

Eagle Creek Murmurings

(By L. A. Whitaker)

Mrs. Louis Adams and Miss Margaret Anderson of Des Moines, Iowa, were guests of Miss Louise Sweet at the Sweet cottage last week, previous to the departure of Miss Anderson for her home to spend her vacation.

J. McSmith, former caretaker for the Eagle Creek Club grounds, has moved to the old Skinner place on the Bonito, where he will be caretaker for the Southern Pacific Co.

Supervisor O. Fred Arthur and his assistant, Mr. Strickland of the Forest Service, spent a portion of the week at Eagle Creek attending to some business matters.

Little Martaleah Cohen of Albuquerque came over last week to spend several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace. They will take her to Eagle Creek and other places before her return.

Mrs. R. R. Sale and sister, Miss Grace Jones were week-end sojourners at their cottage at Eagle Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kelley were visitors at the resort on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Borders and Mrs. Borders' mother of El Paso will spend the summer at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Piant of Roswell were week-end visitors at their cabin, returning home on Monday.

Fred Braun of Albuquerque spent Sunday at Eagle Creek. Fred is a booster for this popular resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dingwall spent Wednesday at Eagle Creek fishing.

Asher Emerson Buys McCall Ranch

A deal was consummated this week, whereby Asher Emerson made a purchase of the entire holdings of the McCall ranch, which includes everything except the household goods which the McCalls will take with them to El Paso, where they will make their future home.

Mr. Emerson will stock the ranch with cattle and will also carry on the dairy business which has proved so successful for him in the past, the place being the more convenient for both of the above named purposes.

We are sorry to lose the McCall family. They have been residents of this place for many years, but best of friends must part at times, and we wish them the best measure of success in their new home. We congratulate the Emersons on the purchase and predict for them, a decided increase in business which they justly deserve.

To Santa Fe

County Commissioners Gray, Rose, Sheriff Kelsey and Delinquent Tax Collector J. B. French spent a few days of this week at Santa Fe, conferring with the State Tax Commission and Highway Commission, relative to taxations and road improvements for the county.

BORN—To County Commissioner and Mrs. Chas. F. Gray, a 10-lb. boy, this morning. Mother and son are doing nicely.

Ft. Stanton News

The Roswell baseball team has been selected to meet the Fort at Fort Stanton on July 4th, in connection with the celebration planned. The valley team has a fine record and has a team in the field worthy of considerable note. Local fans recall the 4-3 12-inning game that went to Roswell on the local diamond a short time ago.

With slightly more than two weeks before July 4th, the Celebration Committee is quite busy completing plans for the day's celebration. Everything indicates a full day of enjoyable entertainment for all. The picnic grounds on the Rio Bonito are being put in shape to care for the usual large crowd. Special mortars have been ordered to take care of the large bombs to be used in the fireworks display. Arrangements are also being made for additional dancing space this year.

Clarence H. Boyd, Farm Supt., returned from Santa Rosa Saturday night, where he met his wife who was driving through from Grand Junction, Colorado.

James H. Howard is spending a ten-day vacation working on his ranch near Alto.

Percy Blakeley left Thursday for his home in Detroit. He expects to stay in Detroit for an indefinite period.

Miss Salina Kane, chief nurse, returned Monday from Louisville, Ky., where she attended the National Nurses' Convention.

Earle Farr returned Monday night from El Paso.

Dr. N. Y. Hooper and W. C. Hendren returned from Carlsbad Sunday night, reporting a fine trip through the cave, and a visit with W. A. Wunsch and family. The Wunschs asked to be remembered to their friends.

Roswell defeated Fort Stanton in the baseball game at Roswell last Sunday by the score of 9-1. The game did not start until 4 o'clock due to rains and was played on a heavy field.

Father DeBruyere left Tuesday for Arizona where he will visit his brother who is quite ill.

Chaplain M. J. Swift was in El Paso for a few days early this week.

Mrs. Harold Payne of Phoenix, Arizona is visiting her sister, Miss Lettie M. Gunn for a week.

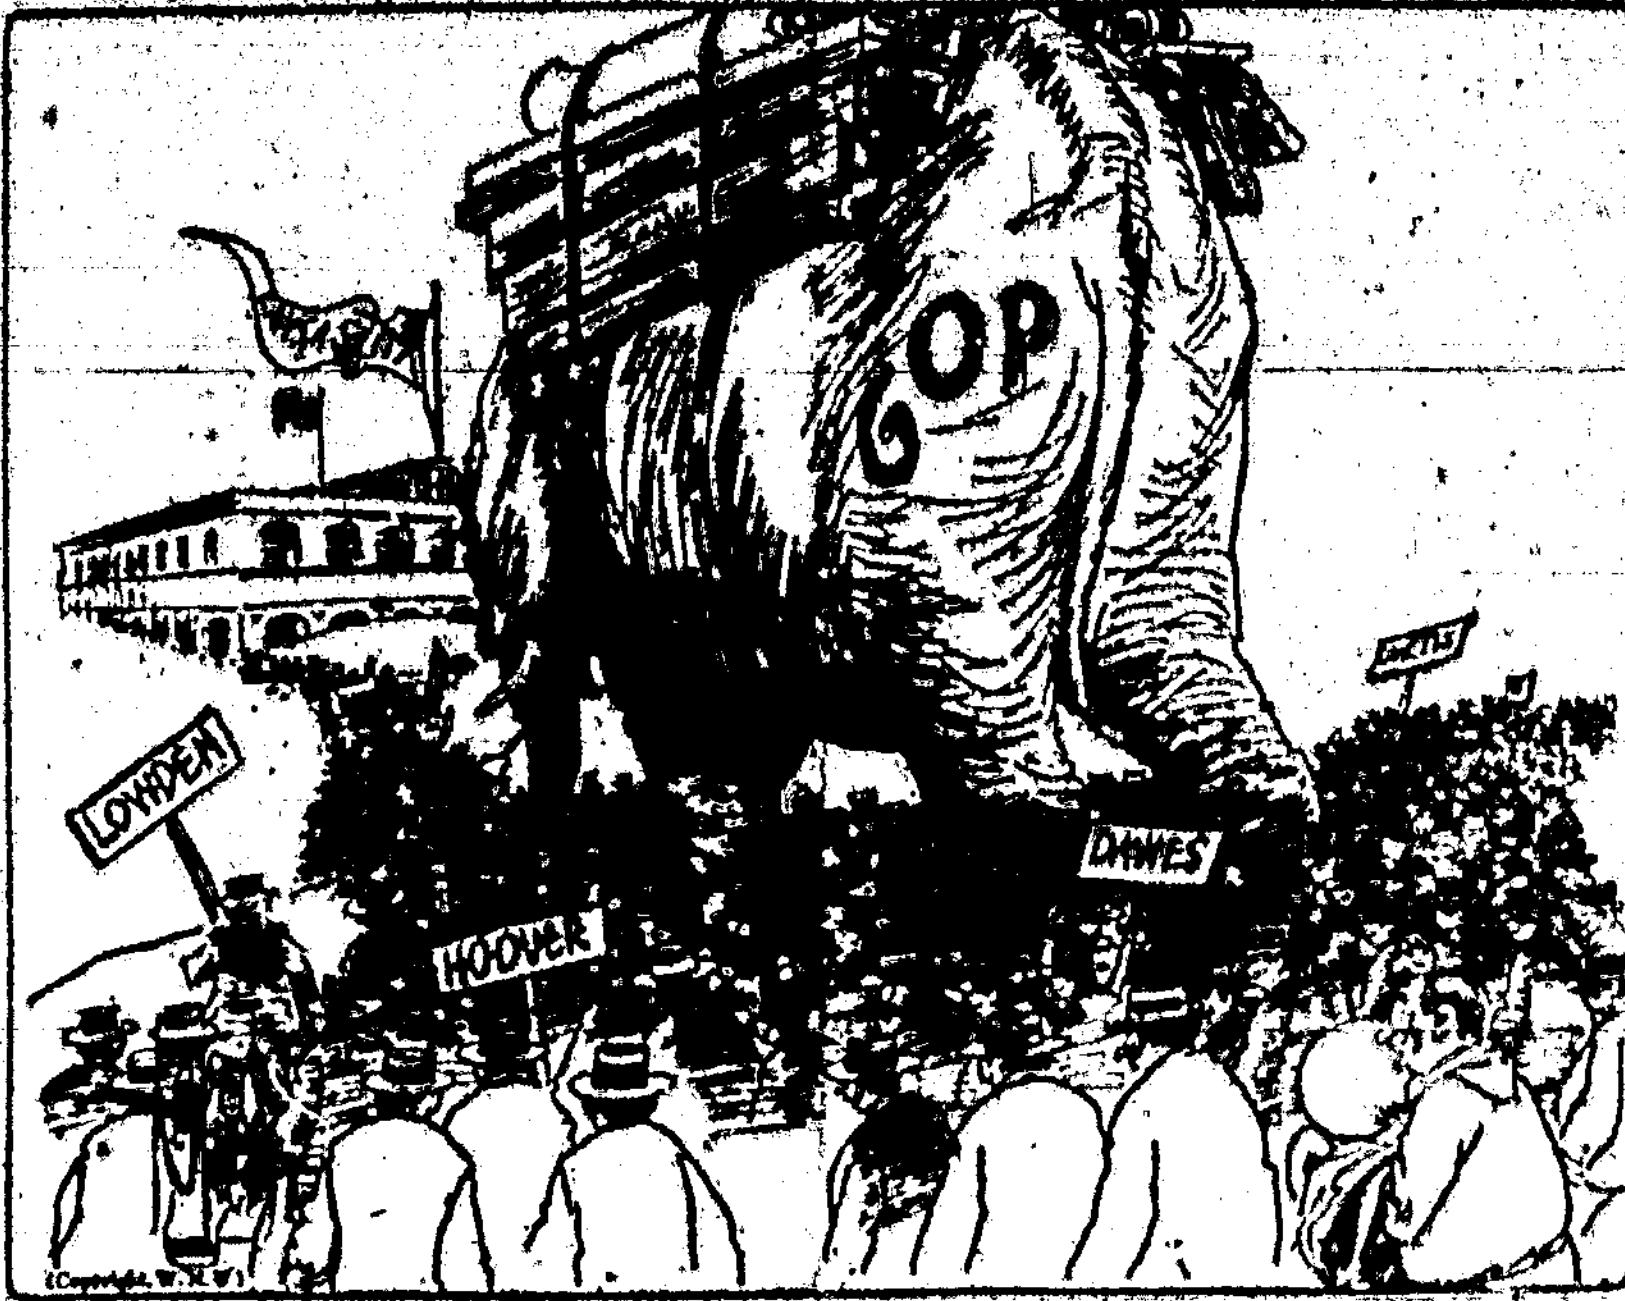

Rev. Malcomb Twiss and family, Rector of St. Albans Episcopal Church of El Paso, are the guests of Rev. Swift this week.

