A Plaything of Fate

FATE must have been in a playful mood when Captain Greaves was born. Fate drove him into piracy, but could not make him fit into the picture of the regulation type of pirate, for he was too kind of heart. Fate condemned him to a pirate's death, then saved him by a miracle.

He was the son of a slave in Barbados, one of the thousands of Scotch and Irish who were sent there by Cromwell during the Civil war in England. Because of their bare knees, these slaves were called Red Legs and Captain Greaves is often spoken of as "alias Red Legs." His master was kind and gave him a good education. When this master died the boy was sold to another—a cruel one.

He immediately ran away, swam across Caribbea bay, but unfortunately climbed upon the wrong ship and found himself in the clutches of Captain Hawkins, a notoriously cruel pirate. So Greaves unwillingly became a pirate and quickly rose to eminence in the profession, although he was remarkable for his refusal to torture prisoners or kill unnecessarily. This led to a duel between him and Captain Hawkins, in which he was victorious, and was elected captain.

He now entered upon a career of almost unparalleled success as a pirate, culminating in his capture of the island of Margarita, off the coast of Venezuela. He did this by capturing the Spanish fleet; turning the guns of the fleet upon the forts; defending the principal city and then storming them. From this town he obtained a huge booty of pearls and gold.

Red Legs then retired to the life of a respectable planter on the island of Nevis. One day he was visited by an old pirate friend, who denounced him to the authorities. He was thrown into a dungeon to await execution. In 1690 there came a great earthquake, which destroyed and submerged the town and Greaves was one of the few survivors. He was picked up by a whaling vessel, on which he soon won the praise of the captain by his skill as a seaman. More than that, a queer turn of fate won him even greater honor by his assistance in capturing a gang of pirates, and for this feat he was given a pardon.

Then he retired once more to his plantation, and there he lived out the remaining years of his life, greatly honored for his many acts of piety and gifts to charitable institutions.

To the Voters and Citizens of Lincoln County

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff, subject to the action of the coming Republican County Convention.

We have tried in the past year and a half, to conduct this office along the lines required by law, which come under the head of "Duties of a Sheriff." Though far from being perfect, we are happy to say that there have been no grave mistakes and we feel fortunate that there have been very little serious trouble in Lincoln County during this time.

We are asking for this re-election for two reasons. First, because having no other plans in view at present, we need the job. Second, the law allows two terms for the various officers and if a majority of the voters are satisfied with the way the office has been conducted, we would be proud to have our efforts vindicated.

Our promises in case of re-election are much the same as two years ago; that is, few and far between.

Regardless of how this question may be decided by the Republican Convention or by the voters on election day, I wish to take this opportunity of saying that we have been treated mightily well by the people of Lincoln County, that we were merely hired to do this work and therefore, have nothing coming except salary since the first of this month.

Very truly yours,
S. W. KELSEY.

Boy Scout Notes

This summer Boy Scout camp for Eastern New Mexico which will be at Ruidoso, will be a city of tents. Twenty-five large tents will be used to accommodate the different Scout troops. According to Minor Huffman, Scout Executive, everything is ready for the opening on July 20th. The camp is divided into two periods of ten days, half of the troops of Eastern New Mexico attending each period.

The campsite on the Ruidoso is a delightful place on Forest service land. It is along the river, near the Highway, and is easily accessible.

Every possible thing will be done to insure the safety of the Scouts in camp. Water will be obtained from a deep well. A good chef will see that a well balanced menu is served. The camp has telephone connection and a doctor is available at all times.

A well balanced program of activities will be supervised by competent leaders. The program will include hiking, games, instruction in Scoutcraft, handicraft, campcraft, nature study Indian Lore.

The Carrizozo Scouts will arrive in camp July 20th at 4 p.m. and will remain until July 30th. Parents of the Scouts desiring more information should see Mr. T. E. Kelley.

Well, No Wonder!

From "Jabs in the Solar Plexus"

A man committed suicide because of a melancholy conviction that he was his own grandfather. Here is the note he left behind:

"I married a widow with a grown-up daughter. My father visited our home very often, fell in love with my step-daughter and married her; so my father became my own son-in-law and my step-daughter my mother, because she was my father's wife. "After my wife had a son, he was my father's brother-in-law and my uncle, for he was the brother of my step-mother. My father's wife, that is, my step-daughter, also had a son. He was, of course, my brother, and at the same time my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter."

"My wife was my grandmother, because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time, and as the husband of one's own grandmother is his grandfather. I became my own grandfather!"
—New Mexican.

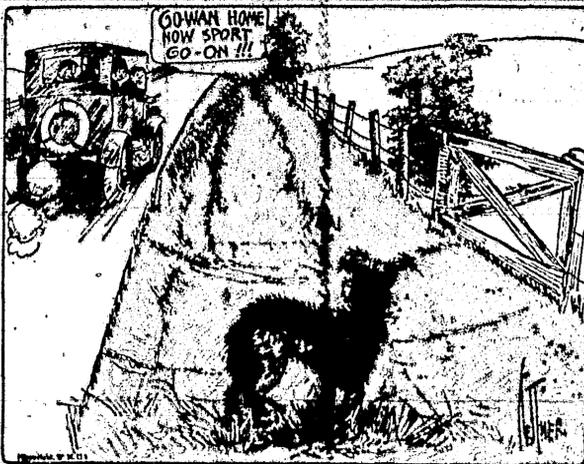

Dr. G. H. Faget and two sons, Frank and Max, were visitors from Fort Stanton on Wednesday, returning to the Fort in the evening.

Narrow Escape

Seven boys made an attempt to motor to Ancho Monday night without lights in their car and the result was, that six miles above here, they ran into a road grader truck. The collision threw the occupants out and all were injured, but none of a serious nature, except one Higinio Warner, who suffered painful cuts about the face and head. Let there be caution used in the future and see that "your" lamps are trimmed and burning.

Judge Seth F. Crews was a Carrizozo visitor from his home in Oscura Monday.

Dog Days

Pine Lodge Notes

Rain has fallen here continually since the 4th.

The cottages at Pine Lodge are pretty well occupied at the present time.

Shorty Dawson and F. S. Randles are working west of here on some mining claims belonging to Rolland Brothers of Carrizozo.

Dr. Porter of Melrose was called home from his cottage here on business matters but expects to return soon.

Dr. L. J. Johnson of Roswell visited his family here over the week-end.

R. E. McGregor, manager of Pine Lodge went to Roswell Thursday for a truck load of supplies.

A party of well drillers with their families from Roswell, came here for a short outing recently.

John Bryan of Lincoln, who has been doing road work here and looking out for forest fires, returned home Tuesday.

Forest Ranger Thomas was a recent visitor here.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dingwall arrived home from Eagle Creek Tuesday, after spending a week at that pleasure resort, and report the following Carrizozo people now enjoying the beauties of that paradise:

The E. H. Sweet family, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Blaney, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Sale, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Crawford, the Bennett Dingwall family, the R. W. Dozier family, the Misses Lorraine Hunt and Effie Crabtree, Ernest Dingwall and Buster Anderson. According to Mr. and Mrs. George Dingwall, Eagle Creek has never been so beautiful as it appears at this particular time of season.

Notice

School District No. 7, Carrizozo, is now ready to pay a two-thirds dividend on all school certificates of 1923-1924.

Fish and Game Notes

Upon request by the Department, the U. S. Forest Service has undertaken a survey of the fishing waters within the National Forests. The data furnished, together with those collected for the areas outside the Forests will afford a comprehensive size-up of the fish situation within the State. It will show the mileage of fish-supporting waters; the degree of present stocking; species with which stocked; species to which best adapted; amount of fishing, etc. The data will have an immense value in a number of different ways, not the least of which will be to furnish a check on the statements of the enthusiast who backs up his plea for the planting of a half-million trout in his district with the reason that it contains more fishing water than any other seven counties combined.

The District Bulletin of the U. S. Forest Service says the following poster has been noted on the property of an irate rancher:

"Trespassers will be persecuted to the fullest extent of two mean mongrel dogs which ain't never bin ovari soshibil with strangers nohow and a dubble bareit shotgun which aint bin loaded with no Sofy Pillow. Dam if I aint tired of this hel raisin on mi propoty."

J. Stokely Ligon, who is engaged in a survey of the game resources of the state and is on leave from the U. S. Biological Survey for that purpose, has found that he will be unable to complete the work in the time originally estimated. Accordingly, the Department has asked for an extension of his leave which has been granted. New Mexico is a man-sized state, being the fourth largest in the Union.

The State Fish & Game Commission will distribute a large amount of mountain trout over the state from the hatcheries in the near future, and the portion for the Ruidoso, North and South Forks of Eagle Creek and the Bonito, will be 175,000.

Maurice Lemon, who left here with Mrs. Elizabeth Gumm on her trip to California, writes home that he is enjoying himself in visiting relatives and old Carrizozo friends in Long Beach and Los Angeles.

Mrs. F. H. Johnson has returned from her visit with her mother at Los Angeles, where she spent two weeks.

Mrs. George Titsworth and daughter of Captain and Mrs. Henrietta Belknap of Ancho, were Carrizozo visitors Wednesday.

Mrs. M. B. Paden left for Tucumcari where she will spend a week with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Armstrong and sister Ethel.

E. M. Brickley of the First National Bank was an Alamogordo visitor Monday, returning home on No. 12 that evening. He told of a record-breaking rain that fell in that locality while he was there, for which, according to the banker, the people of Alamogordo should be extremely grateful.

Attend the Penny Social at Lutz Hall tonight, given by the Epworth League. Good cause!

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

BEN'S BUST OUT

BEN was a little black walf whom I met in the mountains of Virginia and who caddied for the Southern gentlemen who played golf on the picturesque course at Old Sweet Springs. His black eyes and his white teeth glittered as he talked to me.

He had dragged a heavy golf bag up the ascent and down the declivities of the links four times during the day, and when I ran onto him he held in his hand as his reward, a big silver dollar. He was radiant; he was thrilled—I could see, with eager anticipation.

"What are you going to do with it, Ben?" I asked. He grinned, showing his teeth, and dropped his frizzled head.

"I reckon," he said slowly, "I reckon I'll have a big bust out." Even at twelve he was seeking worldly adventure.

It was a very wan-faced, crumpled, sick little boy whom I saw the next morning. He had had his "bust out," his money was gone, his head was aching, and he had lost his job. All day he lay limp and repentant under a huge oak tree watching the other boys at their work.

It is curious how many people, even though they may be older and better educated than Ben, meet joy or success or victory without self-restraint or without self-control. If something pleasant happens, if there is something over which to rejoice, their only way of showing satisfaction is through the "bust out." There seem to be a great many young fellows who know of no other method of showing keen pleasure, or thorough enjoyment except by drinking to excess. Even if they go to a dance they find little pleasure unless they are "lighted up." And sorrow, too, is drowned most readily in the flowing bowl. Failure of any enterprise, the refusal of a pretty girl to accept an offer of marriage or an invitation to a game is adequate reason for driving a man to his cups.

"Why did you do it?" I asked a young fellow who had been arrested and fined for intoxication.

"Well, I'd lost my job," he said, "and I had to do something to help me forget my trouble."

And he was an educated man in whom I had a right to expect to find self-restraint, police, self-control.

How a man meets success is quite as much a test of his character as how he bears defeat. The "bust out" is the sign of physical and moral weakness.

To Those Interested

A list of contributors to the Community Hall will be posted from time to time at the Post Office, showing the amount subscribed and the amount paid by each. This for the information of the public and to enable subscribers to check up their accounts.

Frances McDonald Spencer, Treasurer.

