

Rainbow Girls Organized

Following the forecast in this paper last week, an Assembly of the Order of Rainbow for Girls was organized at the Masonic Temple last Saturday, with Mrs. Laura Becker of Belen, Supreme Deputy for New Mexico, ably assisted by Comet Chapter No. 29 O. E. S., in perfecting the organization.

On re-convening, the degree work of the order was exemplified by the Roswell Assembly. On account of some guests from out-of-town having long distances to travel, luncheon was served to such guests and after the degree work, refreshments were served to the large assemblage of Masons and Stars which filled the hall to overflowing.

In the new organization, the officers are: Mother Advisor, Mrs. Maude L. Blaney; Worthy Advisor, Elizabeth Green; Associate Advisor, Glenneth English; Recorder, Rhea Boughner; Treasurer, Minnie Lumpkins; Charity, Jean Berry; Hope, Marion Keller; Faith, Helen Frances Huppertz; Chaplain, Mildred Arnold; Drill Leader, Marguerite English.

Colors.—Red, Jane Province; Orange, Dorothy Keller; Yellow, Edna Atkinson; Green, Zella Dishman; Blue, Edna Varney; Indigo, Ruth Brickley; Violet, Beratrix Boughner; Confidential Observer, Johnny Green; Outer Observer, Lois Stadtman; Musician, Florine Pittman; Choir Director, Helen McCammon. Advisory Board.—Mesdames Green, Keller, Blaney, Lemon, and Miss Ella Brickley; Messrs. F. A. English and C. P. Huppertz.

Carrizozo Assembly No. 7, Order of Rainbow for Girls, will hold its regular meetings on the Second and Fourth Friday evenings of each month at Masonic Temple Hall and the next meeting will be Friday, April 24, at 7:30. The charter membership is 28 and aside from those mentioned as officers, the remaining 8, compose the choir, as follows: Mildred McCall, Gladys Dozier, Jean Brockwell, Evelyn Grumbles, Lenore Keller, Charlotte Emerson, Ellen Ludlow, Elwena Bryan.

No deeper, purer motives ever governed than those which inspired the loyal Mason, Rev. W. Mark Sexton, with the thought of such an organization for girls. In the tender years of their young lives, this noble and holy fraternity, having for its guide the Eastern Star and Masonic bodies, it meets a long-felt want, its nobility of purpose, sacredness of thought, deep-seated in religious nature, it is the sublime reflection of the principles which the great orders which govern it, have always advocated.

The credit for its organization belongs to Mrs. Elizabeth Green, Worthy Matron of our local Chapter of the Eastern Star and her faithful co-workers who have made sacrifices of time and means to bring this organization to our doors. With its principles of faith, hope, charity, benevolence, patriotism love and truth, the "Rainbow" will brighten the lives of our young and cast its rays into generations to come.

Cape Ensembles of Tweed

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

If it is of tweed and has a cape it interprets smart mode, whether it be a short-jacket-ensemble or pictured as a separate topcoat.

Just such exquisitely simple woolen ensembles as this (shown) model are the "classy" thing for spring. The creator of this distinctive ensemble adopts the favored cape theme, giving it a unique interpretation, in that the cape is a short jacket rather than the usual full-length topcoat. The skirt is styled with two inserted box plaits which are attached down as so many of the skirt platings are.

The blouse worn with this tweed jacket and skirt is of jersey matching the color of the cloth.

and revers are finished with their own selvage edge, rather than with blindings, facings and hems.

Self-fringe trimming also smartens the newer ensembles. That is, the cloth is frayed at the edges to about a half-inch depth. Drawwork, too, is artfully employed for soft woolens. One can readily sense the charm of an ensemble styled of an open-weave woolen in beige or pale gray or some pastel shade, the same finished in self-fringe or made "lacy" with much drawwork.

White beige and gray and the new grege tones are extremely popular, there are scores of navy suits and ensembles, too, on the spring program. These are often of wool crepe in alliance with polka dot print or perhaps with a blouse of poppy red crepe matched to the lining of the coat or cape as the case may be.

Many of the newest ensembles flaunt full-length zapes. As the cape theme unfolds it presents many variations. A feature to give versatility to the cape is the hemline which is often irregular and as erratic as that of the skirt hem.

SOURCE OF VITAMINES

Lemons have a new importance in the diet, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. They are no longer to be valued simply for their flavor, but also as a source of vitamins. Lemons can be used in all sorts of ways in the preparation of meals. There is a long list of beverages and desserts in which lemon juice is used, as well as a number of delicious sauces that expert cooks have invented to serve on fish and meat.

College Fraternities

The usual proceeding in naming college fraternities is to choose a name in English, which signifies the aims, ideals or character of the fraternity. This name is translated into Greek. The initial Greek letters of the words that form the name are the appellation by which the fraternity is known. The name is known only to the members of the organization.

Good System in Cleaning

Prepared by the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture.

Systematic care of the various rooms of the house and their furnishings will eliminate much of the extra cleaning work that used to be considered necessary in the spring of the year. Certain changes in the house may a week or two increase the actual number of places and furnishings to which attention is given, but this will not mean a general uncomfortable upheaval. For example, when the furnace is out for the season and all dusty ashes are finally disposed of, it is possible to air, freshen, and put in order the entire cellar—a task which would have been a waste of time earlier in the winter. If reasonable neatness has been maintained in the basement at all times, this job is not particularly hard.

It used to be the custom to take down all the window curtains in the house toward the latter part of the spring, launder, and put them away for the summer, leaving the windows bare and glaring. For a few weeks at first the bright spring sunshine is very pleasant, and because of it the house seems fresher and cleaner. Later, however, when the sun becomes unbearable, shades have to be lowered in place of the curtains that have been put away. Shades shut out both light and air. The modern way is to use very simple, easily washed curtains and keep them up the year around, laundering them as often as they need it. In very formal homes sometimes two sets of draperies are used—heavy ones for winter and gay, light-weight curtains for summer.

There seems little excuse for having bedroom or lower floor closets full of unused articles so that they are not cleanable when the house is cleaned. In apartments or small houses where storage space is limited, the top part of a closet can usually be devoted to storing boxes of out-of-season clothing and other articles.

When it comes to the actual weekly care of any room, the bureau of home economics has a few suggestions: Have a definite plan. Dust and remove small pictures and bric-a-brac from the room or place in a pile and cover. Pin draperies up unless they are to be taken down for cleaning. Dust and cover furniture, mirrors, and pictures before beginning to sweep. Both sweeping and dusting should be done so as to remove as much dust as possible, not to scatter it. Radiators or registers should be cleaned, also, the grate, stove, or fireplace. Then work from the top of the room downward.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

A damp, clean sponge takes lint off broaddcloth better than a brush.

Large buttons and buttonholes are recommended for garments for the small child, for they help him learn to dress himself.

When shaking rag rugs, hold them by the sides. If they are held by the ends the weight of the rug pulls the thread apart and they wear out faster.

A roll of girded paper tape kept in the kitchen may be used in many ways, such as labeling jars and cans or picnic dishes and for holding paper linings smooth in drawers or on shelves.

When substituting cocoa for chocolate in a cake recipe, butter may be added to take the place of the fat in the chocolate. Three tablespoonfuls of cocoa and one-half tablespoonful of butter are equivalent to one ounce of chocolate.

