

Eagle Creek Murmurings

(By L. A. Whitaker)

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kelley, daughter Ruth and niece, Miss Alene Thompson came up Saturday and stayed over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley came in Sunday. M. U. will brand his calves and then will return for the rest of the summer.

J. B. French, daughter Evelyn and Miss Mary Dingwall drove up Sunday to spend the day.

L. A. Whitaker was up as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lee, and Fred Braun of Tucumcari spent Sunday at Eagle Creek. On their return trip they drove over the road that Billy Ferguson is building from Alto to Ruidoso and they report it as being a pretty drive with all its beautiful scenery. Mr. Ferguson has now completed two miles and all the people in this section will be glad when it is finished.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Graham of El Paso are in the Blaney cabin for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dingwall were up this week for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Sale and sister, Miss Grace Jones, are leaving this week for Eagle Creek to spend their vacation.

Mrs. M. J. Neel, wife of M. J. Neel, Game Warden and Supt. of Eagle Creek, and children arrived this week from Albuquerque to join Mr. Neel and are located in their permanent home at the Lodge.

The First Road Across the Malpais

It is predicted by men engaged in state publicity work that the Carrizozo-Socorro road, contract for which was let by the highway department yesterday, will become a great attraction for tourists and local people seeking the unusual.

This road traverses a country where wild horses still roam. Deer are in abundance here, many being seen daily by the engineering crew who located the road.

The coal mines at Carthage and Tokey will also be points of interest. Other mines, including a gold placer project, will probably be opened up with the completion of the road and enhanced haulage conditions. The placer project contemplates using the Rio Grande waters.

Perhaps the greatest interest center of all will be the Great Lava Flow, famed in history and legend. Eugene Rhodes, dean of New Mexico story writers, states that in the early days the soldiers would chase the marauding Apaches to this weird formation and then were forced to march around it to the far side while the Indians crossed over by paths known only to themselves. When the soldiers arrived on the other side, the Indians would cross back. The first road across this Malpais was built by the soldiers to combat this feature of Indian cunning.

Ft. Stanton News

Fort Stanton won from the strong Carlsbad baseball team here last Sunday before a large crowd by the score of 5 to 4. The winning run was scored in the 9th inning after two were out. The game was very fast and well played throughout. Ward started the game for the Cavemen, but was taken out in the 7th and relieved by Bullock. Flores pitched a good game for the locals, but had a bad inning in the third when the invaders made all their runs, hits accounting for two runs and errors accounting for two more.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Carlsbad	0	0	4	0	0	0	0	0	0
Ft. Stanton	0	0	0	0	1	2	1	0	1

Three base hits: Fesler, O'Connor, Parker. Two base hits: Cavanaugh, Flores. Base on errors: Cavemen 2; Stanton 2. Hit by pitched ball: Nesbit and Pitts. Struck out by Ward, 3; Bullock, 3; Flores, 6. Time of game, 2 hours. Umpires: Herbert and Howard.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Tappan and family will return Monday from a six weeks' motor trip throughout the east and south, ending with an extended visit with relatives at Johnson City, Tenn.

Dr. and Mrs. Wooley and daughter Geraldine returned home Tuesday evening after an extended visit in San Francisco.

The Misses Rowen and Shoff gave a farewell party at the nurses' home Tuesday night for Frank Sullivan, Jr., who has been visiting his father here for the past three weeks. Mr. Sullivan left Thursday for his home in Toronto, Canada.

Dr. Nesbit, attached to the Medical Reserves of the Seventh Cavalry at Fort Bliss, Texas, will leave for that Post Saturday for a two weeks' training.

Messrs. W. C. Hendren and J. Gentry spent last Saturday at Roswell. They reported that the new Buicks are mighty good looking cars.

Mickey McNeff is sporting a new model Ford Coach.

Several from here attended the prize dance at White Oaks last Saturday night.

Dr. and Mrs. Murdock spent last Sunday on the Ruidoso.

Miss Lois Shore arrived Wednesday from Minneapolis, Minn., to take the position of Assistant Dietician here.

Winners of Prizes

The prize dance at White Oaks last Saturday night was a delightful affair. A great many people from all over the county attended. The ladies' prize was won by Mrs. Cora Barber of Nogal and the gentlemen's prize went to Mr. Hurst of Alamogordo. Bill Wettstein and his syncopators furnished the music and received numerous compliments on the same.

The opening dance at Nogal will be on Saturday, August 11. A piano has been installed in the hall and Bill Wettstein and his syncopators will be there to give you your money's worth.

Smith's Record Shows He Voted Wet

New York, July 30—Wm. Allen White, editor of the Emporia, Kansas, Gazette, Monday night made public the result of the two weeks' study made for him of the New York Assembly Journal to show the record of Gov. Al Smith as it affects the saloon and the allies of the saloon; made him assemblyman during the first dozen years of his political career.

The record shows, Mr. White says, that as a member of the assembly, Gov. Smith favored the old-time wide-open, untrammeled, unregulated saloon, and voted against the measures introduced for the purpose of putting restrictions upon it.

"Gov. Smith's record on the saloon a dozen or twenty years ago is chiefly as important today in view of the fact that he defied the platform of the democratic party, and promised to introduce a liquor plan of his own," Mr. White said. "His record shows what his idea was of a good saloon when he was a Tammany assemblyman."

"Then, we may assume, that this model saloon which Al, if he hasn't changed his mind since 1903, the saloon which he would restore to the American people would be open at 5 o'clock in the morning till far into the night; could be within 200 feet of schools and churches; could be operated by a man who could not be ousted for violating the law if he could control the judge before whom he was tried and get a suspended sentence." — Albuquerque Journal.

