Brakeman W. C. Pittman, Mrs. Pittman and the children made a trip the latter part of last week to Hot Springs and Elephant Butte Dam and at the latter place, put in a large portion of their time in fishing. "Pitt" says that while he caught some fish, he wondered why other fellows would go to the very places where he had been unlucky and pull the fish out in large numbers. It was your unlucky week, "Pitt," that's all.

Fireman Bert Holland and Engineer Harrison were here from Tucumcari Tuesday, bringing in No. 1 and taking back No. 12. While in town, the boys paid this office a friendly call which visit was much enjoyed by us.—Come again, Boys!

Conductor A. R. Jones was the victim of an accident last Saturday at Alamogordo, which might easily have proved fatal. In alighting from freight train No. 92 to do his flagging, he felt something hit him in the left shoulder. It proved to be a shot from a .22 rifle fired by a couple of boys, who evidently were aiming at some object on the track and the marksmanship being poor, the shot happened to hit A. R., as he stepped from his train. He came here, but at that time the bullet could not be located. He went to El Paso and after an examination by Dr. Brown, the missile was found lodged in the fleshy part of the shoulder, near the bone. A. R. has suffered but little from the accident and is again at work.

Operator Dean Gumm was an El Paso visitor for the week end.

One day this week, a stranger met Conductor Jimmy O'Rourke on the street and asked him if he could find a mountain chemist, or in other words, a bootlegger in town, as he was very thirsty. Jimmy told the stranger to ask the first man he met, which the inquirer did—but the man questioned "Got anything on your hip?"—proved to be Judge Frenger. What the Judge's answer was is not known, but the stranger Beat It.

Mrs. McLaraen, Sister of Mrs. Farley Dies

Mrs. J. E. Farley received a message Wednesday morning to the effect that her sister, Mrs. J. L. McLaraen, died at Rifle, Colorado, on that date. Mrs. McLaraen's residence was at De Beque, a short distance from Rifle and for most of the time during her illness she had been at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Limpus. The news did not come unexpectedly, as the family had been advised by her physician a month ago, that her death was only a matter of time. Mrs. Farley and Mrs. Limpus have the sympathy of their many friends here and at Rifle.

The Ramsay Players Here Next Week

Everybody will remember the Ramsay Players who were here last November, and how they pleased the patrons with their good programs of drama, comedy and music.

Mr. Ramsay has just finished a period at Alamogordo and will play the remainder of this week at Tularosa, after which the Ramsay Players will show in Carrizozo all of the coming week.

On the first night, Monday, May 9, one lady will be admitted free with each paid admission.

The Ramsay Players have the reputation of giving first-class entertainment in every particular and to attend one of their performances, makes one eager to go again. There are ten people connected with the cast, and they present comedies, dramas and novelties that are reported to be the best.

There should be a big attendance from our neighboring towns and the public may rest assured that everything and everybody connected with the show will be first-class, above reproach, and we take pleasure in welcoming such ladies and gentlemen to Carrizozo.

J. M. Penfield, merchant of Lincoln, was here Tuesday attending to some business matters. Mr. Penfield said that in spite of recent fruit losses in the lower valley, there will still be a moderate yield.

There will be a dance at Lincoln Saturday night for the benefit of the church. E. H. Miranda is in charge of the affair, which is a guarantee of success.

According to president Moss of the Indemnity Insurance Co. of New Orleans, in a letter to his agent W. W. Stadtman, there is no alarm about the flood situation and business is moving along at a normal rate, despite rumors to the contrary.

Complete Uncovering

New Mexican:

"The New Mexican has no brief for or against J. Lino Romero, former county clerk of San Miguel county, sentenced to a year and a half in the penitentiary on a charge of embezzlement, and pardoned by Governor Dillon. But in view of the very ill smell surrounding the whole prosecution of Romero, it appears that Governor Dillon has acted promptly, wisely and courageously, and that the executive pardoning power has seldom been used with a keener sense of fair play, the ends of justice and good public policy.