Beginning with Sunday, June 17, the Right Rev. Frederick B. Howden, Bishop of New Mexico and Southwestern Texas, will conduct a preaching mission at the Chapel of our Redeemer at Fort Stanton, preaching June 17-18-19, each evening at 7:30, to which the public in general is cordially invited.

Have Moved to Ruidoso

The W. T. Lumpkins family have moved from Carrizozo to Ruidoso, where Mr. Lumpkins is erecting many new cabins for summer residents. They seem to be well pleased with their new location.

Bridge Men Uncover Skeletons and Ancient City

While making the excavation for the San Cristobal Bridge off the Hinkle Highway, the bridge crew of the State Highway Department uncovered three skeletons in perfect condition. The crew becoming interested worked back from the road and soon uncovered the ruins of a pueblo, more skeletons, pottery and evidence of a high degree of civilization.

The skeletons were all found in a sitting posture with the heads between the knees. They were near the doors of the houses, ranged against the outer walls. Further investigation revealed what was either a water system for drinking water or an irrigation lateral paved with carefully cut rocks. This led down from a basin in the rocks of a near-by hill which was evidently once a spring. The rocks were cut so well and true and were in such a quantity that a few were used for headwalls on the new road, saving a long haul for the builders.

About three hundred feet to the east from the highway, high on the side of a hill, a long gallery of pictographs cut on sandstone boulders was discovered. The pictures on these were so clear and of such excellence that the bridgemen interpreted the stories to their own satisfaction without any trouble.

One series of pictographs tells the story of man hunting with a stone club and a dog, his kill, and subsequent dragging in of the quarry to his people. Snakes, lizards, trees, kangaroo rats, mountain lions and bears are all pictured with a fine skill in craftsmanship. The gallery is about three quarters of a mile long.

Tourists wishing to visit these interesting remains may turn off Hinkle Highway at San Cristobal which is the first creek south of the old Pankey headquarters ranch. The ruins of the pueblo, skeletons and pottery remains are found about two hundred feet east of the highway and directly on the creek bank. The cutting action of the water is gradually uncovering the whole pueblo. The picture gallery is on the north side of the creek and runs from a point about four hundred feet east of the road for three quarters of a mile back up the one time course of the creek.

Home from Columbia

Miss Jane Spencer and brother William arrived home last Saturday from Columbia, Mo., where they had been attending school for the past term.

Railroad Rumbings

A work train will be placed in service at Gallinas in the near future to do work pertinent to extending siding at that point to hold one hundred cars.

Recently there have been several large shipments of harvesters moving over the New Mexico Division from Stockton, Cal., consigned to points in the middle west.

Brokemen J. H. Hampton and Herschel Martin were married a few days ago. The Martins and Hamptons will make their homes in El Paso.

The Roadmasters' offices at Duran and Alamogordo have been consolidated and moved to Carrizozo, the last one named being the office of J. B. Dinwiddie, a former resident of Carrizozo. Welcome, Jim!

Court Force Here

Attorney H. B. Hamilton came up yesterday from El Paso and will conduct the defense in the Stone-Davis murder trial. Col. Pritchard is also here to assist conduct the prosecution in the same case, which will last about ten days, according to the attorneys. Judge Frenger and Court Reporter Paul Brinegar are also here.

Manager Burkett Returns

J. C. Burkett, manager of the Crystal Theatre returned yesterday from Abilene, Texas, where he journeyed with Mrs. Burkett about two weeks ago, that being their home town. Mrs. Burkett will remain at Abilene until the last of July, when she will also return to Carrizozo.

Bible Lecturer Here

Elam Hall, Bible Lecturer, began a series of his famous lectures last night at the Baptist Church, the subject being "Christ on the Cross." He will lecture tonight and tomorrow night, on the following subjects: "Christ at the Tomb" and "Christ's Second Coming." The public in general, is invited.

Here from Ruidoso

B. Purdy, an enterprising merchant of Ruidoso, was in Carrizozo the first of the week on business, and paid this office a pleasant call.

Conductor MacKenzie Returns

Conductor D. A. MacKenzie returned Wednesday morning from the east, where he spent the last six months, attending matters of importance connected with the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of which organization he is Vice-President. Mr. MacKenzie left here the 1st of last December and spent most of the time of his absence at Cleveland, Ohio, where the B. of R. T. has its headquarters. While there, the Shriners held one of their big conventions which he much enjoyed. We offer our congratulations to the new Vice-President and hope to see the time soon arrive when we can cut off the Vice and be able to call him President, which he justly deserves.

Delegate to Rural Conference

Miss Mary Fritz, county school superintendent, being designated as one of the delegates from New Mexico to the Rural School Conference at Los Angeles, she left Wednesday morning for that city.

Other delegates to the conference are Mrs. Grace Corrigan of Grant county and Oscar Moore of Colfax county.

MAKING USE OF THE LEFT-OVER MEAT

Chicken Timbales Are Delicious.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Venail, lamb, or any other left-over meat may be used instead of chicken in the following recipe for timbales from the bureau of home economics:

- 1 pound of cooked chicken meat, chopped fine
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 teaspoonful salt
- Onion juice
- 1 cupful milk or meat broth
- 1 teaspoonful finely chopped parsley
- 2 tablespoonfuls flour
- 3 tablespoonfuls butter
- Lemon juice to taste

Put the chicken through the meat grinder, using the fine knife. Prepare a cream sauce of the butter, flour, and the liquid. Add this to the well-beaten eggs, the seasonings, and the meat. Mix well. Grease custard cups and pour in the mixture. Bake for one-half hour in a pan surrounded by water. Turn the timbales out, and serve hot.

Kiddies' Goodnight Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"My beautiful puppies," said Mother Irish Setter as the puppies opened their eyes.

They had lovely blue eyes and their heads were so smooth and soft. Their ears were long and their hair was of a wonderful red-brown shade, long and also very soft.

"I wish I could always keep them safe and away from the dangers of the world," she said as she looked at them.

After a time the puppies were almost grown up and in a little while after that there was great excitement.

The puppies did not understand it, but the mother did. She had been to many a dog show and how many prizes she had won. Her puppies were going to the show!

The next day they went—the whole family of puppies and the mother. The judges were looking at all the dogs.

"This Irish setter family beats them all," the judges said. And the whole family won ribbons! How pleased was their mistress.

"You will not leave me now," said their mother, for you will come to other shows with me.

"I have tried to keep you beautiful and well and so has my mistress. Now she is so pleased that you have won ribbons that she will not think of giving you away."

And though the puppies were almost grown up now they nestled close to their mother as though they were very young and said:

"We're happy that there are dog shows, mother, if it means we will not leave you."

And loudly they barked their joy! Crowds stopped to look at them and they copied their mother and stood and looked as she did.

When their mother heard the people say how fine she was they noticed she wagged her tail, so they did the very same thing when people admired them!

Some of the dogs at the show snarled and were cross, but the mother told the gentle Irish Setter puppies that they were not to blame.

"You can't always blame them, my dears, for every dog hasn't the kind mistress that we have!

"It a dog is cross, very often it is the fault of the master or mistress."

So the puppies who were almost grown up barked more joyously than ever when their kind mistress came back to them.

Lesson for June 17

THE CRUCIFIXION

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:16-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—God commendeth His own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Died for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Christ Died for Our Sins.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Jesus Chose the Cross.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Cross.

1. Jesus Crowned With Thorns (vv. 16-20).

After Pilate had scourged Jesus he delivered Him to be crucified.

1. The crown of thorns (vv. 16, 17).

Knowing that Jesus had been condemned for claiming to be Israel's king they clothed Him with purple and crowned Him with a wreath of thorns. The crown of thorns typified the curse which He bore for man's sin (Gen. 3:17, 18).

2. Their salutation (v. 18).

They said, "Hail, King of the Jews." This they did in derision.

3. Their mock worship (vv. 19, 20).

They smote Him on the head with a reed, taunted Him and went through a performance of mock worship.

4. Jesus Crucified (vv. 21-41).

1. They led Him away to the place of crucifixion (vv. 21-23).

At first they compelled Him to bear His own cross, but when physical weakness made this impossible, they compelled Simon, the Cyrenian, to bear it for Him. It is beautiful to note that the son of this Cyrenian came to believe on Jesus (cf. Rom. 16:13). In all probability his being compelled to bear the cross was the means of his own salvation.

Christ's face was so marked by the thorns and cruel blows that "there was no form or comeliness" (Isa. 53:2). All this He endured for us. He drank this bitter cup to its very dregs, but refused to drink "the wine mingled with myrrh" which would have deadened His pain.

2. Gambling for the clothing of the Lord (vv. 24, 25).

Having nailed Him to the cross they gambled for the seamless robe under the very cross on which He was dying and in their heartless cruelty they set down to watch Him die (Matt. 27:36).

3. The superscription (v. 26).

It was customary to place over the victim on the cross the name and crime of the offender. Though Pilate did this in mockery to vex the Jews, the title was absolutely true. He was indeed their king.

4. Between two thieves (vv. 27, 28).

This added to His shame. His identification with the two robbers was the fulfillment of the Scripture "and he was numbered with the transgressors" (Isa. 53:12).

5. The dying Savior reviled (vv. 29-32).

This reviling was engaged in by the passerby, the chief priests and the thieves who were crucified with Him. In this nameless agony and shame they taunted Him by bidding Him come down from the cross, derisively saying, "He saved others, Himself he cannot save." He could not save Himself and others, so He chose to die to save others.

