Word was received at this office of the marriage of Alma Roberts, formerly a clerk at the local station, to C. A. Evans, cafe owner of Tucumcari. The happy couple are now on a 15-day honeymoon trip to Yellowstone Park.

Prince, grandson of the late Bradford Prince of Santa Fe. The young man is enrolled at the Military Institute at Roswell, at which place he will spend the coming five years. Mrs. Barto will make frequent trips between Santa Fe and Carrizozo during the vacation period.

Of Interest to Veterans

In view of the large number of inquiries which are being received from veterans concerning the effect upon their claims, for compensation of the provisions of Section 206 of the World War Veterans Act, General Frank T. Hines, Director of U. S. Veterans Bureau made a further announcement this morning explaining in more detail the limitations imposed by this portion of the Act.

The law provides that satisfactory evidence to show service connection of disabilities not officially noted during service or at the time of separation therefrom must have been furnished to the Bureau by June 7, 1927.

There remains, nevertheless, two important classes of cases excepted from this requirement; that is, those in which Section 200 of the Act affords presumptive service connection, and cases where the disability, to the extent of 10 per cent or more, arose within one year after discharge from the service. Where there is official record of injury or disease during service, Section 206 provides that compensation shall be payable for death or disability whenever occurring, proximately resulting from the injury.

Any veteran in doubt as to the effect of this legislation upon his right to compensation should apply to the nearest Regional Office. In view of the rather technical points involved, no veteran should conclude that his rights are barred without making specific inquiry as to the effect of the law upon his case.

All Ready

Chamber of Commerce Doings

The Board of Directors of the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce met on the 14th and disposed of such business as had accumulated since the last meeting.

It was decided to suspend the regular meetings of the Chamber of Commerce during the summer months. The board of directors will have regular meetings to dispose of any business that comes up. The last meeting was on May 25, and the next will be on Sept. 22.

E. M. Brickley was appointed a committee to prepare the copy for Carrizozo's space in the folder issued by the Southern New Mexico Association.

Rev. Thos. V. Ludlow was appointed a committee to take charge of arranging the copy for the Lincoln County Folder in which Corona, White Oaks, Nogal, Capitan, Hondo, Picacho and Glencoe will have a page.

Arrangements to raise $200 in the next six months for the Community Hall was discussed. T. E. Kelley and G. T. McQuillen reported that they would want more time in their campaign for dues and new members.

Rev. Linebaugh, Presiding Elder of the El Paso Conference of the M. E. Church South and Rev. Fred Foust, Supt. of religious education for the state of New Mexico, of the same church, appeared to look over the White Oaks situation for a summer engagement. They were taken to White Oaks by Mr. Paul Mayer, Dr. Paden and Rev. Ludlow also in the party. They expressed themselves highly pleased with the situation at White Oaks.

In the event that White Oaks is selected it will be a very good thing for that town and county. Many people will build homes there for use during the summer, but not all will be actively engaged in church work. Many will be lay members of the church who are folks of means and are looking for summer locations for their families. If the matter develops as all think it will, we will see considerable activity around the old town of White Oaks.

Dr. F. H. Johnson returned Sunday morning from Chicago, where for the past three weeks he had been taking a post-graduate in surgery. The Doctor said that during his stay of three weeks at the Windy City, he saw the sun but a few times. He was glad to get back to New Mexico Sunshine.

Million Dollar Rainfall

The long drouth has been broken and during the past week, rain has fallen in abundance all over the state. The Estancia Valley and the Gran Quivira regions where the bean growers were so disheartened, have been blessed with this visitation. Some had already left these places, but word has been received from many to the effect that they are coming back since the rain.

There is still plenty of time to raise a bumper bean crop, even in places where the drouth had entirely killed the growth. New crops can be planted, leaving plenty of time to mature before frost. On the whole, the outlook is decidedly encouraging for that industry since the soaking rain.

Since the moisture fell, grass has grown to the height of two inches, according to incoming ranchmen who wear broad smiles as they pay us their visits.

Mrs. Henry Lutz, daughters Mrs. O. W. Bamberger, Belle Lutz and grandson Billy Bamberger are enjoying an outing on the Beato this week.

Selwood of Sleepy Cat

SOUTH-WEST NEWS NOTES

CHAPTER X

Pardaloe Turns Diplomat.
General Roper waited only till he was able to travel to go west with his location engineers. He said very little to Wentworth before he started; only that when he came back he would have a talk with Selwood.

Wentworth himself spent the week between Sleepy Cat and Thief River, disturbed only and surprised by Selwood's resignation as superintendent of the freighting line. It required all of Wentworth's and Carpy's powers of persuasion to induce him to hold on till an acceptable successor could be found. Neither Doctor Carpy, despite his blunt common sense, nor Wentworth, the long-headed master of Frontier transportation, was capable of analyzing the mystery of the change that had come over Selwood. They wrongly surmised that his settled moodiness was due to the fresh outbreak of his grievance against his grandfather; had they been as close to Selwood as Bill Pardaloe was, and as good an observer, they would have known that less than a hundred pounds of Sleepy Cat femininity had wrecked his good nature, his optimism, and his peace of mind.

