Railroad Rumbblings

Mrs. D. D. Tiffany was an El Paso visitor Tuesday, returning home on No. 12.

Mrs. L. P. McClintock, who was reported ill at the Johnson Hospital last week, was able to return to her home in Coyote Tuesday.

Fireman Eddie Corn came home last week, after being in the Santa Fe Hospital at Albuquerque for about two months with typhoid fever. Eddie will remain at home for a time and will assist his father on the ranch until he recuperates, after which he will return to service with the Santa Fe.

Cattle shipments from this point last week consisted of 20 cars of stock cattle from C. C. Merchant of Capitan, all of which went to points in Texas, with the exception of one car, which was detached and sent to the Kansas City market. Inspector, Dr. C. E. Freeman.

Fred Wagner, engineer on the Ontario & Western and running from Middleton to Maybrook, N. Y., came in Tuesday and will spend the week-end with Conductor and Mrs. D. D. Tiffany. Mr. Wagner is an old friend of the Tiffanys, from their old home in New York and is on his way to California for a vacation.

Fireman Bryan Casier was the only railroad man at the Golf meet at Las Cruces last week. On that alone, he should have won a prize larger than he did, but he saved the day for his home town by landing a consolation prize, as also did Charley Cree and according to the Las Cruces Citizen, they ranked among the best players.

Glencoe Woman's Club

On Oct. 22, Mrs. W. R. Werner was hostess to the club at her home which was very prettily decorated with Halloween affairs. The president, Mrs. J. V. Tully, was not able to attend on account of injuries she received the day before when she fell off the foot bridge, to 7 feet below and injured both of her ankles. In Mrs. Tully's absence, Mrs. Werner, vice-president, took charge in a very capable way.

The subject was "How Shall I Vote?" in which all took part in discussing, and the questions were responded to as follows: "Are Women Cleaner in Politics than Men?" - Mrs. Perry; "Should Women Hold Office?" Mrs. Geo. Dixon. Mrs. Louise Coe gave a short talk and report of the State Convention.

After refreshments were served, the meeting adjourned and all members present proceeded to the home of Mrs. Tully to inquire how she was feeling. She told some fine things about the State Convention and promised to give a written report at the next meeting, which will be at the home of Mrs. Rose, with Miss Willadene Brown as hostess and Mrs. Geo. Dixon as leader of the program. Subject, "Now Your Own State."

We feel that an honor has been conferred upon our club, in the fact that one of our members, Mrs. Louise Coe, was elected Parliamentarian of the State Federation, and Mrs. J. V. Tully has been appointed by Sec. Herbert Hoover as chairman of the "Better Housing Committee" of the State Federation.

Seventeenth Birthday of Eastern Star

Last Saturday evening at the Masonic Temple, Comet Chapter No. 29, O. E. S., entertained for Stars and their families at one of the best arranged and most successfully-carried out entertainments ever given in Carrizozo. The affair was arranged in honor of the seventeenth birthday of the Chapter and the assemblage numbered over the 100 mark.

The exercises began with an entrance march of the officers of the Chapter into the hall with Mrs. T. E. Kelley at the piano, after which the American Flag was saluted and the audience united in singing "America," followed by an address of welcome by Worthy Matron, Mrs. R. E. Lemon.

The Past Matrons of the Chapter were then invited to the East and were seated in a semi-circle. A large birthday cake was then brought into the hall by little Miss Dorothy Nickles and Master Homer English, bearing 17 candles and after the little folks sang "Happy Birthday to You," the Past Matrons told their experiences while holding the highest office in the gift of the Chapter. At the close of their well-worded talks they were each presented with a beautiful rose as they lit the candles surrounding the big cake. Of the 17 Past Matrons, 10 were present, namely: Mesdames Elizabeth Gumm, R. E. Blaney, S. F. Miller, R. R. Sale, J. A. Haley, Vena Elliott, D. S. Donaldson, E. O. Pehm, C. P. Huppertz and Miss Ella Brickley. The seven absentees sent letters of regret which were read by Secretary Miller.

The most impressive feature of the program came when a basket was placed on the altar and guarded by the Star Points, when after a toast in reverence by Mrs. Glassmire to members who, to use the Masonic expression, "have gone before." As each name was read by Secretary Miller, a beautiful flower was dropped into the basket attended by tender words of remembrance from Conductress, Mrs. Paul Mayer, assisted by Associate Matron, Mrs. J. E. Green. Following this solemn ceremony, short talks were made by Past Patrons, "Auld Lang Syne" was sung and refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served. To add to the bountiful refreshments, the big birthday cake was cut and served to the guests with the Chapter's best wishes.

During the program and at periods where the numbers were the most fitting, Mrs. T. B. Kincheloe of Fort Stanton and Miss Alene Thompson of Carrizozo sang a duet, "Memories," Mrs. T. E. Kelley and Miss Alene Thompson sang a duet, "A Perfect Day," Mrs. Albert Ziegler gave a piano solo, "Traumerel" and Mrs. F. L. Elliott gave a reading, "The Birth of a Star."

Of the entertainments of past and future none can excel the one given last Saturday evening and credit for its success belongs to Worthy Matron, Mrs. Jeanette Lemon and her staff of efficient officers.

Mesdames W. C. McDonald and J. J. Court were visitors at the Mesalero Indian Reservation last Sunday.

Halloween

Capitan School Notes

The Capitan "Tigers" both girls and boys, played the Corona 'Bulldogs' game of Basketball on the Corona court, Saturday, Oct. 22. The Capitan girls won over the Corona girls, score, 21-19, but the Capitan boys lost, the score being 30-18. The games were fast and interesting and both teams showed good sportsmanship. After the games a supper and dance was given for the players. Everyone reports that they had a good time.

A number of people from the Fort and Capitan attended and rooted for the home team.

Corona Basketball girls and boys will play the Capitan teams the return games here on the Capitan court, Saturday afternoon, Oct. 29. In the evening there will be a dance and refreshments to entertain our visitors, and hope we can entertain them as well as we were entertained at Corona.

The Capitan High School students and faculty have been very busy fixing up the old Payne building which the school has rented. This building is going to be very useful to the school for plays and entertainments until the Gymnasium is finished.

The enrollment of the Capitan school is larger than it has been for several years and more pupils are enrolling every day, both in the high school and in the grades.

Miss Helena Peters has been ill for the last few days, but is now able to teach.

Basketball

The boys' and girls' second teams will play at Hondo next Saturday afternoon and the H. S. boys will play the town team Saturday evening, at 7 o'clock. This should be a good game, since both teams have improved greatly. The admission will be much less than usual. Come.

Miss Jessie Hammer, Commercial teacher in the Carrizozo High School left Wednesday for Galveston, Texas, where she has accepted a position as stenographer with the S. P. railroad. Miss Hammer was also coach for the girls' basketball teams, and her willingness to help others made her popular with students and faculty. Her sunny smile will be missed not only by the school, but from others in Carrizozo as well. We regret to lose her, but we wish her success in her new work.

Our old friend W. B. Payne, who has been in Roswell for the past year, has moved to Capitan, according to a letter received from him this week.

Carrizozo Woman's Club

Met at the home of Mrs. Nellie Branum, Friday, Oct. 21 - the assistant hostesses were Mesdames C. A. Snow, P. M. Shaver, Oscar Clouse and Harry Gallacher.

There was a Masquerade Ball arranged for Saturday night, Oct. 29, at the Community Hall. Prizes will be given the lady and gentleman having the most attractive costume. Refreshments will be served by Mrs. B. L. Stimmel, who was a delegate to the New Mexico Federation Convention. She gave the Club an interesting report.

Mrs. Stadman read the following resolution-

Whereas, in our observance of Thrift Week in the Club, there has been presented the advantages of a School Savings Bank, and the plan has been discussed by members of the faculty and board as a part of the new course of study, therefore, be it Resolved, That the Woman's Club of Carrizozo express a desire to see a School Savings Bank Plan tried out in the local schools, and that the Club will co-operate in anyway possible.

Be it further Resolved, That the Secretary mail a copy of this Resolution to R. E. Lemon, Clerk, School Board, and to Prof. J. M. Helm, Supt.

Mrs. J. McCourt of Palos Verdes, Cal., and a member of the Woman's Club of that place, was a visitor to our Club - we were glad to have Mrs. McCourt be with us.

Miss Ella Brickley had charge of the following program which was on "Thrift."

Mrs. Melas read a very interesting paper on "Thrift," which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. W. P. Loughrey favored the Club by singing "Wanting" and the "Dusky Sleep Song."

Mrs. Albert Ziegler favored us with 2 piano solos, "The Wild Horsemen" and "Dance of the Bells."

The next meeting of the Club will be held at the Wetmore Hall with Mrs. Paul Mayer as hostess. Mrs. W. P. Loughrey will have charge of the program.

Road Matters

Road Foreman Chas. F. Gray has his force of men at work in building a county road from Corona, through the Gallo Canyon to Jonets, one of the most needed improvements in that part of the county. The new road will give Corona an outlet it has long desired and it took the present Board of County Commissioners to give Corona her rights.

Mr. Henry Lutz, Sr., has accepted a position as timekeeper for Foreman Ferguson on the Carrizozo-Capitan Highway.

Ft. Stanton Notes

The following people attended the 17th anniversary of the Comet Chapter of the Eastern Star at Carrizozo Saturday night: Dr. and Mrs. Nesbit, Mr. and Mrs. Wunsch, Mr. and Mrs. Kincheloe, Mrs. Andrews, Rev. Swift and Miss Rice.

Dr. and Mrs. Faget left Tuesday to spend several days in Roswell, Artesia and Carlsbad caves. Miss Margaret Rowen, former nurse in charge of the surgery here will return this week from a vacation in Cal., Wash., Ore. and western Canada.

On Monday night a Halloween party will be given by Mesdames Tappan, Gensler and Miss Kane. There will be ghost stories, cards and dancing.

Dr. and Mrs. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill and Mr. and Mrs. Hebert spent last Sunday duck hunting at Picacho, Jimmy forgot to close both eyes while shooting and accidentally came home with the bacon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wunsch, Mrs. Andrews and Miss Rice of Lincoln had a narrow escape from an auto accident while returning from Carrizozo Saturday night. While driving 30 miles an hour, an oncoming car hit the right side of Wunsch's car breaking the rear wheel and the entire side of the car. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wunsch were cut by broken glass. The occupants of the demolished car returned home through the courtesy of Mr. W. Titworth of Capitan. Mr. Wunsch returned to Carrizozo Sunday morning to have his car repaired.

Construction Engineer Jenner of San Francisco arrived here Tuesday to spend a week.

The following patients arrived this week: Frank Sullivan from Brooklyn and H. Rosenberg from San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Howson spent last Sunday at Tinnie.

Drs. Tappan and Reed will leave on Nov. 1, to attend the Southwestern Medical Association in El Paso.

R. S. Fagan returned Monday after a week's stay in El Paso.

Miss Charlotte Rice will spend this week-end in Lincoln.

Mrs. Harrod and Nesbit and Messrs. Hebert, Hendren and Bill Hale will spend the week-end hunting ducks near Roswell.

Mrs. N. V. Pettit of Hutchinson, Kansas, will arrive Saturday to spend several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Nesbit.

Rio-Ruidoso Game Protective Association

On Oct. 22, a meeting was held at the Glencoe postoffice and the Rio-Ruidoso Game Protective Association organized with the following officers: President, J. V. Tully; Secretary-Treasurer, Ralph Bonnell; Executive Committee, Mrs. Louise Coe, Legislation; B. J. Bonnell, Publicity; Jack Land, Game & Fish; Vance A. Thomas, Membership; Gerald Tully, Law Enforcement.

The Secretary was instructed to send dues for membership in the State Game Protective Association. The following Resolution was passed:

Resolved: That the open season on bear in this part of the state coincides with the open season on deer and turkey, it shall be contrary to law to use dogs, in any manner in connection with such hunting.

Adjourned sine die. J. V. Tully, President. Ralph Bonnell, Sec.-Treas.

Found Dead Near Railroad Track

Last Sunday night about 10 o'clock, trainmen discovered the body of a stranger near the S.P. track, in the cut a short distance below the coal chute. They notified Sheriff Kelsey, who with Justice Harvey and a coroner's jury took the remains to the Kelley morgue, where an inquest was held. There were no marks of violence on the body and nothing on the same with which to establish his identity, therefore the jury rendered a verdict of alcoholic poisoning. At this writing, the body is still held to await identification.

Funeral of Guy L. Warden

The funeral of Guy L. Warden, who was accidentally killed last Friday night, was held at the Methodist Church Saturday afternoon with the Rev. Thos. Ludlow conducting the same and attended by a host of friends and sympathizers. A choir composed of friends of the family sang several selections, after which the remains were escorted to the local station and shipped to Wardenville, W. Va., accompanied by Mrs. R. E. P. Warden and Frank Maxwell, where they will be interred in the family lot in the cemetery.