6. Darkness upon the land (v. 33).

This was at noonday. So shocking was this crime that nature threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide Him from the gaze of a godless company.

7. The cry from the cross (vv. 34-36).

When God laid upon Christ, His beloved Son, the world's sin and turned His face from Him, there went out the awful cry of anguish, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

8. He dismissed His spirit (v. 37).

When the price of our redemption was fully paid, Jesus dismissed His spirit. No one took His life away from Him. He gave it up.

9. The rent veil (v. 38).

This symbolized the giving up of His life (Heb. 10:20).

10. The Centurion's confession (v. 39).

He said, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

11. The lingering group of women (vv. 40, 41).

They who had lovingly ministered to Him in life were waiting to see where they could bury His precious body.

12. Jesus' burial (vv. 42-47).

Loving hearts now took the precious body and laid it in Joseph's new tomb. This man, who did not consent to the foul treatment of the Lord, now risked his reputation and by his action makes a bold confession of the Lord.

13. Fear God

If we fear God we need never fear the devil, for he is a conquered foe. Into Christ's victory let us enter by faith, and in the boldness of the Lion of the tribe of Judah we shall be as bold as a lion.—Marsh.

Sanctification

No Christian man has any right to attempt to create sanctification of character by hiding himself from the activities of every-day life.—G. Campbell Morgan.

About Good Things to Eat

By NELLIE MAXWELL

The idea, shared by many, that life is a vale of tears is just as false as the idea shared by the majority, the idea to which youth and health and riches incline you, that life is a place of entertainment.

Life is a place of service, and in that service one has to suffer a great deal that is hard to bear, but more than to experience a great deal of joy.

But that joy can be real only if people look upon their life as a service, and have a definite object in life outside themselves and their personal happiness.—Tolstoy.

A cake is a simple thing for most cooks to prepare, provided they have good materials; but the filling and icing are often the ruinous finishing touch.

When making boiled frosting it is so easy to boil it a fraction of time too long, and it will be hard, or too short and it will be sticky or run on the cake. When decorated with too many things, the icing to make will be an uncooked one, and there is no certainty about it. Use any plain layer cake recipe and for an icing use the following:

Maple Syrup Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter and add one and one-half cupfuls of syrup. Dissolve three-fourths of a teaspoonful of soda in one-half cupful of hot water, add two well-beaten egg yolks and two and one-fourth cupfuls of flour sifted and one teaspoonful of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoonful each of salt and ginger, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. When partially cool cover with maple syrup icing. Roll one and half cupfuls of maple syrup until it spins a thread, then pour slowly over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, beating until thick enough to cover the cake. Dot with halves of walnut meats and cut into squares when serving.

Jalisco Veal and Ham.—Buy a shank of veal with plenty of meat on the bone—about four pounds. Wash and place the shank on to stew in a pot of water for each pound and add one-fourth cupful, each of chopped carrots, minced onion and diced celery, a few sprigs of parsley, a bayleaf, one-eighth teaspoonful of thyme, eight peppercorns and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Cook slowly until the meat falls from the bones. Remove the meat from the bones and cool under weight. Strain the liquor through a sieve and cool, remove every bit of fat. Clarify by adding crushed egg shells and slightly beaten whites, boil up, then strain through a cheesecloth. Add a little of the veal broth to a bread pan and allow it to thicken. On this place sliced veal and ham in thin slices (over with more broth and cool; repeat until all the broth and meat are used. Chill for several hours and turn from the mold. If the stock seems to lack gelatin add some to the broth—two tablespoonfuls will be sufficient.

Swedish cooks thicken stewed fruit with potato flour and mold it. Serve with cream when cold.

Vegetable Dinners. In most of the city cafeterias it is possible to find good substantial vegetable dinners. Now in the springtime mothers feed the family on spinach, watercress, green onions, radishes and cabbage instead of giving them sulphur and no lasses they serve them a dish of dandelion greens.

We know that we need these elements in our blood and we have learned that we get them in the best manner from fresh, green and succulent vegetables—fresh from our gardens.

The following are but suggestive of many combinations which will make a good meal. The serving may be cooked and served on a platter or from a large platter, whichever is desirable.

When fresh mushrooms are plentiful broil a few good-sized caps and season well with butter, serve with half of a ripe tomato broiled at the same time the mushrooms are cooked dot with buttered crumbs and brown. Add a border of corn heated—fresh of course if possible, but drained canned corn will do. Cook in a few table-spoonfuls of butter, stirring until well browned, or enough browned to give that delightful, scorched corn flavor. Then cook potatoes, even-sized ones, cut into eighths, drain and shake over the heat, and over them toss a few tablespoonfuls of finely shredded onion which has been lightly browned in butter, with a bit of minced parsley. This seems enough for a good meal but if very hungry, add a few carrots washed and sliced into match-like pieces and cooked in butter in their own juices, stirring carefully to keep from scorching. Garnish the platter or plunk with spoonfuls of the cooked carrots.

Chicken Aspic.—Wash, clean and cook a four-pound chicken in a kettle with four pints of water. Add one onion sliced, one-half cupful of diced celery or a bit of celery seed a sprig or two of parsley, a bit of bayleaf and one small carrot sliced. Season with two teaspoonfuls of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Cook slowly until very tender. Set away to cool; remove the chicken and skim off the fat which may be on the top of the liquor. Heat the liquor and clarify as above. Add one-eighth teaspoonful of nutmeg and paprika, and another teaspoonful of salt with a bit of cayenne and the juice of half a lemon. Add three tablespoonfuls of gelatin soaked in three-fourths of a cupful of water; stir until dissolved and strain through a double cheesecloth.

Mold as for veal. Combine asparagus tips with the chicken, sliced hard-cooked eggs, canned pimientos cut into strips or stuffed olives for color. Tomato soup, meat stock, using beef cubes, with the addition of gelatin will make good jelly to mold fish or other meats.

MILADY'S DRESSES FOR SUMMER WEAR

Light Colors Tend to Make Persons Look Larger.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The woman with a medium stout figure needs to give special attention to the lines of the light-colored dresses for summer wear. Light colors more than dark ones tend to make persons look larger than they really are. Judicious designing of each dress, however, will overcome this difficulty to a large extent.

Up-and-down-lines, which may be formed in a number of ways, help to reduce the apparent width of the figure. Dresses should be made moderately loose, for tightness emphasizes the curves and makes one appear larger. Set-in sleeves, somewhat loose, and of full length, look well and are comfortable. Little or no trimming should be used because it will give a broadening effect if attention is directed to the arm. If trimming is used, let it follow the length of the arm. The belt should never be placed so as to make the upper portion of the dress the same length as the part from the hips to the hem, and it should always be made of the same material as the dress so that the line will not be conspicuous. Narrow belts are also better than extremely wide ones.

These points are applied to the cool summer dress illustrated. It was designed by specialists of the bureau of home economics for a tall, medium-stout woman. The material is printed green-and-white voile, trimmed with plain green voile. Long lines are given by the collar, which forms the two revers, bound in plain green. It is extended into two jabots falling to the bottom of the skirt. The blinding and center panel of plain green also form the lines which give apparent height to the figure. The sleeves have a long opening outlined in green and the plain cuffs are tied at the wrists. The belt is in front only, giving long rather than broad lines to the back. Pin tucks take up the extra fullness needed for looseness on each shoulder and in the center of the back at the collar. The length of the skirt is appropriate to the size and the build of the wearer and the design of the garment. A green horseshair hat adds the needed finish to the costume.

Bridesmaid's "Picture" Frock

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

are made of organdy this season.

It is a fact, to be chic one must dress utterly feminine this summer, indulging in frills and furbelows and all things lovely which make lovely women look lovelier. Wherever it follows that that which constitutes comely raiment for the June bridesmaid is typical of what will be worn during the coming months by all women of fashion at garden parties and other of midsummer's happy events.

About the most interesting thing to learn concerning modern frocks for modern bridesmaids and the 1923 summer girl is that skirts are longer, yes, longer, and waistlines are higher. Not that hemlines are lengthened all around in stereotyped fashion, not at all. This lengthening process is done with greatest artistry. If there is such a thing as temperamental hemlines, then they are "having their day" right now.

More about bridesmaids' frocks and others—it takes yards and yards and yards of material for their making, for "trea boufant" is the call of the mode. And concerning lace. Never such a lace season as this. Very, very often it is combined with chiffon, in some such entrancing way as here pictured. In this instance not only is it artfully inset with the skirt but it forms that most voguish item—the lace cape. Most of the dainty transparent frocks for summer are complemented with either a matching cape or a cape of exquisite lace.

And the ribbon-trimmed fine hair hat! It is just such as this model bridesmaid should be wearing.

MILK BEVERAGES

Milk may be used as the base of a great variety of hot and cold beverages that are about equal to milk itself in food value but are more pleasing to flavor to persons who do not like to drink plain milk, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Edgewood, children and others who need milk in large quantities enjoy having it served occasionally in unusual ways.

Vegetable Soup for Children

A mixed vegetable soup made with milk instead of water provides extra nutrition and is excellent as a soup for children, especially when they do not take as much milk in other ways as they should have. To make it the bureau of home economics recommends the following method:

- 1 quart milk
- 1/2 cupful of carrots, chopped
- 1/2 cupful of onion, chopped
- 1/2 cupful of celery, chopped
- 1/2 cupful of butter
- 1/2 cupful of flour
- 1/2 cupful of salt

Chop the vegetables very fine, cover, and cook in the butter until tender.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

The new and fashionable colors this spring have a grayish or hazy quality.

To clean white furniture use a stiff brush and warm salt water.

Read the advertisements for the shoes which will help you with the household chores that you dislike most.

Rubber stoppers are best to use in ammonia bottles. Ammonia has little effect on rubber but gradually destroys cork.

Woolen-headed kitchen utensils or the tops of the covers can be washed in the dish water.

CEDAR CHESTS PROTECTION AGAINST MOTHS

Experiments conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture have demonstrated the value of chests made of red cedar, Juniperus virginiana. However, to be effective these chests must contain in the body proper at least 70 per cent of three-quarter inch red cedar lumber. The attention of the public is called to the fact that chests made of neutral woods lined with a red cedar veneer are not guaranteed red cedar chests and cannot be depended upon to kill clothes moths.

