Woman's Club

The Woman's Club reception to the teachers was held at the home of Mrs. L. J. Adams Friday evening at 8 o'clock with the following program:

Helm; Saxophone solo, Prof. Burkett; Vocal solo, Mrs. L. J. Adams; Piano solo, Mrs. W. P. Loughrey; Piano solo, Miss Alene Thompson. Mrs. Huppertz conducted several interesting guessing games in which the successful contestants were awarded novel prizes. The officers of the club for the present club year were in receiving line and served delicious sherbet and cake to about sixty guests.

Regular meeting will be held Sept. 17, at home of Mrs. J. E. Farley at 3 p. m. All members and others interested are invited.

Sadness Pervades Our Community

Following in the wake of the past week's pleasant community events in which all joined so heartily, a pall settled over the town yesterday morning when the sad news reached here that Miss Maurine Collier, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Collier, had been drowned in a large tank on her father's ranch near Coyote.

At the entertainment at the Crystal Theatre Wednesday night, given by the Chamber of Commerce, Miss Collier was at the ticket window and as usual passed words of good cheer to her many friends who passed into the theatre and little did they think that these friendly interviews were to be the last on earth, for on the following morning, in company with her mother, and Miss Jean Stewart, she drove to the Collier ranch about eight miles above here, where they were to take a plunge and return in time to take up her duties at the First National Bank, where she was employed.

The ladies had finished their plunge and were preparing to start home, when Miss Maurine decided to take another dip and when about twenty-five feet from shore, she began to sink. Mrs. Collier and Miss Stewart did everything in their power to save her. Miss Stewart tried to reach her with an inner-tube of an auto, but her struggles were so intense that the effort failed and she sank for the third time.

Miss Stewart could not start the car, so she ran the distance of two miles to Coyote for help and two section men came and diving down, passed a rope under the body and raised it to the surface, after which undertaker Kelley took charge of the remains.

The funeral services will be held at the Methodist Church Sunday morning at 9 o'clock with the Rev. Ludlow conducting the same and the Eastern Star of which organization deceased was a member, will attend in a body, the particulars of which, together with a sketch of the life of this estimable young lady, will appear in our next week's issue. A pall has settled over Carrizozo; the entire community mourns her loss and the united sympathy of this locality goes out to the sorrowing father and mother.

Railroad Rumbblings

Fireman Ira Greer, who is running out of Tucumcari, visited his family here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smith, ex-manager of the S. P. Club House, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, spent several days in Alamogordo and El Paso this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Otto, who had been visiting here for a week, left last Saturday for their home in Bremerton, Wash., accompanied by the Boughner family who left them at Alamogordo, after viewing the White Sands. Mr. Otto is a brother of Mrs. Boughner's.

Fireman Rufus Hughes and family, who have been visiting Mrs. Hughes father, Mr. Textor, and other relatives at Lafa, Ark., for the past two weeks, have returned home, and report a good time. Of course, the army of cheerful, singing mosquitoes caused them no little amount of trouble at times.

Mrs. Lena Carswell and baby daughter Mary Irene, who have been the guests of the E. H. Sweet family for the past month, left for their home in Topeka, Kas., Tuesday on No. 12. Mrs. Carswell is a skilled violinist, and her playing, at the time of Baron Auricemma's concert, was much appreciated by those who know.

Mrs. C. L. (Cab) Hines of Tucumcari was a guest of Engineer and Mrs. A. C. Hines for a day last week. 'Cab' has lately moved his residence from Dawson to Tucumcari, and is still running on the Dawson Division.

Millions Saved Through Rail Efficiency

Saving the American people at least one and one-half million dollars annually and affecting all business and industry, the improvement in railroad freight service is probably the most important change in the United States since the war, according to Mr. J. H. Dyer, General Manager for the Southern Pacific Company. Car shortages have been eliminated to such an extent, "Dyer said, "that save for occasional sporadic instances, shippers are being furnished 100 per cent of the cars they request, when and where they want them. Loaded freight cars are being moved from points of origin to destinations in two-thirds of the time required six years ago and regularity and dependability of freight deliveries have immeasurably increased.

Estimates of business leaders and economists indicate that this improvement is worth at least $1,500,000,000 to the nation or several hundred-million dollars more annually than the total net operating income of the railroads. This view is supported by the statement of Secretary of Commerce, Herbert Hoover, that each periodic transportation shortage, the last of which occurred in 1922, caused a loss of a billion dollars to the American people.

The Southern Pacific, by the expenditure of millions of dollars for new freight cars and motive power, has been able, practically, to eliminate car shortages on its lines. Facilities are now available to meet almost any demand for cars.

Bonito Pickin's

"Shorty" Dawson is harvesting a large crop of hay on his Bonito farm. The only drawback he has encountered, is lack of help. Shorty now has everyone in that locality whose services he could obtain, and can still use more helpers.

Tom Grafton and A. J. Runnels of Nogal have gone to Hot Springs to spend a month.

Mr. Warren of Tyrone has a force of men working in the 'Chinaman' mine on the Bonito. This mine yields a fine grade of lead-silver ore.

Storey & Hoagland are operating their sawmill on the Bonito and are selling bridge timbers for that locality, and also hauling heavy timbers to Capitan.

Attention, Masons!

There will be a Regular Communication of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41 A. F. & A. M. at Masonic Hall Saturday night, September 18, at which business of importance will be transacted.

On Wednesday night, September 22, there will be a Special Communication at which the THIRD DEGREE of masonry will be conferred. Take due notice of these two communications and govern yourselves accordingly. All Master Masons are invited.

J. L. Bogle, W. M. S. F. Miller, Secretary.

Ralph Crews, Victim in Auto Accident

Word was received here this week of the death of Ralph Crews, son of Judge and Mrs. S. F. Crews of Oscura, who was killed in an automobile collision in New York City last week.

Mr. Crews was confidential attorney for one of the largest banks in New York and on the day of his death, had been playing golf with the president of the bank and on their return trip to the city, their car skidded, colliding with another. Mr. Crews was thrown violently to the pavement and according to the message, was instantly killed. On account of the great distance and the advanced ages of Judge and Mrs. Crews, they were unable to make the trip to attend the funeral. The sympathy of the community goes out to them.

Crystal Theatre

Friday-Saturday, Sept. 17-18 "When Husbands Flirt," with Dorothy Reveir and Forrest Stanley; also "Arizona's Grand Canyon"—Columbia.

Tuesday-Wednesday, Sept. 21-22 "Speed Mad," with Edith Roberts and Wm. Fairbanks; also "The Last of the Mohicans"—Columbia.

Friday-Saturday, Sept. 24-25 "The Prince on Broadway" and "Felix Wins and Loses" the Kunning Crazy Kat Comedy—Columbia.

F. R. (Shorty) Miller of the Miller-Buick Agency of Alamogordo was a visitor here Monday evening, attended a meeting of the Town Council and shook hands with many old Carrizozo friends. Come again, Shorty!

Gran Quivera Echoes

Work on the Museum is progressing steadily. A room in the Mission is being repaired and altered so as to be a suitable place for a Museum and an office for the Monument. Mr. Halseth is now in charge, and Mr. Huddleson is expected soon to assume charge of some other parts of the work.

We had hoped that Dr. Hewitt would be here again at this time, but he is reported on his way to Egypt.

Of special interest to our people are the three Navajo Indians who are camped near the old Mission. They are doing some archeological work, and seem to be enjoying themselves.

Not long ago, we had a visit from our Representative, H. C. Coddell, who is busying himself with our citizens, trying to secure a highway through Gran Quivera.

Mrs. R. C. Connell, who has been visiting with her son and family for several weeks, was called home on account of her granddaughter, Ruth Deason. The child died very suddenly of appendicitis.

John S. Collins, Supt. of the Indian School at Albuquerque, visited the Gran Quivera Ruins last week.

Mrs. L. H. Claunch is no better, according to word from Phoenix, Ariz., where she has been in a hospital for several weeks.

Chamber of Commerce Entertainment

The entertainment given by the C. of C., at the Crystal Theatre Wednesday evening, drew a capacity house and those who attended were well rewarded for their patronage.

The foregoing included several selections from the High School Orchestra and two vocal selections, "Dreamland's Golden Hours" and "Always," by Miss Hilary Cooper, all of which was received with merited applause. Miss Cooper is here on a visit with relatives and responded to a request to sing at this entertainment and the same was much appreciated by the large audience of her home town friends. She was accompanied by Mrs. Ivy Adams at the piano. After the pictures were shown, all lights except those on the stage were extinguished, which was a signal for the Bathing Beauties to appear, but instead of full-grown girls in racy, bathing costumes, there appeared six sweet little cherubs, from 4 to six years of age, respectively. They entered in single file, with little Dorothy Nickles dancing the Charleston. They presented a picture that would have baffled an artist's brush to imitate. The prizes were awarded by Mr. Brickley as follows: Hilda Barnett, first prize; Dorothy Nickles, second prize. The remaining four, Ruth Barnett, Marjorie Nickles, Rebecca Ransom and Wilma Snow, all were given prizes for becoming loveliness. Those who expected to receive a 'shock' and the 'conscientious objectors,' owe Mr. Brickley an apology.

Thieves entered the Sunshine Pharmacy at Capitan Wednesday night and stole $5—Lucky.

Unselfish Community Spirit

Last Saturday was a Banner Day for the home town. Banner Day because the ladies of Carrizozo were at the helm and conducted the big carnival that went over with a big boom!

The booths were all in readiness by the appointed time of 10:30 and from that time until 9:30 in the evening, there was something doing all the time. The booths were handsomely decorated and each had its respective line of wares for sale and they sold, and there was no "perhaps" about it.

It must be remembered, that the good time everybody had, the perfect service rendered and the financial success of the undertaking, must all be credited to the ladies of Carrizozo and to them alone; the men did the spending, as usual, and the talking, while the ladies did the working, but there was enough glory attached to their efforts to keep the community spirit alive for years to come. They plainly showed the strain they were under but the loyalty to the town and the fire of the community spirit shown ahead of all material fatigue and coupled with the determination to do their best, the project went over in a wonderful manner. Thanks, ladies, Carrizozo is grateful. The following is a showing of what the ladies did for the Community Hall Building Fund and the names of the ladies who are responsible for the success of the affair. Mrs. Meyer Barnett had general supervision of the Carnival and Bazaar and was assisted by the ladies at the different booths and the amounts realized at each booth is given below.