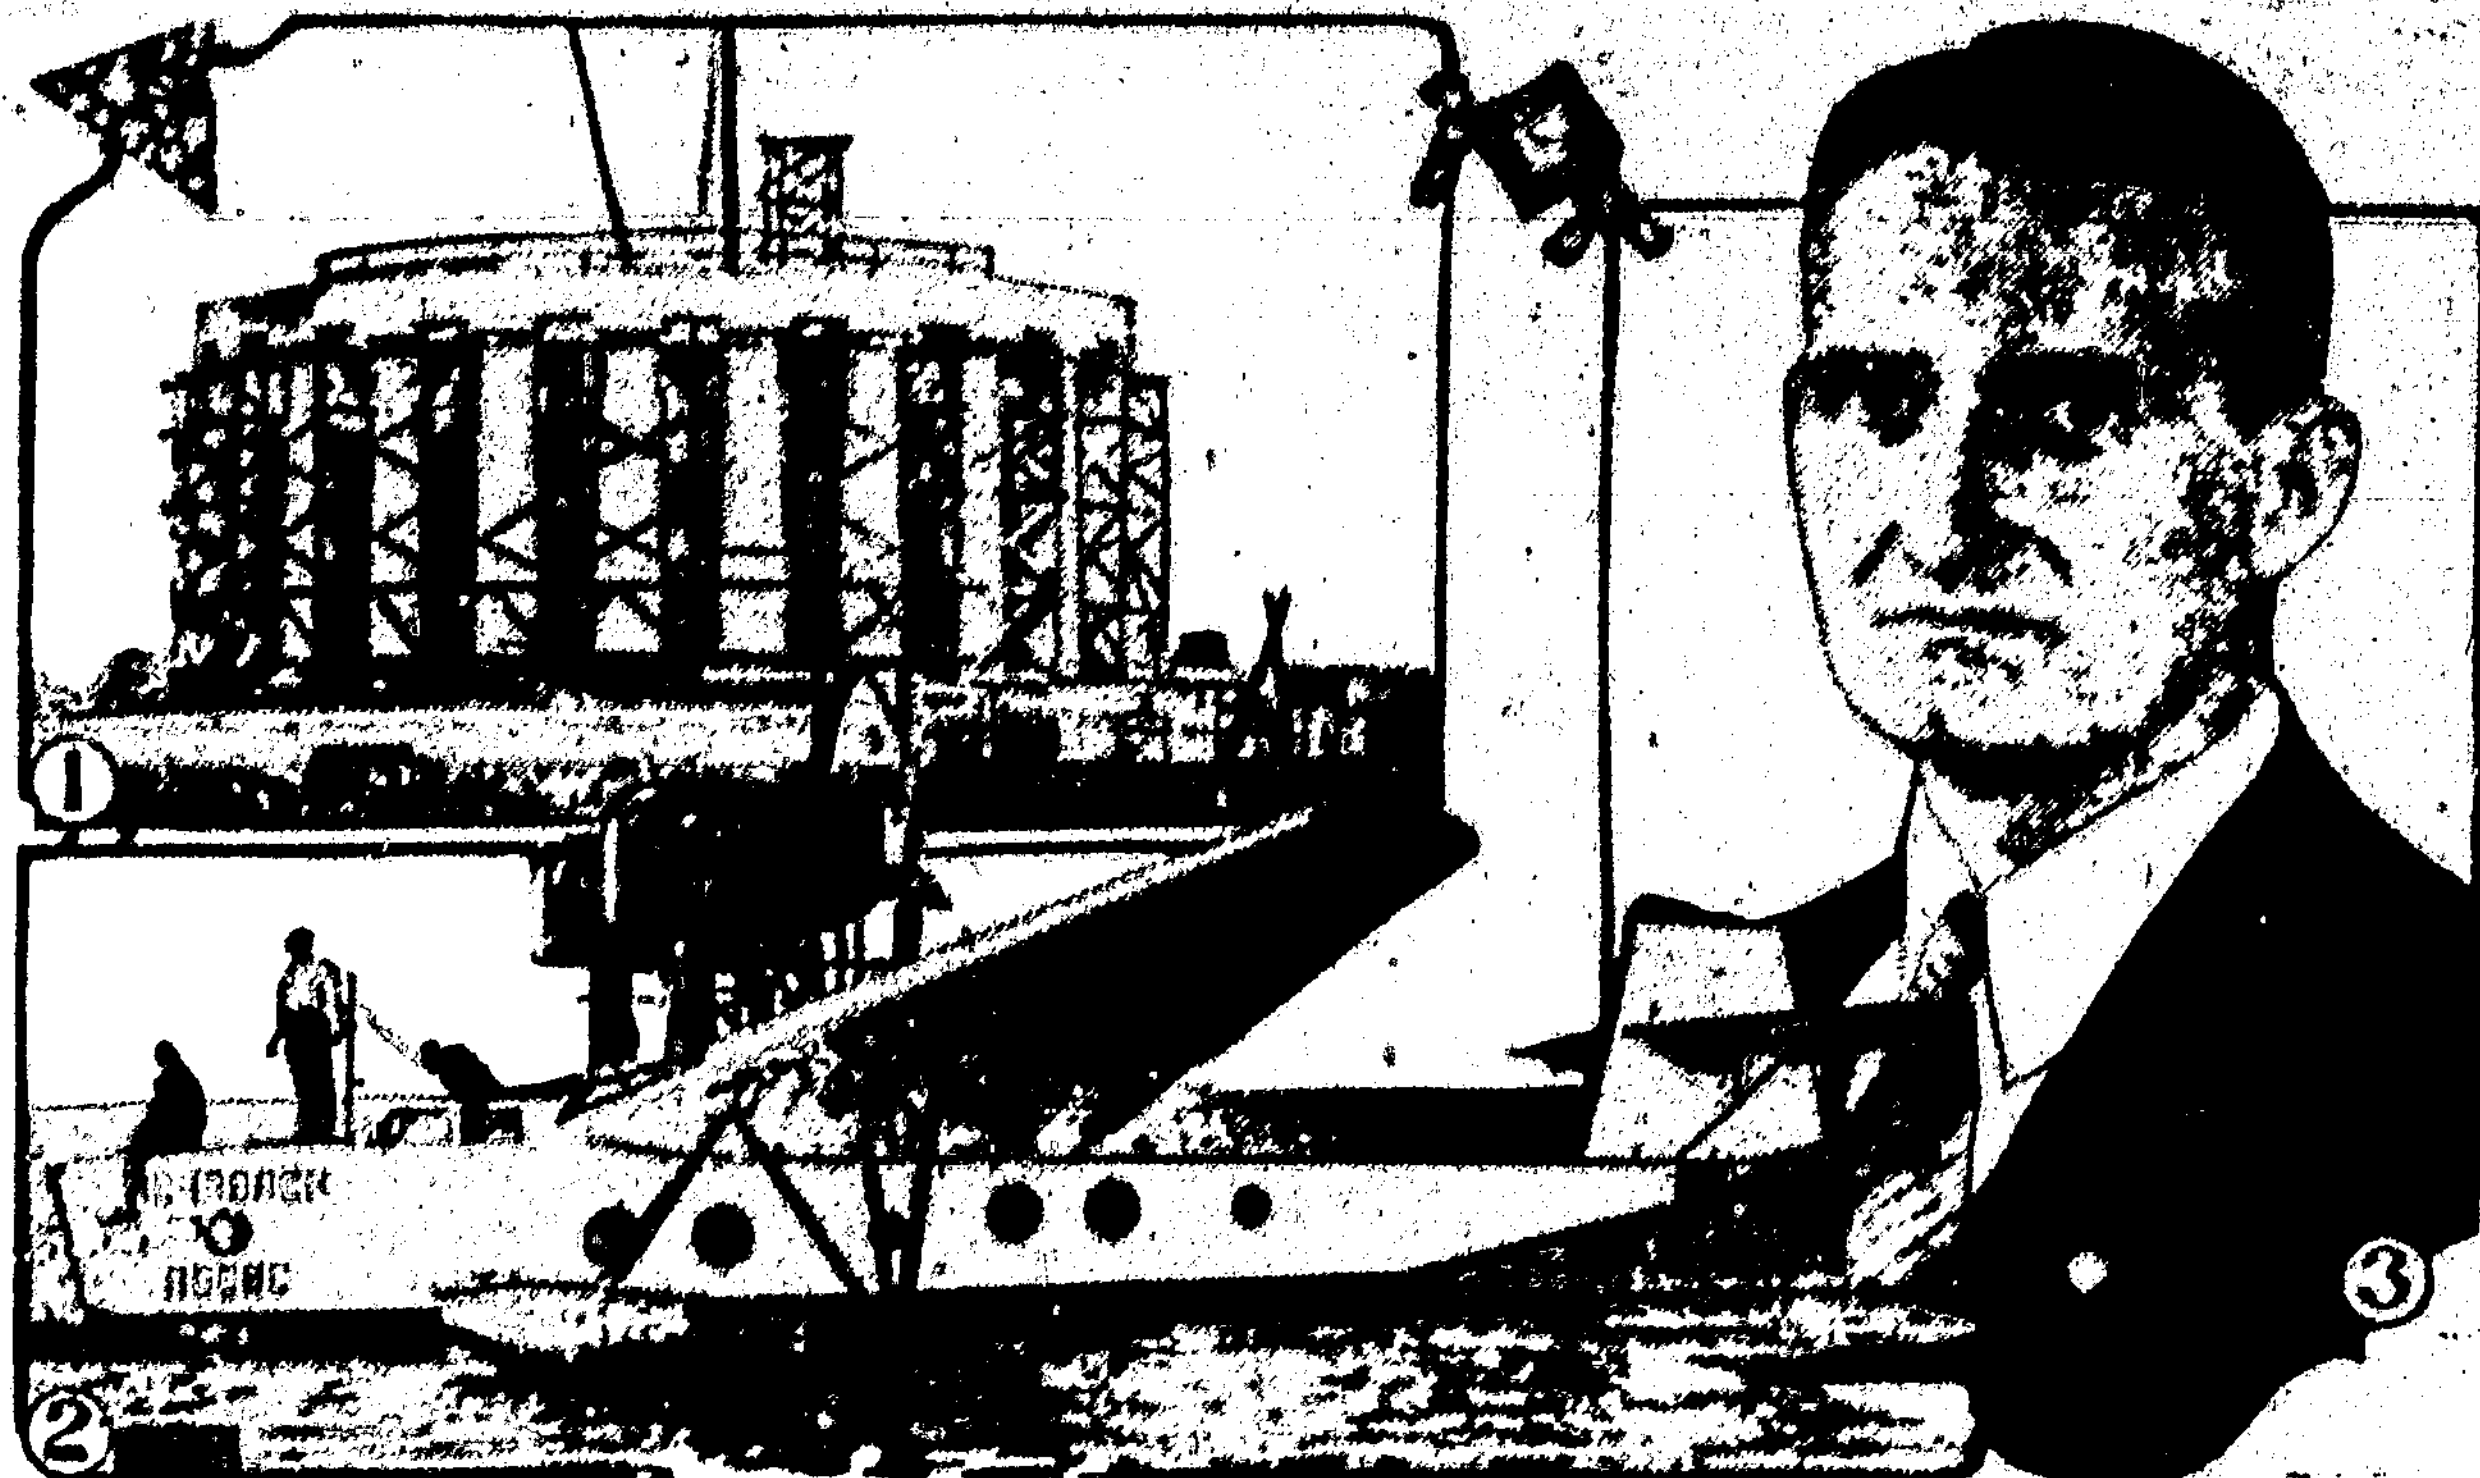

The Warden Brothers, Guy and Pick, the latter now being chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, came here 18 years ago and embarked in the ranching business. During that period, they met alike with success and reverses, but none of the latter were so great but what they overcame them and came back stronger with every experience. In his dealings with his fellow man, his first aim was that straightforwardness and the many staunch friends, none of whom he ever lost, mourn his loss. To his parents, sisters and brothers at Wardenville, the town that bears the family name, the loyal brother who is left here without his helping hand, the heart of this community goes out in the most tender sympathy.

Roscoe-Straley

Last Saturday morning at the Baptist parsonage with the Rev. F. C. Rowland performing the ceremony, Joe Roscoe of El Paso and Miss Reba Straley of Ancho were united in marriage. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Straley and the family is one among the oldest and best known in this locality.

The groom is a wide-awake young business man and the newlyweds will make their home at Ancho, where he will locate in some business venture and the best wishes of their many friends both here and at El Paso are extended.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Teapot Dome Lease Is Canceled—Woman Fails in Atlantic Flight.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FINAL victory has been scored by the federal government in its three years' fight to regain the valuable oil fields that were leased to others by Albert B. Fall when he was secretary of the interior. Last week the Supreme Court of the United States vitiated the Teapot Dome lease held by Harry F. Sinclair. The decision sustained the ruling of the Circuit Court of Appeals which reversed a Wyoming federal court that upheld the validity of the lease. This brings back to the government Wyoming oil lands estimated to be worth $100,000,000, plus $3,000,000 in cash now in the hands of the court's receivers; $2,000,000 worth of oil taken out by Sinclair before suit was started and for which he must make restitution, and more than $1,000,000 worth of oil tanks, pipe lines and other improvements constructed by Sinclair, but for which the court denies him equity because of the leasing form. The court's decision last March, similarly denouncing the Doherty lease of the Elk Hills (Calif.) naval reserve an illegal and fraudulent, restored even more valuable oil lands to the navy. A survey just completed by oil experts estimates that the Elk Hills lands contain 720,000,000 barrels of oil, or nearly three times the amount previously estimated. Its value is placed at fully $300,000,000. The government also recovered $24,000,000 for oil drilled out by Doherty and for value of tanks, etc. Last week's decision, which was unanimous, branded Fall as "a faithless public officer." It held that the Teapot Dome lease to Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Company was contrary to the oil conservation policy of the government. Fall's contention that development of the reserve was necessary to prevent drainage was denounced as a representation made in "bad faith."

RUTH ELDEI, daring and skillful Florida aviator, almost achieved her ambition to be the first woman to fly across the Atlantic. With George Holdeman as co-pilot, she drove the plane American Girl to within about 1,000 miles of Paris despite strong head winds that forced them off their course, and then a broken oil line forced them to come down in the ocean. Fortunately the Dutch tanker Starendrecht was close by and picked up the two flyers unhurt. An attempt to salvage the plane was made, but a gasoline tank exploded and it was burned. The rescue took place about 800 miles northeast of the Azores and the aviators were taken to the islands, whence they were to continue their trip to France by steamer. Miss Elder and Holdeman were in the air more than 41 hours and flew 2,574 miles—a record for all-water flights. The storm they encountered reduced their average speed from the expected 100 miles an hour to about 72. The last five hours of their flight was made with no oil pressure in their motor.

AMERICAN workers still yearn for their beer and have not given up hope of getting it. The American Federation of Labor, in convention in Los Angeles, adopted by viva voce vote a resolution demanding that congress modify the Volstead act "so as to permit the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer." President Green's policies were upheld when the convention voted, 133 to 52, against application of the federal quota law to Mexican immigration. The executive council, after a year's investigation of the relationship between labor and the government in Mexico, reported that it did not consider the Mexican government a trade union regime, though the relations between it and the labor movement are "very intimate." Max E. Hayes of Cleveland, who was Farmer-Labor candidate for vice president in 1928, offered a plan for a labor party, but the convention almost unanimously supported Mr. Green's alternative proposal that "we work for the friends of labor in both national parties at the polls." The delegates also rejected resolutions denouncing the government's policy in Latin America and China, and approved the Monroe Doctrine.

MEXICO'S latest revolutionary movement is, as predicted, effectively suppressed and Calles is more firmly in the saddle than ever, with Obregon assured of the succession to the Presidency. General Gomez and his band of followers in the state of Vera Cruz were attacked at Chantulco by loyal troops under General Escobar and utterly routed, bombing planes playing a considerable part in the engagement. Gomez and his staff officers, seeing the day was lost, fled into the hills. Felix Palavicini, a journalist who has been deported, lays all the blame for the mutiny on General Serrano, who was caught and executed. Obregon says that when he becomes President he will follow Calles' policy in compelling Catholics and other religious denominations to respect the laws, since this policy has the support of the majority of the people of the country.

YUGO-SLAVIA and Bulgaria have practically settled their row over raids by Bulgarian comitads or irregulars along the border, but now Poland and Lithuania are on the eve of a break which may have serious consequences. The Lithuanian government has closed Polish schools and confiscated Polish estates in Lithuania, and plans to declare Vilna the capital of the country, despite the fact that that city was seized by Poland seven years ago. Then, last week, a number of Poles were arrested in Lithuania on charges of having plotted the assassination of President Smetona. The Polish government sent an ultimatum to Kovno threatening action unless Lithuania should radically alter its policy within one week. Marshal Pilsudski, dictator of Poland, wishes to avoid the use of force if possible, but the British minister to Warsaw reports that the situation is fraught with danger.

OVER in China the pendulum has swung back and the Shansi armies that had defeated Marshal Chang's troops and threatened to take Peking have themselves been beaten in battle and at last reports were retreating westward in considerable disorder. About 10,000 of the Shansi soldiers were captured and sent into Manchuria. The northern forces began operations for the capture of Shansi province and against Gen. Feng-Yu-hsiang in Honan province. Peking's feeling of relief was modified by the knowledge that it had been saved partly by the calling in of a horde of 15,000 Mongol cavalry, reputed to be the fiercest and most cruel fighters in all Asia.

SPAIN began its return to a constitutional parliamentary government last week with the formal opening of the new national assembly by King Alfonso. "But it was only a faint start that way, for the assembly membership is picked by the dictator, Gen. Primo de Rivera, and so seems certain to do the bidding of the directorate which he heads. Two of the women delegates, the duchess of Parcent and Countess San Luis, resigned just before the assembly opened.

SENATOR JAMES A. REED of Missouri, who stands ready to accept the Democratic Presidential nomination if Gov. Al Smith cannot get it, was endorsed as a candidate by the Missouri state committee at Sedalia, and then delivered to a big assemblage of Democrats what was considered the keynote speech for his party in the coming campaign. He denounced Republican rule as no less corrupt now than during the Harding administration and named Melton, Daugherty and Fall. Making a plea for unity, the senator said: "Let us make our fight beneath banners proclaiming the right of each citizen to regulate his own personal conduct—chart his own course through life—determine his own habits and to control the affairs of his own household, free from all restraints. If this people are to remain free, local self-government and the sovereignty of the states must be preserved. The march of centralization must be arrested. Government by boards and bureaucracies must cease. Let us demand: "The honest administration of government. "The swift and sure punishment of all public plunderers, bribe-mongers and other malefactors. "The equalization of the burden of taxation. "The repeal of all laws creating special privileges. "The dismissal of an army of spies, snoopers, sneaks, and informers."

RADICAL Republican senators have been holding a series of conferences in Washington, and it was reported their purpose was to promote the Presidential boom of Senator Norris of Nebraska. But some of them issued a signed statement disclaiming any "third party" intentions and denying they planned insurgency within their party. Their purpose, said these gentlemen—Norris, Norris, Frazier, Nye and Brookhart—was to form a strong Western bloc and "get some unity of purpose and some solidarity of action" among Western senators and to impress upon the Eastern states and their representatives in congress that, as Senator Borah explained it, "a large portion of the United States lies west of the Allegheny mountains." Friends of Norris, it is said, intend to enter his name in these fourteen preferential primary states: California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

MAXOR DUVALL of Indianapolis, convicted of political corruption, was sentenced last week to thirty days in jail and fined $1,000, and disfranchised for four years. He will appeal the case and says he will not resign until his appeal has been carried through the State Supreme court. The prosecutors believed he would be forced to quit office, in which case his wife, now city controller, would succeed him. Numerous civic groups are determined to oust both the Duvalls.

FEDERAL JUDGE F. P. SCHOONMAKER at Pittsburgh issued one of the most sweeping injunctions in the history of labor disputes, restraining the United Mine Workers of America, its officials and its members. Virtually every activity of the union against the nonunion Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation was forbidden. The union and its members were restrained from violence of any sort against company employees and prospective employees and against company property. Union pickets were restrained from putting their foot on company property, but were allowed to establish a single picket post on each road leading to the mines. Such pickets were cautioned against using abusive language, but were permitted the use of peaceful persuasion.

The long strikes of coal miners has been ended in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and other Middle Western fields, the men temporarily receiving the wages called for by the Jacksonville agreement until the question of pay has been settled by commissioners to be appointed. WILLIAM T. COSGRAVE, President of the Irish Free State, obtained a majority of six votes in the new Dail Eireann and was re-elected. The followers of De Valera and the Labor party voted solidly against him, and the Redmondites refrained from voting. The chief attack on Cosgrave was delivered by Sean T. O'Kelly, a De Valera man, who declared the President was the tool of England and attacked his financial and economic policies. Next day Cosgrave announced his cabinet, which was approved by the same vote, and also announced that the Farmers' party had fused with the government party.

DEATHS of the week include those of Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Rochester, N. Y., a leader in the Catholic church; Col. F. J. Dillon, member of the federal radio commission; F. D. Stout, one of the wealthiest men of Chicago, and Don Miguel, duke of Braganca and pretender to the throne of Portugal.

Kea Bouman Is Unique Star

Kea Bouman of Holland really is a unique figure in the group of international feminine net stars who have invaded the States this season. Others may have a more unusual game—it is hard to judge of that, for Miss Bouman has not been seen at her best in America—but she is unique in that she is the first woman from the Netherlands to become an international tennis figure.

Kea Bouman.

The history of her career is extraordinary in many respects. Contrary to that of other international stars, there is no professional tutor in the background of her early tennis. In fact, she was champion of Holland for five years before she had her first lesson from a pro. Her father, an ardent devotee of the game and one of Holland's veteran racketeers, taught her the fundamentals of play when she was still a schoolgirl and her first national championship was won while she was in the junior ranks. But all of this time Miss Bouman did not take the game seriously as Suzanne Lenglen or Helen Wills would understand the term. She played never more than two or three months out of the year, and never on grass until three years ago, when she went to Wimbledon for the first time.

Even now, when she is putting more concentration into her effort, Miss Bouman does not expect to get more than six months play out of the year. "It is impossible in Holland," she said when asked about this point. "We have no covered courts in our country, although I am told there are to be two this next year. We lay away our rackets in the fall not to touch them again until March."

Difficult Task to Name the Greatest Backfield

"It is next to impossible to name the greatest backfield of all time," says Dr. Clarence Spears, of Minnesota. "Personally I would not care to undertake the job. "I think a better way would be to name the shiftest backfield, the most versatile, the most powerful, the fastest, and so on. "If you want a backfield for speed, agility and quickness, I don't think you can pick a better all-time combination than 'Gus' Dorais of Notre Dame at quarter, Conn of California and Pollard of Brown at the halves, and McLaren of Pittsburgh, at fullback. The game never saw four backs who combined speed, agility and quickness to a finer degree than these four, at least they never had four equals in my opinion. "Should you care to select a backfield that combines speed, power and drive, what better combination can you get than Eddie Mahan of Harvard, Willie Heston of Michigan, George Gipp of Notre Dame, and Jim Thorpe of Carlsbad? Here is a backfield that many will consider the best set of backs of all time."

