

TALES OF THE OLD FRONTIER

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FRONTIER COURTS AND FRONTIER JUSTICE

IN CONTRAST to the complicated court procedure of modern communities, administration of justice on the frontier of the Middle West was refreshingly simple and direct.

Frequently these pioneer judges knew little more of the law than the jurors, who were usually aware of that fact.

Another judge, who had the disagreeable duty of sentencing a man named Green to be hanged, called the man before him and said "Now, Mr. Green, I want you and all of your friends down on Indian creek to know that it's not me who condemn you, but the jury and the law.

When Mr. Green seemed a bit shy about naming a date that would be convenient, His Honor said severely: "Mr. Green, it is a very serious matter to be hanged. It can't happen to a man more than once in his life and you had better take all the time you can.

Assured that it did not, the judge then informed Mr. Green that this day four weeks would witness his taking-off.

"Oh, Mr. Turley," exclaimed the judge, "Mr. Green understands that he is going to be hanged this day four weeks as well as if I preached to him a month.

Mrs. James E. Cree Dies at Her Home in Scotland

Following an illness of several years duration, Mrs. James E. Cree, who was here in company with her husband in the year of 1919, and remained here during the summer months, returning to Scotland in the early fall, died at her old home, 'Tusculum,' North Berwick, Scotland, on June 14.

Many of our old residents will remember Mrs. Cree, who was a most pleasant lady to meet and possessed of a kind, charming disposition.

Joseph George, Old Resident, Dies

Sometime during the night of Sunday last, Joseph George, aged 68 years, and one of the oldest residents of this locality, passed away. The body was found in his bed at his home about six miles east of here by his brother, John, who lived near him.

The two brothers had lived in this locality for the past thirty years, living alone and unmarried. They employed themselves by raising fruit and vegetables for which many Carrizozo people would journey to their places at different times so that they might obtain the same fresh from the gardens.

Mausy—Mahaney

People of Fort Stanton, especially, will remember Miss Helen Mahaney, who is now Mrs. C. C. Massey, the wedding having occurred at Fort Bayard last week.

Victim of Carelessness

Tuesday afternoon, while out in search of his cow which had wandered off to a better grazing ground on the east side of the track, Joe Lopez, saw two boys within, as he afterwards stated, about 100 yards of him and were shooting at different objects with 22 calibre rifles.

While he was a ble to talk, Lopez said that the boys were dressed in overalls and seeing what had been done, ran across the track to the west side.

One thing about the progressive party is, that it don't progress a darned bit, but it keeps the radicals quiet for four years.

Suspenders have ceased to be a fad, but if millions of silver dollars are put in circulation, we will bet a new pink pair that they become faddish again.

It looks very much like rain at this writing, but I rather think some amateur prophet has the date covered with a prophesy. This will greatly offend old Jupiter and he may back out just to fool the prophet, but it might be that Hal young and Ed Comrey are praying again, if so, they are not doing a very good job of it.

The mining industry in Lincoln county is rather quiet just now, but cheer up, boys, because lead is holding its own on the market; copper is better; zinc is rising, this is due to curtailment of zinc production in Missouri fields.

A news item says that Gas Bags will soon be flying from coast to coast over our fair land; we fail to see any news in this, as ever since we can remember they have been flying around just before election day.

Crops that are up are doing well notwithstanding the continued drouth, and if the tender sprouts can hold up a few days longer the rainy season will surely come in July, and we will bet a hat on that, and give odds on the bet.

Mrs. Nora L. Shaw, daughters, Ernestine and Juanita, arrived at the Helen Rae mine the first part of the week to spend the summer with Mrs. Shaw's daughter, Mrs. C. L. Lumpkins.

"It appears, says the Columbia Record, that the Democratic party will have to disinherit the donkey and adopt the stork if it ever expects to assemble enough votes to win."

K. T. Byrne, Knights of Columbus Secretary, is up and about again after ten days illness.

Dr. and Mrs. Stewart entertained informally with dancing and cards at their home last Saturday night.

Miss Nell Vincent visited Miss Emma Kincannon at the Fort last week. She left Sunday for her home in Arkansas.

Miss Louise Kurtz and Mrs. Clyde L. Mayhew left Tuesday for their home in Albuquerque. They have been visiting Mrs. Frank C. Berry for the past week.