When they saw him finish, with libations of wine, the recital of his family wrongs, they did not realize that he would likewise have been glad to draw all recollection of the last scene he ever expected to have with Christie Fyler. Bill Pardaloe, watching Selwood unobserved, knew better than to ask questions, but he himself had a soft spot in his heart for Christie, and though his duties no longer took him to the store, where Fyler's business was dwindling, Bill made it a point to drop around at times and see what he could see and hear what he could hear.

He always lounged into the store in the same manner—with the fingers of one long, ungainly hand resting on the hilt of his bowie knife, stuck at his hip, and with his arms free for action. Invariably, too, with his head poked inquiringly forward—just set his long nose well ahead of his centre of gravity, with the corners of his mouth pulled down to suit his pessimistic mood, and with his small, piercing eyes wide open with suspicious gloom.

Such a man would hardly be expected to make much of a hit with Christie Fyler. Yet Bill Pardaloe came to stand higher in her favor than any frontiersman in Sleepy Cat. Henceforth his grudgingness, his great strength inspired respect, and Christie, with a woman's instinct bidden on a girl's heart, liked him. A fortnight had gone by since Christie dismissed Selwood, when Pardaloe, puzzled by the gambler's behavior and looking for some explanation, dropped in on Christie.

his pocket, "what's a matter 'tween you and John Selwood?" The shock to Christie was perfectly hidden in her astonishment. She opened her eyes as if inviting the most rigorous inspection. "Why, nothing! Why do you ask that? At least," she went on—and then a little hateful telltale color rose, "nothing that I know of—why, Bill?"

Pardaloe, having discharged his fowling piece, chewed his fresh morsel of tobacco into place, looking no longer at Christie but at the floor somewhat to one side of her, his mouth drawn down to a gloomy curve. "He don't come here no more," he observed at length.

Christie tossed her head. "Well, he's a very busy man, and, of course, has lots of friends besides us—" Pardaloe gaped steadily ahead. "Are you his friend?" he asked with nasal skepticism.

She professed astonishment. "Why, yes, I hope so, Bill"—Christie raised her voice—"what are you asking all these questions for?" Then a panic seized her, "What do you mean, Bill? Is Selwood hurt?"

For an instant the book of her woman's heart lay open before the big fellow—her look of sudden, deadly fear. Bill had a pretty good idea now. He shook his head to her question. "No, no. Nothing like that at all, Christie. But what's wrong 'tween you and John?"

Pardaloe was treading on thin ice for a mule boss; and among the dangers he had not counted on was the reaction in a woman's feelings after she has betrayed her secret.

Calabass comes to town for a spree. Tonight they'll all get in; but they won't many get out. They're going to splash with every blackleg and dive-keeper, bad man and gambler in this town within the next twenty-four hours—that's exactly what's coming.

Selwood bent a piercing look on his informant. "Does that include me, Doc?"

"There's no objection to the way you run your place, John—if yours was the only place or the other places were like yours. And you'll have friends among the Vigilantes, anyway. But when the thing starts there won't be no fine lines drawn, John; you know that," continued the doctor, trying to convey his warning inoffensively.

"I don't care much about her father—he's no protection to her; but he's her father, and no harm must come to him in this mix-up, either."

Selwood was not a man to let his anger override his common sense for long. Most of all, the helpless condition of Tracy, like a relentless curb on a willful horse, forced him to consider what must be done to save him from the mob fury. None knew better than Selwood what would be let loose when the fight started.

Christie had been in the habit for some time of visiting Tracy in the sick-tent and taking him such little delicacies as her ingenuity could supply. She realized how close he was to Selwood, and whoever was a trusted friend of Selwood's Christie, somehow, liked.

Pardaloe, feeling that help was needed in his efforts to straighten out the differences that kept Selwood and Christie apart, had taken Tracy into his confidence, and the old man was ready to do what he could to help.

"On this Saturday afternoon he held Christie for a little chat, and as soon as he could introduced the delicate subject that Pardaloe had already broached to her.

"Bill Pardaloe," he went on, continuing his remarks, "said you was afraid of Selwood because you thought he was a gambler."

Christie's eyes fell—she would not comment on it; besides, Tracy himself was a gambler. "Mr. Pardaloe," she said impatiently, "says a great many things about matters that don't concern him—or anybody else, for that matter. How is your back today, Mr. Tracy?"

Tracy was not so easily thrown off. He said what he wanted to say. "I don't call Selwood a gambler—and I've been trying long enough to make him one. He ain't built for the business. The ice is too thin around his heart. Any old woman can come along to him with a tale of woe and he'll upset the whole darn town over it. He's filled in for me, at my place up on the hill," explained Tracy defensively. "That's about all."

Selwood, knowing nothing of the well-meant if misdirected activities of his two crude but staunch defenders, started for the horse barn after Carpy's talk, and for Tracy's tent, reflecting that with Tracy himself he should have a delicate job on his hands; to induce the old man to move at all would be a triumph. He stopped at the warehouse first to tell the wagon boss, briefly, what he had heard and what to do.

"If things should get going we'll have our hands full looking after company property."

"You'll be going with Dave?"

"I'll be back sometime in the night," returned Selwood, evasively. "You've nothing to fear, McAlpin. If things start, get the hostlers together—you've got guns and ammunition."