Succeeds Yost

Fielding Yost, one of the world's greatest football coaches, threw a bombshell into the first meeting of the football candidates for this season at Michigan university, when he announced, "I do not find it possible to coach football this year." Yost's right-hand man, Tad Wilsam, shown in the photograph, will succeed Yost.

Ty Cobb Begins His 23rd Season in Big Leagues

Ty Cobb has started his twenty-third year in big league baseball. On August 30, 1903, he joined the Detroit Tigers, where he remained as player and later manager for 21 years. He is entering upon his twenty-third year Cobb is believed to have added another record to his long and brilliant career on the diamond. Top Anson and Ty Young, other players with long records, each played for 21 years. Cobb made his 2,700th run on April 26 last. He made his 4,000th hit on July 15 and went to bat for the 11,000th time in a recent game. "I have learned a lot about the old game in this time," said Cobb. "And I'm not going to give up trying until I quit the game for good." Cobb spent all of his years in the majors with the Detroit club, until he was removed from its management because the present season opened. He was then signed by Connie Mack for the Athletics.

Sport Notes

Babe Ruth receives $32 an hour. This is based on five hours a day. Both Boston clubs are spending much money on rookies to make a better showing in 1928. United States' navy soccer team will entertain Penn at Annapolis, October 22. "Jus" Lundgren, assistant varsity coach to Bob Zuppke at University of Illinois, has started his twenty-fourth year of service. Three of the greatest fighters of their time, Jack McAuliffe, Jack Dempsey (the Nonpareil) and Kid Lavigne, were coopers by trade. The past season was one of the most successful in the history of light harness racing, especially in the New England states. Sale of Frank Emmer, Minneapolis shortstop and 1927 home run king of the American association, to the Detroit Tigers, is announced. Cleveland with Shoute, Buckeye and Miller is better equipped with southpaw pitching than any other club in either major league. Nineteen-year-old Jimmy Bevingham is professional golf instructor at the Twin Valley club of Sioux City. He is a former caddy and recently completed his high school studies. Eddie Phillips, catcher of the Nashville team of the Southern association, announces that he has been bought by the Detroit Tigers for $25,000. George Von Elm, who has no superior in amateur golf ranks with his iron shots, developed his strong wrists, hands and forearms through boxing. Bib Falk, one of the best outfielders in the game when he feels in the mood, is said to be dissatisfied at Chicago and anxious for a change of scenery. Many big league ball players have entered the movies but Ernie Orsatti, recruit outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, is the first movie actor to forsake the studio for the basketball diamond. The Upson family, consisting of Loren Upson, his wife and son, Loren, Jr., once held all three city golf championships of Sacramento, Calif.—senior, women's and junior titles, respectively. W. H. Deltz, one of Warner's best tackles in the days when the Carlisle Indians were making football history in the East, has been added to the Stanford gridiron staff, of which Warner is chief. Tommy Gibbons, former world's light heavyweight champion and a brave of the Blackfoot tribe since 1923, has been promoted. He is now a "chief" of the same tribe and is named "Fighting Thunder." "Wyoming" Warner, viewed by boxing experts as a fine prospect for the heavyweight title, is a university man and a former football end. His grandfather was mayor of a big western city. Betty Nethall, England's winsome tennis star, is not the only member of her family to devote herself to the court game. Three younger sisters and a brother are ready to make their debut in tournament play.

THE BAT A Novel from the Play

STORY FROM THE START

Defying all efforts to capture him, after a long series of murders and robberies, a super-crook known only as "The Bat" has brought about a veritable reign of terror. The chief of police assigns his best operative, Anderson, to get on the trail of "The Bat." With her niece, Dale Ogden, Miss Cornelia Van Gorder is living in the country home of the late Courtleigh Fleming, who until his recent death had been president of the Union bank, wrecked because of the theft of a large sum of currency. Miss Van Gorder receives a note warning her to vacate the place at once on pain of death. Dale returns from the city, where she had been to hire a gardener. The gardener arrives, giving his name as Brooks. He admits he is not a gardener, but needs work. Miss Cornelia tells "Doctor" Wells of the threatening note. They are interrupted by the smashing of a window in the house. They find another warning note. The detective, Anderson, arrives, is told of the situation, and announces he will stay on watch that night. Miss Van Gorder tells Anderson she has an idea. Courtleigh Fleming robbed his own bank and concealed the money in the house, but the detective believes the bank's cashier, Bailey, who is missing, is the guilty one. Brooks (who is really Bailey, the sought-for cashier, and Dale's fiance) tells the girl he knows there is a hidden room in the house. Dale tells Richard Fleming, Courtleigh's nephew, of her knowledge of the hidden room. He gets rid of her while she seeks and finds blue-prints of the house. Dale, returning, finds he has the secret in a scrap of blue-print, but he refuses to give it to her, declaring he means to have the money if it is there. Knowing the finding of the money means everything to Bailey, Dale seizes part of the scrap of paper and during the struggle Fleming is shot and killed.

He stopped. His right hand moved idly over the edge of the table—halted beside an ash tray—closed upon something.

Miss Cornelia arose.

"Is that true, Dale?" she said, sorrowfully.

Dale nodded. "Yes." She could not trust herself to explain at greater length.

Then Miss Cornelia made one of the most magnificent gestures of her life. "Well, even if it is—what has that got to do with it?" she said, turning upon Anderson, fiercely, all her protective instinct for those whom she loved aroused.

Anderson seemed somewhat impressed by the fierceness of her query. When he went on, it was with less harshness in his manner.

"I'm not accusing this girl," he said, more gently. "But behind every crime there is a motive. When we've found the motive for this crime, we'll have found the criminal."

Unobserved, Dale's hand instinctively went to her bosom. There it lay—the motive—the precious fragment of blue-print which she had torn from Fleming's grasp but an instant before he was shot down. Once Anderson found it in her possession—the case was closed—the evidence against her overwhelming. She could not destroy it—it was the only clue to the hidden room and the truth that might clear Jack Bailey. But, somehow, she must hide it—get it out of her hands—before Anderson's third-degree methods broke her down or he insisted on a search of her person. Her eyes roved wildly about the room, looking for a hiding place.

The rain of Anderson's questions began anew.

"What papers did Fleming burn in that grate?" he asked abruptly, turning back to Dale.

"Papers!" she faltered.

"Papers! The ashes are still there." Miss Cornelia made an unavailing interruption.

"Miss Ogden has said he didn't come into this room."

The detective smiled.

"I hold in my hand proof that he was in this room for some time," he said, coldly, displaying the half-burnt cigarette he had taken from the ash-tray a moment before.

"His cigarette—with his monogram on it." He put the fragment of tobacco and paper carefully away in an envelope and marched over to the fireplace. There he ruminated among the ashes for a moment, like a dog uncovering a bone. He returned to the center of the room with a fragment of blackened blue paper fluttering between his fingers.

"A fragment of what is technically known as a blue-print?" he announced.

"What were you and Richard Fleming doing with a blue-print?" His eyes bored into Dale's.

Dale hesitated—stuck her lips.

"Now, thank it over!" he warned.

"The truth will come out, sooner or later! Better be frank now!"

"If he only knew how I wanted to be—he wouldn't be so cruel," thought Dale wearily. "But I can't—I can't!" Then her heart gave a throb of relief. Jack had come back into the room—

Jack and Billy—Jack would protect her! But even as she thought of this, her heart sang again. Protect her, indeed! Poor Jack! He would find it hard enough to protect himself, if once this terrible man with the cold smile and steely eyes started questioning him.

Bailey made his report, breathlessly. "Nothing in the house, sir."

Billy's impassive lips confirmed him. "We go all over house—nobody!"

"Nobody—nobody in the house! And yet—the mysterious ringing of the phone—the groans Miss Cornelia had heard! Were old wives' tales and witches' fables true, after all? Did a power—merciless—evil—exist, outside the barriers of the flesh—blasting that trembling flesh with a cold breath from beyond the portals of the grave? There seemed to be no other explanation.

"You men stay here!" said the detective. "I want to ask you some questions." He doggedly returned to his third-degreeing of Dale.

"Now what about this blue-print?" he queried sharply.

Dale stiffened in her chair. Her lips had fallen. Now she would tell a portion of the truth—as much of it as she could without menacing Jack.

"I'll tell you just what happened," she began. "I sent for Richard Fleming—and when he came, I asked him if he knew where there were any blue-prints of the house."

The detective pounced eagerly upon her admission.

"Why did you want blue-prints?" he thundered.

"Because," Dale took a long breath. "I believe old Mr. Fleming took the money himself from the Union bank and hid it here."

"Where did you get that idea?"

"Because I'd heard there was a hidden room in this house."

The detective leaned forward intently.

"Did you locate that room?"

Dale hesitated.

"No."

"Then why did you burn the blue-prints?"

Dale's nerve was crumbling—breaking—under the repeated, monotonous impact of his questions.

"He burned them!" she cried wildly, "I don't know why!"

The detective paused an instant, they returned to a previous query.

"Then you didn't locate this hidden room?"

Dale's lips formed a pale "No."

"Did he?" went on Anderson, inexorably.

Dale stared at him, dully—the breaking point had come. Another question—another—and she would no longer be able to control herself. She would sob out the truth hysterically—that Brooks, the gardener, was Jack Bailey, the missing cashier—that the scrap of blue-print hidden in the bosom of her dress might unravel the secret of the hidden room—that—

But just as she felt herself, snatched of strength, beginning to alide toward a black, tingling pit of merciful oblivion, Miss Cornelia provided a diversion.

"What's that?" she said, in a startled voice, staring toward the French windows.

All eyes followed the direction of her stare. There was an instant of silence.

Then, suddenly, traveling swiftly from right to left, across the shades of the French windows, there appeared a glowing circle of brilliant white light. Inside the circle was a black, distorted shadow—a shadow like the shadow of a gigantic black bat! It was there—then a second later, it was gone!

"Oh, my God!" wailed Lizzie from her corner. "It's the Bat—that's his sign!"

Jack Bailey made a dash for the terrace door. But Miss Cornelia batted him, preemptorily.

"Wait, Brooks!" She turned to the detective. "Mr. Anderson, you are familiar with the sign of the Bat. Did that look like it?"

The detective seemed both puzzled and disturbed.

"Well—it looked like the shadow of a bat—I'll say that for it," he said, finally.

On the heels of his words the front door bell began to ring. All turned in the direction of the hall.

"I'll answer that!" said Jack Bailey, eagerly.

Miss Cornelia gave him the key of the front door.

"Don't admit anyone till you know who it is," she said. Bailey nodded, and disappeared into the hall.

There was the click of an opening door—the noise of a little scuffle—then men's voices raised in an angry dispute. "What do I know about a flashlight?" cried an irritated voice. "I haven't got a pocket-flash—take your hands off me!" Bailey's voice answered the other voice, grim, threatening. The scuffle resumed.

Then Doctor Wells burst suddenly into the room, closely followed by Bailey. The doctor's tie was askew—he looked ruffled and enraged. Bailey followed him, vigilantly, not quite sure whether to allow him to enter or not.

"My dear Miss Van Gorder," began the doctor in tones of high dudgeon. "Won't you instruct your servants that even if I do make a late call, I am not to be received with violence?"

"I asked you if you had a pocket-flash about you?" answered Bailey, indignantly. "If you call a question like that, violence—" He seemed about to restrain the doctor by physical force.

Miss Cornelia quelled the tempest.

"It's all right, Brooks," she said, taking the front-door key from his hand and putting it back on the table. She turned to Doctor Wells.

"You see, Doctor Wells," she explained, "just a moment before you rang the door-bell, a circle of white light was thrown on those window shades."

The doctor laughed, with a certain relief.

"Why, that was probably the searchlight from my car!" he said. "I noticed as I drove up that it fell directly on that window."

Miss Cornelia was not entirely at ease.

"In the center of this ring of light," she proceeded, her eyes on the doctor's calm countenance, "was an almost perfect silhouette of a bat."

"A bat!" The doctor seemed at sea. "Ah, I see—the symbol of the criminal of that name." He laughed again.

"I think I can explain what you saw. Quite often my lamps collect insects at night—and a large moth, spread on the glass, would give precisely the effect you speak of. Just to satisfy you, I'll go out and take a look."

He turned to do so. Then he caught sight of the raincoat-covered huddle on the floor.

"Why—" he said, in a voice that mingled astonishment with horror. He paused. His glance slowly traversed the circle of silent faces.

CHAPTER VII

Billy Practices Jiu-Jitsu

"We have had a very sad occurrence here, Doctor," said Miss Cornelia, gently.

The doctor braced himself.

"Who?"

"Richard Fleming."

"Richard Fleming?" gasped the doctor, in tones of incredulous horror.

"Shot and killed from that staircase," said Miss Cornelia, tonelessly.

The doctor knelt beside the huddle on the floor. He removed the fold of the raincoat that covered the face of the corpse and stared at the dead, blank mask. Till a moment ago, even at the height of his irritation with Bailey, he had been blithe and off-hand—a man who seemed comparatively young for his years. Now age seemed to fall upon him, suddenly, like a gray, clinging dust—he looked stricken and feeble under the impact of this unexpected shock.

"Shot and killed from that staircase," he repeated, dully. He rose from his knees and glanced at the fatal stairs. Then:

"What was Richard Fleming doing in this house at this hour?" he said.

He spoke to Miss Cornelia but Anderson answered the question.

"That's what I'm trying to find out," he said, with a saturnine smile.

The doctor gave him a look of astonished inquiry. Miss Cornelia remembered her manners.

"Doctor—this is Mr. Anderson."

"Headquarters," said Anderson, tersely, shaking hands.

Miss Cornelia addressed Doctor Wells.

"I didn't tell you, doctor—I sent for a detective this afternoon." Then, with mounting suspicion, "You happened in very opportunely!"

The doctor pulled himself together.

"After I left the Johnsons' I felt very uneasy," he explained. "I determined to make one more effort to get you away from this house. As this shows—my fears were justified!"

He shook his head, sadly. Miss Cornelia sat down. His last words had given her food for thought. She wanted to mull them over for a moment.

The doctor took out his handkerchief and began to mop his face, as if to wipe away some strain of mental excitement under which he was laboring. His breath came quickly—the muscles of his jaw stood out.

"Died instantly, I suppose?" he said, looking over at the body. "Didn't have time to say anything?"

"Ask the young lady," said Anderson, with a jerk of his head. "She was here when it happened."

The doctor gave Dale a feverish glance of inquiry.

"He just fell over," said the latter pitifully. Her answer seemed to relieve the doctor of some unseen weight on his mind. He drew a long breath, and turned back toward Fleming's body with comparative calm.

"Mr. Anderson," he said, with dignified pleading, "I ask you to use your influence to see that these two ladies had some outer spot than this for the night."

Lizzie bounced up from her chair, instantly.

"Two?" she wailed. "If you know any safe spot, lead me to it!"

The doctor overlooked her sudden eruption into the scene. He wandered back again toward the huddle under the raincoat, as if still unable to believe that it was—or rather had been—Richard Fleming.

Miss Cornelia spoke suddenly, in a low voice, without moving a muscle of her body.

"I have a strange feeling that I'm being watched by unfriendly eyes," she said.

Lizzie clutched at her across the table.

"I wish the lights would go out again!" she pattered. "No, I don't either!" as Miss Cornelia gave the clutched hand a nervous little slap.

During the little interlude of comedy, Billy, the Japanese, unwatched by the others, had stolen to the French windows, pulled aside a blind, looked out. When he turned back to the room, his face had lost a portion of its oriental calm—there was suspicion in his eyes. Softly, under cover of pretending to arrange the tray of food that lay untouched on the table, he possessed himself of the key of the front door, unperceived by the rest, and slipped out of the room like a ghost.

Meanwhile the detective confronted Doctor Wells.

"You say, doctor, that you came back to take these women away from the house. Why?"

"The doctor gave him a dignified stare.

"Miss Van Gorder has already explained."

Miss Cornelia elucidated. "Mr. Anderson has already found a theory of Pulled Aside a Blind and Locked Out.

the crime," she said with a trace of sarcasm in her tones.

The detective turned on her quickly. "I haven't said that." He started.

It had come again—tinkling—persistent—the phone-call from nowhere—the ringing of the bell of the house telephone!

"The house telephone—again!" breathed Dale. Miss Cornelia made a movement to answer the tinkling, inexplicable bell. But Anderson was before her.

"I'll answer that!" he barked. He sprang to the phone.

"Hello—hello—"

All eyes were bent on him, nervously—the doctor's face, in particular, seemed a very study in fear and amazement. He clutched the back of a chair to support himself—his hand was the trembling hand of a sick, old man.

"Hello—hello—" Anderson swore impatiently. He hung up the phone.

"There's nobody there!"

Again a chill breath from another world than ours seemed to brush across the faces of the little group in the living room.

A light came into Anderson's eyes.

"Where's that Jap?" he almost shouted.

"He just went out," said Miss Cornelia. The cold fear—the fear of the nearby—subsided from around Dale's heart—leaving her shaken, but more at peace.

The detective turned swiftly to the doctor, as if to put his case before the eyes of an unprejudiced witness.

"That Jap rang the phone," he said, decisively. "Miss Van Gorder believes that this murder is the culmination of the series of mysterious happenings that caused her to send for me. I do not."

"Then what is the significance of the anonymous letters?" broke in Miss Cornelia heatedly. "Of the man Lizzie saw going up the stairs of the attempt to break into this house—of the ringing of that telephone bell?"

Anderson replied with one deliberate word.

"Terrorization," he said.

The doctor moistened his dry lips in an effort to speak.