Phonograph-Alarm Clock

The daily torture of the tetter's neural nerve by a strident alarm clock can be avoided in several ways. He may sleep all morning or he may buy a gentle awakener now on the market. This new alarm clock rings no bell at the rising hour; instead, it starts a phonograph! Think of the delight of being awakened by the strains of "I Don't Care If You Never Come Back," or "Everybody Wants the Key to My Cellar."—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

where the old wood had been so it would keep in good condition in the future.

"I had steel straps put upon me in certain places to keep me from blowing over and fixed in such a way so I could away and laugh and blow naturally with the rest of you."

"My, but when they said I was all right, how I did rejoice. I am so happy, so happy!"

Outsome Physical Ills

Elizabeth Barrett, before she married Browning, spent long years on her couch. At the age of fifteen she met with an injury to her spine, which kept her in a recumbent position for several years, and from the effects of which she never recovered. It was during these years that she wrote those sonnets which are the greatest claim to immortality.

Fairy Tale for the Children

By Mary Graham Bonner

"I am going to live for a long while now," said Grandfather Elm, "and I am so happy about it, for I love life. I love to look down at the people and I love to keep them cool under my shade when the weather becomes hot."

"Of course, now I am ready for the summer. I am trying to look my best and my brightest, as all the trees are at this time of the year."

"It is fine to hear you say you are going to live a long time," said the young elm tree.

"It makes me very happy, too," said Grandfather Elm. "You see I was quite ill, and now I am well."

"Were you ill, Grandfather?" asked the young elm. "I am so sorry to hear it."

"I thought you were having a good deal of care and attention when I saw all the work which you were having done for you."

"But I didn't think that was because you were ill, but because you were being all dressed up and all fussed up for the spring and summer."

"Tell me about it."

"Yes, I was very ill," said Grandfather Elm, "and I didn't know whether I would ever get well or not."

"I had all sorts of things the matter with me. My wood was cracking and I was generally in bad shape."

"They talked about me, people did, and they said it would be a great pity to cut me down."

"They said I gave shade in the hot summer, they said I was very beautiful and they said I should be saved if possible."

"That was true," said the young elm tree.

"A lot of very clever tree doctors were sent for, and they said that I could be saved."

"Oh, how happy that made me! And Grandfather Elm Tree swayed in the breeze and smiled."

"All the bad wood which had started into hurt me was taken away."

Recipes That Are Liked

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Let me go wherever I will, I hear a sky-born music still; 'tis not in the high stars alone, Nor in the cups of budding flowers, Nor in the red-brown mellow tone, Nor in the low that smiles in showers. But in the mud and scum of things, There's always, always something sings. —Ralph Waldo Emerson.

DRESSINGS, OTHER DISHES

A light and tasty salad dressing for fruits is found in the following recipe:

Fruit Salad Mayonnaise.—Beat two eggs thoroughly, add the juice of one lemon and beat again until thick, season with a tablespoonful of salt, paprika, and white pepper to taste. Cook over hot water until smooth, then add a tablespoonful each of butter and cream, beat until cool. Add a tablespoonful of currant jelly and mix until smooth.

Lemon Butter Dressing.—Beat two eggs to a light froth, adding gradually the juice of a large lemon, two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar and one of butter. Cook over hot water until thick, cool and fold in one cupful of whipped cream.

Molded Cheese Salad.—Wash a pint of cottage cheese very fine, add three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of paprika and five tablespoonfuls of cream. Add one tablespoonful of gelatin which has been softened with four tablespoonfuls of water, then melted over hot water. Pour into a wet chilled mold and set aside to chill for a few hours. Meanwhile dice one large seedless orange, add one-half cupful of diced pineapple, one cupful of cut strawberries and a few dates which have been cut into strips. Mix these fruits with any of the cream dressing, turn from the ring mold onto a lettuce-lined chop plate. Heap the center with fruit and top with a spoonful of dressing. Garnish with whole strawberries.

Be sure to have a few plants of mint in the garden, then you will be able to indulge in:

Mint Cup.—For each guest to be served scald one cupful of cider with a slice of lemon and a sprig of mint. When very hot add two teaspoonfuls of honey. Serve very hot.

Vienness Spice Cakes.—Beat two eggs and one cupful of fine granulated sugar vigorously for twenty minutes. Mix two cupfuls of pastry flour with one-fourth of a teaspoonful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of crushed nutmeg seed. Add this to the creamed mixture with four tablespoonfuls of finely shredded blanched almonds and four tablespoonfuls of finely cut orange peel, candied pineapple and citron. Knead lightly, set aside for the dough to ripen for an hour on ice, roll out one-fourth inch thick and cut into small cakes with a small, round cutter. Bake in a very moderate oven. When the cakes have ripened a week from them with confectioners' sugar smooth with a little hot water and divide into equal parts. Add a little orange juice and rind to one part, one-half square of bitter chocolate, melted, to another, and a bit of vanilla. Cover with one icing and top with other when dry.

Yolk Ring.—Cream one-third of a cupful of butter with three cooked egg yolks and one uncooked one, adding one-half cupful of granulated sugar. When well blended add two cupfuls of pastry flour sifted with one-eighth of a teaspoonful of nutmeg. Mix to a smooth dough, roll out one-fourth inch thick, cut with a small doughnut cutter, brush with beaten egg yolk and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a slow oven until the cakes are brown.

Eggs in White Sauce

Appetizing Way of Serving Eggs.

Prepared by the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture.

There are many appetizing ways of serving eggs after they have been hard cooked. One of the best liked is to reheat them in a white sauce, either cut in halves lengthwise, or with the whites and yolks separated. In this case the whites are often cut up into small pieces and mixed with the sauce, while the yolks are pressed through a potato ricer and sprinkled over the entire dish. Eggs served in this way are sometimes called "goldenrod eggs."

Popular Far

Koliakky far comes from animals of the weasel family, natives of Siberia and China. The under hair is short and rather weak, but regular as its top hair. The color is generally a tawny yellow and is always dyed to imitate the fur of other members of the weasel family. This far is considered high grade and is expensive.

Cheese Facts

Gruyere cheese comes from France and Switzerland. It is made from goat's milk. Gorgonzola, from Italy, gets its name from the village where it was first made.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(By Rev. E. J. SWANWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, (©, 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 22

JESUS AND THE HOME

LESSON TEXT.—Mark 10:1-16. GOLDEN TEXT.—Honor thy father and mother, which is the first commandment with promise.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—Jesus Loves Little Children. JUNIOR TOPIC.—Jesus Wants Children to Come to Him. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Being a Christian at Home. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—The Christian Family.

In this scripture we see Christ as a teacher.

1. Concerning Marriage (vv. 1-12). The question touching divorce, which the Pharisees temptingly put to Christ, brought forth teaching which exhibits marriage in its true light.

2. Marriage God's primal law (vv. 6-8). The ideal law of life for the subjects of Christ's kingdom is marriage. This is proven by the fundamental fact of sex. "God made them male and female" (v. 6). The union of the male and female natures is physical, mental and spiritual. In marriage the male and female natures are mutually complemented. "They twain shall be one flesh, so that they are no more twain, but one flesh." God's plan is that man should not be without the woman or the woman without the man (1 Cor. 11:11).

