Railroad Rumbblings

Trainmaster J. P. Nash of the Tucumcari Division, Mrs. Nash and daughter, Jacqueline, arrest Eagle Creek for a two weeks' stay.

Mrs. J. E. Farley left the latter part of the week for Long Beach, Cal., to visit her daughter, Mrs. I. D. Baker. She, with her three children are said to be seriously ill. Mrs. Farley will remain until their conditions will warrant her return.

Mrs. Anna Roberts, mother of Caller Albert Roberts, arrived home Sunday from Tucumcari, where she spent several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Alma Evans, who has been ill of late, but is now on the road to recovery.

Signal Service Foreman W. C. Wiley has returned from his week-end trip to El Paso.

Division Storekeeper George Ferguson, Mrs. Ferguson, daughters Imogene, Wanda and Nina Kathryn were here from Tucumcari during the fair, and while here, George sold his residence to Road Foreman Chas. F. Grey. Mr. Grey will occupy the same before cold weather sets in.

Mrs. L. P. McClintock, who underwent an operation at the Johnson Hospital Wednesday, is doing nicely, according to the doctor's report to this paper yesterday.

Clerk R. E. Lemon at the local station left today for Washington, D. C., accompanied by A. D. Brownfield. They will attend the Fall trial and will remain in Washington about two weeks, during which time J. Flynn, relief clerk, will officiate for Mr. Lemon.

Division Supt. C. M. Murphy spent Wednesday here, dividing his time between here and at the Lake, where he took several eastern railroad officials to allow them to see some of the surrounding country to this Division point.

Smash-Up Reveals 65 Gallons Hooch

While enroute to Carrizozo, about six miles above here, Wednesday night, a car containing a man afterwards giving his name as Manuel Valencia and his wife, turned over badly mangling one of the woman's hands and scratching the pair up otherwise. They were brought to Dr. Johnson's office and given medical treatment, but the man in the other car had been overlooked until Sheriff Kelsey made an investigation. The officer became suspicious and in examining the car, found two large cans of alcohol, which the man said was all he had.

Not satisfied with this, the sheriff went to the place near where the other car turned over, and tracing the tracks of car No. 2, found that they led to a culvert and reaching in under same, he found, after an inventory was made, 65 gallons of straight alcohol. The woman in the case is suffering with the lacerated hand, which was so badly mangled that three fingers of her hand are completely amputated. The men are in jail; the woman in the hospital, and the end is not yet.

Grand Master Visits Masons

Last Saturday, Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., was honored by a visit from Grand Master J. S. MacTavish of Magdalena. The Grand Master came over from Vaughn, where he visited the Vaughn lodge on Friday night. He was accompanied by his youngest son, Allister MacTavish, who had been with his father on his tour of the major portion of the state.

In the afternoon, the Grand Master and his son Allister, Judge Owen, S. F. Miller, C. P. Huppertz and A. L. Burke made a trip to Fort Stanton, where the Grand Master visited the patients, offering words of comfort to the afflicted as he passed through the different wards, after which the party returned to Carrizozo, arriving here about 6 o'clock.

In the evening at Masonic Temple, the Grand Master was tendered a reception by local and visiting Masons, who listened to an able address from the distinguished guest, and a social hour was spent before disbanding.

This was the first official visit from the Grand Master, and those who were fortunate enough to hear it, will always remember the able, eloquent address, likewise the esteemed gentleman who delivered the same.

He left Sunday morning for his home in Magdalena, accompanied by his son — and it is the hope of local Masons that he will visit us again before his term of office ends.

Voice from the Ford

The following telegram was received this week from El Paso, to the Western Motors, Inc.

"Had letter from a friend and former newspaper man of El Paso; but now in Detroit, in which he says: Saw the new Ford today; something few people have done. It will eclipse anything anticipated by all odds. It is the neatest and sturdiest ever seen in low priced cars. The hood reminds me of the late rounded Essex, but sturdier and better lines. Radiation, small model of Lincoln top unusual with upholstery and equipment, greatly exceeding any low-priced car ever put out. Wire wheels gives Rakish finish. New Ford will undoubtedly sweep the automobile market. I saw it perform and inspected it on both long and short range. The car should be in the $1200 class instead of below Chevrolet, where it will be. Yours, J. W. Kirkpatrick."

$3,300 Appropriation for Capitan-Angus Highway

B. F. Kelley, Assistant State Highway Engineer with headquarters at Roswell, was here Wednesday. Mr. Kelley had just returned from Santa Fe, where he said an appropriation was made while he was there, of $3,300 by the state, for to apply as the state's part on the proposed Capitan-Angus Highway. Mr. Kelley talked freely about the future for Lincoln county in regard to road matters and said it was the will and pleasure of the present administration to give us what we justly deserve. He left Wednesday afternoon for Tularosa to attend to highway matters in that respective locality.

Successful Outcome of the County Fair

No attempt will be made at this time to give an exact report of the fair. Reports are not all in and a few sales are yet to be made.

Thus far there has been turned over $1063.61 224.50 Donated by business men

Total $1288.11

This amount is gross—it will be slightly increased when all reports are in. The expense will be about half of that; possibly less.

We desire to make a few comments on the excellent work of those who assisted. They worked as long as they could stand on their feet. Particular mention might be made to the ladies who handled the Carnival feature in the Lutz Building. Their labors were effective and untiring. Also the program and the intelligent way it was arranged by Coach Riddle, deserves special mention. Carrizozo saw some of the cleanest sports ever seen on the track, and in the Hall, where the basketball games were played.

The work was handled in three departments; Carnival Features, Track Meet and Dances. Indications are that each have one-third of the $1063.61, with the Carnival having a slight edge on the other departments. Carrizozo will always have a warm welcome for the clean cut boys and girls from the rural districts who met and defeated or were defeated by the best we had.

The Fair will be reported under four heads, namely: Track Meet and Basketball; County Exhibits; School Exhibits; Financial. The entire net proceeds will be applied on the indebtedness of the Community Hall.

Last Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14-15, the county fair held in Carrizozo, opened with a parade consisting of 43 cars. The Carrizozo, Capitan, Hondo and Lincoln schools were entered in the track meet; Capitan winning the most points with an easy majority, Carrizozo was second, winning the grade events with the Carl boy as the outstanding figure, although every one showed themselves very capable.

After the parade terminated at the Community Hall, Supt. Koogler of Capitan gave an address and the orchestra played two selections. The parade then wended its way to the ball park where the track meet and races were held. All the teams showed good sportsmanship and the meet was run off in orderly fashion. Traylor and Bilbo of Capitan were the stars of the meet, with all the Carrizozo boys a close second. Lopez featured for Carrizozo.

Friday at 8 p. m., Capitan girls played Corona girls, Corona winning 20-14. The game was fast with the ball mostly in possession of the Corona girls. Friday evening the first game was between Corona and Carrizozo boys, Corona winning 19-17. The Carrizozo girls retrieved the boys' loss by beating Hondo girls with a score of 18-7. The Capitan boys won easily from the Hondo boys 38 to 4. Saturday night the Carrizozo girls beat Corona 22-18. In the last game the Capitan boys beat Corona 18 to 12. Starring players were: Bilbo, Traylor, Fritz, Capitan; Lopez, Cooper, Lemon, Richard, Kolland, Townsend, Capitan, Carrizozo. Much credit is deserving Miss Hammer and Prof. Riddle.

Ft. Stanton Notes

About 50 people from here attended the fair at Carrizozo last week and all report a very interesting time.

The Misses Dora Watchin and Lucille Brown were shoppers in Roswell Saturday.

Dr. Nesbit, Messrs. Bill Hale Bill Clark reported good duck hunting north of Roswell Sunday.

G. Hendren has done away with old 'dobbin'; he purchased a Chevrolet Coupe last week.

Mrs. W. Wunsch entertained at bridge last week-end.

The regular meeting of the Trowel club was held last Friday night.

Mrs. Tappan gave a four-table bridge party Wednesday night.

Dr. Todd will return Thursday from a month's trip on the west coast.

Messrs. Hendren, Rand and Mickey left yesterday on a bear hunt in the White mountains.

Miss Green, dietician, has been transferred to the marine hospital at San Francisco.

About 15 people from here will attend the 17th anniversary of the Comet Chapter No. 29 of the Eastern Star at Carrizozo Saturday night.

Mickey McNeff has received a nine-tube Croxley radio from Denver.

Mrs. Gensler has returned from several weeks vacation at New Orleans. She also spent 3 weeks in Chicago in an art school.

Dave Parker was in Roswell last Tuesday.

Miss Madeline Converse, former dietician at the marine hospital at San Francisco arrived here Wednesday to take charge of the same department here.

Capitan Notes

Capitan High School boys' and girls' basketball and track teams attended the fair at Carrizozo Oct. 14-15. Although our teams won the cup, the other schools of the county co-operated with us and showed good sportsmanship in every sense of the word.

William Peters was host of a dinner Tuesday evening, at the Buena Vista Hotel given in honor of the high school participants in the tournament. After dinner, the evening was spent in dancing.

Chas. Gordon of Fort Stanton generously made the Capitan High school a gift of some library books in honor of the boys' basketball victory at Carrizozo.

Miss Amelia Fritz was the outstanding star of the meet. She entered every event and won first place in all. She also was a member of the relay and basketball teams. Capitan won the cup—thanks to Amelia.

Supt. Koogler spoke of the fair as being the best ever held in Lincoln county. He said the details were carefully worked out and all events scheduled and held on time. Efficient committees were always in the right place at the right time.

The field and track meet was a success at every angle, and Mr. Koogler, as a member of the committee, gave the credit for its success to the man that did all the work, Mr. Riddle of Carrizozo.

Crystal Theatre

J. C. Burkett, Prop. Friday — "The Winning of Barbara Worth." This program is given by the Carrizozo Primary Schools to help defray the cost of piano.

Saturday-Monday — "Faust," a picture that has startled two continents.

Tuesday-Wednesday — Betty Bronson in "Ritzzy" and a 2-reel comedy.