Carnival Notes

The chili served by Mesdames Reily, Harris and Gray, was pronounced "Buena" by everybody. Mrs. Hooper's coffee was par excellence; she certainly knows how to make it; also that hamberger, Mrs. Green—it was the talk of the carnival. Mesdames Blaney and Huppertz sold choice canned fruit that will taste good all through-

Corona Clippings

Born—September 9, to Mr. and Mrs. Lum Richards, Jr., a baby boy.

Jack Kemper of Amarillo, Texas, is spending a few days here.

Mrs. J. M. Shelton and children spent the week-end at Vaughn with her husband.

Francis Blanchard has been called to the bedside of his mother-in-law who is not expected to live. Mrs. Blanchard preceded him.

Paschal Luttrell of Amarillo, Texas, is visiting friends here.

Jim Davidson and G. D. Allen are visiting in Hot Springs.

Clay Davidson of Hot Springs spent Tuesday in Corona.

Mrs. Lucy Hines and daughter, Elsie Davidson, both of Magdalena, were here last week-end on business.

Mr. Ladd has leased the barber shop to "Salty" Lusk.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Reeder and George Clements, Sr., were Carrizozo visitors Wednesday and Thursday.

The winter. It was fine. Everything at the Circus went with a rush—like all circuses the P-e-p was put to it.

The Misses Reily and Collier's candy ran out too soon. No wonder! It was too good.

The lemonade at Mrs. Dingwall's and Miss Sweet's booth was made up just right, not too "Sweet."

The Fish Pond was well patronized the men like fishing and Mesdames Ludlow and Carl knew it.

Dry Goods are always in demand. Therefore, Mesdames Hamilton and Farley were equal to the occasion.

The baked goods by Mesdames Greer and Kelsey was so good that it all ran out at the noon hour. Proof of cake, likewise of the proverbial pudding, is in the eating of it.

Miss Johnnie Green won the prize for the most popular young lady at the carnival.

In the guessing contest at booth No. 9, Mrs. Walker White of Nogal and Mr. Albert Ziegler of Carrizozo tied. The amount of beans in the container was 246; Mr. Ziegler guessed 13 above and Mrs. White's guess was 13 below the amount; hence the tie. Mr. Ziegler extended courtesy to the lady, and Mrs. White is the owner of the ivory clock. The baby cab went to Mrs. S. O. Sprules, who guessed 48, which was the exact number of beans in the glass. Mesdames Burke, Lemmon and Smith, sold 149 ice cream cones and six gallons of cider.

In the Kangaroo Court, many were arraigned for various offenses such as parking on the wrong side, blowing horns, walking too near the sidewalks, etc.

Mesdames French and Wetmore had a big rush at the C. of C. booth when it was announced that the Bathing Beauties were to be on exhibition, but there was nothing to see except the girls' ankles.—Pooled 'em didn't you?

The dance at Lutz Hall netted a neat sum. The Spanish-American Home Orchestra played at the Carnival and also at the dance. They did finely, too.

The home booster, who was arraigned in the kangaroo court, fined 15 cents and wrote a check for $10.00, ought to have a medal.—Let's pull him again, boys!

The bridge rocked and swayed to their struggle, bucking under them as the flood lifted it, only to let it sag again, and swirled about their feet, rattling viciously at the structure, tearing at the cables, thrashing at the cliffs. Their feet slipped on the wet planks. They fell against the hand-ropes, and the slanting suspension stays, clenching frantically with one hand, striking with the other, giving blows that left each sick with pain, desperate, ignoring the peril, clinging and sliding while they fought, silent save for their heavy breathing and the grunts with which a blow was delivered or received.

Baxter fought foul as his strength sapped from him. Caleb was harder, deeper lunged, better angled for this rough and tumble game. He hammered Baxter over the kidneys and Baxter gasped with the pain, his face contorting while he hung like a dead riddon to his opponent, faint with a gush. When it passed he flung up his hands and caught Caleb in the groin, temporarily evening things. He broke free and lashed out, right and left, flailing at Caleb's head and jaw as the latter crouched against an angle of the hand rope and a stay, covering up. Then, with an energy summoned from his reserves, Caleb rushed, landing hard above the heart. Baxter staggered, groped forward and flung an arm about Caleb's neck, dragging with all his weight while Baxter grooved for balance. His fingers found Caleb's throat, and worked desperately in shutting off breath, torturing as they pressed upon the jugular.

As they clung, astward the planks now, Baxter's weight almost unbearable in the crook of Caleb's arm, his body stretched out down stream with the force of the water, the eastern buttress shuddered, tottered, slid; plunging into the gut. It toppled sideways, shaking the bridge as a terrible slakes a rat, dragging it until the cables sang above the noise of the torrent and then anchored by sunken ledge and crevice, jammed hard. It held firm, the cables still secure. The sudden jar, the lowered pitch, was too much for Baxter. The blow over the heart had finished his endurance. His fingers lost their grip on Caleb's throat, the furious water claimed him. His despairing clutch on Caleb's smooth alker failed. He gave a cry, his face ghastly in the white light of the moon and slid into the current like a hog.

Caleb snatched him by the collar of his coat and shifted his armhold for a grip on a saving stanchion as they both straightened out in the imperious sweep of the maddened creek. He thought his arm would be torn, from its socket with the strain and he managed to wrap his legs about the planks, shouting at Baxter, yelling his loudest. Unless Baxter helped to save himself, or Caleb let loose of him, another moment would see them both whirling down the gut, over and over, their lungs filled with water, battered drowned!

"Get hold of yourself," Caleb yelled. "Baxter! Get a grip on something, hang on to me. Haul yourself up, quick!"

The insistent words and the will behind them worked in Baxter's numb brain and roused him to a last surging fight for life. With a frantic effort he clawed at Caleb, twining his fingers to the slicker and slowly dragged himself up from the suction of the flood. Caleb got both hands to the stanchion, proving that it might hold. Baxter found the opposite one, then the hand-ropes, and so craved to safety, releasing Caleb from his dead weight. He began to hitch himself up the incline while Caleb lay for the moment slack, utterly exhausted, his breath coming in great gasps, the fibers of his muscles seeming to be torn apart, his sinews racked. He got to his knees at last and then to his feet. The bridge might collapse at any second, there was no time to lose. Baxter collapsed again from weakness, face down on the planks where they still showed above the ever-rising, furious water.

Caleb got an arm about him. With the help of the hand rope he hauled Baxter along until they reached the solid cliff of the western side of the gut. The blood was pounding in his brain with his efforts and it seemed as if someone was calling to him. He stood, leaning against a tree—Baxter seated on a ledge, his face in his hands, elbows on knees—and faced the creek and the broken bridge, breathing in great gulps of cool air. The only came plainly now, no fiction of his dizzy brain.

Relieved upon the verge where the cliff buttress had broken loose, was Betty Clinton on her pinto pony, the forelegs of the snorting horse braced against danger. The moon was free of cloud and the girl's face was clearly visible. She had no hat and her chestnut hair was in disorder.

"How long had she been there?" Caleb wondered while he strove to catch what she was saying above the tumult of the creek. He heard his name. She recognized him, with his slicker torn, his face bloody. And she had hailed him in preference to Baxter? Baxter had come from the ranch? Yes, she had called to the man she had snubbed—in her trouble, for there was trouble, he gathered, as she repeated her words in a high voice that came clearly now and then when wind and water favored.

"Mr. Warner! My father—is—ill!—I—have—sent—word—by—Padilla—by—the—road. A doctor—Luis—may—not—get—one. Will—you? The—bridge?"

"I'll get one," Caleb shouted back. She heard him and nodded to tell him so. He turned to Baxter.

"Hear what she said? I've got to get a doctor. Are you all right to leave?" Baxter lifted his face. It was sullen with hate.

"D—n you, yes," he answered.

"Leave me alone."

Caleb looked across the gut before he took to the trail. He saw Betty Clinton deftly wheeling her pony. It was dark as soon as he got well into the canyon where the growth was thick. But he forged ahead in the darkness, puzzling a little as to why she had not called Baxter. Had she ridden to overtake him, knowing he had gone that way. Had she seen the light, seen Caleb rescue his opponent, perhaps thought Baxter too weak for her purpose—or did she take sides with Caleb, in some flash of intuition? Whatever the real reason, his hopes spurred him down the uncertain path on his errand, changed with new energy by the appeal of Betty Clinton. He came out upon the plain panting but with his second wind gained, crumpling through gravel, plowing through the alkali soil at a steady jog until at last he pounded over the Coyote creek bridge and gained the hotel, asking the astonished landlady where the nearest doctor lived, and so on again down the road for half a mile to find the physician in and commander his services.

Only the Rutted Road Showed There Had Been a Storm.

"I'm Doctor Conklin," said the man to Caleb who had risen. "You are a friend of the family? I don't think I've met you before."

"I brought Doctor Kennedy up from Coyote," said Caleb. "Miss Clinton feared Padilla might not be able to secure you. It is too bad that there is not a telephone here or we might have saved you the trip. I understand you have plenty to do in Paloma."

"The doctor did not appear aggrieved that he had come to play second fiddle, that he might not be wanted."

"Kennedy, eh? Good man, Kennedy! Yes, we have a mild epidemic. I must be going back as soon as possible. But there's no harm done. The Mexican told me about Clinton. Exposure—low vitality—danger of pneumonia."

Marla came back and went into the patio. Her eyes turned toward Caleb. He fancied them friendly. Betty Clinton was close behind her.

"I am so glad you came, doctor," she said advancing with outstretched hand. "So is Doctor Kennedy. He wants to consult with you. Will you go in?"

She accompanied him to the inner door and then came back to Caleb. Her face was pale and worried but her eyes were shining as she gave him her hand.

"I haven't thanked you yet," she said. "There isn't time just now. But I appreciate what you have done. It was—kind. You can wait?"

