

Harding Gets Everything But South States

New York, Nov. 3.—The Republican landslide continued to roll along in even greater proportions today as belated election returns came in from the west.

Besides electing Warren G. Harding president, it was assured that the Republicans would increase their margin in both houses of congress, and in the senate, in particular, would change their precarious control to one of a substantial working majority.

Congressional returns from many states were slow, as were, indeed, the returns on the vote for president, but the Republican majority in congress is increased; that is certain.

On the basis of actual returns at hand and indications from partial returns coming in, it seemed that Harding would have not less than 336 votes in the electoral college, with a probability of more than 395, while all that could be counted in the Cox column were the 136 votes from the solid south.

League Rejection is Planned by Senators

Washington, Nov. 3.—Should President Wilson re-submit the peace treaty to the senate, as has been suggested here, it will be rejected by an immediate vote, according to the best information obtainable in senatorial circles here tonight. The members of the senate, it was stated, regard the vote at Tuesday's election as a complete repudiation of both the League of Nations and the treaty and will act accordingly.

3 Banks and Jeweler Are Robbed of $129,000

Chicago, Nov. 3.—A nail file in his vest pocket saved the life of Policeman P. Leonard when it deflected a bullet fired by one of three robbers who held up the policeman and Jacob Yanowitz, a bank messenger, and escaped with $50,000 after shooting the messenger twice.

St. Paul, Nov. 3.—Three unmasked men held up the Shapiro Jewelry Store in the business district here and escaped in an automobile with diamonds said to be worth $90,000.

Detroit, Nov. 3.—Five men entered the Hastings street branch of the Commonwealth Federal Savings Bank here, compelled four bank employees and seven patrons to lie face downward on the floor, obtained currency estimated at $15,000 and escaped in an automobile.

Tennessee, Oklahoma and Missouri, always heretofore solidly Democratic, have joined the Republican column with substantial majorities.

Mechem Wins By A Safe Majority

Latest advices before going to press assures us of the complete victory of the entire State Republican ticket. Mr. Hanna may now content himself with the fact that he has gone the route taken by Mr. Cox. After weeks of yelling "bosses! bosses!" he has, like Governor Cox, met defeat at his own hand. When in Carrizozo, he charged that these so-called "bosses" had bought up newspapers all over the state. He claimed that Judge Mechem, while a good fellow, was led by "bosses." His campaign from beginning to end was replete with charges of "bosseyism."

On the other hand, he charged that our sheep men were not paying "sufficient taxes. His speeches were unjust criticisms of some of our most prominent men, among whom was Senator Albert B. Fall. Judge Hanna is a good man, but under the circumstances, he listened to the whisperings of such men as Bob Putney, who, with his tirade against many of our public men, contributed in a great measure to Judge Hanna's defeat. Headed by the Albuquerque "Mourning" Journal (apologies to the Albuquerque Herald) and the Santa Fe New Mexican, they claimed that all the state had been or ever would be, was a long line of unpardonable sins without the election of the democratic state ticket. Their boasts about fusion to defeat Judge Mechem failed to materialize, as did other things of their boasting. They made vicious attacks on Nestor Montoya and Land Commissioner Nelson A. Field without a cause. These gentlemen mentioned, are men of the people and consider a public office, a public trust, hence the false accusations which the people refused to believe. A lesson: Let the evil, forsake their ways and let them wipe their hands of mud-slinging and return to better and more convincing methods of politics.

First German Ship Since 1914 Reaches New York

New York, Nov. 4.—The first merchant steamship flying the German flag to come to the port of New York since July, 1914, arrived here today.

The vessel, which marks the resumption of trade with Germany under the flag of that country, was the Sophie Rickmers, of 4,863 tons, built in Germany during the war. She is flying the old German merchant marine flag and is assigned to the Kerr Steamship Company as American agents. The ship is in ballast and will take cargo here for the return voyage.

Bryan Suggests Wilson Should Resign At Once

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 3.—William J. Bryan, in Chicago today, gave out a statement suggesting that "President Wilson should resign at once."

Whatley—McKeown

On October 27, 1920, at the hour of 9 A. M., in the city of Del Rio, Texas, occurred the marriage of Mr. W. C. Whatley and Miss Genevieve McKeown. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Chatillion at the home of the bride, the attendants being the family circle and many admiring friends.

The bride was reared in Corpus Cristie, Texas, where her many friends, together with those of Del Rio, extend their heartiest congratulations. The groom is a member of the law firm of Hamilton & Whatley, Carrizozo, N. M. Mr. Whatley has been a resident of this place for the past year, during which time he has made friends to the number of acquaintances he has made. The new Mrs. Whatley is a charming lady with many accomplishments and the Whatleys, who will make Carrizozo their future home, will be good additions to our growing population. We extend to them the hand of welcome.

2 Years and $5,000 Fine For Sugar Profiteering

Bay City, Mich., Nov. 3.—Convicted in Federal court here on charges of profiteering in sugar and dealing in it without a license Luther Ellison of Jonesboro, Ark., was sentenced to two years at Fort Leavenworth and fined $5,000.