D. A. Saunders, Chief Train Dispatcher at the offices of the S. P. in El Paso, was here yesterday, attending a meeting of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41 A. F. & A. M. and returned home this morning on 11.

County Treasurer E. W. Hulbert received a message the latter part of last week to the effect that his brother, Frank Hulbert of Roswell was very ill. He hastened to his bedside on Friday and much to his joy, found him better. Mr. Hulbert returned home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Miller returned the latter part of last week from their pleasant vacation spent in California and Oregon. They got the best out of everything in the nature of pleasure and profited by taking advantage of the many sight-seeing trips which is constantly in store for those who visit these scenic wonderlands.

The American Tourist Sees Paris

By PROEHL HALLER JAKLON
Drawing by Ray Walters.

The ocean this summer is full of ships. And the ships are full of Americans, young and old, rich and not so rich, but all comrades in arms and hand-bags in the annual descent on Europe and Paris.

And, as usual, this year's tourist swarms is larger than any previous year, so the steamship agents tell us. Estimates (meaning guesses) place the number of eastbound travelers this year anywhere from 200,000 to 600,000.

Of the total, whatever it may be, by far the most picturesque throng is that composed of college students. This designation, of course, includes prep school lads, bona-fide college students, and anyone who recently, that is, within ten years or so, has been a college student.

Foreign travel, it seems, has become a necessary part of a college education. This year the steamship lines expect the total of this class of patronage to reach 60,000—one in ten of the college population of the United States.

The peak load of tourists with European generally is carried during June and July, but on account of the unexpectedly heavy demand for accommodation that began to make itself felt as early as last fall, most of the transatlantic lines arranged for extra sailings for May as well as June and July. The Cunard schedule was arranged last winter so as to send out 24 passenger ships from Atlantic ports in the course of May, June and July. This included 54 sailings from New York. The International Mercantile Marine, the United States Lines, the French Line, the Dutch, German, Scandinavian, Italian and other companies arranged their schedules in proportion.

Passenger Traffic Dwindles.
Since the World War transatlantic travel has been a long time coming back. Discomforts and delays in post-war Europe made it anything but a "pleasure" trip. Then, too, the cost was high. Since 1914 fares had almost doubled. For six years after the armistice only the rich could afford the voyage. Steamships sailed half-filled; business was rotten.

To make things worse, America's new immigration quota law reduced the number of incoming aliens to about a quarter of the prewar figures. The shortage of these great steamships was only partly filled coming from Europe to America, and practically empty on the return.

Then somebody had a brilliant idea. Why not paint up this now deserted steership, give it a new name, and make a campaign for the business of the old-time American traveler to Europe via the steership? Everything considered, these third-class accommodations were not so bad; it was the garlic-and-cheese society to which the less pungent American travelers mostly objected.

And so competing lines, one by one, began to organize and popularize a new kind of third class, set apart and dignified, congenial company guaranteed, for the kind of American travelers who had the desire to tour Europe but not the price to pay for first or second-class cabins.

Well-placed propaganda put the idea over, and "tourist third," and lately "student third" immediately became popular. It is advertised as intended chiefly for students, teachers, clerical and professional people. The territory covered by the latter designation, however, is broad enough to include almost anyone whose appearance and manner indicate that his company during the voyage is likely to be tolerable, or, in other words, that he is an American, used to the ways of Americans, and not a returning alien whose customs and habits might not prove in harmony with the student crowd.

The main idea of student third is to have a good time. "Everybody join in" is the slogan. With the steerage reduced and educated, the college boys and girls have made it "the thing to do." Before the end of the voyage many first-class passengers find themselves joining in with the jolly throng that is third class. One young man who has been across twice, once in dignified first-class with his parents, and the second in student third alone, has nothing but wild enthusiasm for the less expensive mode of travel.

Tourist Third Now "The Thing."
In its few years of existence tourist third has become the most talked-about feature of modern ocean travel, and has grown rapidly. The United States line carried 1,500 passengers eastbound in 1924. Last year they accommodated 10,000 in the first six months, and this year the number is expected to exceed 15,000. Other lines have had similar success.

Round-trip passage costs vary from $100 to $220 in tourist third, depending on the ship and the ports of embarkation and debarkation. This includes transportation, berth and meals. Tourist third became popular first in the eastern colleges, but rapidly the idea spread westward. Many universities of the Middle and Far West have tours now enroute. Several groups, notably those from schools of journalism, have taken along their instructors with a view toward absorbing a little academic learning along with their other travel education.

Of course college students are not the only ones that are touring Europe. Business men, from bootleggers to butter-and-egg men from the West, have temporarily abandoned their scramble for dollars while they occasionally practice the easily learned art of spending them. They spend them in Paris, London, Rome, Venice and along the Rhine, where, it is understood, one gets so much more for one's dollar than when it is spent at home.

What do Europeans think of these droves of apparently wealthy Americans? Let a Frenchman tell you—George Villa, writing in the New York Times:
"The French people, as a whole, finds no benefit from this tourist invasion. Citizens are, as a rule, not even curious about the hordes of foreigners in their midst. Only a few who stand to make direct financial profit—such as the hotel keepers—are at all interested.

Americans a Happy Lot.
"A Frenchman is keenly conscious that with his poor francs he cannot compete with the dollars and pounds of the tourists. Many essential amusements and luxuries totally inaccessible to him prove inexpensively to foreigners. Then, too, there is the Frenchman's fundamental patriotism that prevents his paying any attention to the snap judgments so lightly made by a majority of visiting foreigners.

"It is the Americans who, most of all, impress the French. Their expression is happy—their happiness felt by a man who knows how to enjoy the present. The typical American is smooth-shaven, dressed in a light gray suit, his customary cold and formal appearance transformed into youthful gaiety. He is conspicuous by his obviously exaggerated sporty manner. He wears huge round spectacles.

"One does not find the American woman tourist beautiful. Having become tourists, they no longer have any desire to appear womanly. They dress in sport clothes like the men, wear heavy shoes, cocoa-colored hats and carry, slung over their shoulders a large money bag instead of a Gaiety purse. From our Parisian point of view, the wearing of such a horrible costume cannot be understood. It is too practical.

"An American—passing through Paris wanted to see the city in one day. In order to accomplish this he hired a taxi. He was one of those expressionless Americans—"try-faced," as the French love to depict them—and an architect.

"He had the chauffeur drive past all the great monuments of the capital. Passing a house that was still under construction, he stopped the taxi and questioned the chauffeur:
"When was this building begun?"
"About six months ago," answered the driver.

"Six months! In America we would have built that shack in eight days."

"Next they arrived at the Pantheon. "Well, that isn't bad. That's a fine piece of work. Tell me, chauffeur, how long did it take to build that?"
"I do not know, monsieur—perhaps a year or two."

"Great Scott! we could have done it in a month!"

"Similar outbursts continued during the balance of the tour. But then the chauffeur began to lose temper. My customer is exasperating," he growled to himself. "Wait a bit, my friend; I'll settle you. I don't come from Montmartre for nothing!"

"And just then they came to the great church of Notre Dame.
"Stop! Stop!" ordered the American. "This is really splendid! Then, after a minute: 'And how much time did it take for that?'"

"Raising his arms with a stupefied expression, the chauffeur exclaimed: 'Well, I never! That is beyond me. That wasn't there last night!'"

The Kladder Kladd.
Another story told of the American tourist relates to a Frenchman from Marseilles, and, as is well known, a Marseillais is never to be outdone in telling a story. The American, a fat meat packer from Cincinnati, was describing how they made sausage meat.
"In France," said he sarcastically, "in order to kill a pig and get one ham you use implements worthy of primitive man. In Cincinnati we put the live pig into one end of a machine, turn the handle, and at the other end comes out your choice of sausages, Bologna or ham."

"That's nothing," said the Marseillais, after thinking a minute. "We do even better than that. Our machine works both ways. If one makes a mistake, and the sausage does not suit our taste, we turn the handle the opposite way and get back our pig."

Mikado Held Sacred

Officially the emperor of Japan is known as the mikado; the word meaning "enlightened gate." The term is used more often outside of Japan, however, than within that country, where the people prefer the title Tenno-Sama—"Son of Heaven." Mikado being reserved for poetry. The imperial line dates back to 660 B. C. and descent is claimed from the gods. The mikado-ship is, therefore, the longest continued office in existence. Each mikado has a title by which he is known to history after death. The person of the mikado is held sacred by the Japanese, who regard their sovereign as the foundation of all wisdom and the center of their history and government.—Exchange.

Celtic Calendar Discovered

A number of years ago an interesting Celtic calendar was found at Coligny, France. It consisted of 202 fragments of bronze. It was impossible to read the calendar until the fragments were placed together properly, thoroughly cleaned and reproduced by electroplating. The scientists in charge of the work now announce the result of their study. It was found that the Celtic year consisted of 354 days, with the months alternately 30 and 30 days. To catch up with the solar year it was necessary to insert an extra month every two and a half years.—Pathfinder Magazine.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(Ch. 1736, Women's Magazine 57123)
Well, not for precious chances tossed away.
Weep not for golden ages on the wane.
Each night I burn the records of the day;
At sunrise every soul is born again.
SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

The busy housewife with one pair of hands at command to do the daily tasks, must do without many frills in cooking, no matter how much she may enjoy them. However a few minutes spent in simple garnishing is well spent time.

Carrot Pudding.—Take one cupful of grated carrot, one cupful of grated potato, one egg, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of shortening, one-half cupful of raisins, one teaspoonful of soda and one cupful of flour. Steam one hour.

Beef Meat.—Take a nice piece of round steak, lay it in vinegar with one onion, a teaspoonful of whole allspice, salt and pepper mixed, one bayleaf, allow it to stand for three days. Brown the meat in a hot frying pan, pour over the vinegar and sufficient water in equal parts to cover the meat and simmer until tender. Strain the gravy, then thicken it and pour around the meat when serving.

Chocolate Cookies.—Cream one-half cupful of shortening with one cupful of sugar, add one beaten egg. Add one-half cupful of sour milk with one-half teaspoonful of soda, two squares of chocolate melted over hot water and one and one-half cupfuls of flour. Drop by spoonfuls on baking sheets and bake in a moderate oven. Top with icing prepared from powdered sugar, butter and a little vanilla and cream.

Drop Doughnuts.—Take one-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of flour with one teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt and ginger, a grating of lemon rind. Beat the egg white, add sugar gradually, then the beaten yolk, flavoring, salt, milk and flour. Drop by teaspoonfuls into hot fat and cook until brown. Roll in powdered sugar, then cool.

Unusual Sponge Cake.—Separate the whites and yolks of four eggs and beat the whites very stiff. Add one cupful of sugar a little at a time, then add the yolks one at a time, cutting and folding them in, not to mix, but leave the white streaked with yellow. Fold in one cupful of flour sifted with one-quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar and bake in a greased pan in a slow oven.

Stewed Lettuce.—Cook lettuce as greens in very little moisture, serve with melted butter, a dash of vinegar, pepper and salt. Onion juice may be added for seasoning if liked.

Pertinent Hints.
As seasoning is one of the fine arts and marks the ability of a cook, it is wise to study the various combinations of seasoning. The French cook has the seasoning sense developed to a high degree. Her foods are often of the most common and plainest kind, but the mixture of seasoning puts the dishes out of the ordinary class.

A package of bay leaves will last two or three generations, as this is a seasoning like garlic which should be used in very small quantities. The little bit, however, is needed to add that alluring flavor.

A bottle of mushroom sauce, kitchen bouquet, worcestershire and tabasco sauce, pepper sauce, curry, chili powder, celery salt, paprika, soy sauce of various kinds with the common seasonings and a dozen of the savory herbs should all be part of the well-equipped kitchen.