"By whom?" he asked.

Anderson's voice was an icicle.

"I imagine, by Miss Van Gorder's own servants. By that woman there," he pointed at Lizzie, who rose indignantly to deny the charge. But he gave her no time for denial. He rushed on, "who probably writes the letters," he continued. "By the gardener," his pointing finger found Bailey, "who may have been the man Lizzie saw slipping up the stairs. By the Jap, who goes out and rings the telephone," he concluded triumphantly.

Miss Cornelia seemed unimpressed by his fervor.

"With what object?" she queried smoothly.

"That's what I'm going to find out!" There was determination in Anderson's reply.

Miss Cornelia sniffed. "Absurd! The butler was in his room when the telephone rang for the first time."

The thrust pierced Anderson's armor. For once he seemed at a loss. Here was something he had omitted from his calculations. But he did not give up. He was about to retort when—crash! thud!—the noise of a violent struggle in the hall outside drew all eyes to the hall door.

An instant later, the door slammed open, and a disheveled young man in evening clothes was catapulted into the living room as if stung there by a giant's arm. He tripped and fell to the floor in the center of the room. Billy stood in the doorway behind him, inscrutable, arms folded, on his face an expression of mild satisfaction as if he were demurely pleased with a neat piece of housework, neatly carried out.

The young man picked himself up, brushed off his clothes, sought for his hat, which had rolled under the table. Then he turned on Billy furiously.

"D—n you—what do you mean by this?"

"Jiu-jitsu," said Billy, his yellow face quite untroubled. "Pretty good stuff. Found on terrace with searchlight," he added.

"With searchlight?" barked Anderson.

"Who are you?"

"Who are you?" said the young man, with cool impertinence, giving him stare for stare.

Anderson did not deign to reply, in so many words. Instead he displayed the police badge which glittered on the inside of the right lapel of his coat.

The young man examined it coolly.

"It's," he said. "Very pretty—nice neat design—very chaste!" He took out a cigarette case and opened it, seemingly entirely unimpressed by both the badge and Anderson. The detective chafed.

"If you've finished admiring my badge," he said with heavy sarcasm, "I'd like to know what you were doing down on the terrace."

The young man hesitated—shot an odd, swift glance at Dale who, ever since his abrupt entrance into the room, had been sitting rigid in her chair with her hands clenched tightly together.

Trace All Alphabets to Symbolic Pictures

While printing, of course, has unlocked the intelligence of the world, still even before printing there were records and communications. At first, these merely consisted of pictures. They, the pictures were arranged in series so that there was narration. Next, through use, these pictures became symbols, that is, they were given a phonetic value. For example, the circle which the Egyptians used to represent the sun, in time became a symbol.

It was the Assyrians, however, who were first to take these various symbols and give them arbitrary values phonetically. They were still pictures, but they conveyed sounds.

Thus was formed the basis of all alphabets, Roman, Hebrew, Greek, Russian, Turkish, Armenian and Arabic. Different these may seem, but all can be traced back to the common origin.

Take the letter "A" of today. In the Phoenician-Assyrian alphabet that letter represented ox and was designated by a conventional ox's head. The Greeks took it and turned it upside down, refined it and made it more graceful. In Hebrew, the word Beth is very common. Originally, it was an upright rectangle with a cross stroke in the center. In other words, a drawing of a house, which is what it means in Hebrew. Now the old rec-angle with the corners rounded is B, that also being due to Greek influence, the Greeks favoring the curved line of beauty rather than the rigid rectangle.

"Cheap" Only in Name.

America's visitors to London learn to their sorrow that Cheapside is "cheap" only in name.

Cheapside was the principal London street market, when retail trade was carried on around old St. Paul's cathedral. The names of many of the thoroughfares leading into the western end of Cheapside are, for instance, Milk street, Broad street, Wood street and Honey lane, are reminiscent of this period.

"Cheap" was the old English name for market. In the sixteenth century the form Cheapsyd appears, from which the present spelling originated.

Emblems of Authority

Lictors were the attendants of the magistrates of ancient Rome. They carried axes, around the handles of which were bound a bundle of rods. These represented law and order and the power to punish offenders. The lictors preceded a magistrate, such as a consul or a praetor, in the streets of Rome, a sort of bodyguard to protect the magistrates and to emphasize authority.

Auto Is Taking Place of Jirikisha in Japan

The recent opening of the Tokyo-Yokohama highway for through automobile traffic marks the decline of the Jirikisha—the little two-wheeled coddle-drawn cart so characteristic of Japan and the Far East.

Occidental travelers do not feel that they have done justice to Japan without having a jaunt in the Jirikisha. While the vehicle does not meet with the western conception of comfort, it nevertheless gives a thrill to the stranger when he rides behind a coolie for the first time. But now the automobile is growing in favor in Japan, and with the decline of the old method of travel, many narrow streets and alleys, which were endurable with the Jirikisha, are apparently doomed. Not a few Japanese cities are undertaking a program of street widening and street improvement to accommodate the motor car.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

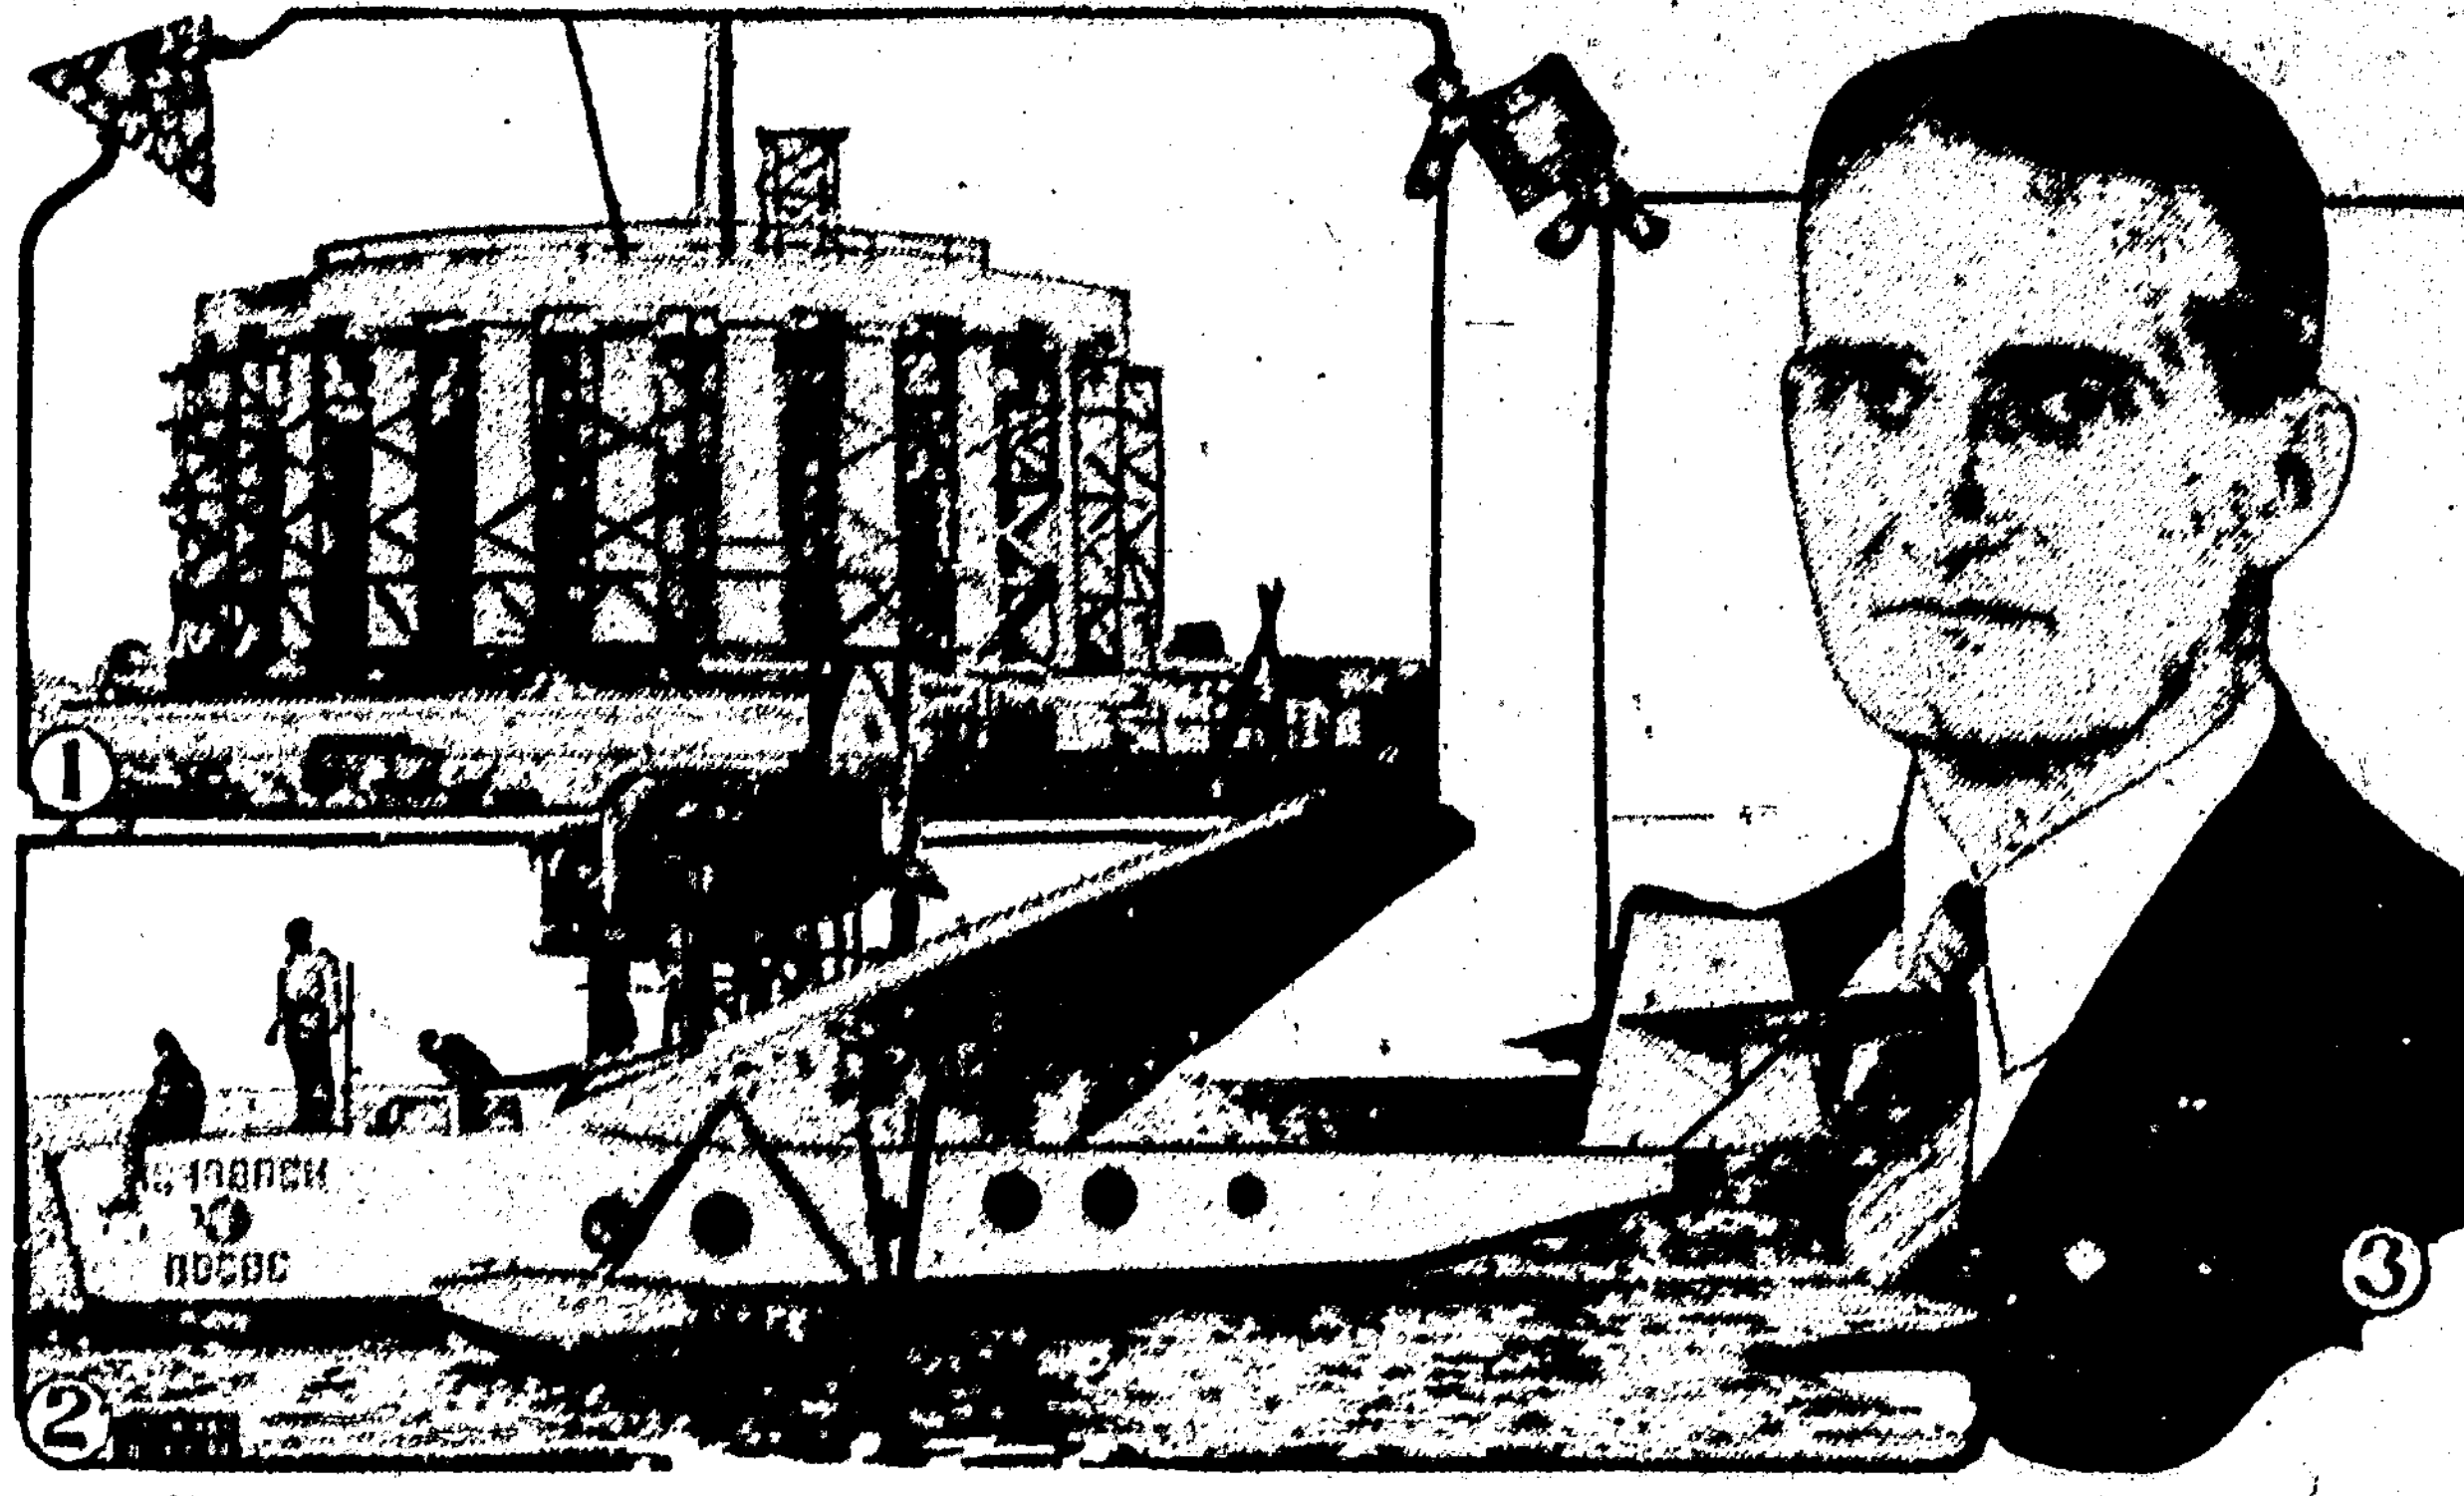

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Teapot Dome Lease Is Canceled—Woman Fails in Atlantic Flight.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FINAL victory has been scored by the federal government in its three years' fight to regain the valuable oil fields that were leased to others by Albert B. Fall when he was secretary of the Interior. Last week the Supreme Court of the United States affirmed the Teapot Dome lease held by Harry F. Sinclair. The decision sustained the ruling of the Circuit Court of Appeals which reversed a Wyoming federal court that upheld the validity of the lease. This brings back to the government Wyoming oil lands estimated to be worth $100,000,000, plus $3,000,000 in cash now in the hands of the court's receivers; $2,000,000 worth of oil taken out by Sinclair before suit was started and for which he must make restitution, and more than $1,000,000 worth of oil tanks, pipe lines and other improvements constructed by Sinclair, but for which the court denies him equity because of the leasing form.

RUITH ELDER, daring and skillful Florida aviator, almost achieved her ambition to be the first woman to fly across the Atlantic. With George Handman as copilot, she drove the plane American Girl to within about 1,000 miles of Paris despite strong head winds that forced them off their course, and then a broken oil line forced them to come down in the ocean. Fortunately the Dutch tanker Harendrecht was close by and picked up the two flyers unhurt. An attempt to salvage the plane was made, but a gasoline tank exploded and it was burned. The rescue took place about 800 miles northeast of the Azores and the aviators were taken to the island, whence they were to continue their trip to France by steamer.