Miss Gertrude Coolidge is visiting her sister Mrs. W. A. Wunsch at the Fort this summer. She arrived last Sunday from Dodge City, Kansas, where she has been visiting.

Alfred F. Kersey returned Tuesday from a short vacation in Craig, Colorado. He immediately left for El Paso for a few days additional leave. Mrs. Kersey and baby Bill Jr., are remaining in Craig, Colo., for the summer.

Sunday June 21 will be Ladies Day at Fort Stanton when the local nine hooks up with the Mescalero Indians for a ball game. It is hoped that there will be a large crowd of the fair sex at this game. Remember, Ladies admitted free!

General plans for the 4th at Fort Stanton are shaping themselves nicely according to W. A. Wunsch, chairman of the committee. The Southern Pacific ball team of El Paso will be on tap with a strong nine for games the 4th and 5th; there will be horse racing, foot racing, tug of war, wild cow milking, tournament and other field events.

Work on the library which has taken so much time by so many Fort people, has about reached completion and it is hoped that it will be more effective in the future. During the catalogueing, great interest was manifested by the patients and also at the closing which was an evidence of the need of the library in the lives of many at the Fort.

Roy Vernon McCamant Dies After Short Illness

On June 8, Roy Vernon McCamant of Corona, aged 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. McCamant, died following a short illness caused by a ruptured appendix. Roy, who had never been ill before, except for short periods in childhood, left home for the purpose of looking for some cattle that had strayed away, but had not been in the saddle but a short time when he was taken violently ill and stopped at a neighboring rancher's home and his folks notified. His ailment was so acute that it was thought best to send him to El Paso, which was done, but to no avail. The funeral was held at the home of his parents near Corona and the remains interred in the Corona cemetery. He had been married but a few months and the sudden blow to the parents and the young wife was sad to the extreme. He leaves a wife, father, mother, two sisters and a brother to mourn his loss, and to whom the sympathy of the home community is extended. In another part of this paper will be found, a card of thanks to the many friends of the family, all of whom did all in their power to aid and assist the family in their bereavement.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK Dean of Men, University of Illinois (C. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

NEIGHBORS

"WHO is my neighbor?" the querulous lawyer asked the Christ, and it was the simple story of the despised Samaritan which was told him to illustrate the point. It is a story familiar to most people, no doubt. A certain man sets off for Jericho along a road and through a country difficult, dangerous, beset by perils. He is held up on the way, beaten, robbed, stripped of his clothing and left bleeding and broken by the roadside. Thirst and hunger and pain rack him, but the way is lonely and the travelers few.

In time a priest, educated, pious, well-fed, comfortably clothed comes down the road and hearing the groans of the unfortunate man lying by the way walks over and gazes at him curiously.

"How unfortunate," he probably murmured, but the man was no friend of his, he had been a fool to take such a journey alone and unprotected. Anyway it was the business of his friends to look after him, and the virtuous priest walked on.

It was a Levite, a religious aristocrat, who came next down the road. Hearing the groans of the injured man he walked discreetly on the other side so that his ears might not be annoyed by the cries of the sufferer or his body made unclean through physical contact with him. What was unpleasant, he would avoid. He was the selfish, self-satisfied, self-complaisant citizen.

It was the Samaritan, despised and socially outcast, from whom nothing should have been expected, who recognized the demands of brotherhood and whose tender heart turned toward the unfortunate man. He was a neighbor to him.

There was a letter in the mail this morning from John, asking for a loan of "three dollars." He was sick in a hospital in Hot Springs, he said, and needed a few comforts, not supplied by the management. He would return it when he came north in the spring.

John, you should know, is a "knight of the road" who does our house cleaning every spring. His buttons are not all on light, I'm afraid. Leading him money is not a wholly safe investment. I'm sure, John has few neighbors. But he does his work faithfully; he is loyal and honest, and just now he has fallen among thieves of a sort who have robbed him of his strength and his power to make a living.

"Better send it to him," Nancy said, and I, thinking of the Good Samaritan, went out and mailed him the "three dollars."

He paid it back in the spring.