"Governor Dillon, we believe, has prevented consummation of a very dirty political scheme, in foiling the plans of the Hannett-Delgado-Magee political group to railroad a former henchman of Delgado to the state prison. The great eagerness displayed by members of that outfit to get Romero secluded within the penitentiary walls, without due process of law, and by misuse of the offices of governor, attorney general and state comptroller under the Hannett regime, is sufficient to convince the people of New Mexico that there was something rotten in Denmark, and the action of Governor Dillon in the premises will be generally approved when the facts are generally known. And it is likely that a variety of pertinent facts will become public.

"The shrieks of Hannett and Magee, both of whom have had such a dubious relation to the whole incident, serve to increase public suspicion. The circumstances under which Delgado secured the democratic nomination for lieutenant governor will be recalled. Romero makes the explicit allegation that he got in bad with Delgado because he wouldn't lend himself to packing a jury to acquit Magee of manslaughter. It is also alleged that the Hannett administration suppressed an audit report showing Delgado short in his official accounts, and had another report made which gave him practically a clean bill. This allegation merits serious consideration when it is recalled that Hannett's comptroller publicity whitewashed Delgado of various charges after Delgado had joined forces with the Hannett crowd.

"These are the men who deprived Romero, a former minor cog in the Delgado machine, of his legal 30 day period in which to explain alleged discrepancies in his accounts. He was forced to resign his job in the absence of his attorney from the state. The attorney general, at Hannett's orders, improperly interfered in his trial, to help get him convicted.

A special jury was empaneled to try Romero, every member of which belonged to Delgado's faction. The false story was circulated that Romero had fled to Mexico. He claims that promises of immunity were made him if he would leave the state.

"All of which make it certainly clear to the average citizen that for some reason there was a determined conspiracy to get Romero out of the way. That reason could only be that he knew too much, a fact which doubtless will make him of special value to the new comptroller in looking into official matters in San Miguel county."

Entertained Grand Chapter Officers

Comet Chapter No. 29, O. E. S., was hostess Tuesday evening, having as its guests, Mrs. Laura Z. Becker, Grand Matron and Mrs. Mario Davis, Associate Grand Matron of the Order of Eastern Star of New Mexico.

At 3:30 in the afternoon, the Grand Matron conducted a class in instruction which was well attended and at 6 o'clock a banquet was served in the banquet room at which the Grand Officers were honor guests. The banquet room was beautifully decorated in colors appropriate to the occasion and cut flowers were artistically arranged in becoming manner at the banquet tables.

At 8 o'clock, Mrs. Jeanette Lemon, Worthy Matron of the local Chapter, called to order and the degree work of the order was exemplified in perfect manner. The Grand Lodge officers expressed themselves as being highly gratified with their reception and pleased beyond mention with the workings of our chapter and the interest manifested by the membership in general.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Maude L. Blaney, Marshal of the chapter, in a well-chosen speech, presented the Grand Matron with a beautiful hand painting and the Associate Grand Matron with a bouquet of choice flowers. During the evening, Miss Alene Thompson, guest of the chapter, delighted the big assemblage with several well selected piano solos.

In a letter received at this office from Eli Goodreau, formerly in the employ of the First National Bank here, he states that he has a position in the Roswell Boy Scout office as Secretary. He seems to be well pleased with his position and sends his best regards to his many friends here.

Mrs. Harriett Robertson and niece, Miss Florence Robertson of Scranton, Pa., stopped over here Wednesday and Thursday on a return trip to the east after spending the winter in California. The Robertsons are owners of the famous Helen Rae gold mines at Nogal.

Mrs. Bennett T. Dingwall was a week-end visitor in El Paso, returning Monday morning.

Pretty Things that are Made at Home

"SAYING IT" with ribbon, that is what the mode is doing this season. Not only are ribbon bows trimming everything they can find an excuse to trim, but hand bags, belts, as well as the hats we wear are expressing themselves in terms of ribbon.

