(Fort Stanton Correspondent)

The Concert for the benefit of the patients' Christmas fund, under the auspices of the Pine Arts Club, postponed from earlier date, will occur on Friday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p. m. Unusual and amusing, as well as many other excellent numbers are planned and everyone who will aid in this most worthy cause is assured of a highly enjoyable evening. Come, tell others and bring your friends.

Baron Auriemma has been with us again and has given us, as usual, a most wonderful treat. After giving concerts at Lincoln and Capitan, on the two preceding evenings, he came to the Fort Wednesday and sang nine teen numbers, and in four different languages making the Amusement Hall resound with his wonderful voice and with echoing applause. Mrs. Faget on the piano and (Mickey) McNeff on the violin accompanied him as well as rendering several difficult and beautiful selections as solos. Mrs. Kincheloe sang in solos and duets and received, as did the others, many encores. For two hours the packed house was enthralled with music that held everyone present spell bound and such as is seldom heard in the most select recitals.

On Friday, September 10, Bishop Frederick B. Howden D.D., of the Episcopal Church will conduct a Confirmation service at the Fort and, after visiting Alamogordo Sunday morning, will hold Confirmation service at the Wetmore Hall in Carrizozo, Sunday evening, Sept. 12, at 7:30. Everyone is invited.

Mrs. Elliott, expert librarian from Chicago, has been visiting the home of Dr. Tappan this week and has made plans for much to improve the library in its efficiency and attractiveness. Such assistance is most welcome.

Mrs. Pettit, Mrs. Nesbit's mother, who has been visiting her daughter for some weeks, has returned home leaving many friends at the Fort.

Many are the nimrods who have brought game birds to the tables at the Fort recently and Mr. and Mrs. Kincheloe added a good catch of fish on Sunday last. On the same day five car loads of history enthusiasts went to the Gran Quivira and gave full testimony to the antiquated appearance of the ruins. Dr. Reed has returned from a trip with Mrs. Reed to Elephant Butte. Bill Clarke, also has returned from vacation as, also did Miss Diener and others, greatly refreshed.

Mrs. Irma DeMott and Miss Tiedeman of Long Island, N. Y., returned to their homes Thursday, after an extended tour of the west which ended with a visit with their friend, Mrs. E. W. White, and Messrs. Werner Gustafson and J. Rainier, accompanied the ladies to the train at Carrizozo.

T. E. Kelley and L. A. Whitaker spent several days last week in Santa Fe, where they attended a meeting of the Game Protective Association.

Trio Will Attend State College

Marshall Beck, Miller French, and Clint Brannum left for State College, where they will attend school. Our best wishes go with these boys, and Carrizozo should feel proud of this trio.

Railroad Rumblings

Mrs. D. S. Donaldson spent Monday and Tuesday here, as a guest of Conductor and Mrs. C. A. McCammon. Mr. Donaldson is the agent for the S. P. at Montoya. Mrs. Donaldson will be remembered by a host of friends at this place, for she is a charming lady and also a pianist and teacher as well.

Engineer and Mrs. Si Ramsdale have leased the Wetmore Apartments and fireman and Mrs. Frank Abel have again taken possession of the residence next door to W. W. Stadtman's insurance office on Alamogordo avenue, the place they resided before taking their trip to California and Oregon.

Mrs. Smith, wife of engineer C. A. Smith and her sister, Miss Harriett Yates, are guests of friends in Tucumcari this week.

Mrs. Francis Lafferty, wife of operator Lafferty and her aunt, Mrs. Smith, are here from Vaughn, where the operator is engaged in relief work.

Brakeman W. P. Loughrey is back from his trip to Santa Fe and has reported for duty.

Conductor R. Whitlock has returned from Alamogordo where he had been relieving Conductor Tweed on the A. & S. M.

Engineers C. A. Smith and W. Fisher have transferred to Tucumcari for service out of that point.

Thomas Fisher, son of engineer Fisher, is attending school at Carrizozo.

Firemen Price and Lee have transferred to Carrizozo for service between Carrizozo and Duran. They have been working out of El Paso for several years.

Fireman R. Hughes and family left last week for an extended visit with relatives in Arkansas. They report having a fine time.

High water was experienced again Wednesday in the vicinity of Three Rivers, but the well built road bed of the Southern Pacific at that point was not affected.