"Surely," he answered stirred by her touch and voice. She had barely disappeared when Marla arrived with coffee and sandwiches that she set on a table.

"La senorita wishes you to eat," she said, with the effect of an absolute order. Caleb thanked her.

"Did you see—that other one?" she asked. "My senorita did not say, save that she met you by the bridge."

The air was cool, bright stars glittered all about the soaring moon. Only the rutted road showed that there had been a storm. At last they struck the well-drained highway and sped along the rutted road at top speed, just the scattering light of Paloma to labor valiantly up the hill that led to Hermosa valley and drop down to the ranch.

There was a car standing by the house.

"Looks as if they'd got Conklin," said the doctor as he honked his horn and braked to a standstill. "Don't look like his car, though."

It was Baxter's roadster. Why he should have left it there and started for the canyon in the storm, again perplexed Caleb. A sudden thought struck him with the possibility that he might have quarreled with Betty Clinton. That would account for her not asking his aid. He had lied when he said he kissed her. Baxter would do that. Or the kiss might have been forced, and he dismissed.

A door opened. Betty Clinton appeared, her voice anxious.

"You've come at last. What is it?" They were getting out of the car, the doctor reaching back for his bag.

"It is Warner, Miss Clinton. I've brought Doctor—"

"Doctor Kennedy, Miss Clinton."

"Oh! There was relief in her tone. "I'm so glad you've come. He's in a high fever. I'm afraid—"

Caleb followed them as they walked swiftly toward the open door. She had thanked him only by a glance that held its reward and conveyed something that encouraged him to wait in the big living-room. There might be something else that he could do. He still puzzled over the presence of Baxter's machine outside, the riddle of Baxter, walking down the canyon. It all seemed to point to a quarrel. Mary Morgan's suggestion that Betty Clinton had not believed him as bad as he was painted grew more likely, this service that he had rendered her might help to renew the bond between them.

He was still in the dark as to the nature of Clinton's illness, or its seriousness, and no one came to enlighten him until the honk of a horn sounded outside.

Betty Clinton did not answer this arrival. Instead Marla entered from the patio pergola, ushering in a brisk, short man with a bag.

"I'm Doctor Conklin," said the man to Caleb who had risen. "You are a friend of the family? I don't think I've met you before."

"I brought Doctor Kennedy up from Coyote," said Caleb. "Miss Clinton feared Padilla might not be able to secure you. It is too bad that there is not a telephone here or we might have saved you the trip. I understand you have plenty to do in Paloma."

"The doctor did not appear aggrieved that he had come to play second fiddle, that he might not be wanted."

Mercedes rejected and warnings unheeded must be followed by more severe strokes of wrath. Four series of warnings are pointed out by Kellogg, each conditioned on the assumption that they did not repent as the result of the preceding experience. Each series is prefaced by the formula, "I will punish you seven times more for your sins" (vv. 18, 21, 24, 25). The thought is that each new display of impotence on Israel's part shall be met by increasing severity.

(1) The rains will be withheld (vv. 10, 20).

(2) Their children and cattle will be destroyed by wild beasts (v. 22).

(3) This to be followed by war, pestilence and famine (vv. 23, 24).

(4) Increasing terror (vv. 29-32). If the previous judgments were not heeded then severer ones would follow so that in their distress they would eat the flesh of their sons and daughters and their seed should become waste and their land so desolate that even their enemies would be astonished at it.

(5) Scattered among the Gentiles (v. 33).

God would scatter them among the heathen and pursue them with a sword. How awfully this has been fulfilled in the history of that people.

Fighting Smallpox in Central Africa

Smallpox is a terrible plague when it breaks out, as it does, among the natives in Central Africa. There is one small woman over there, Miss Teadie Williams (who recently visited the United Christian Missionary society's headquarters here, being employed by this board), who is doing her best to make Africa smallpox proof. She vaccinated 648 natives in one day, considering it a very good missionary stunt. Her method of describing it was like the assembling of fabulous numbers of autos as witnessed in a well known factory. They stood in a line an eighth of a mile long. One native administered the inoculation, scrubbing the arm clean, another scraped the skin, ready for the inoculation; a third kept the young missionary supplied with apparatus. Nothing but sleeveless costumes are worn in that part of Africa, and, despite the hurry of it, there were no infections or other ill effects.—Tribune Free Press.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for September 19 (Temperance Lesson.)

Obedience to Law

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 24:1-16. GOLDEN TEXT—Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons which shall be before thee, when thou art in the land.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Chooses the Right. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Self-Control of Daniel. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Obey the Law. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Enforcing the Law.

1. Some Fundamental Laws Stated (vv. 1, 2).
 1. God alone to be worshipped (v. 1). God is a jealous God, therefore He cannot tolerate a rival. There must be no idolatry. God is to have full place in our lives or no place at all.
 2. The Sabbath must be observed (v. 2). The one who has enthroned God in his heart will reverence His Sabbath. The Sabbath was ordained that man might better cherish God in his heart.
 3. Reverence for God's sanctuary (v. 2). The believer needs to frequent the sanctuary of God in order to have his soul refreshed. Respect for God's holy day and the frequency of the sanctuary are inseparably united in those who fear and reverence God.
11. Blessings for Obedience to God's Laws (vv. 3-5).
 1. Fruitful seasons (vv. 3-5). Temporal well-being is secured through obedience to God's government. Godliness is profitable unto all having the promise of the life that now is and that which is to come.
 2. Internal security (vv. 6-8). In addition to the fullness of temporal blessings, God assured them that for obedience to His Word He would grant peace and safety. No robbers were to invade the land to disturb their tranquillity by day or night. No wild beasts would be allowed to devour them.
 3. Numerical increase (vv. 9, 10). Their number would be multiplied according to God's covenant to Abraham and the produce of the land increased to support them.
 4. God's abiding presence (vv. 11-13). The greatest of all God's blessings is His abiding presence. Happy is that nation and people in whose presence God chooses to dwell.
111. Calamities for Disobedience (vv. 14-33).
 1. Judgments in general (vv. 14-17). For disobedience and rejection of God's laws, general calamities would be permitted to come upon them. They include:
 - (1) Physical diseases. Their health would be taken away and they were to be afflicted with diseases.
 - (2) Bereavement. Physical disease would take away kindred and friends, thereby causing sorrow of heart, and weeping.
 - (3) Famine. God would withhold rain, therefore food supply would lack.
 - (4) Conquest. They would be slain before their enemies.
 - (5) Oppression and dispersion. God would allow the enemy to overcome and oppress them and ultimately take them out of their own land and scatter them.

WE'LL JUST PRETEND

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHEN you're a big, big girl,
And I'm an old, old man,
When hair has lost its curl—
Oh, keep it if you can!
When dolls are put away,
And older books you read,
When you are through with play,
And lots of things, indeed,
When you are big and tall,
And people call you Miss,
When I won't have at all
A daughter such as this,
With school and college through,
And life a busy whirl,
I wonder what I'll do
For just a little girl?

When I'm a big, big girl,
And you're an old, old man,
Although my hair won't curl
I'll curl it if I can;
Though dolls are put away,
I'll get them out once more,
So you and I can play
Again upon the floor.
When I am big and tall,
And you are old, you see,
I'll still be just as small,
And you as young will be,
You'll be my Daddy yet,
My Daddy to the end—
The older that we get
The more we'll just pretend!

POULTRY

CARE OF PULLETS VERY IMPORTANT

Poultrymen are coming more and more to the conclusion that summer care of the young stock cannot be overemphasized. Observation throughout the state has shown that the success of a poultryman with a flock of laying birds is usually the reflection of his success in rearing the pullets. It is generally acknowledged by the leading poultrymen that one does not have to raise poultry for very many years before the importance of clean, steady, and well-grown pullets is recognized. In nine cases out of ten the flocks which experience trouble during the winter months are the flocks in which trouble was prevalent while they were on the range, according to L. M. Black, extension specialist in poultry at Rutgers university. Growing a clean profitable pullet includes a great number of small steps which when put together assure success, says Mr. Black. As with the mature birds, the houses must be comfortable and clean. Overcrowding and overheating have their effect in stunting the growth of the birds, and so a square foot of floor space should be allowed to each growing pullet and, in addition, sufficient roosting space. On hot days the houses should be cool and comfortable. Frequent house cleaning is practiced by the most successful poultrymen to help prevent a rapid spread of disease during warm, moist weather. This, says Mr. Black, is particularly effective against coccidiosis. Alternate ranges which supply an abundance of green feed and some shade are the rule on the best farms in the state. The birds are never without a daily supply of green feed. Shade is considered essential during the hot days. The ground, now believed to be the source of many of our most troublesome diseases, is frequently cropped and cultivated so that the direct rays of the sun may act as a germicide.

Culled Poultry Flocks Are Earmark of Success

Exceptionally successful poultrymen who do not cull their flocks periodically are in the minority in New Jersey, according to the state poultry specialist. The practice is becoming universally recognized as essential for greatest profits. Several advantages of culling, or slacker elimination, are mentioned by the specialist and first among them is simplicity and ease. Not a cent of outlay is necessary and the benefits are almost immediately received. Some hens are poor layers but great feeders. To wait for them to lay is to wait for something that will amount to little even if it does finally occur, for these birds soon quit. Various characteristics distinguishing the slacker from the layer are used by poultrymen in clearing from their flocks all of the boarders. Appearance of the tall feathers, color of the comb and wattles, and shape of the body both to visual and manual examination, are among the signs read by poultrymen. Newcomers in the business are supplied, on request, with helpful bulletins by the New Jersey College of Agriculture, New Brunswick. In addition to requiring no outlay, culling causes no loss. The eliminated birds are sold at good prices on the poultry meat market. Because of the influence of heredity, the general laying average of a flock is materially raised over a period of years by persistent culling and the use of good cockerels. This factor is considered particularly important by leading poultrymen.

Fix Flavor of Eggs

In investigations made some years ago, by feeding nitrogenous and carbonaceous feeds, it was found that hens fed a ration of wheat, middlings, cottonseed meal and skim milk, produced eggs with a disagreeable flavor and odor, small yolks, and poor-keeping qualities. On the other hand, hens fed largely on cracked corn and corn dough laid larger eggs with richer yolks and better flavor. When there was a proper blending of both nitrogenous and carbonaceous materials, there was improved flavor.