3. Marriage has God's sanction (v. 9).

When God created Eve and brought her to Adam He performed the first marriage ceremony and declared that man should leave father and mother and cleave unto his wife. "What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." 4. Marriage of the divorced is forbidden (v. 10-12). The marriage relation should only be broken by death and sin. In response to the request of the disciples for further information He declared:

(1) "Whosoever shall put away his wife and marry another committeth adultery against her." (2) "If a woman shall put away her husband and marry another she committeth adultery."

11. Concerning Children (vv. 13-16). The union of the male and female natures, according to God's primal law of marriage, lays the foundation of family life. The normal issue of such a union is children. In connection with the divine law of marriage, it is fitting that Jesus should set forth His estimate of children and show His interest in them. Christian men and women will regard children as the property of the Lord and will esteem it a high and holy privilege to train them for Him. Observe:

1. Children brought for the touch of Jesus (v. 13). It is incumbent upon all parents to seek for their children personal contact with Jesus.

2. The parents rebuked by the disciples for bringing their children (v. 14). They seemed to think that attention to children was beneath the dignity of Christ.

3. Jesus' reply (vv. 14, 15). He was displeased—really indignant at their words. He is displeased today over those who are hindering their children from coming to Him.

(1) "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God" (v. 14). The kingdom belongs to the children.

(2) "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall not enter therein" (v. 15). Those who count themselves morally helpless, and cast themselves upon Jesus Christ, the King, really enter the kingdom.

4. Jesus' action (v. 16). He took the children up in His arms, put His hands upon them and blessed them. Christ is the Savior of children. Where Christ's spirit rules, childhood is sacred and children have great care.

God Is at the Door

God is knocking at the door of nations today for more recognition and more spiritual power. And the fact is that He is on the outside. When nations open this knock from the hand of the Almighty, it is a sure thing that they will crumble into the dust.—Oscar Barkholder.

Need of Faith

Draw nigh to God and He will draw nigh to you. Act faith if you do not feel it.—Alexander Whyte.

Howe About-

By ED HOWE

Ball Syndicate. WNU Service.

I know a man who is fairly smart, and mainly disposed to be a gentleman. But he inherited a strong disposition to be disagreeable. He fights it with some success, but not enough; I know him well, and run from him; he always makes me furiously angry. He knows the importance of gentility and fairness, but from some of his ancestors he caught a dose of pettiness, he cannot get rid of. How do you handle the pettiness some old ancestor handed down to you instead of fame and fortune? Everyone has blood in him he should get rid of, but it is mixed up in the main stream, and the operation is difficult.

I am tired of those persons who amount to nothing themselves, but become tremendous critics of those who do. Most of the big criticism in print, and heard from the platform, come from persons who do not amount to much, except as writers and orators. Find any man who is behaving tolerably well, and accomplishing proper human tasks with considerable ability, and you will find him surrounded with whooping critics, ranging from members of his own family to his congressman and editor.

A vast horde of men are going to the devil, but a still greater number are giving a good account of themselves.

Look at the great number of our creditable American institutions. Not one managed by a bum.

Look at our progress. We are in the lead, and every progressive step is made by good men; the bums have nothing to do with it.

Let us hope that the idle, the careless, the unreliable, the incapable, will finally be able to take the hint. Their abuse of good men has always been unavailing; the best men cannot be kept down.

The great lesson that should be taught unceasingly is that there is abundance for all. That is the fact of which there is least doubt, but we must earn, save and work. Nature abominates the shiftless, and rewards the careful. The foolish notion that men may make the world over, and leave out industry and thrift, is believed by no intelligent man.

For thousands of years we have been working to reform others. The great work is to reform ourselves.

I often wonder there are so many "rounders"; men who devote a good deal more than half their time to what they call pleasure.

A rounder always goes to the devil, finally, and doesn't have a great deal of fun. I believe there is more pleasure in honest business than in bumery. A man may find a good deal of pleasure in promotion; in the notoriety the newspapers always give particularly capable men. There is pleasure in building and occupying a better home than the average; in good credit at the bank and in the community.

Times are nearly always hard because of false efforts to make them better.

Men do not actually trust dreams, fancies and visions, but somehow hate to give them up.

I lately attended a rather unusual social affair; a lady who sat near me said it was the best showing of gowns of the season. I looked at the gowns, but did not find much of interest. Occasionally I have gone to dry goods stores, to be in the way while Adelaide, my niece, looks. The unusual display of gowns at the notable party looked to me very much like those I see displayed on racks in the dry goods stores; of all colors, sizes and shapes; and rather flimsy.

We read in history that the best of the ancient civilizations became so luxurious that they "ran out." Nature provided plenty, but the people were so idle and pleasure-loving that they wouldn't work sufficiently to maintain themselves.

Then came along a harder and simpler race of men, and captured them. Genghis Kahn, the barbarian, overran the neighboring civilizations. So did Mahomet and his successors.

It is said our Western civilization is becoming so luxurious that it is in danger. How simpler people will succeed us?

Why wouldn't it be a good idea to save ourselves?

If the smart sleek town men are determined to go to hell, why may not the farmers head off the impending calamity? We have a rich country; probably the best that has ever existed. Why let it be ruined needlessly? Why not simplify our habits, under the direction of the farmers, and save it? Why become the subjects of some of the dark races?

I faintly recall a story about town men, in a great emergency in the past, going to a farmer, and inducing him to quit the plow, and help them. It is time for something of the kind to happen again.

Usually I can't read a woman's writing, or fashion her mind.

Scattered Units in Coal Industry Largely Responsible for Present Unrest

By JAMES J. DAVIS, Secretary of Labor.

PART-TIME employment, poor returns for operations, unsatisfactory earnings for mine workers and many other economic ills affect the mining business in most of our bituminous fields. It remains for the one industry that lags behind others in living up to American standards of organization and business administration. Other great industries were faced with the same problems, and they have solved them.

Fifty years ago production in the other industries was carried on by many scattered units, most of them fighting each other. Now, these units function together, with enormous savings in administration and with vast benefits to the public. Coal remains an industry composed of scattered and competitive units. These outworn practices keep the industry chronically beggared, so that its operators make little money and cannot pay continuous wages, with the consequence of chronic unrest, frequent stoppage, and much waste.

What can be done to stabilize the industry? It seems to me that violent fluctuations in prices in the long run cost the consumers far more than would be the case if prices were stabilized between reasonable levels; and I am further convinced that there is not a sufficient percentage of the bituminous producing capacity of the country under one or a few companies to provide the basis of any substantial leadership within the industry itself.

It has been stated, and I quite agree, that the anti-trust laws of the United States are the most serious barrier to early stabilization of the industry, because they prevent the kind of planning and co-operation necessary to formulate and execute a stabilizing program for the industry through private initiative.

Secularization of Modern Church One of the Great Dangers of the Times

By BISHOP CHARLES P. ANDERSON (Episcopal).

Religion has become so secularized that clergy of the present day are becoming largely business agents of their congregations, rather than priests and pastors. The net result of this secularization of religion is that it is at a low ebb.

As priests and bishops of the church, we are spending a disproportionate amount of time upon things which have to do with business, with financial campaigns, with new buildings, with raising budgets and meeting quotas. Secularization of the church, in my opinion, is one of the greatest dangers of modern times.