Four more 2-10 2 type locomotives will soon be assigned to this division for service. This powerful locomotive is one of the great improvements of the Southern Pacific on road facilities.

C. E. Stockliener, genial P. F. E. agent, stopped over here this week on his way to California.

Wednesday morning, Brakeman W. Entzinger and Mesdames June Corp, Eunice Bloodgood and children of El Paso, who were here for a short visit, motored up to the Ruidoso, Mesacalero Indian Agency and Cloudcroft, returning by the way of Alamogordo and Tularosa yesterday morning. The scenic effects of our mountain resorts was much appreciated by the visitors.

That Men May Grow

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

Nature never seems to grumble Cause the weather ain't jus' right.
You don't hear the trees complainin'
When the sun is out o' sight.
Flowers seem to like the showers,
An' there ain't a growin' thing
That don't need the Fall an' Winter
To prepare it for the Spring.

Seems to me that men develop Somethin' like a field o' grain—
With the sunshine that life brings 'em,
Comes the darkness and the rain.
Guess it takes jus' so much hardship
An' what seems to be tough luck
To bring out a feller's virtues
And to give 'im strength and pluck!

The dance last Saturday night for the benefit of the Community Hall building fund was but lightly attended, many of our people going to Corona to attend the dance given on that date.

Corona Clippings

Oren Downing, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Downing, has gone to Alamogordo for school this year.

Mrs. Ruth McCamant has gone to visit her mother at Electra, Texas.

Mrs. F. L. Blanchard has been called and left Thursday to the bedside of her mother who is not expected to live.

The Blue Bonnet Serenaders of Fort Worth, Texas, gave a dance Saturday night, Sept. 4, which was well attended.

Bythal Jolly of Carrizozo visited his mother last week end.

Our sympathy is extended to Mrs. Cleve Brown's niece, who is very low.

Mrs. Roy Owens has been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Ford of Pasadena, California, who is visiting her daughters at Roswell.

Miss Lois Holland resigned her position here as home economics teacher for one in Arcadia, Florida. She will be replaced by Miss Annie Ola Hawkins, a graduate of the University of Texas.

The teachers are: J. B. Burleson, superintendent; Clifford Brown, principal; Mrs. J. M. Shelton, Misses A. O. Hawkins, Blanche Collum, Annie Boes, Donnie Franks and Mrs. P. H. Kersey.

Las Crucesites Here

A. S. Roberts, deputy revenue collector and Captain N. I. Reiter, Public Accountant for the law firm of Holt & Sutherland of Las Cruces were here for several days this week, attending to official business in their particular lines. In their respective lines of work, these gentlemen meet the public in a manner which causes people to welcome, instead of living in a fear of their arrival. Such representatives either for the government or for a private corporation, coming among us with extended courtesies, invites confidence and creates a desire to have them visit us again.

Fore! By "Dad Gum"

Ah, little ball
You're old, I know,
And your face is battered and scared;

Where once it was white
And smooth as could be
Now it is dirty and hard.
I've played with you
For two long weeks
Since first you came to me;
I've treated you rough
That is certain—
For the look on your Face tells me that

You've been batted Hither and Yonder,
And never once did complain.
You've laid in the Rough
And the ditches, but I've always found you again,
But I will keep you always
No matter how hard you look,
For with you, little ball,
I've beaten 'em all

And many a dollar I have 'took'
So rest, little ball, on the mantel,
'Til the day that death do us part;
For though you are sadly dismantled,

You're the treasure of my heart!

Bazaar and Carnival

Next Saturday, Sept. 11, beginning at the hour of 10, the ladies of Carrizozo will give a Bazaar and Carnival at the Community Hall which promises to be the biggest ever yet attempted in the way of community boosting, from the fact that when our ladies assume charge of any project, it goes without saying that the same will be successful.

The ladies are tireless workers for everything that goes to make up the good and welfare of the community. At this Bazaar and Carnival, according to the ladies, Everything will be for sale, and the proceeds will go to the Community Hall Building Fund.

Don't prepare anything to eat at home tomorrow, as there will be plenty to eat at the new hall. In the evening, there will be a big dance at Lutz Hall and of course, everybody will attend. Seeing the ladies taking such an active, unselfish interest in the Community Hall, should cause those who have subscribed certain amounts, to come forward and pay up. Now for the finish. Let the good work go on!