Thursday-Friday — Bebe Daniels in "A Kiss in a Taxi" and Felix, the Kat! Comedy.

The Gallup Wallop

The second number of the Gallup Wallop has reached this office, and while we much admired editor Byus' first issue, we are more interested in the second—from the fact that the further he goes, the stronger he seems to get.

We admire his attitude, because he doesn't give a damn! In his attitude toward ex-governor Hannett and Carl Magee, he seems to have their measurement to a goat's heel, and isn't afraid to give it out.

Editor Byus asks for no sympathy from anyone, and his editorials are arranged in such a manner that a man need not be in possession of a university diploma in order to digest them.

To say that such a magazine as the Gallup Wallop is badly needed in New Mexico, would be putting it lightly. Many people in this state who have read, and perhaps believed, some of the articles written by Hannett and Magee, will change their minds after reading the Wallop, because he has the goods on them, and has the nerve to speak out.

In its infancy, the Wallop has not been blessed with much advertising, but it won't be long now before its pages will gleam with that essential factor, and we hope for the hastening of the day.

Here's to you, Mr. Byus, long life to the Wallop.

Guy L. Warden, Prominent Rancher, Accidentally Killed Last Night

At the J B French ranch, Guy L. and E. P. Warden went to bed about midnight, they awakened and found that the windmill had stopped running. Guy dressed and went out to start the engine and his brother not hearing the engine start, hurriedly dressed and hastened to ascertain the cause. On arriving at the windmill he found Guy fastened in the belt and his body badly mangled. It seems that the key to the shaft on the driver had become loosened and protruded out so far that it caught his clothing and carried him into the belt as the engine started and caused his death. The body was brought here this morning and will await the arrival of undertaker Kelley, who is now at Las Cruces. Full particulars of the funeral and life of Mr. Warden will appear in our next issue.

Mrs. Wayne Johnson and baby, James Eugene of Ancho, arrived home Monday from Cloudercroft, where they had been visiting relatives. Miss Billie Culbertson accompanied them home and will visit for a short while at the Johnson home.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Jordon at the Johnson Hospital Tuesday, a girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

1—Demonstration of anti-aircraft guns with remote control, at the Aberdeen proving grounds, 2—Tannenberg national war memorial dedicated by the Germans and accepted by President Von Hindenburg, 3—Shooting of a big oil well near Jacksonville, Ill., where the precious fluid has been found at a depth of 330 feet.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Opponents of Obregon in Mexico Lead Revolt—One Is Executed.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

REVOLT flared up in Mexico last week, the anti-revolutionists in many parts of the country taking arms against the government, which supports Obregon for the presidency. Parts of the garrisons of Mexico City and Toluca and troops in the state of Vera Cruz mutinied under the leadership of many of their officers, and there were uprisings in other towns. Gen. Arnulfo Gomez, one of Obregon's rivals for the presidency, was at the head of the entire movement, and Gen. Francisco Ferrero, the other opposition candidate, was declared to be in full sympathy with the revolt. The mutineers from the capital were soon defeated by loyal troops and Ferrero, with a dozen of his aids, was either captured in Cuernavaca or seized in Mexico City and taken there secretly. The prisoners were immediately tried by court martial and shot, and the same fate was meted out to many other officers who were caught.

Gomez, however, for a time eluded the Calles troops and at this writing is reported at the head of a considerable force and marching to attack the city of Vera Cruz. He had been joined by Gen. Hector Almada, leader of the Mexico City mutineers. Federal troops were advancing on a part of the rebel forces at Perote, and the strong Vera Cruz garrison, commanded by Gen. Jesus Aguirre, was reported ready to meet the attack of Gomez. The prospects at this time are that Gomez will be defeated, and if he is captured it is almost certain that he will be executed. President Calles is apparently so strongly supported that there is small chance for the success of a rebellion. The greater part of the army is loyal to him, as is the navy, and the Mexican Federation of Labor is pledged to support him.

This attempted revolt has at least cleared the presidential situation in Mexico, for since Obregon is supported by President Calles and his only two rivals are now eliminated, the election of the former president seems an absolute certainty. Immediately after the start of the uprising 25 deputies who opposed Obregon were expelled by the congress.

FRANK O. LOWDEN received at his Mississippi farm several thousand central Illinoisans who urged him to announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination, supporting the plea already made by delegations from Nebraska, Iowa and other states. Mr. Lowden entertained his guests handsomely but the most they could get from him concerning his candidacy was a reiteration of his previous statement, namely: "I know of no man in all our history who has run away from the Presidency, and no one who appreciates the solemn responsibility of that high office will run after the Presidency." Mayor Thompson of Chicago has let it be known that if Lowden enters the preferential primaries in Illinois, he will present himself as a candidate, and his friends said if he did this he would capture large numbers of Southern delegates in the national convention. An immediate result of the Thompson announcement was the almost complete elimination of Chicago from the list of cities seeking the convention. San Francisco and Cleveland now seem to be in the lead, with Minneapolis and Detroit still in the running. The Republican national committee will decide on the location December 6, according to Chairman Butler. That gentleman and other members of the committee were the guests of President Coolidge at a breakfast and obtained the impression that he was sincere in his determination not to accept renomination. Conference of the leaders in Washington brought out the opinion that Hoover would run better than Hughes in the West and South, though the latter would have the better chance to defeat Smith in New York.

Frederick I. Thompson, Democrat and the publisher of five Alabama newspapers, in an interview in New York, said the Republicans could break the cold South by nominating Hoover, providing the Democrats name Al Smith. The campaign for Smith has been actively opened in several Western states, notably Kansas and South Dakota.

CABINET members, high army and navy officers and hundreds of other persons, gathered at the Aberdeen proving grounds, near Washington, Thursday, and witnessed demonstrations of the newest things in weapons and automotive equipment, the most elaborate display of the kind since the World War. Tanks, tractors, bombs, amoke curtains, anti-aircraft guns, machine guns, field artillery, weapons and rifles were exhibited and tested. Many of the models shown have been available for some time but lack of funds has prevented their adoption. It is hoped this condition will soon be remedied.

Ordnance officers state that in the field of artillery new weapons have been produced which are far superior to the old in range, accuracy, and breadth of the field of fire. In some cases, notably that of the newly perfected 75-millimeter pack howitzer, ordnance experts say the new weapon is so far superior to the ones it was built to replace that there is virtually no comparison. Another example disclosed was that of the new American 75 millimeter gun, which, ordnance experts say, has a range almost twice as great as the famous French 75-millimeter gun used during the war.

The newest anti-aircraft gun automatically sights its target. It is controlled by a sensitive instrument which detects the position of a moving airplane by sound waves. At night a huge searchlight throws its beam directly upon the airplane simultaneously with the discharge of the gun.

FRANCIS tariff increases continue to be the subject of official notes, semi-official statements and unofficial arguments and protests, and a settlement of the controversy is not in sight. Meanwhile our Treasury department announces the assessment of counter-vailing duties on certain French products, as a direct result of the higher French tariff rates.

The action was mandatory under six paragraphs of the Fordney tariff act, which makes provision for counter-vailing duties. Under these paragraphs the articles affected bear specified rates of duty or are on the free list subject to a proviso that if any nation imposes a higher duty, imports of the particular commodity from that nation shall be subject to that rate. The same action has been taken in the case of a few German products.

DESPITE the rigid censorship imposed by the Peking government, the correspondents in China have sent over enough information to prove that Peking is in grave danger of capture by the armies of Shensi province, which are allied with the southern Nationalists and are led by Yen Hai-shan, military governor. Yen took Kalgan and the Manchurians withdrew before his advance, planning to make a stand at the Great Wall or at the Nankow pass about forty-five miles northeast of Peking. Marshal Chang sent his aviation and heavy artillery units from Peking to Tientsin and it was thought he might be preparing to evacuate the capital. The situation caused considerable concern in Washington and London. Dispatches from Tokyo said the Japanese government was seriously considering the sending of troops from Manchuria to Peking and Tientsin if matters in China grew worse.

MOSCOW ignored two friendly notifications from Paris that the Soviet ambassador, Rakovsky, was persona non grata, so the French government last week formally demanded his recall. This step was forced by the violent press campaign against the continued presence of Rakovsky. Russia had made efforts to smooth over the situation by increasing its offers of debt settlement, but without avail.

DR. V. N. POLOVESA, a woman, Soviet representative of the Russian Red Cross in London since 1921, was expelled from England by order of the home office. She is the first woman to be denied the privileges of the country since the raid on the Russian Trading company's headquarters by Scotland Yard men in search of propaganda.

THIRTY persons, who were said to be members of a Communist lobby, were detected trying to "bore from within" at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in Los Angeles. One of them, Sid Bush, was arrested and booked on suspicion of criminal syndicalism. The police said Bush had in his pocket a letter from William Z. Foster, secretary of the Communist party of America, instructing him to obtain the introduction of certain resolutions in the convention and naming the Communists with whom he was to work.

One of the most important developments at the convention was the withdrawal of the building trade department of the federation from association with the national board for judicial awards in the building industry on the grounds that the board had failed to render definite decisions.

COAL miners of Illinois and Iowa ended their long strike and went back to work, having reached a compromise with the operators whereby they are to receive temporarily the same wages as under the Jacksonville agreement. A joint board is to take up the wage question in each state. It was believed a similar agreement would end the strike in Indiana mines.

THREE German aviators and an actress from Vienna started from Berlin in a huge Junkers plane to fly to America via Lisbon and the Azores. They were not after a record, so they stopped first at Amsterdam for fuel. Then, flying southward, the plane was forced to descend into the sea off Cape Hoca, Portugal. A tug was sent to the rescue and it was announced that the plane was uninjured and the flight would be resumed.

William A. Yacker, war-time president of an aircraft company and a close friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was killed at Maywood, Ill., when a plane he was testing crashed and burst into flames. The son of a St. Louis business man, Yacker was a member during the war of the Italian flying forces and later of the American army.