Miss Elder and Handman were in the air more than 41 hours and flew 2,574 miles—a record for all-water flights. The storm they encountered reduced their average speed from the expected 100 miles an hour to about 72. The last five hours of their flight was made with no oil pressure in their motor.

AMERICAN workers still yearn for their beer and have not given up hope of getting it. The American Federation of Labor, in convention in Los Angeles, adopted by viva voce vote a resolution demanding that congress modify the Volstead act "so as to permit the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer."

The delegates also rejected resolutions denouncing the government's policy in Latin America and China, and approved the Monroe Doctrine.

MEXICO'S latest revolutionary movement is, as predicted, effectively suppressed and Calles is more firmly in the saddle than ever, with Obregon assured of the succession to the Presidency. General Gomez and his band of followers in the state of Vera Cruz were attacked at Chahuilco by loyal troops under General Escobar and utterly routed, bombing planes playing a considerable part in the engagement. Gomez and his staff officers, seeing the day was lost, fled into the hills. Felix Palavicini, a journalist who has been deported, lays all the blame for the mutiny on General Serrano, who was caught and executed. Obregon says that when he becomes President he will follow Calles' policy in compelling Catholics and other religious denominations to respect the laws, since this policy has the support of the majority of the people of the country.

YUGO-SLAVIA and Bulgaria have practically settled their row over raids by Bulgarian comitadjis or irregulars along the border, but now Poland and Lithuania are on the eve of a break which may have serious consequences. The Lithuanian government has closed Polish schools and confiscated Polish estates in Lithuania, and plans to declare Vilna the capital of the country, despite the fact that that city was seized by Poland seven years ago. Then, last week, a number of Poles were arrested in Lithuania on charges of having plotted the assassination of President Smetona. The Polish government sent an ultimatum to Kovno threatening action unless Lithuania should radically alter its policy within one week. Marshal Pilsudski, dictator of Poland, wishes to avoid the use of force if possible, but the British minister to Warsaw reports that the situation is fraught with danger.

OVER in China the pendulum has swung back and the Shensi armies that had defeated Marshal Chang's troops and threatened to take Peking have themselves been beaten in battle and at last reports were retreating westward in considerable disorder. About 10,000 of the Shensi soldiers were captured and sent into Manchuria. The northern forces began operations for the capture of Shensi province and against Gen. Feng-Yu-hsiang in Houan province. Peking's feeling of relief was modified by the knowledge that it had been saved partly by the calling in of a horde of 15,000 Mongol cavalry, reputed to be the fiercest and most cruel fighters in all Asia.

SPAIN began its return to a constitutional parliamentary government last week with the formal opening of the new national assembly by King Alfonso. But it was only a faint start that way, for the assembly membership is picked by the dictator, Gen. Primo de Rivera, and so seems certain to do the bidding of the directorate which he heads. Two of the women delegates, the duchess of Parcent and Countess San Luis, resigned just before the assembly opened.

SENATOR JAMES A. REED of Missouri, who stands ready to accept the Democratic Presidential nomination if Gov. Al Smith cannot get it, was endorsed as a candidate by the Missouri state committee at Sedalia, and then delivered to a big assemblage of Democrats what was considered the keynote speech for his party in the coming campaign. He denounced Republican rule as no less corrupt now than during the Harding administration and scored Mellon, Daugherty and Fall. Making a plea for unity, the senator said:

"Let us make our fight beneath banners proclaiming the right of each citizen to regulate his own personal conduct—chart his own course through life—determine his own habits and to control the affairs of his own household, free from all restrictions. 'If thy people are to remain free, local self-government and the sovereignty of the states must be preserved. The march of centralization must be arrested. Government by boards and bureaucracies must cease.

"Let us demand: 'The honest administration of government. 'The swift and sure punishment of all public plunderers, bribe-mongers and other malefactors. 'The equalization of the burden of taxation. 'The repeal of all laws creating special privileges. 'The dismantling of an army of spies, snipers, sneaks, and informers."

RADICAL Republican senators have been holding a series of conferences in Washington, and it was reported their purpose was to promote the Presidential boom of Senator Norris of Nebraska. But some of them issued a signed statement disclaiming any "third party" intentions and denying they planned insurgency within their party. Their purpose, said these gentlemen—Norris, Norris, Frazier, Nye and Brookhart—was to form a strong Western bloc and "get some unity of purpose and some solidarity of action" among Western senators and to impress upon the Eastern states and their representatives in congress that, as Senator Borah explained it, "a large portion of the United States lies west of the Allegheny mountains."

Friends of Norris, it is said, intend to enter his name in these fourteen preferential primary states: California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

MAYOR DUVALL of Indianapolis, convicted of political corruption, was sentenced last week to thirty days in jail and fined $1,000, and disfranchised for four years. He will appeal the case and says he will not resign until this appeal has been carried through the State Supreme court. The prosecutors believed he would be forced to quit office, in which case his wife, now city controller, would succeed him. Numerous civic groups are determined to oust both the Duvalls.

FEDERAL JUDGE F. P. SCHOONMAKER at Pittsburgh issued one of the most sweeping injunctions in the history of labor disputes, restraining the United Mine Workers of America, its officials and its members. Virtually every activity of the union against the nonunion Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation was forbidden. The union and its members were restrained from violence of any sort against company employees and preceptive company property. Union pickets were restrained from putting their feet on company property, but were allowed to establish a single picket post on each road leading to the mines. Such pickets were cautioned against using abusive language, but were permitted the use of peaceful persuasion.

The long strikes of coal miners has been ended in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and other Middle Western fields, the men temporarily receiving the wages called for by the Jacksonville agreement until the question of pay has been settled by commissioners to be appointed.

WILLIAM T. COSGRAVE, President of the Irish Free State, obtained a majority of six votes in the new Dail Eireann and was re-elected. The followers of De Valera and the Labor party voted solidly against him, and the Redmondites refrained from voting. The chief attack on Cosgrave was delivered by Sean T. O'Kelly, a De Valera man, who declared the President was the tool of England and attacked his financial and economic policies. Next day Cosgrave announced his cabinet, which was approved by the same vote, and also announced that the Farmers' party had fused with the government party.

DEATHS of the week include those of Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., a leader in the Catholic church; Col. F. J. Dillon, member of the federal radio commission; F. D. Stout, one of the ten wealthiest men of Chicago, and Don Miguel, duke of Braganza and pretender to the throne of Portugal.

Kea Bouman Is Unique Star

Kea Bouman of Holland really is a unique figure in the group of international feminine net stars who have invaded the States this season. Others may have a more unusual game—it is hard to judge of that, for Miss Bouman has not been seen at her best in America—but she is unique in that she is the first woman from the Netherlands to become an international tennis figure.

Kea Bouman.

months out of the year, and never on grass until three years ago, when she went to Wimbledon for the first time.

The history of her career is extraordinary in many respects. Contrary to that of other international stars, there is no professional tutor in the background of her early tennis. In fact, she was champion of Holland for five years before she had her first lesson from a pro.

Her father, an ardent devotee of the game, and one of Holland's veteran racketeers, taught her the fundamentals of play when she was still a schoolgirl and her first national championship was won while she was in the junior ranks. But all of this time Miss Bouman did not take the game seriously as Suzanne Lenglen or Helen Wills would understand the term. She played never more than two or three

"It is next to impossible to name the greatest backfield of all time," says Dr. Clarence Spears, of Minnesota. "Personally I would not care to undertake the job."

"I think a better way would be to name the shiftest backfield, the most versatile, the most powerful, the fastest, and so on."

"If you want a backfield for speed, agility and quickness, I don't think you can pick a better all-time combination than 'Gus' Dorris of Notre Dame at quarter, Conn of California and Pollard of Brown at the halves, and McLaren of Pittsburgh, at full-back. The game never saw four backs who combined speed, agility and quickness to a finer degree than these four, at least they never had four equals in my opinion."

"Should you care to select a backfield that combines speed, power and drive, what better combination can you get than Eddle Mahan of Harvard, Willie Heston of Michigan, George Gipp of Notre Dame, and Jim Thorpe of Carlisle? Here is a backfield that many will consider the best set of backs of all time."

Succeeds Yost

Fielding Yost, one of the world's greatest football coaches, threw a bombshell into the first meeting of the football candidates for this season at Michigan university, when he announced, "I do not find it possible to coach football this year." Yost's right-hand man, Tad Wieman, shown in the photograph, will succeed Yost.

Ty Cobb Begins His 23rd Season in Big Leagues

Ty Cobb has started his twenty-third year in big league baseball. On August 30, 1925, he joined the Detroit Tigers, where he remained as player and later manager for 21 years. In entering upon his twenty-third year Cobb is believed to have added another record to his long and brilliant career on the diamond. Pop Anson and Cy Young, other players with long records, each played for 21 years. Cobb made his 21,000th run on April 26 last. He made his 4,000th hit on July 15 and went to bat for the 11,000th time in a recent game.

"I have learned a lot about the old game in this time," said Cobb. "And I'm not going to give up trying until I quit the game for good."

Sport Notes

Babe Ruth receives $92 an hour. This is based on five hours a day.

Both Boston clubs are spending much money on rookies to make a better showing in 1928.

United States navy soccer team will entertain Penn at Annapolis, October 22.

"Jus" Lundgren, assistant varsity coach to Bob Zupko at University of Illinois, has started his twenty-fourth year of service.

Three of the greatest fighters of their time, Jack McAuliffe, Jack Dempsey (the Nonpareil) and Kid Lavigne, were coopers by trade.

The past season was one of the most successful in the history of light harness racing, especially in the New England states.

Salvo of Frank Emmer, Minneapolis shortstop and 1927 home run king of the American association, to the Detroit Tigers, is announced.

Cleveland with Shaute, Buckeye and Miller is better equipped with catchup pitching than any other club in either major league.

Nineteen-year-old Jimmy Everingham is professional golf instructor at the Twin Valley club of Sioux City. He is a former caddy and recently completed his high school studies.

Eddie Phillips, catcher of the Nashville team of the Southern association, announces that he has been bought by the Detroit Tigers for $25,000.

George Voh Eitz, who has no superior in amateur golf ranks with his iron shots, developed his strong wrists, hands and forearms through boxing.

Bib Folk, one of the best outfielders in the game when he feels in the mood, is said to be dissatisfied at Chicago and anxious for a change of scenery.

Many big league ball players have entered the movies but Ernie Orsatti, recruit outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, is the first movie actor to forsake the studio for the basketball diamond.

The Upton family, consisting of Loren Upton, his wife and son, Loren, Jr., once held all three city golf championships of Sacramento, Calif.—senior, women's and junior titles, respectively.

W. H. Deltz, one of Warner's best tackles in the days when the Carlisle Indians were ninking football history in the East, has been added to the Stanford gridiron staff, of which Warner is chief.

Tommy Gibbons, former world's light heavyweight champion and a brave of the Blackfoot tribe since 1923, has been promoted. He is now a "chief" of the same tribe and is named "Fighting Thunder."

"Wyoming" Warner, viewed by boxing experts as a fine prospect for the heavyweight title, is a university man and a former football end. His grandfather was mayor of a big western city.

Betty Nuthall, England's winsome tennis star, is not the only member of her family to devote herself to the court game. Three younger sisters and a brother are ready to make their debut in tournament play.

THE BAT A Novel from the Play

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART and AVERY HOPWOOD

"The Bat" copyright, 1920, by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood.

STORY FROM THE START

Defying all efforts to capture him, after a long series of murders and robberies, a super-crook known only as "The Bat" has brought about a veritable reign of terror. The chief of police assigns his best operative, Anderson, to get on the trail of The Bat. With her niece, Dale Ogden, Miss Cornelia Van Gorder is living in the country home of the late Courtleigh Fleming, who until his recent death had been president of the Union bank, wrecked because of the theft of a large sum of currency. Miss Van Gorder receives a note warning her to vacate the place at once on pain of death. Dale returns from the city, where she had been to hire a gardener. The gardener arrives, giving his name as Brooks. He admits he is not a gardener, but needs work. Miss Cornelia tells Doctor Wells of the threatening note. They are interrupted by the smashing of a window in the house. They find another warning note. The detective, Anderson, arrives, is told of the situation, and announces he will stay on watch that night. Miss Van Gorder tells Anderson she has an idea Courtleigh Fleming robbed his own bank and concealed the money in the house, but the detective believes the bank's cashier, Richard Fleming, is the guilty one. Brooks (who is really Bailey, the sought-for cashier, and Dale's fiancé) tells the girl he knows there is a hidden room in the house. Dale tells Richard Fleming, Courtleigh's nephew, of her knowledge of the hidden room. He gets rid of her while he seeks and finds blue-prints of the house. Dale, returning, finds he has the secret in a scrap of paper, but she refuses to give it to her fiancé, who means to have the money if it is there. Knowing the finding of the money means everything to Bailey, Dale seizes part of the scrap of paper and during the struggle Fleming is shot and killed.

He stopped. His right hand moved idly over the edge of the table—halted beside an ash tray—closed upon something.

Miss Cornelia arose.

"Is that true, Dale?" she said, sorrowfully.

Dale nodded. "Yes." She could not trust herself to explain at greater length.

Then Miss Cornelia made one of the most magnificent gestures of her life. "Well, even if it is—what has that got to do with it?" she said, turning upon Anderson, fiercely, all her protective instinct for those whom she loved aroused.

Anderson seemed somewhat impressed by the fierceness of her query. When he went on, it was with less harshness in his manner.

"I'm not accusing this girl," he said, more gently. "But behind every crime there is a motive. When we've found the motive for this crime, we'll have found the criminal."

Unobserved, Dale's hand instinctively went to her bosom. There it lay—the motive—the precious fragment of blue-print which she had torn from Fleming's grasp but an instant before he was shot down. Once Anderson found it in her possession—the case was closed—the evidence against her overwhelming. She could not destroy it—it was the only clue to the hidden room and the truth that might clear Jack Bailey. But, somehow, she must hide it—get it out of her hands—before Anderson's third-degree methods broke her down or he insisted on a search of her person. Her eyes roved wildly about the room, looking for a hiding place.

The rain of Anderson's questions began anew.

"What papers did Fleming burn in that grate?" he asked abruptly, turning back to Dale.

"Papers!" she faltered.

"Papers! The ashes are still there." Miss Cornelia made an unavailing interruption.

"Miss Ogden has said he didn't come into this room."

The detective smiled.

"I hold in my hand proof that he was in this room for some time," he said, coldly, displaying the half-burnt cigarette he had taken from the ash-tray a moment before.

"His cigarette—with his monogram on it." He put the fragment of tobacco and paper carefully away in an envelope and marched over to the fireplace. There he rummaged among the ashes for a moment, like a dog uncovering a bone. He returned to the center of the room with a fragment of blackened blue paper fluttering between his fingers.

"A fragment of what is technically known as a blue-print," he announced.

"What were you and Richard Fleming doing with a blue-print?" His eyes bored into Dale's.

Dale hesitated—she had her lips.

"Now, think it over!" he warned.

"The truth will come out, sooner or later! Better be frank now!"

"If he only knew how I wanted to be—he wouldn't be so cruel," thought Dale wearily. "But I can't—can't!" Then her heart gave a throbbing relief. Jack had come back into the room—

Jack and Billy—Jack would protect her! But even as she thought of this, her heart sang again. Protect her, indeed! Poor Jack! He would find it hard enough to protect himself, if once this terrible man with the cold smile and steely eyes started questioning him.

Bailey made his report, breathlessly. "Nothing in the house, sir."

Billy's impassive lips confirmed him. "We go all over house—nobody!"

"Nobody—nobody in the house! And yet—the mysterious ringing of the phone—the groans Miss Cornelia had heard! Were old wives' tales and witches' fables true, after all? Did a power—merciless—evil—exist, outside the barriers of the flesh—blasting that trembling flesh with a cold breath from beyond the portals of the grave? There seemed to be no other explanation.

"You men stay here!" said the detective. "I want to ask you some questions." He doggedly returned to his third-degreeing of Dale.

"Now what about this blue-print?" he queried sharply.

Dale stiffened in her chair. Her lies had failed. Now she would tell a portion of the truth—as much of it as she could without menacing Jack.

"I'll tell you just what happened," she began. "I sent for Richard Fleming—and when he came, I asked him if he knew where there were any blue-prints of the house."

The detective pounced eagerly upon her admission.

"Why did you want blue-prints?" he thundered.

"Because," Dale took a long breath, "I believe old Mr. Fleming took the money himself from the Union bank and hid it here."

"Where did you get that idea?"

"Because I'd heard there was a hidden room in this house."

The detective leaned forward intently.

"Did you locate that room?"

Dale hesitated.

"No."

"Then why did you burn the blue-prints?"

Dale's nerve was crumbling—breaking—under the repeated, monotonous impact of his questions.

"He burned them!" she cried wildly, "I don't know why!"

The detective paused an instant, then returned to a previous query.

"Then you didn't locate this hidden room?"

Dale's lips formed a pale "No."

"Did he?" went on Anderson, inexorably.

Dale stared at him, dully—the breaking point had come. Another question—another—and she would no longer be able to control herself. She would sob out the truth hysterically—that Brooks, the gardener, was Jack Bailey, the missing cashier—that the scrap of blue-print hidden in the bosom of her dress might unravel the secret of the hidden room—that—

But just as she felt herself, sucked of strength, beginning to slide toward a black, tingling pit of merciful oblivion, Miss Cornelia provided a diversion.

"What's that?" she said, in a startled voice, staring toward the French windows.

All eyes followed the direction of her stare. There was an instant of silence.

Then, suddenly, traveling swiftly from right to left, across the shades of the French windows, there appeared a glowing circle of brilliant white light. Inside the circle was a black, distorted shadow—a shadow like the shadow of a gigantic black bat! It was there—then a second later, it was gone!

"Oh, my God!" wailed Lizzie from her corner. "It's the Bat—that's his sign!"

Jack Bailey made a dash for the terrace door. But Miss Cornelia halted him, peremptorily.