Woman's Club

The first meeting of the Carrizozo Woman's Club will be held this evening at the home of Mrs. Louis Adams and will be in the form of a reception to the teachers of the Carrizozo schools.
Mrs. R. E. Blaney, the new President of the Club will preside at the reception and the affair is looked forward to with much interest.

The first regular meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Farley on the afternoon of September 17, at three o'clock and a good attendance is expected, as members of this organization need not be urged;
they are alive to the interests of the community affairs in general.

Wm. Mehrman, Veteran Mining Man, Dies

Last Monday at the ranch of John Dale, near Ancho, Wm.
Mehrman, near the age of 90 years, died, after an illness following an accident a short time ago, when he fell and sustained an injury to his left side and also his left leg.

Mr. Mehrman had of late years been living on the Dale ranch, and contrary to the wishes of Mr. and Mrs. Dale, he built a house about a mile from Dale's, as he wished to live alone.
He followed prospecting mainly in the Jicarilla mountains, and like many more of our prospectors, realized but little from his endeavors, and these amounts were always placed in further ventures.

As far as can be learned, he left no relatives, but lived, as we have said, on the Dale ranch and was the recipient of many kindnesses of the folks during his last days.

Concert at Crystal Theatre

The rain yesterday kept many people from attending the musicale at the Crystal Theatre last night and those who were unable to attend, missed a musical treat.

Baron Auriemma was assisted by Mrs. Louis Adams, Mrs. J.
H. Carwell of Topeka, Kansas, who is a guest of Miss Marguerite Sweet, Miss Thompson and little Miss Ruth Kelley.

The Baron sang the clown song from "Pagliacci," "O Sole Mio" and "Sweetheart, I Love
You" and was assisted in duets,
"At Dawning" and "Roses at Twilight" by Mrs. Adams and in "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" by little Miss Ruth Kelley.

Miss Thompson at the piano and Mrs. Carwell on the violin, assisted the singers and responded to requests for solos, all of which were rendered with professional accuracy. Space prevents us from making a more detailed account of the concert, as the program, as a whole, was deserving of more extended complimentary mention.

The Drive, which closed with the Entertainment last night, netted the Salvation Army over $400.00 in Lincoln County, and the Baron (Sunny Jim) wishes to thank those who assisted him in the Concerts and likewise contributed to the Cause. He leaves tomorrow for Las Cruces, where he will, to quote his own words, "Sing himself into the hearts and pocketbooks of the people."

What Colfax County Thinks of Dillon

(Colfax County Stockman)

RICHARD C. DILLON, Republican nominee for Governor of New Mexico, is a self-made man. He has made his way up the ladder to the rung of one of the state's most successful business men through self-determination. When a boy he came to New Mexico with his parents and located in Springer. In later years his father died, and still while a mere lad, for years he was almost the sole support of his widowed mother and younger sisters and brothers. Large business men saw in him a boy of worth, and an opportunity faced him which he grasped. He had not the opportunity to the higher education, his years in school were few, but he made up for it through a self-determination to make good in the business world. From a boy he has always laughed at discouraging advice, he has never considered anything impossible, always looked to the bright side of life.

As one of the foremost business men of New Mexico he will give the state a business administration, he will give it his best efforts, and that is saying a lot. He has never been a politician, has no political axes to grind or political favors to reward. He is free from the handicaps and embarrassments that the long time active politicians would be required to face.

The Republican party of this state has acted wisely in its selection as chief executive, and the people will enthusiastically rally to his support, knowing that such a man is needed. 'Dick' Dillon is a Colfax county product. Let's show our appreciation of that fact by giving him a rousing majority for Governor.

Protectionists on Offensive

A few months ago we heard a lot about how the free traders were going to force the tariff issue and make it the leading bone of contention in the campaign which is now opening. We were told that the farmers were tired of protection, that it was of no benefit to them, and they wanted free trade so that they could buy cheaply of European products and find a better market abroad.

But something has happened to change the situation. Evidently the free traders have found that the desire for free trade among farmers is not so keen as they thought it was. The statement of Senator Capper that what the farmers want is an increase in the tariff on certain farm products, came to them as a rude shock. And they have doubtless learned, too that there is a demand in the South that the tariff will be let alone so that the American producer may continue to have a chance. For the tariff is no longer a party issue. There are thousands of Protectionists in the South now, and the farmers of the West have not changed on the subject. — National Re-

COMPETITION IN WORDS

One who goes into the market to buy a motor car today is naturally confused.