Scald a dish in which fish has been cooked with vinegar in the water, then wash with soda in the water.

Old rubbers will be shined up by rubbing them with ammonia.

A roomy market basket well padded makes a fine bed for a small baby when traveling. It is easy to carry and will also hold the baby's belongings. Being able to carry the baby without disturbing him or exposing him to the weather is a great advantage.

Grease the cork of the bottle of glue and it will be easy to remove when needed.

Between the rows of the vegetables which will soon be pulled like onions, radishes and such vegetables, sow flower seed which will delight you after the vegetables are gone.

A good way to clean gloves is to moisten them and wash them on the hands, by rubbing and cleaning off the dark spots. Redew the flour and clean again.

Kitchen aprons of unbleached cotton are much more desirable, as they may be boiled and kept white.

A piece of ice held in the mouth for a minute before bad-tasting medicine is given will dull the sense of taste.

A little sand in a top-heavy vase will add greatly to the comfort of using it.

A fresh blood stain will be completely removed if covered at once with powdered starch.

When setting dishes on ice use a sea rubber under them; this will keep them from slipping.

Hemline Flare Is Seeking Admirers

Mode Still Persists; Same Influence May Dominate Autumn Fashions.

It will come as something of a relief to learn that the Paris midseason collections have not furthered the reaction toward the slender silhouette. Indeed, even the hemline flare, once the leading insurrectionist against the simple and narrow outline, but more lately snubbed by an ungrateful mode, has returned to claim some of its early admirers. Despite the many predictions of a return to the straight silhouette, the spirit of the flare still persists, declares a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, and it is our belief that the same influence will dominate the modes of next autumn.

The flare, in its present connotation, does not exclusively mean the hemline dimension which was its first and most popular manifestation. It now indicates any deviation from the strictly parallel outline which was the essence of the post-war silhouette.

The question of skirt length, about which so many conflicting ideas have been broadcast, remains in status quo. Despite rumors of greater length, afternoon dresses are as short as ever and sometimes a little shorter. Evening dresses are clearly longer but that is not of great significance. Indications at the moment are that late summer and early autumn will witness a slightly lowered hemline. It will be no more than a few inches at most, however, and it will not be the forerunner of the ankle-length skirt, for which you may be duly grateful.

Two-Piece Frocks.
Generally, the present midseason collections confirm the various tendencies that were launched earlier in the spring. Outstanding is the universal prevalence of the two-piece frock, though for day wear rather than evening dress, in which realm it has given way to the more feminine and elaborately worked gown that contrasts sharply with the sports-like tendency of the day-time mode.

Jean Patou shows jumper frocks even for the afternoon in town, and of such material and make that they are suitable for the bridge party or the tea dance as well as the street. One particularly smart model is made of black satin, and has that touch of pink which is particularly fashionable just now. It appears in the cravette, the cuffs and in two narrow rows in the skirt above the hem. The whole skirt is finely plaited.

Another charming example of the jumper frock in the Patou collection is a dainty model that will be much worn at Deauville and Biarritz throughout the summer. It is made of beige crepe de chine, finely hand-tucked in horizontal lines with a small square yoke, the latter left unbuttoned. A narrow gold leather belt gives the final touch of originality to this pretty frock, which has the skirt plaited with the same degree of fineness as the tucks on the jumper.

Contrast in Coat and Dress.
Also noteworthy among the general tendencies of the demi-season offerings is the contrast between coat and dress in the two-piece ensembles. A Louiseboulanger model illustrates a very happy interpretation of this idea. She shows a straight coat in manro laine made with the new deep yoke that also goes over the top of the sleeves in a shield movement. This coat is lined with dull rose crepe de chine which has a hint of mauve in it. The dress is also made of this rose crepe and has a new line in the interesting long stole front that hangs loose from a pointed yoke at the back, having crossed the shoulders.

The Evening Ensemble.
Molyneux carries out the contrasting coat and dress in rep and tulle. He has a belted coat in navy blue that is lined with fountard printed in bright blue and black on a white ground. The same fountard is used for the dress, which has a border of blue, black and white stripes round the hem.

Another characteristic of the mid-season is the further development of the uneven hemline. This is seen in points and pearl edges on the more elaborate afternoon dresses, and sometimes in turrets on simpler gowns, as in one smart pale yellow model by Louiseboulanger that is cut out to make the box plaits in front appear a little longer than the rest of the skirt. The same cut is used in the plain black, thus giving wider serrated edges all along.

Midseason Evening Gowns.

In evening gowns the midseason showing of the haute couture evidences—a continuation—of the two schools that have opposed each other all spring at the smart Paris functions. On the one side there is the plain chiffon gown developed in various effective colors. The significant point of this type du soir is that it is entirely devoid of trimming except in the shape of some flower or motif of the same color as the dress. Molyneux varies this very slightly by using marquisette instead of chiffon, and the effect is as light and airy as if the fabric were chiffon. Pale turquoise blue and beige that is ranged from palest champagne to light nut brown are the most popular new colors for these gowns, though there is still a great deal of current red, geranium rose and a beautiful bright green with a hint of blue in it like the color of Kentucky grass. White is also used and there is a great deal of very simple black that is being worn by young girls.

The other school of evening gowns is what is known as the glittering type. It depends for its effect on the richness and sparkle of its embroidery or fringes which are carried out in the beads and sequins and sometimes diamonds and crystal. The form of the latter species is straighter than that of the chiffon gown, for the fullness necessitated by a filmy material is replaced by flat flounces and slashed panels in a gown that is weighted by embroidery. Another contrast in their elaborate types is the often one-sided effect given by drapery in the plain chiffon gowns, whereas the embroidered dress is usually symmetrical in form.

For the Traveler.

The urban exodus is about to begin. Two things are uppermost in the mind of the prospective feminine traveler. What shall she wear for the trip itself and the incidental touring, and what types of dress will insure her certain smartness, even when sojourning in a strange country.

The first consideration for the traveler is that she arrive at her destination as fresh and trim, or almost so, as when she started out. Nothing is more disillusioning than to leave home in a fresh frock of some lightweight material and descend from the train or motor hours later in something that is so wrinkled and rumpled as to bear almost no resemblance to its former self. Therefore when traveling choose a costume of soft woolen mixture. These are admirable for retaining their lines and not showing dust and soil. As the present tendency is toward a great expression of color, the dull, drab checks are not so desirable as those of a gayer tone.

Mohair provides an alternative for the woman who finds off woolen too warm, particularly for train travel, and it has the further advantage of cleaning easily when necessary. If one chooses this material it is important to avoid those combined with artificial silk, as this is apt to crease and frill in an unbecoming manner when traveling. Skirts are usually plaited to insure freedom of movement and come in all sorts of widths and styles. Many of these, with a view to delivering the wearer at her stopping place with all her pretense glory intact, are concealing their plaits to the sides and front, so that all possibility of the unseemly crushed look is avoided.

THE SUNFLOWER FAMILY

MOTHER SUNFLOWER told the Sunflower children she wanted to tell them something of Sunflower history.

The Sunflower children looked so bright that Mother Sunflower knew it would not be hard to teach them. And then, too, the children would not object because there would be no dates to remember and they would not have to answer questions at the end of the lesson.

"In the first place," said Mother Sunflower, "we are all made up of many little flowers."

The Sunflower children all nodded their heads as though to say: "Yes, Mother, dear."

"The rose is a flower all by itself. It is made up of many little roses.

"We're One of the Largest Families."

But each one of our heads is made up of many little flowers clustered together to make one big flower or head.

"You will notice that if you look at yourselves carefully and with an eye to family history and family ways."

Mr. Wind came along then and blew just so the Sunflower children could take little looks at their own heads and each saw that what Mother Sunflower had said was quite, quite true.

"We're one of the largest families in the world, among the flowers," Mother Sunflower continued.

"In fact I think we are members of the largest group of flowers without any exception and that is a splendid honor to belong to such a big family."

"Members of our family are in all parts. Insects admire our great beauty and our size and they come to visit us."

"Oh, yes, we have visitors. Sometimes we're very busy with callers. In fact, we're almost as busy with callers as the lady who sits on yonder back porch."

Mother Sunflower waved toward the direction of a back porch upon which sat a beautiful lady dressed in white. She was very dainty and very graceful and very lovely to look at.

"Yes," said Mother Sunflower, "we have almost as many callers as has that lady. And you know how her porch is filled, gay after day with callers. Of course her callers are people and not insects!"

"We know that," said the Sunflower callers.

"Although I love a very bright golden color above all colors," Mother Sunflower continued, "still I do love to see the lady wear white."

"White is so becoming to her and she always looks so summery. That is a word which I've heard, and so I suppose I may use it. It means that when people look summery they look like the summer time, lovely and at their best."

"Well, she has callers all the time. Very early in the morning I see her sitting with a book before her, but it is no time at all before the callers begin to come."

"She is so popular. And yet she has only one head!"

"That shows how wonderful she must be. We are loved because there are so many little flowers or so many little heads which make up each of our single heads. And our many little heads have flower sweetness in them."

"But she is just as popular with one head! It is remarkable and yet it is perfectly true. People love to talk to her and hear what she has to say, for what she has to say is very wise and very witty. And she is kindly with all her wisdom, never saying things to hurt."

"I know that, for I can tell by the happy expressions on the faces of the callers when they leave. And she gives her callers sweets to eat, too, very often—just as we do with our callers."

"But I must tell you of some of our rich and society cousins. They are the Chrysanthemums, Dahlias, Asters, and many others."

"Oh, never forget, little Sunflower children, that we belong to a great, enormous flower family, and what could be a greater honor for flowers? Nothing could be a greater honor. That is the answer to that question!"

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At Twenty-One Chick Evans, Famous Golf Champion, Wanted to Be a Bond Salesman.

"I WAS twenty-one on the 18th of July, 1913, and my birthday occurred on the ocean. I was returning from my first trip abroad, where I won the French-American golf championship on July 4. I had expected to return to Northwestern university in the fall, as I had two more years to go. All of my business friends advised against it, but my family wanted me to go back to school. My mother, particularly, was bitterly disappointed.

"I accepted the advice of my business friends, and after the two big championships I went to work for a local (Chicago) investment bond house. The father of my most intimate friend had an interest in it. I had a good offer to go to Boston, but did not want to leave Chicago, the city I love. I think I was the first of the well-known golfers to enter the bond business. I remained with the same house, although its name changed somewhat, for 12 years, during which time I had become a member of the firm and its secretary. Later I entered the employ of A. C. Allyn and company, another Chicago bond firm.

"It might be interesting to state that from the time I won the Western Amateur championship in 1909 I had been writing occasional articles on golf. In the fall of 1912 I was regularly employed on a Chicago newspaper. This work continued until 1920, so that it may be said that my ambitions when I was twenty-one were that I would be successful both as a bond salesman and a writer.

"I feel that my ambitions have been reasonably satisfied. Of course, I had at times higher ambitions, but on the whole, when I look around, I feel that I have realized more, perhaps, than most young men, lost in the dream of their early ambitions, have. It wasn't exactly what my family had hoped. My mother wanted me to finish at the university and take a special course in diplomatic or consular service.—Chick Evans."

Any one who plays golf knows the fame of Mr. Evans; and most any one who does not play has heard and admired him just the same. So that there is no doubt at all that he has realized his early ambitions, taking into consideration that every young man's ambition, great and foremost, is to become famous.

Great Personages of the Bible

By REV. LEONARD A. BARRETT

Job

JOB was one of the wealthiest men of his time. He possessed 7,000 sheep, 3,000 camels, 500 yoke of oxen, and 500 she asses. He was the greatest of all the men of the East. He was also greatly blessed in his home life, having seven sons and three daughters. He has been described as a righteous, rich, and happy man.