GEORGE REMUS, ex-convict and former super-boolegger, is in the limelight again. Last Thursday, as he and his wife were on their way to court in Cincinnati to settle their domestic difficulties, Remus fired a volley of bullets into the taxicab in which were the woman and her adopted daughter. Mrs. Remus sustained several wounds and died in a hospital. Remus had accused the woman of "framing" him and having him railroaded to the Atlanta penitentiary four years ago, and after his release she filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty.

LAST week it was the turn of Great Britain and King George to entertain the American Legion tourists known as the "good will party," and the job was well done. On their arrival in London the Legionnaires formed in procession on the Embankment and led by Howard P. Savage, retiring commander, marched to the Cenotaph, where Mr. Savage deposited a wreath. They then proceeded to Westminster abbey, where another wreath was laid on the grave of the Unknown Warrior. The first entertainment was a luncheon given by the British Legion and presided over by the prince of Wales, who assured the Americans that they were as welcome as they were ten years ago. Following this was a series of functions, including a reception by the king and queen.

Before going to England the Legionnaires visited Belgium and were warmly received by King Albert and Queen Elizabeth.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for October 23 THE CALL OF THE PROPHET

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 19:19, 20; Amos 7:10-15; Isa. 6:1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then I said, Here am I, send me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Chooses His Helpers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Call to Service.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Spirit of the Volunteer.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Need for Modern Prophets.

A prophet is one who speaks forth the message of another. A prophet may foretell events, but his primary business is to speak forth God's message.

I. The Call of Elisha (I Kings 19:19, 20).

1. His occupation. He seems to have been a well-to-do farmer, as there were twelve yoke of oxen in service when God called him. It was while engaged in his common duty that he received the divine call.

2. How he was called. Elijah cast his mantle upon him as he passed by.

II. The Call of Amos (Amos 7:10-15).

1. His occupation (v. 14). He was a herdsman and gatherer of sycamore fruit.

2. He was a prophet, not by succession nor trained in the prophetic schools.

3. God called him from his humble life to stand before the king. God is not stinted for helpers. He raises up workers from unexpected quarters, fills them with His Spirit and sends them forth.

III. The Call of Isaiah (Isa. 6:1-8).

1. Isaiah's vision of the Lord (vv. 1-4). No one's ministry will ever be fruitful until he has had a vision of the Lord.

(1) He saw the Lord on His throne (v. 1). The supreme need of a servant of God is to have a vision of Him, even to see Him on His throne. Just now, perhaps as never before, we need a vision of the enthroned Lord, as the awful darkness is settling down upon the world.

(2) He saw the Seraphim about (vv. 2, 3). Their standing indicated that they were in readiness to do His bidding. Their equipment with six wings showed their ability to execute the divine will. In the divine presence, one pair was needed to veil the head from the divine glory, one pair veiled the feet which had been soiled in contact with the world, while the third pair was suspended in midair waiting to depart on the divine errand. As they waited in His presence their continued cry was "Holy, holy, holy."

(3) He saw manifestations of majesty (v. 4). As the holy ones cried the very doorposts moved and the temple was filled with smoke. Smoke indicates the divine presence in anger (Ex. 19:8; 20:18).

2. Isaiah's conviction of sin (v. 6). When he got a vision of the holy God he was smitten with a sense of sin. The reason that men think well of themselves is that they have never seen God. Face to face with the Lord, Isaiah saw himself as wholly vile. He realized that he had sinned in speech, and in deed, and in thought, therefore the cry of despair.

3. Isaiah cleansed from sin (vv. 6, 7). Having been convicted of and confessed his sin, a burning coal was sent from the altar which purged away his sin. His penitential guilt was forgiven and removed.

4. Isaiah's call (v. 8). His call from God did not come until after his cleansing. The purged soul is the soul ready for the Lord's service.

5. Isaiah's dedication (v. 8). As soon as he was cleansed he quickly responded for service. The one who has been sanctified and made meet for the Master's service readily responds to the call of God. He did not wait to see the end from the beginning, but freely gave himself up to that service.

6. Isaiah's commission (vv. 9-13). Because of the unpromising outlook, Isaiah shrank from his responsibility. He saw the people steeped in selfishness, and in spite of that the Lord assured him that their blindness and sin would not continue forever. The people would go on in sin, be taken into captivity, and the land left desolate; but as the oak, after shedding its leaves is for a time apparently lifeless, yet it retains its substance and so can manifest its life, the prophet is given to see under this figure that despite the deadness of the nation a remnant shall be saved. The holy seed of the kingdom shall come to fruition in the last day.

Make Big Money in Swimming

If you would meet Dame Fortune face to face wear a swimming suit.

Gertrude Ederle set the style when she swam the English channel last summer. She was immediately deluged with theatrical and motion picture contracts, and because her father was a butcher, she was honored by the meat dealer associations throughout the country.

Then came Mrs. Millie Gade Corson, who also swam the channel and collected for it with vaudeville tours.

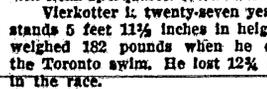

George Young, the young Toronto swimmer, was next to be chosen by the fickle Dame Fortune, writes H. H. Barcus in the Detroit News. He swam the Catalina Island channel, received a big cash prize and toured the country in vaudeville.

Now we have Ernst Vierkotter, a German swimmer, who last year made the English channel swim in 12 hours and 42 minutes. He was an amateur at the time and did not collect on the race. He turned pro recently, competing in and winning the Toronto swim for which he received a prize of $30,000, and in a few days he had contracts for vaudeville, motion pictures, writing books, advertising various articles, phonograph records and other things aggregating $145,000.

Before he is through, it is likely he will clean up a quarter of a million dollars.

Vierkotter is twenty-seven years old, stands 5 feet 11 1/2 inches in height and weighed 182 pounds when he entered the Toronto swim. He lost 12 1/2 pounds in the race.

The new swimming champion, the only one to win two international races, has only one good eye. His right eye was punched out when he was a child by a hat pin in the hands of his young sister.

Sporting Squibs

Carl Mays is one of the best hitting pitchers in the majors.

Jess Barnes, former National league star, has been signed by Toledo.

Ty Cobb's legs may be slowing up, but his tongue functions as nimbly as ever.

Great Britain now has over 7,000 professional footballers, and 750,000 amateur players.

Tom Edwards, a football star at Michigan, is also a member of the Detroit police department.

Harry Hellmann of the Detroit Tigers won the American league batting champion hip in 1921, '22 and '23.

A golf course recently constructed near Mountain Iron, Minn., has been named the Mid-Iron public golf links.

Ed Brandt, pitcher of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league, has been purchased by the Boston Braves for $20,000.

The Kansas City Blues of the American association will "more than probably" return to Lake Charles for the 1928 spring training season.

Midnight baseball is enjoyed by soldiers in Alaska, where night is day under the Arctic circle.

Pat Malone, Minneapolis pitcher, has twice equaled the American association record for consecutive strikeouts this season by fanning six batters in a row.

Pitchers "Chad" Kimsey and Morris Young and Catcher Joe Mays of the Muskogee (Okla.) Western association club, have been sold to Tulsa, champions of the Western league.

Football earnings are expected to pay the cost of University of Michigan's new stadium, as well as the $500,000 intramural sports building and the $100,000 women's fieldhouse.

Alfred Shrubbs, England's great runner and college coach, recently retired. He trained Oxford last season and previous to that was in charge of Harvard's squad. His career covered 50 years.

Joe Marty, the pitcher sold to the New York Yankees by the Lincoln club of the Western league, plays under an assumed name. His real name is Joseph Marticomera, and he is of Italian extraction.

Lieut. Col. Edward D. Miller, who served for many years with the British army in India, is known as "The Father of Polo." Since leaving the army he has devoted his time to the training of polo ponies.

One of the old track marks that has defied the efforts of modern runners is Maxey Long's 47 seconds flat for the straightaway quarter-mile dash, made on the old racetrack at Guttenburg, N. J., 27 years ago.

"Tiger" Flowers and his manager, Walk Miller, estimate that they have traveled over 200,000 miles throughout the United States, Mexico, Cuba and Canada in order to appear in bouts arranged for the future.

Gretchen Allen, a seventeen-year-old swimming star of Florida, has 52 medals and 12 ribbons for balancing rock place in various water competitions. Numerous records and trophies trodden grace her collection.

"Shamateurism" Called Tennis' Chief Menace

"Shamateurism" is the greatest menace in the world to good tennis, in the opinion of Charles B. Cochran, who has been managing Suzanne Lenglen and other professional tennis stars on a tour through England.

"Professionalism will do no more harm to tennis than it has to golf, cricket, football and baseball," said Cochran. "The all-important thing is to keep amateurism and professionalism entirely separate, and not to have purported amateurs camouflage their professionalism."

Professional tennis has brought great tennis within the reach of the masses, so Cochran says, and since municipalities have encouraged tennis playing so generally by providing courts there is universal desire to see good tennis at a low cost. This was impossible with strictly amateur matches.

"At Glasgow a crowd of 15,000 sat through a rain to watch Mlle. Lenglen and her associates in professional tennis," Cochran asserted. "This is said to be the largest crowd that ever attended a tennis match."

Hesitates at Candy

The photograph shows Ralph Furey, captain of the Columbia University football team, debating with himself whether he should eat the lollipop in his hand, as it may affect his training for hard gridiron season.

Major League Star Also Is Reporter in Winter

Johnny Neun, Detroit Tiger first baseman, is a baseball player in the summer and a reporter in the winter.

As soon as he dons his Tiger uniform he hurries to his desk on the Baltimore Sun. At odd times he referees and writes about soccer games. He also is a basket ball official.

Neun has been in many spectacular plays this season. He turned in the only unassisted triple play in the American league.

In a seven-inning game he stole five bases and made five hits, all singles. During a double-header with New York he stole home in each game, the second time under the eagle-eyed Herb Pennock.