He has read the words best and greatest so often that they have ceased to be convincing. Where all is best, he reflects, there can be no best.

Thousand-dollar cars have been described to him in ten-thousand dollar language. And vice versa.

He finds himself the target in a war of adjectives; the helpless victim in a gigantic competition of words.

And so he is forced to rely on chance—the advice of friends—or his own limited experience.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., have never participated in this verbal competition.

They are content with the position they have long maintained in the far more vital competition of honest value.

They have continued steadily to improve their product, not only in comfort and beauty, but basically—beneath the body and hood where fundamental values lie.

Yet they have not unduly stressed each betterment that has marked the steady progress of their motor car toward a higher perfection. And when economic conditions or greater sales have permitted them to reduce prices without reducing quality, they have announced the fact without excessive emphasis.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

What Colfax County Thinks of Dillon

(Colfax County Stockman)

RICHARD C. Dillon, Republican nominee for Governor of New Mexico, is a self-made man. He has made his way up the ladder to the rung of one of the state's most successful business men through self-determination. When a boy he came to New Mexico with his parents and located in Springer. In later years his father died, and still while a mere lad, for years he was almost the sole support of his widowed mother and younger sisters and brothers. Large business men saw in him a boy of worth, and an opportunity faced him which he grasped. He had not the opportunity to the higher education, his years in school were few, but he made up for it through a self-determination to make good in the business world. From a boy he has always laughed at discouraging advice, he has never considered anything impossible, always looked to the bright side of life.

As one of the foremost business men of New Mexico he will give the state a business administration, he will give it his best efforts, and that is saying a lot. He has never been a politician, has no political axes to grind or political favors to reward. He is free from the handicaps and embarrassments that the long time active politicians would be required to face.

The Republican party of this state has acted wisely in its selection as chief executive, and the people will enthusiastically rally to his support, knowing that such a man is needed.

'Dick' Dillon is a Colfax county product. Let's show our appreciation of that fact by giving him a rousing majority for Governor.

Protectionists on Offensive

A few months ago we heard a lot about how the free traders were going to force the tariff issue and make it the leading bone of contention in the campaign which is now opening. We were told that the farmers were tired of protection, that it was of no benefit to them, and they wanted free trade so that they could buy cheaply of European products and find a better market abroad.

But something has happened to change the situation. Evidently the free traders have found that the desire for free trade among farmers is not so keen as they thought it was. The statement of Senator Capper that what the farmers want is an increase in the tariff on certain farm products, came to them as a rude shock. And they have doubtless learned, too that there is a demand in the South that the tariff will be let alone so that the American producer may continue to have a chance. For the tariff is no longer a party issue. There are thousands of Protectionists in the South now, and the farmers of the West have not changed on the subject. — National Republican

One who goes into the market to buy a motor car today is naturally confused.

He has read the words best and greatest so often that they have ceased to be convincing. Where all is best, he reflects, there can be no best.

Thousand-dollar cars have been described to him in ten-thousand dollar language. And vice versa. He finds himself the target in a war of adjectives; the helpless victim in a gigantic competition of words.

And so he is forced to rely on chance—the advice of friends—or his own limited experience.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., have never participated in this verbal competition.

They are content with the position they have long maintained in the far more vital competition of honest value.

They have continued steadily to improve their product, not only in comfort and beauty, but basically—beneath the body and hood where fundamental values lie.

Yet they have not unduly stressed each betterment that has marked the steady progress of their motor car toward a higher perfection.

And when economic conditions or greater sales have permitted them to reduce prices without reducing quality, they have announced the fact without excessive emphasis.

CHAPTER XIV

You Yankees!

When Caleb had discovered the weakness of the rock in Hermanos canyon he looked for another dam site and his intuitive caution had closed his mouth in the matter until Baxter's treachery had sent him on his visit to El Nido the day that Clinton died, ready to make explanations that he felt would exonerate him from Baxter's charges.

He had discovered his alternative in Boca-Blanca basin. Caleb's eyes had seen its possibilities the day of the barbecue and later investigations convinced him that here was his site, better in some ways even than Hermanos. Two creeks ran through it, for one thing, the slopes drained more gently but with sufficient pitch. Clearance work presented no alarming problems or cost.