McAlpin, as Selwood walked away, flung one question after him. Just the question Selwood did not want to hear: "What'll you be doing, John?"

Selwood chopped him off. "Whatever's to be done!" he answered, snappishly.

McAlpin scratched his head as he studied the retreating footprints of his taciturn boss; he had ventured one question. But he had forty questions that were burning the tip of his tongue.

Who would lead the Vigilantes; how far they intended to go in their clean-up; when they meant to strike first and where; whether they could handle Starbuck and Atkins and their friends—for whose prowess McAlpin had a sneaking and canny respect; just where Selwood would come in in the fight; what measures he would take for his own safety—and lastly, what was to become of the big place on the hill that had cost so much money—these queries the Scotsman revolved rapidly in his mind, until Selwood, treading the path lightly and with the briskness of unreckoning manhood, turned the first corner and disappeared from view. But fate, greatest of all gamblers, quite understood how to upset a police indifferent to the threats of men; just as Selwood turned the corner it presented to him, almost threw into his arms—rounding the corner from the other way and walking as briskly as he was—Christie Fyler.

She started visibly—as he did invariably. Then in the suddenness of the encounter Selwood—never quick to adjust himself to meeting the woman whose mere glance could upset him—stiffly, almost ostentatiously, stepped aside, touched his hat, and hurried on a little faster. But after that, with his heart beating harder, he began to think and to murmur and to question himself and, of course, to regret.

Their eyes, in this sudden and unexpected way, had met. It was only an instant, but the picture came back to him now of a sad expression in Christie's eyes—and, at least, until she woke up and realized that she had run into Selwood, and then her eyes had quickly dropped; she had passed on.

It was his fault, he told himself. He had not even hesitated—he might have given her time to speak. He cursed his stiffness and contemptible pride for not having given her even an opportunity at such a time—a time pregnant with threatening possibilities for them both as well as for Sleepy Cat. He longed for a chance to meet her over again; still, his vanity would not allow him to turn back. So—while Christie was reproaching herself for not making the quick advance she wanted to make and now felt it had been her place to make when she saw the only man's face in the world that meant anything to her—both unhappy, passed on, little reckoning of when and where they should meet again.

Early Marriage Not Best for Happiness

The ideal age for marriage is twenty-nine years for the groom and twenty-four for the bride, according to a report in the Journal of Social Hygiene. Deviations of four years or either side for the groom and of two years for the bride make little difference, but marriage in which either party is nineteen years or younger are from ten to a hundred times as risky as at the ideal age.

These conclusions were reached from a study of 1,000 impartially selected cases from the domestic relations court of Philadelphia. The two most plausible explanations for the findings are either that premature or delayed marriage is a symptom of permanent character traits that are unfavorable to success in family life, or that the boy or girl under twenty-one has not a sufficiently broad experience to select a mate with whom a successful home can be established. If immaturity rather than permanent instability is the cause, postponement of marriage and educational guidance may do much to eliminate domestic disaster.

Good Money in Whaling

The Vastfjord district of Norway, where many of the old Vikings had their homes, is still the recruiting region for one of the most romantic callings of modern times—whale hunting. Leaving their small farms in the care of wives and children, the men set out for north Georgia and the Ross sea in September and return at the beginning of the following summer. The Norwegian whale-hunting fleet numbers about 30 ships and employs 4,000 men.

Sitting Parrot's Tongue

It is a widespread superstition that to enable a parrot to talk (in imitation of human speech) it is necessary to split the tongue, says Alexander Wetmore in the Scientific Magazine. This, however, has no foundation in fact, and when practiced only inflicts an unnecessary cruelty. Birds make sounds in a little organ known as the syrinx at the lower end of the trachea, or windpipe, and as the tongue has little to do with the process, splitting it has no connection whatever with the ability to imitate sounds.

Finest Athletes Come From Cold Countries

The most athletic countries are those with the lowest average temperature, according to computations made by Dr. Guillermo Hosmark of the Argentine weather bureau on the basis of performances at the last two Olympic games in Antwerp and Paris. Twenty-six countries were represented and the number of inhabitants of each were divided by the number of points gained, thus giving the number of thousands of inhabitants per point. The countries were then ranged in the resulting order.

When brought into relation with the average annual temperature it appeared that a high average athletic ability and a low average temperature go together. The figures of the two competitions taken separately and together, give approximately the same result. In each case Norway, Finland and Sweden head the list in the order named, Great Britain stands twelfth; Spain, Czechoslovakia, Japan and Egypt are among those at the bottom of the list.

Bigger Babies

In a letter to the Journal of the American Medical Association, a New York clothing manufacturer asserts that his company has been forced to increase the size of the dresses for one, two and three-year-old children. Persistent complaints that the necks of the dresses were too small have come to him during the past year for the first time in thirty years' experience. Most of the complaints came from California. This seems to show that the size of American babies is increasing. Californians may now point to another benefit of their glorious climate.

Cat Adopts Skunks

A mother cat with four kittens came to the farm of F. A. Jones at Brookfield, Mo., but Jones, having other ideas on the subject, consigned the four kittens to the creek. The next day his small son informed him that the kittens were safe and sound. Recalling the traditional nine lives, Jones investigated and found that the cat had acquired four other kittens without doubt, but instead of their being some other feline offspring they were of the genus mephitis, or common American skunk.—Indianapolis News.