Walker Invincible

Notwithstanding Mickey Walker's decisive victory over Tommy Milligan, there are quite a host of Britons ready to tackle the world's champion on reasonable terms. Their eagerness is due to a remark passed by Charles B. Cochran that there is not a boxer in Europe capable of defeating Walker. Cochran's estimate of the situation while probably true, is rather quite broad and Walker may run into a snag of some kind.

School Exhibits at the County Fair

Corona had a space of 15x12 feet. The high school dept. was represented with English notebooks of art appreciation, biographies and themes; Spanish with illustrated translations; History; Domestic Art with pretty and well made dresses, aprons, lingerie and embroidery. In the dietetics class Zelpha Dishman and Jane McFadden had foods demonstrating proper diets for lean and fat people. Dorothy Arnold presided over a table of vitamins. On account of lack of space Luclair McFadden and Gertrude Willingham were unable to demonstrate a bridge luncheon which they had prepared. The grades had paper cuttings and folders, baskets, bird houses, maps, drawings and other attractive art works.

The Carrizozo High School Manual training exhibited a piano bench, coat rack, flower pot stand, newspaper rack, book ends, table and stools Domestic Science--canned fruits, vegetables, pickles, jelly and an angel food cake made by Helen Huupertz. Domestic Art--silk, gingham dresses, lingerie and embroidery. Grades--salt maps, spelling booklets, history outlines, agricultural species and outlines, writing, water color and crayola paintings, paper weaving, cutting and folding, and many beautiful postings. The second grade had a very interesting display of the silk worm, cocoons, eggs and moth. The third grade's sand table representing a Pueblo Indian village deserves special mention.

The Domestic Science of Captain had a nice exhibit of canned fruits, jellies, vegetables. Grades--maps, booklets, drawings, paper cutting and folding. San Patricio--a collection of baskets of many shapes, colors and designs, also necklaces and watch fobs of beadwork. Glencoe--two pillow tops and silk handkerchiefs of gold gilt work. This was the only school which had free hand drawings in pencil. Hondo made a beautiful vase and bouquet of gilt flowers and cat-tails; hot dish mats of corrugated paste board, and Halloween posters.

"He had a key."
"Key to what door?"
"That door over there." Dale indicated the terrace door of the alcove. The detective was about to ask another question--then he paused. Miss Cornelia was talking on the phone.

As that Mr. Johnson's real-estate Doctor Wells there? No!" Dale was puzzled. "Oh--all right--good night--" She hung up the phone.

Miss Anderson had been thinking as well. Dale jarp glance travel over to rest for a moment, with discovery, on the fragments of blueprints that remained among the ashes--return, or eyes for a moment, try to summon every atom of she possessed to aid her, hammering at her with gain.

"Did you take that revolver into the safe?" Dale asked. "I heard him outside on the said Dale promptly and "I was frightened." Dale stood over to Miss Cornelia. "But when the only person present at his murder is the girl who's engaged to the guilty cashier!" he continued, watching Miss Cornelia's face as the full force of his words sank into her mind. "I want to know more about it!"

Cheerfulness a Factor in Symphony of Life

Cheerfulness is more precious than great riches. If I were founding a new religion its first commandment should be: "Thou shalt be cheerful." If I were instituting a new school of medicine its fundamental principle would be: "Cheerfulness on the part of the doctor, and for the patient--good cheer."

For in the symphony of life much gold without cheerfulness is as sounding brass and tinkling cymbal. Religion without cheerfulness is a mockery. Success in the cure of most maladies depends upon faith and hope and cheerfulness. The optimist is cheerfulness personified; the pessimist a walking grouch.

The cheerful optimist makes the progress of humanity; the growling pessimist would turn back the wheel of time. Abas with pessimism! Let cheerfulness reign supreme.-- Exchange.

Blindness Reduced

The underlying cause of blindness, whether the result of disease or accident, is usually ignorance. In 18 years the percentage of children in the schools for the blind who lost their sight because of opthalmia, neovascularization (babies' sore eyes)--for centuries the principal cause of blindness--has been reduced more than 51 per cent.

picked up the discarded blue-prints and threw them on the fire--retaining only the precious scrap in his hand. The roll blackened and burst into flame. He watched it, smiling. "I'm not going to give this to any detective," he said quietly, tapping the piece of paper in his hand. Dale's heart pounded sickeningly, but she kept her courage up. "What do you mean?" she said fiercely. "What are you going to do?" He faced her across the fireplace, his airy manner come back to him just enough to add an additional touch of the sinister to the cold self-revelation of his words.

"Let us suppose a few things, Miss Ogden," he said. "Suppose my price is a million dollars. Suppose I need money very badly and my uncle has left me a house containing that amount in cash. Suppose I choose to consider that that money is mine--then it wouldn't be hard to suppose, would it, that I'd make a pretty sincere attempt to get away with it?" Dale summoned all her fortitude. "If you go out of this room with that paper I'll scream for help!" she said defiantly. Fleming made a little mock-bow of courtesy. He smiled. "To carry on our little game of supposing," he said easily. "Suppose there is a detective in this house--and that, if I were cornered, I should tell him where to lay his hands on from figure to figure lily, noting unimportant details. Billy was still in his white coat and his face, impassive as ever, showed not the slightest surprise. Brooks and Anderson were likewise completely dressed--but Miss Cornelia had evidently begun to retire for the night when she had heard the shot--her transformation was naked and she wore a dressing-gown. As for Lizzie, that worthy shivered in a gaudy wrapper adorned with incredible orange flowers, with her hair done up in curl-papers. Dale saw it all, and was never after to forget one single detail of it. The detective was beside her now, examining Fleming's body with pro-stolidly. Miss-Cornelia's voice shook. "Dreadful groans--and what seemed to be an inarticulate effort to speak!" Lizzie drew her gaudy wrapper closer, about her shuddering form. "I'd go somewhere," she-wailed in the voice of a lost soul, "if I only had somewhere to go!" Miss Cornelia quelled her with a glare and turned back to the detective. "Won't you send these men to investigate--or go yourself?" she said, indicating Brooks and Billy. The detective thought swiftly. "My place is here," he said. "You two men," Brooks and Billy moved forward to take his orders, "take another look through the house--don't leave the building--I'll want you pretty soon."

Brooks--or Jack Bailey, as we may as well call him through the remainder of this narrative--started to obey. Then his eye fell on Miss Cornelia's revolver, which Anderson had taken from beside Fleming's body and still held clasped in his hand. "If you'll give me that revolver," he began in an offhand tone, hoping Anderson would not see through his little ruse. Once wiped clean of fingerprints, the revolver would not be such telling evidence against Dale Ogden. But Anderson was not to be caught napping.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Opponents of Obregon in Mexico Lead Revolt—One Is Executed.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
REVOLT flared up in Mexico last week, the anti-re-electionists in many parts of the country taking arms against the government, which supports Obregon for the presidency. Parts of the garrisons of Mexico City and Torreon and troops in the state of Vera Cruz mutinied under the leadership of many of their officers, and there were uprisings in other towns. Gen. Arnulfo Gomez, one of Obregon's rivals for the presidency, was at the head of the entire movement, and Gen. Francisco Serrano, the other opposition candidate, was declared to be in full sympathy with the revolt. The mutineers from the capital were soon defeated by loyal troops and Serrano, with a dozen of his aids, was either captured in Cuernavaca or seized in Mexico City and taken there secretly. The prisoners were immediately tried by court martial and shot, and the same fate was meted out to many other officers who were caught.
Gomez, however, for a time eluded the Calles troops and at this writing is reported at the head of a considerable force and marching to attack the city of Vera Cruz. He had been joined by Gen. Hector Almada, leader of the Mexico City mutineers. Federal troops were advancing on a part of the rebel forces at Perote, and the strong Vera Cruz garrison, commanded by Gen. Jesus Aguirre, was reported ready to meet the attack of Gomez. The prospects at this time are that Gomez will be defeated, and if he is captured it is almost certain that he will be executed. President Calles is apparently so strongly supported that there is small chance for the success of a rebellion. The greater part of the army is loyal to him, as is the navy, and the Mexican Federation of Labor is pledged to support him.
This attempted revolt has at least cleared the presidential situation in Mexico, for since Obregon is supported by President Calles and his only two rivals are now eliminated, the election of the former president seems an absolute certainty. Immediately after the start of the uprising 25 deputies who opposed Obregon were expelled by the congress.

FRANK O. LOWDEN received at his Mississippi farm several thousand central Illinoisans who urged him to announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination, supporting the plea already made by delegations from Nebraska, Iowa and other states. Mr. Lowden entertained his guests handsomely but the most they could get from him concerning his candidacy was a reiteration of his previous statement, namely: "I know of no man in all our history who has run away from the Presidency, and no one who appreciates the solemn responsibility of that high office will run after the Presidency." Mayor Thompson of Chicago has let it be known that if Lowden enters the preferential primaries in Illinois, he will present himself as a candidate, and his friends said if he did this he would capture large numbers of Southern delegates in the national convention. An immediate result of the Thompson announcement was the almost complete elimination of Chicago from the list of cities seeking the convention. San Francisco and Cleveland now seem to be in the lead, with Minneapolis and Detroit still in the running. The Republican national committee will decide on the location December 4, according to Chairman Butler. That gentleman and other members of the committee were the guests of President Coolidge at a breakfast and obtained the impression that he was sincere in his determination not to accept re-election. The people would go on in sin, be taken into captivity, and the land left desolate; but as the oak, after shedding its leaves is for a time apparently lifeless, yet it retains its substance and so can manifest its life, the prophet is given to see under this figure that despite the deadness of the nation a remnant shall be saved. The holy seed of the kingdom shall come to fruition in the last days.

