A Scotchman living on a farm near Morrill, Kansas, has worn a pair of rubber boots 27 years and they are still in use.

Talking about 'petting,' the Southern Pacific Bulletin for March says that a legislator in North Carolina introduced a bill to make petting illegal...

A mechanist in Denmark claims to have invented a gearless brakeless automobile that will work and his countrymen are hailing him as the automobile Edison.

Community Hall Matters

Having submitted to Mechem and Newell of Las Cruces the abstract and other data regarding the title of the Community Hall, and the ability of a Trustee to pledge the building and the income to secure notes or other evidences of indebtedness, I desire to quote the letter from these attorneys in full.

Las Cruces, N. M. Mar. 25, 1927. E. M. Brickley, Carrizozo, N. M. Dear Sir:

We have examined the abstract to the property occupied by the Community Hall, particularly with reference to the question suggested by Mr. Hudspeth.

As to the first proposition regarding the appraisal, we are of the opinion that no appraisal is required under statutes on the sale under attachment, and the title in this respect is good.

As to the second proposition, the right of the Trustee to mortgage this property, we are of the opinion that the Trustee can undoubtedly mortgage this property in order to realize money to pay debts and remove liens.

In view of the foregoing we feel that you will be perfectly safe in taking the title of Trustee and issuing certificates and executing deed of trust to secure the payment of same.

You, and other good people of Carrizozo have our best wishes for your success in this matter, and if we can be of further assistance to you, please advise us. Yours very truly, Mechem & Newell. By Ed. Mechem.

I shall immediately take title to this property and offer for sale the certificates - these certificates will bear interest at the rate of 8 percent per annum; they will mature as follows: 90 days, 9 months, 12 months, 15 months, 18 months, 21 months and 2 years.

They will be secured by a pledge of the building and income.

I will take all the subscriptions I can get - will then allot in the following order: all the $50 certificates first, $100 certificates next, the larger denominations to be allotted last.

It is hoped that all organizations of the town will now bend their efforts to build up a fund to pay expense, interest, and principal of these certificates as they mature. Interest will be paid on all certificates semi-annually. E. M. Brickley.

Highway Activity

District Engineer B. F. Kelly of the state highway department and assistant, H. H. Robbins, came in the first of the week and with E. H. Sweet, S. W. Kelsey and L. A. Whitaker, made a trip over the road as far as Eagle Creek for the purpose of determining what would be the best route for the new Carrizozo-Tularosa Highway.

The bill for which, passed at the recent session of the legislature. Two days were spent in surveying and looking the region over. On their return here Tuesday night, the engineers left for Santa Fe to lay their plans before the commission and after the same is approved the work will begin, which will be within three weeks, or four at the farthest.

B. P. Tinnin, traveling mechanic for the state highway commission, is spending the major portion of the week here, testing the road equipment and putting worn parts in prime condition. He was ably assisted by road foreman Chas. F. Grey, under whose supervision the machinery is operated. Foreman Grey has lately received a 'back-sloper' and for the benefit of the curious, we will explain, that the device is coupled to the tractor and works at one side to grade down banks on either side of the road.

Woman's Club Notes

A cordial invitation to the Fourth District Federation at Alamogordo is extended to all club members, and the president, Mrs. Tom Charles, says that husbands are especially invited to attend the picnic which the Commercial club is giving at the White Sands on Friday evening. Gene Manlove Rhodes of Santa Fe will speak at the Sands.

Mrs. Taylor, our state president, will be there; also our National Director, Miss Grace Bear, and the state chairman.

Delegates are urged to be there Friday morning, as the credentials committee meets at 10:30. There was an error in last week's issue - Mrs. Geo. A. Titworth is alternate instead of Mrs. Dingwall. The delegates are: Mesdames T. E. Kelley and Paul Mayer; Alternates, Mesdames Wetmore and Titworth.

The 'Chas. Bien Water Color Exhibit,' secured by the club, has been on display in the Eighth grade room of the local school, thus extending the benefits.

Railroad Rumblings

Empty freight cars are being rapidly shipped to the Imperial Valley preparatory to the shipping of fruit and vegetables from that place to points in the east.

Old rails have been taken out from Carrizozo to a distance of three miles to the east and replaced by heavier and more substantial rails. This is being done at different points along the line of the Southern Pacific, which is a regular custom in the company's system of 'Safety First.'

Brakeman and Mrs. J. P. Mitchell returned Monday from a ninety-day leave-of-absence and Mr. Mitchell reported for duty the same evening. They were in California for the above named period.

Caretaker Joe Navarro of the S. P. Club House is busy in arranging his plants and shrubs in the open soil in order to preserve the usual beauty of the yard and lawn in general. Joe 'knows his onions,' and is a past-master in the art of cultivation.