Poultry Facts

The well-fed, well-housed hen certainly knows her eggs. Whittewash looks good on the outside of poultry houses, but on the inside it does good. In ancient times capon meat was highly prized by epicures. It is growing in popularity in this country. Deep cultivation of corn is not desirable and usually is detrimental, especially at the time of the last cultivation. Disease usually gets into a flock through the weak fowls, which it attacks first. Keep these culled out and you'll have a healthier flock. Roup may be caused by dampness or drafts in roosting quarters, or poorly ventilated roosting quarters. Underlying cause may be poor nutrition, lice, mites or other parasites.

EVERY-DAY GOOD THINGS

APPLES are so wholesome, so well liked and usually so plentiful that they should be eaten every day when possible to obtain them. An apple eaten at night, when it agrees with one, is a fine remedy for constipation. "An apple a day keeps the doctor away" is a good and true saying.

Apple Sauce Frappe.
Make a sweet apple sauce, flavoring with red cinnamon candies. Press through a colander, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and freeze to a thick mush. Serve in apple cups, garnished with bright jelly.

Apple Delmonico.
Butter a baking dish and lay in a layer of tart apples cored and cut into rings. Sprinkle with ground almonds and sugar, cover with crushed macaroni and pour over one cupful of any canned fruit juice or a cupful of sirup made of sugar and water. Cover and bake forty-five minutes in a quick oven. Serve garnished with whipped cream.

A new way to serve sweet potatoes is to boil them cut into rounds and fry in butter. Serve with a ring of fried apple on each slice of potato.

Apple Salad.
Quarter three bright-skinned apples without removing the peeling. Cut into thin slices. Cut one bunch of celery into small pieces and place in cold water with a little lemon juice. Prepare French dressing, chill all the ingredients, adding enough paprika to the dressing to give color. Mix one cupful of blanched pistachio nuts with the other ingredients and serve on lettuce. The combination of white of the celery, red of the apple and green of the nuts makes a most attractive salad.

Waldorf Salad.
This is such a common but such a good salad that it should not be slighted. To one cupful of celery use two cupfuls of apple and one-half cupful of any finely broken nut meats.

The Hotel Stenographer

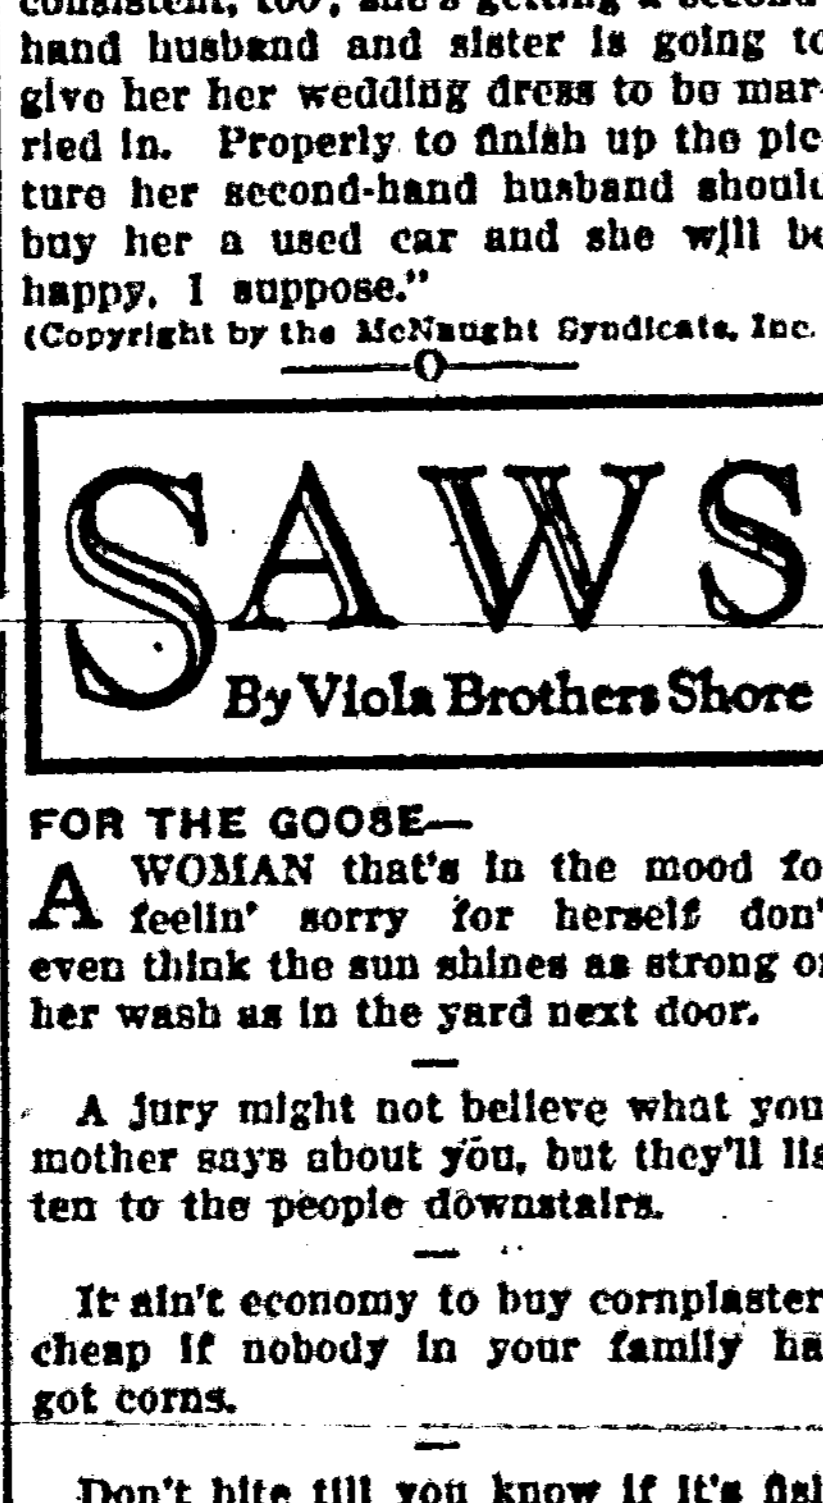

"POOR EMILY," sighed the Hotel Stenographer, looking after a girl who had just left her desk. "What's her trouble?" asked the House Detective.
"Second-handness," answered the girl. "She was born that way. Like being born a Chinaman, it's something you never get over."
"She was born a year after her brother Shamus and when she came into the world her people were kind of poor. She never had anything but second-hand clothes, second-hand toys, and a second-hand baby buggy."
"By the time she was old enough to go to school her big sister had finished a couple of grades ahead of her. She always wore her big sister's old clothes made over, used her big sister's school books and even her dolls were the ones her big sister had dragged around for a couple of years."
"When she was sixteen her sister turned into a beauty and left a trail of discarded lovers behind her. Emily fell heir to most of them. I always hoped she would marry before her sister, but it seemed they didn't do nothing when they were with Emily but tell how much she looked like her sister when she wore said sister's old clothes."
"About six months ago sister got married, leaving Emily all by herself. I had given up hopes of her marrying because she hadn't caught any of her sister's sweeties on the first bounce after she bounced 'em."
"She was here to tell me she is going to be married. She was entirely consistent, too; she's getting a second-hand husband and sister is going to give her her wedding dress to be married in. Properly to finish up the picture her second-hand husband should buy her a used car and she will be happy, I suppose."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE RUNNING STREAM

FROM the shaded woods, the grain-lit hills and the running streams leaping in their joy to touch the flowers that line the sod along the way, peers Wisdom with her shining face and modest eyes.
If, while roaming through leafy paths you stop a while, you may hear her voice on the breeze, trying to make plain to you the priceless precepts which have to do with life here and life to come.
She will coyly tell you that the running stream never becomes stagnant, that it is a constant joy to roaming herds, the feathered flocks and those human bipeds called men, who stop and stoop by the grassy banks to quench their thirst.
And what Wisdom tells you about the crystal streams applies to lazy men, loath to accept the truth, but unable in his perverted logic to move it from its imperishable base.
So, in one way or another, as we reason we find that the man who is ever doing, ever planning and creating, is the man who seldom becomes dull or impure.
You who are interested have only to look such a man in the face and make a mental comparison between him and the dullard, to see that this is every whit true.
Just as the sweet waters of the running stream keep the verdure bright along its sparkling course, so do the activities of the industrious man impart life and color to everything he touches.
It is he who is the bullock, the great adventurer, the prospector in new fields, whose penetrating judgment sways the destinies of dependent men and nations, who soon learn to look upon him as their leader.
Such a man cannot be kept down. He remains bright and luminous by contact and hard rubs against slinky substances and critical tongues.
Unlike the sluggard, he refuses to mope and become stale.
He has an easy politeness in his manners, a luminous eye, a firm grip and a steady step.
He may not be learned in letters but he knows what to do with them at his first introduction and how to use them to advantage in his particular sphere of usefulness. He is the running stream, watering the soil, turning the wheels of mills and sending down to the Seven seas mighty ships, creating wealth for himself and the whole world.

DENVER TRADE TOUR TO OIL FIELDS ARRANGED

Denver.—The next trade trip of Denver business men will be into New Mexico and Texas, according to announcement made by D. W. Thomas, secretary of the agricultural and livestock department of the Chamber of Commerce, who has charge of this, as he has had of other, business journeys. The schedule calls for leaving Denver in a special train of Pullmans, with a diner and baggage car, over the Santa Fe Railroad, Oct. 3, returning to Denver Oct. 9. The tour will include visits to Trinidad, Raton, Las Vegas, Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Clovis, Roswell, Artesia, Carlsbad, Amarillo, Dalhart, Clayton and intermediate points.
"Inclusion of Amarillo and the new oil fields in this trip should prove of intense interest to Denver business men," said Mr. Thomas. "That is a district rapidly developing and in which Denver men and Denver capital are heavily interested, and from a business viewpoint opens up a new and very lucrative field.
"The jobbers' bureau, which is back of this tour, feels that the tour will take in a country that is of peculiar importance to the Denver jobber, who is not only looking for new territory, but for an increase in his business in this territory, where he already does business. It gives the jobber a personal touch with his people and with new customers. This is really a trip to enlarge the jobbing territory of Denver and to further emphasize that Denver is the jobbing center of the Rockies."