The story of Job's career reveals many of the ideas believed by the people of his time. Among them was the belief that prosperity was indicative of Divine approval and the reward for righteousness.

The biography of Job begins with the visit of Satan to the heavenly council, where Satan is asked by the Lord, "Whence comest thou?" Satan replies, "From going to and fro in the earth." The Lord inquires of Satan if he had ever set his heart on Job and whether he had ever tempted him, to which Satan answered that if Job's property were taken from him he would curse God. The result of the debate in the heavenly council was that Satan gained permission from the Lord to test the integrity and faithfulness of Job in any way he liked, only he was not to put his hand upon him. A series of misfortunes are now visited upon Job. The Sabians and the Chaldeans sell upon his cattle and took them away, and all his servants were slain. His sons were also slain. "Then Job arose and rent his mantle and shaved his head and fell down upon the ground and worshiped, saying, 'The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.'" Having failed in his venture, Satan seeks another interview of the second heavenly council and secures the privilege of attacking Job's life. "Permit me, O Lord, to put forth my hand and touch his bone and his flesh and then he will curse Thee to Thy face," to which the Lord replied, "Behold he is in thy hand but save his life."

Sore boils now come upon Job. He scraped himself with a potsherd and sat down among the ashes, which in the ancient days was a symbol of suffering. When his sufferings were most intense three friends came to visit him with the purpose of expressing their sympathy. Their names were Eliphaz, Bildad, and Zophar. These friends sat with him upon the ground seven days and seven nights. The friends did not speak a word during all that time, for they saw that his suffering was very great. Job shared the belief of his time, that prosperity was a reward for righteousness. Now that all his possessions were taken from him, many persons thought that Job must have committed a great sin. Only such an act could explain so great a calamity. The friends urge Job to confess the sin he committed and then God could forgive and bless him again. The dilemma which confronted Job was the difficulty of confessing a sin he had not committed. He finally replies to his friends, "When it comes to an interpretation of God I am not inferior to you. Who knows not in all these things that the hand of Jehovah hath wrought this? Hold your peace and let me alone. Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him." Thus Job triumphed over his friends, Satan returned baffled and Job arrived at a peace of soul born of vision and faith.

A terrific thunderstorm takes place and a voice is heard out of the whirlwind, which to Job is indicative of a divine intervention. Job is full of anticipation for the hour of his vindication had come. In the far distance a voice out of the storm is heard saying to Job, "I will demand of thee and declare thou unto Me." In other words, what finally have you to say, Job? This question Job answers in a sublime confession of faith. "I had heard of Thee by the hearing of the ear, but now mine eye seeth Thee." After this humble confession, there was returned to Job twice as much as he had before, and he lived 140 years and saw his children and grandchildren even to four generations.

All is well though faith and form. He endured in the night of fear, Well fares the storm to those who hear A deeper voice across the storm.

Regret is dead, but love is more Than in the summers that are blown. For I myself with these have grown To something stronger than before.

"And I saw that there was an ocean of darkness and death, but an infinite ocean of light and love flowed over the ocean of darkness, and in thought I saw the infinite love of God."

The Hotel Stenographer

By Red Fulkerson

"It's a nice day outside," remarked the Hotel Stenographer as she removed her coat, shook her umbrella and prepared to go to work.

"I don't think," agreed the House Detective.

"I know you don't, Kelly," answered the girl. "That's the reason you are a success as a horse cop and with the ladies. All the old hens in this hotel cackle around you like you had your pockets full of corn. That's because you don't think, too, Kelly, no woman likes to have a man think in her presence. It is like closing a door in her face. As long as a man talks to a woman he does not have to think. In fact, he better not or she will interrupt him."

"When he stops to think he gets her all fussed up, because a woman always acts on impulse without thinking. While a man is paused to think, she is worried sick for fear he is going to put his brains to the problem before them in which case she always gets the worst of it."

"As long as a man is talking, she can keep up with him. But when he stops to think, he's got her buffaloed. That's why men get into so many messes with women. Women will not let them stop and think. Lots of men walk home from women's houses talking to themselves because they did not stop to think. Alimony, matrimony, hush-money and a lot of other male complications have their origin in women's ability to keep men talking and not thinking."

"But a man like you, Kelly, whose face states that thinking is not your habit, is a great hit with my sex. Most men of your type haven't anything to lose, it's true, but what little there is they are willing to lose it, and that's all any woman asks of any man."

"What are you doing? Trying to kid me?" asked the House Detective.

"No," said the girl sadly, "Just doing it and making you think I am not."

"I had better tell you that after I meet a cure."

"The Better Way"
"You are threatened with heart failure. I think I can cure you."
"Very well, doctor. What is your fee?"
"I had better tell you that after I meet a cure."

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

THE LAST OF THE RACE

THE time was 1943, and the place was the Zoological Gardens.

Feeding time was near, and hungry sounds filled the air—the howling of pippylons, the shrill piping of semicolons, the rectangular shouts of Mexican galters.

The visitors stopped suddenly. In a carefully guarded enclosure two aged and strange-looking animals plodded silently to and fro, swishing long, weird-looking tails.

"Well, of all things! What on earth can they be?" exclaimed one.

"They look absolutely impossible," cried two.

"Let's ask a keeper," said three.

"Why," said the keeper, "them's very rare and valuable animals, them is. Them's the only living specimens of malfed horses. They're thirty year old and they were captured in 1920 in the streets of Milwaukee. Malfed horses, that's what them is!"

Marveling greatly, the visitors passed on to the cage of the slimy-looking gummicks.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"CROSS"

THIS is a word which from early childhood we used to describe ill temper or harshness or a disagreeable mood. Yet there is no etymological derivation to be found to justify this significance.

Our practice of calling a sulking or an angry person "cross" goes back to the pictorial representation of a cross, its two lines crossing or in opposition to each other. It was this physical disagreement of the horizontal and the vertical line, no doubt, which inspired the old expression or colloquialism, "don't cross him."

"Crossing" some one meant an altercation. Hence the term "cross" to describe such a frame of mind.

Relief for Rickshaw Men

Efforts to preserve the picturesque rickshaw from extinction, due to the increased popularity of automobiles in Japan, prompted the Tokyo prefectural government to announce that hereafter rickshaw men would be exempted from paying taxes on their conveyances. There are 7,836 rickshaws in Tokyo and 3,222 in the suburbs. Owners of these vehicles in the city have been required to pay a tax of 50 sen for each rickshaw.

Japan Makes Cheap Fuel

A fuel manufactured in Japan made from charcoal dust, chaff and chopped straw, is claimed to reduce greatly costs of heating and power. After the mixture is made into a paste by grinding and mixing with moisture it is rolled out, cut, then formed into blocks or balls of various sizes. It is said that the resulting fuel can be sold profitably at $2 a ton.

Water Carnival at S. N. M. Convention

One of the largest water carnivals ever held in the Southwest is being planned by the entertainment committee of the Chamber of Commerce for the two day program for the Southern New Mexico Association which convenes at Carlsbad on August 17-18. Prizes will be awarded for long distance swimming, high and fancy diving, and a possible first and second prize for the ladies' beauty contest. A complete list of prizes will be announced at a later date.

A dance at the American Legion pavilion at the bathing beach will be another feature of the entertainment and the entire second day will be devoted to a visit to Carlsbad Cavern, where two to three hundred visitors for the first time will witness the scenic attractions in the wonderful subterranean world.

Each city holding membership in the Association will furnish a speaker to address the gathering on the scenic and commercial attractions of his particular community, and there will be the usual addresses of welcome and responses and vocal and instrumental music. The program proper will be held at the bathing beach on the afternoon of August 17. Prizes may reach $1,000. J. B. French is Director for the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce which is affiliated with the S. N. M. Association.

Water Carnival at S. N. M. Convention

One of the largest water carnivals ever held in the Southwest is being planned by the entertainment committee of the Chamber of Commerce for the two day program for the Southern New Mexico Association which convenes at Carlsbad on August 17-18. Prizes will be awarded for long distance swimming, high and fancy diving, and a possible first and second prize for the ladies' beauty contest. A complete list of prizes will be announced at a later date.

A dance at the American Legion pavilion at the bathing beach will be another feature of the entertainment and the entire second day will be devoted to a visit to Carlsbad Cavern, where two to three hundred visitors for the first time will witness the scenic attractions in the wonderful subterranean world.

Each city holding membership in the Association will furnish a speaker to address the gathering on the scenic and commercial attractions of his particular community, and there will be the usual addresses of welcome and responses and vocal and instrumental music. The program proper will be held at the bathing beach on the afternoon of August 17. Prizes may reach $1,000. J. B. French is Director for the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce which is affiliated with the S. N. M. Association.

Commissioners' Proceedings

Board met June 29th, 1926.
Absent: Roman Pacheco, Member.

In compliance with a contract made and entered into on the 19th day of October, 1925, by and between the County Commissioners of Lincoln County and J. B. French of Carrizozo, Lincoln County, N. M., for the abstracting, giving notice, bring and prosecute suits to and against all persons and property for unpaid taxes for the year Nineteen and Twenty-Four:

THE COUNTY TREASURER is hereby authorized and instructed to pay to the said J. B. French as compensation for the above mentioned service the amount or amounts found to be due under said contract, as per letter of the State Comptroller, to-wit:

Santa Fe, N. M.
June 18, 1926.

Board of Co. Commissioners,
Lincoln County, N. Mex.,
Gentlemen:--

It appears from information received in this office that J. B. French, Special Tax Collector of Lincoln County, has received no compensation for his services and under his contract for the collection of delinquent taxes for the year 1924, and I suggest that you authorize the County Treasurer to pay Mr. French the amount found to be due under his contract for the collection of delinquent taxes for the year 1924, and out of undistributed 1924 taxes, until he shall have received the amount found to be due for services rendered under the said contract, and after he shall have received the compensation found to be due up to the date of settlement that he be still allowed and paid his compensation out of undistributed taxes for 1924; and the remainder distributed as provided by law.

Trusting that this will be sufficient for your advice and guidance, I am,

Yours very truly,
R. H. Carter,
State Comptroller.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners of Lincoln County, N. M.

Brack Sloan, Chairman, Board of County Commissioners of Lincoln County, N. M.

The Clerk is hereby ordered to notify Mrs. Alice Albre to fix crossing on ditch of Capitan-Parsons road, at a place where she has made a change in the road on the ditch.

Capitan-Coalora Road through Witt Sears' place ordered closed: Road opened up South of his field on North side of Arroyo to the bridge.

The Clerk is hereby ordered to notify J. S. Bailey to open up old Road at once, as citizens of Alto protest to closing of this road.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR U. S. Land Office, Las Cruces, N. M. Serial No. 032345 NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that on the 29th day of May, 1926, the Santa Fe Pacific Railroad Company, by Howell Jones, its land Commissioner, made application at the United States Land Office at Las Cruces, N. M., to select under the Act of March 4, 1913 (37 Stat., 1007), as extended, the following described lands, to-wit:

NE 1/4, Sec. 21, Twp. 4-S., Rge. 10 E., N. M. P. M. The purpose of this notice is to allow all persons claiming the land adversely, or desiring to show it to be mineral in character, an opportunity to file objection to such location or selection with the local officers for the land district in which the land is situated, to-wit, at the land office aforesaid, and to establish their interests therein, or the mineral character thereof.