(By J. A. Taylor, in S.P. Bulletin) Much has been said, and will doubtless continue to be said, about the 'Average Railroad Man' generally in tones of disparagement.

The 'Average Railroad Man' never makes a speech or writes a book, or preaches a sermon, or organizes something-or-other, but in the secret chambers of his heart he is conscious of being able to do any one, or all of these, better than they have ever been done before.

Ordinarily, he gets his name mentioned in the papers only once during his lifetime - when he marries - and once afterward.

He does an honest day's work and never has to club his employers into a comatose condition in order to extract from them a fair return for his labors.

He makes out his income tax statement with a clear conscience, a light heart and empty pocketbook, and cheerfully salutes forth to borrow money to pay the first installment.

He is 'ready money' to the tax collectors, who can always depend upon him to support the police courts, jails, workhouses, penitentiaries, and poor houses - for none of which he has the slightest use.

Chamber of Commerce Ball

Quite a large crowd attended the dance given by the Chamber of Commerce Saturday night. Everyone seemed to think the occasion one of the most enjoyable that has been given for some time.

The Boys and Girls of the High School Basketball Teams were introduced and given a warm reception; short speeches were made by Prof. Helm, Mayor McQuillen and E. M. Brickley, for the local school board.

The prize for the best Charleston dancers was awarded by Mr. Tracy, Mr. Finley and Mrs. Wetmore to Billy Spencer and Frances Charles. The prize for the old time dancers went to Ira Robinson and Mrs. M. A. Hust-Mesdames McDonald, Blaney and Judge Hewitt being the committee that awarded this prize.

Everyone keenly enjoyed seeing the old time dances and it took quite a bit of time for the judges to select the winners. The Carrizozo Orchestra donated their services which action was very greatly appreciated by the Chamber of Commerce.

Al Hunter, State Stock Inspector for the Sanitary Board was here Wednesday and told about assisting the sheriff of Otero County in arresting four men, who were with a carnival company that was here two weeks ago and were the men who short-changed the business men at Capitan. They were fined for the offense of gambling at Clouderoft, according to word received by Sheriff Kelsey early this week from the Sheriff at Alamogordo.

BLouses LAVISHLY TRIMMED; BLACK AND WHITE COMPOSE

FASHION is in a lavish mood when it comes to embroidering the blouse. If you are at all gifted in the art of needlework, the blouse of the present is opportunity knocking at your door, coaxing to use your talent to the glory of the present-day modes.

Lovely is a white jersey blouse enlivened with realistic flowers—daisies, buttercups, forget-me-nots and wild roses—done in wool yarns in colors true to nature. When one considers its effectiveness, the simplicity of the work is amazing. Even an amateur need not hesitate to undertake it. A few "lazy daisy" stitches, considerable outlining stitch, a solid worked flower here and there, and presto! you cross-stitch embroidery to the finest of crepe de chine models. The mode continues to "say it" most emphatically in black and white, and this, too, when colors were never more entrancing. However, since the fashionable wardrobe must contain many costumes for many occasions, black and white plus all the colors of the rainbow are not more than enough when it comes to catering to the whims of millady.

As to the black-and-white mode, without a doubt it is making a record display this season. When it comes to carrying the message of that intangible something called "style," there is no combination quite so com-

NANCY'S SUCCESSFUL FAILURE

(©, 1927, by D. J. Walsh.)

NANCY GOLDEN was arranging her counter for the third time. She had nothing else to do. It was raining suds and no customer had rung the bell over the door all morning. Yesterday it had been little better. Nobody but old Mrs. Hatch had entered to match a shade of yarn which Nancy did not have; her stock was running low. And the day before—that had happened the day before? Nancy sighed. Doubtless it had been of a piece with all the other days since she had first begun to realize that her little shop was not a success.

She had always wanted to keep a shop, and when, after ten years of difficult work, she had left the typewriter to launch out on her venture, she had known that she would need all her courage and wit, as well as all her capital. Now after barely two years her capital was gone, for the little shop would not draw customers in spite of clever advertising and an alluring display of goods. It seemed after all that women played cards more than they embroidered, and that such things as hand-made blouses and lingerie had no great appeal. Even Nancy's charming personality had been insufficient to make a patron out of a mere shopper, and the fact that she showed off a blouse to advantage did not inspire other women to emulate her.

"The time has come for me to shut up shop," Nancy said to herself as she untangled a skein of orange silk. "I can't keep going another week. It hurts my pride—and my money is gone. I don't owe anything, but I am going to let I keep on."