Corporation Runs Farms

One Boston corporation is running 20 farms in Iowa bought at sacrifice prices, says Copper's Weekly. Babson, the staff-fancier, believes that during the next few years a number of such corporations will buy up at bargain prices the best of the farms now for sale. Several concerns have been organized for this purpose. The farming of the future, Babson believes, may be done by big business corporations the same as in other branches of industry.

Pays Way With Milk

The most ingenious way of working one's way through college, we believe, is demonstrated by a senior in a West coast university. He entered as a freshman accompanied by a cow. He started a milk route at once, and now owns three cows and does a flourishing business.—The Outlook.

FARMER WOMAN IN OKLAHOMA

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a household of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her falling health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and timid. This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 287, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Other women who have to work hard and keep things going may find the road to better health as Mrs. Short did, through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Ask your neighbor.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

The Contrast

In making comparisons between the feat of Col. Charles Lindbergh and that of Chamberlin and Levine, it is not the intention of this article to belittle the last-named gentlemen's efforts, but it will not require a Senate investigation to see the vast difference between the trend of expressions given out by those mentioned, to say nothing of the concerns and employments after their arrivals, and up to the present time.

When the start was to be made, Lindbergh stood back, in order to give the older airmen and those longer in the service the first chance to make the dash, and not only after repeated so-called attempts were made which would invariably end in quibblings, etc., and seeing that, as it generally happens, all were waiting for "George to do it," did he set out to do what was thought to be, impossible. After his manager informed him that they were not to make the trial, he stepped from his automobile, gave the sky a careful glance, and said "Let's Go!" The remainder we all know.

On and after his arrival in France, where jumping so suddenly from what one might call obscurity into international prominence—where temptations to victors await on every hand, and hero praise would have been the undoing of many young men, Lindbergh withstood temptations of all kinds, including the advances of alluring Paris "Mamas"—abstained from the use of sparkling champagne, retired early instead of wrecking his young constitution with midnight revelry, and in every way acquitted himself in a proper manner to make his home country proud of him.

In the midst of all this homage paid him, he wondered if he was worthy of it. When he heard of others to follow where he had lead, he said: "Good, I hope they will make it!"

He conducted himself in the same cool-headed manner after reaching home, where the greatest ovation ever accorded a single individual awaited him. Nothing he has done could in the least way be criticized. The little mother went about her regular duties without fainting, and with the calm assurance that her boy would be successful.

Chamberlin and Levine, whipped into greedy jealousy by the success of the young aviator, followed over the steamship route, where Lindbergh avoided it, verified the above statement by the first remark made after they landed in Germany: "We beat Lindbergh!" Then, in their associations with dignitaries at receptions, mention was made in press dispatches of beer, rollickings and revelries, all of which have appeared in striking contrast to Lindbergh's actions. After the young hero hopped off, the prize offered by the Chamber of Commerce of Jersey City

LUNCH BOX APPETIZERS
By CAROLINE B. KING
Culinary expert and lecturer on household science.

Biscuit Chicken Sandwiches

Make baking powder biscuits cutting them rather larger than usual, bake in a hot oven. Split, butter and spread with chopped chicken, mixed with a very little white sauce well seasoned. Put together in sandwich fashion and wrap when cool in paraffin paper. Ham or any preferred meat may be used in place of chicken.

Prune Rice Puddings

Wash a tablespoonful of rice and cover with a quart of milk, place in a moderate oven, in half an hour add one-half cupful sugar, one-half teaspoonful vanilla, and one-half teaspoonful salt. Stir and cook slowly for an hour then add a cupful of prunes cooked in the usual manner, then drain, pit, and cut in small pieces. Continue baking one hour longer. For the lunch box fill paper drinking cups with the pudding when cold, sift a little powdered sugar over the top, and cover with paraffin paper.

Peanut Butter and Lettuce Sandwiches

Spread thinly sliced whole wheat or graham bread lightly with peanut butter, and arrange lettuce leaves, washed and carefully dried, on half the slices. Put together sandwich fashion, press lightly and wrap in paraffin paper.

Stuffed Eggs

Hard cook the eggs, and drop them in cold water, remove shells, and cut in halves lengthwise. Take out the yolks and chop fine, adding any cold ham or bacon that may be at hand. Season with salt and pepper, and moisten with a little mayonnaise. Fill the cavities in the eggs, and put the halves together, wrap in paraffin paper, twisting the ends slightly to hold firmly.

Pickled Prunes

Wash and soak one pound of prunes in a quart of cold water, then place over the fire in the same water, adding the juice of a lemon and the thinly pared rind; also six cloves and a small piece of stick cinnamon. Simmer one hour, then add a cupful of sugar and one-fourth cupful of vinegar. Continue to cook for fifteen minutes longer. Remove the spices when the prunes are done.

Brown Sugar Cookies

Cream a cupful of butter with two cupfuls of brown sugar, add a teaspoonful of vanilla, two well beaten eggs, one-third cup of milk in which three-fourths tea spoonful of soda is dissolved, and add gradually three cupfuls of flour. Drop by spoonfuls on littered tin, bake in a moderate oven. A cup of chopped black walnuts or other nutmeats may be added to this recipe for variety.