A gay striped ribbon belt and purse to match have a wonderfully enlivening effect on a somber tailored dress or jumper frock. To buy "ready made," well, that is one way of doing it, that is, if your allowance is a generous one—but think of the fun and satisfaction one gets out of making these pretty things at home.

In choosing ribbon for an envelope purse with a belt to match, the stylish a belt is added, as the picture shows. The silk square in the picture can be made at home by hemstitching a plain border as shown.

Not rumor but fact says we are due to witness a revival of the upturned brim. Many of the little shapes from Paris are now showing that tendency.

Sometimes in the newer hats the brim rolls up very shyly as if timidly announcing a coming innovation. Then again it adopts a bold course frankly declaring a decided cuff or flare.

The group herewith, which includes both straws and felts, presents an interesting study from the standpoint of thing to do is to ask for the newest bayadere stripes, for striped ribbon is "it" according to latest fashion reports. Of course it is necessary to buy two widths, the narrow for the belt, the wide for the purse. For a few pennies any shoemaker will clamp several brass eyelets in the belt length of ribbon. Then all that remains to do is to attach a suitable buckle and there you have it, a belt as handsome as one could wish. As to the envelope purse, cut a piece of stiff canvas or pasteboard so it will fold in three panels, one for the flap, the other two for the sides of the pocketbook. Insert gussets at each end and line the brim which rolls off the face. Note the handsome leghorn at the top; its upstanding brim gives something "different" from the face-framing ripple brims which for so long a time we have had with us.

The first little hat to the left, which is a crochet visca, gives a naive little roll to its ribbon-bound brim.

One of the latest whims of fashion is to dip the brim at the back, in contrast to a saucy uplift at the front. The nobby felt in the lower left corner illustrates this new movement.

The felt to the right above boasts a cuff directly turned from the face. This is interlaced with narrow felt everything with silk. At a glove-repairing counter one can get a snap fastener put in or one can be sewed on. If the ribbon is not as wide as the length of the panels, place it, concealing the seams under a metal beading such as is used to finish lamp shades.

From the outlook we are going to stage a revival of that vague which wafted at such a fast and furious race some years ago. We refer to the winking of the hand bag of handsome metal brocade ribbon, only this time strips which are in contrasting color. Because the last hat in the group is banded and trimmed with velvet it is very stylish, for hats are showing a considerable use of velvet, ranging from tiny narrow ribbons to very broad softly folded, draped and knotted effects. It is an interesting observation in regard to this shape that while the brim rolls, it also hints at a boomer trend, and "they say" the circle is considering a return engagement.

The Face of Our Mother

IT IS the first face that waited for us, the first face that greeted us, the first face that kissed us.

It is the face that watched our babyhood, that read the language of our smiles and the message of our tears.

It is the face that watches us as we grow. It is the face that never turns away. It is the face that lights at our joys, clouds at our sorrows, smiles at our smiles, weeps at our tears.

It is the face that turns to us though we turn to others.

It is the face that gave its beauty for our life. It is the face on which Constancy has carved its immortal figurement.

It is the face on which Love has written its enduring message.

It is the face which has no equal and no counterpart.

It is the face poets have sung and artists drawn.

It is the face that has made men, and held men, and saved men.

It is the face the infant first remembers and the old man last forgets.

It is the face that time can never touch, for its features are Love.

It is the face that looked for us from Eternity and will look for us in Eternity.

It is the face that has helped us, inspired us, comforted us, forgiven us.

It is the face that gives all and asks nothing. It is the most beautiful face in the world: The face of our Mother!

Mother Love Second Only to That of God

The chief thing which crowns all true motherhood is her unselfish love. A mother's love is eternal, it never dies. It makes no difference how deep in sin her child may go her love never falls. No one perhaps has more accurately described the love of a mother than Kipling in "Mother O' Mine."