Her eyes filled with tears. The dear little shop! She loved it so. After its freedom, after being interested and happy and diverted for two years how could she go back to dictation—pad and typewriter? She hated the proximity of men who thought because they paid her a good wage they could smoke in her face or play the grouch as they chose. It seemed that she had only just got the smell of tobacco out of her hair. Besides, pounding the keys made her fingers either prickly or numb, to say nothing of the constant clatter jarring her nerves.

The dear little shop? What did women want, anyway? It came to her that she had attempted rather to gratify her own preference than those of other women. She adored fine lace and dainty stitchery and sheer materials; she had reveled in these things, but she could not persuade other women to buy them.

The unexpected tinkle of the little bell made her start. The woman who entered was as faded and thin and frail as a frost-bitten weed.

"I wanted to pay you for that skein of silk I got here the other day," she said, taking out a limp little purse that looked as if the elephant had stepped on it not once but twenty times. She laid a coin on the counter.

"Oh, I remember!" Nancy pushed the coin back. "It's all right, Mrs. Finkle. I won't charge you for that silk. I'm going to close out anyway."

"Close out!" Mrs. Finkle looked about at the pretty place. "Oh, I hope you won't do that, Miss Golden."

"Must," Nancy smiled bravely. "I've not a gift for shop-keeping it seems."

"Well," Mrs. Finkle sighed, "we're both in hard-luck then. I've had to give up working out by the day. My knees are so bad I can't get up and down. That money is yours, Miss Golden."

"I won't take it," Nancy shook her head. "What's one little skein of silk between friends? You've helped to keep my shop neat as a pin, Mrs. Finkle, and since you can't help me any more, maybe it is just as well for me to close out."

Mrs. Finkle replaced the coin in the limp purse and started to leave.

"I was just wondering," she said, turning back, "if you know any place I could sell some jelly. I've got crab apple, grape and currant, forty jars may be. I put it up for Mr. Finkle, he was so fond of it, but now he's gone." Her voice broke.

Nancy hesitated.

"No," she was beginning, when an impulse seized her. "Bring it here and I'll try to sell it for you," she said.

"Will you?" Mrs. Finkle looked pleased. "I'll bring it right over." Hope changed her expression.

Half an hour later Mrs. Finkle brought the great basket of jelly—forty glasses, Tyrian purple, amber, garnet red. Nancy cleared the things out of her small window and set the jelly there instead. She printed a big card and stuck it among the glasses.

Suddenly the rain ceased and a ray of winter sunshine struck among the glasses, turning them into as many jewels. A woman passing by peered in. She went on, but another woman came. This woman entered. She was Mrs. Trussell, the wife of a prominent citizen.

"That's nice, looking jelly," she said. "I'll take some of it. I didn't have good luck with mine this fall—it failed to set."

She then took a dozen glasses and paid for them.

clothes ready made. If you have anything more, say jumbles or nut bread, call me up on the telephone and I'll come right over and get some."

"Jumbles or nut bread! Do you hear that, Mrs. Finkle?" Nancy cried to the woman who had not yet gone out. She laid the money in Mrs. Finkle's worn hand. "Three dollars. There you are."

Mrs. Finkle was rosy with joy. "But you haven't taken any commission, Miss Golden," she said.

"Commission!" Nancy stared. Then she laughed. "Oh, you funny woman! I understand. But I didn't sell the stuff on commission. The money is all yours."

"You'll have to take a 10 per cent commission. That's the way they all do," said Mrs. Finkle firmly. "If you don't," she added excitedly, "I'll take my jelly home."

"You can't!" cried Nancy gayly. "For here comes another customer."

The jelly lasted barely an hour and with its sale came inquiries and orders for other things—pies, marmalades, fruit cake, candy.

"Mrs. Finkle," Nancy said solemnly putting her arms about the thin shoulders, "it just looks as if you and I had got to get busy."

Next day an advertisement appeared in the Daily Tattler, a new sign swung above Nancy's shop door, a new display filled the window, the counter, the shelves and tables.

Nancy was running a different kind of shop and Mrs. Finkle was furnishing the goods. Long training had made Mrs. Finkle a wonder as a cook; she could make angel food cake or pumpkin pie with equal ease, and hope lent her strength. It was one thing to walk a mile to her day's work at Mrs. Holmes' or Mrs. White's, another thing to sit on a stool before her own kitchen table and mix batter. She and Nancy had made a bargain by which Mrs. Finkle furnished the labor and skill and Nancy furnished the materials and the selling ability. Nancy paid Mrs. Finkle by the day and helped as much as she could. Evenings she seeded raisins or chopped citron or picked out nut meats or studied ways and means. It was all very exciting and proved also very profitable.

"What a delightful little shop this is!" Mrs. Trussell said one spring day when she had stopped to get some cakes she had ordered. "I see that you are advertising in the city papers."

Nancy nodded.

"That's on account of the angel food and jumbles," she said. "You don't know what a lot of orders we're getting for them."