Debs Says Result Should Be Lesson to Democrats

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 4.—"There never was any doubt about the result of Tuesday's election," Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for president, said in a statement yesterday.

"The fate of the Democratic party was sealed at the Versailles peace treaty. One thing was made clear by the election returns. President Wilson, Attorney General Palmer and Postmaster General Burleson now know what the American people think of their despotic administration."

Henry Lutz gratefully acknowledges his thanks to the people of this County for their support at the recent election.

"SOMETHING WRONG HERE."

Synopsis.—Circumstances having prevented Spalding Nelson, clerk, from joining the American forces going to France, he is in a despondent mood when he receives an invitation to dinner from his great-uncle, Rufus Gaston. On his way to the house he meets, under peculiar circumstances, a young girl, apparently in trouble, to whom he has an opportunity to be of slight service. She lives in the same apartment building as Rufus Gaston, and he accompanies her home.

CHAPTER I.—Continued.

Although I tried to pretend an interest in their conversation and absent ly answered their questions about my family, my thoughts kept constantly recurring to the strange trouble of the girl across the hall, her plight in- teresting me far more than the pur- pose for which my great-uncle had sent for me. I had expected that he would broach that subject himself, but the coffee arrived and still the con- versation had been limited to stilted family chat. As we returned to the living room, I decided to give him a lead:

"My mother wrote me—" I began. "Oh, yes," said old Rufus, looking relieved.

"Yes, yes, of course," echoed Mrs. Gaston.

I waited for one or the other of them to proceed but for some reason they both seemed at a loss for words.

"You tell him, Rufus," said my great-aunt at last.

His tired old eyes studied my coun- tenance carefully, searchingly, as if he was trying to read my soul.

"What is it?" I asked impatiently.

"It is this," said old Rufus, speak- ing slowly and with effort, as if he hated to disclose his intentions.

"Three days from now—that will be Sunday morning—my wife and I are going to Maine to be gone for some months. We have leased a furnished cottage there and shall take our ser- vants and our motor with us. We do not like to leave this apartment wholly untenanted, and it occurred to Mrs. Gaston that you might occupy it in our absence."

I am afraid my countenance at that moment must have betrayed my con- sideration. My great expectations vanished, blew up, disappeared. They did not want me for an heir but for a caretaker. What a fool I had been to imagine for one moment that this pe- nurious old couple had contemplated doing anything for me. They wanted me to do something for them. A sar- castic refusal of their proffer trem- bled on my lips but was stayed by my great-aunt speaking:

"It will enable you to save your room rent. Mr. Gaston will pay the rent in advance before we go. There will be no one here to serve your meals so you will have to get them elsewhere, but I will arrange with my landlady to come in once a day to make up your room, and you'll be under no expense."

Her suggestion that I would have no room rent to pay decided me. Two other considerations also influenced me. It might be a plan on the part of the old people to try me out and see if I was trustworthy, and then, dwelling under the same roof with Barbara Bradford, I might have op- portunities of seeing her again, and who knows, perhaps of assisting her out of her mysterious plight.

"I shall be very glad indeed to come," I found myself saying. "It was nice of you both to think of me."

"We'll consider the matter settled," announced old Rufus. "We are un- used to guests here, so you had better come at ten on Sunday, an hour after we have started."

"Rufus," suggested my great-aunt apprehensively, "had you not better give him the combination of the wall safe? My jewels are there, and in case there should be a fire—"

"Why not take them with you?" I interrupted.

"They are a nuisance when you are traveling," she objected.

"A safe deposit box would be bet- ter, then."

"No," said old Rufus shortly. "Both my safe deposit boxes are full and there is no use hiring another one. The jewels will be all right where they are. In case of fire you can re- move them to a place of safety. This is the combination—see that you re- member it—six right, four left, two right, eight left, 6,4,2,3."

"I'll remember it," I replied, men- tally repeating it over and over again.

"And now, my dear," said the old gentleman, "if you will get the keys from my desk, we can permit our nephew to depart."

My great-aunt left the room to do his mission. The minute she was safely out of hearing old Rufus' whole manner underwent a startling change. Into his deep-set gray eyes came a look of terror. His face became ashen, and the withered hand with which he clutched my arm was trembling vio- lently.

"Listen, boy," he hissed, leaning for- ward that he might speak into my ear and looking about apprehensively as if he feared to be overheard. "Listen—there's something wrong here."

My first thought was that he had been suddenly stricken with senile dementia, but recalling his perfectly rational conduct throughout the rest of the evening, I dismissed the theory as absolutely untenable. His fear, whatever caused it, certainly seemed very real.

"Something wrong?" I repeated, wondering. "What do you mean? What is it?"

He clutched my arm in a still tight- er grasp, and his voice, suppressed to a terrified whisper, became more in- sistent.