It was a month after Baxter had been warningly dismissed by Cox that Hinckley, paying flying visits to his offices between field trips, came into the room where Caleb bent over his drafting and slapped him on the back. "I've finished my report to the board of directors, Warner," he said jubilantly. "I dated it this morning. It's entirely favorable. They meet the day after tomorrow. I understand they've practically completed the options for the watershed. All they now have to do is to vote money for purchase and our end of it and then—it's up to the pair of us!" You've earned your hundred thousand dollars, which, I imagine, will be vouchered tomorrow. I wanted to be first with my congratulations. I haven't given you any the best of it in my investigations. Hey, but I'll be glad to buckle down into the harness again! Will you come up to the house to dinner tonight, and talk over things afterward?"

Caleb assented gladly and Hinckley said good-by. He had been gone but a few minutes when a boy arrived with a request for Caleb to see Mr. Cox.

Cox opened the conversation to the point without preamble.

"You've seen Hinckley, Warner? Then you know that his report is favorable. Now, then, we could close up the whole matter at the meeting tomorrow and pass appropriations, but for one thing.

"That's the purchase of the Boca-Blanca basin. We can't get option or purchase price on it out of Wharton, who was handling it. He's stalled me off till yesterday for some reason and I don't like it. He has recently sold it and he says that he has instructions not to disclose the name of the purchaser. Part of the provisions of the deal. You've got to have it to complete the project. You know that. I did not imagine there would be any difficulty. It's valueless land and no one but an engineer would ever imagine it as a reservoir site. Unless there have been more leaks. Did you ever get any line on who owns Boca-Blanca? You found out the owner of the Caliente gravel beds."

"I own the Boca-Blanca basin," said Caleb quietly.

"You do?" Cox's left eyebrow went up.

"I expected to tell you as soon as I knew that Hinckley's report would be favorable. Otherwise my investment would be useless except for itself."

"Your investment?" Cox laid down softly the pencil he was balancing and subjected Caleb to a scolding scrutiny. His demeanor changed. All friendliness left it, the president's face hardened, his jaw shot out and his eyes became again the color of ice in shade. "How much do you want to make on your little—investment?" he demanded.

"I paid ten thousand for the whole valley, bottom to hilltop," said Caleb. "Six thousand in cash—four thousand in a mortgage secured by a five-years' note at six per cent interest."

"Till turn it over to the company for exactly what it has cost me as soon as my agreement with you is duly ratified upon the acceptance of Hinckley's report. I was in a position to get hold of this property when there was no chance of its value being tilted, at a low price, and I took up the opportunity. I have always intended to deliver it to the company when my own deal was closed."

Cox's face showed faint signs of relief, his eyes were still keen but now they held a quizzical light. "When your own deal was closed I had an ace in the hole all the time, eh, Warner? It was you I underestimated. It isn't so often that you find an engineer a first-class business man. You'll go far, Warner. Part of the way with us, I'm glad to say."

Caleb nodded a little. "It was hardly an ace in the hole," he said, "since I expected to play it with your hand. I felt that it was a business measure to protect myself, Mr. Cox. I did not doubt your sincerity, but . . .

"It was a d-d smart move, Warner. You didn't know us, You Yankees!" he chuckled. "I appreciate it, personally and for the company. I mean your turning it over as you will. You could have held us up for a stiff profit and that, too, would have been business. But your New England conscience walks hand-in-hand with your New England forwardness. You should play a good game of chess. Glad you've taken a weight off my mind! Wharton and Baxter being so close I began to think that grasshopper had cooked up something, after all. But you blocked it too, early in the game, even if he thought of it."

"Tomorrow will see you with your check in hand for a hundred thousand dollars. If you want to invest that in our new stock issue, Warner, I'll see that you can get a block of it. It's coming to you. How about it?"

"I'll think it over, with full appreciation of the offer," said Caleb. "After this project is completed I may want to use my capital in a hurry."

Cox was all cordiality again. It was plain that Caleb's protective purchase of the key to the project appealed to him.

That afternoon Caleb took his deeds to Boca-Blanca out of his safety-deposit drawer at his bank. So far he had won a third of what he desired—the price of his discovery. Now came the work, the enduring sign. There still remained Betty Clinton.