Visitors from Corona

Mrs. Ney Servis and little daughter of Corona spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Crowe. They left for home, accompanied by Mrs. Crowe, who after a return visit at the Servis home, returned here Wednesday. Mrs. Servis is a sister to Mrs. Crowe.

Keep in mind the opening dance at Nogal on Aug. 11, by Bill Wettstein & his music.

Windmills and One Thing and Another

Since the publishing of the article on the courthouse windmill last week, there has been considerable oil sold to windmill owners and less noise escaping from them than has been known for a time. One citizen we know of, was approached by a neighbor, who on handing him a can of hard grease, asked to just try it on his windmill and see how it would improve the tune. We have much wind in this country and consequently, many windmills; but our dealers also have all kinds of oil and if used plentifully, we will soon have a noiseless town and a plentiful supply of sleep. — Ask D. LaVellee of the City Service Station and Mike Barnett of the B & B Service Station. They have the goods!

Visitors from Arabela

Judge Elerdo Chavez and Ramon Ramirez were here from Arabela Monday, transacting business at the courthouse and returning home in the evening.

Miss Elizabeth Such left Wednesday for Columbus, Ohio, where she will make her home with her brother, Fred W. Brockway and wife for the coming fall and winter and will attend school at that place, returning here next spring.

Entertained Bridge Club

Mrs. W. C. McDonald entertained the Carrizozo Bridge club at her home yesterday afternoon from 2:30 to 5, after which, the hostess served delicious refreshments.

In from the Indian Tank

Mr. and Mrs. John Gallacher, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallacher, daughter Jane and mother, Mrs. Jane Gallacher were visitors during the past week from their ranches north of here. They have had good rains of late in their localities.

Summer Concert Crystal Theatre

J. C. Burkett, Mgr.

The public was given a treat at the Crystal Theatre Wednesday night, when the Summer Concert, mentioned in display form on our front page last week, was given to a crowded house.

The Carrizozo Summer Concert Orchestra, composed of local high school students, and augmented by Mrs. Louis J. Adams at the piano and Marshall Beck on the Trombone, and the Misses Rhea and Beatrix Boughner on their Deagan Xylophone, under the capable direction of J. C. Burkett, pleased a big audience.

The Misses Boughner, aside from their regular parts in the orchestra, gave several splendid duets, "Kiss Me Again" and "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers." Marshall Beck gave an incidental solo during the rendition of the popular song, "Ramona," all of which brought forth thunders of applause from the big audience.

Due credit is given to the orchestra as a whole, but we make special mention of the above numbers on account of the players being special additions to the summer organization.

The picture, "The Resurrection," followed the Concert, ending an evening of both pleasure and profit to the patrons.

Back from California

Mrs. J. E. Farley and grandchildren, who have been visiting the I. D. Baker family at Long Beach, Calif., for the past three months, arrived home the first of this week.

Mr. Ziegler on Purchasing Trip

Albert Ziegler of Ziegler Brothers' General Store will leave tomorrow for different points in the east where he will make purchases for his fall and winter stock of ladies' wearing apparel and gent's furnishing goods.

This trip is made twice a year, one during the first week in August, the other shortly after the first of each year. He is one of the first dealers to visit the eastern markets and by so doing, he is enabled to have first chance at the latest styles in up-to-date goods before the stock is broken and it also gives him the advantage of buying at better prices, which he, in turn, gives back to his patrons in the way of saving to them. He will be absent for several weeks.

Will Make Carrizozo Their Home

Wm. L. Auxer, Assistant Project Engineer of the Highway Department, Mrs. Auxer and son Wm., Jr., are here, and will make Carrizozo their home until the Carrizozo-Socorro highway project is finished. Mr. Auxer and his superior, Mr. Brown, Project Engineer, will be on the job to see that the work is carried out according to the provisions of the contract.

Visiting the Bogles

The Misses Margaret and Ruth Dunn of Lawton, Okla., nieces of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bogle arrived this morning to visit with their aunt and uncle at their home in Coyote for several weeks.

Friday—Lionel BARRYMORE and Jacquelin Gadston in "THE THIRTEENTH HOUR," a BIG Mystery Play, with an All-Star cast; also "THE HAUNTED ISLAND," serial.

Saturday - Monday—CLARA BOW in "ROUGH HOUSE ROSIE," a Paramount Feature Comedy.

Tuesday and Wednesday—You'll never stop laughing when you see "THE KELLYS AND COHENS IN PARIS," an Irish and Jewish Comedy that is a S-C-R-E-A-M!; also "Felix, the Kat, Comedy. Adm., 20 and 40c.

Thursday and Friday—RAMON NAVARRO, the star of "Ben Hur" in "THE ROAD TO ROMANCE," taken from the popular novel, "Romance," also "THE HAUNTED ISLAND," serial.

Visited the Burnetts

The H. W. McMillan family have returned from a trip to Odessa, Texas, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burnett and family, Mrs. Burnett being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McMillan. They found the Burnetts enjoying good health, and Mr. Burnett, who is in the restaurant business at that place, enjoying a prosperous patronage.

Why Not Here?

The forest boulevard being carved out of the Gila National Forest by the Forest Service was formally opened to the public last Sunday, July 29, with a big celebration and dance on the bridge across the Whitewater River. The road was then taken over by the Highway Department to form another link in the statewide chain of state roads.

The project has been under construction since last winter. It starts one mile below Glenwood at Mineral Creek, and runs northerly toward Alma approximately 7 1/2 miles. It is a standard 14-foot roadway with crushed rock surfacing.

A structural feature of the job is a concrete bridge with driver concrete piling. It is 280 feet long and spans the Whitewater River. — Why not have one here on the opening of the Carrizozo-Socorro Highway?