If I were hanged on the highest hill
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine:
I know whose love would follow me still,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

If I were drowned in the deepest sea,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
I know whose tears would come down
to me,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

If I were damned of body and soul,
I know whose prayers would make me
whole,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

Only the love of the Infinite God above us surpasses that of a true mother. Irving said, "A mother is the truest friend we have, when trials heavy and sudden fall upon us; when adversity takes the place of prosperity; when friends who rejoice with us in our sunshine desert us, when troubles thicken around us, still will she cling to us and endeavor by her kind precepts and counsels to dissipate the clouds of darkness and cause peace to return to our hearts. God has given to us many beautiful varieties of flowers. He has given us many kinds of precious ore, but He has given us only one mother that we might treasure her the more." The ways of love and tenderness are never out of style; remember this and tell her so—don't wait till after awhile. Let not affection wane with years! It waneeth not for you.

Reason for Mothers

Because He loves the children so God gave them mothers; just to be His holy ministers below, to fit them for eternity.

Because all mothers are His care, God lends the helplessness and grace of childish hands to lead them where their angels always see His face.—Anna B. Bryant.

Symbol of the Day

The white carnation early was adopted as the symbol of day; its whiteness for purity, its form and fragrance representing beauty and love, and its wide field of growth and lasting qualities symbolizing charity and faithfulness—all a true mother's virtues. The white carnation remains the recognized symbol of Mother's Day, though usage has introduced the wearing of the red carnation in tribute to living mothers. Other flowers are worn when carnations are not available.

YOUR MOTHER'S DAY

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

A DAY for your mother—an' mine, as well,
Though she has gone on to th' better land;
But folks 'at's had mothers can always tell
You youngsters a lot you should understand.
You get to my age, an' your mother's day
Will come to mean more than th' rest to you.
You'll think o' your mother, an' smile, an' say
It's Thanksgivin' Day, an' it's Christmas, too.

YOU'LL think o' your mother—o' how she dreamed
That you would be all that she prayed you'd be;
Her patience, her kindness!—she never seemed
Too weary for you to climb on her knee!
She bore with your failin's, joyed in your stren'th,
Th' whole o' her world was wrapped up in you
You'll think o' her day, an' you'll know at len'th,
It's Thanksgivin' Day, an' it's Christmas, too.

A DAY for all mothers—from Mary down,
An' from Mary back to th' start o' time!
In country, an' city, an' little town,
The thought is enough to make man sublime.
So, think o' your mother! Think long an' deep
Of all that she hoped an' believed o' you,
An' then you will know that th' day you keep
Is Thanksgivin' Day, an' is Christmas, too.

Tributes Paid by Greatest of Earth

Mother's Love Recognized by Those Whose Names Shall Live.

NAPOLEON said: "The future of the child is always the work of the mother." And we realize how true this is if we read what some famous sons and daughters have said of their mothers and what influence the mother seemed to have on their careers.

A striking example is that of Victor Hugo and his mother. When he was born his life was despaired of by all except her. She was determined he should live and gave him the name of Victor Marie, and her determination won out, for within six weeks he was well on the way to recovery. Never did she give up hope of Victor Hugo's success in life and one writer tells us that she looked forward with the greatest confidence to the future of her son, holding that "he might with even greater justice than Fouquet adopt as his device the words, "To what may I not rise?" And Victor Hugo was devoted to his mother, but like many mothers she did not live to see his first great success, for she died just one year too soon.

Lincoln's Great Mother.

To all of us the story of Abraham Lincoln and his mother is familiar. We know how, through all her great struggle, she managed to impart what she knew of the Bible and the little education she had to her son. And we know how hard it was for Abraham Lincoln to see his father put his mother into a green pine box and bury her, and how he grieved for three months until his father brought a parson from Kentucky to preach the sermon and to conduct the proper service for the dead.

Frances Willard's devotion to her mother is one of the most beautiful parts of her life. Truly, Frances Willard inherited her greatness of thought and her determination to succeed from her mother. When as a young teacher she wrote: "I thank God for my mother as for no other gift of His bestowing. My nature is so woven into hers that I almost think it would be death for me to have the bond severed and one so much myself gone over the river."

That bond was severed and Frances Willard lived just six years after that mother had "gone over the river." Her last words were: "I've crept in with mother and it is the same beautiful world and the same people; remember that—it's just the same."