"Did I dream it or did I see you driving a car this morning?" asked Mrs. Trussell.

"You saw me, Mrs. Finkle and I have to play a little, you know," Nancy answered, laughing.

Have Implicit Faith in Old Stone Turtle

In Nanking, China, the great stone turtle plays an important part in the daily lives of the people. The monument stands on the grounds of the Drum tower. It was erected by the people of Nanking more than 400 years ago, commemorating a visit by Kang Hsu. There are several old stories or beliefs concerning the monument. One is that the turtle was erected for the purpose of obstructing the flow of intellect toward Soochow at a time when there was a great intellectual rivalry between that city and Nanking. Soochow scholars were winning all the honors, while the Nanking scholars were steadily falling. Although no less interesting, today's story is quite different. The majority of the people now hold the turtle sacred because it is supposed to have life-giving properties. When their children get sick they go to the image and give their suffering little ones to the spirit of the turtle. This is symbolized by tying a cord around the neck of the creature. Many actually believe that death will not touch the child of so sacred an object.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Radio as Health Aid

Both radio and cable are now being used as agents of international health, says Hygeia Magazine. News of epidemics in the Far East are collected and broadcast by these two means.

The enormous area extending from Vladivostok and Japan to Cape Town and Port Said including Australia is included in the health news gathered by the Singapore bureau of the League of Nations.

This information is broadcast free of charge every week from the French station at Saigon, from Bombay and from the Dutch station at Bandoeng.

Treasure in Herculaneum

Among Signor Mussolini's many plans for increasing the grandeur of his country is the project calculated to give buried Herculaneum a thorough digging out. Nor do the rewards promise to be disappointing, for, as a commentator has just noted, "the Romans of the early empire went to Pompeii for pleasure, but at Herculaneum they appear to have cultivated the flesh-pots rather less and the Muses rather more." Finds of first-rate artistic and historic importance are therefore anticipated.

Salt Removes Stains

As salt is found on every table, it is the handiest "blotter" to fly to in case of an accident, and if used in time will generally nuke up the dangerous fluid before it has time to soak at all deeply into the cloth. Any mark underneath will probably be so slight as easily to come out with the next wash.

POULTRY

NEGLECT CAUSES MOST FAILURES

When farm poultry flocks are given the right attention, the grower meets with success in his efforts; but, lack of attention to the flock nearly always results in failure to produce profits.

"Ninety per cent of the calls that we get for help with poultry are caused from lack of attention to simple details in handling the flock," says Allen G. Oliver, poultry extension specialist at North Carolina State college. "Rarely do we get a call from those thousands of farmers who give their birds the right attention. If I were to sum up the most prevailing causes of failure, I would list the following ten:

"The poultry house allowed to be dark, damp and drafty.

"Drinking fountains or troughs allowed to be dirty and filthy or the birds drink from stagnant pools of water.

"Lack of fresh air and sunshine, nature's disinfectants, in the house.

"Failure to clean and disinfect the house at regular intervals.

"Keeping the flock penned up in unsanitary houses and yards.

"Allowing dead poultry to remain exposed.

"Allowing sick poultry to run with remainder of the flock.

"Building the poultry house in a low, damp location.

"Failure to provide sufficient, clean water and shade in summer.

"Permitting lice, mites and other vermin to infest birds and houses."

These ten things, states Mr. Oliver, cause most of the failures and each of them could be easily overcome. They are plain, common-sense precautions which may be observed without great outlay of money and the most that is needed for their observance is some work and a proper regard for the dumb creatures.

Mr. Oliver makes the added precaution that birds should not be crowded in the house during the day nor on the roosts at night. Each hen needs about three square feet of floor space and from seven to ten inches of roosting space. Plenty of clean water and well-kept quarters are always needed for success with poultry.

Correct Time to Start Young Turkeys in Spring

April and May are probably the best times to start the young turkeys, as the natural conditions are then very favorable to young bird life.

You can place the eggs under an old hen of the American or Asiatic breeds but White Leghorns will not be satisfactory. A Plymouth Rock or Brahma hen usually makes a fine mother. The first feed for poult is bread soaked in milk and squeezed dry, or finely chopped hard-boiled egg mixed with the crumbs from corn bread. After a few days they will be able to use fine chick feed. Young poult thrive the best when they have a range well supplied with insect life and green feed. Turkeys are seed eaters and insect eaters. They do not thrive on sloppy mash.

A Plymouth Rock hen will cover nine or ten turkey eggs. Be sure the hen is satisfied with her nest before giving her the turkey eggs. Then the management of the hen during the period of incubation is about the same as in hatching chickens except that it takes about 28 days.