Dr. F. S. Randles left this morning for Mammoth, Arizona, where he will resume his former position with the Resperono Mining & Milling Company.

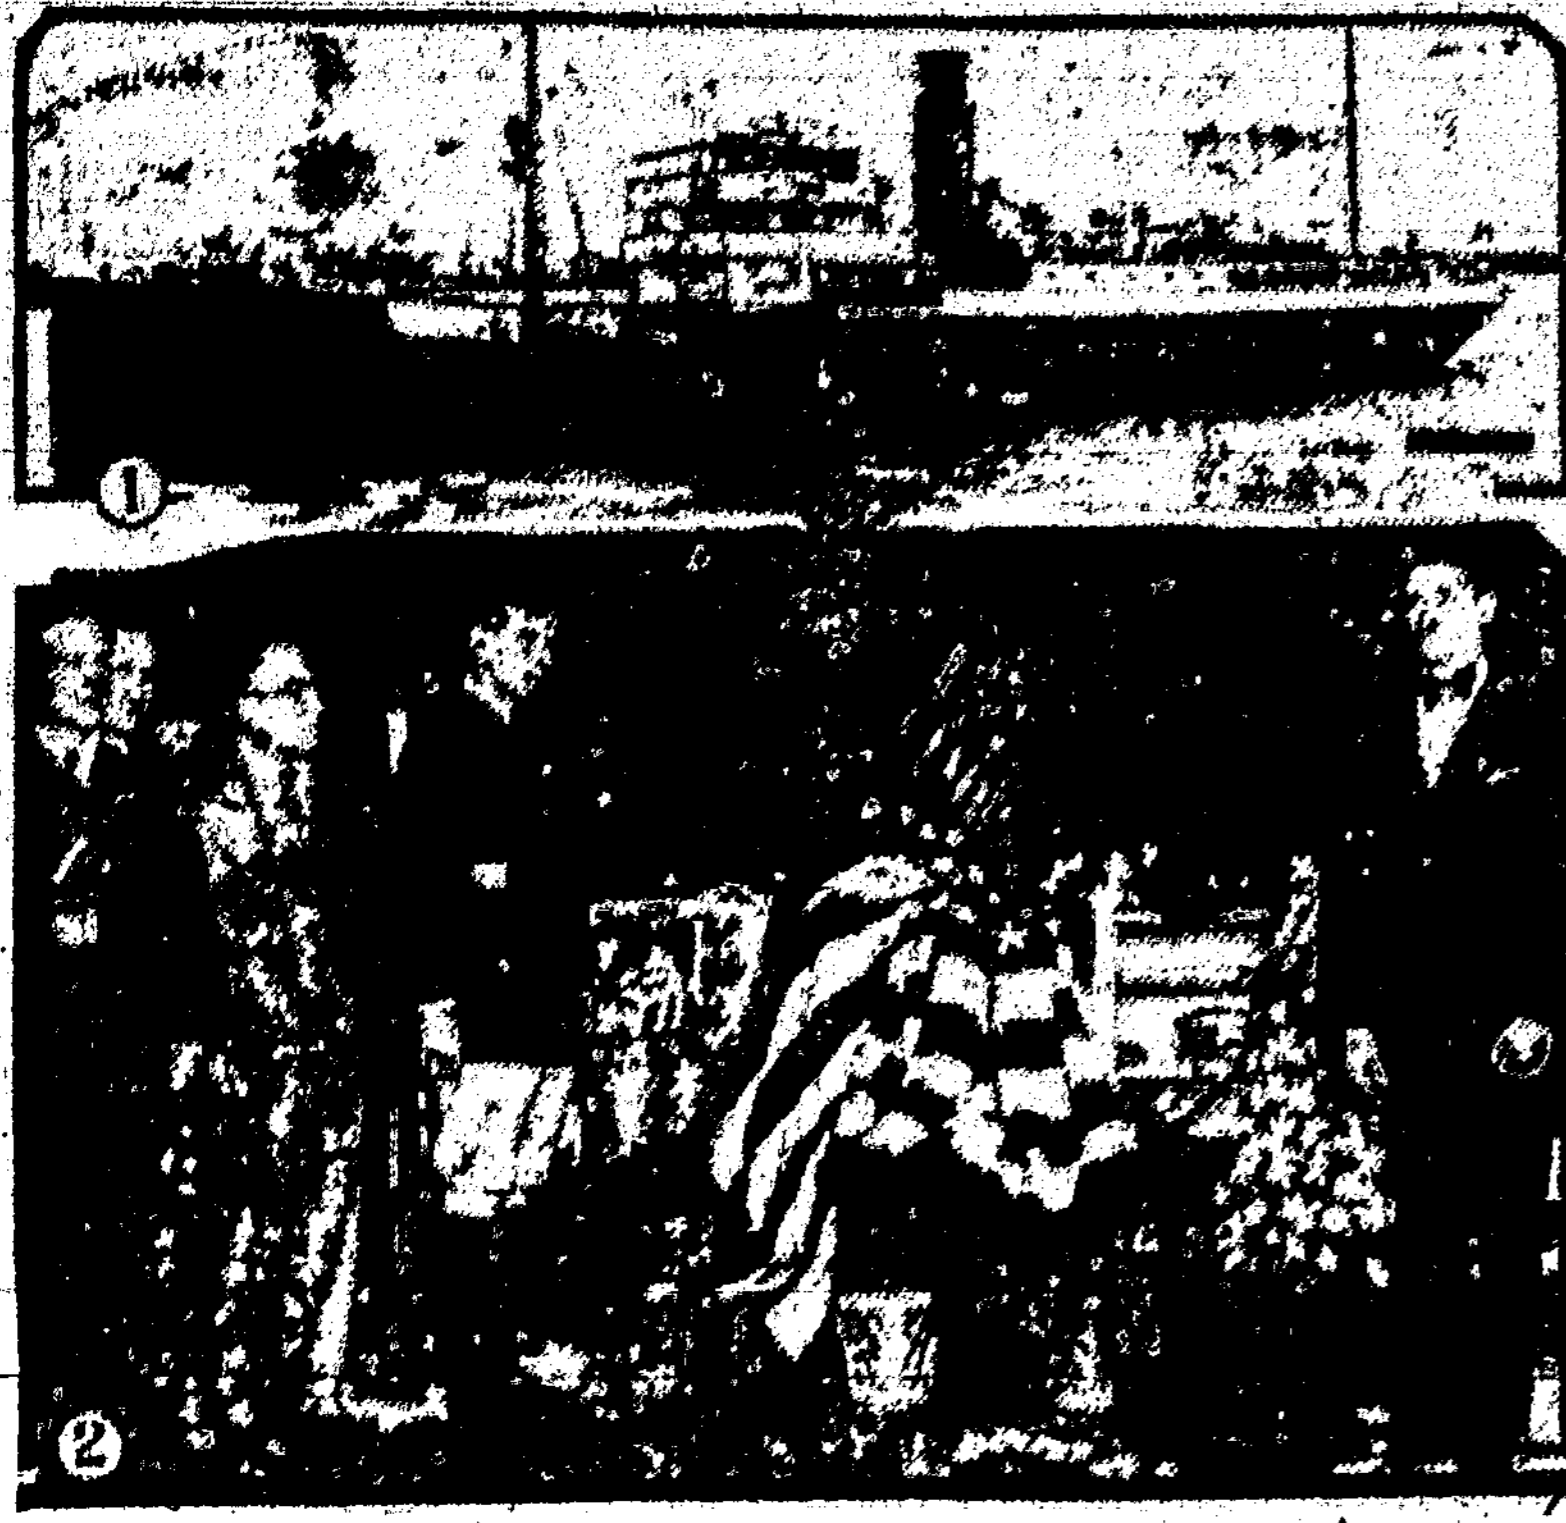

Tells About New Gymnasium

J. A. Brubaker was here yesterday from Capitan and told of the new gymnasium they are building at his home town, the walls of which are now 8 feet high and the work will be pushed rapidly to completion from now on.