In Honor of Mrs. Louise H. Coe

The party will board a boat at Lewiston, New York and will visit the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec and other places of interest on the St. Lawrence river. After the boat trip, Mrs. Coe will visit in Washington, D. C. and Richmond, Virginia. On July 11 she will go to New York to enter Columbia University for the summer term. On her return to New Mexico she will visit relatives in Louisville, Ky. and at Kansas City.

given to Chamberlin when he arrived on the other side. No sooner had Lindbergh sailed on his homeward trip, Chamberlin started from this side, which action told in no uncertain measure that this was done to take away from the young hero, that which rightfully belonged to him—honor and credit. Mrs. Levine fainted; Mrs. Lindbergh taught school, Lindbergh avoided reckless action and preserved coolness; the others showed their greedy expectancy of winning praise above him, but the homage paid him on and after his home-coming, has intensified the glory justly due him, rather than depriving him of one iota for his darling, but his modest, manly conduct abroad which reflected glory on his country, and left his country's flag unscathed and avoiding the sting of criticism.

Lindbergh Is on Way Home - Flood Control Conference in Chicago.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

CAPTAIN LINDBERGH is on his way home, due to receive a welcome that will throw into the shade even the remarkable ovations given him in Paris, Brussels and London. Sailing from Cherbourg, he is a passenger on the United States cruiser Memphis at the express invitation of President Coolidge and will go direct to Washington to be the President's guest and to receive the Distinguished Flying Cross and to be promoted, presumably to the rank of colonel. The young aviator's mother was invited to visit in the temporary White House at the same time. The President appointed Secretary of War Davis, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Secretary of State Kellogg, and Secretary of Commerce Hoover a cabinet committee in charge of the welcoming arrangements, but details were turned over to the District of Columbia commissioners.

One of the plans already agreed upon includes the gathering of the largest group of aircraft ever assembled to greet a distinguished visitor to Washington, which will meet the Memphis at a point about fifty miles at sea and convey the ship to Washington. As the cruiser enters Chesapeake Bay the escort will be joined by nine navy torpedo, bombing, and scouting planes, and further up the Potomac more than a score of army planes from Langley Field, Va., as well as seaplanes from Hampton Roads and the naval air station, will be added.

After a day in Washington, Lindbergh will fly to Staten Island and put himself in the hands of the New Yorkers, who have planned a tremendous reception. The international political importance attached to Lindbergh's flight was responsible in part for his speedy return. He earnestly desired to visit a lot of countries in Europe, feeling that it might be a long time before he got over there again. But it became evident that the nations he did not visit would feel slighted, and he was persuaded to give up his plans. Besides, President Coolidge was desirous of receiving the air hero before leaving for his vacation in the Black Hills of South Dakota, his departure for that place being scheduled for June 13.

Lindbergh flew from Paris to Brussels, where he was received in state by King Albert, who made him a Chevalier of the Royal Order of Leopold. Then he flew over to Croydon, England, where a mob of hundreds of thousands welcomed him so vigorously that he and his plane barely escaped serious damage. In London Ambassador Houghton presented him to King George and other notables and the king awarded him the air force cross. He attended various banquets and other functions and went to the Derby as the guest of Lord Londale. Meanwhile his plane was being dismantled for shipment to America, so he borrowed a plane and flew back to Paris to say farewell to the French people and to Ambassador Herrick, whose tactful guidance meant so much to the aviator during his stay in France.

Five leading American engineering societies last week gave to Lindbergh, Orville Wright and his late brother, Wilbur Wright, the Washington award for outstanding engineering accomplishment. Lindbergh's plane was equipped with a Wright motor.

THOUSANDS of prominent men, answering the call of the mayors of Chicago, New Orleans and St. Louis, gathered in Chicago to discuss the great Mississippi valley floods and to try to devise methods of preventing the recurrence of the disaster. The participants in the conference included United States senators and congressmen, governors, mayors and other officials, business men of all vocation, engineers and labor leaders. Senator Fat Harrison of Mississippi as chairman of the organization committee called the assemblage to order and Secretary of War Davis delivered a message from President Coolidge. Among the other speakers were Secretary of Labor J. J. Davis, Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers; Senator W. L. Jones and Representative Frank R. Jones, chairman of the congressional flood control committee, and Speaker Nicholas Longworth. Before leaving Washington for Chicago, Mr. Longworth had a conference with President Coolidge and said afterward that flood control legislation, together with tax reduction would be given the right of way by the House when congress meets in December.

Conditions in the flood area improved slowly, but the "sugar bowl" parishes of Louisiana were being converted into a huge lake as the blanket of water moved gradually to the gulf outlet.

MARSHAL CHANG TSO-LIN's northern Chinese armies met with great defeats in Honan province, through the forces of both the Han-kow and Nanjing factions of the Nationalists advancing in the campaign against Peking. The northern forces retreated to the north of the Yellow river and Chang prepared for desperate resistance at Paotingfu and Tschow. The peril of foreigners in the Peking area was so imminent that nearly two thousand American marines were sent there from Shanghai and about as many more were en route there from the Philippines. This will make a force of more than 4,000 Americans in Peking and Tientsin. The British and Japanese also were sending large numbers of troops there, together with many planes to patrol the railway between the two cities. Japan also landed considerable forces at Tientsin, which action provoked both the northern and the Nationalist authorities.