"I don't know," he breathed. "I wish I did." He glanced timorously about and went on. "There's something wrong! I sense it. I feel it. I can- not find out what it is. All kinds of queer things happen. I am always hearing voices—whispers, whispers, whispers! That is why we are going away. My wife thinks it is on ac- count of my health. I don't want her to know. Please, please, Spalding, find out what it is before we return. I have no son. There is no one else but you to do it. Solve the mystery for me. Find out about the whispers. Promise me you will. Shh—not a word to her! Not a word!"

He withdrew his hold on my arm and laid his finger on his lips as he heard his wife returning. With a vis- ible effort he straightened up, and when she entered the room he appar- ently had entirely recovered his self- possession and was his natural self again, a dignified, world-weary old man.

"I can't find your keys, Rufus," said my great-aunt, "you had better get them yourself."

The minute he left the room she hastened to my side and she, too, be- gan to whisper mysterious warnings, exhibiting a terror hardly less than her aged husband's.

"This is a house of mystery," she announced. "I'm always hearing strange sounds here. He doesn't know"—with a nod in the direction old Rufus had gone, "and I do not want him to. That is the reason I am tak- ing him away. Solve the mystery of it before we return. I'll pay you. I'll make it well worth your while."

Her husband's shuffling in the pas- sage warned her of his return, and she quickly dropped my arm. As he en- tered she was telling me in quite nor- mal tones to be sure to remember her to my mother the next time I wrote.

Old Rufus handed me the keys, ex- plaining which was which.

"And remember," said my great- uncle, as he escorted me to the door, "you are not to come until Sunday morning at ten, after we have gone. And remember the combination of the safe—Remember!"

The insistent way in which he re- peated the word conveyed to me force- fully that what he most wanted me to remember was the strange warning he had given me, and as I clasped his hand in parting I tried by the firm- ness of my grip to let him know that I understood.

"Remember," repeated my aunt, too, as she stood there in the door a little behind him, at the same time giving me a significant look.

Yet, puzzling as had been the con- duct of both of them, my memories that night were not of their warn- ing nor of the combination of the safe nor of the hour at which I was to arrive. They were of the most beau- tiful eyes I ever had seen and of the haunting terror written in them.

CHAPTER II.

Sunday morning came at last. It was hardly eight when I set out for my new quarters, taking with me only one small handbag and leaving my two trunks for the expressman. In the time intervening since my visit to the Gaston home I had done but little except speculate on the mysteri- ous warnings that both of the old peo- ple had surreptitiously given me. It seemed so utterly improbable and im- possible that there could be any in- explicable mystery about a home in a modern, up-to-date apartment house in the center of a civilized city. And if there was a mystery, why did they stay there? Why didn't they move?

Yet, as I pondered over the matter, I was convinced that both my great- uncle and his wife were rational. I dismissed without hesitation the the- ory that there could have been any supernatural happenings to affright them. It was probable, I decided, that their fears might have been played on by some conspiracy on the part of their servants to induce them to spend a season in Maine. Perhaps there was some specter from my great- uncle's past now rising to confront him that he was seeking to hide from his wife. It might be that she knew of it or had received threats and was trying to conceal the matter from him.

There are few men of millions with- out some secret shameful pages in their lives. As I remembered that old Rufus Gaston's dollars had been made in South America, all that I had heard and read of plots and counter- plots below the equator came buzzing into my brain. If such should be the case, that some betrayed conspirator now was seeking vengeance, more than ever I welcomed the unexpected chance that had thrown this oppor- tunity for adventure in my prosaic path.

Yet maybe their warnings were jus- tified. There was Barbara Bradford, who lived under the same roof, on the very floor with them. She seemed to be caught in the web of some plot, to be living in fear of some mysterious peril.

Was she, I wondered, in any way connected with the mystery that over- hung the Gaston home? Did my great- uncle and his wife know her? Her mission to the park had been to get some papers. Could they have been in any way involved with what was menacing my great-uncle's peace of mind? How I regretted now that I had not asked the Gastons if they knew Mrs. Bradford. How I wel- comed the opportunity I was now to have of living in the same apartment house with her, close at hand if ever I could serve her. I was glad now that cir- cumstances had prevented my going to France with Birge and Roller.

As I arrived at my great-uncle's cor- ner, I saw Mrs. Bradford approaching from the opposite direction. She was in riding togs. I timed my steps to reach the corner as she did. Would she, I wondered, consider our strange meeting a few evenings before suffi- cient introduction to justify her speak- ing to me.

"Good morning, Mr. Nelson," she greeted me pleasantly. "Making an early call, aren't you?"

"I'm coming here to live for a while," I answered, falling into step with her. "The Gastons are going to Maine and have asked me to occupy their apart- ment while they are away."

As we chatted we had entered the building, and as before I went into the elevator with her. As I left her at the door, wondering if she had had any more encounters in the park, yet hardly daring to ask, she turned to me, half apologetically, and said:

"Mr. Nelson, since you've come to live here in the house, I must be care- ful. We have not been introduced, and my people will think it strange if they see me speaking to you. You understand, don't you? You must not speak to me or recognize me until—"

"Until what?" I cried eagerly.