Experiments have proved that clothes moths can develop from the egg, through the worm or larval stage, to the adult moth in chests lined with red cedar veneer. They cannot do this in genuine red cedar chests that are in good condition.

Vegetable Spoiling

"Life's a game of hidden poms," says Bill Bone, the neighborhood phlegm spouter, "and the good sports are the ones to take potluck."—Farm and Fire side.

IT IS written in the book of fashion that each and every bridesmaid in attendance at the June wedding must be "a picture." It is not going to be a difficult matter at all this season to carry out as order for the picture, for not only is the realm of bridesmaids, but in the feminine world at large, there is remembrance in the air when it comes to present-day fashion. So when pretty Miss Bridesmaid is shopping soon, she will be meeting Miss Summer Girl seeking the latest sort of big floppy brims and lovely hatery frocks, all lace and chiffon, or tulle, or tulle, or tulle, or organdy, for some of the most charmingly bewitching gowns to be seen

Fear God

If we fear God we need never fear the devil, for he is a conquered foe. Into Christ's victory let us enter by faith, and in the boldness of the Lion of the tribe of Judah we shall be as bold as a lion.—Marsh.

Sanctification

No Christian man has any right to attempt to create sanctification of character by hiding himself from the activities of every-day life.—G. Campbell Morgan.

Player of Bull Terrier Type

LITTLE has been said of Charlie Dressen, but nevertheless this little man starred at third base for the Reds last season. Critic the season of 1926, was not up to the infield play of the obscure Dressen in 1927. The midget had quite some record. He played in 144 games and batted 292, right on the rim of the coveted .300 circle. He made 38 two-baggers and 10 triples and batted in 55 runs and scored 78 himself. Not bad for a third baseman who batted at the top of the lineup and who led his league in fielding with .967 and who had 40 more assists than the great Pie Traynor.

Yes, Dressen developed into considerable of a player last year, even if they did not print a lot about him in the papers. Great third basemen are nearly always as scarce in the majors as hens' teeth. Last year Traynor, Lindstrom and Dressen alone stood out in the National league and neither Traynor nor Lindstrom were up to their 1926 play. Dugan used to star in the American but his bad knee handicaps him now. They have no other outstanding third sacker in the younger circuit. At least ten of the major clubs would welcome a third baseman who could field smartly and hit .300 or better. So it can be seen that good hot corner men, when they do come through, are worth their weight in gold.

Dressen came to the Reds in the spring of 1925 from St. Paul with a sensational minor league record behind him. They looked to him to star that year in Redland. But a sore arm made him practically useless to Hendricks' team during that season.

Last year Dressen's fielding ranged from steady to brilliant, and with his bat he knocked on the door of the .300 mark that houses only the elect among the men of the majors.

But after all, the best thing about Dressen is his spirit. He is the bull terrier type, and that is the pennant type of player when all is said and done. Five out of every seven minor leaguers who fall to make the major grade lack only this game and battlesome spirit in their struggle for stardom. Dressen has it, and if that arm does not fall him he may well give the one and only Pie Traynor a battle for his third base kingship in the big leagues this coming season.

Charlie Dressen.

Greatest Natural Lover of Children in Sports

Rud Rennie, a New York baseball writer, describes Babe Ruth as the "greatest natural lover of children in sport."

An instance of how Ruth's sympathies were aroused by children who through illness were never able to get to a ball game, was a visit the Babe paid to a bed-ridden boy in Birmingham this spring. The father of the boy, shabbily dressed, accosted Ruth near the local park and told him how much his son admired the Babe. After the game, Ruth went out to see the boy, autographed baseballs for him and cheered him up with a lengthy stay.

Sporting Squibs

United States, England, India and Argentina are the four strongest polo countries.

The Boston A. A. marathon, held annually, is the oldest event of its kind in the country.

Jack Kearns lost his suit to Dempsey. Maybe he was lucky to keep his shirt and shoes.

Taney is finding that uplifting the ring is like upflitting the stage—a rough, tough job.

Sprague Cleghorn of the Boston Bruins has been playing professional hockey for eighteen years.

Georgetown university football eleven will meet the Navy in 1929 and may encounter Princeton in 1930.

John Nixon, dead of Canadian thoroughbred horse trainers, recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday.

Clarence Crabbe, national mile swimming champion, announces that he will enter Yale university next fall.

A Brooklyn sharpshooter hit 107 birds out of a possible 200, which is calculated to make some of our motorists jealous.

If Taney got through "A Winter's Tale" ten times, of his own accord, we don't know what Dempsey could have done to hurt him.

For the first time in the history of track in Minnesota, an individual invitational track and field meet will be held at Elling this year.

Gene Tunney knows his Shakespeare. Does Shakespeare know his Tunney? That's a question for Oliver Lodge and Coma Doyle to answer.

Unique and Spectacular Career of Florida Boy

The early athletic career of Georgia Perrine, a Miami boy, at the University of Florida, has been both unique and spectacular. Entering school the middle of last year, Perrine promptly joined the frosh basket ball squad and won his numerals. Last fall George distinguished himself with the "Baby Gators" in football and won his first year numerals in that sport. Becoming a full-fledged sophomore in February of this year, George donned varsity basket ball togs, became regular center on the team, and was awarded his "F" at the close of the season.

Attaining a numeral, and a varsity letter, in the same year is an unprecedented achievement for an athlete at Florida, and then to top off his brilliant record, George was recently elected to captain the 1929 varsity basket ball team. Sophomores are, as a rule, seldom honored with a captaincy, and for Perrine, just a mid-sophomore to receive the election, is a distinct tribute to the ability and determination of the curly-topped Miami.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Clyde Burrows, concert baritone, is a former professional ballplayer and basket ball star.

Only 126 games are played in the Florida State league by each club, according to the schedule.

Bob Gill, veteran utility man, has been transferred to New Haven by Newark of the International league.

The New York Giants are understood to be very interested in Howard Burns, Harvard captain and outfielder.

Alvin Julian, coach of the Schuylkill college team, has been helping out with the catching of the Reading Keys.

During the season of 1928 Big Ed Walsh, of the Chicago White Sox, pitched to 1,000 batters—a major league record.

The Philadelphia Athletics have more postponed games to make up this year so far than any other American league team.

A city 3,500 years old has been uncovered in Asia Minor, and only a day or two ago a Detroit base runner was retired with the hidden ball trick.

After hitting safely in 15 straight games, Bill Cissell, the costly young shortstop of the White Sox, was finally stopped by Owen Carroll of Detroit.

Pitcher Joe Newton, recently released by Amarillo of the Western league, has been taken on by the Columbia Comers. Newton won 11 and lost 7 last season.

Sulphur Dell park, the baseball field of the Nashville club, in the Southern league, is located on a site where early settlers once built a fort to guard against Indian raids.

President Toole has received complaint of the treatment of wipers at Reading and police have been stationed in front of the bleachers as a precautionary measure.

The Cubs announce the purchase of Catcher Danny Murphy from Fort Worth of the Texas league. Murphy is a veteran receiver and was in the Coast league last season.

The late Hughie Jennings, who was noted for his "crowding" of home plate, established a record in 1904 when he was allowed to go to first base 40 times during the season after being hit by pitched balls.

Great Need of Church Is Increased Sense of Authority in the Ministry

By BISHOP FREEMAN (Protestant Episcopal).

A CHURCH without problems is undesirable. But it is miraculous that the church should persistently outlive the faults and follies of its exponents and yet hold the affection of men over the world. More aggressiveness is needed because of increased opposition from without and a development of supineness within the church. The thing that is conspicuously lacking in the ministry is its sense of authority. Affirmations and pronouncements based on certain words of Christ which once had incisive authority now are yielding to speculation and negation.

That there have been, within recent years, disclosures of inefficiency in the church, must give any thoughtful man pause. There is serious need for statesmanship and the employment of the best strategy in the present situation. There may be need for a new alignment of the forces, and possibly for a change in the personnel of our leaders. That there is need of consolidating the ranks and a simultaneous and aggressive forward movement is conspicuously evident.

The church needs authority and conviction. A day where every man indulges in personal liberty to such an extent that he does that which is right in his own eyes, independent of what its effect may be upon others, will mark the beginnings of disorder, and the break-up of those things that, by long experience, have proved indispensable to the orderly ways of decent and profitable living.

Men are groping for the truth, they are yearning for a new manifestation of spiritual power, they are insisting that speculation and negation shall give place to deep conviction born of experience. They will heed only him whose message and whose ministry bear the unmistakable evidences of a divine imprimatur.

Judaism Positive, Christianity Negative, in Their Attitude Toward Life

By RABBI NORMAN SALIT, New York.

The Hindu dreams of Nirvana, the world-soul, in which he hopes one day to lose himself forever in escape from this world of evil flesh and desire. The ascetic Christian believes this life to be preparation for an other world, better and purer.

Nietzsche and Schopenhauer preached the futility and sadness of life as we know it. Not so Judaism. Recognizing "the world to come," it nevertheless insists on the value of "this world."

There is pain here, but there are also blessings, for which we must thank God, and which we must endeavor to use rightly. There is vanity here, but there are also great tasks to be performed, which we must do in strength of soul and sanctity of spirit.

The entire elaborated complex of Jewish law, designed to cover almost every hour of the Jew's waking and sleeping, can be explained on no other basis than that a life worth so much legislation must certainly be worth living.

These other attitudes toward life, then, are negative. That of Judaism is positive. Perhaps that explains why the Jew has been able to live under persecution and oppression such as no other people has ever seen, and why in spite of everything he flourishes and is vital today.

Conflict of Interests Producing Dangerous Rift Between England and America

By DR. MINOT SIMONS, New York (Unitarian).

England and America are drifting into serious and definite opposition over the issue of the freedom of the seas, and war is more than probable unless an agreement is reached between the two countries.

It is Lincoln's spirit of frankness and sincerity which speaks both to England and to America the needed, word of the hour, "Come out into the open with the issue and settle it now while there is yet time."