The diplomatic corps in Peking determined on plans for the defense of the legation quarter in the event of a crisis, but dispatches from Washington say President Coolidge decided that if disorders occurred Minister MacMurray and the American legation should be moved to Tientsin or possibly Shanghai, the navy believing it will be much easier to defend Americans at those points than at Peking. Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, who has been traveling in China, was caught in the disorders resulting from the rout of Chang's troops in Honan. He escaped unhurt but he and his party were robbed of all their valuables.

SOVIET RUSSIA, extremely sore over the break with Great Britain, is determined to keep the Chinese situation as bad as it can. The executive committee of the Third International decided to make a more intensive campaign in support of the Chinese revolution and to appeal to the workers of the world to assist soviet Russia to sabotage other nations in the coming "inevitable war."

Alexis Rykov, president of this council of people's commissars, addressing a plenary session of the Moscow soviet, declared that the British rupture with Russia was a prelude to war. The international situation therefore, was threatened with grave complications. The British government, he asserted, wished to improve its position by provoking war, in which it hoped to play a leading part, leaving "the dirty part of the work" to other peoples, who, being thereby weakened, would be subordinated to Great Britain. To this danger the soviet union opposed a steady policy of peace.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE in his Memorial day address at Arlington told his audience that the United States must maintain armed forces sufficient to protect it from attacks, or expose itself to aggression and destruction. He added in this warning a pledge of his leadership in an effort to end war through international agreements. But while he spoke of the country's desire to discard the element of force and deal with other powers on the basis of understanding and good will, he cautioned that "we could no more dispense with our military forces than we could dispense with our police forces."

Ambassador Herrick, speaking in France, created something of a sensation by making a strong attack on soviet Russia for its attempts to undermine other governments.

FIFTEEN balloons started from Akron, Ohio, in the annual circumnavigation race, and the three winners all landed in Maine. W. T. Van Orman with the Goodyear entry won first place with 727 miles; E. J. Hill with the Detroit Flying club's balloon was second with 665 miles, and Capt. W. W. Kepner, pilot of the U. S. Army No. 3, took third place with 602 miles to his credit. Not an accident of any sort marred the event.

RIOUS mobs in Tampa, Fla., made three determined attacks on the jail with the intention of lynching a prisoner who had confessed to murdering five members of a family. The crowds were repulsed first by the police and then by members of the National Guard; the soldiers were forced to fire on the attackers and killed four persons.

GOVERNOR FULLER of Massachusetts, who is studying the Sacco-Vanzetti case, has appointed an advisory committee to aid him in determining his course in that puzzling matter. Its members are President Abbott Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, President Samuel W. Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Judge Robert Grant.

CHARLES P. TAFT, publisher of the Cincinnati Times-Star, and Mrs. Taft have given their valuable art collection, their residence and $1,000,000 to the people of Cincinnati. Announcement of the gift, made at a meeting of the Cincinnati Institute of Fine Arts, said it was given for the advancement of "the artistic and musical education and enjoyment of the people of Cincinnati."

EGYPT is in danger of losing her independence again. The government, under the influence of the Wafd nationalists, a wealthy Moslem organization, announced plans to reorganize the army without consulting the British and to refuse credits for the British aid. The British government sent a prompt warning against such action, accompanied by threats and reinforced the latter by dispatching three battleships to Alexandria and Port Said. Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, explained to the house of commons that if the Wafd politicians got control of the army it would become a potential hostile force and would complicate Great Britain's task of defending the Suez canal.

BELGIUM and Italy are on the verge of a quarrel, the trouble starting with the attitude of the Belgian foreign minister, Vandervelde, who is a Socialist, toward Fascism. His attacks were brought on by Italy's demand that Belgium expel Italian political refugees. Mussolini recalled the Italian ambassador, Marquis Cambiaso, leaving the embassy to a charge d'affaires indefinitely. Vandervelde refused to modify his attitude and was supported by the Socialist deputies.

OPENING of the sale of liquor in Ontario province under government control attracted crowds of thirty Americans to Windsor and Toronto, and they, together with equally thirsty Canadians, almost mobbed the liquor stores. The demand for bottled booze and for the permits without which it could not be purchased was so great that some places had to close until more supplies could be obtained.

PRIMO DE RIVERA, premier-dictator of Spain, has called a national assembly to meet September 13 for the purpose of drafting a new constitution and a new electoral law giving universal suffrage and absolute freedom of the ballot.

GEORGE SOUDERS of Lafayette won the 500-mile automobile race at Indianapolis on Memorial day, driving his little Duesenberg car at an average speed of 27.54 miles an hour and going the whole route without relief.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE's selection of the Black hills as his vacation place gave great joy to South Dakota. He will occupy the state game lodge near Rapid City, and the executive offices will be established in the new engineering building of the State School of Mines in Rapid City.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A PIG'S SQUEALING

This story shows how a pig's squealing, by the way, did once do a great deal of good.