"Until we can manage to be prop- erly introduced."

"Yet," I insisted, "you promised to let me help you."

"I have not forgotten. I'm grateful, really I am. Perhaps I may call on your services, I may have to. If I do, I'll find some way of letting you know."

"Some secret way," I suggested, half sarcastically.

"Perhaps," she laughingly nodded as we separated.

As I took out the keys my great- uncle had given me and entered the apartment, I looked about me with a wholly new interest. That little word "mine" makes a vast difference in the way we regard things. Now that these luxurious quarters were to be my home, temporarily at least, I look- ed about curiously. Certainly as I glanced there was nothing mysterious in the atmosphere. Setting my bag down I began an immediate inspec- tion of the rooms.

The Gaston apartment, I discovered, occupied one whole side of the sixth floor of a twelve-story building. Around the elevator shaft that came up through the center was a small square court with four doors, two opening into the Bradford apartment opposite and two into the one I was occupying. The east apartments were known as Six A and the west as Six B. The door by which I had entered led into a lofty foyer, connecting by sliding doors with a great dining room, and beyond it, in the front of the house, with a reception or living room that ran the entire width of the apartment. Back of the elevator, with a separate door for the servants' use, were the kitchen, the butler's pantry, a servant's sitting room and two bedrooms. From the foyer a long hall ran almost the length of the building. On the servants' side it was blank as to doors, save for the passage from the pantry to the dining room, but on the other side several doors opened into spacious sleeping rooms, each with its own bath. As I was wondering which of the bedrooms my great-aunt had expected me to occupy, I noticed still another door which I found led into a small bed- room on the servants' side of the house but unconnected with their quarters. While it was less elabo- rately furnished than the rooms oppo- site, it was comfortable enough, and it had a spacious bathroom adjoining. The fact that the bed here had been left turned down was evidence enough that it was intended for my occupancy. Returning to the foyer to get my bag and unpack it, I was startled by the ringing of the front doorbell.

I sprang eagerly to answer it. It must be Miss Bradford. Probably she had reconsidered and had decided to take me into her confidence. Who else could it be? There was no one else who knew I was in the apart- ment. It must be Miss Bradford!

With an exclamation of welcome on my lips I swung open the door. A man stood there—an utter stranger. In my disappointment I was almost closing the door in his face, but as if antici- pating my thought he quickly advanced one foot over the sill and kept it there.

"Well," I demanded, almost savagely, "what do you want?"

"Oh, it is you, is it?" he replied, eye- ing me with what seemed to me a most insolent stare.

"What do you mean?" I asked, be- wildered. Certainly I never had seen this person before. He was short and stocky, with sparse nondescript hair and weak, shifty blue eyes. His face had an unhealthy pallor, as if he had lived long away from the sunlight, and was sunken in as if from under- nourishment, yet the breadth of his shoulders and his huge rough hands seemed to indicate physical strength beyond the ordinary.

"You're Mr. Spalding Nelson, aren't you?"

"That's my name," I answered shortly.

"Mr. Gaston's—" He paused, as if trying to recall the relationship.

"Mr. Gaston's great-nephew."

"I guess you are him, all right," he said, in a manner of evident relief. "I'm Mr. Wick, the superintendent of the house."

"Of course," I answered, feeling rather foolish at my own vexation.

"Mr. Gaston told me you were com- ing in this morning," he hastened to explain.

"He gave me a description of you," Mr. Wick went on, unperturbed, "and the boys in the hall were pretty sure it was you that came in, but—"

"But what?"

"I couldn't understand it. You didn't announce yourself. It seemed funny, your coming in with the young lady from next door."

"It just happened that way," I ex- plained, now understanding his mysti- fication. "I met her as I was com- ing in."

"Twice," he said, rather insolently. "I can't see that it is any of your business," I retorted angrily, "if it happened a dozen times."

His manner at once became apolo- getic, and he hastened to offer ob- sequious explanations.

"Mr. Gaston asked me to take par- ticular notice. The other evening when you were coming to dinner he told me to tell the hall boys to look at you closely so that they could iden- tify you as the right party when you came in today. That was how it hap- pened. You see, sir, in a house of this sort we have to be careful. It doesn't do to let strangers prowl about without finding out who they are and what they are doing."

REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Extraordinary Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I want to let you know what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I had organic troubles and am going through the Change of Life. I was taken with a pain in my side and a bad headache. I could not lie down, could not eat or sleep. I suf- fered something terrible and the doctor's medicine did me no good at all—my pains got worse instead of better. I began taking the Vegetable Compound and felt a change from the first. Now I feel fine and advise any one going through the Change of Life to try it, for it cured me after I had given up all hopes of getting better. You can publish this and I will tell any one who writes to me the good it has done me."—Mrs. MARGARET DANZ, 743 N. 25th Street, Phila., Pa.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will con- tinue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond con- tradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

Profitable Time to Build

It is more than likely that with winter oncoming there will be a greater demand than ever for houses, and buildings erected this fall will prove profitable investments.