THE BAT

A Novel From the Play

By Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood

STORY FROM THE START

Defying all efforts to capture him, after a long series of murders and robberies, a super-crook known only as "The Bat" has brought about a veritable reign of terror. The chief of police assigns his best operative, Anderson, to get on the trail of The Bat. The Union bank, Ogden, Miss Cornelia Van Gorder is living in the country home of the late Courtleigh Fleming, who until his recent death had been president of the Union bank, wrecked because of the theft of a large sum of currency. Miss Van Gorder receives a note warning her to vacate the place at once on pain of death. Dale returns from the city, where she had been to hire a gardener. The gardener arrives, giving his name as Brooks. He admits he is not a gardener, but needs work. Miss Cornelia tells Doctor Wells of the threatening note. They are interrupted by the smashing of a window in the house. They find another warning note. The detective, Anderson, arrives, is told of the situation, and announces he will stay on watch that night. Miss Van Gorder tells Anderson she has an idea Courtleigh Fleming robbed his own bank and concealed the money in the house, but the detective believes the bank's cashier, Bailey, who is missing, is the guilty one. Brooks, who is really Bailey, the sought-for cashier, and Dale's fiancé, tells the girl he knows there is a hidden room in the house. Dale telephones Richard Fleming, Courtleigh's nephew, asking him to come over. Dale tells Richard Fleming of her knowledge of the hidden room. He gets rid of her while he seeks and finds blueprints of the house.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

Dick Fleming's lips set in a thin line. "Just a moment," he said, putting the table between them with a swift movement. Once more he stole a glance at the scrap of paper in his hand by the flickering light of the candle. Then he faced Dale boldly.

"Do you suppose, if that money is actually here, that I can simply turn this over to you and let you give it to Bailey?" he said. "Every man has his price—how do I know that Bailey's isn't a million dollars?"

Dale felt as if he had dashed cold water in her face.

"What do you mean to do with it, then?" she said.

Fleming turned the blue-print over in his hand.

"I don't know," he said, then tentatively. "What is it you want me to do?"

But by now Dale's vague distrust in him had grown very definite.

"Are you going to give it to me?"

He put her off. "I'll have to think about that." He looked at the blue-print again. "So the missing cashier is in this house, posing as a gardener?" he said, with a sneer in his tones.

Dale's temper was rising.

"If you won't give it to me—there's a detective in this house," she said, with a stamp of her foot. She made a movement as if to call Anderson—then, remembering Jack, turned back to Fleming.

"Give it to the detective—and let him search," she pleaded.

"A detective?" said Fleming, startled. "What's a detective doing here?"

"People have been trying to break in."

"What people?"

"I don't know."

Fleming stared out beyond Dale into the night.

"Then it is here," he muttered to himself.

Behind his back—was it a gust of air that moved them—the double doors of the alcove swung open just a crack. Was a listener crouched behind those doors—or was it only a trick of carpentry—a gesture of chance?

The mask of the clubman dropped from Fleming completely. His lips drew back from his teeth in the snarl of a predatory animal that clings to its prey at the cost of life or death.

Before Dale could stop him, he picked up the discarded blue-prints and threw them on the fire—retaining only the precious scrap in his hand. The roll blackened and burst into flame. He watched it, smiling.

"I'm not going to give this to any detective," he said quietly, tapping the piece of paper in his hand.

Dale's heart pounded sickeningly, but she kept her courage up.

"What do you mean?" she said fiercely. "What are you going to do?"

He faced her across the fireplace, his airy manner come back to him just enough to add an additional touch of the sinister to the cold self-revelation of his words.

"Let us suppose a few things, Miss Ogden," he said. "Suppose my price is a million dollars. Suppose I need money very badly and my uncle has left me a house containing that amount in cash. Suppose I choose to consider that that money is mine—then it wouldn't be hard to suppose, would it, that I'd make a pretty sincere attempt to get away with it?"

Dale summoned all her fortitude.

"If you go out of this room with that paper I'll scream for help!" she said defiantly.

Fleming made a little mock-bow of courtesy. He smiled.

"To carry on our little game of supposing," he said easily. "Suppose there is a detective in this house—and that, if I were cornered, I should tell him where to lay his hands on Jack Bailey. Do you suppose you would scream?"

Dale's hands dropped, powerless, at her sides. If only she hadn't told him—too late!—she was helpless. She could not call the detective without ruining Jack—and yet, if Fleming escaped with the money—how could Jack ever prove his innocence?

Fleming watched her for an instant, smiling. Then, seeing she made no move, he darted hastily toward the double doors of the alcove, flung them open, seemed about to dash up the alcove stairs. The sight of him escaping with the only existing clue to the hidden room galvanized Dale into action. She followed him, hurriedly snatching up Miss Cornelia's revolver from the table as she did so, in a last gesture of desperation.

"No! No! Give it to me! Give it to me!" and she sprang after him, clutching the revolver. He waited for her on the bottom step of the stairs, the slight smile still on his face.

Panting breaths in the darkness of the alcove—a short, furious scuffle—he had wrested the revolver away from her, but in doing so had unguarded the precious blue-print—she snatched at it, desperately, tearing most of it away, leaving only a corner in his hand. He swore—tried to get it back—she jerked away.

Then suddenly a bright shaft of light split the darkness of the alcove stairs like a sword—a spot of brilliance centered on Fleming's face like the glare of a flashlight focused from above by an invisible hand. For an instant it revealed him—his features distorted with fury—about to rush down the stairs again and attack the trembling girl at their foot.

A single shot rang out. For a second the fury on Fleming's face seemed to change to a strange look of bewilderment and surprise.

Then the shaft of light was extinguished as suddenly as the snuffing of a candle, and he crumpled forward to the foot of the stairs—struck—lay on his face, in the darkness, just inside the double doors.

Dale gave a little whimpering cry of horror.

"Oh, no, no, no," she whispered from a dry throat, automatically stuffing her portion of the precious scrap of blue-print into the bosom of her dress. She stood frozen, not daring to move, not daring even to reach down with her hand and touch the body of Fleming to see if he were dead or alive.

A murmur of excited voices sounded from the hall. The door flew open—feet stumbled through the darkness—"The police came from this room!" that was Anderson's voice—"Holy Virgin!" that must be Lizzie.

Even as Dale turned to face the assembled household, the house lights, extinguished since the storm, came on in full brilliance—revealing her to them, standing beside Fleming's body with Miss Cornelia's revolver between them.

She shuddered, seeing Fleming's arm flung out awkwardly by his side. No living man could lie in such a posture.

"I didn't do it! I didn't do it!" she stammered, after a tense silence that followed the sudden reillumining of the lights. Her eyes wandered from figure to figure lily, noting important details. Billy was still in his white coat and his face, impassive as ever, showed not the slightest surprise. Brooks and Anderson were likewise completely dressed—but Miss Cornelia had evidently begun to retire for the night when she had heard the shot—her transformation was asked and she wore a dressing-gown. As for Lizzie, that worthy shivered in a gaudy wrapper adorned with incredible orange flowers, with her hair done up in curl-papers. Dale saw it all, and was never after to forget one single detail of it.

The detective was beside her now, examining Fleming's body with professional thoroughness. At last he rose.

"He's dead," he said quietly. A shiver ran through the watching group. Dale felt a stifling hand constrict about her heart.

There was a pause. Anderson picked up the revolver beside Fleming's body and examined it swiftly, careful not to confuse his own fingerprints with any that might already be on the polished steel. Then he looked at Dale.

"Who is he?" he said, bluntly.

Dale fought hysteria for some seconds before she could speak.

"Richard Fleming—somebody shot him!" she managed to whisper at last.

Anderson took a step toward her.

"What do you mean by somebody?" he said.

The world to Dale turned into a crowd of threatening, accusing eyes—a multitude of shadowy voices, shouting "Guilty! Guilty! Prove that you're innocent—you can't!"

"I don't know," she said wildly. "Somebody on the staircase."

"Did you see anybody?" Anderson's voice was as passionless and cold as a bar of steel.

"No—but there was a light from somewhere—like a pocket-flash." She could not go on. She saw Fleming's face before her—furious at first—then changing to that strange look of bewildered surprise—she put her hand over her eyes to shut the vision out.

Lizzie made a welcome interruption.

"I told you I saw a man go up that staircase!" she wailed, jabbing her forefinger in the direction of the alcove stairs.

Miss Cornelia, now recovered from the first shock of the discovery, supported her gallantly.

"That's the only explanation, Mr. Anderson," she said decidedly.

The detective looked at the stairs—at the terrace door. His eyes made a circuit of the room and came back to Fleming's body.

"I've been all over the house," he said. "There's nobody there."

A pause followed. Dale found herself helplessly looking toward her lover for comfort—comfort he could not give without revealing his own secret.

Ecstacy, through the tense silence, a sudden tinkling sounded—the sharp, persistent ringing of a telephone bell.

Miss Cornelia rose to answer it automatically. "The house phone!" she said. Then she stopped. "But we're all here."

They looked at each other aghast. It was true. And yet—somehow—somewhere—one of the other phones on the circuit was calling the living room.

Miss Cornelia summoned every ounce of inherited Van Gorder pride she possessed and went to the phone. She took off the receiver. The ringing stopped.

"Hello—hello—" she said, while the others stood rigid, listening. Then she gasped. An expression of wondering horror came over her face.

"Somebody groaning!" gasped Miss Cornelia. "It's horrible!"

The detective stepped up and took the receiver from her. He listened anxiously for a moment.

"I don't hear anything," he said.

"I heard it! I couldn't imagine such a dreadful sound! I tell you—somebody in this house is in terrible distress."

"Where does this phone connect?" queried Anderson practically.

Miss Cornelia made a hopeless little gesture. "Practically every room in this house!"

The detective put the receiver to his ear again.

"Just what did you hear?" he said, stolidly.

Miss Cornelia's voice shook.

"Dreadful groans—and what seemed to be an inarticulate effort to speak!"

Lizzie drew her gaudy wrapper closer about her shuddering form.

"I'd go somewhere," she wailed in the voice of a lost soul, "if I only had somewhere to go!"

Miss Cornelia quelled her with a glare and turned back to the detective.

"Won't you send these men to investigate—or go yourself?" she said, indicating Brooks and Billy.

The detective thought swiftly.