CHAPTER XV

The Work

The rains came sheeting down with blustering winds or days of steady downpour. Caleb was astonished that California weather could be so wild. But they worked. Tarpsulins could keep out the rain, there was no front, bare of the bullder in cement and of the excavator. Caleb dug deep into the gravel beds, although the creeks were running wild, and he was forced to halt at thirty-five feet and wait until spring brought a lowering of the water table to level. He pushed work on the submarine piping. Men swarmed like ants, in busy multitudes.

As the work proceeded toward completion Caleb still found the project good. By June the company began to talk of a ceremonial opening. There would be a picnic-de-luxe, an elaborated barbecue, speeches, general inspection of dam and filtration system. All this was set for August, after a year's top-speed toil.

Caleb was seldom away from the actual scene of labor, he had not seen Betty Clinton, he had seen no one who might have seen or heard of her, but it was not often that thoughts of her were absent from his leisure hours, which were few and apt to find him mentally and physically tired and drowsy.

The year of her mourning would be up with the opening of the works. He hoped—or he would not have dreamed. He hoped to go afield for the next adventure with Betty, to find it for themselves and work out its problems together.

He realized that there had been a change in him. He had expanded and he was no longer the self-contained young engineer who had worked on the projects in New England, beside which this present affair was enormous. He had glimpsed the human side. It was no longer so many yards of excavation, so much concrete, so much flow, levels, logarithms, trigonometry. The personal had entered into the mechanical.

He did not hire the men under his charge. That he left to the company's superintendents and foremen. But he tried to know each by sight and greet them with a nod that recognized them with himself as partners in the work, each according to his measure, capacity. A labor camp had been established in the Slink under canvas and light lumber, bunkhouses, dining rooms and a few concessions all under strict supervision of the company.

It was on Sunday when Caleb, riding over to meet Hinckley at the big dam, passed a man coming out of a little store that carried stationery, candy, tobacco and newspapers—and magazines. He had a paper bag tucked into his side pocket, from which he abstracted a sweet morsel for his mouth as Caleb, astride a horse in preference to the car provided by the company, went by him. The man wore a linen collar. His clothes were of unusually good material, but they were all out of shape and stained. There was a lack of spirit in the man's carriage that arrested Caleb's attention.

Caleb looked sharply at him. He saw a profiled face framed in an untrimmed beard, a face that was shrunken from sickness or disipation, a shifting glance of moody eyes, features that seemed remotely familiar.

The sense of having seen the man before persisted and, when Caleb met a foreman, who saluted him cheerily, he drew rein. The man was still in sight.

"Does that chap work for us?" asked Caleb. "I haven't seen him about before." The foreman shaded his eyes. "He came two weeks ago with a recommendation from McCarthy, the contractor, to Mr. Burns. Burns was needing a timekeeper. He put him on. Name of Johnson." He turns in his sheets well enough. A lushbound gone on the blink with prohibition."

"Well, good luck to you," said Caleb and put his horse to alope.

McCarthy's name had given him the clow. He was sure Johnson was Baxter. He had heard rumors in his infrequent visits to Golden and the club of the latter's downhill progress. Still drinking bad liquor, borrowing, ejection from the club for a heavy bill, attempts at curbstone real estate, deals in insurance—given him by friends, talk of misappropriated premiums and renewal checks, smoothed over for old time's sake.

Caleb's resentment had died out with Baxter's downfall. All that Baxter had attempted against him had ended in failure. If he was attending to his job Caleb did not want to hound him on still lower. But he did not think Baxter's rehabilitation probable.

He kept him in mind until he returned. Then he sought Burns. Johnson's—or Baxter's—record was good enough.

"He's been a boozier," was the superior report. "So far he's kept sober. Want him laid off?"

"Not so long as he keeps off the stiff and turns in correct sheets," said Caleb. "But, if he's drunk, or you think he's carrying liquor, inside or out, fire him. Treat him under the rules the same as anybody."

Two days later Caleb was called to Golden for a conference. As he strolled along, looking in the store windows, his eyes were caught by a placard announcing an exhibition of paintings by Juan Carquinez, canvases of Mexico. Caleb, remembering the picturesque, forceful figure of Carquinez, thought that he would like to see how the man could paint. It would pass an hour pleasantly.

The gallery was a small one. Caleb saw Carquinez talking with a group of three possible patrons, his strong face as mobile in its earnestness as his gestures.