Most of our parishes today are one-man organizations. The clergy themselves are partly responsible for this. Organs and furnaces are the greatest troubles of many clergy, when these problems should trouble only resties and the laity.

All this is evidence of the need for developing a greater leadership among the laity of the church. The development of such a leadership is the primary object of the bishops' crusade which the Episcopal church is launching on a nation-wide scale. The primary object of the crusade is to deepen the religious life of the church membership. Secondly, it is the conversion of those whom the church is not now reaching.

Average Citizen Too Little Inclined to Take Positive Stand for Right

By RABBI LOUIS L. MANN, Chicago.

This is an age of shock absorbers and cushions, when more people have wishbones than backbone. Men and women who confess that the hardships suffered in their youth and the obstacles they had to overcome developed in them character and stamina are the very ones who do everything in their power to give their children ease and luxury, and will let them do everything but stand on their own feet.

This is a result of fear, the raw product of the inhibitions that Freud talks about. We are afraid to let these children make their own lives, and until we eliminate fear from the multitude and the individual we have not reached the zenith of civilization.

For 4,000 years or more we have been talking about the golden rule, the ideal of loving our neighbor as ourselves, but when it comes to a showdown we believe in the mailed fist.

There are seventeen and one-half murders to every 100,000 people in Chicago today, the largest ratio of any city in the world, because we have rotten politics, and we have rotten politics because men who ought to know better are afraid to come out and stand up like men for what they know to be right.

Example, Not Argument, Needed to Overcome Youth's Rejection of Religion

By RABBI STEPHEN S. WISE, New York.

The remedy for the rejection of religion by the young is to be found in an example of piety set by elders rather than in argument. The children of the new generation almost have put religion out of their minds.

Religion must relate itself to life at every turn in order to make its influence for good felt. It is the outreaching of man, the groping of the soul, the quest of man for his relationship with God and with his fellow men.

Among the greatest things that go to make up religion are justice and mercy. Mercy is greater than justice, as love is greater than passion. Upon such a broad and liberal basis will be the concert of religion in the future when science and religion together work to create order in our lives.

World Must Come to Recognition of Right of Every Child to Proper Home

By GOV. THEODORE CHRISTIANSON, Minnesota.

Companionate marriage is the latest, the most fantastic and the most dangerous expression of the revolt against the home.

Marriage is not regarded as the binding, sacred thing it once was. A great evil is the prevailing lack of proper recognition of the right of every child to a proper home. Institutions are all right, but home life even when conditions are not ideal is better than the best institution for a child.

Periods of business depression must be controlled, so as to overcome poverty, and economic security rather than temporary relief from indigence must be the goal sought.

Exploring Salt Mines—Opened Centuries Ago

Salt mines that were operated on an extensive scale, with very "modern" shafts, tunnels and drifts, more than 600 years before Christ, have lately been explored near Hallstadt, Austria, by Dr. Adolph Mohr of the Vienna State museum. In addition to knowledge of the mining methods of these prehistoric men of the early Iron age, the exploration yielded also numerous articles of leather and wood, well preserved against decay during the ages by their burial in salt. These finds included pick handles, torches, wedges, mallets, felt caps, shoes of wood, leather and felt, leather hand protectors and many other articles.

The exploration was backed by two Americans, Prof. F. W. Bode of the University of California and Major Gotshall.

Clock Plays Many Tunes

A clock that plays tunes has just been put on display in London. Every part is hand made and engraved, and the timepiece is believed to be the only one of its kind in the world. It is a perfect time-keeper, chimes every quarter of the hour on eight bells, and at the hour, after striking, plays one of six tunes on 14 bells, concealed in a gilt wooden box. The tunes are "Auld Lang Syne," "The Blue Bells of Scotland," "Robin Adair," "Callie Herrin," a Scotch reel and the Scotch national anthem. The clock was made in Glasgow, and required two years to construct. Some of the parts are minute, and are perfect in detail.

Modern Suite

Evidently it has remained for California to give the world a new style in architecture. At the recent convention in Detroit, the Georgian, Elizabethan, Roman, Queen Anne, etc. had been discussed as to their relative merits for various parts of the country.

"All very fine," snally interrupted the Californian, "but out our way, we're introducing an entirely new style, to suit our own self-evident needs—a garage for three cars, with a built-in living-room."

Dinner Call

The Brady family recently dined with a friend. The capable maid in the household announced dinner by stepping to the living room door and saying: "Your victuals are cooked." Welch Bill Should Pass Without Opposition

The Welch bill, in committee, considering substantial increases in salaries of government employees, should by all means be reported on favorably and be passed without opposition when it comes before Congress.

The bill provides increased salaries for employees in grades each grade having on the whole, a decided increase in salary conditions. It is claimed and substantiated that government employees in most lines, more especially in those of a professional nature, are too poorly paid and it is the intention of the Welch bill, to provide such increases as will place government employees in salaried conditions equal to their services and merits.

We boast of our government as the greatest in the world and it is wonderfully true, but together with this fact, we should be able to also show that our government employees are the best paid by far, of any in the world.

The committee in charge of the Welch bill is soliciting and receiving letters of information from those who are interested in the passage of the bill and floods of letters are going in to the committee and also Representatives in Congress. In view of that fact, it would seem impossible for the bill to be defeated. The bill should pass without the least opposition.

Cutting Has Bill to Help T. B. Veterans

Washington—Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico has introduced Senate Bill 4041 to extend the presumptive time for tuberculosis for war veterans to Sept. 1, 1928.

The measure is one of great interest to the soldier boys who lost their health while in the service.

The Aviation Field Bill, previously introduced by Senator Cutting, is now on the calendar with favorable reports from the committee and secretaries of the interior and commerce. It authorizes the leasing of public lands for airports.

The measure will enable Santa Fe to go ahead with its plans for a permanent emergency landing field.

An Error Made

SEEN in the Fergus Falls, Minn., Tribune:

The proof sheet of the call for the Democratic county convention last week came to the desk: "All persons afflicted or interested are requested to be present." The proofreader had to struggle with his better nature to keep from running it that way even though the Republicans might give them the horse-laugh.

Reluctantly, the word was changed to "affiliated." Nobody who has caught democracy will be peeved.

Important Announcement to every owner of a Model T Ford

ON MAY 25, 1927, when Henry Ford first announced his plans for making a new car, he announced also that he would continue to make parts for the Model T Ford. He said:

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. It blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads everywhere. It broke down the barriers of distance in rural sections, brought people in these sections closer together, and placed education within the reach of everyone. We are still proud of the Model T Ford. If we were not, we would not have continued to make it so long."

For twenty years, the Model T Ford led the automobile industry and it still serves more people than any other automobile. Over one-third of all the automobiles in use today are Model T Fords—an indication of the sturdy worth of the car and its value to people in all walks of life the world over.

The Ford Motor Company will continue to make replacement parts for these cars "until the last Model T is off the road." That is a part of Ford service. That is what Henry Ford meant when he said: "We believe that when a man buys one of our cars we should keep it running for him as long as we can and at the lowest up-keep cost."

Because of this policy a considerable part of the Ford manufacturing plants is given over to the making of parts for the Model T Ford. These replacement parts are made of the same material and in the same way as those from which your car was originally assembled.