"My place is here," he said. "You two men, Brooks and Billy moved forward to take his orders, 'take another look through the house—don't leave the building—I'll want you pretty soon.'"

Brooks—or Jack Bailey, as we may as well call him through the remainder of this narrative—started to obey. Then his eye fell on Miss Cornelia's revolver, which Anderson had taken from beside Fleming's body and still held clasped in his hand.

"If you'll give me that revolver—" he began in an offhand tone, hoping Anderson would not see through his little ruse. Once wiped clean of fingerprints, the revolver would not be such telling evidence against Dale Ogden.

But Anderson was not to be caught napping.

"That revolver will stay where it is," he said with a grim smile.

Jack Bailey knew better than to try and argue the point. He followed Billy reluctantly out of the door, giving Dale a surreptitious glance of encouragement and faith as he did so. The Japanese and he mounted to the second floor, as stealthily as possible, prying into dark corners and searching unused rooms for any clue that might betray the source of the startling phone call from nowhere. But Bailey's heart was not in the search. His mind kept going back to the figure of Dale—nervous—shaken—undergoing the terrors of the third degree at Anderson's hands. She couldn't have shot Fleming, of course—and yet—unless he and Billy found something to substantiate her story of how the killing had happened—it was her own, unsupported word against a damning mass of circumstantial evidence. He plunged with renewed vigor into his quest.

Back in the living room, as he had feared, Anderson was subjecting Dale to a merciless interrogation.

"Now I want the real story!" he began, with calculated brutality. "You lied before!"

"That's no tone to use! You'll terrify her," cried Miss Cornelia indignantly. The detective paid no attention—his face had hardened—he seemed every inch the remorseless sleuth-hound of the law. He turned on Miss Cornelia for a moment.

"Where were you when this happened?" he said.

"Upstairs in my room." Miss Cornelia's tones were icy.

"And you?" he demanded, to Lizzie.

"In my room," said the latter pertly, "brushing Miss Cornelia's hair."

Anderson broke open the revolver and gave a swift glance at the bullet-chambers.

"One shot has been fired from this revolver!"

Miss Cornelia sprang to her niece's defense.

"I fired it myself, this afternoon," she said.

The detective regarded her with grudging admiration.

"You're a quick thinker," he said—with obvious unbelief in his voice. He put the revolver down on the table.

Miss Cornelia followed up her advantage.

"I demand that you get the coroner here," she said.

"Doctor Wells is the coroner," offered Lizzie eagerly. Anderson brushed their suggestions aside.

"I'm going to ask you some questions!" he said menacingly to Dale.

But Miss Cornelia stuck to her guns. Dale was not going to be bullied into any sort of confession, true or false, if she could help it—and from the way that the girl's eyes returned with fascinated horror to the ghastly heap on the floor that had been Fleming, she knew that she was on the edge of violent hysteria.

"Do you mind covering that body first?" she said crisply. The detective eyed her for a moment in a rather ugly fashion—then granted, ungraciously, and taking Fleming's raincoat from the chair, threw it over the body. Dale's eyes telegraphed her aunt a silent message of gratitude.

"Now—shall I telephone for the coroner?" persisted Miss Cornelia. The detective obviously resented her interference with his methods—but he could not well refuse such a customary request.

"I'll do it," he said, with a snort, going over to the city telephone.

"What's his number?"

"He's not at his office—he's at the Johnsons'," murmured Dale.

Miss Cornelia took the telephone from Anderson's hands.

"I'll get the Johnsons," Mr. Anderson, she said firmly. The detective seemed about to rebuke her. Then his manner recovered some of its former suavely. He relinquished the telephone and turned back toward his prey.

"Now, what was Fleming doing here?" he asked Dale in a gentler voice.

Should she tell him the truth? No—Jack Bailey's safety was too intricately bound up with the whole sinister business. She must lie—and lie again—while there was any chance of a lie being believed.

"I don't know," she said weakly, trying to avoid the detective's eyes.

Anderson took thought.

"Well, I'll ask that question another way," he said. "How did he get into the house?"

Dale brightened—no need for a lie here.

"He had a key."

"Key to what door?"

"That door over there." Dale indicated the terrace door of the alcove.

The detective was about to ask another question—then he paused. Miss Cornelia was talking on the phone.

"Hello—is that Mr. Johnson's residence? Is Doctor Wells there? No!" Her expression was puzzled. "Oh—all right—thank you—good night—" She rang off, and hung up the phone.

Meanwhile Anderson had been listening—but thinking as well. Dale saw his sharp glance travel over to the fireplace—rest for a moment, with an air of discovery, on the fragments of the roll of blueprints that remained unburned among the ashes—return. She shut her eyes for a moment, trying tensely to summon every atom of shrewdness she possessed to aid her.

He was hammering at her with questions again.

"When did you take that revolver out of the table drawer?"

"When I heard him outside on the terrace," said Dale promptly and truthfully. "I was frightened."

Lizzie tiptoed over to Miss Cornelia.

"You wanted a detective!" she said in an ironic whisper. "I hope you're happy now you've got one!"

Miss Cornelia gave her a look that sent her scuttling back to her former post by the door. But nevertheless, internally, she felt thoroughly in accord with Lizzie.

Again Anderson's questions pounded at the rigid Dale—striving to pierce her armor of mingled truth and falsehood.

"When Fleming came in, what did he say to you?"

"Just—something about the weather," said Dale weakly. The whole scene was still too horribly vivid before her eyes for her to furnish a more convincing alibi.

"You haven't had any quarrels with him?"

Dale hesitated.

"No."

"He just came in that door—said something about the weather—and was shot from that staircase. Is that it?" said the detective in tones of utter incredulity.

Dale hesitated again. Thus baldly put, her story seemed too flimsy for words—she could not even blame Anderson for disbelieving it. And yet—what other story could she tell that would not bring ruin on Jack?

Her face whitened. She put her hand on the back of a chair for support.

"Yes—that's it," she said, at last, and swayed where she stood.

Again Miss Cornelia tried to come to the rescue.

"Are all these questions necessary?" she queried sharply. "You can't for a moment believe that Miss Ogden shot that man?" But by now, though she did not show it, she, too, began to realize the strength of the appalling net of circumstances that drew with each minute tighter around the unhappy girl. Dale gratefully seized the momentary respite and sank into a chair. The detective looked at her.

"I think she knows more than she's telling. She's concealing something!" he said, with deadly intentness. "The nephew of the president of the Union bank—shot in his own house the day the bank has failed—that's queer enough—" Now he turned back to Miss Cornelia. "But when the only person present at his murder is the girl who's engaged to the guilty cashier!" he continued, watching Miss Cornelia's face as the full force of his words sank into her mind, "I want to know more about it!"

The Traffic Officer
It's a safe bet that the cars which step-out with the "go" signal are equipped with Champions—the better spark plug. If every car owner used Champions there would be fewer traffic jams.

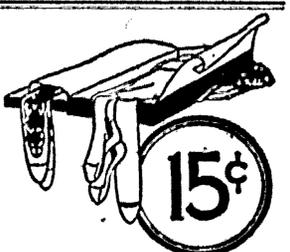

Champion is the better spark plug because of its double-ribbed sillimanite core—in two places construction and its special analysis electrodes.

Date and Nut Cake.
1 lb. nut meats, 1 lb. dates, 5 eggs, 3 C. sugar, 3 C. flour, 1 level tsp. Carumel Baking Powder, 1 level tsp. salt, 1 tsp. vanilla.
Mix nuts, sugar, dates and thoroughly beaten egg yolks. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together several times and add to the above mixture. After this is thoroughly mixed, fold in stiffly beaten whites and flavoring. Bake in steam pressure cooker or oven the same as any fruit cake.

Plants Containing Sugar
It is an interesting fact that sugar exists not only in the cane, beet-root and maple, but also in the sap of about one hundred and ninety other plants and trees.

Don't Trust Your Butter To Luck

Market men and consumers are insisting on uniform color, now-a-days, and no real dairyman can afford to trust to luck any more. Keep your butter always that golden June shade, which brings top prices, by using Dandelion Butter color. All large creameries have used it for years. It meets all State and National Food Laws. It's harmless, tasteless and will not color Butter-milk. Large bottles cost only 35¢ at all drug and grocery stores.

Cheerfulness a Factor in Symphony of Life

Cheerfulness is more precious than great riches. If I were founding a new religion its first commandment should be: "Thou shalt be cheerful."

If I were instituting a new school of medicine its fundamental principle would be: "Cheerfulness on the part of the doctor, and for the patient good cheer."

For in the symphony of life much gold without cheerfulness is as sounding brass and tinkling cymbal. Religion without cheerfulness is a mockery. Success in the cure of most maladies depends upon faith and hope and cheerfulness.

The optimist is cheerfulness personified; the pessimist a walking zucchini.

The cheerful optimist makes the progress of humanity; the growling pessimist would turn back the wheel of time. Abas with pessimism! Let cheerfulness reign supreme.—Exchange.

Blindness Reduced

The underlying cause of blindness, whether the result of disease or accident, is usually ignorance. In 18 years the percentage of children in the schools for the blind who lost their sight because of opthalmia, neonatorum (babes' sore eyes)—for centuries the principal cause of blindness—has been reduced more than 51 per cent.

New Face Cannot Change Old Heart

Jim Daley, who was released from San Quentin prison three months ago, after having his face remodelled, so that it would assist him in 'going straight' has fallen again, and is undergoing a second term, this time for selling and handling narcotics.

Jim denied the charge, but the dope was found on his person and the court adjudged him guilty, and the sentence followed.

Jim Daley formed the idea that to have his face made over, erasing the tough appearance and his criminal look, which we see so often in the underworld galleries, would cause people to believe him straight - forward, and in this manner, he would erase the stamp of sin which had been his only following for years.

After his release, he spoke from the church pulpits, and wrote articles for some of the leading magazines. He also addressed Women's Clubs at different places (with his new face) but he had not figured on the fact that and heart must be new, also.