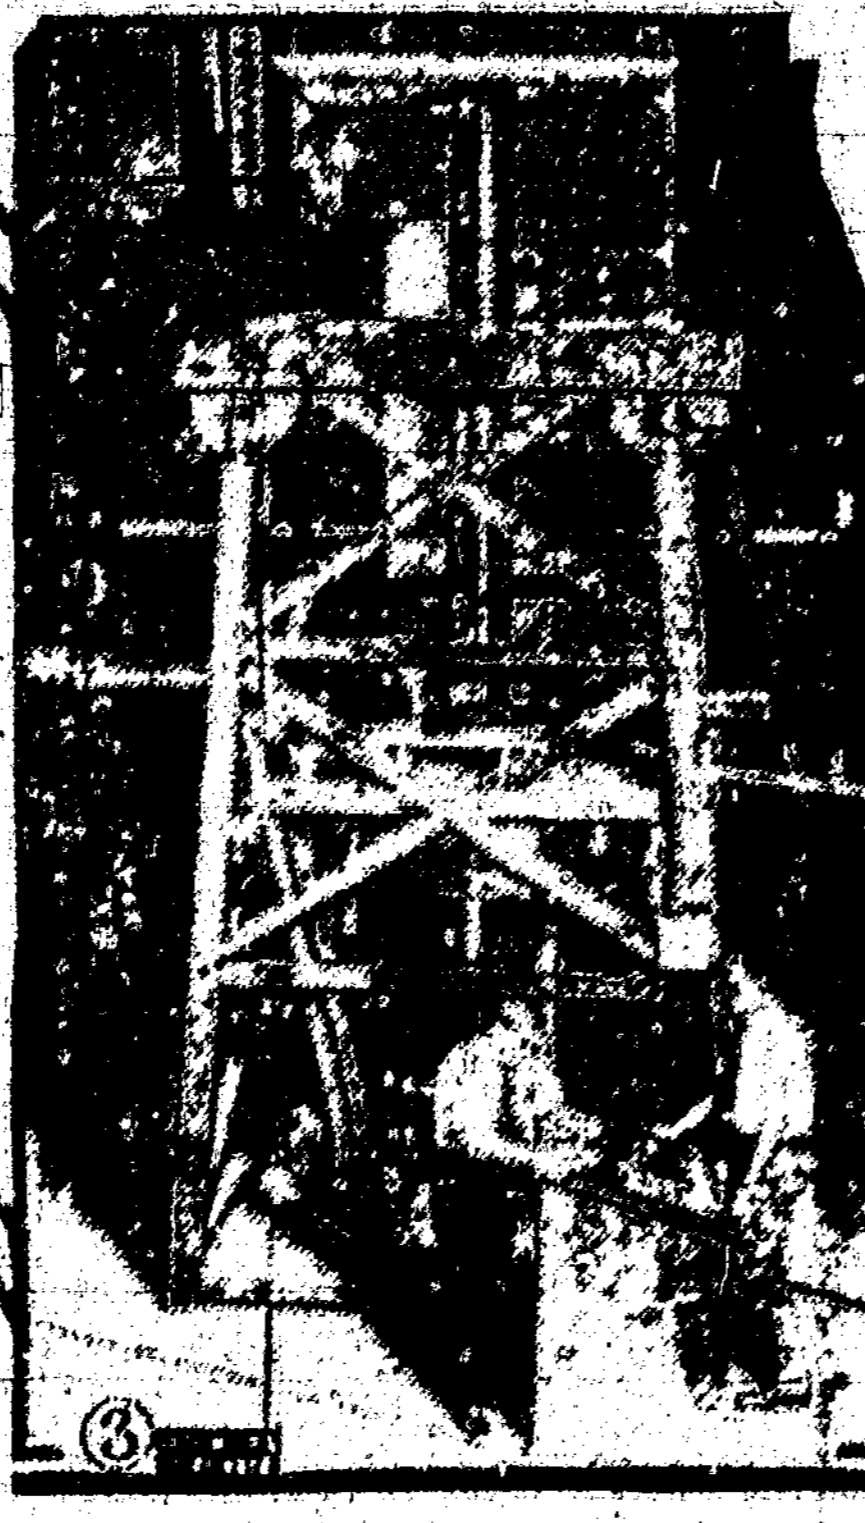

Visited Here Sunday

Geo. A. Tittsworth of the Tittsworth Co. Inc., of Capitan, was a visitor here last Sunday.

Plumber Olds of Alamogordo, is here to start work on the new school building.

1—Steamer Oaxaca which ran on rocks off Wrangell Island, imperiling lives of Captain A. Allen Hancock, owner, and other prominent southern Californians. 2—Body of Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexican good will flyer, lying in state in New York. 3—World's largest X-ray tube, developed at California Institute of Technology, Pasadena.

WEEKLY South-West NEWS ITEMS

The United American Mining Company at Oatman has started production, ore going to the Tom Reed mill. A D. A. H. status of the "Pioneer Mother" will be dedicated in Albuquerque September 26 during the First American Pageant. The statue is one of twelve being erected in as many states. The Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington has dismissed the case brought by the Boston Wool Trade Association, seeking to get the stopping in transit privilege for wool shipments in New Mexico and Arizona. While sugar beets are grown successfully in the northern portion of New Mexico, it has been found they cannot be grown at State College because of "curly-top disease," said Dr. Harry L. Kent, president of the A. & M. College. "This is a disease apparently carried from some of our native weeds by insects."

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. W. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Ill., 1924 Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 5 PAUL IN A PAGAN COUNTRY

LESSON TEXT—Acts 14:1-28. GOLDEN TEXT—I know both how to be abased and I know how to abound. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul and Barnabas Preach to the Heathen. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul and Barnabas Preach to the Heathen. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul Unmoved by Flattery and Danger. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Heroism of Foreign Missions.

1. Paul and Barnabas Preaching at Iconium (vv. 1-7).

1. Their manner of preaching (v. 1). This is suggested by the little word "so" in verse 1. They so spoke that a great multitude believed. They were true preachers. Only that which brings conviction of sin and induces decisions for Christ can be truly said to be preaching in the Biblical sense. 2. Their attitude towards opposition (v. 3). This is suggested by the word "therefore." "Long time therefore they tarried." The opposition did not prevent their preaching, but incited them to continue preaching. Christian workers should learn not to give up work because of opposition.