A little pile of catalogues stood on a table by the door and Caleb took one, making the round of the walls, slowly, held before canvas after canvas by the beauty of the work.

Caleb became obsessed with the desire to own one. The name of it was "La Tenaya," and his Spanish was insufficient to translate the word. On a lift of ancient lava that rose in the foreground, looking out across a dusky plain to a line of hills that held the rose and purple of a dying sunset, three Indian women were drawing water from a pocket cistern in the rock, lingering to exchange their simple gossip. A custom as old as the hills themselves, the drawing of water at sunset for the evening meal. It made strong appeal to Caleb, aside from the exquisite painting and tone value of the canvas.

Density of Smoke Is Varied by Distance.

The fact that smoke near a smoke stack appears to be dark and then grows lighter and lighter is a good illustration of the law of the inverse square of the distance. At one foot radius from the center of the stack, the surface exposed in any section is very small and the smoke particles very close together, and the passage of light through the particles is almost prevented. At a two-foot radius the particles are twice as far apart and only one-quarter of the area is covered, allowing four times the light to pass through. This section is continuous, and more and more light passes through the smoke particles, causing them to become of a much lighter color against the sky background. At some finite distance from the mouth of the stack, the concentration has been so great that there is practically no more interference with the light and the smoke disappears.

The bridegroom does not yet realize that the cracking wood fire her father "set" in the fireplace, and the chicken steamer mother provided were well-staged steps in a successful campaign to "make 'em want it!"—Western Advertising.

OSTRICH BOA HAS COME BACK; YOUTHFUL DESIGNS IN PAJAMAS

AN OLD friend has returned. Yes, 'tis true, the ostrich boa in the full measure of its former glory is with us again. Paris decrees it as the outstanding idea among accessory fashions. So in comes the ostrich boa, very long or very short, not only in drapery versions but in street types as well.

Some of the smartest ostrich boas or ruffs assume a flat collar shape attached beneath to a grosgrain ribbon. Then there is the Pierrot collarette which extends just around the neck, in as saucy and perky a manner as one could wish.

A fascinating play of color adds beauty upon beauty to the new ostrich boa of fashion. Which all goes to show that ostrich accessories are a foreign set thought of the present hour. Ask any of the bobbed hair sorority, and their name is legion, to express their opinion on the subject and invariably in a burst of enthusiasm they will expatiate in a veritable torrent of words upon the comfort and practicability of the fashion. Even so in regard to the vogue of wearing pajamas. Womanhood has been converted to the idea from a common-sense standpoint. More and more are

African Natives Show

No Fear of Crocodiles

Crocodiles and natives fraternize in the most friendly manner at Tumu, a village on the Gold Coast of Africa.

Princess Marie Louise, cousin of King George of Great Britain, tells about the good feeling between the crocodiles and Gold Coasters in travel letters, which have just been published.

"The natives regard crocodiles as the 'familiar spirit' of man and never injure them. In fact, they believe that any person who injures or kills a crocodile also may be killed.

"We watched village women wandering about among crocodiles in the village pool quite undisturbed," says the princess. "The women seemed to have no fear. They even pushed the crocodiles aside if they got in their way. The natives fill their pots and bathe among the reptiles without the slightest fear."

neckpieces. Tones and tints are combined, blended and contrasted with consummate artistry, which, of course, add a new charm and interest to the vogue. Imagine, if you please, a navy blue ruff sprinkled with channel red ostrich. The ostrich neckpiece in this picture is of just that wondrous coloring, although you would never guess it to look at this newspaper print. Brown and yellow present themselves in amber effect, greens turning to lighter shades, chintheilla mottlings, exquisite pastel tints for evening wear—pajamas establishing themselves as essential in the realm of sensible as well as esthetic lingerie modes. For the making of practical, easy-to-laundry pajamas, there is no fabric comparable to the humble, yet adorably colored, crinkly seersucker. However, if one's fancy turns to silk, what more charming than crepe de chine or wash satin made after the manner of the model portrayed? Perhaps it is the frivolous lace ribbon bows, or possibly the cunning pockets, but at any rate this particular model expresses these but suggest the multitudinous delectable colorings which mark the coming season's ostrich fantasies.

Not only color, but novelty of design holds attention throughout the ostrich accessories. One type of flat boa has a small plume down the back in pointed effect, many of the longer sort are of willow-like plumage, others show willow-like ostrich with marabou tufted. Some elaborate modes have long ostrich tassels, and so on and so on as the theme being exploited.

