers should not be removed, the object being to distinguish them from other fowl.

Capons can be packed in boxes. A layer of excelsior or clean straw is laid in the bottom, then a layer of dressed fowls with feet extending outward, then another layer and so on till the box is filled. Any space at the top should be filled with excelsior, straw or paper.

As to packing to prevent spoiling on warm days, this will hardly be necessary in the seasons for selling capons, November to March. Packing in ice is practiced in very warm weather for long shipments.

Sweet Clover for Pasture

The use of sweet clover as a pasture crop for cattle and sheep or a mixture of alfalfa with orchard grass or tall wheat grass will provide an excellent green pasture for the summer months. For hogs and sheep, rape makes one of the best possible summer pastures. The wise farmer will conclude that we probably will not have so favorable a pasture season next year and make provision for a green pasture through July and August.

Farm Hints

All things work together for good to them that use legumes.

Sweet clover pasture makes lots of milk. Plan to sow some next spring.

It's a wise hen that knows her own egg, but a trapezoid tells the poultryman every time.

Bees do not puncture fruit, though they will suck the juices after it is cracked or bruised.

Horses like pasture at any time, but it is not enough of itself to keep up the strength of work animals.

Farming without legumes may be compared to writing checks on the bank without making any deposits.

Co-operative marketing is being urged by government experts as a remedy for present agricultural conditions.

Egg size and shape is inherited. Gradual selection of these birds which in addition to a large number also lay "selects" will in time eliminate birds laying lower-grade eggs.

"He was on his way home from the office and had over-taken Jinks, who looked wet and muddy and was burdened with fishing tackle."
"Been fishing?" replied Jinks solemnly.
"Catch much?" was the next question.
"Oh, yes; too much," Jinks laughed mirthfully. "Too much for me."
"What did you catch?" inquired Jinks eagerly.
"First train there, last train back," Jinks told him bitterly. "Caught in a shower, caught a cold and expect I shall catch it when I get home."

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Mr. Byrne, secretary of the K. of C. Relief Department at Fort Stanton was here Monday and included the Outlook on his list of friendly calls. Being a member of the Amusement Club of the Fort, he spoke of December 10 and 11, as dates set for showing the picture "The Covered Wagon." Many people saw this wonderful picture when it was shown here and to those who did not or to those who did and would like to see it again, the management issues a cordial invitation to attend on the 10, as on the 11, the picture will be shown to the patients free of charge.

Mrs. Harriet Robertson and Mrs. B. H. Martin were down from Nogal Monday doing some chopping with our business houses. Mr. and Mrs. Martin came up from El Paso last week after receiving news of the death of Mr. Robertson, Mr. Martin being for a long time superintendent of the Helen Rae gold mine. He returned to El Paso the latter part of the week, but Mrs. Martin will remain with Mrs. Robertson for the winter season.

Clinton Brannum came home Monday from Los Angeles where he had been with his brother, Rufus, and wife, since last August. Clint is undecided as to whether he will remain at home or return to the Golden State.

J. C. Mitchelmore, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Fort Stanton was a welcome visitor at this office Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Mitchelmore, who is devoting his time to the interest of the young men and boys, has received much encouragement from the pastors of different churches both in this state and others in the east with offers of assistance for extending his work.

Mr. E. M. Brickley of Carrizozo was in town last Thursday.

Mr. Mike Greezy of El Paso has been in town for the past week.

The freshman class of the Corona High School met and organized last Wednesday. The officers who were elected were: President, LuClaire McFadden, secretary, Jack McClellan, and treasurer, Aubrey Thompson. Miss Rena Williams was elected class councilor.

Mr. Earl Ott who has been living in Corona for nearly a year left for his home in Fort Worth, Texas last Thursday.

The Freshman class went on a picnic about two miles north of town last Saturday. Misses Bessie Schenck, Mildred Walker and Rena Williams chaperoned.

Mrs. R. R. Green gave a birthday party for her daughter, Miss LuClaire McFadden at her home Tuesday evening. The home was tastefully and patriotically decorated with flags, red, white and blue paper, in honor of Armistice Day. Miss McFadden received many lovely presents.

The evening was spent in dancing. The guests who were present were: Misses Lena Mae Brooks, Beatrice Kerns, Alice Atkinson, Fannie Richards, Bertha Collins, Mildred Downing, Thelma Richards, Lillian Ashburn, Mildred Walker, Bessie Schenck, Rena Williams, Gladys Cox, Zanta Dubois, Verne Sandlin, Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Nannie Stone and Messrs. Jay Butler, Thomas MacCamant, Oran Downing, Bythal Jolly, Delbert Jolly, Glen Greer, Alan Davidson, E. F. Davidson and John Messer. At eleven o'clock delightful refreshments consisting of cake, fruit salad with whipped cream and hot chocolate were served by Mrs. Green.