3. The Lord accompanied their preaching with miracles (v. 3). Since the opposition was so fierce, the Lord granted help which was needed.

4. The effect of their preaching (v. 4).

The multitude of the city was divided. Where men faithfully preach the gospel there will be division. Such division comes frequently in the home just as Christ predicted.

5. Paul and Barnabas assuited (vv. 5-7).

The Jews and the Gentiles united in planning this assault. Being apprised of this plot, Paul and Barnabas fled to Lystra and Derbe, where they preached the gospel.

11. An Attempt to Worship Paul and Barnabas as Gods (vv. 8-18).

1. The occasion (vv. 8-10). It was the healing of the lame man, God's gracious power shown in healing this lame man occasioned a new difficulty. The man was a confirmed cripple. He had never walked. On hearing Paul preach faith was born in his heart (Rom. 10:17). When Paul perceived that the cripple trusted Christ, with a loud voice that all could hear he bade the man to stand upright. The cure was instantaneous for he leaped up and walked (v. 10).

2. The method (vv. 11-13).

They called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercurius because he was the chief speaker. The priest of Jupiter brought oxen and garlands ready to offer sacrifice unto those men (v. 13).

3. Their efforts frustrated (vv. 14-18).

This foolish act was happily averted by the tact of the apostles as exhibited in the address of the occasion. (1) They denied that they were divine beings and declared against the worship of men of like passions with themselves. What awful folly to worship such beings when the infinite God, who created all things and is above all, spreading out His beneficent hands in blessing upon all, is seeking true worshippers!

(2) They directed them to turn away from these vain things unto the living God who made heaven and earth, and has left witness of Himself in that He has always done good, giving rain and fruitful season, filling their hearts with gladness.

111. The Stoning of Paul (vv. 19-23).

Wicked Jews from Antioch and Iconium pursued Paul with relentless hate to this place where they stirred up the very people who were willing to worship the apostles a little while before. This hatred took form in the stoning of Paul and dragging him out of the city for dead. These things are easy to talk about, but how awful they must be to experience. God raised him up, and with undaunted courage he pressed on with his duties as a missionary, bearing the good tidings to the lost. The church today needs men with such zeal and courage, and such a passion for the souls of lost men that they will do as Paul did.