"Wait, Brooks!" She turned to the detective. "Mr. Anderson, you are familiar with the sign of the Bat. Did that look like it?"

The detective seemed both puzzled and disturbed.

"Well—it looked like the shadow of a bat—I'll say that for it," he said, dully.

On the heels of his words the front door bell began to ring. All turned in the direction of the hall.

"I'll answer that!" said Jack Bailey, eagerly.

Miss Cornelia gave him the key of the front door.

"Don't admit anyone till you know who it is," she said. Bailey nodded, and disappeared into the hall.

There was the click of an opening door—the noise of a little scuffle—then men's voices raised in an angry dispute. "What do I know about a flashlight?" cried an irritated voice, "I haven't got a pocket-dash—take your hands off me!" Bailey's voice answered the other voice, grim, threatening. The scuffle resumed.

Then Doctor Wells burst suddenly into the room, closely followed by Bailey. The doctor's tie was askew—he looked ruffled and enraged. Bailey followed him, vigilantly, not quite sure whether to allow him to enter or not.

"My dear Miss Van Gorder," began the doctor in tones of high dudgeon. "Won't you instruct your servants that even if I do make a late call, I am not to be received with violence?"

"I asked you if you had a pocket-dash about you!" answered Bailey, indignantly. "If you call a question like that, violence—" He seemed about to restrain the doctor by physical force.

Miss Cornelia quelled the tempest.

"It's all right, Brooks," she said, taking the front-door key from his hand and putting it back on the table. She turned to Doctor Wells.

"You see, Doctor Wells," she explained, "just a moment before you rang the door-bell, a circle of white light was thrown on those window shades."

The doctor laughed, with a certain relief.

"Why, that was probably the search-light from my car!" he said. "I noticed as I drove up that it fell directly on that window."

Miss Cornelia was not entirely at ease.

"In the center of this ring of light," she proceeded, her eyes on the doctor's calm countenance, "was an almost perfect silhouette of a bat."

"A bat!" The doctor seemed at sea. "Ah, I see—the symbol of the criminal of that name." He laughed again.

"I think I can explain what you saw. Quite often my lamps collect insects at night—and a large moth, spread on the glass, would give precisely the effect you speak of. Just to satisfy you, I'll go out and take a look."

He turned to do so. Then he caught sight of the raincoat-covered huddle on the floor.

"Why . . ." he said, in a voice that mingled astonishment with horror. He paused. His glance slowly traversed the circle of silent faces.

CHAPTER VII

Billy Practices Jiu-Jitsu

"We have had a very sad occurrence here, Doctor," said Miss Cornelia, gently.

The doctor braced himself.

"Who?"

"Richard Fleming?"

"Richard Fleming?" gasped the doctor, in tones of incredulous horror.

"Shot and killed from that staircase," said Miss Cornelia, tonelessly.

The doctor knelt beside the huddle on the floor. He removed the fold of the raincoat that covered the face of the corpse and stared at the dead, blank mask. Till a moment ago, even at the height of his irritation with Bailey, he had been blithe and oil-hand—a man who seemed comparatively young for his years. Now age seemed to fall upon him, suddenly, like a gray, clinging dust—he looked stricken and feeble under the impact of this unexpected shock.

"Shot and killed from that staircase," he repeated, dully. He rose from his knees and glanced at the fatal stairs. Then:

"What was Richard Fleming doing in this house at this hour?" he said.

He spoke to Miss Cornelia but Anderson answered the question.

"That's what I'm trying to find out," he said, with a saturnine smile.

The doctor gave him a look of astonished inquiry. Miss Cornelia remembered her manners.

"Doctor—this is Mr. Anderson."

"Headquarters," said Anderson, tersely, shaking hands.

Miss Cornelia addressed Doctor Wells.

"I didn't tell you, doctor—I sent for a detective this afternoon." Then, with mounting suspicion, "You happened in very opportunely!"

The doctor pulled himself together.

"After I left the Johnsons' I felt very uneasy," he explained. "I determined to make one more effort to get you away from this house. As this shows—my fears were justified!"

He shook his head, sadly. Miss Cornelia sat down. His last words had given her food for thought. She wanted to mull them over for a moment.

The doctor took out his handkerchief and began to mop his face, as if to wipe away some strain of mental excitement under which he was laboring. His breath came quickly—the muscles of his jaw stood out.

"Ask the young lady," said Anderson, with a jerk of his head. "She was here when it happened."

The doctor gave Dale a feverish glance of inquiry.

"He just fell over," said the latter pitifully. Her answer seemed to relieve the doctor of some unseen weight on his mind. He drew a long breath, and turned back toward Fleming's body with comparative calm.

Lizzie bounced up from her chair, instant.

"Two!" she wailed. "If you know any safe spot, lead me to it!"

The doctor overlooked her sudden eruption into the scene. He wandered back again toward the huddle under the raincoat, as if still unable to believe that it was—or rather had been—Richard Fleming.

Miss Cornelia spoke suddenly, in a low voice, without moving a muscle of her body.

"I have a strange feeling that I'm being watched by unfriendly eyes," she said.

Lizzie clutched at her across the table.

"I wish the lights would go out again!" she pattered. "No, I don't either!" as Miss Cornelia gave the clutching hand a nervous little slap.

During the little interlude of comedy, Billy, the Japanese, unwatched by the others, had stolen to the French windows, pulled aside a blind, looked out. When he turned back to the room, his face had lost a portion of its oriental calm—there was suspicion in his eyes. Softly, under cover of pretending to arrange the tray of food that lay untouched on the table, he possessed himself of the key of the front door, unperceived by the rest, and slipped out of the room like a ghost.

Meanwhile the detective confronted Doctor Wells.

"You say, doctor, that you came back to take these women away from the house—why?"

The doctor gave him a dignified stare.

"Miss Van Gorder has already explained."

Miss Cornelia elucidated. "Mr. Anderson has already found a theory of Pulled Aside a Blind and Looked Out.

the crime," she said with a trace of sarcasm in her tones.

The detective turned on her quickly. "I haven't said that." He started.

It had come again—thinking—persistent—the phone-call from nowhere—the ringing of the bell of the house telephone!

"The house telephone—again!" breathed Dale. Miss Cornelia made a movement to answer the tinkling, inexplicable bell. But Anderson was before her.

"I'll answer that!" he barked. He sprang to the phone.

"Hello—hello—"

All eyes were bent on him, nervously—the doctor's face, in particular, seemed a very study in fear and amazement. He clutched the back of a chair to support himself—his hand was the trembling hand of a sick, old man.

"Hello—hello—" Anderson swore impatiently. He hung up the phone.

"There's nobody there!"

Again a chill breath from another world than ours seemed to brush across the faces of the little group in the living room.

A light came into Anderson's eyes. "Where's that Jap?" he almost shouted.

"He just went out," said Miss Cornelia. The cold fear—the fear of the uneasily—subsided from around Dale's heart—leaving her shaken, but more at peace.

The detective turned swiftly to the doctor, as if to put his case before the eyes of an unprejudiced witness.

"That Jap rang the phone," he said, decisively. "Miss Van Gorder believes that this murder is the culmination of the series of mysterious happenings that caused her to send for me. I do not."

"Then what is the significance of the anonymous letters?" broke in Miss Cornelia heatedly. "Of the man Lizzie saw going up the stairs, of the attempt to break into this house—of the ringing of that telephone bell?"

Anderson replied with one deliberate word.

"Terrorization," he said.

The doctor moistened his dry lips in an effort to speak.

"By whom?" he asked.

Anderson's voice was an icicle.

"I imagine, by Miss Van Gorder's own servants. By that woman there," he pointed at Lizzie, who rose indignantly to deny the charge. But he gave her no time for denial. He rushed on, "who probably writes the letters," he continued. "By the gardener," his pointing finger found Bailey, "who may have been the man Lizzie saw slipping up the stairs. By the Jap, who goes out and rings the telephone," he concluded triumphantly.

Miss Cornelia seemed unimpressed by his fervor.

"With what object?" she queried smoothly.

"That's what I'm going to find out!" There was determination in Anderson's reply.

Miss Cornelia sniffed. "Absurd! The butler was in his room when the telephone rang for the first time."

The thrust pierced Anderson's armor. For once he seemed at a loss. Here was something he had omitted from his calculations. But he did not give up. He was about to retort when—crash! thud!—the noise of a violent struggle in the hall outside drew all eyes to the hall door.

An instant later, the door slammed open, and a disheveled young man in evening clothes was catapulted into the living room as if slung there by a giant's arm. He tripped and fell to the floor in the center of the room. Billy stood in the doorway behind him, inscrutable, arms folded, on his face an expression of mild satisfaction as if he were demurely pleased with a neat piece of housework, neatly carried out.

The young man picked himself up, brushed off his clothes, sought for his hat, which had rolled under the table. Then he turned on Billy furiously.

"D—n you—what do you mean by this?"

"Jiu-jitsu," said Billy, his yellow face quite untroubled. "Pretty good stuff. Found on terrace with searchlight," he added.

"With searchlight?" barked Anderson.

"Who are you?"

"Who are you?" said the young man, with cool impertinence, giving him stare for stare.

Anderson did not deign to reply, in so many words. Instead he displayed the police badge which glittered on the inside of the right lapel of his coat.

The young man examined it coolly.

"It's," he said, "very pretty—nice neat design—very chaste!" He took out a cigarette case and opened it, seemingly entirely unimpressed by both the badge and Anderson. The detective chafed.

"If you've finished admiring my badge," he said with heavy sarcasm, "I'd like to know what you were doing down on the terrace."

The young man hesitated—shot an odd, swift glance at Dale who, ever since his abrupt entrance into the room, had been sitting rigid in her chair with her hands clenched tightly together.

Trace All Alphabets to Symbolic Pictures

While printing, of course, has unlocked the intelligence of the world, still even before printing there were records and communications. At first, these merely consisted of pictures. They, the pictures were arranged in series so that there was narration. Next through use, these pictures became symbols, that is, they were given a phonetic value. For example, the circle which the Egyptians used to represent the sun, in time became a symbol.

It was the Assyrians, however, who were first to take these various symbols and give them arbitrary values phonetically. They were still pictures, but they conveyed sounds.

Thus was formed the basis of all alphabets, Roman, Hebrew, Greek, Russian, Turkish, Armenian and Arabic. Different these may seem, but all can be traced back to the common origin.

Take the letter "A" of today. In the Phoenician-Assyrian alphabet that letter represented ox and was designated by a conventional ox's head. The Greeks took it and turned it upside down, refined it and made it more graceful. In Hebrew, the word Aleph is very common. Originally, it was an upright rectangle with a cross stroke in the center. In other words, a drawing of a house, which is what it means in Hebrew. Now the old rectangle with the corners rounded is B, that also being due to Greek influence, the Greeks favoring the curved line of beauty rather than the rigid rectangle.

"Cheap" Only in Name

America's visitors to London learn to their sorrow that Cheapside is "cheap" only in name.

Cheapside was the principal London street market, when retail trade was carried on around Old St. Paul's cathedral. The names of many of the thoroughfares leading into the western end of Cheapside as, for instance, Milk street, Broad street, Wood street and Honey lane, are reminiscent of this period.

"Cheap" was the old English name for market. In the sixteenth century the form Cheapsyd appears, from which the present spelling originated.

Emblems of Authority

Lictors were the attendants of the magistrates of ancient Rome. They carried axes, around the handles of which were bound a bundle of rods. These represented law and order and the power to punish offenders. The lictors preceded a magistrate, such as a consul or a praetor, in the streets of Rome, a sort of bodyguard to protect the magistrates and to emphasize authority.

Keep Your Butter Uniform and Hold Your Customers

Don't wait for your customers to complain about the variable color of your butter. Keep your butter that golden June color everybody likes by putting a few drops of Dandelion Butter Color into the churn. It is purely vegetable, wholesome and absolutely tasteless. It meets all State and National Food laws. All large creameries have used Dandelion Butter Color for years. It does not color buttermilk. You can get the large bottles for 35c from all drug or grocery stores.

Auto Is Taking Place of Jinrikisha in Japan

The recent opening of the Tokyo-Yokohama highway for through automobile traffic marks the decline of the Jinrikisha—the little two-wheeled coolie-drawn cart so characteristic of Japan and the Far East.

Occidental travelers do not feel that they have done justice to Japan without having a jaunt in the Jinrikisha. While the vehicle does not meet with the western conception of comfort, it nevertheless gives a thrill to the stranger when he rides behind a coolie for the first time. But now the automobile is growing in favor in Japan, and with the decline of the old method of travel, many narrow streets and alleys, which were endurable with the Jinrikisha, are apparently doomed. Not a few Japanese cities are undertaking a program of street widening and street improvement to accommodate the motor car.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, also we have backaches and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Lincoln Game Refuges Increase Deer and Turkey

Game refuges established in the Lincoln National Forest in the past few years have brought a large increase of deer, turkey, and hunters will find the shooting good when the season opens Nov. 10, forest officials say.

The overflow from the protected areas keeps the balance of the forest well supplied with game. The number of deer in the private refuge of Cadwallder and Harvey, near Cloudercroft, is estimated at more than 500. Not a gun has been fired in that area for over two years and herds of 15 to 20 deer are often seen at feeding in the fields, Harvey says. Approximately 20,000 acres in Alamo Canyon east of Alamogordo were recently set aside for game refuge.

A survey of game in the Lincoln Forest shows 4,400 deer, 3,050 turkeys, 75 brown bear, 19 black bear, 6 elk and 150 mountain sheep. It is estimated that 1,500 hunters bagged 231 deer, 250 turkeys and 3 bears in the forest last year.

With two small fires occurring this week, the Lincoln National Forest, dry in many places and the hunting season near at hand, forest officials are giving their attention to fire hazards. The two fires in the Mesquero Indian Reservation were held to a five-acre area. Men are to be placed in the lookout stations and fighting equipment is stationed at intervals of two or three miles.

School Notes

The New Mexico Educational Ass'n will meet in Albuquerque Nov. 3, 4, and 5. Teachers are urged to enroll with the Association and receive the N.M. School Review which is a splendid school paper. Enrollment cards may be obtained from the Co-Supr. office. R.R. fares are one and one-half a round trip are offered to teachers attending the convention.

From Monday, Nov. 7, to Sunday, Nov. 13, is known as American Education Week under the joint auspices of the American Legion and the National Ed. Association. Its purpose is to emphasize work, achievements and the needs of the schools. The daily program is as follows: Monday, Health Day; Tuesday, Home and school Day; Wednesday, Know Your School Day; Thursday, School Opportunity; Friday, Armistice Day. Special attention should be given Armistice Day.

The Co. Supt. and Dr. Shaver visited and vaccinated pupils in Monjeau, Alto, Angus, Hollywood and Glencoe schools.

The Supt. is visiting the Ancho, Corona, Brown, and Joneta schools this week.

Patrons are urged to keep their children in school every day. Teachers are employed according to the average daily attendance, not monthly enrollment. The attendance in a few schools is very low, due to children being taken out for various reasons.

Commissioners' Proceedings

Special Meeting of the Board of County Commissioners, Oct.
24, 1927.
Board met at 9 a. m., Tuesday,
Oct. 24, in Special session.
Present--C. F. Grey, Member
W. B. Rose, Member, S. W. Kelsey, Sheriff, Lotah Miller, Clerk.
Absent--R. E. P. Warden, Chairman.

IN THE MATTER of an EL-ECTION, PROCLAMATION

The Board now authorizes the clerk of the Board to issue the following Election Proclamation in conformity with the Statutes.

Election Proclamation

In accordance with the Statute in such case made and provided, we, the undersigned County Commissioners within and for the County of Lincoln, State of New Mexico, hereby proclaim and give public notice of an election to be held in several precincts of said County, on Tuesday, Nov. 8, A. D., 1927, the purpose of which is to vote upon 4 constitutional amendments as follows-- No. 1. Proposing to Amend Section 10 of Article 4 of the constitution of the State of New Mexico. H. J. R. No. 2; Approved March 7, 1927, be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of New Mexico--

That it is hereby proposed to amend Sec. 10 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico, said Article being entitled 'Compensation of Members of the Legislature' so as to read as follows--
'Sec. 10. Each member of the Legislature shall receive as compensation for his services the sum of ten dollars ($10.00)

for each day's attendance during each session, and ten cents
(10) for each mile traveled in going to and returning from the seat of government by the usual traveled route, once each session, and he shall receive no other compensation, prerequisite or allowance.'

Constitutional Amendment
No. 2 A Joint Resolution
Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State of New Mexico

J. R. No 5; Approved March 9, 1927. Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of New Mexico--

That there is hereby proposed the following amendment to the Constitution of the State of New Mexico, to be numbered and designated as Article XXIV.
Article XXIV--State and County Officers. Section 1. The Executive Department shall consist of a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, State Auditor, State Treasurer, Attorney General, Supt. of Public Instruction and Commissioner of Public Lands. Such officers shall be elected at the General Election to be held in the year 1928, and in each 4th year thereafter for the term of 4 years, beginning on the 1st day of January next after their election. Such officers shall after having served 1 term, be ineligible to hold any state office for 4 years thereafter. The officers of the Executive Department, except the Lieutenant-Governor, shall, during their terms of office, reside and keep the public records, books, papers and seals of the office at the seat of Government.

Sec. 2. County officers shall be elected for a term of 2 years and after having served 2 consecutive terms shall be ineligible to hold any county office for 2 years thereafter. The County officers elected at the general election held in 1926 shall hold office 'til the first day of Jan., 1930
County officers shall be elected at an election to be held on the 1st Tuesday after the 1st Monday in November, 1929, and on said day in each odd numbered year thereafter.

Sec. 3 Section 1 of Article IV and Section 2 of Article X of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico are hereby repealed.

Constitutional Amendment No.
3 Senate joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the State of New Mexico, authorizing the exchange of state lands in national forests for land of the United States of equal value as provided by act of Congress approved June 15,
1926, S. J. R. No. 6; approved
March 10, 1927.