Denver.—The entire capital stock of the Denver Union Stockyards Company was bought last week by Boxworth, Chanute & Co., with which an influential group of Denver businessmen is associated. The purchase was made from Armour & Co., Swift & Co., and smaller associated interests. The value of the property is approximately 4 and one-half million dollars. The transfer of the stockyards to new hands is of exceptional importance to Denver, because it brings into home ownership one of the outstanding business enterprises of the state and the center of the Rocky Mountain, Inter-mountain and western plains livestock industry.

Denver.—The United States Navy will not accept enlistments of boys under 18 years old, according to instructions received from the Navy Department by Lieut. H. J. Bellingham, U. S. Hannett Doesn't Sound Very Popular in Deming

FOR THIS week's text let us take a short quotation from the resolutions adopted by the Luna county Democratic convention. It reads: "We wish to express our approval of Gov. Hannett's good roads policy."

Boy, howdy! Likewine, Ye Gods! And, in addition, Moly Hoses!

To think that a group of Luna county citizens, most of whom have been here long enough to be familiar with the way road affairs have been manhandled in this County by the present state administration, could do such a thing as that!

Listen, Democrats, and lend an ear, you Republicans who might think your political foes were right in adopting that resolution. During the past two years the present state administration has trampled the interests of Deming and Luna county in every way insofar as roads are concerned. First, our request for a highway leading north was turned down cold after the legislature had passed the necessary legislation to give us that road. As a result we lose each day, week, and month a large volume of tourist traffic. It is hard to estimate what this would mean to us, but a conservative amount would be $100 per day that we lose because tourists fear to leave the federal aid highways. Can we endorse such an act as that? Governor Hannett did that deed all with His Little Hatchet. And yet he gets the endorsement from this town and county!

Later on we lost the offices of the highway department. Deming is the one and only logical place for these offices. Perhaps Gov. Hannett did not do that himself, but he surely didn't prevent it after it was coiled to his attention.

Why say more? The facts are plainly evident and well known to everyone here. And they are known as REAL FACTS.

Now that Luna county Democrats have helped to nominate for governor the man who has already "done" us well, let us hope that the same reason will prevail at the polls and right the wrong that has been done.—Deming Graphic.

Cooking Recipes and Exercises

Wichita Eagle: A certain Mr. Rissel, who was tuning in on his radio one evening last week and was hearing a cooking recipe when another broadcasting station interfered with equal strength with directions for physical exercises and the two conflicted in a mix-up which sounded like this: "Hands on hips, place one cup of flour on shoulders, raise knees, depress toes and wash thoroughly in one cup of milk in four counts—raise the lower legs and mash two hard-boiled eggs in a sieve. Repeat six times. Inhale one teaspoon baking powder and one cup flour. Breathe naturally, exhale and sit. Jump to a squatting position and bend the white of one egg backwards and forwards overhead and in four counts; make a stiff dough that will stretch at the waist. Lie flat on the floor and roll into a marble the size of a walnut. Hop to a stand-still in boiling water but do not boil into a gallop afterwards. In ten minutes remove from the fire and dry with a towel. Breathe naturally, dress in warm flannels and serve with fish soup."

Henry Martin says he was inclined at first to protest to his wife about her new bathing suit, and then decided it was too hot to worry over trifles.

"But life, being weary of these worldly bars, Never lacks power to dismiss itself." —Julius Caesar.

"Why is suicide held not to be right?" was one of the questions put to Socrates during that last long talk he had with his friends while he waited for his faller to bring him the cup of poison.

According to Plato's account, Socrates answered: "I suppose you wonder why . . . when a man is better dead he is not permitted to be his own benefactor, but must wait for the hand of another. . . I admit the appearance of inconsistency, but there may not be any real inconsistency, after all, in this. There is a doctrine uttered in secret that man is a prisoner who has no right to open the door of his prison and run away; this is a great mystery which I do not quite understand."

Our western laws and churches hold suicide to be wrong, and there is a general feeling that when a man commits suicide, he breaks the rules by which the game of life is played. We know that in a race, for example, a man is expected to finish the course, even though all the other runners have crossed the line an hour before him. To the bystanders there seems no sense in this. To them it seems that after enough men have crossed the line to score all the points that can be scored, the other runners should be allowed to step over the side lines and quit the race. They cannot see any reason for making a man run after all chances of scoring seem over; but the trainer sees reason in the proceedings. Life is frequently likened to a race.

Some people hold that the two cases are not analogous because the player enters a race voluntarily and we human beings are born into life without our consent. Others hold that we do enter life voluntarily. The latter believe, with Socrates and the Buddhists, in the transmigration of the soul. They insist that the soul that does not wish for life is not reincarnated.

This is, of course, a subject about which nobody knows, though many may speculate, trying to twist texts this way and that to suit their own beliefs.

The Most Wonderful Book in the World

MORE than thirty million Bibles or Books of the Bible were sold or distributed in 1925.

Would you not love to have companion volumes to help you discover the treasures in that Wonderful Book?

SWEDENBORG

explained the Bible's practical application to daily life; how it describes the life hereafter; what the Bible parables mean when spiritually interpreted.

His theological works—as issued by himself—have been published by the Houghton Mifflin Co. in most modern translation from the original Latin, in the Rotch Edition of 32 volumes.

The first twenty give the spiritual sense of Genesis and Exodus as understood in Heaven; and volumes 26, 27, 28 give likewise the spiritual sense of the Book of Revelation.

Volume 29, Marriage Love, views from the union of the Divine Love and the Divine Wisdom the Law of Sex throughout all creation. It shows the crown and jewel of the Christian Religion, the union of one with one only. Price $2.00.

Volumes 30, 31, 32, contain a full statement of the True Christian Religion as revealed from Heaven. $3.00 the set.

The whole 32 volumes in half-morocco at $125; in buckram, $40.

The following are the best introductory books to the Revelations of SWEDENBORG. They are in large print, bound in buckram, and contain from 260 to 487 pages.

Table with 2 columns: TITLES and PRICE. Includes 'HEAVEN AND HELL from things heard and seen $1.25', 'Angelic Wisdom Concerning THE DIVINE PROVIDENCE, which governs the Universe $1.25', and 'THE DIVINE LOVE AND WISDOM, the profoundest book and revelation concerning God and His Creation ever written, first published in Latin at Amsterdam 1763, along with this is the "Intercourse Between the Soul and the Body" first published in Latin at London 1769. $1.25'. Price of all three at one time, including postage $2.75.

Who Was Swedenborg?

Emmanuel Swedenborg, the son of a bishop was the great Swedish scientist, philosopher and theologian, whose vast range of ideas Emerson termed him the maddest of scholars. Dr. Parkes Cadman recently named him the Universal Genius. Officially connected, by appointment of the King, with the great mining industry of Sweden, he mastered all the sciences of his time, and wrote the most useful books on metallurgy, minerals, geology, astronomy, and the human brain. His life's search was for the human soul. How his spiritual senses were opened, after he was 29 years of age, that he might reveal the human soul, the life after death, and the Bible itself, may be read in the above named, uplifting, useful books.

Better than Ever-

Following their traditional policy of constant improvement with no yearly models, Dodge Brothers, during the past eight months, have vastly bettered their motor cars in many vital respects.

Indeed, there has never been an equal period in Dodge Brothers history when so many refinements of a popular and fundamental nature have been made.

The public is registering its appreciation of this progressive industrial service by purchasing every motor car Dodge Brothers can build—in spite of the fact that Dodge Brothers production, during these months, has broken all previous records by an impressive margin.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CARS

The Democratic Ticket

THE TICKET nominated by the Democrats—at their state convention in Las Vegas is just about what can be expected from our system of nominations. It is one of compromises and trades and from top to bottom is an official ticket. It is made up of office holders, nine visit state jobs and three with county jobs. It is a hand-picked Hannett ticket. The governor has devoted a large portion of his first term to building up a political machine, and this machine was working in first-class shape at the Las Vegas convention. Its steam-roller methods nearly disrupted the convention when an unexpected rush to nominate four principal candidates on the ticket was resisted by the Spanish-American adherents of Lorenzo Delgado. When the uprising was stopped, the machine resumed its work with a smoothness that continued to the last. Not an outsider had a chance. Congressman John Morrow was about the only one who ran on his own steam. The balance of the ticket was purely a product of the Hannett machine.