Camp Lee Robinson I. O. O. F. Extends Cordial Invitation

With everything in readiness for a grand, good time on the glorious Fourth, Camp Lee Robinson extends a cordial invitation to all Oddfellows, Rebekahs and their friends to attend a big celebration at the Three Linkers' Summer Home on the Ruidoso. This will afford an opportunity for a day's enjoyment far away from the noise, heat, dust and worryment of the city and exchanging it for a cool mountain retreat where nature throws out her luring influences for rest, recreation and enjoyment. The only thing the Oddfellows at Camp Robinson ask is that those who come will bring their lunch baskets. There will be provisions made whereby cool drinks and ice cream may be had at reasonable prices, but visitors are expected to bring their lunch baskets. A large space is reserved at the Camp for dancing and good music will be furnished.

A Republic, Not a Democracy

IT IS surprising to note how often speakers and writers of note, who ought to know better, refer to the United States as a "democracy." It cannot too often be repeated that our government is not a democracy, but a representative republic.

James Madison, one of the leading figures of the convention which framed the American Constitution, and the most authoritative constitutional commentator of his time, said: "The two great points of difference between a republic and a democracy are: first, the governing power in a republic is delegated to a small number of citizens elected by the rest; and, second, a republic is capable of embracing a larger population and of extending over a wider area of territory than is a democracy."

Thomas Paine said: "A republic, properly understood, is a sovereignty of justice, in contradistinction to a sovereignty of will." Thus the great pamphleteer drew the distinction between a republic, "properly understood" and an autocracy or democracy.

The use of the misnomer democracy as descriptive of our form of government has continued to such an extent that when Alexander Hamilton is quoted as fearing and opposing democracy as a form of government it is assumed that he was criticizing government by the people.

Those who call our government a democracy are as far astray as if they denominated it an autocracy. It is neither. It is what our forefathers deliberately decreed, with the record of human experience before them, and an opportunity to choose the best form of government for the new nation—a representative republic.—The National Republic.

Needs of Livestock Industry Brought Out in Report

Jas. K. Wallace of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, who was secured by the Extension Service of the New Mexico A. & M. College to give a series of cattle grading demonstrations in the state last winter, has made some observations on the livestock situation as the result of this and other western trips. Mr. Wallace is a cattle producer on a large scale and speaks from the practical standpoint. In his opinion there are three major needs:

First, he states that the economic side of the industry should be given more consideration. By this is meant that the stockman should have a better knowledge of the grades, which will result in a greater tendency to sell even though the deals are made on the ranch. This will furnish the greatest incentive toward eliminating common and poor beef types and the undesirable foundation stock from herds.

His second point is that some form of control of grazing on the public domain is necessary. Protected areas in forests and private lands have increased their carrying capacity to 24 acres per head of cattle, while adjacent public lands which had an equal or greater carrying capacity some years ago have been reduced to the point where 70-75 acres are necessary per head. He also shows that the utilization of former range areas for farming operations in such areas as the dry farming lands in eastern New Mexico and Colorado and the plains of Texas, demand that the best possible use be made of our public domain if we are to maintain our supply of feeder cattle.

The third point that Mr. Wallace makes is that our percentage of calf and lamb crop must be increased. The man who gets an average calf crop of 45 per cent cannot compete with the one who by better management, is able to get 75 per cent. With the average life of a range cow figured at eight years, she is not going to be a profitable investment if she produces only three calves during her lifetime. His suggestions for improving this situation are: Control of the breeding season, separation of yearling heifers from the herd, the use of sufficient bulls, and conservative stocking of the ranges.—Extension Service Bulletin.

The Serial "IDAHO"

"Idaho", the Patheserial featuring Mahlon Hamilton and Vivian Rich and showing every Friday night at the Crystal Theatre, can lay claim to but one quiet moment throughout its twenty reels. That is the opening view, which is a scene to establish the locale of the story. It unfolds a panorama of awe-inspiring territory, seen for the first time on the screen, and photographed 5,600 feet above sea level. "Idaho" is a thrilling drama of the gold-rush days of the sixties, when there were no laws and might was right.

In all the furniture-world painted furniture is the most interesting. It offers splendid opportunity for expressing individuality in the choice of color and finish and its use in every part of the house advocated by the best decorators. Painted furniture may be used to furnish an entire room, or a piece or two like the Windsor chair available in the illustration will provide a relief note where the color scheme threatens to be too sombre. These pieces may be purchased in the usual wood and painted in any desired color. They may be stenciled or decorated with decalcomania transfers. The latter should be varnished or shellacked to make sure of their permanent adhesion.