K. D. Stoes, Register. J 25-July 23 NOTICE OF CONTEST Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office, Las Cruces, N. M. June 18, 1926

To Robert H. Noles of Corona, New Mexico, Contestee: You are hereby notified that Charles J. Hopkins, who gives Corona, New Mex., as his post-office address, did, on the 4th day of June, 1926, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your Homestead Entry, Serial Nos. 028617 - 028618, made Jan. 16th, 1924, for E 1/2, E 1/2, and W 1/2 SW 1/4, Section 21, Township 1-S, Range 13-E, Range 13-E, N. M. P. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that said Robert H. Noles has never established residence on the Homestead, has never put any improvements of any nature whatsoever upon said entry, nor has never lived upon either Orig. or Add. entry to my knowledge.

You are, therefore, further notified that said allegations will be taken as confessed, and your said entry will be cancelled without further right to be heard, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically responding to these allegations of contest, together with due proof that you served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail. You should state in your answer the name of the post-office to which you desire future notices to be sent to you. K. D. Stoes, Register. Date of first publication, June 25 " second " July 2 " third " July 9 " fourth " July 16

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO. M. E. Tiller, Plaintiff, v. Canadian-American Oil-Leasing Association, Limited, E. G. Rafferty and W. T. Sterling, Defendants. No. 3354.

NOTICE OF SALE Notice is hereby given that I, the undersigned assignee, acting by authority of an order of the court made and dated herein on the 18th day of June, 1926, will on the 30th day of July, 1926, at the hour of ten o'clock, a. m. offer for sale and sell at public auction at the town of Oscura, N. M., to the highest and best bidder for cash in hand, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said defendants, in and to the following described property, to-wit:

That part of the Standard oil well rig situate on six lots in Oscura Park Rafferty Terrace Addition to the Town of Oscura, consisting of: One boiler; one engine; one anvil; one derrick, 74 feet, complete with rig irons, sampson post main and mud sills; built wheels; band wheel; and sand reel; one ton inch baller; one eight inch baller; rope socket; circle; two wrenches; one five inch stem; one ten inch bit, No. 59; two eight inch bits No. 44; cable knife; rope knife; jar bumper; slip socket; forgoe Jack; one pair each eight inch, ten inch, twelve inch elevators; one elevator hook; jar catcher; two crank pins; pit hanger; eight joints eight inch casing, one joint nine inch casing, one belt; one horn socket.

Also, all right, title, and interest of said defendant company in and to the six lots in Oscura Park Rafferty Terrace Addition to the Town of Oscura, New Mexico, on which a certain Standard oil well rig belonging to said defendant company is located; all of sections 29, 30, 31 and 33 in Township 10 South, Range 9 East, N. M. P. M., containing 3200 acres more or less, NW 1/4 and S 1/4, Sec. 9; N 1/4, Sec. 21; N 1/4, Sec. 29; all of Sections 17 and 18; W 1/2, Sec. 4; in Township 11 South, Range 9 East, containing 243 acres, more or less.

Notice is further given that judgment in the above entitled action was rendered by the court on the 4th day of November, 1925, and that this was an action brought by plaintiff against said defendants for the purpose of setting aside a certain judgment theretofore obtained by said defendant Rafferty and Sterling against said defendant Canadian-American Oil Leasing Association, Limited, as a preference made and afforded by said company in favor of said Rafferty and Sterling, and this sale is made for the purpose of satisfying, insofar as it may, the approved claim of said plaintiff in the sum of twenty five Hundred-Twenty seven and 50/100 Dollars, which has been by the court duly allowed as a claim. Dated at Carrizozo, New Mexico, this 21st day of June, 1926. Charles F. Gray, Assignee. June 25 - July 16

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE AND LIVESTOCK UNDER FORECLOSURE DECREE

THE RESCUE

SYNOPSIS—Idly fishing Hermans creek, in California, Caleb Warner, civil engineer and a New Englander, in witness of the end of a coyote pulled down by two wolfhounds, urged on by a girl rider. Admiring the hounds, he introduces himself, and learns her name is Clinton. With western hospitality she invites him to the ranch to meet her father. At the Clinton home Warner learns his new friend's name is Betty. He is welcomed by her father, Southern Civil War veteran and owner of Hermans valley. He tells them something of his ambitions and his feeling that he is destined to be a "Water-Bearer." In the town of Golden Warner shares an apartment with his old Columbia college chum, Ted Baxter, carefree and somewhat dissipated youth, only child of his widowed mother, who controls the family fortune. At a club luncheon Baxter introduces Caleb to Wilbur Cox, leading business man and president of the water company which supplies the needs of Golden. He gives Cox an inkling of his ambitions, and Cox, impressed, invites him to dinner that night. During dinner Cox asks Caleb to work at his office next day. He does so and Cox arranges a meeting between Caleb and Hinkleley, the water company's chief engineer. Baxter tells Caleb he is in difficulties with a girl, Mary Morgan, Cox's stenographer, who insists he must marry her. With Hinkleley, Caleb looks over the water company's source of supply, the Crystal Springs, in Hermans valley. Proposing to Hermans valley, Caleb meets a man, Evans, who boasts of his ability, through "divining rods," to locate water without boring. Caleb comes upon a picnic party, the festivities being in honor of Betty Clinton's birthday, and is welcomed.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

"I don't know," he answered. "I have been given a chance to go up to Beaver Lake on a new project, but I do not have to accept just yet. Meanwhile I am looking around. I went over the Crystal Springs property yesterday."

"Did you?" broke in the other girl. "I've been there. But it's an ideal place for a picnic or a honeymoon?"

Caleb laughed.

"I am afraid I was more practical in my imagination," he said. "I suppose, being from New England, I can't help that. I was chiefly interested in the water supply. But it was beautiful."

He gave them a little description of the trip and of how the dams had withstood the earthquake. And he added what Hinkleley had told him of Crystal Springs valley before it had been turned into a great artificial lake.

"I can't help feeling sorry for the farms that had to be abandoned," said Betty Clinton. "It seems a shame when you think of the fertile fields being turned to silt, the schoolhouse and the little church that had stood so long being torn down."

"Think of what the reservoir meant to Golden! It made a city possible," returned Caleb. "There is sentiment on both sides of the matter. Where a dozen families were displaced the water gave opportunity to thousands. Public utility must be the first consideration."

"I suppose so. Just the same, if I had owned a farm there, I would not have sold."

"If the rest were willing they might have compelled you to."

"You mean by condemnation proceedings? Well, they'll never do anything like that to Hermans valley, for we own the whole of it."

"Not even for the good of the many? If it was necessary?" asked Caleb. Carmen looked at him curiously, struck by a sudden change in his voice. He took things concerning his profession very seriously, did this young engineer, she decided.

Betty Clinton shook her head determinedly in answer to Caleb's query.

"Not while my father lives. Nor while I do. We might sell a part of the valley. We have talked of doing so. We do not use much of it. And the land has advanced in value. But nothing must touch El Nido. You did not see the little cemetery in the cedar grove. There are three generations of Clintons buried there. My mother's grave among them. They must never be disturbed."

Carmen saw the muscles bunch in Caleb's jaws and wondered. For a moment he was silent. For a part of his vision had been Hermans valley restored to a lake, dammed and holding storm waters. Betty Clinton sat quietly and Caleb gazed at nothing through half-closed eyes. Carmen regarded them with a frown.

"You're a cheerful couple for a birthday picnic," she observed. "As for Thurston, he must be making that camera, or gone to town for a film."

She got up and stretched lightly, then she screamed suddenly and shrilly, turning to cling to Betty Clinton.

A big bull had come into his pasture, the upland plateau that he regarded as his own, a magnificent Hereford, red of coat and white of face. He stood downwind from the group and it was plain that he resented their presence. The great head was raised and lowered uncertainly, the wide curving horns tossed menacingly.

There was no shelter if the bull meant mischief. To run was to court disaster.

Carmen clung to her friend trembling, her eyes big with fear. Betty Clinton was pale but she faced the bull and not a muscle had quivered.

"I don't know just what we had better do," she said quietly to Caleb. "He's working himself up into a rage. If we could make Padilla hear and understand."

Caleb resented this a little. He did not realize that the girl was thinking of Padilla mounted, acting as vaquero. Perhaps the resentment quickened his wits to action. Carmen screamed again just as the bull lowered his head and charged straight for them.

Caleb snatched at Carmen's hair and grabbed the scarlet beret.

"It's your hat that bothers him," he cried. "I'll handle him. Run—both of you. I'll hold him. Run!"

He waved them off with a shout as the bull came on. He saw Carmen, her black hair streaming from his careless tug for the hat, snatch at Betty's hand and start to run swiftly toward the wall. He saw, for a split-second, Thurston's startled face appearing over the stones as he ascended, heard the girls cry out and Thurston shout. He faced the bull, the flaming beret in his hand, prepared to play foreword, unarmed.

The bull roared as his glaring eyes caught the flare of the scarlet taut waved by the man. Blind to everything else, centered in the desire to slay his rage on the offending color, he raced over the turf, leaving a little cloud trail of dust, shaking the ground with his weight as he pounded it with his hoofs.

Caleb waited, not quite so coolly as he had wished, warily judging distance. As the sharp horns swept up, scooping for the cloth he held out at arm's length, Caleb sprang to one side and ran forward as the baffled brute, snorting and maddened, plowed past him, front legs stiffened in the attempt to stop and wheel, the great head clumsily turned toward the red beret and Caleb, who halted twenty yards away and provokingly displayed the bait.

The girls had got safely beyond the wall in a second or so they would be out of sight. He had now only himself to look out for. The bull turned and came racing back. Caleb knew that he could not dodge forever. He could distinguish Betty's clear, high voice calling for Padilla. The words were in Spanish. He recognized a few of them. "Toro! Hata! Cavallo!" Then the bull took up all his attention. It came on with incredible speed, the lumbering gait seemed freed by rage. As Caleb leaped aside the brute swerved so swiftly that a horn grazed Caleb's arm, ripping cloth.

This time he had to turn and run down hill, away from the trees. His foot caught in the hole of a ground squirrel and his ankle was wrenched as he stumbled and jerked it clear. It was not a bad sprain but it handicapped him and would not get better with exertion. The bull had halted more easily going up hill. It was chasing him before he had got well into his stride. He had to sprint to get the chance to dodge. And this time he ran for all he was worth. He had almost won the trees when the bull caught up the distance between them.

Caleb glanced over his shoulder. He could hear the snorts of the crazed brute. He saw the massive head shift sideways for the toss, saw the roll of the blood-rimmed eyes and he leaped sideways with the last of his energy, his lungs straining and his heart pounding. And, as he jumped, he made the sacrifice of the beret, dropping it fairly in the bull's course while he felt the sweep of air as the bear's head was flung up, backed by the force of mighty shoulders, one horn impaling the beret that clung there, driving the bull to frenzied fury while Caleb, panting, dodged among the aspens and saw Padilla, mounted, swinging his rope, top the rise and tear in at top speed, yelling as he came.

The bull got rid of the offending Tam-o-Shanter. He ground it into the turf, stamping on it and bellowing. He tore it to rags and trampled them. And then he flung up his head to see what had become of Caleb. He heard the yell of Padilla, a vigorous "Yahoo!" that seemed to revive memories none too pleasant. He wheeled and surveyed the rider uneasily. To chase a two-legged creature was one thing, a man mounted, swinging a loop the sight of which also stirred his sluggish brain, was quite another.

Before the lariat was flung he turned and trotted off, disappearing at the far end of the plateau before Padilla reined up and offered to take Caleb back behind his saddle.

"I don't think, señor, that he will come back. He has been brand—that toro—an' he remember. Ket is bueno that he does. Ket I rope an' the hecom, I mus' let heem go again. But eet weel be better, P'raps, eet you ride, señor. Me, I like eet better for myself."

He laughed and Caleb essayed to retrieve what was left of the beret. He gave it up as a hopeless job and mounted behind Padilla.

"Señor," said the Mexican, "you hav' shue la senorita's life. She an' her padre weel thank you. I thank you too. Luis Padilla weel not forget."