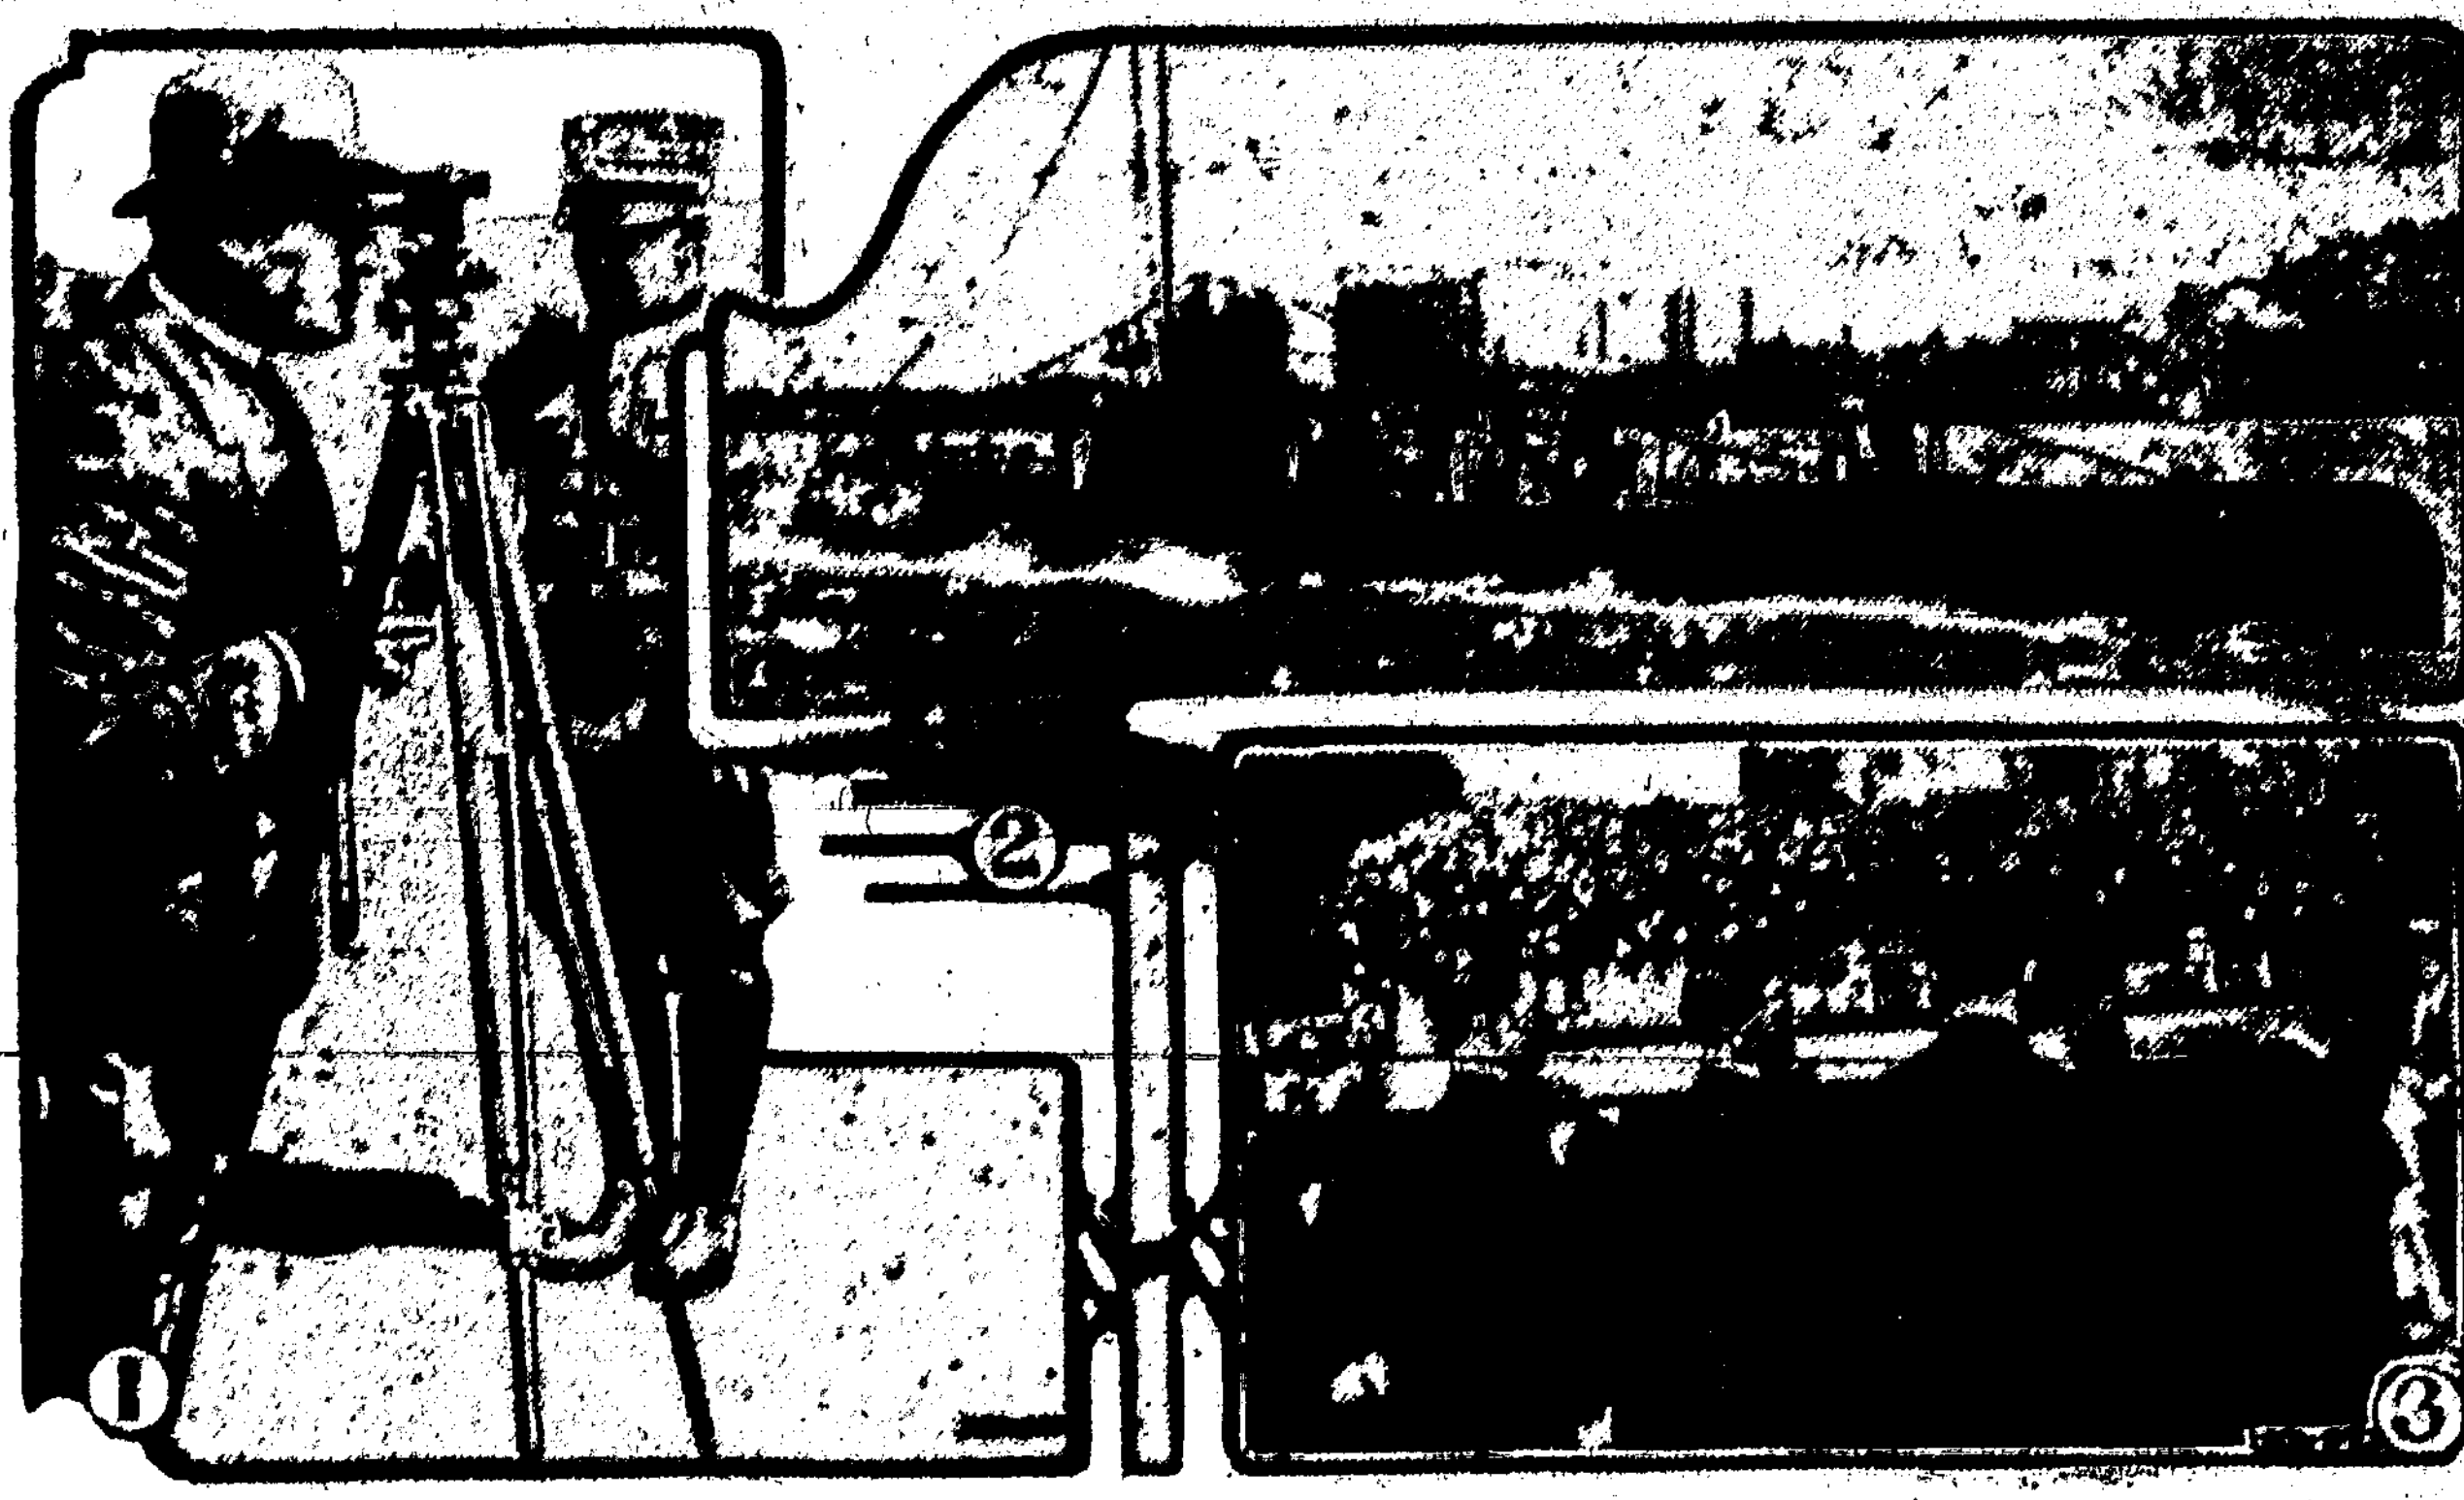

The ticket includes some good candidates and some that never should have been named. The spectacle of the convention was the manner in which Lorenzo Delgado had the Democratic leaders standing on their heads. His demand for the nomination for land commissioner may have been made merely to see how much he could get out of the Democrats, as some say, but it plainly upset things until he could be satisfied. A Republican up to two years ago, he had the convention thoroughly awed and afraid of him. They did not see how they could win without him, or with him if he was given the land office nomination. In some mysterious manner, he was induced to accept an unimportant office as far as the salary is concerned—$300 a year—but one of importance if you consider the fact that a lieutenant-governor presides over the senate, and might at any time be called upon to fill the executive's chair. He picked this position in preference to others on the ticket that would have paid as much salary as the land office job. Why? The Democrats will have to do the explaining. The deal does not look good to the voter.