Make it a point, therefore, to see the nearest Ford dealer and have him look over your Model T Ford. You may find that a very small expenditure will enable you to get thousands of miles of additional service; and at the same time protect the money you have invested in your car.

With the High School Classics By MARGARET BOYD

This is a slight unmeritable mart, Meant to be sent on errands; is it fit, The three-fold world divided, he should stand One of the three to share it? —Julius Caesar.

During a prolonged study of the lives of various men both great and small, writes Goethe, "I came upon this thought: In the web of the world the one may well be regarded as the warp, the other as the woof. It is the little men, after all, who give breadth to the web, and the great men firmness and solidity, also, the addition of some sort of pattern."

This figure is less forceful now than it was during Goethe's day, when everyone was thoroughly familiar with weaving and most homes had a loom in some corner or in the attic. Then everyone knew that a web was any finished piece of weaving, whether a strip of rag carpet, a blanket, a tablecloth, a length of towelling, or a pattern of dress goods. Then everyone knew that when a weaver began a web, he first of all fastened the threads that were to run lengthwise of the web to the warp beam of his loom—and they knew that he called these threads the chain or the warp of the web. They knew, too, that the width of the web was determined by the number of threads fastened to the warp beam—so many threads for cloth a foot wide; twice as many for cloth two feet wide; and three times as many for cloth a yard wide. They knew, too, that when the warp threads were in place, the weaver began to cast back and forth from one side of the loom to the other, over one warp thread and under the next, a shuttle containing the thread that was to run crosswise of the web, the woof thread. They knew that the closer together the woof threads were crowded, the firmer the cloth.

Nowadays few people know much of weaving, and the comparison is but meaningless words unless one knows what web and warp and woof are. That understood, the comparison becomes one of the most forceful in all literature, and one sees the unmerited man and the brilliant man in their true relation to each other and to the universe. The slight unmerited men that make up the warp of the world are, quite as essential as the shrewd poets, artists, musicians, statesmen, inventors, business executives, and others who make up the woof.

More horsepower per pound than any other car in its class, gives the Victory an advantage which its rivals simply cannot hope to compete with. It leads off first and holds its lead—and when the hills are reached all attempts to follow the Victory abruptly end. Rakish, rugged, roomy—and the fastest car in its class! Drive it and prove it!

Airplane View of the California Flood

Fast melting snow in the high Sierras swelled 12 northern California and Nevada rivers to more than capacity, flooding vast portions in the Sacramento valley, doing damage to farms, orchards, homes and highways amounting to millions of dollars. This view, an airplane picture of North Sacramento, was taken while the flood waters were raging at their worst.

The prophecy came true. At the very next corner the girl turned to the left, and then held on, straight across two avenues, until she reached a street where the cars ran. She made as if to cross this street, too, for she went straight out to the middle of it; then stopped, obviously at fault, and retraced her steps to the car rail nearest the curb.

"Well, that's plain enough," said Ashton in a tone of disappointment. "She's brought us so far, but can't take us any farther, for here is where he took the car."

"Wait a bit," said the doctor. "Watch the girl."

She was crouched very low again, and quivering around in a circle, just as she had done at the foot of the standpipes. Presently, to the surprise of all of us, unless it may have been that the doctor guessed, she caught a scent that satisfied her and led her diagonally back to the sidewalk; and once here, without a pause, she set out in the direction of downtown, straight down the middle of the sidewalk, her gait that seemed unhurried, unflinching, a sure-footed compromise between a walk and a run.

"It seems to be all right," said Ashton rather breathlessly, as we hurried on after her, "only I don't quite see what he went out into the street for."

"To see if a car was coming, I suppose," said the doctor. "There wasn't one in sight, so, rather than risk waiting, he set out afoot. And I think he did wisely. I haven't seen a car in either direction. Have you?"

"We had not, and, what was still more to the point, followed the girl at the rapid pace she set, for half an hour without seeing one."

When we had first set out with her, our curiosity as to what she would do prevented us from paying much attention to the condition of the streets; but when the chase had straightened itself out into this long pursuit down the avenue, we had time to think of our surroundings, and to speculate whether they bettered the chances of the man we were pursuing or improved our own for catching him. The trolley wires were evidently down in every direction, and the streets were so glossy with the frozen sleet and so perilous with the snapping, spitting ends of live wires that trailed here and there, that what little wheel-traffic there was moved only with the very greatest difficulty. Without the means of tracing him, which the doctor's hypnotic power over the girl had provided us with, he would, after several hours, have been absolutely secure from pursuit. There would have been no other way in the world of hunting for him than by this simple, primitive method of tracking him by his scent.

It was fortunate for us that there were few pedestrians abroad that night, for the girl's strange, uncanny gait and our hurried, breathless pursuit of her would, in anything like normal conditions, have created a sensation which would have rendered the pursuit itself impossible. As it was, the few people who had ventured out found all they could attend to in the ice-glazed sidewalks, the wind-whipped corners, the fog and electrical peril of the streets. A few curious glances were cast after us as we went hurrying by, but that was about all.

Suddenly the doctor dropped a hand on my arm. "I know where she's going," he said. "I ought to have guessed it before ever we started. Look there." As he spoke, he pointed ahead and upward, through the fog, and, following the direction of his pointing finger, I made out, faintly, a luminous clock face.

"What is it?" said I. "I haven't kept track of where we were going. The fog confuses me."

"It's the Western station," said the doctor, "and Wilkins, my boy, he punctuated the remark with a buffet on my shoulder, 'Wilkins has gone to Oak Ridge! I ought to have known him well enough by this time to have foreseen that that was what he would do.'"

"I don't believe he'd be such a fool," said Ashton, "but I hope you're right. If he's gone to Oak Ridge, we've got him. I've got two men out in the Morgan house watching it, on the lookout for anyone who might turn up there, and nobody who does turn up will be able to get away until they have accounted to me for their visit."

We had all lagged a little. "Come along," said the doctor. "We mustn't get too far behind."

We were pretty well winded, all of us, but we gathered up our energies for a final sprint, and turned into the great waiting room just behind her.

She went straight to the ticket window, but without a pause there or a glance through, she turned in a sharp angle, exactly as a dog would do, and padded across the waiting room toward the doors which opened into the train shed.

"Follow her!" the doctor commanded Mallory. "I'll see about the train." I was at his elbow when he spoke to the clerk. That functionary was gazing after the girl with wide, terrified eyes.

"In Heaven's name!" he said; "what is she? A woman or a beast?"

The doctor did not answer. He ignored the question utterly.

"When is the next train for Oak Ridge due?" he asked.

The ticket clerk rubbed his hands over his eyes. "Did you see her?" he asked; "That creature that just went through the door?"

I did not wonder that he was horrified. I remembered my own feeling when I had seen her start down the corridor toward Wilkins' room.

The doctor paid no attention, and in the same level voice in which he had spoken before, he repeated his question about the train for Oak Ridge.

With an effort, the clerk rallied his wits and answered him.

"There was a train pulled out about ten minutes ago," he said. "There won't be another tonight. The wires are down on account of the sleet, and we've practically abandoned the suburban service. It's too dangerous. Everything has to run without orders."