His appearance was that of an innocent, law-abiding, truth-revealing man, but the neglected heart lured him back to the dismal haunts of the underworld, where evil-designing men and women stop at nothing in order to gain a point in crime, from the fact that regardless of made-over faces and holy appearances, the hearts are wrong, for the carnal mind (evil heart) is enemy against God and cannot go right. Jim Daley had no desire to go straight, or he would have attended to the pearl of great price, first of all; that of having his heart made over. With his new heart he could have gone straight, but his new face alone, availed him nothing.

Aint There No Santa Claus?

Viewed the Good Roads

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Miller called at this office early Monday evening and took the Outlook family out in their new Chrysler Crown Sedan for a drive.

The trip was made over the streets of town, after which we were driven out on the State Highways, which were as smooth and level as a newly-laid floor. Yes, thanks to our city Dads and to the State Highway Commission for our highways, wherein Road Foreman Chas. F. Gray keeps constant vigil on the same.

We are glad to say no one resolved a Blue Ribbon (or a blue bulb) for raising a fuss during the county fair.

Fastest and Finest OF FOURS A Brilliant New Line of Cars America discovered the value of this brilliant new car with a swiftness only rivaled by the car itself. Everything about it appeals to the mood of the hour. Its amazing pick-up—from 0 to 25 miles thru gears in less than 7 seconds! Its effortless mastery of distance at a mile a minute! Its trim, streamline beauty—finished in the smartest colors. The way it grips the road at sharp turns—cushions passengers over rough roads—travels in "high" up steep grades! Its economy at the curb—17 1/2 feet of parking space suffices! Its economy on the road—25 miles per gallon at 25 miles per hour! Never have Dodge Brothers sold a sedan so low in price—so high in value—so thoroughly in tune with the taste and spirit of the time. Color Interpretation in Styles

IF THERE is one thing more than another that the present styles excel in, it is color interpretation. Especially are the new woollens enchantingly colorful. Bordered fabrics which feature ombre stripes are among the enticing weaves which court favor for daytime modes.

A very charming adaptation of ombre-striped wool poplin is presented in this illustration. In this two-piece model the shadow stripes are arranged so as to border the blouse about the hips, and the skirt at the hemline. The sleeve is also prettily trimmed with stripes and the tie of self-material carries the color scheme also. The solid portion of the original frock here pictured is beige, the bordering carried out in tones of brown. This attractive material is also featured in beige with green striping.

The two-piece styling is becoming almost standardized for sportswear.

Simple blouse and plaited skirt construction as here pictured is outstanding. Some of the smart new blouses specialize on diagonal fastenings. In fact the surplice movement is becoming more and more pronounced.

A distinguishing feature of many on autumn two-piece costume is the fact of the blouse being a novelty woolen, posed over a skirt in solid coloring.

Lightweight woollens for frocks are in the foreground of the autumn mode. An interesting entrant into the realm of smart fabrics is wool crepe. Wool georgette is also a popular theme with the couture of Paris. Both of these fabrics give excellent service, and possess delightful wearing qualities for the schoolgirl.

Among woollens stressed for the making of the utilitarian dress, one sees considerable navy reps. It shows up handsomely stitched with red. One gets satisfaction out of its excellent wearing qualities as well as delight, in that it does not rethin dust and lint.

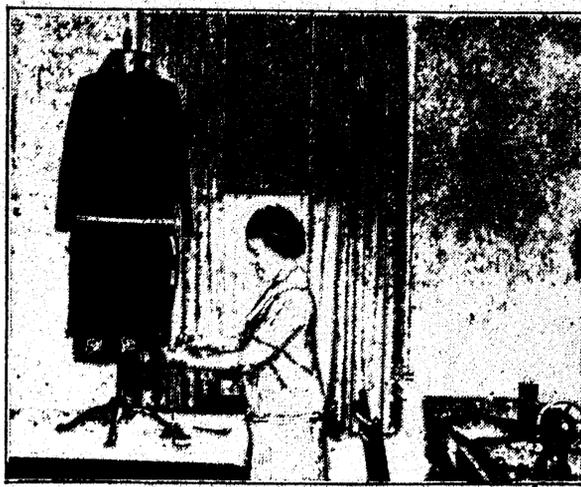

Kasha is another favorite cloth, being especially popular in beige and brown shades. Novelty stripes are prominently featured in kasha.

Smart daytime ensembles use kasha for the dress, also for the lining of a matching velvet coat.

High-colored imported fabrics shed glory upon the daytime mode. For the three-piece ensemble they are advantageously used in the making of the blouse, the skirt and jacket being fashioned of a blended solid coloring.

Fitting the Dress

Using a Skirt Gauge in Fitting a One-Piece Dress.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The points on which attention is centered in fitting a one-piece dress are the shoulders, the under-arm seams, the sleeves, the neck, and the hemline. Any decorative features must be planned with care so that they are of the right size to harmonize with the entire costume and the build of the wearer, and they must be located with reference to the other lines of the garment as well as to their use. For example, the length of the front opening, or the depth of set-in plaited sections, or the size and position of pockets, are matters to be decided for each individual.

Shoulder Seam Acts as Anchor.

A properly placed shoulder seam acts as an anchor to a well-fitted garment, says the bureau of home economics. It influences the set of the waist and sleeves and the hang of the skirt. Therefore it should be located most carefully, and the shoulders should be the first part fitted.

The under-arm seam in a one-piece dress should be perpendicular to the floor. If it lifts backward or forward, the back or the front of the dress will swing out correspondingly at the bottom. Sometimes this defect is corrected by taking darts in the front section below the armhole and at the hip line, and sometimes it may be necessary to raise the back of the dress at the shoulders and trim out the armhole, rather than to turn up the hem at points where the bottom seams to sag.

When ready to turn up the hem it helps to place the dress on a form on a table, so that the fitter can measure the distance accurately to the level surface of the table. If a dress is to have a belt, a tape-line or other means of confining the waist fulness it should be correctly placed on the form before measurements from the floor are begun, or the finished dress will be shorter than was intended and possibly uneven. A rigid skirt gauge is a help, either one made especially for the purpose or a ruler, but not a tape measure. The height of the skirt from the floor is partly a matter of the height, weight and figure of the person who is to wear the garment, and partly a matter of the season's styles.

Basting, Stitching and Pressing.

Accurate basting and stitching and careful pressing are essential in a well-fitted garment. Stitching must follow near enough to the line of basting that the size of the garment will not be altered. Press each seam as it is finished, especially when working with silk or wool materials. One final pressing will not produce the same results. Turn the shoulder and underarm seams toward the front if they are not pressed open. Turn the armhole seam and shoulder darts toward the neck. Many other fine points about fitting and making a dress will be found in Farmers' Bulletin 1530-F, "Fitting Dresses and Blouses," which may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C.

Pickled Beets

Pickled beets, which contain a high proportion of vinegar, are easy to can and may be processed in the water-bath canner. For pickling, select young tender beets of uniform size; cook and peel them, and pack in a mixture of hot vinegar and brown sugar in the containers. Process the pickled beets in the water bath for 30 minutes. Beets canned without vinegar should be processed in the steam-pressure canner at 240 degrees F. for 40 minutes if packed in quart glass jars, or for 35 minutes if in pint glass jars of No. 2 and No. 3 tin cans.

Timely Hints

Vegetables canned are an "ounce of prevention" against monotonous winter meals.

A good bread pudding is better and more nutritious than many higher-priced desserts.

Fresh pineapples and strawberries make as good a beginning to a breakfast as an end to a dinner.

It isn't much more trouble to install a pump in the kitchen than in the back yard, but it means miles less walking in the course of a year.

Substitute whole wheat flour for half of the white flour the next time you make biscuits and get a new flavor that is as delicious as it is wholesome.

SEASONABLE RECIPES

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Can we know too much about the delicious nut which comes so sweet and meaty to us in the glossy brown skin after Jack Frost has pinched their burrs? There are so many ways of serving them that the recipes might well fill a book.

Chestnuts With Brown Sauce.—Here is a dish that will enhance any meat dish, or in fact any vegetable. First remove the shell and cover a pint of chestnuts with boiling water. Blanch fifteen minutes, then peel off the brown skin. Now cover the nuts with boiling stock and cook until they are soft enough to pierce with a fork. When done drain and save the stock in which they were boiled. Put one tablespoonful of butter into a frying pan, add one tablespoonful of flour and mix until smooth and brown, then add a cupful of the stock in which the nuts were cooked, stir until smooth, add salt and pepper to taste, pour over the chestnuts and serve.

Sweet Pickled Chestnuts.—This is a delicious condiment: Take seven pounds of chestnuts from which the shells and skins have been removed, to three pounds of sugar. Pack the uncooked chestnuts in jars. Boil the sugar in sufficient vinegar to fill the jars, making allowance for waste in boiling. If the vinegar is very strong dilute it with a little water. When the sugar and vinegar have come to a boil, pour over the chestnuts and let stand twenty-four hours. Repeat this for three days.

Chestnut Patties.—After boiling and blanching a pint of chestnuts, add one-half cupful of cream to two rounded tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half cupfuls of milk, two well-beaten eggs, one-fourth cupful of sugar and salt to season. Pour into patties tins and bake quickly.

Marrons Glace.—We find these now in our best shops and they are well worth the price asked for them: Shell and blanch the nuts and thoroughly dry them. Boil until not too tender. When cool insert a toothpick in each nut. To make the glaze put one pound of granulated sugar and one scant cupful of water in a saucepan and let stand until the sugar is dissolved. Set over the heat where it may boil without stirring or jarring. When bubbles begin to look heavy, drop a teaspoonful of the sirup into a cupful of cold water. If it is brittle and makes a clicking sound, add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and lift at once from the fire. Set the pan in hot water and dip the chestnuts one by one into the sirup. Remove the toothpicks and place on oiled paper to harden. If the glaze is not good, dip again.