IV. The Organization of Churches in the Field (vv. 23-28).

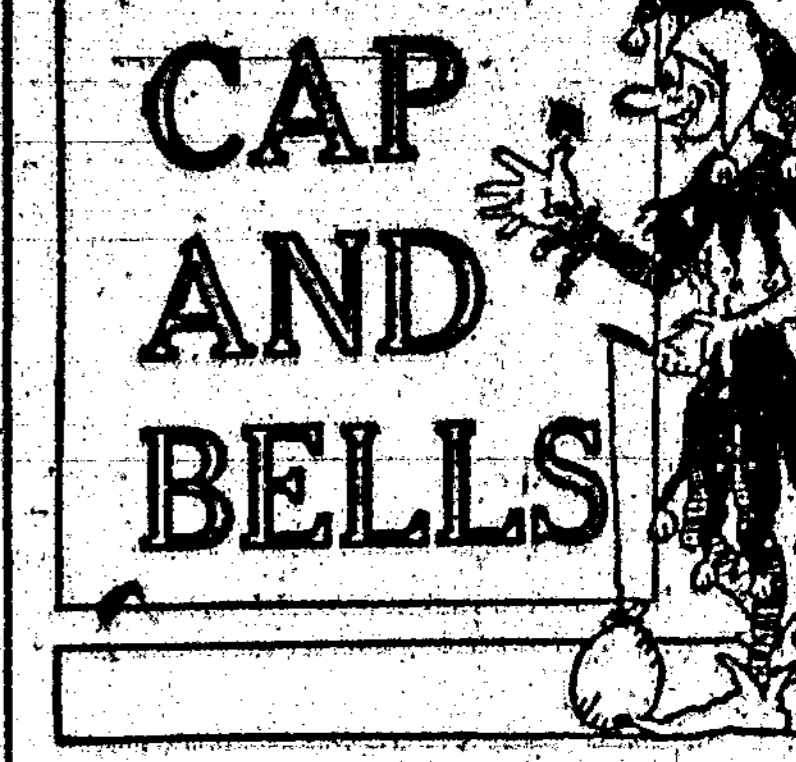

Evangelization with Paul did not mean a hasty and superficial preaching of the gospel, but the establishment of a permanent work. Elders were appointed in every church. The work of the missionary is not done until self-governing and self-propagating churches are established on the field.

Fly to Him

If it be true that God is not only willing to befriend us, but is spoken of as touched with sympathy for our miseries, so as to be all the kinder to us the more we are miserable, what folly were it not to fly to him without delay.—John Calvin.

A Verse From the Bible

Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem the other better than himself.—Philippians 2:3

CAP AND BELLS

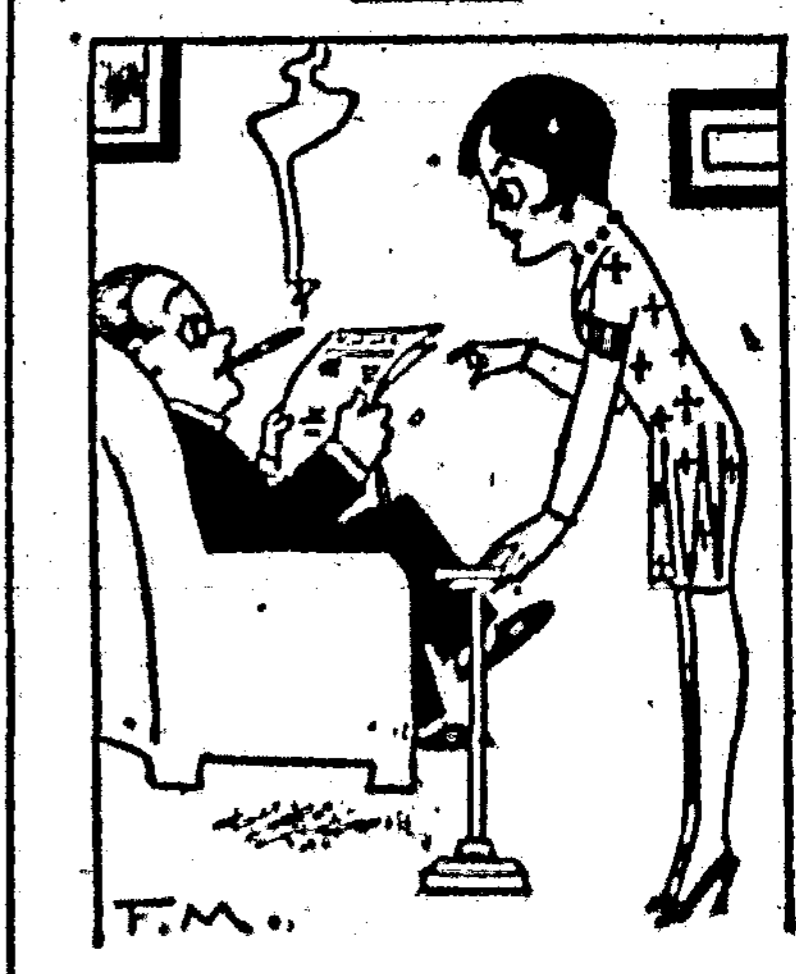

DIALOGUE

One more word from you and I'll knock your head off. "You will?" "Yes, I will. I'll knock your head off." "What?" "I said: 'One more word from you and I'll knock your head off.'" "Oh, you will, will you?" "Yes, I will." "What?" "What?"

Sauce for the Goose

There was another man who was hen-pecked. His wife cornered him one day and said: 'I'm sick and tired of hearing you refer to the car as your car. Hereafter I want you to call it our car. I've got a half interest in everything you own.' That night he said to her, "Please, won't you patch our pants?"

IN THE BEST ROOM

Hubby (constant smoker)—Can you believe that all that remains of a man is a little dust? Wife (pushing ash tray toward him)—No his remains are principally ashes, I'd say.

The Camera Measures Dignity

The pictures first caught him unaware. And left an uncertain impression. His photographs now show a very serene and uplifting discretion.