"Did you hear that, Ashton?" said the doctor, turning away. "The last train to Oak Ridge that will run tonight left ten minutes ago."

CHAPTER X

Ashton had followed Mallory part way across the waiting room, a little nervous, I think, at the idea of letting the girl out of his sight. So he had not heard what the clerk had just told Doctor McAllister through the ticket window.

"Well," he said, "that is all right, isn't it? We don't want to go to Oak Ridge. If the train Wilkins took started only ten minutes ago, there's ample time to arrange to have him arrested before he sets foot on the platform at Oak Ridge. Where's the telegraph office in this station?"

"It won't do you any good," said Doctor McAllister. "There will be no telegraphic communication with Oak Ridge tonight."

Ashton glanced thoughtfully about the room. "That possibility hadn't occurred to me," he said at last.

"It occurred to Wilkins," said the doctor. "That's why he went. He's the one man of us who really grasped the situation. He knew just what that sleet storm meant—that over a territory fifteen or twenty miles square electricity was going out of the business of serving civilization for a few hours. That one vital fact turns the world topsy-turvy, and makes some difficult things easy and some commonplace things impossible. For just tonight our thoughts can't move any quicker than our bodies can. So Wilkins has set out for Oak Ridge, and we can't head him off. The only thing we can do is to follow him. The question is, shall we try to do that?"

I followed Ashton's glance just then, and saw Mallory coming back with the girl. She seemed unconscious of his presence, and, made straight across the room to where the doctor was standing in conversation with us. She halted beside him without a word, her manner perfectly quiet, though expectant. She was merely waiting for him to tell her what he wanted done next.

For the moment he paid no attention to her, did not even glance sideways at her as she came up.

"That's the question," he repeated to the attorney. "Shall we try to go out to Oak Ridge tonight? You spoke of having two men on watch there all the time. Can you safely leave the matter of coping with Wilkins to them?"

Ashton walked away a few paces, then whirled and came back. His look was troubled, disquieted.

"I wish you were there, Mallory," he said. "Green and Benson aren't any too wide awake. They'll have a man to deal with who has just outwitted us."

"There are two courses of action open to us," said the doctor. "One is, to go home and go to bed. The other is, to get hold of an automobile and try to get out to Oak Ridge tonight. Our getting there at all is problematical with the roads in the present condition."

Ashton whirled round and spoke to Mallory. "Go and telephone to the nearest garage for an automobile; quick!" he said. Then, addressing us, he went on; "There is no necessity for your going, Doctor McAllister, or Mr. Phelps, either. But Mallory and I can't afford to waste a minute."

"You've wasted one already," said the doctor, "telling Mallory to go into that telephone booth."

Ashton, heartily cursing his own stupidity, darted off after his messenger.

"I think I'll go along with them," said I to the doctor, "just on the chance of my being of some service."

He laughed. "Are you thinking you'll leave me behind? Come, Phelps, you know me better than that. No, we'll all go."

His gesture included the strange, silent, expectant figure that had been standing at his elbow all the time.

"Do you mean to take her?" I questioned.

"She's brought us so far. She's given us, up to this point, every material fact that has made it possible for us to establish Haines' identity and get on his trail."

It just happened then that my eyes were on the girl. I saw her shiver, saw a look of human intelligence and perplexity appear for the first time in that strange face of hers. I tried, with a nod, to direct my chief's attention to her, but before he could get my meaning, Ashton came hurrying back.

"There's a garage only two or three blocks away," he said, "and Mallory ought to be back with a car in a very few minutes."

Then he held out his hand to the doctor. "I can't begin to tell you," said he, "how grateful I am for the help you've given us, nor for your patience with my unenlightenment."

"No valetotories now," said the doctor interrupting. "You're not going to be rid of us so easily. We're all going with you."

"Good!" said Ashton. "I hoped you would, though I felt I hadn't any right to ask it of you. Come! There's the motor. Let's lose no time."

My memory of the next two hours is one of unrelieved discomfort and constantly increasing apprehension. We skidded across street car tracks and had a dozen of what in normal times we should have called narrow escapes, in the first dozen minutes. After that, we stopped counting. The excitement of the chase was mounting in our veins.

"He must be there by this time," said Ashton at last with a shudder. "I wish I knew that Green and Benson were still alive."

"I tell you he won't kill," said the doctor, "not if he can help it. He'll do it if they succeed in forcing his hand; that I admit. But his own cleverness is the greatest safeguard those two men could have—his cleverness and their stupidity."

"I wish I shared your confidence," said Ashton.

"Think a minute what the situation is," said the doctor. "Suppose we had him now, safely, in our hands. We know what he is. We know that he is morally responsible for the murder of Henry Morgan. But suppose you were not the district attorney. Suppose that Haines came to you and retained you in his defense. Wouldn't you tell him that, with the criminal law in its present state and the methods of prosecuting criminals what they are today, you would have an excellent chance of riddling any case that we could make? Wouldn't you tell him that, never in the world, could he be convicted of murder in the first degree, by any court or any jury?"

"Yes," said Ashton ruefully, "I suppose that's true."

"You may be sure," the doctor continued, "that Wilkins realizes that. And realizing it, you may be certain, also, that he will not commit an indubitable first-degree murder, if he can help it."

"Murder—"

The word made us all start. It was uttered, hardly above a whisper, by the wild half-human creature, through whose instrumentality we had been able to get on the true murderer's trail. And yet, in some subtle way, she had spoken in a new voice; not the soft-throated guttural speech of the Maori girl, nor yet in Jane Perkins' New Zealand modification of cockney.

Wanted No Witnesses to Theatrical Flight

In Sir James Barrie's play "Peter Pan," Tinker Bell gets up on her stage wings, hovers about the room and flies out of an open window. The playwright, watching one of his rehearsals, expressed a desire to try the mechanism by which this flight is achieved. So attendants attached the wires to the distinguished gentleman and prepared to hoist him in the air. The amusing part of the story followed. Sir James, a veteran in the world of the theater, was suddenly struck by a terrible and overwhelming stage-fright. He commanded that every one leave the boards, and had the front curtain put down and the pass doors securely closed. Then, alone in the room between the backdrop, the curtain and the wings, he was lifted up, maneuvered over Tinker Bell's route, and, in all his disheveled dignity, soared out the window unperceived.

Darwin's Life Work

Darwin, the famous expounder of the theory of evolution, was born in 1809, the son of a physician of Shrewsbury, England. From 1881 to 1886 he made his voyage round the world in the Beagle, on which he was the naturalist. In 1859 he published his great work, "Origin of Species." Subsequently he elaborated and defended his theory. Among these works was the "Descent of Man." He died in 1882.