Another mother who lived to see her hopes in her child materialized was George Washington's mother. George Washington Park Custis tells us that "the mother held in reserve an authority which never departed from her, not even when her son had become the most illustrious of men."

All who have written of her have accorded her an influence in determining both his character and his career. And on her monument we find the inscription, "Mary, the Mother of Washington."

Stern Man's Devotion.

One of the softening influences (if we can believe there was one) in the life of Oliver Cromwell was his mother. There was a great devotion between these two, and she lived with him until her death at ninety-four years in Whitehall palace. Each day he visited her room, and at her death he stood by her bedside with tears in his eyes. Her last words were, "My dear son, I leave my heart with thee; good night." She is buried in Westminster abbey.

They say that man is mighty,
His governs land and sea,
His wisdom a mighty scepter
O'er lesser powers than he.

But mightier power and stronger,
Man from his throne has buried,
For the hand that rocks the cradle
Is the hand that rules the world.
—Kansas City Times.

OLD-FASHIONED MOTHERS

THE old-fashioned mother, though she has taken to herself some new-fashioned prerogatives, remains—the old-fashioned mother. That is why the world is going forward rather than backward. The world will never go backward so long as the old-fashioned mother remains to guide its destinies—and the old-fashioned mother may be a flapper or the reverse. Motherhood of the right sort is a thing of the heart, not of externals—a quality of the soul, divorced from all superficialities. She still is everywhere—this old-fashioned mother. She doesn't mind the pitying jeers of the unfortunate class of her sisters who fall to see in the home the divinest temple of peace and happiness that has been ordained by God. One has not far to look to discover the splendid type of American mother. She looks to the affairs of her household, and she cherishes her babies. She sings, and her songs are the joy hymns of the mother heart; she cuddles her babies as mothers have done since the beginning; and she is proud of her knitting, drawing "isabel," though she loves them all alike.—Jackson News.

TWO HOMES MADE HAPPY

By Women Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried," is the statement made by Mrs. Goldie Shoup of St. Joseph, Illinois. She declares that after taking the Compound she is in better health than before.

Mrs. J. Storms of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, N. J., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of your medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

These statements were taken from two enthusiastic letters which tell of the help that has been received from using the Vegetable Compound. Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Storms were in a run-down condition which caused them much unhappiness. When women are suffering from lack of strength and from weakness, their own life and that of their family is affected. When they feel well and strong and are able to do their household work easily, happy homes are the result.

Thoughts While Falling

Thoughts came thick and fast to a man in Hove, England, recently when he slipped while standing in a bathtub. While falling, he said afterward, he had the following thoughts: (1) Will I break my neck? (2) Will there be an inquest? (3) Will my wife be put to any inconvenience giving testimony? (4) Will foul play be suspected by a silly jury? Fortunately all his questions were answered in the negative.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Political Ownership

The United States has been progressing steadily in efficiency and prosperity since the period of postwar reconstruction began, and it may be added that efficiency and prosperity usually go hand in hand. One of the striking examples of this progress can be found in our American railway systems.

At the close of the war, these systems were practically wrecked. Government control, tantamount to government ownership during the war had completely disorganized them and it seemed that they had been scrambled almost past the unscrambling point.

But a few years of private control have worked wonders. The railroads are again back to normalcy. Operating conditions have improved, the service to the public is tremendously better and the railroads are making money. What is true of the railroads is true in a lesser degree of the other great public utilities which were placed under government control during and immediately after the war. The change in these other instances may not be so striking but it is visible just the same.

The lesson is one which will not be lost on the American public. The example of our railroads under government control is a complete answer to the radical demand for governmental ownership of railroads, and other public utilities.

They call it government ownership and that is what the radicals advocate theoretically, but as a matter of fact the term 'political control' would be more appropriate. For government control means political control, with all its evils. Everyone knows how railroad costs mounted during the war. With government control permanently established, the costs would grow steadily, and efficiency would vanish.