Once there lived an old woman all alone with her pig, and she had one great fault. She was very careless about fire and never cared where she threw or laid her matches after she had lighted her fire. She made all manner of fun of the people who thought she was careless. She was on her way to bed and before getting into bed lighted a fire in a little stove. Instead of throwing her match into the fire she threw it into the waste paper basket.

The waste paper basket was full of scraps of paper, and slowly the match began to smolder. The old woman meantime went sound asleep. Now the pig had a basket to sleep in by the old woman's bed. He smelt the smoke and thought it was a very queer smell. But as the old woman seemed to be sleeping so quietly he thought he would not disturb her just to find out what the queer burning smell meant.

Suddenly it burst into flames. Then the pig set up the noisiest, most constant squealing you ever heard. The neighbors were all awakened by it, and, seeing what the trouble was, the fire department was called right out. The old woman was saved, but if it had not been for the pig's squealing, which was so easily heard, she would have burned to death.

After that she was pretty careful where she threw her matches, and she was more devoted to her pig than ever before.

Quarantined!

Millions of cockroaches already exterminated! Beware!

THERE'S PANIC in Bagville! Cockroaches are dying by the thousands!

Use Peterman's Roach Food in your house. Exterminate every roach.

Don't fight roaches with a spray. You must have a powder. Peterman's is the right powder.

It enters roaches from their hiding places. They carry it back on their legs and bodies to their nests behind baseboards, under floors where no spray could possibly reach.

Every tickle roach, the young, every egg in the entire colony is exterminated. No odor. Nothing is left but a little dry dust. Use Peterman's.

Peterman's Roach Food now. Keep them out. Don't let them get a start.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

- PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD exterminates roaches.
- PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD exterminates ants.
- FLYKILLER kills flies and mosquitoes.
- PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY exterminates bedbugs.
- PETERMAN'S BROWN FOOD prevents roach eggs.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

WOMEN AS SHOPPERS

IT WOULD be almost possible to prove the superiority of the feminine intelligence over the masculine by the fact that all women and very few men know how to shop.

The average male person is a pathetic creature in a department store. He is lost and bewildered. He does not know his own mind, and so does not know what he wants.

As a consequence he usually takes what is offered to him. His main object is to get the ordeal over and done with so that he may find himself once more out on the sidewalk in the security of the street.

This masculine helplessness as compared with feminine resourcefulness in the matter of buying explains one of the greatest tragedies of bachelorhood.

In the last century the political economists invented an imaginary creature called "the economic man."

He was absurd because he never existed, except in the minds of those who created him.

He was supposed to "buy in the cheapest market," for example.

If a man wants a few shirts or a few pairs of gloves, he is as likely as not to go to a shop and pay a lot more for them than the same articles would cost him in another establishment in the same street.

But his wife or mother or sister does not do anything foolish like that. She seems to know with unerring instinct where she can do business to the best advantage to herself.

If a man is charged twenty cents, or thirty cents, for a glass of orange juice at his breakfast in a restaurant, he may grumble because he notices that the price has been raised.

He does not think of the price of the orange that went into the squeezer, as a woman would do, and make up his mind to go somewhere else in the future.

So man, the lord of creation, is the natural prey in most cases of the modern offender, known to the law as the "profiteer," while woman is always feared by that creature.

It is a simple matter but significant. The supposedly wise philosopher who imagined the "economic man" made a great mistake to start with.

They would have been on safer ground if they had talked about the "economic woman." For she is "economic" in the other sense. She knows how to shop.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"GOOD AS A PLAY"

FREQUENTLY, when something particularly amuses us we say that the occurrence or the remark was "as good as a play." In many instances the reference is sarcastic, meaning too "good" to believe!

Most of us in using the expression are quite unconscious that we are quoting royalty. For in "as good as a play" we have something more than four mere words. We have a phrase coined by a king.

He was Charles II and it was while visiting parliament and listening to the debates that he is known to have used the expression for the first time. In Macaulay's "Review of the Life and Writings of Sir William Temple" we find these words:

"The king remained in the house of peers while his speech was taken into consideration—a common practice with him, for the debates amused his sated mind, and were sometimes, he used to say, 'as good as a comedy.'"

POULTRY

YOUNG GOSLINGS NEED GOOD CARE

When the goslings are raised in brooders they must be closed up at night for the first two or three weeks. After that they may be allowed to come and go if their pen is safe from dogs and other prowlers. Their runs should be so arranged that they will have plenty of grass.

By the time the goslings are a month old they will have reached a size which is comparable to small hens and may then be given wide of free range or be kept confined in yards where grass is available. If the grass in their yards gets eaten down it is necessary to supplement it with waste from the garden, lawn clippings or similar green stuff. On such feed the goslings will make good gains but the addition of a little grain is advisable.

Water for drinking should always be available for the goslings. While they are small the vessel should be protected so they cannot get into it. While the weather is cool it is well to provide water only for drinking. After the weather settles and becomes warm there is no harm in giving them water so they can splash around in it.

Stale bread or a mash comprised of corn meal and shorts are the feeds most often used to supplement the grass ration of little goslings. Others use a more complete mash similar to that fed to chickens which contains animal food, skim milk or some dried milk products.