Feeding Young Ducks Often Much Neglected

Ducks should start laying as soon as the spring weather arrives. If they do not start laying when expected, see to it that they get feed which supplies the protein and mineral needs. A good laying mash such as is used for laying hens, in connection with scratch grains, will be very satisfactory. Very often the ducks are not given the attention which the chickens receive as they rustle for most of their feed in the summer time and are expected to do this same way the remainder of the year whether the hunting is good or not.

Money From Chickens

More profit can be made from a few chickens that are properly housed and fed, than from a large number that are crowded into a house that is not suited for more than half that number. Overcrowding makes it practically impossible to properly ventilate a building or to keep the building in good sanitary condition. Either condition encourages colds, roup and other contagious diseases. Sanitation is the backbone of successful poultry raising.

Green Feed Necessary

Green feed or a satisfactory substitute is necessary for egg production. Sprouted oats is excellent—probably the best. The time and bother has limited their use. Many are using mangels, carrots, cabbage or lettuce with economy and success. The use of leafy alfalfa or clover in racks or baskets is rapidly increasing. It is the best substitute commonly available. Alfalfa meal in the mash is being widely used and if made of the best quality hay is satisfactory.

Blouse Trimmed With Embroidery.

are the possessor of a blouse which will excite both the envy and admiration of all who behold.

There's this about the hand-stitchery of today: it individualizes the garment it adorns. That is, it becomes a very part both of the costume design and its color scheme. In no instance is this so definitely stressed as in connection with the present black and white vogue, enthusiasm for which is sweeping throughout the world of fashion. The smartness of black embroidery on white is artfully told in the two-piece frock here portrayed. At a private exhibit of exclusive modes held by the Fashion Art League of America, this stunning costume occasioned much favorable comment. The skirt is of black satin and the blouse of heavy white crepe de chine, the same harmonized to the black and white ensemble by means vincing as black with white. Startling effects as here pictured are the stylist's pride this season. An interesting feature in the development of this black-with-white flat crepe dress is the skirt which alternates the pluits in striking contrast. One notes this treatment not only in connection with the black-and-white compose, but repeatedly when two colors or materials are employed. There's a bit of embroidery on the girldie.

Methods of interpreting the black-and-white vogue are many and varied. Some there are who prefer the all-black costume enlivened with dainty white accessories. A smart black crepe or crepe-back satin frock with a becoming and fashionable flat neckline either Y-shaped or square, a rope of pearls and a cluster of white violets on the shoulder, a white fur-collared black satin coat, topped with of handsome black embroidery describing a wide girldie and sash effect. The high neck and the button trimmings are the last word.

The peasant blouse which abounds in embroidery and smocking is a recent favorite. These range from sheer white cotton velvets done in vivid a black-and-white chapeau of exceeding great chic, this indeed is a costume ideal for spring.

If one aspires to tailored perfection, then choose a short-jacket two-piece tailor of the black twill.

New Mexico Gets $326,663 For Forest Road Work

Albuquerque.—At the recent session of Congress $7,500,000 was authorized in the Federal Aid Road Bill for expenditures in the survey, construction and maintenance of roads and trails within and adjacent to the National Forests, according to C. A. Long, District Engineer of the Forest Service, Southwestern District.

Of the sum authorized, $4,500,000 is apportioned to the states having National Forests, for use in surveying, construction and maintenance, roads in and adjacent to the forests, of primary importance to the states, counties and communities.

This money is provided by Congress as the nation's contribution in improving roads on the state, county and community road system and compensates, in a measure, for the loss sustained by the states and counties through inability to tax lands in federal ownership.

This fund, states Mr. Long, is apportioned to the various states on an area and value basis, and New Mexico will receive for Forest Highways $210,424.00 for this purpose, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928.

Qualifies For Trip to Dayton, Ohio

F. A. English, local Frigidaire and Delco-Light dealer has qualified for a trip to Dayton, Ohio, with all expenses paid, according to an announcement received yesterday from E. G. Blechler, president and general manager.

More than 1000 Frigidaire and Delco-Light salesmen were awarded the trip for selling a specified amount of business in 1926. The trip will take them to Dayton for the annual sales convention of the two General Motors subsidiaries, April 13-14. A brilliant entertainment program, given by some of the world's best known artists and presentation of cash prizes will be features of the convention, the announcement says.

Seven hundred additional salesmen have also qualified by selling a fixed quota of electric refrigerators and electric light plants during the first 3 months of 1927. These salesmen will not participate in the cash awards.

"This will be the largest sales convention ever held by Frigidaire and Delco-Light, due to the fact that the two organizations did more business in 1926 than ever before in their history. The total retail sales for the year, turned in by salesmen and dealers amounted to more than $32,000,000, more than double the total of the preceding year," Mr. Blechler says in his letter announcing local winners of the convention trip.