Instead of the railroads being run efficiently for the benefit of the thousands of stockholders, they would be operated for political benefit. Railroad jobs would become political favors and therefore, multiply like house flies. There would be built up, a great political machine in our public utilities, the like of which has never been known to modern government. Government by bureaucracy, or in other words, office holding would not only be a danger, but a decided menace.

What applies to the railroads, applies to all other kinds of business. One might be an advocate of government ownership of railroads and other utilities today, but by tomorrow, the thing would spread and others more radical than himself would be demanding federal ownership of stores, farms, factories, and so on, until the government became an all absorbing machine, with everybody possessing a political post waiting for it. With the next wind at, we could see the government owned business.

The Lino Romero Case

Las Cruces Citizen:

Without going into the merits or de-merits of the pardon granted Lino Romero, who it is said, made restitution of money mispent by him as clerk of San Miguel county, we believe it is more meritorious than was the pardon given Carl Magee, who is now bellyaching so much about the Romero pardon. If Magee had been in the penitentiary, perhaps Lasseter would be alive today. Magee's criticism of Gov. Dillon will have no weight with any right-thinking person. Magee's criticism of Lino Romero is insincere and stupid. It just shows how fond he is of the Spanish-Americans, whom he has at times said he wanted to help. They have his number, will not be misled by him and it taken him angry. And the fact that the Spanish-Americans know that Cutting is a loyal and sincere friend is simply driving Magee "mad." And Bronson pays as much attention to Carl as does the moon to a braying ass; though I. M. Knott, in the New Mexican, raises hell with Magee.

Santa Rita School Notes

Dr. Shaver came over to visit the St. Rita School on Friday, Apr. 28. He gave each of the children in the primary grades and in the fourth and fifth grades a small sample bar of Palmolive soap and a pamphlet "Oliver and Oliver," showing the process of making Palmolive soap in a very interesting story. It was written in large print, so that the small children could easily read it.

In the high grade room, Dr. Shaver gave an interesting talk on how we should protect our health. We hope Dr. Shaver calls again.

Mary Bell and Candido Martinez are the graduates from the eighth grade of the St. Rita school. Their flower is the sweet pea; their class color is coral and taupe; and the motto they chose was "Cheerfulness is the first step to success." The eighth grade graduates are planning on having class pins.

The pupils of the St. Rita School wish to thank Miss Sandt for her very interesting and instructive classes.

Mother's Cook Book

If we would do something worth while we must first realize that we must be something. We must be able to think, plan, create, not be a mere echo of what some one else has done.—Lloyd.

"Give us, oh, give us the woman who sings at her work."

A FEW DAINITIES

HERE are a few dainties that will appeal to the majority of tastes:

Raisin Puffs.

Beat two eggs, one cupful of sugar creamed with one-half cupful of butter, one cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, mix and add one cupful of raisins. Steam in buttered cups for forty-five minutes. Serve with liquid sauce or cream and sugar.

Beat Custard Pie.

Take two cupfuls of milk, three eggs, reserving the whites of two for the meringue, one tablespoonful of flour mixed, one-third of a cupful of sugar, add nutmeg to flavor and bake in a pastry-lined pan. Cover with the meringue slightly sweetened and brown in a moderate oven. Serve cold.

Ginger Cookies.

Take one cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of molasses, one and one-fourth cupfuls of fat melted, one-half cupful of cold coffee, two tablespoonfuls of ginger, two eggs, one teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Dissolve the soda in the coffee and add salt. Mix with flour as soft as possible and let stand one hour in the ice chest or a cold place to stiffen before rolling and baking.

Chocolate Cake.

Take one cupful of brown sugar, one-fourth cupful of shortening, one-fourth cupful of sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one egg and one and one-fourth cupfuls of flour. Add two squares of chocolate melted in one-half cupful of boiling water the last thing. Bake in layers and put together with orange filling or with plain boiled frosting.

Indian Pudding.