SOUTH-WEST NEWS NOTES

The Arizona Industrial Congress held its annual spring meeting in Nogales on April 16. New Mexico now has an elk herd of approximately seventy-five ranging on the upper Pecos river. Calumet & Arizona Mining Co. earned $5.79 a share in 1927 before depletion charges, against $5.59 in 1926. The tenth annual convention of the Arizona State Nurses' Association will be held at Tucson, April 25 and 26. Gov. R. C. Dillon issued a proclamation designating the week of April 22-28 as American Forest Week in New Mexico. Fire of unknown origin totally destroyed the Maric Wood Yards in Tombstone, Ariz. The loss was estimated at more than $2,000. The Tularosa Tls & Lumber Co. is gradually increasing the output of its mills in Tucson and is now producing about 50,000 feet daily. The Raton, New Mexico, public school system will be given wide advertising over the country in a film which has just been completed for the purpose. Chavez county, New Mexico, cotton farmers are richer by $1,387,107 as the result of the production of 13,316 bales of cotton from 16,782 acres planted the last year. The Portales, N. M., camp of the Spanish War Veterans believes that an American flag should be placed in every public school and the students instructed in flag courtesies. Charges of carrying mail matter from Nogales to Tucson, with no charges being made, have been filed against the Southern Pacific railroad by J. B. Wright, U. S. attorney. In the New Mexico Military Institute the state has a military training school which is second to none in the union except West Point. Gov. R. C. Dillon declared in dedicating Willson hall in Roswell. East and West Las Vegas will be combined under one postoffice under the name Las Vegas, when the new federal building is put into use in Las Vegas July 1. A branch station will be maintained in West Las Vegas. Deposits in the thirty state banks of New Mexico as of Feb. 23, showed an increase of $2,067,898 over the deposits for the corresponding period last year. Lawrence Tammo, state bank examiner, said in a report, issued in Santa Fe. Governor Hunt announced in Phoenix that he received a telegram from President Calles of Mexico, saying that Mexican government departments had been issued orders to permit a series of six airplane flights from Phoenix to Point of Rocks, Bay of Adair, Mexico, which may result in the establishment of an air line. Success of an underground school established at Dawson, New Mexico, for training inexperienced miners, leads to the hope that other mining companies can be induced to establish similar schools this year without federal aid. D. W. Rockey, state supervisor of trade industrial education reported to Gov. R. C. Dillon in Santa Fe. The combined resources of the 31 state banks and 15 national banks in Arizona on February 23 of this year showed an increase of more than eleven million dollars over the figures reported on March 23, 1927, according to a condensed statement on the condition of Arizona banks issued in Phoenix by the state bank superintendent. The popularity of the Carlsbad Cave National Monument is reflected by the demand made upon the Santa Fe railway system for its major folder which is devoted exclusively to the cavern. A fourth reprint will go to press in the next few weeks and will bring the total printing to date to approximately 100,000 pieces of printed matter. Catron county, New Mexico, won the fight for its existence in a decision given by the State Supreme Court in Santa Fe. The last legislature sought to create a new county of Rio Grande from the whole of Socorro and most of Catron county, distributing the rest of Catron to Grant county. After it had passed this law it changed the name of Rio Grande county to Socorro. Another season of federal fruit and vegetable services for Arizona has begun with opening of spring lettuce movement from the Salt River Valley, which promises to exceed all previous records. Three licensed government inspectors are now at work in Phoenix, making federal lettuce grading and certification available to all growers and shippers who desire it, and indications are that several more will be required soon, as shipments are increasing rapidly. Heating of Doctor Webb, osteopath, at Snowflake, was held in the Superior Court at Holbrook. The charge against Doctor Webb was that of practicing his profession without a license. After testimony was presented the jury was out but a very short while when they brought in the verdict of acquittal. Three federal public shooting grounds in the marsh lands formed by the around Elephant Butte lake likely will be created soon, according to New Mexico State Game and Fish Commissioner E. L. Ferry.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senate May Keep Tax Cut Down to 200 Millions—Week in Politics.

BY EDWARD W. PICKARD SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MELLON presented to the senate finance committee his new program of tax reduction, and the Republican members of the committee, together with Senator King of Utah, Democrat, gave the plan their tentative approval. In its general features. The result will be that the bill presented to the senate will provide for a tax cut amounting to about $200,000,000, instead of the $290,000,000 reduction called for in the house measure.

Mr. Mellon asserted that the prospective $252,000,000 surplus for the fiscal year, 1929 already has been shaved to $122,000,000 and that if congress appropriates $30,000,000 for flood protection during that year the surplus will be further reduced to $182,000,000. On the basis of these figures he scaled down the administration tax cut maximum, which he placed at $228,000,000 last fall, to $200,000,000 without allowance for food control and to less than $182,000,000 if the expected appropriation for this purpose is made.

By a vote of 13 to 6 the committee formally approved a reduction in the tax on corporation earnings from 13 1/2 to 12 per cent, meaning a reduction in revenue of $123,000,000; and it also approved the repeal of the estate tax, which will cut the revenue $7,000,000 more. In apportioning the remaining $70,000,000 it was necessary to decide whether to approve the scaling down of intermediate surtax rates proposed by Secretary Mellon, involving a loss in revenue of $50,000,000, or whether to use this amount in the reduction or repeal of the automobile and other miscellaneous taxes which Secretary Mellon believes should be retained. It was expected the committee would approve an increase in the exemption for small corporations as in the house bill.

CHARLES E. HUGHES having declined the job, the Republican national committee selected Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio as temporary chairman and "keynoter" of the Kansas City convention. There was no opposition to this choice, as Senator Fess is able and eloquent and has at all times been a loyal supporter of the policies of President Coolidge and of the Republican party. His name remained on the Ohio ballot as one of the Willis candidates for delegate at large, but he announced that if he were elected he would have no declared first choice for President. His second choice, as indicated under the requirements of the Ohio law, is Senator Curtis of Kansas. But it is known that he really favors Hoover if the drafting of Coolidge cannot be put through. The other Willis candidates for delegate also decided that they would go to the convention without first choice. Their second choice pledges, which are to stand, are 24 for Lowden, 8 for Curtis and 9 for Col. Charles Fisher of Wilmington, Ohio. If the name of Charles G. Dawes is placed before the convention he will have the support of those delegates. All of which is contingent on their election in the primaries.

New York Republicans elected 90 unopposed delegates, of whom the Hooverites claim at least 47. Among those chosen was Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, wet leader, who defeated an avowed dry. In the Wisconsin Republican primary the L. Follette forces received the first serious setback they have had in years. According to incomplete returns the total delegation at Kansas City will be made up of 15 La. Follette men, pledged to Senator Norris, and 11 anti-La. Follette men, most of whom are unopposed. Hoover was the only announced candidate in the Michigan primary and will have that state's 53 votes.

After winning 30 Michigan delegates without contest, Al Smith next day captured 124 more votes in three states. These included 86 from New York, 12 from Maine and 26 from Wisconsin. In the Badger state the Walsh candidates were snowed under by the slate of delegates sponsored by National Committeeman J. M. Callahan and pledged to Smith. The voters, however, in marking their Presidential preference ballots gave Senator Reed of Missouri a three-to-one majority over the governor of New York. Smith's name had to be written in the ballot.

Reverting to the Republican situation, attention should be called to the action of the corn belt committee in Des Moines. Claiming to represent more than a million organized farmers, the committee adopted a resolution opposing the election of Hoover should he be nominated by the Republican convention. In that event the committee plans to throw its voting strength to the Democratic nominee.

GOVERNOR GREEN of Michigan appointed Arthur H. Vandenberg to fill out the unexpired term of the late United States Senator W. N. Ferris. The appointment is good only until next December, but Mr. Vandenberg announced that he will be a candidate for election to the senate in the fall. The new senator is editor of the Grand Rapids Herald and is a student and writer on American history and the Constitution. He is only forty-four years old.