The conflict between America's insistence upon the free and undisturbed right to navigate the sea in time of war and the British policy of controlling neutral commerce with its opponent has been the underlying cause for the practical nullification of the Washington conference, the failure of the Geneva conference, the launching of this country's huge naval program and the serious difficulties with England in 1918 and 1916.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's recent suggestion that the United States agree to recognize a blockade as punishment for an aggressor nation is the most constructive suggestion yet made in an effort to settle the problem.

Actions Refute Charges That Americans Are a Nation of "Dollar Chasers"

By DR. GUSTAV HESS, Mayor of Wiesbaden, Germany.

"Jingoism" and international jealousies are the foundation of the charges that the United States is a nation of "dollar chasers." I know America, for in the dark days that followed November 11, 1918, we had our officers and soldiers among us, as a part of the army of occupation. In such a position, conquerors and conquered, we could not help but come to know each other.

Dollar chasers? In Germany it is gold, in England it is sterling, in France it is d'or. It is the same wherever you go, but it is in America that we find a great heart, which fights and forgives, which forgives and forgets.

You poured out your wealth to the needy and oppressed, and we in Germany benefited. It is so vastly different from what we expected that it was almost beyond our understanding. Your reception of our Bremen flyers was a fine display of friendship.

Education, of Itself, Does Not Necessarily Mean a Greater Humanity

By REV. MORGAN PHELPS, Brooklyn (Presbyterian).

Modern America has a passion for education. The rapid multiplication of universities in Brooklyn is typical of the trend throughout the country. That is a cause for gratitude. But we are rushing into a blind alley if we suppose that just any sort of education will of itself mean a greater humanity.

Let us recognize that any education is worse than futile which does not create an appreciation of the goodness and truth and beauty which, when made flesh in human life, bear the most convincing testimony that we ever hear to the reality of God.

How Much Water Should Baby Get? A Famous Authority's Rule

By Ruth Brittain

Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight-pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast-fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle-fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often cures his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty-cent bottles contain thirty-five doses.

Even a Light Snack Would Satisfy Tramp

On the doorstep stood a very miserable-looking tramp, in his hand a tattered hat.

"Madam," he said, "can I do anything to help you? Is there any wood to be chopped?"

"No, I am afraid not," said the housewife who had answered his knock.

"Carpets to beat, p'raps?"

"No, thanks."

"Any gardening or other rough jobs to be done, then?"

"No, thanks, I don't think there's anything you can do today."

The wayfarer heaved a sigh of relief and his miserable expression disappeared.

"All right," he said cheerfully, "then p'raps I can have something to eat?"—London Answers.

The Matter With It

While old Riley Rezzidow of Petunia was standing near his fence a rambunctious car came tearing around the corner, rammed through the enclosure and tumbled it down on Mr. Rezzidow. Then the car stopped a moment and blew up.

"What in roaring thunder is the matter with that there daddled car?" demanded the gentleman, somewhat irritated.

"Aw, it heered some feller call this a spite fence," responded old Ben Bumpus, "and I reckon it wanted to take the spite out of it."—Kansas City Star.

New Wonder Wood

There is a new plastic wood that can be molded to any required form and will adhere to the clean, dry surface of wood, metal, or any other material. It dries rapidly and then adheres firmly, can be worked with ordinary wood-working tools, will take nails and screws, and paint, varnish and French polish. In fact, it behaves like ordinary wood, except that it will not warp, crack, blister or peel.

Not His Time to Die

Not everybody who starts to fall down an elevator shaft from the seventh story is lucky enough to land with only minor injuries on the fourth, but that is what happened to Michael O'Hara, twenty-four, of New York. He was working on the seventh floor of a building under construction when he fell down the shaft. He struck a wire cable in the shaft and caromed off on to the fourth landing, escaping with only abrasions and lacerations of the right hand.

Dangerous Varicose Veins Reduced or Money Back

This Simple Home Treatment Is Giving Amazing Results

Rush Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunched, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moon's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply as directed night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. No penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that area. Piles are quickly relieved and absorbed.

Let Tammany Test Its Strength

WE WELCOME the nomination of Al Smith — for it will give Tammany, the unrelenting, rule-or-ruin political organization of New York a chance to test its strength to its full capacity.

It has been worming its way into our free institutions with the expressed purpose of undermining them. Tammany cares for nothing above that of self-gratification to reach its own dear selfish ends.

In the nomination of Gov. Al Smith, it has visions of rule in higher circles in this government, which would mean that the aforesaid government would dance to the music of the Tammany Band, to the detriment of the people in general.

If Tammany is to rule this country, now is the time for America to know it.

Fear has been expressed by some that in the nomination of Smith, and a possible division in the Republican ranks, he might creep in, but there's no danger.

America will still be America, long after the smoke of the coming battle has blown away.

Tammany stands ready to fight the Constitution, to erect a throne for another Mussolini in this country — but it never will.

It stands for and upholds the most vicious and law-defying whiskey ring in this country — and as far as it can reach — defies the officers of the government to put it down.

Just recently, Surrogate James Foley, the Tiger of Tammany, decorated Al Smith to his newly-elected position of "Sachem" of this organization — which places him high up in Official Order — getting ready for Tammany propaganda in case of his election.

If Tammany is to rule this country, let's have it — if the people are still to rule, let that condition remain.

Improved Highways Pay Dividends

It is expected that 1928 road building activities will exceed all records.

20,000 miles of surfaced roads are to be built, and about 8,000 miles graded and drained. Throughout the country a multitude of plans have been laid for improving the existing highway systems as well as extending them.

A high degree of road service is assured, by the fact that about 240,000 miles of the total 288,000 in the state highway systems are this year to be maintained under state highway department's supervision.

Early estimates give the amount available for road expenditures as being much greater than last year. From the various sources, it is expected that highway funds will be upwards of $1,300,000.

These highway facts should please everyone. There is no such thing as road building expense, unless it be shortsightedness that constructs poor or inadequate roads. Every dollar put into a modern highway for building or widening, is an economy and a dividend-paying investment. — Manufacturer.

Minutes not Miles

Vacation plans are in order — dreams of leisurely days in the mountains — golf, swimming, riding, — and relaxation. Perhaps you would rather not include a telephone in your mental picture, but it is reassuring to know that when you are ready to leave there is almost certain to be a telephone at your destination, with "Long Distance" at your immediate service.

The telephone measures distance in minutes — not miles. Your trip may even then there need be no hesitancy or worry about the stress of affairs at home for "Long Distance" reaches beyond our borders across the sea. In the United States alone, the Bell system includes 12,500,000 telephones. You can talk from practically any point to any other.

Congress Adjourns, Leaving Boulder Dam Unsettled—Notes of Politics.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WITH a row in the senate that almost amounted to a riot, the first session of the Seventieth congress came to an end. The quarrel was an incident of the insistent efforts of Senator Johnson of California and others to get action on the Boulder dam bill. Senators Aahurst and Hayden, with the help of Senator Hiram, had conducted a successful filibuster for many hours and when the senate by a vote of 46 to 35 adopted a resolution for adjournment Johnson admitted defeat. "I have made the best fight of which I have been capable," he said, "I have been whipped; but, by heaven, gentlemen, there is another day, and somebody else may be whipped on that day."

As a matter of fact, Johnson won to a certain extent, for the Boulder dam measure remained before the senate as unfinished business and as such will have the right of way when congress meets in December.

One most important bill failed of passage because of the filibuster. This was the administration naval construction measure authorizing the building of fifteen 10,000 ton cruisers and one aircraft carrier. The army bill empowering the secretary of war to place educational institutions with arms manufacturers also went by the board. So both the navy and the army authorities are feeling rather sad. Two other big bills that were left stranded were the railroad consolidation bill, which was on the house calendar, and the Shipstead anti-injunction bill.

Among the thousand bills passed by congress in this session were the tax reduction bill, the flood control measure, the bill settling the alien property problem, that for development of the merchant marine, and the bill for utilization of the plants at Muscle Shoals, which last named was expected to meet a "pocket veto" by the President. Other measures enacted provide for the extension of the Mississippi barge line to its tributaries, reduce postal rates, renew federal aid road appropriations for two additional years, and authorize a comprehensive forestry research program.

President Coolidge vetoed thirteen bills, chief of them being the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure. Three bills were passed over the President's veto. One of these provided for the retirement of disabled emergency army officers, another increased pay of postal employees assigned to night work and the third increased allowances for fourth-class postmasters.

IF THE leaders of the Middle West farmers can bring it about, there will be a great demonstration by agriculturists of that region at the Republican convention in Kansas City, for the purpose of forcing the party to recognize the claims of the farmers in its platform. A committee of representatives from fourteen states has been named to go there and impress on the convention that the "corn belt uprising" is more than talk and represents a serious peril to the Republican prospects in November. The promoters of this movement are nearly all supporters of Lowden, Watson or Davis, and they are headed by M. J. Tobin of Vinton, Iowa. Talk continued of having thousands of farmers march on the convention, but the fact that real agriculturists are mighty busy with their harvesting at this time led to the belief that there would be more farm politicians than farmers in the proposed demonstration.

Naturally the Democrats were taking advantage of the situation, and Jesse Jones issued an invitation to the government to bring their troops to the Houston convention. "We invite them to Houston to help write that platform (farm relief), and we will invite them to Washington to help pass the legislation that affects them," he said. "Fortunately there is a better remedy than mere revolt—namely: a fresh allegiance to the Democratic party, which is the party of the people, not of the privileged class. Marching on the Republican convention at Kansas City will be of no avail."

Democratic platform builders realize that the party declaration on farm relief now overshadows in importance that on prohibition, and the party leaders are also considering the advisability of selecting a middle westerner to be running mate with Al Smith. Among the men talked of for this honor are Gilbert Hitchcock of Nebraska, Governor Bulow of South Dakota, Senator Hawes of Missouri and Senator Kendrick of Wyoming.

JUST before it adjourned the house of representatives decided that it should investigate Presidential and congressional campaign expenditures and a committee of five was appointed and given $20,000 to conduct the inquiry. The members named are Leitch of New Jersey, Newton of Minnesota and Nelson of Maine; Republicans; and Ragon of Arkansas and Black of New York, Democrats. The three Republicans are credited with being pro-Hoover and some senators thought the appointment of the committee was a move to help the secretary of commerce in his campaign. This was indignantly denied by Chairman Leitch, who said he would not tolerate any favoritism in the inquiry.