The profit in raising geese comes from the fact that they are great foragers and make the bulk of their gains on feed that is otherwise unsalable. It is a mistake to try to raise them largely on a grain ration which increases the expense; besides, they do not do so well as when given more forage.

What Good Hen Consumes During Course of Year

What one good hen eats in a year was shown by the poultry department of the Minnesota College of Agriculture in an exhibit at the Minnesota state fair. Of scratch grain she consumes 20 pounds cracked corn, 10 pounds oats, 10 pounds barley. Her laying mash, which is fed in a hopper, totals 8 pounds each of corn meal, ground oats, wheat bran, wheat middlings, and beef scraps with the addition of 1 per cent charcoal and 1 per cent salt. She eats 4 pounds of oyster shells and 2 pounds of grit fed separately in a hopper. Her feed bill totals $15.23 a year.

If she eats she must more than pay her board bill, says the poultry department, and they showed the yearly egg production of four different hens: 1, pays board and little more; 2, pays board and 90 cents; 3, pays board and $1.50; 4, pays board and $4.70.

Poultry Facts

Milk is a valuable feed for hens.

Hens should have vigor and good size before they lay.

Ducks or geese should be killed by sticking in the back of the mouth.

Hard luck may be an alibi, but it isn't always an excuse.

Giving the chicks some form of milk at the start stimulates their appetites and promotes growth.

It's a good plan to start culling the flock with the chicks, by killing the weak, sickly ones that will never repay their cost.

The way brooder chicks act in the evening is a good guide as to the heat. If too much, they will stay away from the hoyer, and if too little they will crowd up near the stove.

Free range away from the poultry yard should be provided with clover for pasture whenever possible. It is the best known way to get good, healthy, vigorous pullets for winter laying.

The main reason for the variations in the prices of eggs and dressed poultry is the variation in their quality.

Exercise generates heat and promotes health. Make the poultry flock work for their grain by feeding it in a deep, clean litter of straw.

Eggs for hatching should not be kept longer than 10 to 14 days before setting. They should be held at a temperature between 40 and 50 degrees Fahrenheit and turned once each day.

Many people make a mistake in not getting the brooder house thoroughly warm before putting in young chicks.

Eggs from a well-bred, uniform flock of some one breed will be more uniform in color and should bring more per dozen than a mixed lot.

If you have surplus milk, by all means give it to the hens. If it occurs or is in the shape of buttermilk from the churn, so much the better. Milk is a good food besides being a great health promoter.

SOMETHING ABOUT LIVER

SCIENTIFIC research, together with many practical tests over long and short periods, show that liver appetizingly cooked and served frequently tends to increase the count of red corpuscles in the blood. A diet rich in liver is now being given in leading institutions as a corrective of anemia and ailments of such character.

Calf's liver is considered a great delicacy and as such is high-priced in most markets. Young pig's liver, young beef and lamb are very acceptable and are lower in price.

For those who are not familiar with the methods of cooking liver, the following recipes will be helpful:

Baked Liver. Have the liver cut into inch or inch and a half slices. Cut gashes lengthwise three-fourths of an inch deep. Lay strips of fat salt pork into these gashes. Have ready a well-greased baking dish. Place in the baking dish a layer of thinly sliced onions to the depth of an inch and one-half. Lay the larded liver on the onions, completely covering, dust with salt, pepper and flour, then pour over a pint of stewed and strained tomato. Put into a hot oven; when the tomato juice begins to boil cover and reduce the heat. From that point bake for one hour in a moderate oven.

Calf's Liver Braised. Lard the rounded side of the liver with pork (salt). Fry one onion in salt pork fat. Put the liver and fried onion into a baking pan, add hot water or stock to half cover, one teaspoonful of salt, one saltspoonful of pepper and one tablespoonful of herbs. Cover and cook in a moderate oven two hours, basting often. When ready to serve, strain the liquor, season with lemon juice and pour it over the liver.

Potted Liver. Braise a calf's liver as above. When tender, cut fine and pound to a paste, adding enough of the strained liquor in which it was cooked to moisten it; add one-half cupful of butter melted, rub through a sieve after mixing well, pack into jars and cover with melted butter. Keep in a very cool place.

Beware of the Tempter

By EVELYN GAGE BROWNE

"A BIRD in the hand is worth two in the bush." Is a saying that's old but true. And if you're full of pep and "push" It surely applies to YOU.

The job you have that is sure today Is worth your very best, And if you give it—it's bound to pay A whole lot more than the rest.

They are only promises hazy and dim In fields untried and new; And your present Boss, if you stick to him, Will as surely stick to you.

So beware of the man who hands you a life Of bluff and flattery stuff, To tempt you to leave a job that's fine, With the words, "You're not getting enough!"

For that's the time when if isn't wise To see yourself as a Star, Through some one else's nearsighted eyes— YOU'RE JUST WHAT YOU KNOW YOU ARE!

It's what's within that makes success, And can't keep a good man down; And it rests with YOU—no more, no less— And not with the job nor the town.

So give your best RIGHT WHERE YOU ARE, Your brain, your heart and soul— Then "hitch your wagon to a star" And you're bound to reach your goal.