Important convention visitors will include Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, C. F. Kettering, vice president in charge of research, members of the corporation's executive committee and other high officials of the corporation. Mr. English will leave about April 10.

"The Vanishing American"

The Woman's club have arranged to put on the great production, "The Vanishing American," with Richard Dix, supported by an all-star cast, under the management of the Crystal Theatre, on May 6-7. In securing this picture for Carrizozo and vicinity, the club is filling a long felt desire on the part of the public. As we feel that this picture is of real educational value we appeal to all schools in the county, as well as men who appreciate the early history of our country; to see it. Program in full will appear later.

Attention, Veterans!

The U. S. Veterans' Bureau at Albuquerque is in receipt of a letter from Washington informing them that the postmasters have been supplied with note forms which will be available to veterans who are desirous of securing loans, giving as security their adjusted service certificates.

Upon completion of the Veterans' Note in its entirety, it should be forwarded, together with the adjusted service certificate, by registered mail, to the U. S. This modern age discriminates—and smokes Camels.

THIS age is the hardest to satisfy—it's the most discriminating age ever known. That's why it goes to Camel for cigarette enjoyment. It takes real tobacco to satisfy modern smokers and Camels are made of the choicest tobaccos grown, marvelously blended. Smokers of today are right in demanding Camels; no better cigarettes are made, regardless of price.

To seek a real smoke is to find Camel—the choice of the modern world. Camels are a revelation of goodness, always mellow, smooth and mild. This age shows the way to smoke contentment—"Have a Camel!"

Lincoln Notes
The Ladies of the Lincoln P. T. A. gave an entertainment at the School Auditorium on the evening of the 25th, putting on "The Old Maids' Club." It is needless to say that the play was staged in the most approved manner and given by an all-star cast. The house was filled by an enthusiastic audience. It seems well to state in this connection that the Lincoln P. T. A. was organized on Sept. 17, 1926, with a membership of only 15, since which time they have doubled the membership, defrayed the cost of the Domestic Science Department in the High School, installed Manuel Training in the Grades, defraying all expenses therefore, except for the tools which were generously donated by our fellow townsman Fred Pfingsten. They have repaired and tuned the school piano and furnished basketballs for the grades, besides furnishing the funds for the Community Christmas Tree. All this has been accomplished through Food Sales, Membership Fees, Quilt Raffles and Entertainments. They still have a treasury and are very much alive. It is noticeable that the hearty co-operation between the parents and the teachers has a most benign influence upon the morale of the school. Returning to the Entertainment, when everyone does her part so perfectly that the only observable difference was found in the varying prominences of the parts. It would appear unjust to make personal mention of anyone; indeed to do so would be to follow each name with that stereotyped phrase "She dressed and acted her part perfectly," and as to the audience, the accessible doctors had exhausted their stocks of adhesive plasters in vain endeavor to relieve the aching sides due to excessive laughter. As for the men of the community, well, they have become so puffed up over themselves that we scarcely know what to do with them. The cast of characters are as follows: Miss Luella Matilda Primrose, President of the Club, Mrs. J. M. Penfield; Miss Susan Jane Hopewell, vice-president of the club, Mrs. Grace Burleson; Miss Mary Jane Hopewell, Treasurer of the club, Miss Dean; Miss Sallie Brown, Secretary of the club, Mrs. L. C. Hulbert; Miss Dora Doolittle, who knits slippers, Mrs. Mollie Hulbert; Miss Faith Snowmore, who does crocheting, Mrs. Henry Purcella; Miss Julia Jones, very demure, Miss Ruby Purcella; Miss Maude Hopewell, with the Janice Meredith curl, Mrs. Hendrix; Miss Mary Elizabeth Smith, who wears cork-screw curls, Miss Helen Rice; Miss Viola Longfellow, who pets cats (a man hater) Miss Fredna Beale; Miss Martha Weinhauber, a German spinster with an accent, Mrs. E. L. Woods; Miss Lucy Rosebud, who carries a bunch of flowers, Miss Frances Fritz; Miss Betsy Bobinet, an old maid from the country, with a slat bonnet, Mrs. Fred Pfingsten; a Young Lady in White, Miss Rowens Shook; a Young Lady in Blue, double of Dora, Miss Frons Hulbert; Mr. Thomas Doolittle, assistant treasurer of the club and its pet, Mr. McNeil; Mr. Phillip Andrew James, a Newspaper Reporter with magic berries, Mrs. Ramey.