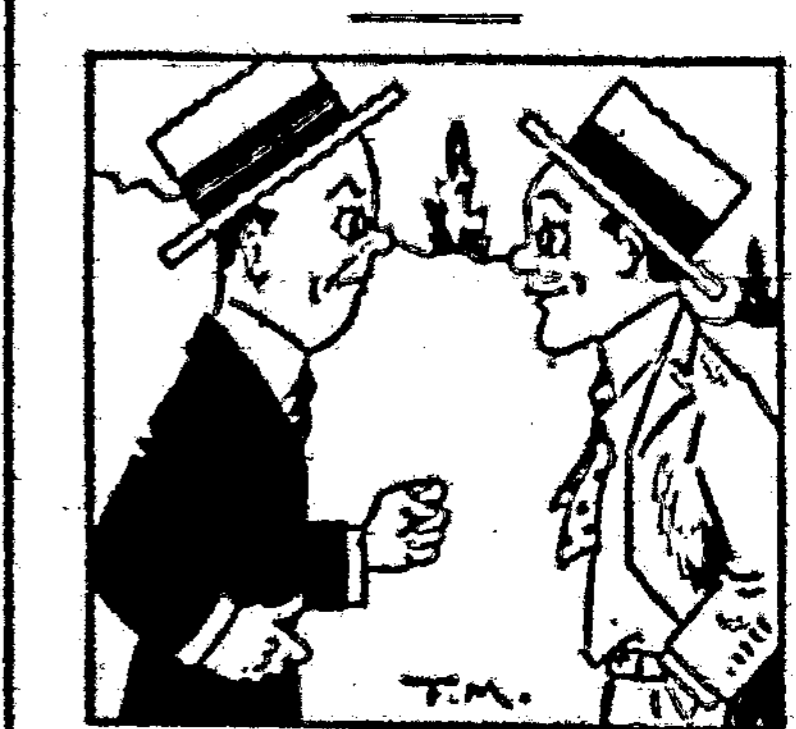

Better Still

Kate—You ought to have heard Mr. Dearlove's ringing speech last night. Annie—Why, I wasn't aware he could make a speech. Kate—Well, he has made one, just the same. I can't repeat the speech, but I can show you the ring.

Came in Handy

Visitor—I suppose, Eddie, that you are glad that the doctor brought you a little sister. Eddie—Bet yer life! She can wipe the dishes now, instead of me.

SOMETIMES REWARDED

Henpeck (passionately)—What reward has a man in marrying these days? Friend—Well, sometimes he's given a divorce.

Failed to Look

The sexton softly tolled his knell. Speeding Sam on his way to—well, if he'd only stopped to look and listen, he'd be livin' now instead of missin'.

Coin Counts

First Bachelor—I can't understand why you don't like her. If she had a lot of money she'd be an ideal. I suppose. Second Ditto—Well, any girl would.—Washington Star.

Also a Bumper Crop

She—You must be very fond of motor cars. He—What makes you think that? She—I heard you have a truck farm!

Wrong System

Friend—Did you have your husband see a specialist, as I advised? Sporting Wife—Yes, and he said John's system was all wrong, which, of course, was no news to me—John never touched a winner all last season!

Law of Supply and Demand

"There are more suckers than there are worms." "Yes, there has to be—there are so many more things to sell to suckers."

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Murder of Obregon a Great Misfortune for Mexico—Gossip of Politics.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PERHAPS the greatest misfortune that could happen to Mexico at this time was the murder of Gen. Alvaro Obregon. Quite aside from the heinousness of the crime, the assassination of the president-elect removed from the scene the strongest and most progressive of the republic's leaders, and not only threatened the country with renewal of the chaotic conditions that have held it back for many years, but also imperiled the recently restored friendly relations with the government of the United States. The excellent work done by our ambassador, Dwight Morrow, in the latter regard was given powerful aid by Obregon and his administration, which was to have been installed on December 1, would have carried it on to the utmost.

Obregon was shot to death at a banquet in the fashionable resort of San Angel, 12 miles south of Mexico City, by a young man who has been identified as Jose de Leon Teral, an art student. The assassin was arrested but refused to name his accomplices or the instigators of the crime. A score of suspects were taken in custody. Alberto Cruz was immediately supplanted as minister of police by General Zortuche, one of Obregon's closest friends, and both he and President Calles promised that the murder would be cleared up and those guilty punished. In a signed statement Calles said the assassin had admitted that the motive of his crime was religious fervor, and the president added that the authorities had obtained much information "implicating directly clerical action." In conclusion, Calles said: "Finally I want to announce that the government will continue as heretofore within constitutional paths and with the requisite calmness and energy." This was taken to mean that he would not attempt to continue in office after November, as the Mexican constitution forbids direct succession of the president in two terms in office. However, that constitution has been altered before to fit circumstances and may be changed again.

Despite the words of Calles, it is scarcely conceivable that the Catholic church in Mexico as an organization or any of its responsible members can have instigated the murder of General Obregon. The relations between the church and the government had been steadily improving, and Obregon, though pledged to carry on the policies of Calles, was looked to as the man to settle the trouble finally. The best guess at this time is that the assassination was prompted by political enemies of the president-elect who utilized a weak-minded religious fanatic.

Telegrams deploring the crime were sent by President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes and Secretary of State Kellogg. In Washington Ambassador Teller, though terribly shocked, said he was certain the tragedy would bring about the unification of all men in his country, sweeping away the disturbing and reactionary elements. He expected the old congress would be called in session to prepare for a special election. The permanent commission of congress already had been summoned to meet to consider the political situation.