THROUGHOUT the week earnest efforts were made to find General Nobile and his crew and the Italia which disappeared in the Arctic wastes on the way back to Spitzbergen, after scuttling on an SOS call by radio. The base ship Clita di Milano made short searching trips from King's Bay, and landed two parties of Italian Alpine chausseurs along the north coast of Spitzbergen. The weather was extremely unfavorable for the search. Meanwhile Lieut. Lutzow Holm, Norwegian flyer, was on his way to Spitzbergen with a naval hydroplane for the purpose of making an aerial hunt for the missing explorers; and other relief expeditions were in preparation.

Disaster overtook the national elimination balloon race which started from Pittsburgh, Pa. Soon after the fourteen big bags took the air a terrific storm arose which beat down all but three of the entries. Paul Evert was killed when lightning struck the army balloon No. 3, and Walter Morton, aid on the Goodyear V, jumped to his death when a bolt hit that bag. W. T. Van Orman, pilot of the Goodyear V, made a parachute leap and suffered a broken leg.

CHINESE Nationalists captured the important city of Paotingfu in their progress toward Peking, and on Thursday Marshal Chang Tso-lin ordered his troops on the Peking-Hankow railroad to fall back to Luliho, only twenty miles southwest of the capital. At Chang's headquarters it was asserted that the Northerners had not been defeated and that the retirement was due to the defection of the Eighth corps. Information reaching Tokyo was that Chang had decided to withdraw from Peking and that part of his troops already were moving to Mukden, Manchuria. The Japanese believed the Southerners would occupy Peking very soon and that peace would then be restored because, they thought, the Nationalists would not go north beyond the Great Wall. Earlier in the week the Japanese Admiral Mutsaers towed an order in both sides forbidding any naval engagement within twenty miles of specified northern China ports.

That the Nationalist government intends to retain Hankang as the capital even after Peking is taken was indicated when its political council voted to create a branch of the council at Peking. This is in accord with the known wishes of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, but does not please the northern elements of the Nationalist party.

SERIOUS anti-Italian outbreaks occurred in Yugo-Slavia because the government was insisting on ratification of the Nettuno treaty giving Italians the right to own land in Dalmatia within thirty miles of the Adriatic. This part, in the opinion of the opponents, means that Italy would eventually control the entire Dalmatian coast. The Serb police did their best to suppress the rioters, but much blood was shed and Mussolini and the Italian flag were grossly insulted. The Italians in Italian Dalmatia were not backward in retaliation, especially in Zara where the Serb consul was beaten severely. The Italian minister at Belgrade was instructed to present a note to the Yugo-Slav government "requiring urgent satisfaction" for the attacks on Italians.

BY ORDER of Smetona and Waldemar, dictators of Lithuania, that country has been given a new constitution, the French parliamentary system being radically changed. The President is to be elected for seven years instead of three, and parliament and the President are empowered to edit laws, confirm the budget and make international treaties. The cabinet is responsible to parliament but is obliged to resign only after a three-fifths negative vote, which also is necessary to amend the constitution. Until now, a majority vote was sufficient to oust the cabinet. The constitution also declares that Vilna is the capital of Lithuania. Vilna is now held by Poland.

MUSSOLINI is going steadily forward with his establishing of Italy's claims as the chief Mediterranean power. Last week he and Fuad Bey signed the treaty of conciliation, arbitration and neutrality between Italy and Turkey, and just before that a conference of the powers in Paris conceded Italy's claims to participation on an equal basis in the government of Tangier. The treaty with Turkey, which was strongly opposed by Moscow, is expected to give Italy important commercial advantages in the Near East; and Turkey is freed from fears of Italian aggression on the coast of Anatolia.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, following custom, delivered the Memorial day address on the Gettysburg battlefield before 25,000 persons gathered in the national cemetery there. Standing near the spot where President Lincoln made the immortal address 65 years ago, Mr. Coolidge uttered an earnest plea for the outlawing of war, warmly indorsing the proposals on that line made by Secretary of State Kellogg to the great powers. Though not decrying measures for national protection, and upholding what has been done and is being done by our armed forces in Haiti, Nicaragua and China, the President developed at considerable length his theory that his economic policies are more productive of preparedness for war than is the provision of large armaments. He expressed satisfaction in the fact that the United States always has been preparing, not for war, but for peace. In discussing government he took a slap at congress and its passage of the McNary-Haugen farm bill.

"The chief temptations to go beyond the bounds which the people have set are in legislatures," the President said. "In their desire to take some action which they conceive to be in the public interest, they often-times manifest a disposition to exceed their constitutional authority. Such action is a usurpation of power. Responsibility for it cannot be evaded by the weak plea to let the law be passed and the courts can decide its constitutionality."

Returning to Washington, Mr. Coolidge as president of the American Red Cross, laid the corner stone of that organization's new building dedicated to the sacrifice and services of American women in the World War. Chief Justice Taft presided at the ceremony and Secretary of War Davis accepted the memorial on behalf of the nation.

MERGER last week of the Dodge Brothers, Inc., and the Chrysler corporation created another huge corporation in the automobile field. The new combination has a present market valuation of about $50,000,000, and this is said to be but one step in the expansion program of Walter P. Chrysler.

CRUISE ISLAND ledge, on the Brazil coast 80 miles from Superior, Wis., has been selected by President Coolidge as the summer White House. The cruise was offered him by the heirs of the late Henry Clay Frick. It comprises several thousand acres, but the ledge is on a very small island close to the mainland.

An Evening With the Spirits

By RING LARDNER

To the Editor: The other P. M. they was a bunch of us up in Yonkers talking about what terrible spirits you get around N. Y. now days and I of the birds in the party name Herb says he knew where they was some beautiful spirits and we said lead us to it and he took us down to 58 st. and 5 ave, and they was a doctor's name on the door and I said to myself this guy will probably give us a prescription that will knock us for a goal. But the doc took us in a inside room and introduced us to a lady whom they all call Medie, witch I learn was short for Medium so you see the kind of spirits we got and the kind we thought we was going to get was 2 different kinds of spirits. Medie was a Medium rare blonde lady that could lose 80 or 40 pounds and still talk back to Gene Tunney.

Well, pretty soon Medie and the doc and our party went into still another room yet where they was about 20 other guests mostly female that looked like the end of a perfect wash day. A alma mater of Oberlin college sat me to look at a kind of a close line that was stretched across the room and on it was a bunch of toys such as dolls and cooties and etc. witch Medie had told her was for the baby spirits to play with when they got cross.

We was all put around in a circle like Yale learning their signals in the 4th quarter. I set next to Jack and his Mrs. from Yonkers and the rest of we skepticals was scattered around amidst the believers.

"Is there somebody here name B?" says Medie so I says yes it was me. "This is Edward" says the spirit and Medie ask me if I had a brother Edward and I says yes. So Medie says "This is your brother Edward that was killed in a accident a long while ago wasn't he?" So I says yes 3 yrs. ago. Then Edward said Hello there and I said hello Edward how are you and he said hello there and I couldn't refute it so he left the field with the last word and give his megaphone to a Irish comedian.

"Oh, here's Pat O'Brien" says the doc. "He is a funny Irishman that is with us every night, get his brogue." So then Pat told a Irish story that died even longer ago than Edward, but you don't feel like razing the spirit so everybody laughed the right amount.

Before the darkness had fell I had noticed a bird setting over to the left of me that was a countryman of Nora Holmer and now all of a sudden a spirit spoke to him in Norsk and he answered back in the same strain and I never understood Norway before but as soon as these birds begin to talk I knew they was saying hello Knuthello there and etc. Pretty soon Medie turned to the live ski jumper and told him his mother was going to die. "She was all right the last time I seen her" says Ellert. "Well she is going to die" says Medie and personally I think she was right as Ellert was around 45 yrs. old and when a man gets that age their mother is seldom never trying out for the Vassar basket ball team.

"Here's a beautiful spirit, who does he want" says Medie next. "He says dear boy."

"Lots of people call me that" says Herb the guy that had brought us there at $2.00 a crack. "Yes it is your father and he says he was on the river once in a boat when he was a little boy and was saved from drowning, and he says something about a dog. Did a dog ever swim out and save your father from drowning?"

"Well no" says Herb after a terrible pause. "But a dog barked and roused up the neighbors and they come to the rescue."

"There that's evidential" says the doc and several female voices says wonderful.

"Shush" says Medie "Is there some one here that lost their wife?"

"I did" says Jack from Yonkers. "Hello sweetheart" says the spirit. "Hello Kate" says Jack.

"Hello sweetheart" says the spirit. "She must of forgot my name" says Jack in my ear.

"She is a beautiful spirit" says Medie.

A long about this time I got restless for a smoke and begin rattling a cigarette paper and a new spirit whanged me on the knee cap with a megaphone and says what have you got there.

"That's Bright Eyes talking" says Medie. "She wants to know what you have got."

"Tell her I got a sore knee" I says. "Be serious" says Bright Eyes.