Add three-fourths of a cupful of cornmeal to a quart of boiling milk, cook for twenty minutes, stirring occasionally, add one-half cupful of molasses, a teaspoonful of salt, two eggs well beaten and one cupful of chopped suet. Put into a baking dish, add a quart of cold milk and one-half cupful of raisins. Stir for the first half of the cooking, dredge with flour, which with the suet will make a rich brown crust over the pudding when done.

UP

By SYDNEY J. BURGOYNE

B EWARE of the folks who keep crying "Down" With everything under the sun; Down with power, with wealth and renown, And the man who's nobly won!

It isn't the spirit that "downs" by might, Though the wrong be real, my friend, That is going to win the battle for right, And make injustice end.

It's the kindly spirit of "Up" with "Truth" And "Up" with the friendly hand That will bring to men the hope of youth And spread good cheer through the land.

It's the spirit of "Up" with peace of good-will, With fellowship kind and true, That is bound to make this old world all With joy and success for you!

It's "Up" with the spirit that understands And measures a man's true worth; That is going to bind with golden bands Brother to brother on earth.

It's "Up" with the banner of "Love for All"— The mighty ones and the weak— That will make oppression and evil fall And bring the blessing you seek.

For everyone has a chance to rise, And no man more than the rest; "To live and let live" is just and wise, But to live and help live—is best!

So "Up" is the watchword to which to cling, For every creed and clan; And the spirit of "Up With the Good" will bring The brotherhood of man!

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

AN ITCHING PALM

IF THE palm of your right hand itches you are about to receive money. "And you yourself are much condemned to have an itching palm," says Brutus to Cassius in Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." The superstition is venerable and flourished by the Nile and the Tiber before it saw the Thames or the Hudson. A Greco-Roman amulet of a hand in the British museum has carved on the palm an altar with three cakes, an offering to the gods invoking prosperity.

When we use the expression "an itching palm" as Brutus used it to Cassius, and as we use it with regard to our friends, it means that the person referred to is avaricious and not particular as to how he comes by his money. But when our own palm itches—why, that's another matter: we content ourselves with saying that money is coming to us and ignore the details.

The whole superstition is one of suggestion and association. It originated before the days of paper money, when all money was "hard." A coin taken in the hand presses upon the palm as the hand closes upon it. The sensation produced becomes identified with possession. Any tingling of the palm unconsciously recalls the sensation, thereby arousing the idea of money in hand with which it is identified. The natural wish for money makes it a prognostic. It is the right palm that prophesies because, generally, we use the right hand in accepting money.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

CABLE AND COW

"Sometimes," said Uncle John, "there must be special wonders for Douglas to see because he is a boy—such as the juvenile police where young boys helped policemen in keeping order. Yes, there are certain wonders which are naturally more interesting to him because he is a boy and others more interesting to Dorothy than to him."

"Today I think it's quite fair for us to see a special 'night' for Dorothy's sake."

"I do too," said Douglas enthusiastically, for he was a fine brother and he and Dorothy were each great believers in playing fair.

Now Dorothy was extremely fond of milk. Douglas liked hot chocolate better, but Dorothy really liked milk better than anything—except perhaps lemonade in the summer when it was very hot.

They went to a big creamery where the milk was arriving from the farms. Never had Dorothy seen so many cans of milk.

Then they were shown the various rooms and the machinery which sterilized the bottles and rinsed them, keeping everything absolutely clean.

They saw how the milk was poured into bottles held under a big tank.

"How quickly they work," said Dorothy as she watched bottles filled in an instant. "They almost seem to be filled by magic, but it's really only a city invention for doing a great deal of work in a very short time."

Next they saw the bottles covered and sealed and then they watched them put into boxes ready to be sent out to the people.

"They could never believe in the country," said Dorothy, "that so much trouble is taken over milk. We just get it from the cows and then drink it! That's all! To think of all these people and all this machinery working for the city people's milk!"

"We have to be careful in such a great big place, to have everything clean," said Uncle John, "for it's so different from the country when your own family or your own men look after the milk." But Dorothy was laughing.

"What is it?" asked Douglas. "What would our old Bossy Cow do in a creamery?" Dorothy asked. "She would be frightened if she saw this new and wonderful way of treating her milk."