The convention may have thought it was appeasing Delgado and the party leaders may have thought they made the most of a bad situation in satisfying San Miguel county boss, but they left a stain on the ticket. Delgado is a product of an unsavory political system, a feudalism, which the Democrats have in years past been denouncing. Now they are endorsing it and seeking to perpetuate it for the votes they think it will win them in San Miguel. For every vote gained in San Miguel, the Democrats should lose several times that amount in other counties, where self-respecting Democrat and independent voters do not believe in recognizing such high-handed methods.—Albuquerque Journal.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Developments in Mexican Situation—Lively Doings in Geneva.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

JAMES A. FLAHERTY, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, accompanied by the members of the supreme council, called on President Coolidge at White Pine camp and dispelled the popular idea that his order asks that the United States intervene in the Mexican religious controversy. It does not even ask the lifting of the embargo on arms shipments to Mexico, he declared. Instead, it desires only the exercise of whatever good offices the United States can extend under international law to ameliorate conditions in the neighboring republic. He placed much blame on the policies of the last three American administrations, and Mr. Coolidge, who has pursued a policy of "hands off" in the quarrel between Calles and the church, was said to have listened "kindly and patiently" to what the delegation had to say.

Down in Mexico City the congress has assembled and it is expected that the religious situation will be taken up very soon. The President's message dealt with it at some length. There was said to be a good chance that congress, although made up of over 80 per cent of government men, would make certain concessions to the Catholics which may remove some of the objections of the church. The Catholic League for Religious Defense, however, is not dissatisfied with the present situation, its secretary asserting that the economic boycott is so successful that it has practically paralyzed the economic life of the nation. Says he:

"Commerce in Mexico, according to statements by the chamber of commerce itself, has fallen off 50 per cent since the opening of the economic boycott, and industrial organizations are complaining of a large overproduction because of lack of consumers."

"In the interior the boycott is felt terribly. Entire cities, towns and villages have subjected themselves to heroic sacrifices of abstinence. In Aguas Calientes, Aradon, and Ponzamano beans are eaten this month, and the civic government in these places is on the verge of bankruptcy."

"This is only the beginning. As time goes on the lines will be drawn tighter. The final effect of the boycott will be to force capital to face the situation and take means of meeting it. It either must further the ends of the boycott or force the government to repeal the objectionable anti-Catholic legislation."

IN MORE ways than one the world court cut quite a figure in the week's news. In Geneva the conference of representatives of 37 nations began discussion of the admission of the United States with the reservations made by the senate. The first three reservations were quickly accepted, but opposition developed to the fourth, which would prevent the League of Nations from amending the court statutes without America's permission. Sir George Foster of Canada led the opposition and was warmly seconded by Markovitch of Jugoslavia. The debate grew rather hot but South American delegates intervened to smooth things over. Final action on the fourth reservation was postponed and discussion of the fifth was begun. This provides that the world court shall not, without the consent of the United States, entertain any request for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest. The belief prevailed in Geneva that the basis of this reservation is a desire on the part of the United States to prevent any attempt by the council of the League of Nations to seek advisory opinions either on immigration problems or questions affecting the Monroe doctrine and Latin America. It was thought likely the reservation would be turned over to a commission for study and advice.

MEANWHILE California was holding a primary election in which the world court was prominent. Senator Shortridge, pro-court, was running for re-nomination by the Republicans and was opposed by Robert M. Clarke, backed by Senator Johnson and other anti-court leaders. At this writing incomplete returns indicate that Shortridge was victorious by a considerable plurality. Lineberger, anti-court and wet, was trailing far behind Lieut. Gov. C. C. Young, also supported by Johnson, was leading Gov. Friend W. Richardson and the four other candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Congressman Florence P. Kahn, who is decidedly wet, was re-nominated, and the seats were leading in several other congressional districts.

On the Democratic side John H. Elliott, who was endorsed for senator by William Gibbs McAdoo, was leading Isador Dockweiler, whom he accused of complicity in a Tammany Hall plot to capture California democracy. Burdett Alexander Johnson, San Diego, also bearing the McAdoo endorsement, was trailing Justus S. Wardell in the gubernatorial race. Wardell also was accused by the McAdoo candidates of trafficking with Tammany.

SENATORS TRAMMELL of Florida and Gooding of Idaho, both of whom voted for American entry into the world court, have changed their minds and are now ready to vote for withdrawal of the ratification. Mr. Trammell said he would offer a resolution for such action when the senate meets in December. The defection of these two would not materially affect the situation, and at the summer White House it was made known that President Coolidge does not anticipate a victory by the anti-court forces. It may be mentioned that Col. Theodore Roosevelt, speaking in the Middle West, declared himself against the world court, though supporting the Coolidge administration in all other respects.

MA FERGUSON lost her chance to be governor of Texas for another term when she was defeated in the run-off primary by Dan Moody by nearly two to one. The attorney general, whose nomination by the Democrats is equivalent to election, said the plan was not an issue and Jim Ferguson had found it impossible to make it one. It appears at this writing that a run-off primary will be necessary September 14 in South Carolina where neither Senator E. B. Smith, Edgar A. Brown nor N. B. Dial had a clear majority for the senatorial nomination. They were standing in the order named.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS delegates were trying hard to find some way to satisfy Spain and Poland and at the same time admit Germany to membership and a permanent seat in the council. The commission at work on plans for reorganization of the council decided that Spain could not have a permanent seat. It adopted Lord Cecil's scheme giving Spain and Poland semi-permanent seats the tenure of which is three years, with a declaration of their re-eligibility.

It seems likely, however, that Spain will quit the league entirely as a result of the refusal of Great Britain and France to attend a conference on the status of Tangier. As was recounted last week, Spain insists that the Tangier district be added to her Moroccan protectorate, and the Spanish foreign minister has said flatly that Spain will withdraw from the league unless this is granted. In the house of commons Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister, said Britain was willing to discuss with Spain and France the former's request for a league mandate over Tangier, but with due regard for existing treaties. He did not think Geneva was a good place for such a discussion.

Italy is now tied up with Spain by a new treaty of alliance which it has admitted is a direct threat to France in so far as the rule of the Mediterranean basin is concerned. European diplomats were wondering if Mussolini and De Rivera would try to sabotage the meeting of the league.

OVERRIDING the veto of Governor General Wood, the Philippine house of representatives passed the senate bill providing for a plebiscite in the islands on the question of independence. The measure is now up to President Coolidge, who will have six months in which to act after it reaches him. He will have reports from both Governor General Wood and Col. Carmel Thompson, his personal investigator there, to help him make up his mind. In Washington it is believed he will support Wood.

FAYAL, chief of the Azores islands, was hit by a disastrous earthquake that ruined most of the homes in the town of Horta and that was followed by a tidal wave that caused great damage in the village of Feteira. Though probably not more than a score of persons were killed, the injured number several hundred and material losses were immense. Fortunately the temblor came in the daytime when most of the inhabitants of the island were out of doors. The quake was the severest ever experienced in the archipelago. At about the same time there were earthquakes in several regions of Mexico, and a little earlier Maine had some shocks.

AMERICA has lost two more of her best aviators through airplane accidents. Commander John Rodgers of the navy, hero of the Hawaii flight, fell with his plane into shallow water and was fatally injured. Lieut. Cyrus K. Bottles of the army, who crashed into a mountain in Pennsylvania in a fog, died in a hospital in Washington from spinal meningitis which developed after it was thought he was on the way to recovery.

SERIOUS labor trouble broke out in Manville, R. I., where a mob of 1,800 striking textile mill workers fought a battle with a small force of state police and deputy sheriffs, after an attempt to set fire to a mill. The officers used tear gas bombs, revolvers and riot guns and a number of the rioters were wounded, as were three of the officers. The governor sent a detachment of state troops to maintain order.

In Chicago another open and closed shop struggle impends. A strike of structural iron workers was called on a skyscraper in course of construction as a starter, and the citizens' committee to enforce the Landis award promptly called in strikebreakers to take the places of the union men. Other artisans' unions are likely to become involved. The committee announced it would support any contractor in Chicago who desired to erect steel on the open-shop basis.

The long-standing fight between President Lewis of the United Mine Workers and President Farrington of the Illinois miners' union, has resulted in the suspension of the latter by the state executive board. He was forced to admit that he had contracting to enter the employ of a big mining firm whenever he should quit office.

IF RUDOLPH VALENTINO had any sense of humor he must be laughing in his coffin over the outburst of mushy sentimentality and mawkish emotionalism that has followed his lamentable death. Enough here to say that after funeral ceremonies in New York, the remains of the screen star were transported in a special car to Hollywood for burial.

GERTRUDE EDERLE did not lose her life in her swim across the English channel. Her feat was duplicated by Mrs. Clemington Carson of New York, the mother of two children; and a few days later Ernst Vierkoetter of Germany swam across from France to England in the record time of 12 hours and 42 minutes.

DURING the second year of the operation of the Dawes plan, just ended, Germany met nearly 64 per cent of its reparations payments by means of deliveries of materials. The total payments amounted to 1,230,000,000 gold marks (about $260,500,000), and the deliveries in kind 638,500,000 gold marks (about $134,410,000).

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

PETER'S SIGHT-SEEING

Now Peter Gnome heard of people going to county fairs and on vacations and holidays, and of this and that and the other thing.