Winter Automobile Ferry for Ice-Locked Continental Divide

Propose Giant Electric Locomotive As Motorist Ally To Conquer Cascades Barrier
A gargantuan shuttle ferry which would lift automobiles and their passengers, heretofore helpless against the winter-choked passes in the heights of the Cascade Mountains, over this topographical backbone of the continent is the proposal sponsored by the Automobile Club of Washington and motorists generally in the North Pacific states. There is a very considerable volume of automobile traffic between the interior country east of the Cascades and the cities of the slope facing the Pacific during the greater part of the year but this movement is completely paralyzed for several months each winter. At this time the only gateways through these mountains are those of the great transcontinental railroads. Even the powerful steam locomotives encounter serious delays because of the heavy snows and temperatures which go on as low as forty degrees F. Engine failures and inability to make steam are frequent problems making train movements difficult. The novel plan advocated by the Automobile Club of Washington has been approved by the Washington State Highway Committee. It calls for the operation of one or two trains of flat cars daily between an open road west of the mountains and a similar point east of the Cascades, with loading platforms at each terminus. Automobiles would be driven from the highway by their owners over this "skanglank" directly on to the flat cars. The journey over the mountains would require only a few hours during average winters. The motorists would either remain seated in their machines or ride in a passenger coach attached to the "ferry," according to the plan. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, because it is electrified, would doubtless be the best fitted to incorporate such a service," said H. A. Chaszlich, a member of the board of directors of the Washington auto club. "The trip between terminals should not be of more than two hours duration, and I am sure that a trial of the plan for a few weeks this fall would show it to be not only a great benefit to motorists on both sides of the range but would prove profitable for the railroad. And it would be the next thing to keeping a highway open across the mountains all winter." Electric Most Efficient
The electric locomotives of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, it was pointed out, being far more powerful than the steam locomotive and being immune to the effects of the freezing temperatures, maintain the highest standards of regular train service over the Cascades, Bitter Root and Rocky Mountains. While the volume of traffic likely to be handled is very uncertain, owing to the fact that nothing of the sort has ever been attempted before, Douglas Steiner, manager of the Automobile Club of Washington, predicts that the operation will be profitable, since thousands of cars each winter make a trip between Eastern and Western Washington by the way of the Columbia River, at much greater expense in time and money than will be required under the proposed arrangement.

Mrs. D. A. Vent and sons, Geo. and Frank, left Trinidad, Colo., last Sunday morning for Canada, where George expects to enter a school where he may finish his course as an electrician. Mrs. Vent will be remembered by many of our people as one of our old residents, Mr. Vent being at one time an operator at the local railroad station. SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

HEAT AND PRESSURE

WHEN subjected to intense heat and great pressure, pure carbon is converted into a beautiful diamond...

This would seem to show that in man, as in carbon, heat and pressure are necessary to bring out his finer qualities...

It is a common answer to say that many of our greatest painters, writers, musicians, merchants, and statesmen have risen to illustrious distinction through heat of strife and pressure of endeavor.

The heat and pressure were needed to develop their worth. As to their internal ability, their penetrating judgment and their innate will-power, they, themselves, possibly were in doubt...

In the stern turmoil they found themselves. Then came the awakening, and in a way of their own they marched bravely on to achievement before a gasping world.

Their own individuality, their own force, their strict adherence to dutiful obligations to one another, and the faith they had within, carried them through.

To make it plainer, they avoided chicane, were frank with friend or enemy, shunned tricks and vanities and held steadfastly to their course.

You may have many talents hidden in a napkin, but if they be not brought out and used under heat and pressure, they will never be of any value.

Whatever makes for finished accomplishment, makes for energy, activity, fervor, sweat of the brow and peace of the spirit. No man or woman, however gifted, can attain distinction without the hard rub and strain of conflict.

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," is a divine decree, just as true at this hour as it was "in the cool of the day," when it was pronounced by Jehovah in the garden of Eden.

Do your work in gladness. Put into it all your heat and pressure, and you will find that you are happier and better for the exertion, at peace with yourself and with your neighbors.

Spring Will Have Its Violets

Mother Earth in chill October Hears the thunders in the sky, Sees the woods turn sour and sober, Sees the blossoms fade and die.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

PLAYING THE PIANO

Douglas and Dorothy were invited one day in the holidays to pay a call upon a cousin of theirs.

She Didn't Use Her Hands.

Both of the children loved music and they thought that a special concert sounded very fine, indeed. They had so many of these glorious surprises and happy experiences.

"Oh," said Douglas, "never mind if you don't play well. Try the 'Joyous Peasant' tune, or 'Home, Sweet Home.' You can play both of those pretty well with only a few mistakes."

Dorothy smiled and was grateful to Douglas for trying to help her out, but she knew that her playing would not do if they were going to all the afternoon's music a "concert."

"Perhaps, then, Douglas will play," said their cousin.

"Neither of you understand," said their cousin. "I have a treat for you. Come into this room."