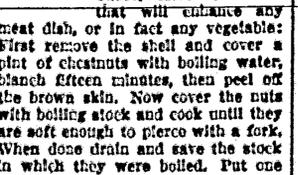

When lamb steaks are caseroleed, make a bed of vegetables such as peas, carrots, parsnip or turnip underneath. Put the steak well browned on top, sprinkling well with minced onion and celery; afterward pour over the gravy, thickened.

Chicken is delicious served on caserole with mushrooms and potatoes. A dash of onion and green pepper also improves the chicken, veal or rabbit.

Beef Tongue on Caserole.—Take a tongue which has been lightly corned, boil it after trimming well. Then remove the skin and rub with flour to which has been added a dash of ginger and allspice. Fry an onion (sliced) in salt pork, then put in the tongue, tying it into shape. Fry lightly, browning it on all sides. Make a cupful of gravy, adding the juice of a lemon, three tablespoonfuls of shredded almonds, and one-half cupful of seeded raisins. Put the tongue into a round caserole, pour the gravy over it and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven. Unlike the meat, turn on a chop plate and serve with the gravy poured over it.

Lemon added to a honey-dew melon brings out its flavor to perfection. It is usually served with honey-dew in most hotels.

Her Mother Had Discovered Her Wet Stockings.

Ada was six and a half years old. She had dark hair and gray eyes, and her arms and legs and mouth and nose and ears were much like those of her friends if you were trying to describe them, though Ada really didn't look much like any one.

Nothing had ever happened in Ada's life that was interesting to other people. That seemed too bad, for so much had happened in Ada's life that was extremely interesting to herself.

There were all the games she liked to play, and the people she loved seeing and all the places she enjoyed visiting, and around all of these there were most delightful happenings.

But alas, only to herself.

Sometimes she thought of something she might do that would make others notice her; for example, she thought of fainting away.

That would certainly make people pay attention to her. She had heard that if you put wet blotting paper in your shoes you would faint away.

She tried it once. But she hadn't fainted.

She had only felt uncomfortable with the wet crumbling blotting paper next to the soles of her stockinged feet.

And when her mother had discovered her wet stockings she had merely been punished and there was no fun in that.

It was a pity the way families had of always discovering wet feet.

Now, who in the world would think of discovering wet feet when the shoes weren't wet, and when the wetness wasn't in plain sight? And yet they could.

It was certainly a pity.

So she thought she would have to go off somewhere and have very wonderful adventures. The more she thought about it the more she liked the idea.

She began thinking of those who would like adventures, too.

Her Mother Had Discovered Her Wet Stockings.

There was Angelina Adorable, her beloved doll.

There was Teddy, her brother.

There was Grandma.

There was the clock that struck so cheerily down on the dining-room sideboard.

There was Crystal, her little sister.

There was Cooky, the cook, who could make such delicious things, but who might be a bit too cranky for adventures.

There was Mr. Applecore, who sold sweets and candies and biscuits. He would give them things to eat—

If they gave him money in return.

There was Nip, the lame chicken.

There was Mrs. Cackle, the brown hen. She could never leave her pets behind.

There was Peter Murray, the fox terrier dog.

There was Saucy Susy, the friendly cow.

There was Mr. Todd, the gardener.

There was Joe-Joe, Crystal's beloved woolly lamb.

And there were friends, too.

But most important of all was the fact that really and truly Ada should have adventures.

THE SEWING CORNER

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While it is not always possible to devote an entire room especially to sewing, during the period in the fall and spring when sewing is done in many homes, on an extensive scale. It is a good idea to arrange at least a corner of a convenient room for this work. There should be a good light, to begin with, and space enough should be planned so that partly finished garments on the dress form or on hangers may be left as they are from one sewing period to the next. Having a nearby closet with plenty of shelves, or a roomy chest of drawers in which to keep materials, findings and incomplete work also is an aid to orderly and rapid dressmaking.

All sewing tools, including the sewing machine, should be in good order before the beginning of that busy season just preceding the opening of school and college. Some of the supplies to be checked up are: Sharp scissors, accurate tape line, plenty of pins, needles, threads and sewing silk of different sizes and colors, snappers, hooks and eyes, elastic, tape, dress shields, bolting, bias bindings and other materials you are in the habit of using. If you are making any underwear requiring buttons, keep a supply of common size on hand. Frevide a few extra buttons if possible for any garments subjected to ordinary laundering, for the wringer often takes its toll.

Make a plain foundation pattern to Set Machines Near Light.

Keep on hand for each member of the family whose clothes you are accustomed to make. The bureau of home economics will give you help in doing this if you write to the Department of Agriculture.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. LAWRENCE WEAVER, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you know that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial? In some families the fourth generation is learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that need to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

Curtains for Double Windows

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

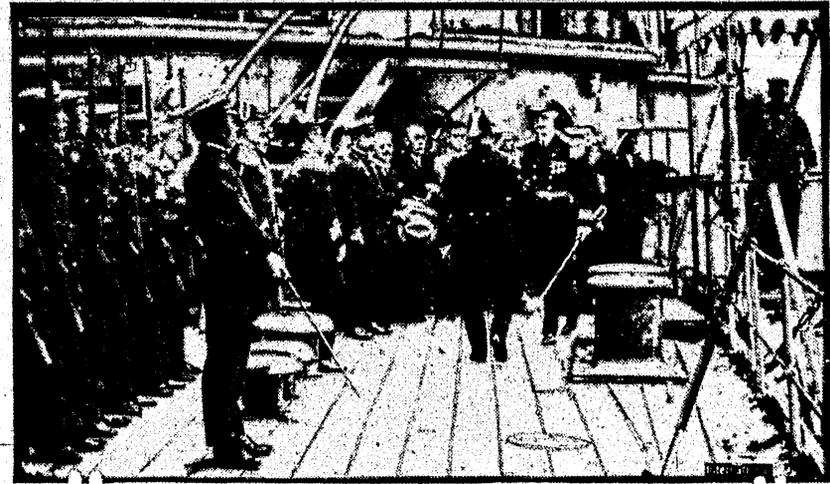

Two or more living-room windows placed in a group are usually curtained as one unit. Depending on the height of the ceiling, and the appearance of breadth given by the group as a whole, they may have only enough side draperies to give the effect of a frame for the whole group, connected by a valance at the top of the window, or there may be a separate pair of side draperies at each window. In the latter case only one valance would be used, extending from side to side of the group. Great care would be necessary to see that the repetition of vertical lines in using individual hangings for each window in a large group did not become monotonous or distort the lines of the entire room.

Making Corned Beef Hash

A good many people do not know exactly how to make an appetizing corned beef hash. There are several "tricks" to it, according to the bureau of home economics. One is having about equal amounts of cooked meat and potato. Another is in grinding the meat and potato together. A third point is in browning with a little minced onion and a dash of cayenne pepper for piquancy. Generally there is enough salt in corned beef to season the mixture.

The owner of the document is Carlos H. Lings, of Cajon, Sonora.

One of the most interesting and novel features of the twenty-third annual Arizona State Fair, to be held in Phoenix, November 7 to 12, will be the Boys' and Girls' Club Department which will display the work of nearly 1,600 4-H youngsters. Cash prizes offered in this department will total more than a thousand dollars, according to A. D. Ballantyne, the superintendent.

Fifty-five thousand motor vehicle licenses have been issued in New Mexico so far this year and it is safe to predict that 57,000 cars will be registered by the close of 1927, a state highway department bulletin issued in Santa Fe says. "According to a recent survey made by the State Bureau of Public Health and population of New Mexico is 353,200, a motor vehicle for every 6.2 persons," the bulletin says.

Suits to collect delinquent taxes totalling $324,663 have been filed by the State of New Mexico between June 15 and September 15, J. Frank Curns, special attorney for the State Tax Commission, stated in Santa Fe recently. The suits range from $5 to more than $100,000 in the case of the Covillita De La Joya Land Grant in Socorro county, he said. Twenty of the suits are for less than $20 and 11 for less than $10.

The constitutionality of the motor vehicle certificate of title law as enacted by the eighth Arizona state legislature in the highway code is attacked in an answer filed by James H. Kerby, secretary of state, to the suit brought against him in the Supreme Court by the Arizona highway commission for a writ of mandamus to compel him to turn over the records and data relating to the operation of the certificate of title law.

Five hundred gate signs have been received for use by members of the Dona Ana county, New Mexico, farm bureau, according to W. P. Thorpe, manager. Each sign carries the name of the farm bureau and the name of an individual member.

Indians from the Mescalero-Apache Indian reservation in native costume and giving exhibitions of their native dances were among the many and varied features arranged for the entertainment of visitors at the fifth annual Chaves County Cotton Carnival held in Roswell last week.

Pilgrims Go to Palestine

In connection with the war memorial unveiling in Jerusalem a large party of pilgrims is journeying on a modern pilgrimage to that city. The war graves and battlefields of Palestine and Egypt are included in the itinerary, and all places of Biblical interest around Jerusalem will be seen. The stop there has been timed to coincide with the unveiling of the memorial by Lord Allenby. The party will visit the pyramids and Cairo, and later will stop at Rhodes, Zete, Cyprus Malta, Naples and other places of interest.

Some One at the Door
"It sounds as if some one was coming for lunch," said Mrs. Maude Scotland, San Francisco woman, to her husband, as she started to the door. The guest was a little white roller. It had run with three wheels down a hill to the Scotland home, and finding the door not open, the guest smashed the front of the house, splintered a partition, knocked down the hostess, and almost demolished the place. There may have been a time when home was a safe place, but that was before man began scooting around in seven-ton trucks and three-ton airplanes.—Copper's Weekly.

are you one of these?

one of the people who still believe that long distance calls are expensive. Although this is 1927, there are still a few such people left.

Of course, long distance calling is not expensive. For instance on a Station-to-Station call of 100 miles, the day rate for three minutes is only 85 cents.

The same Station-to-Station call of 100 miles between 7 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. is but 65 cents, while between 8:30 p. m. and 4:30 a. m. it is only 45 cents.

Rather cheap round trip!

Remember, it is not necessary to wait until midnight to get these discounted rates.