So he thought he would do a bit of sight-seeing for himself. He told them all about it when he got home at night. Of course he put on his invisible robe and went where there were children.

"I saw Lucy swimming under water," he said. "She was swimming wonderfully, and seemed to be as much at home under the water as on top of it."

"Then I saw Muriel get a wishbone and when she pulled it with some one else got the top of the wishbone and her wish came true."

"She wished for a special book she very much wanted as a present and that evening her daddy brought it home to her."

"Then I saw Mrs. Cucumber Green, who is the mother of Allie Baa. Allie's clothes had just been washed and her stockings and jacket and cap and scarf and all were hanging up on the line."

"They looked so cunning hanging up on the line."

"Allie was in bed waiting for her clothes. Allie, you know, is a rag doll and Mrs. Cucumber Green is the make-believe, play name, of her mother."

"I saw Mahalla who had just been to visit her cousins and had seen a bulldog named Nellie."

"Nellie was white and pretty old and clumsy, but still Nellie was so affectionate she wanted to get in Mahalla's lap."

"She pushed Mahalla into a chair so she would hold her and then she snored so loudly that you could have heard her in another room."

"But Nellie was a wise, smart dog and a good watchdog, too."

"She knew the steps of every member of the family and she knew strange steps, too."

"Then I heard two boys talking and how they did get the wrong words in the wrong places. But it seemed as though the words were having a game among themselves and were having a holiday and a change of scene and air by getting into another than their right places."

"Then I heard the old clock strike that gets so weary when it isn't wound up regularly."

"It loses, just as regularly as clock work, as the saying is, five minutes a day, and it is quite regular and exact about this!"

"Then I saw a little girl named Tany and she had a little dog named Tiny."

"I saw a Teddy Bear sitting up in a chair beside a little girl and watching the little girl eating peas and potatoes and a chop."

"The bear's arms were stretched out as though to say that he loved the whole world and would clasp it in his little eager arms."

"There were two older Teddy Bears—or at least they were bigger and they all had black eyes and they all seemed to look so pleased that it seemed as though they were smiling."

"Then I saw all the clocks being put in Melly's room before she went to bed, for clocks and their ticking keep the members of her family awake, but Melly says they put her to sleep."

"So all the clocks are put in Melly's room before she goes to bed."

"There is a regular procession of clocks at Melly's bedtime!"

"I saw Paddy Brown, the little white dog, playing out-of-doors with little Christine, and remembered that the last time I had seen him he had been spending a great deal of time calling on little Dolly and sitting with her before the fire on the big rug."

"He had said, by his manners, that he was never lonely with Dolly, sitting by the fire, but that if he was by himself he was apt to get lonely."

"Oh, I had a fine day of sight-seeing." And the Gnomes all agreed that it was so.

Belled Buzzard May Have Had Long Life

For years a belled buzzard has been reported from time to time in such widely different parts of the country that most persons had come to regard it as a myth. But evidently the tales were well founded, for recently a farmer, while hunting near Comer, Ga., brought down a huge buzzard which had a small cowbell tied to its neck by a piece of wire that had nearly rusted in two. On the bell was this inscription, "Joel Mine, Leonville—1892." There is a town of that name in Louisiana, but it has not yet been definitely established that the buzzard was first caught and tagged there. Considering the rapidity with which these birds fly and their long lives, it is thought possible that the buzzard originally may have come from some more distant place and has probably been flying with the bell about its neck for 44 years.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The Talker

The man who had been everywhere had been talking for hours about his adventures. "Once," he began a new story, "I saw a man-eating tiger."
"That's nothing," interrupted a weary hearer. "Once I saw a man-eating rabbit."

Youth and happiness soon go.

What Is a Diuretic?

People Are Learning the Value of Occasional Use.

EVERYONE knows that a laxative stimulates the bowels. A diuretic performs a similar function to the kidneys. Under the strain of our modern life, our organs are apt to become sluggish and require assistance. More and more people are learning to use Doan's Pills, occasionally, to insure good circulation which is so essential to good health. More than 50,000 grateful users have given Doan's signed recommendations. Scarcely a community but has its representation. Ask your neighbor!

Rich Embroidered "Coolie" Coat; School Dress of Woolen Plaid

FROM the extreme of simplicity, the world of fashion is turning its attention to modes of more sophisticated type. This fact is being verified through the first showings of autumn and winter-style collections. Every detail of the newer costumes shows it, from our hats, which are being more elaborately created every minute, to our shoes, which are taking on a superlateness. And as to jewelry! Barbaic splendor marks the ear pen-

Wonder if little folks realize what a future of excitement they are stirring up in fashion circles, just about now. And all because "first day of school" is at hand and oh my, oh my, what heaps of good-looking clothes it is going to require for the weeks and months to follow.

One thing is encouraging, the new bright plaid, flannels, said to be in the very top notch of fashion, are certainly going to do a powerful bit in duits necklaces and "slave" bracelets which fashion dangles before us.

In the creation of our lingerie and negligees, frocks and wraps and overblouse tunics, it would seem, as if not only fabric elegance was never so accentuated, but as if the artcraft of every nation had been called upon for its best and most beautiful specimens of handwork.

One of the most interesting departures into the realm of embroidered garments is the coolie coat, such as shown in the picture. Its uses are versatile. While it serves admirably as a handsome "at home" negligee, if madly chooses to call upon it to play the part of an opera wrap de luxe, it will yield most gracefully to the occasion. These beautiful oriental garments are styled of rich satin canton and are to be had in exquisite colorings both dark and light, with a preference for black.

No less beautiful than the embroideries from oriental countries are the brilliant shawls from sunny Spain, making it easy for mothers to plan little daughter's school dresses.

With materials decided upon, the next move is for "ideas." It is going to be no trick at all to find them this season. Why this season any more than any other? Well, just this. We are going to borrow them from the grown-ups. In other words fashion decrees that little folks' frocks adapt the style details of adult mode in belts, vestees, collars and in other various ways. Of course they must be changed sufficiently to effect the simplicity of childhood, and the latest juvenile style displays assure that this is being successfully accomplished.

One of the details which will feature children's frocks will be belts of leather or self-fabric on both one and two-piece models. The new plaid dresses are of very smart appearance when accompanied by a narrow gilded leather belt. And are the children going to like to wear these new silver or gold kid belts with a sure-enough

Child's Frock Simple, but Pleasing.

These are finding place in the wardrobe of the majority of women of fashion. If not a mammoth square silken shawl, at least a wide evening scarf embroidered and befringed in a Espagnole.

Perhaps the most unique application of native embroidery themes is finding expression in the new separate tunic blouse, which is vivaciously colorful and is expected to be worn over a velvet skirt made in tiers scalloped or plain. These striking tunics are of fascinating styling in that sleeves, front openings and necklines show artful needlecraft of mayhap Spanish, Japanese, Chinese, Russian or Czechoslovakian inspiration.

buckle? Ask the first little girl you meet.

Oh, yes! about the new sleeves, some of them will have wrist ties as a sleeve finish, just like mother and big sister wear. Then, too, there will be little vestees studded with rows of tiny buttons, if you please, and scarf collars and oh! just too many new "wrinkles" to enumerate in the limits of this article.

In regard to the plaid dress here pictured, note the turnover collar, the blouse effect, the buttons and the piping of contrasting color—all important style details.

Insect Lives in Water

An insect belonging to the fly family that spends its whole life in salt sea water is the strange find reported to the Royal Society of England by F. W. Edwards and Dr. P. A. Buxton of the British museum. Doctor Buxton, who recently returned from a voyage to Samoa, found the insect associated with related forms whose larval or infant stages are spent in the water, but whose adult life is lived in the normal aerial surroundings of most insects. This is said to be the first recorded case of an insect going through its whole life cycle in sea water.

Educational News

By Co. Supt. Mary Fritz:

The observance of Golden Rule Sunday will be designated some time this fall.

Lincoln County Schools began Sept. 6, with very good enrollments, and it is expected to increase this week. Emergency teachers were employed at Joneta, Encinosa, Picacho and Hondo.

Sept. 17th will be the 139th anniversary of the completion and signing of the Constitution of the United States, which certainly was one of the most important events in American history. Schools are urged to give observance to the day wherever possible.

The patrons and citizens of Lincoln have raised funds to equip a Science Department for their school. They are also remodeling the old Court House for class rooms which will give better accommodations for the increased enrollment.

It is our desire and hope to have every boy and girl of school age in school this year. Let's have a 100 percent enrollment.

Every effort will be made this fall to enforce the Child Welfare Law. We expect the Child Welfare Worker to visit this County in the next few weeks.

Carrizozo School Notes

The writer paid his first visit to the primary building this week. It was recess time, but we found the little ones busy enjoying the playground equipment and games of various kinds in which the teachers, Mesdames French, Nickles and Miss Snyder, taking part in their childish games, which impressed the visitor with the thought that the teachers were alert to the fact that to mingle with the tots and express interest in every form of their amusement as well as in the beginning of their education, was a means of establishing that confidence in the teacher which is one of the main stones in the foundation of success in education.

The teachers have ordered new chains for the swings and they are daily expected, after which the swings which are now idle, will be continually occupied during the playtime period.

An atmosphere of diligence, alertness, attentiveness and confidence in superintendent and teachers, was plainly evident as each room was visited. The floors of all rooms and hallways have been oiled and the sanitary condition of the school, in general, is as good as could possibly be expected.

The girls' basketball team will be coached by Mrs. T. A. Spencer and the team is undergoing daily practice. This means that we will have another winning team for Carrizozo on the girls' side. The boys' team under the coaching of Prof. Burkett is doing some strenuous daily work and the boys wish us to "watch their smoke" when the season begins.

The new teachers, Mrs. Franks and the Misses Woods and Brower, express themselves as being delighted with our school and community.—Thanks, ladies!

As the work continues we will give detailed accounts of the progress made, which according to present indications, the showing will be exceedingly good.

Mrs. M. B. Foreman came up from El Paso last Saturday where she had been spending the past two months. On Wednesday, Mr. Foreman and Mrs. O. C. Davis left for Excelsior Springs, Mo., where Mrs. Davis hopes to derive great benefit from the healing waters of that popular place.