CHAPTER VII

The Water Mine

They were all in the patio, talking in the dusk. The conversation had become general. Caleb was a listener. He had found, to his relief, that, after the earnestly expressed thanks of Clinton, of his daughter and of Carmen, he was not regarded in the light of a hero. It seemed to be generally granted that any of them would have done—or tried to do—exactly as he had done and he was grateful for the way they took it. Carmen managed to infuse something personal into her thanks, a warmth that hinted that the exploit had been all for her sake, with Betty a more or less incidental accessory.

Caleb was a listener from preference. He wanted to analyze, if he could, something of the stirrings of these Westerners.

The talk was mainly of Brompton's historic series of panels, the subject introduced by Betty Clinton, with the idea, Caleb thought, of covering him from Carmen's sallies. It was very plain that the artist was head over heels in love with the vivacious brunette, who kept him dangling. Caleb, smoking, pondered over Betty Clinton's attitude. Did she intend to marry Thurston? he wondered. The rancher was an eminently intimate terms with the family. She called him by his first name, Wendell.

He went early the next morning, returning to Golden. There he packed a grip with clothing and some of his instruments, and left a note for Baxter, saying that he would be away for several days. He took up his quarters at a country hotel near the station in Coyote canyon and hired a rig, determined to make a thorough investigation of Caliente plain.

With his pocket instruments he managed to get, unnoticed, tolerable surveys of elevations and distances. He had proven, to his own satisfaction, that the upper end of the plain was furnished with a basin of water at uniform level, a great supply, bottomed and sided with clay and capped with the same, through which tapping the artesian water spouted wherever it was bored for. The Welsh Water-Finder did not have to be a great wizard to score hits in this region, he decided. But he had a further use in mind for the man.

Caleb is evidently up against a hard alternative—water or girl. Which way will he decide.

Sheridan Supreme as Prophet of Weather

The hope to be an accurate weather prophet is one which springs eternal in the human breast. Many people who have won fame in various walks of life aspired to add to their other accomplishments that of forecasting the weather. Richard Brinsley Sheridan was no exception. Sheridan's fame as a dramatist is secure by virtue of "The Rivals" and "The School for Scandal," but not content with that Sheridan must be famed as the prophet who made the nearest best prophecy of meteorological conditions for a period of a whole year. Being a poet, Sheridan had the advantage of the scientific predictors. Prosy science may be unable to tell what the weather will be for a longer future time than twenty-four hours, but poetic fancy knows no bounds and may take its unrestricted flight a good twelve months ahead. Although Sheridan was predicting British weather, his forecast suits the Middle West and we may rely upon it in making our plans for the year. Sheridan says:

January—Snowy.
February—Flowery.
March—Flowery.
April—Showery.
May—Flowery.
June—Bowery.
July—Moppy.
August—Croppy.
September—Poppo.
October—Breezy.
November—Whispy.
December—Froozy—Kannoo Okey Star.

WEEKLY South-West NEWS ITEMS

The sale of oil leases on the Navajo and Ute Mountain Indian reservations in New Mexico brought $84,800.

News of the appointment of John H. Udall of St. Johns, Ariz., to succeed Frank M. Pool as prohibition administrator, in direct charge in this state, has been received in Globe.

The Arizona-Good Roads Association, at the mid-summer session in Flagstaff, endorsed the highway financing initiative measure drafted by a special committee of the organization.

D. Cecil Pearson was elected superintendent of the new Mexico Military Institute at Roswell, taking the place of Col. J. C. Troutman, who has resigned to return to his home at Sharon, Pa.

Thomas N. Wilkerson, assistant United States district attorney for the last five years, has resigned. It was announced in Albuquerque a few days ago. The resignation becomes effective July 31.

Pablo Mares of Montoya was shot and instantly killed at a dance at Duran, near Vaughn, N. M., by Alfredo Padilla. The killing was the result of trouble of long standing between the two men.

The city commissioners of Clovis, N. M., have under advisement plans and specifications for a new city hall for Clovis, which will probably be erected in the near future, and will cost between $25,000 and $35,000.

Approximately 2,490 acres of improved irrigable land on the Gila River Indian reservation are to be thrown open for lease, it was announced in Phoenix by B. P. Six, superintendent of the Pima Indian reservation.

With the drawing of the plans and specifications for the Coolidge dam nearing completion, it is expected that bids will be called for about August 15, and that the contract will be let about October 1, according to word received in Florence, Ariz., from Los Angeles.

The Arizona State Industrial Commission does not have authority to buy bonds issued by counties, school districts or other branches of the government at par value. Clove W. Van Dyke, chairman, announced in Phoenix after an investigation launched by commission attorneys.

Officials of the Rock Island and Southern Pacific railroads and the Van Nooy Interstate Company, with the co-operation of the Tucumcari Kiwanis Club, are laying plans for dedication ceremonies at the new passenger station when it is thrown open to the public about July 15th.

Adam McLowry, 82 years old, alleged counterfeiter, was captured on the outskirts of Deming by Sheriff Felix Jones of Hidalgo county. Jones chased McLowry sixty miles from Lordsburg. The old man dashed by Jones' car and sped into Deming amid a fusillade of bullets.

Apropos of reports from Washington regarding the treasury surplus and income tax collections due June 15, John R. Towles, collector of internal revenue for Arizona, announced in Phoenix that $12,000 more had been collected by his office since January 1, than was collected during the same period last year.

A survey, just completed by the reclamation service, shows that 87,841 acres of land is receiving water from the Elephant Butte reservoir in the Mesilla and Rincon valleys in New Mexico this year. Of this, 11,248 acres are in the Rincon valley, 65,749 in the Mesilla valley in New Mexico and 10,844 in the Mesilla valley in Texas.

A triple fire, the largest in the history of Tucson for a number of years, broke out at the edge of the warehouse district along the Southern Pacific tracks and, whipped by a high wind, spread toward the business section of the city. Property valued at $50,000 was involved in the triple fire, the total loss being estimated at about $25,000.

According to figures compiled by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce from through bills of lading, exports from Texas and New Mexico during 1925 were valued at $758,885,052 and $1,071,329, respectively. Texas ranked first among the fifty-two states and territories in value of exports during 1924, with a total of $737,218,927.

It is now Harold Bell Wright, cattleman and author. The novelist has entered the cattle business on a large scale, and a thousand cattle already are roaming his range. A 20,000 acre ranch near the Mexican border has been acquired by the corporation which he heads, and many more cattle will be purchased. Pure bred horses also will be raised.

Oil leases on 2,600 acres in Lea county and 3,200 acres in Chaves county were sold by the state land commissioner of New Mexico, E. B. Swops, at public auction at $100 a section, the minimum price. It was announced in Santa Fe at the state land office.

Members of the First Baptist church at Globe, Ariz., went to the parsonage and packed the belongings of the Rev. Tullie Williams, former pastor, and removed them from the premises after Rev. Williams declined to vacate the house.

OVERLOADED TRUCK CAUSE OF TIRE WEAR

Truck is Useful Implement on Most Farms

Overloading of trucks is the big cause of excessive tire wear. Perhaps no part of the truck is subjected to greater strain on overloads than the tires.

Where pneumatics are used this practice does as much damage to truck tires as a complete disregard of the rules of inflation. With regard to the latter subject, the tire manufacturer's instructions on inflation of truck tires should be observed consistently. Overinflation is, in most cases, as dangerous as underinflation.

Even braking is necessary to obtain maximum wear and tear. Assuming even pull, the proper place to make first adjustment is at the brake band or shoe, not at any other part of the mechanism. Regular inspection of brakes is necessary and an even contact of the band at all points is requisite in good adjustment. Uneven contact of brake bands is the cause of "chattering" when brakes are applied. Operators can obtain full details concerning brake adjustments from the vehicle manufacturer's book of instructions.

A severe shock, such as results in striking a curb, may spring the knuckle rod, thus throwing the front wheels out of proper adjustment. This results in hard steering and excessive wearing of tires, either solid or pneumatics. In a case which recently came to my attention an operator completely ruined a pair of pneumatic tires on a 50-mile drive after a slight accident.

The front wheels should not be lined up exactly parallel. The rod adjustments should produce a "toe-in" of one-fourth to one-half of an inch in the front wheels (see manufacturer's instructions for exact dimensions and method of making adjustment).

Lubrication of all steering gear connections, including steering knuckles, at regular intervals, is necessary. The majority of "hard steering" complaints are due to a lack of lubrication.

RED TO YELLOW CHANGE FOUGHT

Switch of Tail Light Is Opposed by Majority of A. A. A. Clubs.

Since the adjournment of the second national conference on street and highway safety, the American Automobile association has conducted a canvass of sentiment among its affiliated clubs as to the proposal made at the conference to change the tail lights of automobiles from red to yellow.

It develops, according to A. A. A. headquarters, that the motor clubs already heard from regarding this proposed innovation are against it, and take the position that such a change, applying to 20,000,000 motor vehicles would cause untold confusion on the highways and would inevitably tend to increase the toll of traffic accidents.

Rank and File Oppose.

This was practically the one proposition on which the A. A. A. took issue with the recommendations made by the committees of the Hoover conference and it was at the insistence of club executives that a decision on the tail light was postponed. All developments since the conference indicate, it is stated, that the rank and file of the motoring public stand by the resolution adopted at the time by the A. A. A. as follows:

"That the secretaries of clubs affiliated with the American Automobile association in convention assembled hereby condemn the proposed change as being detrimental to public safety and to the best interest of 20,000,000 motor vehicle owners."

Railways Want It.

Although no mention was made in the resolution of the forces urging the change, it was well known that the railroads and the motor clubs were on different sides of the fence on this important matter. Notice has been served by the A. A. A. that proper provision must be made for representation of the motorists before any committee that takes up this question for further study, as provided by the safety conference.

New Air Pump for Tires

A relief from back and arm strain is the specialty of the novel foot pump shown in the illustration for compressing automobile tires, over the regulation hand-operated affair.

Projections on Fenders Likely to Injure Tires

Be careful that a sharp turn of the front wheels does not bring the tire in contact with a spring fender or bumper. As the wheel turns this projection will quickly cut through the tread of the tire. When the car is heavily loaded there is danger that in passing over rough roads the tires will be bumped or gouged by projections on the fenders. Bent or broken fenders may also be in a position where they will gouge the tires. Inspect beneath the fender and make sure that there are no projections which could strike upon the tire. You may find bolts rubbed smooth and bright by continuous rubbing on the tires. If a change is made to oversize tires, be sure that there will be sufficient clearance between tire and fender when the car is loaded to capacity. This is, however, provided by most car manufacturers.

Little Gasoline Needed to Run Baby Automobile

A baby automobile, no longer than a man is high, pulled into Washington recently and sailed up to the capitol, the end of a transcontinental tour from San Francisco, says Popular Science Monthly. Its driver, Gus Patsel of Alameda, Calif., was also the designer of the sturdy little machine that scooted over mountains and deserts that bother cars five times its size.

It has a four-cylinder air-cooled motor, nine speeds, electric lights and starter, and is equipped with airplane tires. The wheel base measures 60 inches, and the car weighs only 500 pounds. It can make a speed of 80 miles an hour on the track, it is claimed, and 65 on the road. After reaching Washington the designer demonstrated that his unique little car could travel 82 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Important to Keep Your Automobile at Its Best

See that your oil-pressure gauge operates at all times. If no pressure is indicated, stop and have your trouble remedied at once.

Keep sufficient good cylinder oil in pan at all times.

See that the radiator is kept filled with water.

See that front wheels toe-in five-sixteenths of an inch at front. Wheels should be checked occasionally for alignment to avoid tire wear.