Cyrus Locher, a Democrat, was named to fill out the term of the late Senator Willis of Ohio by Governor Donahay. Mr. Locher is the state director of commerce and resides in Cleveland.

ALBERT B. FALL, in his testimony taken at El Paso for use in the trial of Harry Sinclair, said three Republican leaders—a former cabinet member now in Europe, a senator and a former senator—advised him to write the famous McLean letter to the senate Teapot Dome committee in 1923 in an effort to conceal a loan of $100,000 from Edward Dooney, oil magnate. In Washington it was stated the men named by Fall were Will Hays, Senator Reed Smoot of Utah and ex-Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin. Both Smoot and Lenroot branded Fall's story as utterly false. Lenroot said Fall told him he got the money from McLean and he then had every reason to believe Fall was telling the truth.

GENIAL, optimistic, picturesque old Chauncey M. Depew has passed away at the age of ninety-four years. The former senator from New York and chairman of the board of directors of the New York Central railroad succumbed to pneumonia at his residence in the metropolis only a few days after his return from a trip to Florida. Born in Peekskill in 1834, Mr. Depew was educated at Yale and then was admitted to the bar. He was active in politics all his life from his twenty-first year and attended every Republican national convention as a delegate since 1883 with the exception of that of 1924. At the 1888 convention he received 99 votes for the Presidential nomination. He served two terms as United States senator, from 1889 to 1911. In 1890 he entered the service of the Vanderbilt railroad system and remained with it until his death. For 13 years he was president of the New York Central. He was especially well known for his public addresses and his after-dinner speeches. He attributed his longevity to his "refusal to worry."

GREAT BRITAIN'S plan to keep up the price of rubber by restricting the exports, known as the Stevenson scheme, has failed. Prime Minister Baldwin announced to the house of commons that the government had decided that all restrictions on the export of rubber from Malaya and Ceylon would be removed beginning November 1, 1928. According to the Stevenson plan the exportable percentage of production was determined at the beginning of each quarter by the average price during the preceding quarter. It was attacked especially by American users as an attempt by Great Britain to monopolize rubber, and was successful for a time. But Dutch competition in Sumatra, American conservation, German synthetic rubber and new planting projects doomed the scheme to failure. During recent months the price of rubber has steadily declined, and experts predict that it will stay low, despite the abandonment of the British plan; until the inefficient products are driven out.

THE house committee on flood control accepted the senate's bill on that matter and all looked rosy until Tuesday, when President Coolidge advised the house leaders that he was not satisfied with the compromise effected and feared the pending measure would involve huge expenditures in excess of the $325,000,000 authorized. He still wished the appointment of an economic commission to study the question of local contributions, and favored a number of other amendments. The Republican house leaders therefore decided the bill should not be called up before the latter part of this week. The house committee also fears an adequate flood protection program will cost more than is provided for in the senate bill. In its report the committee contends that the cost of flood control works and rights of way under the Jadwin plan would be $295,000,000, which is exclusive of $111,000,000 for improving navigation. The Mississippi river commission's plan, which under the terms of the Jones bill may be adopted if desired in cases where it conflicts with the Jadwin plan, would cost $225,000,000 for flood control works and rights of way. Both of these apply only to the lower Mississippi river.

MINISTER MACMURRAY went from Peking down to Shanghai to settle with the Chinese Nationalist government the row over the Nanking outrages of March, 1927, and settle it, to the satisfaction of Washington, without yielding to the arrogance of the Chinese or sacrificing the prestige of the United States. The British press in Hongkong was astonished by Mr. MacMurray's success where the British minister had failed, and jeered at the settlement as one of expediency due to the approaching elections in America.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI and the pope seem both to be determined not to continue the controversy over the education of the youth of Italy. The Vatican organ in a congressional editorial declared the Holy See had no intention of projecting itself into the affairs of the Italian state, and the duke sternly notified the Italian press that this must be considered as absolutely closing the incident. It is understood that though there is to be no rescinding of the decree against Catholic boy scout organizations, a flexible formula for procedure will be found whereby the decree disbanding them in most places will be avoided.

SMYRNA, the unfortunate Asia Minor seaport, was shattered by a series of earthquake shocks extending through several days and affecting also a number of nearby villages. The fatalities were numerous and a great many buildings were destroyed, among them being some of the fine structures erected since the great conflagration of 1922. The first tremors were preceded by a terrifying display of celestial electricity.

FRANCE'S latest note to America concerning the Washington proposal for an unqualified multilateral treaty to end war accepts the plan with reservations, and leads Secretary of State Kellogg to believe a real step has been taken toward abolishing armed conflict. It is understood the next move will be to extend the negotiations to include England, Germany, Italy and Japan. Briand has abandoned his contention that the term "aggressive war" be substituted for "all war," but he makes it perfectly clear that the French government cannot allow the proposed treaty to interfere with French obligations under the league. The foreign minister also declares that the inclusion of all powers in the league is absolutely necessary in the interests of world peace.

PEACE negotiations between Poland and Lithuania, held in Koestigsberg, Germany, fell through mainly because Premier Wademas would not yield on the question of Vilna. He knew if he did, his government would be overthrown, for the Lithuanians the city Poland grabbed must be restored to them. The conference may be resumed later, for three commissions were named to study questions of economics, security and nationalities.

Knoweth the Road

Cleve Brown, who "knows the road" Otis Spurlock and Uncle John Owens were down from Corona last Saturday and told about the big fire they had recently, in which both Cleve and Uncle John lost all their belongings, but Cleve says, says Cleve, "It's hard to keep good men down and as far as I'm concerned, I'll come out of it if I have to go on the road to do it and if it comes to that, I know I'll make good, because I "know the road."

A Real Live Candidate—With Feathers on Him

A candidate has lately made his appearance in this state who is not afraid of telling the truth, regardless of results.

He announces himself in one of our exchanges, as follows:—"I am an Arkansaw Hill-Billy, born and raised in the Ozark mountains. I used to outrun the dogs on Sunday mornings to prevent having my face, ears and neck washed. I did all of sparking among the girls, barefooted.

I came to New Mexico two years ago, and married one of the finest little girls in this part of the county.

The reason I know she has good reasoning powers, is that she says I have just little enough sense to run for office.

If the bootleggers are kind, to me and give me a sample now & then (I know good stuff) I will not bother them, but if they are not, I promise to make 'em think that hell aint 40 feet away from the courthouse.

Never saw a train til I was 15, and was almost grown before I found out that a Republican didn't have 4 legs and hair all over him.

I have farmed with a bull-tongued plow, am a first-class mechanic (my wife says so) having worked right smart around a molasses mill. Taught school in my sock feet, because I couldn't afford any shoes.

I expect to occupy the time from now til election day in kissing babies, complimenting the ladies' cooking, no matter if you could knock a nigger down with one of their biscuits, and bragging on the old man's prospects for a good crop.

Now, you have my credentials and qualifications, no bull—and I most respectfully solicit your support for the office of County Attorney.— and I want you all to know it."

Ice and Soda Water

I will be in Carrizozo Tuesdays and Fridays with ice and ice cold soda water. In serving you in the past, I trust I have your confidence and may serve you again. Leave orders at Mayer's Store or the Outlook Office.