Every section of the United States is feeling the housing shortage. It is seen in the inability to rent a house in any city or town, in fact the apartment houses are all packed to the limit and the hotels of the cities so filled with permanent roomers that the transient traveller finds the doors closed against him and in the face of such a condition the building trade seems the last of our country to get under headway after the close of the war.

Our country is three or four years behind in its building industry and money put into housing, especially of the cheaper construction, will pay big returns.

The new Glory of our Stars and Stripes breezes up again.

The County Election

Thursday's election brought many surprises in the political ranks of both parties. From the time the polls opened until the closing time, the Court House was the scene of activity on the part of the voters of both sexes. The ladies, realizing their importance in the contest, flocked to the polls to exercise their right to suffrage which had been so long denied them. The result, as we have said, brought surprises. In the contest for Sheriff, the race was so close that it up to the last minute the situation was such that none would venture a bet as the struggle changed from one side to another. Both candidates worked hard as shown by the vote. Mr. Duran has nothing to regret. He made a gallant fight, only losing by the small majority of seven votes.

Mrs. M. L. Blaney's victory was won solely on her past efficiency. In the beginning of the campaign she offered her record to the voters as her grounds for asking to be returned to the office of County School Superintendent.

dent. How well the people understood her capability, efficiency and painstaking service was shown by the handsome vote she carried. Remarkable as it may seem, for the first time in the history of Lincoln County politics, three candidates on the Republican Ticket were elected on the Board of County Commissioners. Mr. Lujan led his comrades with a majority of 296, with Dr. Stone following with 96, which, in the face of the opposition he had during the campaign, made his victory one to be proud of. During the entire life of the campaign, the Doctor was confined to his practice with many patients in his care needing his constant attention, but friends knowing that this absence was imposed on and taken advantage of, rallied to his support in a manner that, together with his open letter to the voters stating his position and correcting erroneous statements made against him, bore fruit in a remarkable degree to his credit. Mr. Hulbert had a hard battle to fight on account of his opponent being well established in the same locality as himself, which, as we all know, regardless of past party affiliations, oftentimes divides the vote. His majority of 59 was the result of hard work, obtained by a clean campaign waged by a capable, conscientious and deserving man. Messrs. Lujan, Stone and Hulbert will compose a Board of County Commissioners possessed of good business ability and sound judgment, which will make a board that will be a people's board in every sense of the term. Elerdo Chavez, the newly elected Probate Judge, has much to be proud of, as his opponent, Judge Kimbrell, was a strong man, well known and to win over a gentleman like Judge Kimbrell is an honor indeed. To the defeated candidates let us say: You made a good, clean fight and the small majorities against you show how well your work was done. To the good warrior, defeat is only an incentive to more heroic efforts in the future—Try again.

LEAD WORLD IN TELEPHONES AT LEAST ONE GIRL SORRY

Americans, With Their Business Instinct, Have Naturally Taken Kindly to the Instrument.

Veteran Had to Confess He Left Behind Him in France One Borrowful Maiden.

The telephone is an American invention, and we Americans have learned to use it better than any other people. Four-fifths of the world's telephones are in the United States. No other country has the exchange system developed to give such convenient service. In some of the most progressive European countries the exchange system is so cumbersome that it usually requires ten or fifteen minutes to get a connection.

The telephone in this country has expedited the transaction of business. Without our efficient telephone service, the work of most of our great industries would be slowed up and made more expensive. No other country has a rural system that compares with ours. The telephone has definitely affected and molded our business methods and our social and domestic life.—Alfred Westfall, Colorado Agricultural College.

"Jack," she asked, "was there a girl in France who was sorry to see you go?"

"Dear, I don't like to talk about it—"

"Oh, Jack, how could you when all the time you were engaged to me!"

Weird Story Has New Mexico-Texas Setting
(Alamogordo News)

A story gained circulation in the southwestern papers this week that is a fit subject for a movie scenario.

The story relates how a man by the name of B. J. Cochran, who was under indictment in Socorro County, N. M., for the murder of a couple of stockmen in the western part of that county, had evaded trial and also secured a few thousand dollars in life insurance by pretending death.

The story is as follows:

Apparent solution of the "empty grave" mystery with the arrest of a man said by Aspermont, Texas, officers to be B. J. Cochran, may be followed by an attempt on the part of New Mexico authorities to extradite him so that he may be tried for the alleged murder of Bruce Cooper and Jim Cooper, ranchmen near Socorro, about two years ago.

The man said to be identified as Cochran, was arrested on a goat ranch near Sterling City, Texas. He was "batching" and taking care of his five children, the oldest of whom is only seven years of age.

In Aspermont Cochran was indicted on charges of swindling an insurance company out of $2,000. New Mexico officers expect the Aspermont authorities will not surrender Cochran for extradition until after he has been tried in Texas.