Dorothy sat down and as she commenced to move her feet the piano played—all by itself. She didn't use her hands and she was playing something she had often heard, but something which she knew she would never be able to play.

"Oh," she cried, delightedly, "it's a very funny piano. But isn't it wonderful?"

"And it is often sung at the big opera," said their cousin. But the tune was over and some queer sounds of rustling paper came from the piano.

"I have never seen anything like it," said Douglas. "It's a piano that plays by itself with just the moving of our feet to help it. Then when it comes to the end of a tune we have to put in a new roll with the music paper around it. See! It comes this way."

"Oh, it came as such a surprise!" said Dorothy.

"Surprise! I should say it did!" "I'm so happy it was," their cousin said, "for I hoped you hadn't seen a player piano so that I could surprise you with mine."

And then they went a little further down town. They went in an enormous building which had many doors leading in to it. "I don't see how anyone can tell when something is coming," said Dorothy.

"They went in a whirling door which frightened Dorothy a little, for there were so many people going in and out.

"It's so big and confusing," said Dorothy; "that I don't wonder they don't know whether to come in or go out!"

Their cousin laughed and said: "Well, we're going in, for this is one of the city's great hotels, and we're going to have hot chocolate and toast and cake, just as we planned— unless you'd rather have anything else to eat."

This sounded very nice to the children. They sat down at a table, which was shown to them by a man who looked very nice, Dorothy thought, in his uniform and gilt trimmings.

"Salamonahip! Paawehy—Here, boy, what's this you were shouting? 'Great Swindie—sixty victims!' I can see nothing about it in the paper."

"Kewahp—That's the swindle. You are the swindler.—Good Hardware."

Popular Denver Woman Recovers from Illness

Thousands of Colorado men and women suffering from nervousness and run-down condition and who are facing a life of pain and despair will discover a way to get quick relief in the experience of Mrs. Belle Wells, 3241 W. Gill Place, Denver, whose recovery from a long siege of suffering surprised her closest friends.

"If you never feel well and just drag through the days, tired and fagged out; if your stomach rebels at taking food and you spend hours doubled up with pain caused by indigestion; if you are losing weight and feel old—watch out! Get relief before it is too late."

"A nervous breakdown caused all my trouble. Indigestion, terrible dizzy spells and being unable to sleep sapped my strength."

"I have never seen anything like it," said Douglas. "It's a piano that plays by itself with just the moving of our feet to help it. Then when it comes to the end of a tune we have to put in a new roll with the music paper around it. See! It comes this way."

More good intentions would be carried out if they didn't live forever.

Field Nurse Activity

Following is my bi-weekly program for the schools in Lincoln County where I have organized Little Mothers' Clubs, for girls ten years and over, and Junior Health Leagues for boys 10 years and over; On Tuesdays of one week I have meetings in Corona, from 2:20 to 3:40 p. m.; Thursday at Tinnie, 10 to 12 a. m.; Pico, 2 to 4 p. m.; Friday at Hondo, 2 to 4 p. m.; Saturday at Santa Rita School in Carrizozo, 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. and at Carrizozo High School 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. On the other week, Wednesday at Capitan, 2:30 to 4 p. m.; Thursday at Lincoln, 2:30 to 4 p. m. This makes a total number of classes eight with enrollment of 168 students. Thus every other week each class convenes for two periods instead of every week for one period as at first planned. By arranging the program in this manner I am able to give more time to home visiting of mothers and babies and also can visit other districts not visited regularly on the above schedule.

Genuine interest is being shown in the classes and I am much pleased with the manifestations of a desire for health knowledge. As a last word I will also say that we welcome the mothers and friends of the work—hope they will visit any or all classes. Julia R. Sundt, Sheppard-Towner Nurse.

Carrizozo School Notes
By Jeanne Reilly:

The Helm Junior Audubon Club has been organized by the fifth and sixth grades and it is now a part of the National Audubon Society. The object of the Audubon Club is to identify birds, study their habits and ascertain which are destructive and which are helpful. Each member will receive a button with the picture of a Cardinal Bird inscribed thereon, which is the emblem of the society. The room will receive a magazine of bird lore, also outline drawings. The officers are: President, R. A. Crenshaw; Secretary, Frances Charles.

The Chas. Bien Water Color Exhibit sent out by the Federated Clubs, was viewed by over one hundred pupils and parents. The Exhibit was held in the 7th and 8th grade rooms Tuesday afternoon. The children enjoyed this exhibit so much that they have asked that we send for the "Gustave Bauman Water Color Prints."

Mrs. Hunt's and Nickles' rooms got the banner for the highest percent of pupils on the honor roll. The honor roll means pupils who have not been absent nor tardy during the month.

The total number of pupils in all rooms, who have not been absent nor tardy, is 165.