ELECTRIC DATA SENT CONGRESS

Report Tells What's Being Done in Fourteen States to Study Electricity on the Farm.

IN CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

To have on record with the Congress of the United States the plans of the Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture, Dr. E. A. White of Chicago, the committee director, has sent a complete statement to Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas. At the instigation of Senator Capper this statement has been printed in the Congressional Record.

Dr. White's report reviews the circumstances that led to the formation of the committee, outlines its purpose and lists the states where electrical farm experimentation is going on.

He points out that the National Electric Light Association some five years ago appointed a rural lines committee, now called the rural service committee. This committee, Dr. White says, became convinced that the farm-electric problem could not be solved without the active co-operation of agricultural interests.

"No matter where we started or how far ahead we wandered," O. C. Neff of the National Electric Light Association declared, "we always came up again to the same stone wall: that however excellent electrical generation and distribution might be, the small annual consumption of electricity on the farm, outside of irrigated regions, was the primary obstacle. This is an agricultural problem and must be solved by men who are familiar with agricultural practices and tendencies."

Out of this conviction, Dr. White explains, came the present Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture, the make-up of which includes representatives of agriculture, of the electrical industry and of Federal government departments.

Broad and deep is the purpose of the committee, yet simple to state. It is divided into two heads: First, how service can be supplied to the farmer and what is involved in its establishment, and, second, how service can be utilized by the farmer so that it will be profitable to him.

Fourteen states are investigating the broad question, under the leadership of the national committee, of which Dr. White is the director. The experiments are in various stages of development in these different states.

Minnesota and Alabama will lead as the states where the greatest progress has been made. Michigan and New York are the most recent states to take up the question in an organized manner.

Navy Launches a Big Electric Ship

Even the queen ships of the United States Navy, the group of electrically driven fighting vessels that includes the U. S. S. Maryland and West Virginia, most powerful battleships in the world, will be excelled in propulsion power, speed and length by the U. S. S. Saratoga, the first of two airplane carriers just launched at Camden, N. J.

The other airplane carrier, the U. S. S. Lexington, will be launched this fall at Quincy, Mass. Originally, these two vessels were to have been battle cruisers and as such would have been classed the mightiest sea-war vessels possessed by Uncle Sam.

The Navy at present has but one airplane carrier, the U. S. S. Langley, named after the scientist who made the first practical investigation of aeronautics. This ship was rebuilt from the old collier, Jupiter, the first vessel of the Navy to be equipped with turbine electric drive.

The Saratoga and Lexington will be literally floating airplane bases. They will also be floating electric generating plants. As naval vessels they will be the longest in the world. Their power plants, installed by the General Electric Company, will be capable of developing the tremendous force of 150,000 horsepower.

Last Monday, they rigged themselves out in cowboy costumes, each rode a horse, led another one, and departed for the Block ranch where they will spend a portion of their vacation on the range in real cowboy fashion. William is not so enthusiastic as is his brother, Truman, and although the younger of the two, says he intends to spend a part of his time—breaking bronchos.

Canst Thou Beateth It?

From an Exchange: Consider the editor! A child is born unto the wife of a prominent individual in town. The physician getteth 25 plunks. The editor writeth a "stick and a half", and telleth the multitude that the child tippeth the beam at nine pounds. Yea, he lieth even as a centurion. And the proud father giveth him a Cremo.

Behold, the young-one groweth up and graduateth. Yea, a peach of a notice! He telleth of the wisdom of the charming young lady and her exceeding loveliness. Like unto the roses of Shakespeare is she, and her gown is 'played up' to beat the band. And the dressmaker getteth two score and four iron men. And the editor gets a note of thanks from the sweet girl graduate.

And the daughter goeth on a journey. And the editor throweth himself on the story of the farewell party. And the fair one remembreth him from afar with a picture post card that cost six for a jitney.

Behold, she returneth and the youth of the town fall down and worship. She picketh one, and lo, she picketh a lemon. But the editor calleth him one of our promising young men and getteth away with it. And they send unto the editor a bid to the wedding, and behold the bids are fashioned in a far city.

Flowery and long is the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister gets his bit. The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry and a card of thanks. And he forgetteth to read proof on the dead, and the darned thing cometh out "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place!"