The announced death of Cochran at Aspermont, March 9, 1919, followed by a funeral service and the burial of a coffin, supposed to contain the body of the man, it is alleged, enabled the man's "widow" to collect $10,000 life insurance.

Two weeks ago the grand jury at Aspermont ordered the grave uncovered, because Cochran had been seen alive. An empty box, minus coffin and body, was found, causing a state-wide search for Cochran, which apparently was ended with the arrest of the man at Sterling, Texas.

Cochran went to Texas on March 1, 1919, reports of his death were circulated in Aspermont, and on the following day funeral services were held in a country church yard near the Cochran home. A brief service conducted by a clergyman there and attended by a score of friends preceded the lowering of the coffin into the grave. The "widow," it is said, asked that the coffin be not opened at the grave. Influenza was raging and little was thought of the request. A fraternal organization placed a monument over the grave. Reports, 18 months later, that Cochran had been seen alive resulted in his apprehension and arrest, according to word from the little Texas city.

Wife Who Killed Labor Chief, Guilty

New Haven, Nov. 2. — Mrs. Alexandria Sokolowsky, indicted for the murder of her husband, Frank, by throwing acid in his face while he slept on June 25, pleaded guilty today to manslaughter and was sentenced to State prison for seven to ten years.

Sokolowsky was a labor leader employed by the Connecticut Federation of Labor, was a linguist, and a man of many accomplishments. Mrs. Sokolowsky said after her arrest in New York that she threw the acid "to spoil Frank's good looks," after finding in his pocket a letter from another woman. Her defence was looked after by Russian organizations. The exact story of her husband's career has never been divulged.

Last of Custer's Band Killed by Motor Car

Toledo, Nov. 3. — Frank Fleck, believed to have been America's last survivor of Custer's band of Indian fighters, was killed by an automobile on a suburban road near here last week. Fleck, a ship carpenter, had made his residence in Toledo many years.

When Custer's troops were mustered to pursue Indian renegades Fleck was attached to Reno's division. He suffered four bullet wounds and escaped with Reno's troops, who had become separated from Custer.

Fleck was one of seventeen who enlisted from Toledo in the regular army in 1867. He was assigned to the Seventh Cavalry, which was sent against the Sioux Indians under Sitting Bull. He was seventy years old.

Carrizozo School Notes
(By Supr. E. E. Coia)

Do not forget the science entertainment at the High School Friday night of next week. It is free to all.

The pupils of the third grade, Miss Humphrey's room, are memorizing Longfellow's poem, The Village Blacksmith, which they do not find difficult, due to a recent visit to a real blacksmith shop. Miss Humphrey and her pupils feel very grateful to Mr. Lantz for the courteous treatment and kindly interest he took in showing the various tools and demonstrating the use of each.

The Carrizozo schools were honored last Friday by a visit of inspection from our genial and very capable Assistant State Superintendent of Schools, Mr. John V. Conway. The entire day was spent in visiting the schools and making talks to the students. Not a word of a political nature was uttered, the message being entirely educational. The students were urged to make life a success, not a failure; to detest failure, in fact. Earn your promotions. "Hit the ball 100 per cent efficient." To the Spanish-American students he said, "Speak your Spanish if you wish to, but also get your English." Mr. Conway made a fine impression upon both teachers and pupils. He has been in educational work nineteen years and knows how to talk to boys and girls. Mrs. M. L. Blaney, our County Superintendent of Schools, accompanied Mr. Conway and addressed the pupils in every building.

Honor Roll, neither absent nor tardy during October:

Mrs. Craddock's room—Laterio Chavez, Antonio Naborro, Pelar Candelario.

Miss Hughes' room—Rebecca Lopez, Viviana Solis, Anita Solis, Simon Chavez, Jose Gonzales, Carlos Martinez, Salvador Ortiz, Nue Perez.

DENVER WOMAN HELD FOR CRIME

MRS. PEETE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY AT LOS ANGELES FOR MURDER.
TRIAL SET NOVEMBER 29
 REFUSED TO TESTIFY BEFORE JURY WHICH INDICTS HER FOR ACTION.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.
 Los Angeles, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Louise L. Peete of Denver, charged with the murder of Jacob Charles Denton, wealthy mining promoter, in an indictment returned by the Los Angeles county grand jury, is in the county jail awaiting trial in the Superior Court, set for Nov. 29.
 Proceedings against the former occupant of the Denton residence, in the cellar of which the mining man's body was found buried Sept. 23, moved with speed.
 She seemed calm when she entered the grand jury's rooms at 11:20 a. m., and still calm when she emerged two minutes later. She had used those two minutes, it was stated, to tell grand jurors she would not testify.
 Five minutes later, it was reported, the jury had voted to indict her.
 Then the jurors, preceded by Mrs. Peete, crossed the street to the Criminal courts in the Hall of Justice. Her husband, R. C. Peete, walked on one side of her and her chief counsel, W. J. Ford, on the other. On the short walk Mrs. Peete manipulated a cape as a shield against newspaper photographers.
 She kept her head covered even after she had entered the court room of Judge Frank R. Willis, where she looked straight before her while the judge read the indictment and while proceedings for the state were being conducted by Thomas Lee Woolwine, district attorney, and Deputies W. O. Doran and Raymond I. Turney.
 When the time came for her to plead she, uncovered her head and face and stood with head up and chin out.
 "You have heard the indictment," said the court. "How do you plead—guilty or not guilty?"
 Without a second's delay, and in a voice loud and clear and firm, the accused woman answered:
 "Not guilty!"
 Judge Willis said Nov. 29 was the earliest date available for the trial, and prosecution and defence agreed on that date.
 Then, while the crowd outside waited for another glimpse of her, Mrs. Peete was led across "the bridge of sighs" connecting the criminal courts with the county jail, to a cell.
 The evidence upon which the indictment was based was said to include these alleged facts:
 Mrs. Peete caused to be hauled into the Denton cellar the earth under which the body was buried.
 She caused the pawning of a diamond ring which had belonged to Denton.
 She disposed of his automobile.
 She gave away part of his clothing.
 She cashed checks bearing the signature of J. C. Denton, after, it is believed, he had been murdered.