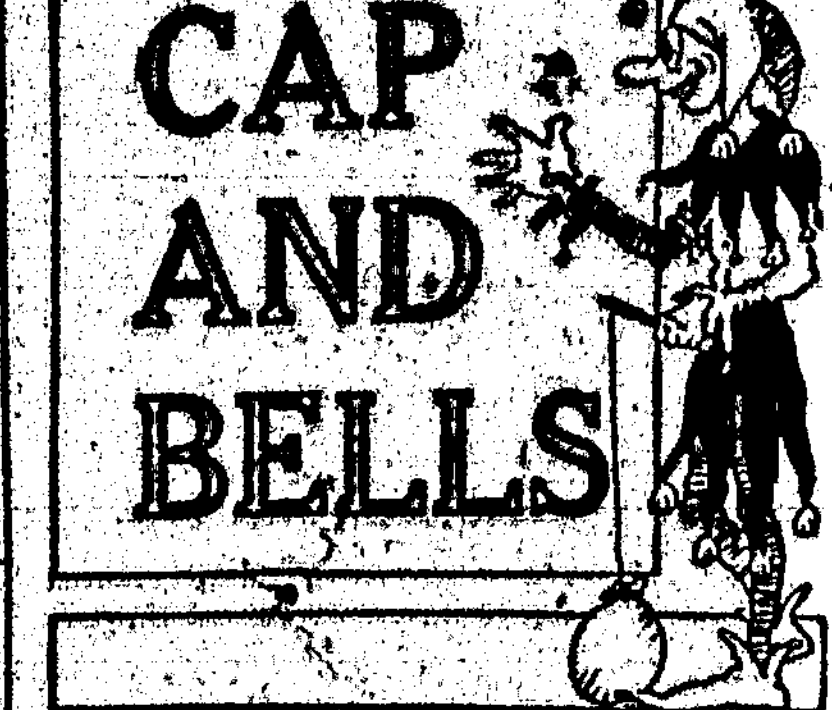

Well they was a lot more of them that give us all the latest news from Over There like hello dear and hello there and hello mamma and hello Medie came to and turned up the lights and we all averted us to 58 st.

"Well" says Herb. "Did you have a brother that got killed 3 yrs. ago?"

"No" I says "But I knew a man that has a brother Edward that ought to of been killed 3 yrs. ago but what about that dog story?"

"Well" he says "Part of it is true. We use to have a dog once and he use to bark."

Then Mrs. Jack from Yonkers belted Jack out and we all thanked Herb for taking us to where they was nothing but beautiful spirits and he says if you want the best kind you can go to a Medie crib.

THE RETURN of ANTHONY TRENT

STORY FROM THE START

Anthony Trent returns to New York after nearly four years' absence. Once known as the master criminal, Trent is going straight. The purser accuses Trent of jumping overboard from the Foxtania at Liverpool, but is disappointed when Trent shows no surprise. He learns his friend, Capt. Frank Sutton, is in Sing Sing. At New York Trent is startled to find somebody occupying his home. The stranger is Sutton Campbell, the brother of his best friend, who is serving ten years in prison. Trent is asked by Campbell Sutton to force Payson Grant to a written confession, having crookedly obtained all of Captain Sutton's possessions and later married his wife. Trent, after long hesitation, consents. Trent starts on a campaign to accomplish the downfall of Payson Grant. He learns from an old friend, Clarke, that Captain Sutton has escaped from Sing Sing, and also learns that Captain Sutton has no brother.

"Wait!" Campbell Sutton cried anxiously. It was an anxiety dictated by fear of physical punishment, Trent decided. He was maddened by the remembrance of the many confidences he had made to this man who had gained his shelter under false pretenses. "Put up your hands," Trent cried. Then he hit him with the strength and skill of the trained boxer.

His powerful left landed squarely on the nose of his opponent, on that proud and high-arched nose which reared itself arrogantly from the yellow and unhealthy face. Never had his hand telegraphed such a queer sensation to its affecting brain. The impression was that of hitting something soft and pliable, something that distinctly was not of the osseous character of the bridge of the human nose.

Too astonished to follow up the blow, he glanced at his knuckle. Addressing to them was a material like putty and a yellow greasy stain. He did not even attempt to stop the man who had called himself Campbell Sutton when he fled along the passage and locked the door of the bathroom. The masquerader had a false face as well as a false name! He would probably be driven to desperate measures now. The bathroom barricade could not be held indefinitely. The situation was rather absurd. Was he to break in the bathroom door and run the risk of being shot through the panels, or sit waiting until sleep or hunger acted as his allies?

Trent rapped on the door, standing aside from it so that no shot could hit him.

"Wait," said the voice. "I'll be out in a minute if you'll promise to talk this over before attacking me."

"All right," Trent said.

A few minutes later he heard the bathroom door unlatched. Firm steps came along the corridor. Anthony Trent looked up to see the face of his old adjutant, Captain Sutton, peering through the door. Sutton stood there a moment in doubt of his reception.

"Trent," Sutton said, "I owe you a thousand apologies."

"Yes," Trent said, without smiling. "I think you do."

It was the Captain Sutton he had known so well with very slight physical changes. Now that the disgusting grease-paint and built-up nose had gone there was the same kindly face and shrewd, humorous eyes. There was no resemblance to the Campbell Sutton he had grown to detest.

"I was going to tell you," Sutton cried. "I'll swear I was on the point of it a hundred times, old man."

"But you didn't."

"I lost my nerve. I've been nearly three years in Sing Sing, almost caught a score of times, and I sort of leaned on my feeble brother. He gave me courage."

Trent looked at Sutton, and his face expressed concern.

"Your eye is discolored."

"Yes," Sutton agreed, "you have a wicked left. Think what would have happened if my nose had been genuine."

Trent sat down and rocked with laughter. He was relieved enormously to find Sutton safe when he had thought of him as one in constant dread of the police. And gone was the obstinate determination to work with Campbell Sutton. He took Sutton's hand in his own and shook it a half-minute.

"You got to know all about it," he said. "I mean about the break from Sing Sing and your nasal transformation."

He forced Sutton into the chair the execrable Campbell had pre-empted and opened a new box of cigars.

"Ridgway, president of the Society for the Disbandment of Diet, never had any difficulty in seeing me. I imagine he stood well with the authorities. I see you know about the part he played. It was a shameful account in a way, but I didn't hurt him. I had studied him for a long time. I knew how he walked and talked. I went up the steps to the Operating and took in a machine at a moving picture house. There was a man asleep next to me. I left Ridgway's hat and coat his. I got out before he woke up; but it was already dusk, and I walked down to the river not ten blocks from the prison and took a boat and rowed over to the Jersey side. I exchanged Ridgway's clothes and the sleeper's hat for a sweater, khaki shirt and pants. Then I climbed on to the top of the Pillsades, and when morning broke I was in Fort Lee. I was near a moving picture studio. A number of extras were being engaged and I was assumed by a casting director to be one of the applicants. I got a pay check that night for five dollars, but it was worth a good bit more than that.

"There was an old fellow there who was making up. It looked wonderful to me. I got him to make me up. He said I had a bum nose, but that with a little putty he could make me look wonderful. He was building a character nose for himself, and I watched

At First Natica Sutton Took Little Notice of Him.

I was an extra there for five days and when I left I had grease powder, spirit gum, liners and more than all—nose putty and cheek pads. I practiced in your bathroom."

"But how did you get in here?" Trent demanded.

"Your name was in the telephone directory. I tried the trick door but couldn't open it. As to getting in from the house in the next street, you'll remember that Devil figured it out. I didn't think to have the luck to find gas, water and light on. I don't see why now."

"My housekeeper comes here three days a month to clean up. I had overlooked the ease with which the place could be entered. You'd better stay on here. I'll stock the place completely, so you needn't go out. I don't think even those night prowls are safe."

"Where will you be?"

"Getting acquainted with Payson Grant."

Sutton spoke apologetically. "I played the part of my brother in rather a brutal fashion, I'm afraid. I questioned your knowledge of those top-notchers because I was genuinely surprised. And more than that, I was delighted because I saw an opening wedge which not even the most brilliant intellect or sophisticated charm could win alone. It has always been one of my great trials that my wife would not make the sort of a home I wanted. I'm fond of children, for example. I like to dine at home more often than I dine out. She'd rather a man be decadent than domestic. But I gave her a square deal as well as I knew how, and I saved Payson from prison."

"That interests me," Trent said. "I want facts to work on where he is concerned. What did he do?"

"I thought I had many good friends. I imagined they would instantly distinguish between the false tales he spread about me and the truth. I used to believe that a man's character would speak for him when he was miles away, or after he was dead." Sutton shook his head. "In my case, at all events, I was wrong. He spread the report that I had been cruel to her. Instead of disbeliever him they praised my wife for the brave face she had worn under my brutality. "When I first realized what Grant had done to me I was insane. I'm grateful to whatever it was prevented my being a murderer. That killing rage has gone, but don't think I've forgiven."

"How long did you save Payson Grant from prison?" Trent asked.

"After his brokerage firm failed I took him into the office more from friendship than belief in his ability. I was executor for the daughter of my old friend Mosby. There was a great deal of real estate to look after and an enormous amount of detail. I should have had to engage a clerk to attend to it. It was an opportunity to give Payson something to do and let him feel he was earning it."

It was another instance, Trent saw, of a man being punished for rare and kindly instincts. Sutton had done the thing delicately, generously, and had suffered. Trent began to chafe at the necessary delay before he could cross swords with the traitor.

"He stole a lot of my wife's money. I replaced it. Rather weakly, I believed in Payson's repentance. Your sentimentalism can always be led into folly of this sort. Pity with him is never contempt. Looking back on the thing I can see that Payson began to hate me when I refused to take him into partnership. He argued that if I really had forgiven him and forgotten his folly—he called it no more than that—I would take him into the firm. I had no children and no prospect of any. He began, by inference, to call me hard and miserly. He enlisted my wife on his side. I understand that he convinced her he could make two dollars grow where I had been content with one. In its ultimate analysis this meant that for every gorgeous gown I had bought her she could, had I been more capable, have bought two. For every one pearl, two pearls; and so on, ad infinitum."

"And of course you didn't go into the facts of the case and point out what a swine he was." There was temper in Trent's voice. "And I'll bet you didn't even let her know about those stolen funds."

"He had my solemn word about that after I had forgiven him. I believed in that new leaf he turned over so ostentatiously."

"Look here," said Trent, after an interval of silence. "In the guise of an elder brother you threatened me. You said unless I undertook this thing you'd denounce me to the police. We must understand one another. Is that still your attitude?"

Sutton shook his head.

"No," he said slowly. "I've no right to enlist you in anything that may get you into jail. In France you stoned for whatever laws you broke. Do as you like; I'll never say a word."

Trent put his hand on the other man's shoulder affectionately.

"You know damned well I'm going through with it."

CHAPTER IV

The Dread of the Uncaptured.