Keep your battery filled with distilled water.

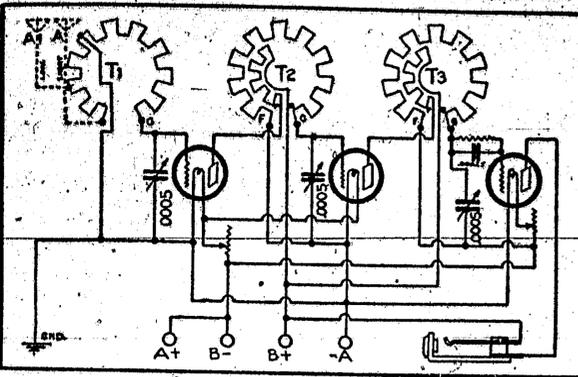

See that your generator charges sufficient amperage at all times to avoid battery damage.

If motor does not start promptly when starter is pressed, get out and discover the cause.

See that springs are greased occasionally.

Before starting set spark lever about one-fourth up sector.

RADIO

Three-Tube Receiver, Square Wound Toroid Coils, Two Stages of Radio Frequency and Detector. Can Be Enlarged to Five-Tube Set.

By CARLTON E. BUTLER

(Member American Institute of Electrical Engineers and Institute of Radio Engineers)

Styles in radio receivers have changed with the changing conditions of the broadcasting field. A three-tube regenerative set with two stages of radio frequency amplification was capable of giving satisfactory reception a few years ago, but today, with the worst congestion of the ether lanes ever experienced in the history of radio, and the increasing use of high-power broadcasting stations, selectivity requirements demand the use of radio-frequency amplifying circuits. A three-tube circuit today shows some form of tuned radio-frequency amplification that successfully copes with 1920 conditions and furnishes an inexpensive set that later on may be enlarged into a five-tube receiver by the addition of two stages of audio-frequency amplification.

Leave Room on Panel. In the diagram shown here, however, just the three-tube circuit is illustrated as it makes a complete set in itself. Room should be left on the panel and in the cabinet for the other stages at a later date. For this reason a 24 or 20-inch panel should be used, with a cabinet and baseboard large enough to allow for this future expansion. The three-tube set will bring in just as much distance and possess all of the desirable qualities of the high-priced five-tube sets on the market, excepting volume, which is obtained when audio amplification is added.

Little apparatus is needed to construct this set, and with reasonable care an excellent receiver can be had for very little outlay of time and money. To construct the set you will need the following list of apparatus: 1 square wound toroid coil, type T1. 2 square wound toroid coils, type T2, indicated as T2 and T3. 3 straight-line frequency variable condensers, .00035 mfd. capacity. Indicated as C1, C2, and C3.

1 .00025 mfd. fixed grid condenser and 2 megohm grid leak 25-ohm rheostats. 1 phone jack. 3 tube sockets. Binding posts, wire, screws, etc. The 25-ohm rheostats are to be used with UV 201-A or C 801-A type of tubes. If the 100 type are to be used, then 40-ohm rheostats should be substituted. For the WD 11 or WD 12 type of tube, 30-ohm rheostats throughout will be correct. Both radio-frequency tubes are operated from one rheostat if desired, but it is usually best to have a separate control for the detector tube.

Use Double Circuit Jack. The detector tube is using the same voltage of "B" battery as the radio-frequency tubes. This will only be possible as long as all three tubes are of the same type and not more than 45 volts are to be used. If a higher voltage of "B" battery is desired, then the detector jack should be supplied from the 45-volt tap. If a soft tube is to be used, reduce the voltage to 22½ volts, or less.

A single-circuit jack is shown in the detector stage. If at a later date it is practically certain that amplification is to be added, it is best to use a double-circuit jack in this position to avoid the need for changing the present circuit.

Two antenna terminals are provided on the first toroid coil. These are to adapt the set to a long or short antenna. It might be well to bring these two terminals out to binding posts on the rear of the cabinet so that the antenna can be quickly changed over from one to the other as conditions require more selective tuning, or greater volume is desired.

The position of the apparatus in laying out the receiver baseboard is not critical. The coils may be placed side by side without intercoupling or causing the receiver to become unstable, due to their confined magnetic fields.

How to Avoid Burning Out Your Radio Tubes

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," applies nowhere more forcefully than in the burning out of radio tubes. A simple measure to eliminate, as far as practicable one of the wastes of radio is proposed by the manager of a prominent radio manufacturing company. An ordinary 40-watt lamp is all that is needed to conduct the operation, resulting often in saving of time and money, and at other times "making assurance doubly sure."

"Did you ever hear the story, 'I've burned out five tubes?' Mr. Manager asked in discussing the matter with a group of dealers. "Now there is no occasion for this happening. It, of course, may be possible because of an internal short in one of the tubes between the grid or plate and the filament; or possibly through carelessness in installing the receiver and connecting the battery wires."

"The wise dealer, however, or the one installing the set, always connects up every receiver and uses an ordinary 40-watt, 110-volt lamp, for instance the kind you ordinarily have in the store or find in the home, in series with the plus 50 'B' battery lead when the receiver is installed for the first time.

"With this precaution, it is impossible to burn out tubes, for even if there is a defect of any kind in either the receiver or connections, the tube filaments will only glow or light up very dimly with the 40-watt lamp connected in the plus 50 'B' battery leads, and then only when the filament control switch is still on its 'off' position. "If the tubes do light with the switch in the 'off' position, it is a direct indication of trouble, and the receiver should be immediately disconnected and the fault found and eliminated.

"Always use that 'safety-valve' 40-watt lamp in series with 'B' battery for it assures absolute protection to the tubes. When the set is completely hooked up and working properly, you can safely remove the lamp and still know that the set will function properly, and that there will be no possible chance of burning out tubes under normal operating conditions."

Battery Charging Rate

A storage battery will not have a long life if it is charged at a rate greater than six amperes, and in the case of small batteries three amperes is enough.

Amount of Power That Your Aerial Picks Up

It has been computed that the amount of power picked up by the ordinary receiving aerial is about one-billionth of a fly-power. Think of it! If your receiver picked up as much power as that possessed by a fly, you would be receiving a billion times more energy than you are now receiving. It seems almost impossible to comprehend this fact. Here is another illustration that may help you to understand how very small is the power actually picked up by your antenna. If the power radiated by the average transmitting station were collected and used to heat an ordinary electric toaster it would not even glow at a dull red heat and certainly would not burn your bread. Yet this small amount of energy is radiating in all directions and spreads over a circle with a diameter of 10,000 to 20,000 miles, for signals have been picked up hundreds of times at points 8,000 to 10,000 miles distant from the transmitting station.

Just imagine every foot of space in a circle with a radius of 10,000 miles being flooded with part of the energy that originally was only enough to heat an electric toaster, then you begin to get an idea of the extremely small amount of energy that reaches your particular aerial. From this it will be realized that to detect the extremely faint signals from distant stations your receiver must be very sensitive and efficient.

Uncle Sam's Radio Job Has Grown Since 1911

Uncle Sam's job of supervising all the radio broadcasting outfits of the country has grown rapidly since 1911 when this service began. In that year there were but two men enforcing the radio laws. Today there are 19 in the headquarters office in Washington and 70 in the field watching over the 13,106 licensed amateur and commercial stations in this country and on United States ships. It is estimated that 25,000,000 people have access to radio equipment with which to receive broadcast programs.

Value of Colored Wires

Colored battery connections are good vacuum tube insurance. Obtain wire in several different colors or dip the ends in dye. When taking the wires out the set merely note the position of the various colors and when reconnecting place them the same.

GOOD ROADS

WIDER ROADWAYS AVERT ACCIDENTS

It is estimated by Minnesota highway officials that one of the greatest errors in road construction during the past ten years has been building of roads and bridges which are too narrow to properly care for the constantly increasing traffic. Most of the public highways in Minnesota have a right-of-way, which is 4 rods or 60 feet in width, but in many localities this has been found to be inadequate for trunk highway construction, and the state highway department has in several instances provided a right-of-way, having a minimum width of 80 feet. In some cases near congested centers of population, 100 feet has been provided.

The minimum width of roadways, the traveled portion of the highway provided on trunk-route construction, is 30 feet, and the minimum width of pavement being constructed, is 18 feet. On many sections, however, the heavier traveled routes are being graded to provide for a 38-foot roadway which will accommodate a pavement width suitable for four lines of vehicular traffic, side by side. This will permit the slowly-moving traffic to follow the extreme right-hand side of the roadway and allow faster-vehicles to overtake and pass the slower ones without danger of a collision with vehicles coming from the opposite direction.

Two reasons are given for the inadequate width of some of the present roads. One is the lack of vision and failure to estimate the vast increase of motor vehicle transportation, and the other is that of the false economy. The number of motor vehicles using the highways in Minnesota has doubled in the last six years, but a road built six years ago, in most cases, still has the same width. Actual experience has proved that building a road of adequate width can be accomplished much cheaper at time of construction than adding to the width at a later date.

If adequate widths of subgrade and structures are provided, a narrow pavement which at the time of construction was adequate for the traffic then existing, can be widened at approximately the same unit cost which was expended for the original job.

During the last five years the Minnesota highway department has negotiated with over 5,700 land owners along trunk routes in widening and straightening rights-of-way and providing clearer vision on curves, and it is held that the expenditure of public funds made for this purpose is of more importance in the protection of human lives than that made for any other purpose.

Four Governments Plan Highway Across Canada

Four different governments have at last heeded the call of the people of Canada for an all-Canadian highway stretching from Halifax, N. S., to Vancouver, B. C. Four governments have met on equal ground, and each has pledged the completion of the necessary work.

Ontario says: "We are already completing our last remaining link." Alberta is to have its link ready this year. The Dominion government, speaking for Jasper National park, states that it will link up with Alberta this year, and British Columbia, the last to fall into line, declares: "When the Jasper highway reaches Tete Jaune Cache British Columbia will have a road to carry it on to Vancouver."

It will be possible to tour across Canada on a modern highway before the end of the present year. Hereafter it has been necessary to drop down into the States at many points.

Good Roads Facts

Permanent waves are all right in hair, but too many of our roads seem to have them.

The United States is to build 10,000 miles of road in 1920 and the pessimistic motorist knows that it means 50,000 miles of detours.

One-half of all the bituminous macadam in the United States is found in New York and New England. The combined mileage of this type on all of the state systems of this country is about 9,000 miles.

Between $75,000 and $100,000 will be expended in the erection of a Lincoln memorial monument at the eastern entrance of Hudson county park, the land terminus of the Lincoln highway, after crossing the Hudson river.

It is now possible to buy a through ticket and travel all the way from New York to San Francisco on a balloon-tired motor coach.

The United States has 115,000 miles of paved or surfaced highways. This is more than there are or ever were in any other country in the world.

The average cost of the several types of hard-surfaced road construction in the United States is given as about $32,300 a mile. Gravel roads cost about $10,000 a mile.

Lesson for July 18

THE CALL OF MOSES

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 3:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—Certainly I will be with thee.—Ex. 3:12. PRIMARY TOPIC—Moses at the Burning Bush. JUNIOR TOPIC—Moses, the Shepherd. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Facing a Great Opportunity.

I. The Lord Speaks to Moses From the Burning Bush (3:1-6). It was while keeping the flock of his father-in-law in the desert that the Lord appeared to Moses in the vision of the burning bush. Moses stepped aside to behold this strange sight and was taught the essential lesson of the proper approach to God. The Lord did not leave him long in suspense. He told him that He was the God of his fathers, the covenant God. As soon as he knew that it was God that was speaking to him, he hid his face.