MILL GIRLS MARRY YOUNG

Many Villages in the South Where There Are Absolutely No Old Maids Found.
 A village without an old maid sounds somewhat like a fairy tale, but several such places exist down below the Mason and Dixon line.
 "All the women get married in the mill villages of South Carolina, and at an early age," says a Y. W. C. A. industrial secretary stationed at Greenville, where she works among the girls in 13 mills.
 Perhaps economic independence has something to do with it, as marriage is not looked upon by the girls as a meal ticket, but as a fifty-fifty proposition. The wives do not give up their jobs but keep right on working.
 That the textile industry in South Carolina absorbs a large number of women as well as men workers is not surprising, considering the fact that there are as many as 15 mills in 29 counties. With the population of the state estimated at 1,500,015 people, 62,004 are mill workers, and 100,268 are dependents on mill pay. The valuation of the mills is $75,000,000 and the weekly pay roll is $1,000,000.
 The Cause.

John D. Rockefeller Enters Mean Man He Once Knew in the Championship Stakes.
 John D. Rockefeller once said to a New York reporter:
 "The poorest way to wealth is the mean way. In Richford, where I was born, we had a mean man, a very mean man; yet the fortune he left was a small—you might say a mean one."
 "At a church supper one night this man cut the corner of his lip with his knife. All searched their pocketbooks, but nobody had any court-plaster. What was to be done? The cut was bleeding."
 "Finally the parson produced a two-cent stamp and said:
 "Put this on the cut, squire. It will stop the hemorrhage, I believe."
 "Thank you," said the squire gratefully, and taking out his wallet, he placed the two-cent stamp in it, extracting at the same time a one-cent stamp of his own, which he proceeded to stick on the cut.
 "Thank you, parson," he repeated. "A penny saved is a penny earned."

Newport News, Va.—The attempt here of a mob of negroes to lynch Leador Cohen, white, after his automobile had run over a negro child, was frustrated by R. H. Cohen is held without bond, while the child, a girl, whose skull was fractured, cannot recover, hospital officials say. Ill-feeling has existed among the negroes of the city since three of them were killed in a fight with police.

Chicago.—The official ballot for election here will be one of the largest Chicago voters ever have had to wrestle with, it was said at the election commission's office. Forty-six trucks will be used in delivering the big ballots to the polling places.

PREPARE CAPONS FOR BEST PRICE

No Feed or Water Should Be Given for 24 Hours Before Fowls Are Killed.

STICKING METHOD FAVORED

Some Feathers Should Be Allowed to Remain as Distinguishing Mark—Pack in Neat Boxes of Most Convenient Size.

Capons selected for killing should be confined for 24 hours without feed or water to empty their crops completely. The usual method of killing is known as the sticking method. The fowl is hung up by the feet, the head in the left hand, and the whole body stretched to full length. The mouth is forced open and the blood vessels at the back of the throat are severed with a sharp narrow-bladed knife. The knife is then turned and the point plunged through the roof of the mouth to a point just behind and between the eyes, piercing the brain. The muscles are relaxed and the feathers come out easily.

Dry Picking is Best.
Capons should always be dry picked, as they look much better and as some of the feathers should be left on. The feathers of the neck and head, the tail feathers, those a short way up the back, the feathers of the last two joints of the wing, and those of the leg, about one-third of the way from knee to hip joint, should be left on. These feathers, together with the head of the capon, serve to distinguish it from other classes of poultry on the market, and consequently should never be removed. In packing, be careful not to tear the skin. Bad tears, poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture say, should be sewn up. Capons scalded and picked bare bring very little, if any, better prices than other poultry in the same condition.

Most markets require capons to be undrawn and the head and feet left on. Care should be used to cleanse the head and feet of all signs of blood and filth.