And all those that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great jumps. And they pulloth out their ads and cancelleth their subs, and they swingeth the hammer even unto the third and fourth generations.

FINANCING PAINT CONTRACTS

By E. V. Peters
President, National Paint, Oil & Varnish Association

ONE of the most progressive moves made in the current history of painting is that of making it possible for every home owner to have his house painted at the necessary time and pay for it in small monthly installments. This has just been accomplished through the medium of large national financing corporations. Behind this movement have been men of vision, who for years past have recognized the public's need, particularly the need of the man receiving a small salary, and have hoped to solve the problem in such a way as to enable him to keep up appearances and at the same time protect his property against deterioration by keeping it always well painted.

The plan which has finally evolved from many years of experimenting is that of having the home or property painted at once and paying for it a little at a time until the full amount is paid. This partial payment plan has been in operation for many years along other and much simpler lines, but never before has it been applied to painting homes.

For many years, small salaried people have been able to purchase homes and furnish them on the partial payment plan. They have been able to equip them electrically and to install gas heaters and other gas and electrical equipment by making easy payments.

For a year or more, certain enterprising companies have been experimenting in the hope of applying the deferred payment plan to the painting of homes, so that it has actually been in operation for over a year with results that helped to speed it on its way, toward the standard and universal thing it has just become.

The perfecting of the partial payment plan makes it possible for every man or woman who owns a home to have it well painted as often as it needs it and pay for the work on easy terms. It is an advantage to a man in both his business and social life to have a well kept home, epic and span with its covering of paint. It is an indication of high morale and good citizenship. His home adds to the beauty of his community and increases the respect of his neighbors. When one stops to consider the fact that more than a billion and a half dollars worth of standing property is destroyed in this country every year by rot and rust and that insurance cannot be bought to cover this type of loss and depreciation, and that paint and varnish are the only known agents that will check the waste, the tremendous value of the new partial payment plan becomes immediately apparent to every home owner.

The steps in having a painting job done by the partial payment plan are simple. Either the home owner seeks a painter which he may do by applying for information at a paint store, or the painter wishing a job finds a home owner whose house needs painting. The painter submits an estimate of the cost to the home owner, who, in turn, providing the price is satisfactory, signs a contract in which he agrees to make a cash payment of one-fifth of the cost to the painter, and the balance to the finance company in not more than ten equal monthly installments.

When the work is finished, the painter mails the bill made out in the name of the owner to the financing company. This bill shows the total amount of the contract, the cash payment and the balance due. The finance company, in turn, mails this bill to the owner for approval. On receipt of the approved bill from the owner, the financing company pays the painter the entire amount, still due after making a deduction to cover the charge for service to painter and the interest, while the home owner, himself, still has ten months in which to finish paying for the painting of his home.

Lincoln Forest Notes
Forest Supervisor Arthur is on the Whita Mountain - Patos District on general administration work. He will remain for another ten days. Assistant Forest Supt. Salton and Supt. of Road Construction Cottam are now surveying out the route of the road from Clodcroft to the Reservation Boundary. Construction on this project will begin in the near future.

The Alamosordo office is in receipt of a few 'cave pearls' from the Hilton cave on the Guadalupe district of the Lincoln Forest. They were procured by Dr. Judd, who is in charge of the exploration of the caves in that section of the country. The pearls each contain a piece of charcoal around which the mineral matter has formed. Dr. Judd states that the Guadalupe caves are the most interesting he has visited.

During present fire season the Lincoln force has suppressed 22 fires. Of these, eleven failed to reach a size of 1-4 acres, seventeen did not cover ten acres, and five were greater than ten acres. Of the total 17 were from man-made agencies. Six persons have paid fines for carelessness with fires before various Justices of the Peace during the same period.

The new road from the Warrnock mine to the Woods ranch is nearing completion and the crew will be moved into the Clodcroft-Mescalero Project in a few days.

Recently 160,000 board feet of timber was advertised for sale in the Grindstone Canyon unit on the Ruidoso District and a contract was awarded Mrs. W. R. White, the successful bidder.

The Ladies Aid Society of M. E. Church will picnic at the Grand Canyon, Wednesday, June 24. Meet at the church, everybody invited. Be at the church at 10 o'clock.