Not in the vogue limited to neckpieces, for ostrich trimming is furthermore making its appearance on our frocks and on our wraps. Then there is the ostrich fan. Together with the boa it makes its entrance on the youth. In its every detail and that is a declared requisite feature for all pajama creations this season.

There are times when the feminine heart longs for lace and ribbons aplenty. The new lingerie displayed for the coming months is especially satisfying to those who delight in the ornate. Lacy, with much handwork, is fashion's ultimatum for the daintier boudoir pajama sets, with no fault to elegance and novelty when it comes to the more formal types.

Color contrast is an interesting theme, such as flecked silk pajamas, either crepe or crepe-back satin, trimmed with silk green, or blue with pink or orchid with maize.

FISHER DESIGN SETS THE PACE

The pace set by Fisher—and exemplified in the beautiful new General Motors cars now commanding public attention—is the guide for the entire motor industry.

Fisher's vast experience, Fisher inventiveness and Fisher's unapproached facilities devise and perfect the beauties, comforts and conveniences which attract you to the leading new cars in all price classes—Cadillac, Buick, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and Pontiac.

For instance, Fisher achieves a new degree of safety—and nothing less than a Body by Fisher can approach it even after seasons of striving.

Fisher leads the way in luxurious fittings and decorations—and all the industry follows.

Fisher creates new standards of beauty in line and finish—and those standards are the measure of value for all of the world's cars.

It is easy to see, therefore why the foremost of the new cars in all price classes carry the emblem—Body by Fisher.

And easy to understand why buyers the world over proclaim as the hallmark of quality that same magic symbol—Body by Fisher.

Carrizozo School Notes

School opened Monday with a total enrollment of 235. Of this amount, the High School enrollment reaches 77; the highest we have ever had.

The Outlook man was a visitor at the school Wednesday afternoon and found Prof. Helm and his teachers with smiling faces and the pupils lined up with set determinations to 'make good.' A general spirit of good-will, enthusiasm and co-operation was evident on every hand.

Our teachers, whom we have known so long and held in our most implicit confidence, superintendent Helm, J. C. Burkett, Mesdames Maude Blaney, J. B. French, M. I. Hunt, S. H. Nickles and Marie Tangeman Keeler, need no introduction to the public and the new teachers, who come to us with the highest and best of recommendations, are: The Misses Esther Woods, Elva Brower and Mrs. Callie Franks. Meet the new teachers. The Assembly room has been newly painted, the walls and ceilings kaleidomined and presents a cheerful and attractive appearance. The floors have been oiled and the general appearance of the interior is truly inviting. Some changes are planned that will greatly benefit the school. For instance: In the two rooms occupied by the Spanish and Commercial classes, a part of the old partition is to be removed and will be replaced with glass, so that the teacher may have an unobstructed view of both rooms at all times; an improvement that will be of great benefit.

Judging from the looks of the High School boys, Prof. Burkett will have a winning basketball team this year. On the girls' side, we may rest assured that they will live up to the reputation of the record made by the team of last year.

Mrs. Blaney points with pride to the fact that the main entrance to her room is now open. Last year, the lock became stubborn and refused to yield to the key, so it remained in a locked condition and the only means of entering the room was by the door in the cloak room. She now has a new lock on the main door and everybody is happy.

The little folks in the second school building are enjoying their playground equipment with renewed enthusiasm after the long vacation period. The Carrizozo School will have a booth at the Bazaar and Carnival at the Community Hall tomorrow. Patronize the school booth!

Charles Dean and Joe Evans of Capitan are enrolled at the high school.

Parents should visit the school and get better acquainted with the teachers. Prof. Helm issues a standing invitation.—Comel

The freshmen decorated Prof. Helm with becoming honors at the opening of school.

Personal, But Not Social

The Oasis Cafe, which had been in existence for about a month, closed yesterday morning, and more than one of our business firms pocketed their losses.

It is high time for the people of Carrizozo to realize that it is dangerous business to foster moonbeam-chasing parties who come into town and fleece those who, through a spirit of generosity, are willing to help strangers. In the future, we should be absolutely certain that we know who we are dealing with. — Will we profit by this lesson or will we go ahead and brand ourselves as easy-marks?