Pack in Neat Box.
After picking, the carcasses are hung in a cool place until the animal heat has entirely left the body, when they are ready to be packed. Like other poultry they should be packed in boxes of convenient size, holding a dozen carcasses, or in barrels. Every attention should be given to neatness and attractiveness, as this helps the sale and the price. During the time of year when most capons are marketed—January, February and March—no ice is necessary, but if for any reason they are shipped in warm weather they should be packed in ice.

LATE MOLTERS ARE FAVORED

Hens That Undergo Transformation During July and August Are Not Best Layers.

It has been observed that the best layers usually molt during the latter part of September or the months of October, November and December. Hens that molt during July and August are not the profitable hens, as they rest for three or four months while they grow their new feathers and will not start in laying until the following February or March. These hens are not the kind to use either in the breeding pen or the laying pen. In some cases, the early hatched pullets of the year previous will start molting during June, and a little judgment should be exercised in such cases. A check should be made with other tests.

Sudan Grass for Feed.
The feeding value of sudan grass is equal to timothy hay. In localities where soy beans or cowpeas do well these legumes may be grown in mixtures with the sudan grass.

FEDERAL INSPECTION PREVENTS BIG WASTE

Shippers, Receivers and Others Interested Assisted.

Sworn Statements as to Condition of Fruits and Vegetables Hastens Sales, Thereby Facilitating Distribution.

More than 25,000 inspections of fruits and vegetables moving in interstate commerce were made by representatives of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, during the 12 months ended June 30, 1920. This is an increase of 78 per cent over the number of inspections for the preceding year.

By the use of food products inspection service shippers, receivers and others interested can obtain sworn statements attesting the condition of perishable products received at central markets. With immediate evidence of the condition of the food sales are made promptly, thereby facilitating the distribution of the products handled. This prevents deterioration and waste on account of delays resulting from disputes as to the condition of products, hastens the release of cars and prevents unfair trade practices.

The bureau has some 40 representative offices located at 26 important market centers to make inspections upon request of those concerned with the shipments. A charge of $2.50 is made for less than half a carload and $4 for each half a carload or more.

STORING FOR BEST RESULTS

Important to Know Natural Keeping Qualities of Different Kinds and Varieties.

Before one can make a complete success in storing fruit and vegetable crops it is important to know the natural keeping qualities of the different kinds and varieties. Some kinds of fruits and vegetables do not keep well in storage and different varieties of fruit and vegetable crops must be handled differently to insure the best results.

CUT SWEET CLOVER FOR SEED

Difficult to Harvest Because Seeds Mature Unevenly—Stock Eat Some of Straw.

Sweet clover is difficult to harvest for seed because it matures its seeds unevenly. The best time to cut it for seed is when half the seed pods have turned dark, and any grain or corn harvester will bundle the clover nicely. The straw is usually woody, but stock will consume some of it. When it is too coarse for feed it makes mighty good material to plow under.

HEALTHY AND VIGOROUS HEN

Right Kind to Keep in Laying Pen for Production of Eggs—Dispose of Defects.

It does not matter how well bred a hen may be or how well we may try to feed her for egg production, if she is not naturally healthy and vigorous she will not be a bird to keep in the laying pen. Birds that have any physical defects should not be kept.

PLOWING IS EASIEST WORK

One of the nicest rainfalls of the season visited us Sunday. The beauty of it was, that it was not local, but far-reaching. Rain gauges along the E. P. & S. W. registered from 1.20 inches to a fraction over 2. Water holes on ranches overflowed and the rain being a steady downpour, will be of a vast amount of good to the ground after a spell of extremely dry weather. The earth is now cold and will hold a great amount of the moisture until spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith with the children, Nellie Lee, Charles Bradley and Catherine, left Thursday for Willard, Mo., where, after a two week's visit with relatives, they will go to Jacksonville, Fla., and other points in the south. They expect to be absent from Carrizozo about three months.

The place where the entertainment will be given had not been decided on when this information was obtained, but due notice of the same will be given in ample time for all to be fully informed. Be sure to attend.

A hunting party composed of Messrs. W. W. McLean, W. P. Dolan, George Olney, and Fred Shields returned with a fine 9-point buck, killed near the Mal Pais about twenty miles north of here. Big Masquerade Ball Saturday Night

The first masquerade ball of the season took place last Saturday night at Lutz Hall. It was a Hallowe'en affair and was attended by a large crowd of lovers of the dance. The hall was gorgeously decorated in Hallowe'en attire. Pumpkins adorned the walls while overhead in the west end of the hall, a large Hallowe'en moon shed its rays on the dancers. Ferguson's "Joy Makers" furnished the music; that's all we need to say, for when that musical organization is "on the job", everybody has a good time. The costumes were many, various and consisted of nearly every impersonation from Prince and Princess, to a funny negro banjoist.

Two prizes were given; one for the best lady character, and one for the best among the gentlemen. The weather was disagreeable, but this seemed to add to the interest. The affair was a grand success and will be followed by more of a like nature during the winter season. Thos. Carr was master of ceremonies.