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of New Mexico:

Whereas, the Congress of the United States by act of Congress approved June 15, 1926, amended Section 10 of the Enabling Act of the State of New Mexico approved June 20, 1910, so as to provide for the exchange of state land in national forests for land of the United States.

Therefore, the following amendment to the constitution of the state of New Mexico is hereby proposed to be added to Article
XXI as Section 11 thereof.

Sec. 11. This state and its people consent to the provisions of the Act of Congress approved
June 15, 1926, entitled "An Act to amend an Act approved June 20, 1910, entitled an Act to enable the people of New Mexico to form a constitution and state government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original states; and to enable the people of Arizona to form a constitution and state government and be admitted in-
to the Union on an equal footing with the original states," and the governor and other state officers mentioned in said Act, are hereby authorized to execute the necessary instruments to effect the exchange of lands therein provided for. Constitutional amendment No. 5 a joint resolution proposing to amend Sec. 19 of Article 4 of the constitution of the state of New Mexico and fixing the time of holding an election thereon.

S. J. R. No. 8; approved March 14, 1927. Be it Enacted by the Legislature of the state of New Mexico:

Sec. 1. That it is hereby proposed to amend Sec. 19 of Article 4 of the constitution of the state of New Mexico, said article being entitled "Legislative Department," so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 19. No bill shall be introduced at any regular session of the Legislature subsequent to the 45th legislative day, except the general appropriation bill, bills to provide for the current expenses of the government, and bills to enact legislation as may be recommended by the Governor by special message specifically setting forth the emergency or necessity requiring such legislation."

Sec. 2. In event of the passage and approval of the foregoing amendment the same shall be submitted to the people at the general election in Nov., 1928, or at any special election held prior to that time for the purpose of voting on constitutional amendments.

Paul Dodge's Opinion

The Tucumcari News (Dem.)
says:

"Republican newspapers throughout the country have about succeeded in nominating Al Smith as the Democratic candidate for the presidency next year.
'It is possible, nevertheless,
the Democrats may decide differently when convention time arrives. Al Smith cannot be elected."

The campaign method in Mexico is direct and decisive. All you have to do is kill off the opposition candidates. There is then no need for ballot box stuffing.

Lincoln Game Refuges Increase Deer and Turkey

Game refuges established in the Lincoln National Forest in the past few years have brought a large increase of deer, turkey, and hunters will find the shooting good when the season opens Nov. 10, forest officials say.

The overflow from the protected areas keeps the balance of the forest well supplied with game. The number of deer in the private refuge of Cadwallader and Harvey, near Clouderoft, is estimated at more than 500. Not a gun has been fired in that area for over two years and herds of 15 to 20 deer are often seen at feeding in the fields. Harvey says. Approximately 20,000 acres in Alamo Canyon east of Alamogordo were recently set aside for game refuge.

A survey of game in the Lincoln Forest shows 4,400 deer, 3,050 turkeys, 75 brown bear, 10 black bear, 6 elk and 150 mountain sheep. It is estimated that 1,500 hunters bagged 231 deer, 250 turkeys and 3 bears in the forest last year.

With two small fires occurring this week, the Lincoln National Forest, dry in many places and the hunting season near at hand, forest officials are giving their attention to fire hazards. The two fires in the Mesalero Indian Reservation were held to a five-acre area. Men are to be placed in the lookout stations and fighting equipment is stationed at intervals of two or three miles.

School Notes

The New Mexico Educational Ass'n will meet in Albuquerque Nov. 3, 4, and 5. Teachers are urged to enroll with the Association and receive the N.M. School Review which is a splendid school paper. Enrollment cards may be obtained from the Co. Supt. office. R.R. fares are one and one half a round trip are offered to teachers attending the convention.

From Monday, Nov. 7, to Sunday, Nov. 13, is known as American Education Week under the joint auspices of the American Legion and the National Ed Association. Its purpose is to emphasize work, achievements and the needs of the schools. The daily program is as follows: Monday, Health Day; Tuesday, Home and school Day; Wednesday, Know Your School Day; Thursday, School Opportunity; Friday, Armistice Day. Special attention should be given Armistice Day.

The Co. Supt. and Dr. Shaver visited and vaccinated pupils in Monjean, Alto, Angus, Hollywood and Glencoe schools.

The Supt. is visiting the Ancho, Corona, Brown, and Joneta schools this week.

Patrons are urged to keep their children in school every day. Teachers are employed according to the average daily attendance, not monthly enrollment. The attendance in a few schools is very low, due to children being taken out for various causes.

| 50 firm dill pickles | 1/2 cupful whole black pepper, or 6 hot red pepper pods |
| 12 peeled garlic buttons | 10 pounds granulated sugar |
| 1 pint cider vinegar | 1 pound brown sugar |
| 1 pint tarragon vinegar | 1 cupful olive oil |
| 1/4 cupful whole allspice | |

Cut pickles in cross slices one half inch thick, and drain in a colander overnight. In a three-gallon stone crock (with lid) pack the pickles in layers, using two garlic buttons to each layer. Boil together the vinegar, sugar, and spices for 15 minutes, watching carefully that this does not boil over, and pour at once over the pickles. Next morning stir in the olive oil. Stir the pickle well each day for ten days. It is then ready to serve.

Good Things to Eat

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Three things to wish for—health, friends and a loving spirit. There are three things really worth while. To be good, do good and always smile.

We are so busy with putting up fruits for winter that we miss much of the joy of the riotous colors of fruit as it hangs from the trees. Following the luscious berries of summer come the delicious autumn fruits, the late peaches, pears, melons, plums and grapes and the melting sweetness of the cantaloupe, making a group of color unrivaled and flavor unequalled.

As a salad there is nothing more attractive in color or better in flavor than good ripe pears, peeled and cut into sections and arranged on lettuce with the same sliced sections of ripe peeled tomato. Serve with any well-titled salad dressing.

Pears Gateau. Wash six ripe pears, remove the blossom and scoop out the core. Make a rich sirup to which add the juice and some of the grated rind of a lemon. Cook the pears without destroying the shape, lift out and cool and fill the cavities with chopped figs, walnut meats and a pinch of salt to each. Set on ice and when serving time comes cut out squares or rounds of sponge cake, scoop out the centers and set a pear on each piece. Pour the sirup over them and serve.

Grape Dessert. Soften two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in cold water. Add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar to one pint of grape juice (fresh), add the juice of two lemons, strain and add the gelatin. Set the basin containing the mixture into a dish of crushed ice, stir until it thickens, then add the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Fill chilled glasses two-thirds full and pile sweetened whipped cream on top.

Pears With Chocolate Cream. Pare and core firm ripe pears cut into halves. Hollow out the pear, leaving a rim a half inch thick and deep. Have ready some chocolate ice cream scooped in a small cone. Fill the hollowed pears and serve at once.

Deviled Nuts. Blanch almonds or use pecans or walnuts. Place in a hot frying pan with a tablespoonful of olive oil. Stir until well browned, adding salt and cayenne at the last of the cooking. Pour out on a cloth and drain well of all oil.

Potato Salad. This is a good salad for picnics as it carries better than many fruit or other vegetable salads. It may be made as elaborate or simple as one's taste and purse allow. One thing to remember in making potato salad is to cut the potatoes into small cubes, remembering that it is necessary in order to be well seasoned that the dressing is added early and allowed to stand to marinate. Such vegetables as cucumbers may be cubed and added but a short time before the salad is to be served. Take potatoes which have been cooked in their jackets. To a pint of potato add a half cupful of celery, one small onion finely minced and a good cupful of thick dressing. Season well and let stand for several hours. A cucumber added at the last with a handful of shredded almonds that have been blanched adds to such a salad. One may mix the salad, adding French dressing and all the seasonings, then add the thick dressing when the cucumber is added. The important thing is to have the potato well seasoned through. There is nothing more unpalatable than cold plain potato.

Macedoine Salad. Take one cupful each of cooked carrots, cooked potato balls and string beans, two tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one cupful of turnip balls also cooked. Marinate with a good French dressing arrange in sections on lettuce and sprinkle the minced parsley over all.

When one is spending a day or more it is wise to carry a heavy sheet iron stove; one may be easily improvised. Over a hot bed of coals, cakes, bacon, steak or other foods may be cooked.

Such foods as cakes, pie, bread, potatoes and hot cakes should never make up more than half the menu. Young and old should eat spinach, chard, cabbage, carrots, lettuce, turnips, onions, apples, pears, oranges, grapefruit and all berries in season. (© 1927 Western Newspaper Union.)

An Evening Story for Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I'm so willing," said Mrs. Cow. "It's just the way I feel. I'm willing to do anything."

"Now I have had a happy summer and a happy autumn. I've loved the air and I've loved the fields and I've loved the brooks and I've enjoyed the sky and I've liked the trees—and, in general, I've liked it all."

"But I'm willing to spend most of my time in the barn now. I don't mind."

"Of course, when the spring comes I will be glad to go out again, but I don't mind anything so very much."

"There are times when I get excited and when I get angry. Oh, some people make the great mistake of thinking a cow never gets angry."

"Yes, indeed, we have lots of spirit, we cows."

"But I don't get excited often."

"It's so much nicer to be pleasant."

"I've had such a good example set me, or a good-example has been before me, or however you would express it."

"I've never been to school, and I'm no home or field or barn student."

"But, anyway, the point is that I have heard from time to time of a person who draws most handsome and becoming and complimentary pictures of me and yet finds it a great nuisance and bother and hardship to draw cows."

"She says there is something quite awkward about drawing cows. And then she must make her pictures small and we're anything but small."

"But still she does the most lovely

"I Prefer Summer."

pictures of me and of my family that ever could be.

"And I am so pleased and so grateful that I say to myself:

"Now, Mrs. Cow, if an artist can do something so willingly, surely you, who are merely a cow, can be willing, too."

"That is the way I talk to myself, and so I am always so willing."

"That is why you will not hear me complaining whether it is summer or winter, spring or fall."

"I prefer summer to any other season."

"Well, that is all right. The artist adores drawing fairies and the moon and the sun and all sorts of things.

kitchen so that these various requirements will be met is to plan a pass closet in the wall between the kitchen and dining room in such a way that the sink is at right angles to it on the outer wall of the kitchen, so there can be plenty of light from a window either directly over or very near. The pass closet will have shelves for dishes, which can be put away as fast as they are washed, to be taken out on the dining-room side. It will have a counter below the shelves, and thus become part of the cooling center, with the stove next to this counter so that the housewife can stand practically in one spot to handle foods as they are made ready to go into the oven, or as they are taken from it.

The illustration, which was made by the United States Department of Agriculture, shows how easily this arrangement can be carried out in a relatively small space.

KITCHEN ARRANGEMENT WORTH CONSIDERATION

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In the ideal kitchen arrangement the equipment is placed so that one moves with the fewest possible steps from one task to the next. There will be a definite center for each type of work—a food preparation center, a cooking center, a service center, and a clear-away and dishwashing center. To some extent these centers may coincide or be placed very near each other. For example, the food preparation center must be fairly close to the sink, which is the main piece of equipment in the dishwashing center.

Fur Trimmed Coats for Children

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

IT IS immensely flattering to the vanity of wee tots when they discover that their little coats or frocks are of the same material or are perhaps trimmed "just like mother's." In respect to this like-mother-like-child idea there is a fund of joy in prospect for youngsters, for even to a greater degree than heretofore stylists are making it a point to create children's fashions which amusingly reflect the style tendencies of their elders.

Little folks' coats for autumn and the coming winter especially repeat certain style-points as featured in modes for grown-ups. That same enthusiasm which reigns in the realm of the older generation for fur trimmings on tweeds and plaids for sports and on fine suede cloth or velvet for dressy wear is being repeated in child hood's domain.

Cunningest of fur coats, too, accent the trend toward sophisticated styling for the young. Fashion seems forever such imposing furs for tiny tots as a coat of leopard cat collared and cuffed with beaver, or perhaps, for an eight-year-old, a quaint model of spotted calfskin with contrasting fur at neck and wrists, and a belt of red leather. A slightly older girl will be donning a coat of nutria fur, cut double-breasted and with a shawl collar of the same fur, belted with snakeskin. If you please. Surely mother and big sister will have to be "going some" if they expect to make a better record than wee daughter this season in the matter of smart wraps.

As to coats of cloth, suede-finished fabrics are being high-lighted by the mode, for either adult or juvenile wear. For older folks black, the new browns, and becoming wine shades are outstanding, but for tots fascinating dainty colors are added to the list. The attractive coat in the picture is of French blue suede cloth. Note that its fullness flares from a yoke, which is a favorite styling for the children. One of the outstanding messages dashed from Paris is the coming vogue for beaver collars and cuffs on woolen cloakings. For the wee coat in the picture the beaver is used in twin bandings on the chin collar and also to trim the sleeves. (© 1927 Western Newspaper Union.)

French Restaurants

The reason there are so many small restaurants in Paris where the food is of such high quality is because often father is the chef, mother is at the cash desk and the rest of the family waits table, says the Nation's Business.

Granting the superiority of French cooking in itself, it is made infinitely more appealing by the fact that the art is less commercialized than elsewhere. Numbers of great restaurants there are, of course, run on purely business lines, but there are hundreds of good eating places where the owner counts as part of his reward the joy of cooking.

An artist or a cow can like some things more than others.

"But both the artist and the cow have good dispositions and sweet natures."

"Now, before going into the barn, I think I'll sing myself a little song."

So Mrs. Cow began, and this was her song:

Moo, moo, moo,
You, you, you
Aren't a cow.

Moo, moo, moo,
You, you, you
Are an artist.

Moo, moo, moo,
I, I, I
Am a cow.

Moo, moo, moo,
I, I, I
Am no artist.

"Ah," continued Mrs. Cow, "that's not much of a song, but then I'm a good-natured cow. I don't mind if it isn't so good."

"There is comfort in being a cow, and in not being too fussy!"

Homemade Candy—How to Make It

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Here are two recipes for homemade candies that can be tried at the next candy pull given by your young people. The United States Department of Agriculture supplies the recipes.

Peanut Brittle.

- | | |
|--|-------------------|
| 1 cup white corn 1 teaspoon vanilla | 1 cup freshly |
| 1 cup pecan kernels 2-3 cup water | roasted peanut- |
| 1 cup English wal- 1 1/2 pound, or 1 1/2 | nut halves |
| nut kernels | fresh soft marsh- |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt | mallows |

Cook the corn sirup, vinegar and salt in a saucepan until a little dropped in cold water forms a soft ball. Put the peanuts and this sirup into an iron skillet and stir until the sirup becomes a golden brown. Remove from the fire and stir in the vanilla. Have ready a shallow buttered pan, pour candy in and spread out in a thin sheet. Allow to cool, then remove from pan and crack into pieces.

Nut-Coated Marshmallows.

- | | |
|--|-------------------|
| 1 cup blanched al- 2 cups medium | brown sugar |
| monds | 2-3 cup water |
| 1 cup pecan kernels | 1/2 cup wal- |
| 1 cup English wal- 1 1/2 pound, or 1 1/2 | nut halves |
| nut kernels | fresh soft marsh- |
| 1/2 teaspoons salt | mallows |

Chop the nuts very fine, and shake through a sieve to get the pieces uniform. Add the salt to the chopped nuts and stir well.

Make a sirup of the brown sugar and water, boiling it to 103 degrees C., or 220 degrees F. If no thermometer is available the sirup should be boiled till it "threads" from the spoon; but this method of determining the right moment to take it off the fire is not so accurate or satisfactory. Remove the saucepan from the flame when the temperature of 103 degrees C., or 220 degrees F. is reached, and set in a larger vessel of hot water. At once drop the marshmallows one by one into the hot sirup, using forks to handle them. Remove promptly, and roll at once in the chopped nuts. Place on oiled paper to dry. If the sirup gets so cool that it begins to harden, place it over the flame to reheat, but do not allow it to come to a boil.

If there is a coating of loose starch or powdered sugar on the marshmallows brush or shake it off before dipping them into the sirup.

Cookies Are Always Liked by Children

When oatmeal is used in place of part of the flour in making cookies, it gives them a particularly good, nutty taste. Cinnamon flavor and raisins make oatmeal cookies especially acceptable to the children. These cookies are easily made and wholesome, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Oatmeal Drop Cookies.

- | | |
|--|---------------------|
| 1/2 cupful shorten- 1 1/2 cupfuls fine | oatmeal |
| ing | 1 1/2 cupfuls flour |
| 1 cupful sugar | 1 egg |
| 1/2 cupful milk | 1/2 teaspoonful |
| 1 cupful raisins | salt |
| 1/2 cupful chopped 2 teaspoonfuls | cinnamon |
| nut meats | 1 teaspoonful |
| | soda dissolved in |
| | 1 teaspoonful water |

Cream the butter and sugar, and add the beaten eggs. Sift the dry ingredients, except the oatmeal, together and add with the milk to the egg, sugar, and butter mixture. Add the soda which has been dissolved in the water, and then the oatmeal which has been mixed with the nuts and raisins. Mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and bake to a golden brown in a fairly hot oven. Remove from the pan while hot.

The Invitation

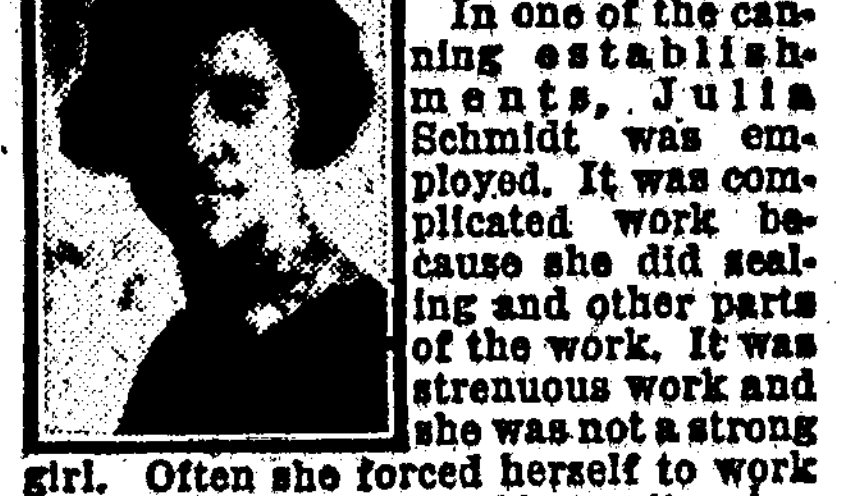

Andrew Soutar, the English novelist, was praising the modern American girl.