II. Moses' Commission as the Deliverer of His People (3:7-10). Observe: 1. God's active interest in His people (v. 7).

In a preamble of this commission God declared: (1) "I have seen the affliction of my people." So keenly conscious is God of all that goes on in the world that not one of His chosen ones can be touched without His notice.

(2) "I have heard their cries." We sometimes feel that God does not hear, but no cry ever goes up from the heart of His covenant child unheard.

(3) "I know their sorrow." Many indeed are the sorrows of God's children. They are so diverse, but He knows all about them and will adapt himself in grace to their need.

2. God's gracious obligation to His people (vv. 8, 9). (1) To deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians.

(2) "To bring them up out of the land." (3) "To bring them into a good land and large—unto a land flowing with milk and honey."

3. God's commission to Moses (v. 10). "Come now, therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh that thou mayest bring forth my people, the children of Israel out of Egypt."

III. Moses' Objections Patiently Heard and Removed (3:11-14). 1. His personal unworthiness (v. 11). He said, "Who am I that I should go unto Pharaoh?" He realized his insufficiency for this task. Moses did not refuse to go, but laid his difficulty before the Lord. God answered this difficulty by assuring him that He would be with him.

2. The difficulty of the people to understand Moses' relationship to God (vv. 13, 14). Moses knew how unwilling they were to acknowledge him as their deliverer forty years before. Since God changes his name as he assumes a new relationship to his people, Moses inquired as to what that new relationship would be and his corresponding name. The Lord promptly met this difficulty by showing a name differing in many respects from all others previously given. This new name is "I am." This name is from the Hebrew "to be." It indicates:

1. God's self-existence. It sets forth the idea that God is the self-existent one and the source of all existence. There is no existence apart from Him.

(2) His self-sufficiency. He said, "I am that I am." God is the unique one. He is not dependent upon any other existence.

(3) His unchangeableness. "I am that I am" may be expanded to mean, I am what I always was. What I always was and am I always will be. The "I AM" of this passage is the Jesus Christ of the New Testament. Therefore the apostle could say, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today and forever."

3. Unbelief on the part of the people (4:1). This difficulty the Lord met by supplying him with credentials which could not be gainsaid. He was given the power to perform supernatural wonders (4:2).

4. Lack of eloquence (4:10). He confessed that he was slow of speech and of a slow tongue. His ability to speak had not been improved by the Lord's message to him. The Lord's reply (v. 11) carried a real rebuke. He assured him that the God who had made man's mouth could give man the ability to use it. This difficulty the Lord in His infinite patience met by providing an assistant in the person of his brother Aaron.

The Truth

Next to the Crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ there is no truth that you and I need more to lay hold of than the truth of the living Christ—alive today, and personally present with all who trust in Him.—O. A. R. Janvier.

Need of Prayer

Deeper than the need of men, deeper than the need of money, are, deep down within this spiritless life of ours is the need of world-wide prevailing prayer.—Robert E. Speer.

Community Building

Making the Home Town

"Just a Little Better"

There are several things a fellow ought to do for the old town. One step in the process will be to study the other man's town. Learn how he made his success. Use his methods where they will work to advantage. Mix a little brains with observation and improve on the past. Why shouldn't you put the plus on his success?

Then, too, one must line up the resources of the old town. Practically every place has some advantage. That should be capitalized to its full worth. Not in our likeness to other towns but in our differences lie the distinctive agencies that will insure success. And not least among resources should be the good will of its people. Few towns put forth any real effort to cultivate the interest of their citizens. If people are interested they work for the town, usually for what they can get out of it. Our proposition calls for lining up everybody as a matter of patriotic duty.

The next step is to sell the town to folks outside of it. Don't be afraid to tell your town's advantages. When other towns advertise match the "ad" with one of your own. Even if you don't sell much to other folks the process will add much to your own estimate.

So, boost the old town. It will add dividends and raise the place you live in to one of pride and satisfaction. It's a great game. Try it.—Kansas City Times.

Carelessness of City

Visitors to Country

No longer are spring flowers the chief adornment of our country roads. The hepatica has had to yield place to the pop bottle, the wind flower to the wind-blown fragments of the Sunday supplement, the adder's tongue to the tin can.

Out of our cities pours an increasing horde of people who rally forth at dawn, after the fashion of tent caterpillars, to leave destruction in their wake. Accustomed to a life where the ever-ready "white-wing" and the garbage collector function as regularly as the rising and setting of the sun, these city dwellers have little or no conception of the beauty and dignity of clean earth. They break down fences, strip flowering shrubs, and all too frequently lead one to wonder why the word "urbanity" ever came to mean what it is supposed to mean and why "civility" should have been the distinguishing mark of those who dwell in cities.

Our large centers of population sometimes wonder why they are so unpopular in the rural regions. One reason is to be found in the trash littered along our country highways.—Editorial in The Outlook.

Look to the Driveway

Nothing adds more to the beauty of any home than walks and driveways. These are nearly always built of concrete, and the pleasing light-gray color dresses up the appearance of the home surroundings in a delightful manner.

It is advisable that all walks, approaches and drives be constructed at the same time the home is built. Then the contractor has his material and equipment on the job and the cost of the work is lessened considerably.

In addition to lending charm to the home place, concrete walks and drives prove a boon to the housewife by eliminating the tracking of mud into the house.

Trees Not for Streets

It is a mistake to use a tree for street purposes just because it is rapid-growing, because most such trees are short-lived, weak-wooded and generally dangerous. Among such trees may be mentioned: Silver maple—a maple that has quite pendulous branches and deeply cut leaves. The branches have dark bark.

Box elder—a maple with divided leaves. A more or less globular, low-branched tree.

Clean Up Stable Manure

House flies are here with their perennial transportation program for disease germs. They specialize as common carriers of typhoid fever and diarrheal bacilli. They ply between the germ incubators and the dining room. What they lack in per capita horse power they make up in preponderance of numbers. Stable manure is the most prolific breeding place of the fly, a pair of which can become the ancestors of many million offspring in a single season.

Make Home Beautiful

It doesn't cost any more to make your home beautiful than to have it ugly—beauty is not gained by dressing the house up with scroll-saw ornaments, cut-up roofs, dormers and fancy-shaped windows. A well proportioned house looks beautiful without all these. Your local architect is experienced in these problems and can help you here. It will pay you to consult him.

COULD NOT PUT ON HER SHOES

Mrs. Daugherty Was so Weak

In a little town of the middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and, I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine, and you can use these facts as a testimonial. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. E. DAUGHERTY, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?

Cuticura Talcum

Is Soothing For Baby's Skin. Soap, Ointment, Talcum sold everywhere.

Big Building Boom

The recent building boom which has been in progress in all sections of the country has been the cause of razing many an old building to make way for a newer, larger and more beautiful one. Increases in the value of real estate have made it profitable to remove old buildings so that new ones, planned for increased revenue, might be erected.

Fewer Horses on Farms

Horses and mules, according to the January 1, 1920, report for the Department of Agriculture, number in the United States, on farms, 21,539,000, says Our Dumb Animals. Adding the number estimated not in agricultural work, 2,000,000, we have the total of 23,539,000, a decrease of about 5 per cent since January 1, 1925.

Your shoes feel easy if you use ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

Stops the pain of Corns and Bunions and you can walk all day in ease and comfort. Nothing gives such relief to hot, tired, aching, inflamed or swollen feet, blisters or calluses. A little ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE sprinkled in each shoe in the morning will make you forget about tight shoes. It takes the friction from the shoes. Always use it for Dancing and to Break in New Shoes. For sample and a Foot-Ease Washing Ball, address ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE, Le Roy, N. Y.

Camera Without Film

The amateur photographer of the future may be taking pictures without the aid of either film or plate in his camera, if the recent invention made by a South African chemist is popularized. By this new method a street scene can be photographed and printed all within 3 minutes and 15 seconds. The photograph is taken directly on a sensitized paper instead of on film or a plate, and the image is developed in a few seconds.

C. D. Mayer.

In a much-appreciated letter from Mrs. S. H. Nickles, who is attending the Silver City Normal, she expresses herself as being well pleased with that institution and also with the many things of interest in nearby places, but is anxious for the term to end, so she may return to Carrizozo.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Zumwalt and daughter, Ejsie Fay, of Bisbee, Arizona, left last week after a pleasant visit with relatives and old Carrizozo and Nogal friends. They were here for the Nogal picnic, where they met many who were schoolmates of days gone by. While in Nogal they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Zumwalt and while here, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Skinner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Allison and son of Coffeyville, Kas., Mrs. J. W. Dwyer, Miss Florence Wells, Messrs. Ray Toy and Harry Dwyer, of Cherryville, Kans., came in the latter part of last week and are spending the present week with Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Lucky. During their stay, they visited the Ruidoso and Mescalero regions, but on account of heavy rains, they could not reach Eagle Creek. They left Wednesday on their return trip. The ladies mentioned are sisters of Mrs. Lucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Lute Skinner of Mulaga, N. M., were here last week for a visit with relatives. They attended the Nogal picnic on the 4th and remained several days in order to call on their relatives and old Lincoln County friends. They seem well satisfied with their location at Mulaga, where Mr. Skinner is making a success at the farming industry, as is also his brother, R. C. Skinner.

Fireman Billy Norman is the latest convert to the growing popularity of the Chevrolet car, he having purchased one of the latest models of a touring car on Wednesday. Dr. Fayet of Fort Stanton, purchased a Dodge Sedan on Tuesday, all of which were bought of the City Garage.

Wayne Richard arrived home Wednesday from Tucumcari, where he has been firing from Tucumcari to Dawson. Wayne looks well and says that his next move will probably be to California, where the S. P., as near as he knows, will send him.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Textor and children of El Paso, spent the major portion of last week with the Rufus Hughes family, leaving for home on Saturday. While here, they enjoyed an outing on the South Fork of the Bonito, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and children. Mr. Textor is a brother of Mrs. Hughes.

Conductor C. A. McCammon and family left the first of the week for a month's visit with relatives in Kansas and other states. They will return about the middle of the coming month to be ready before the fall school term begins.

Conductor Fred Getty is in receipt of a letter from his sister in California, in which she tells of the death of her only son, Captain Frank Abbott, who died in Tokio, Japan, July 3. He graduated from the University at Palos Altos, Calif., after which he went to Japan and taught school for several years. He returned to this country and was teaching in the Washington University at St. Louis when the war came on and was called to Washington, D. C., where he was stationed in reserve service. After the war, he was sent by the government to Tokio and there remained in the U. S. service until the time of his death. Many people here will remember Captain Abbott, who stopped over here for a short while when on his way to Washington during the war.

Miss Sherlock Holmes in the Telephone Service

A man who spoke no English appeared at the Salt Lake City passenger depot, to demand a telephone word with an address that nobody could understand. The chief operator took the name that was all but unintelligible, though it sounded like "Hinsissel," as he pronounced it, and finally located at Eureka, 70 miles away, a subscriber with a name like that might be imagined to be what the caller gave. A request to the Eureka man to answer, and if possible, assist the caller to be understood, disclosed that the caller was the Eureka man's nephew, just over from Norway, and stranded in Salt Lake City thru some ticket mistake or loss. They learn how to serve in the telephone company, as it emphasizes courtesy and service for its patrons.

Big Community Hall Dance

There will be a big dance Saturday night, July 17 at Lutz Hall for the benefit of the Community Hall fund and everybody should go, whether you dance or not. The Spanish-American Orchestra from the east side will furnish the music and the same will be donated to the cause, which is a commendable act on the part of the boys, inasmuch as it shows their interest in community matters. The fund needs the support of everybody and now that the work has been progressing so nicely, the money for the finish should be raised at once. All who have subscribed, should pay their portions as soon as possible.