After they had left the creamery Uncle John said,

"I am going to send a cable."

"That's a kind of an ocean telegram, isn't it Uncle John?" asked Douglas.

"Yes, it's a message which goes under the ocean on great, enormous wires, just as the telegraph wires carry telegrams through the air."

"Another wonder!" exclaimed Douglas. "Truly the cable is a wonder we have with us which I'm sure we don't half appreciate is such a wonder."

The children went with Uncle John and they watched him write a few words just as if he were sending a telegram, but the address was the name of a place on the other side of the ocean!

"The man who invented the cable," said Uncle John, "falled twice before it was proved to be a success."

"There is nothing so hard as to be made fun of, and to feel a failure, I should think," said Douglas.

"The people told the inventor that he was absurd," Uncle John continued. "They said that a cable could not be put under the ocean so that messages could be sent to friends over the seas. And when he failed, how they did laugh!"

"What was his name?" asked Douglas.

"His name," answered Uncle John, "was Cyrus West Field. He tried different experiments, and no one thought that the cable could be made to keep out the water."

"And doesn't the water ever get through?" asked Dorothy.

"No," said Uncle John, "the great wires are protected from the ocean so that even all the water that is about cannot touch the messages now."

The children watched, Uncle John send another message, and a man explained the wonders of the cable to them as they looked on.

"To think that every day there are new wonders," said Douglas.

"Well," said Uncle John, "this one was a special wonder for you to hear about. It has been perfect for fifty years and more."

"By that I mean that the cable has been practical and perfect since over fifty years ago."

Old Pictures May Be Work of Egyptians

According to a report from South Africa, two men searching for cattle in Rhodesia found some queer-looking pictures painted in a shallow cave under a boulder. They sent photographs of the pictures to Dr. S. P. Impey, a South African authority on rock paintings, who pronounced them specimens of Egyptian art. "There are hundreds of crude bushman paintings in caves all over South Africa," declared Doctor Impey, "but these are clearly of a different technique from anything discovered before. There are 11 figures, apparently minarets, playing stringed instruments unknown to bushmen. In the cave is a large rock where the artist must have rested, using a long brush to reach the roof. The painted figures wear Egyptian costumes, while bushmen's figures are always unclothed."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Prominent Pueblo Man Quickly Restored to Health

Well-known Contractor a Victim of Nervous Indigestion, Loss of Sleep and Dizziness. Strength Restored. Praises Tanlac

Pioneer blood flows in the veins of Frank Good, a prominent Pueblo, Colo., contractor. But even his brawn, muscle and splendid health broke under a strain. "Flu" left its mark and threatened his life.

"I had almost given up hope of ever getting well," said Mr. Good, "when I began taking Tanlac. My strength had vanished, sapped by the poisons that raged through my system eating away brain, undermining health and leaving me a human wreck. My arms and legs were so weak they were almost useless. When I walked dizzy spells made me reel. My stomach was so upset that I couldn't eat without bloating and suffering from tormenting indigestion."

"I followed the advice of a friend and began taking Tanlac. I recommend it to anyone ailing."

"This tonic worked wonders. Pain vanished. Quickly my old strength returned. I began to have a great appetite and ate everything without a sign of pain. Tanlac certainly put me on my feet, made me stronger, gave me better health than I have had in years."

Tanlac often banishes pain that ravages health and builds up strength. It helps free the system of poison caused by constipation and sluggish liver. It is nature's own remedy made from roots, herbs and herbs according to the Tanlac formula.

Banish sickness from your life, enjoy the benefits of strength and golden health. Begin taking Tanlac. The first bottle often brings surprising results. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today!

We will have eight in our graduating class and two will be in the higher branches of study. We think that is good and other schools cannot beat it.

The dryness of the season, so far, is very discouraging to the farmers, especially. Some suggest that we send a donation to the flood sufferers, while others think that if they turn some of the water, they are bothered with, into New Mexico, we could donate with a better relish.