"She is as piquant as she looks," he said. "At Atlantic City a modern girl from the West was sitting out at a dance with a young man behind a clump of palms. She said to him as he puffed at his cigarette: 'I love your cigarette holder.' 'But,' said he, 'I never use one.' 'Then the girl said softly: 'Don't be so dense.'"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible through the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not strong.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 112 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

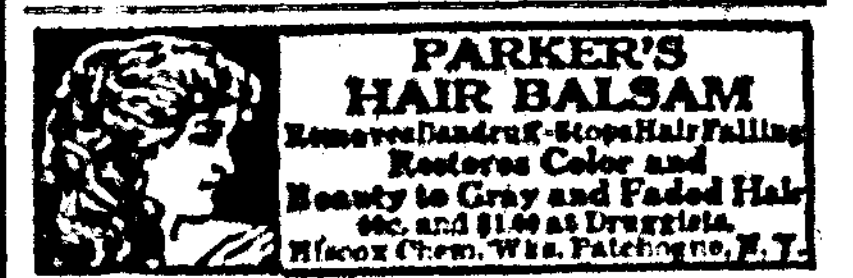

Girls who work in factories know just how Miss Schmidt felt. Perhaps they, too, will find better health by taking the Vegetable Compound.

Too Late

On the screen were two heads very close together. The adjoining hero was kissing the blond heroine to the accompaniment of sentimental music.

A man in the cinema nudged his neighbor.

"My life has been wasted according to that," he whispered, nodding to the screen. "I've had three wives, but I never kissed any of 'em the way that feller's done it."

"It's never too late," remarked the other man, who had a sense of humor.

"It is," was the sad reply. "I'm so shortwinded these days."

The BABY

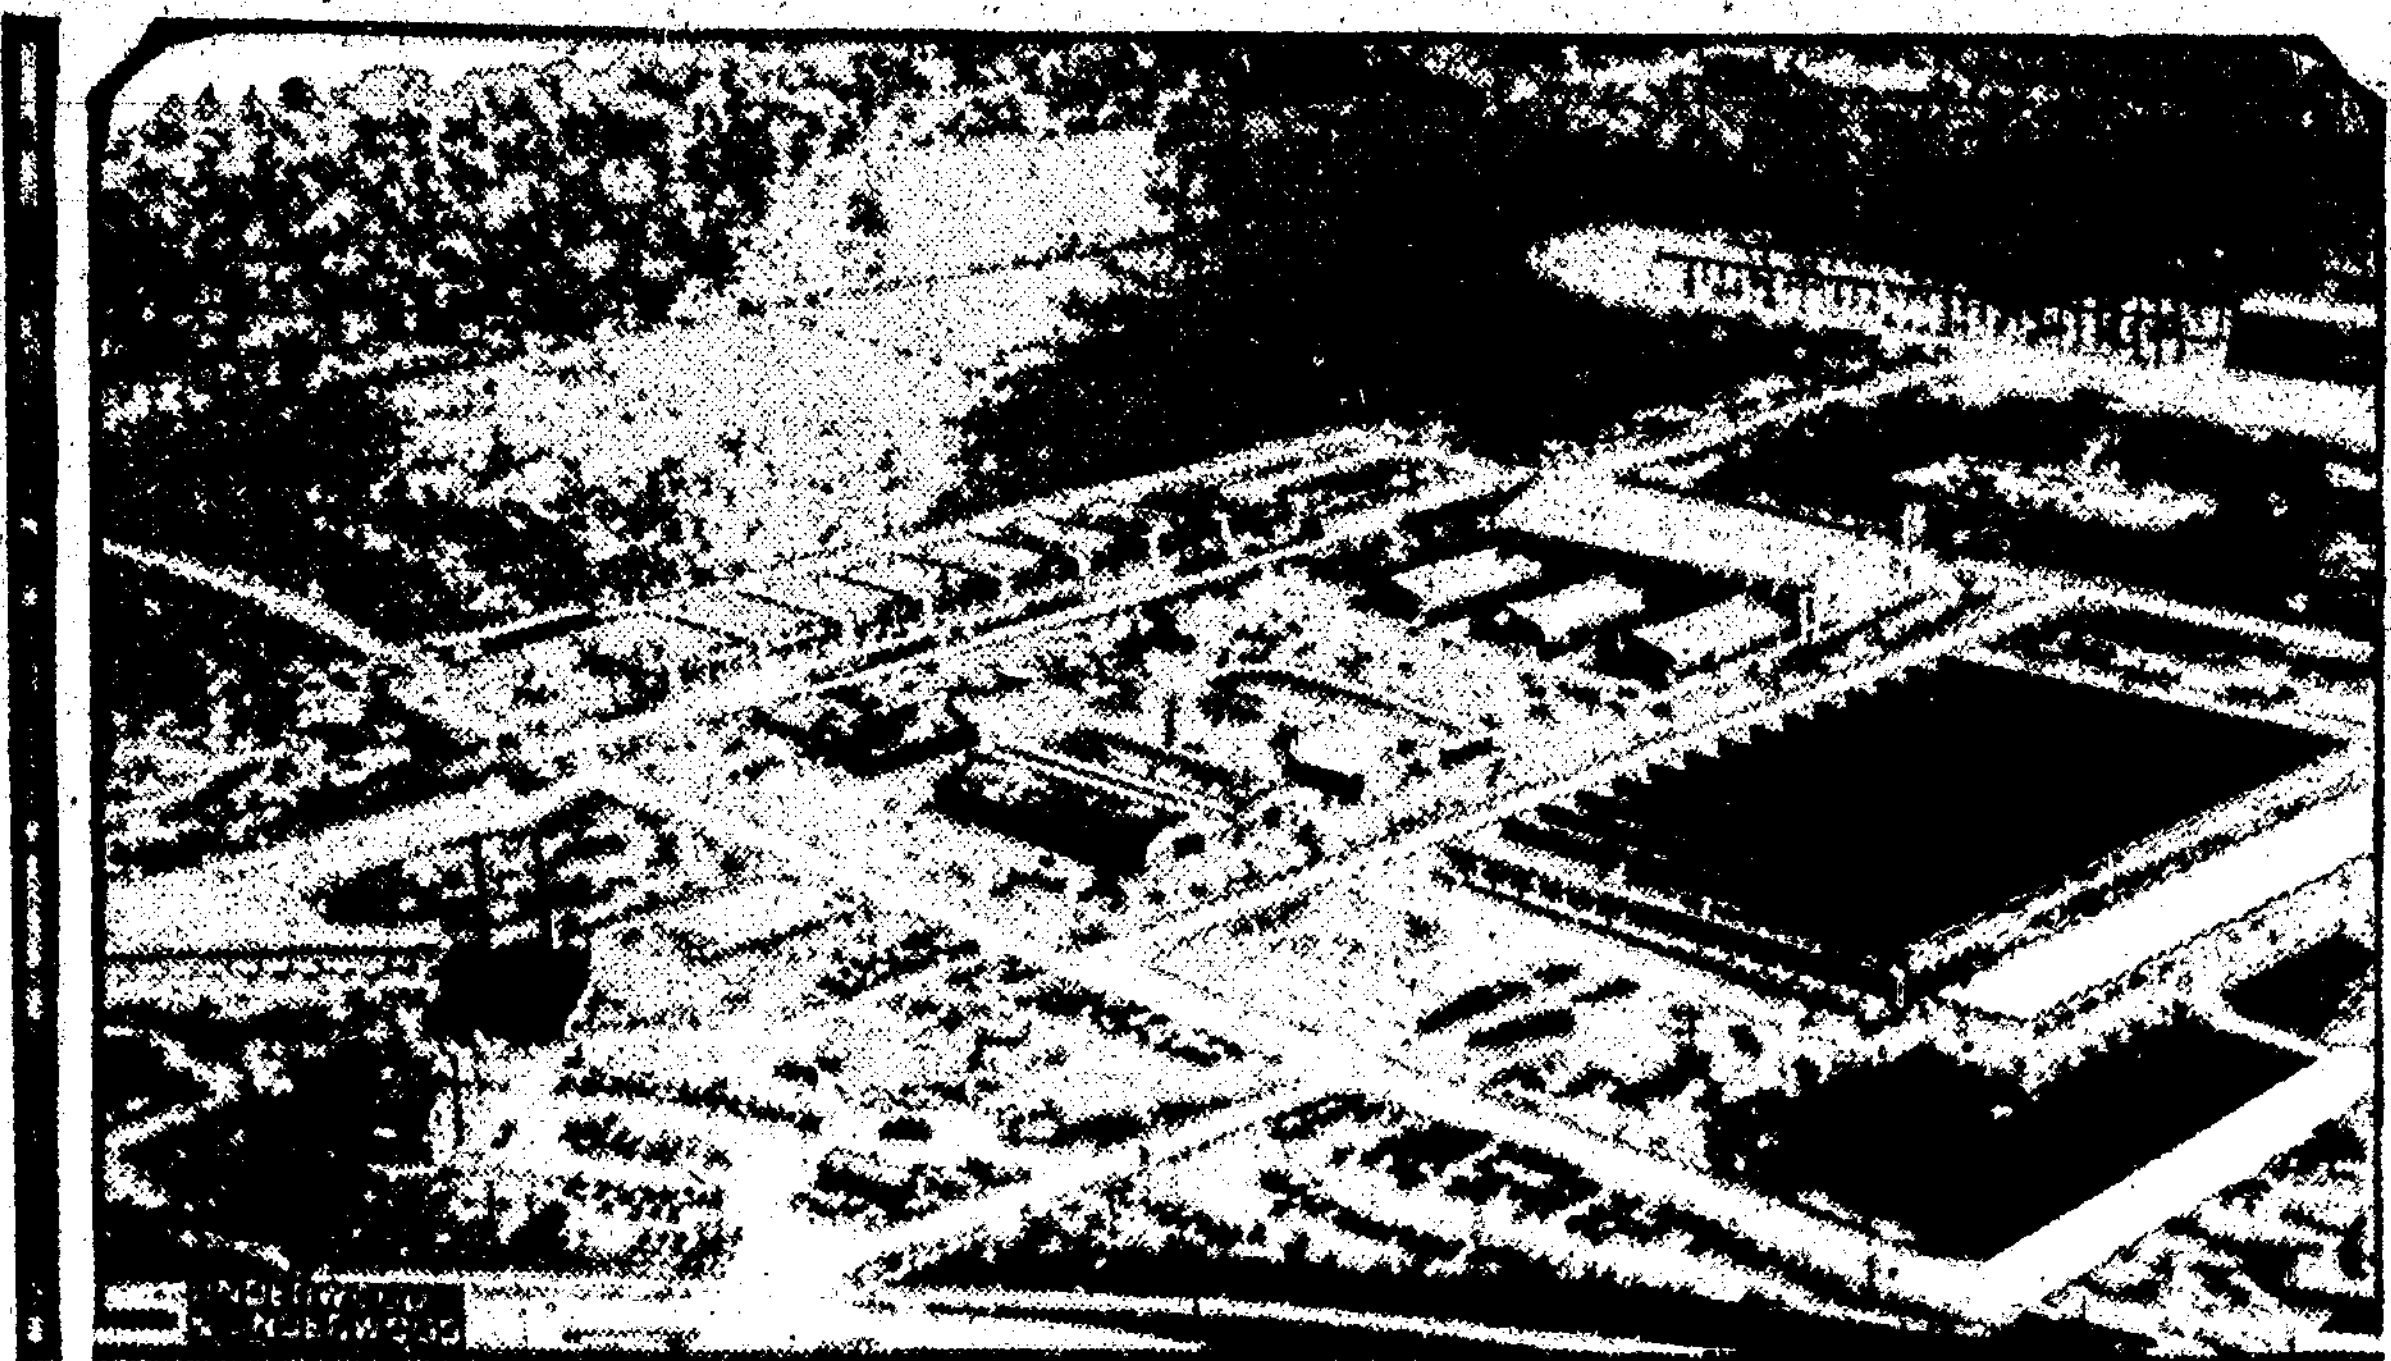

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will fight a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: it is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Lesson for October 30

AMOS DENOUNCES SIN

(World's Temperance Sunday.)
 LESSON TEXT—Amos 2:4-12.
 GOLDEN TEXT—Seek good and not evil, that ye may live, and so the Lord the God of hosts shall be with you as ye have spoken.
 PRIMARY TOPIC—The Punishment of Sin.
 JUNIOR TOPIC—What God Thinks of Sin.
 INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why the Drink Traffic is Prohibited.
 YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Intemperance and Associated Evils.

Amos, a shepherd and tradesman (Amos 7:14, 15) was called to prophesy for God. He was neither in the prophetic line, nor trained in the prophetic schools.

1. The Sins of Judah (2:4, 5).
 In the first part of the book Amos sets forth judgments upon the surrounding nations. The aim, doubtless, was to show that there is no escape from God's judgment. The nation or individual that sins shall surely be judged (Num. 32:23).
 1. They despised the law of the Lord. To despise means to spurn, to disregard. To despise God's law is a sin directly against God. There is no escape from judgment for such as do this. (Heb. 10:28, 29).
 2. Failed to keep the Lord's commandments (v. 4).
 Disobedience logically follows the despising of God's law. It not only robs of blessings in this life, but results in eternal destruction (II Thes. 1:7-10).
 3. Lies caused them to err (v. 4).
 Because they despised God's law they fell into lying errors. Doctrine and conduct are inseparable. Thinking wrong precedes doing wrong.
 4. Judgment upon Egypt (v. 6).
 This was literally fulfilled a century and a half later in the capture of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans.
 II. The Sins of Israel (2:6-8.)
 The message of the prophet now comes directly to the northern kingdom.

1. "Sold the righteous for silver" (v. 6).
 The judge, for a bribe of silver, declared the innocent to be guilty.
 2. "Sold the poor for a pair of shoes" (v. 6).
 Likely this refers to the practice of selling into slavery the debtor who could not pay for a pair of shoes which had been sold to him on time.
 3. "Pant" after the dust of the earth on heads of the poor (v. 6B).
 The word "pant" means to eagerly desire. So avaricious had these men become that they even grasped after the earth which the down-trodden poor cast upon their heads in mourning because of their misery.
 4. Turned aside the way of the meek (v. 7).
 These grasping rich men turned aside the meek; that is, those who would not stand up for their rights.
 5. Licentiousness (v. 7).
 So notorious were the immorality practices that they were even guilty of incestuous prostitution. This was not merely the case of falling into serious sin, but was indulged in with the definite purpose of insulting God provoking His holy name.
 6. Idolatry (v. 8).
 They not only frequented the place of idolatrous worship, but lay down on the clothes taken from the poor, and drank wine bought with money extorted from the poor in unjust fees.

III. God's Goodness to Israel (v. 9-12).
 God's manifold blessings and His goodness are now presented in contrast with the base practices of the nation, in order to heighten the pleasure of their ingratitude.

1. Destroyed their enemies (v. 9).
 The Amorite stands for all powerful peoples whom God removed from Palestine to make room for Israel.
 2. Delivered from cruel bondage (v. 10).
 God set them free from the cruel slavery of the Egyptians. Every redeemed one has been set free from a more cruel bondage than that of the Israelites at the hands of the Egyptians (John 8:34-38).
 3. Led them for forty years to the wilderness (v. 10).
 The wilderness wandering is a most wonderful story, showing the tender and faithful leading of God.
 4. Raised up the prophets (v. 11).
 God not only bestowed great honors upon them in this, but favored them in raising up prophets from among their own offspring. The awful sin and guilt are here shown in that they not only turned the prophets from their lives of separation but gave them wine to drink.

Faith
 Faith never refers to self, but all ways to the Word of God. There are many who want to feel that they are believers before they have believed the truth, and to feel that they are safe, before they trust to Jesus.

Our Faith
 When the devil tries our faith it is that he may crush it or diminish it; but when God tries our faith it is to establish and increase it.—Barnes' Hebrews.

Credit Goes to Maxim for Idea in Aviation

Hiram S. Maxim is believed to be the first to prove that a body heavier than air could be lifted by its own motive power. His crude and complicated machine accomplished the feat in July, 1894. It was supplied with screw propellers weighing 135 pounds each and measuring 17 feet 10 inches over the tips of the blades. These were attached to a shaft that ran at an average speed of 375 revolutions a minute, operated by a pair of compound engines, supplied with steam from a combined multibular boiler, feed-water heater and gas-heating burner, weighing 1,000 pounds, provided with 7,050 jets, the boiler having a heating surface of about 800 feet. The entire machine, together with its full equipment of fuel, water and men, weighed less than 8,000 pounds. A writer in Cassier's Magazine, in 1895, observed:
 "As a mechanical structure this machine is unquestionably a masterpiece of work and it has been appropriately described by an eminent engineer as 'not an invention, but a museum of inventions.'"—Kansas City Star.

Sterilizing by Oxygen

Bacteria can be killed by oxygen—if the pressure is made strong enough by means of this discovery. Dr. L. H. Cleveland of the Harvard University Medical school has devised a method for sterilizing and preserving fruit juices without injuring their delicate flavor. He uses ordinary commercial oxygen gas, sold in cylinders for welding and other industrial purposes, and he says he can kill all germs and other micro-organisms, by using this oxygen, in from twelve hours to two days.