Payson Grant was one of those men in whom the seed of dishonesty might never have come to flower had not his desires outrun his fortune. He was born to the habit of spending money, and before the panic of 1907 he made enough for his wants. After a fruitless endeavor to make the ends meet his needs as a bond salesman, he went to his close friend, Frank Sutton, and obtained a position. At first Natica Sutton took little notice of him. His brilliant good looks were nullified by his lack of fortune. She had experienced sufficiently what lack of money meant in that year her father was striving to avert ruin.

Frank Sutton had been most generous. He had aided John Barstow to get out of the mess creditably, and bought him a small estate in Virginia where he could hunt and fish in freedom from catastrophes manufactured in Wall street. And with Sutton's increasing wealth she bankered after the laurels of the society hostess. Sutton's friends were mainly of the solid commercial classes who allowed their women to spend money, but themselves rebelled at dressing for dinner in their own homes.

It was not difficult for Payson Grant to comprehend Natica's dissatisfaction. He enlisted on her side when his gain as an ally seemed of little moment. He knew she would presently come to rely on him as her chief abettor in this struggle she was waging with her husband.

Lesson in Neatness Calculated to Last

"Hey! Pick up that cloth you used in wiping your shoes!" commanded sister of brother early the other evening.

"O, don't bother me. I'll be back later," he said as he hurried out of the house.

Time passed. Quite a bit of time passed ere he came home, and in the early hours of the morning he stumbled up the steps to the front door. A key was slipped into a keyhole; a door swung open silently; and just as silently he entered. He almost lost his balance when a rug managed to place itself in his way. He decided that he just would have to see where he was going, and thereupon did he turn on the lights in the reception hall.

There before him was a sign with the words: "A Big Surprise" and an arrow pointing the way up a flight of stairs. When he got to the top of the staircase another arrow pointed down a hall.

Upstairs and down, through rooms and halls, and finally an arrow pointed to the kitchen. He entered the kitchen and an arrow pointed to a closet. He opened the door to find the last sign of all: "Now, will you please pick up the cloth you used?"

He did.—Springfield Union.

Odd Wedding Custom

A smock marriages is a wedding at which the bride wears nothing but a smock or shift. Generations ago it was widely believed in New England that if a woman were married in this manner she was freed from liability for her past debts. In England it was supposed that the smock protected the bridegroom instead of the bride from creditors.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Jumping Frog Contest at Angels Camp

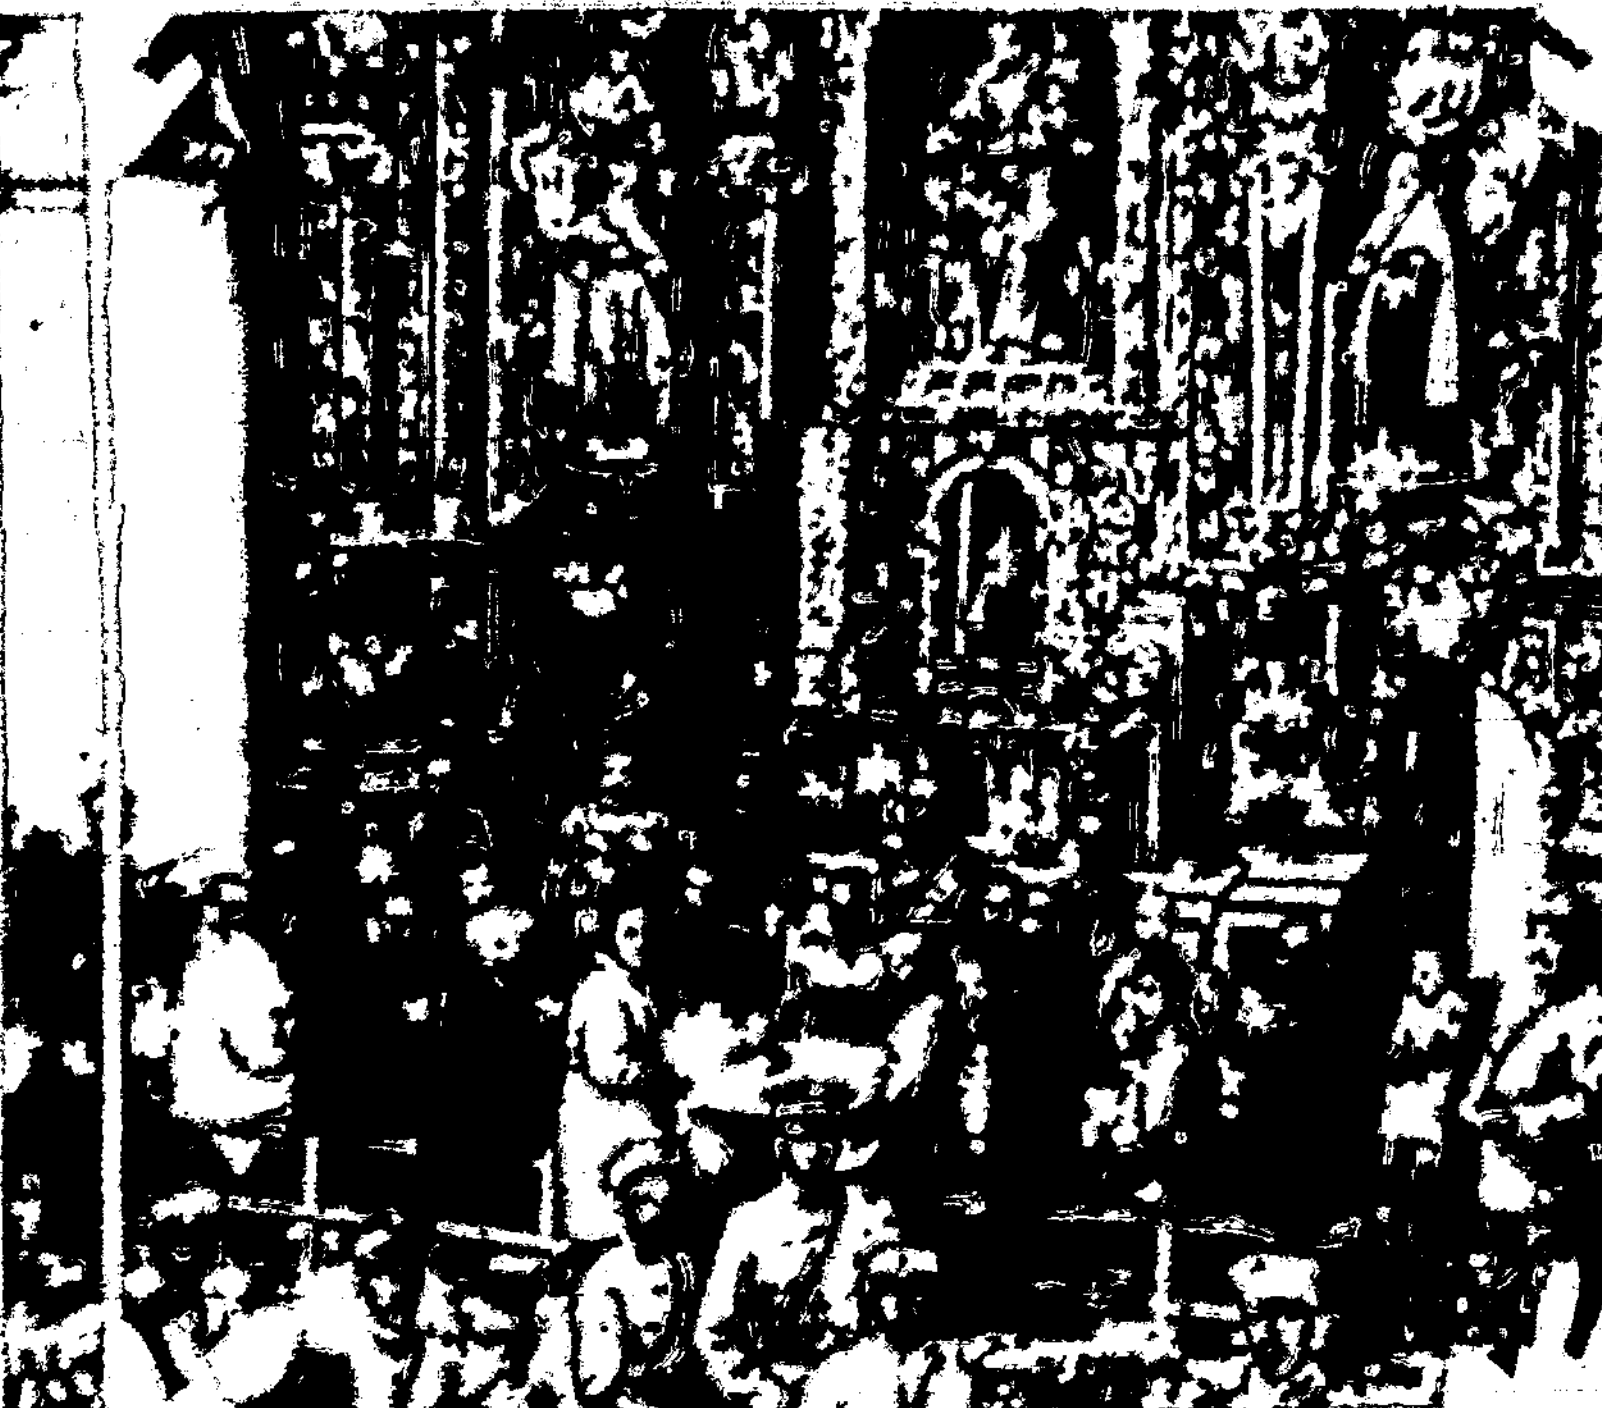

Here is a portion of the large crowd that clustered about the frog leaping quarters at Angels Camp, famous old gold mining town in the California Sierras. From all parts of the state the leaping frogs were brought to compete in the most unusual event. "Jumping Frog of San Joaquin" (inset) defeated his fifty competitors by leaping a distance of 3 feet 9 inches.

Sold Wool

Estanislao Belio, wool grower from north of here, was in this week, trucking in his annual clip, which he sold at a good price to a Boston firm. He brought his last load in on Wednesday, after which he took Mrs. Belio on a trip to Socorro and vicinity. He has had a very successful year and lost but few lambs during the early cold snap. His wool was somewhat lighter than last year's clip, but brought a higher price.