WHILE mourning Mexicans were taking the body of General Obregon to his native state of Sonora for burial, Americans were sending home, with all possible honors, the remains of Capt. Emilio Carranza, the Mexican "good will" flyer who was killed when his plane crashed in New Jersey during a storm. After it had lain in state in New York the body was conveyed to Mexico on a special funeral train that carried also the aviator's father, an American army guard of honor and Mexican officials. The smashed plane also was taken back. All along the route the passing of the train was watched by cheering crowds, and at many cities the major general's salute of 13 guns was fired.

WHOLESALE bolting from either the Republican or the Democratic national ticket does not seem to be getting much encouragement in the country. The most ambitious attempts to bring this about are being made in Texas. There the anti-Smith Democrats have organized with the avowed intention of getting all the Democrats they can to vote for Hoover, and they are led by several men who have been rather prominent in the party in that state. They are making no attempt to defeat the state Democratic ticket, which disappoints some of the smaller fry who are affected. On the other hand there is also in Texas a group of anti-Hoover Republicans who are throwing what influence they have to the Smith ticket. In Asheville Bishop Cannon of the Methodist church, South, gathered about 181 men and women to plan for the defeat of Smith in the Southern states. Nearly all the delegates were preachers of the Methodist church, South, or paid workers of church or prohibition agencies. Sixty-six were from Buncombe county, North Carolina, of which Asheville is the county seat. No Democratic party leaders were present, and it was noticeable that the Baptists held aloof, except for Dr. Arthur J. Barton, who was made chairman of the meeting. The press was excluded from the real sessions.

Leaders of farmers' organizations in the corn belt still hope they can induce the agriculturists to oppose Hoover, and their meeting in Des Moines adopted a series of resolutions condemning the farm relief plank in the Republican platform and commending the plank inserted in the Democratic platform. Most of those attending this meeting declared their intention of supporting Smith, but there is still little reason to believe that their stand will induce very many farmers to change their political affiliations next November. The Iowa Republicans, large numbers of whom are corn belt farmers, held their state convention last week and unanimously endorsed the Hoover and Curtis ticket and the Kansas City platform, including its farm relief plank. The state platform condemned Al Smith for "his attitude on nullification" of prohibition and alluded to "Tammany's effort to fasten itself upon the nation." Earlier in the day Governor Hammill of Iowa had had a talk with Herbert Hoover on the latter's train, and he told this convention something of what the farmers might expect from Hoover if he were elected President.

Governor McMillen of Nebraska also had a chat with Mr. Hoover and afterward said the candidate had a comprehensive understanding of the farm problem, but the governor did not seem to have been won over to Hoover's support.

President Coolidge was Hoover's host for a couple of days at the summer White House and they fished and talked politics together, after which Hoover resumed his trip to California. It was saddened by the news of the death of Mrs. Hoover's father, Charles D. Henry, in Placer, Calif.

GOVERNOR SMITH was busy as a bee in Albany with political conferences and picture makers. Among his callers was Congressman Byrnes of Tennessee, who assured him he would carry not only the solid South but also the border states. Al could see nothing to worry about in the stories of Democratic revolt in Texas or elsewhere. The report that Smith had selected Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric company and colleague of Dawes in the reparations work, to be the Democratic candidate to succeed him as governor was flatly denied on behalf of both the gentlemen.

SECRETARY KELLOGG'S anti-war treaty goes marching on toward complete victory. Last week it was accepted in principle by Great Britain and the dominions of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Union of South Africa and by the Irish Free State and India. Acceptances also were received at Washington from Belgium, Finland and Czechoslovakia. All the answers it was believed, would be found satisfactory by the American government. Approval had already been given the pact by Germany, France, Italy and other nations, and that of Japan was considered certain. If the various reservations of some of the governments, which are not radical, can be accepted, the final success of the great plan to outlaw war seems virtually assured. The treaty is to be signed during the coming fall by the principal powers and will go into effect with the deposit of the ratifications. It will remain open for signature by other nations.

PEACE between Poland and Lithuania is still an unaccomplished fact, and it is reported that Premier Waldemaras of Lithuania, relying on the support of Russia, is preparing to defy the League of Nations at the September meeting of the assembly or council of the League. The Poles have notified Sir Austen Chamberlain that they hold the League responsible for the existing state of affairs and demand full support in whatever measures they may deem necessary.

American members of the world court of arbitration at Geneva nominated Charles Evans Hughes for the vacancy created by the resignation of John Bassett Moore. Dr. Walter Simons is second choice for the place. Observers in Geneva were quite sure Mr. Hughes would be elected.

REPRESENTATIVES of France, England, Spain and Italy last week signed a new accord on Tangier which gives Spain full command of the gendarmerie in the international zone of that country. A special commission was created to watch for and suppress intrigue against the Spanish protectorate. Italy was given increased representation on the legislative body of the international zone and was also given representation on the courts and similar tribunals.

ALL doubt concerning the death of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, who disappeared from his airplane while crossing the English channel, was dispelled by the finding of his body near Cape Griz-Nez.

THE Jacksonville scale as a basis for wage negotiations in the bituminous fields has been abandoned by the United Mine Workers of America, according to the action of the policy committee of the union, and hereafter each of the districts has the right to effect settlement with operators "upon a basis mutually satisfactory." Action taken by district officers must be submitted to the miners of the district for ratification.

The policy committee also authorized all district organizations to permit any coal company or any mine to employ all the men it may require for maintenance, repairs, development, construction or production of coal, providing the existing wage scale is paid temporarily until a district agreement is reached. The new policy is interpreted as a gesture by the union toward bettering the depressed conditions in the bituminous coal industry.

AMONG those claimed by death during the week were Giovanni Giolitti, Italian statesman and foe of Mussolini; D. C. Davies, director of the Field museum in Chicago; Henry R. Rathbone, congressman at large from Illinois, and William E. Harmon of New York, who as "Jedediah Tingle," had given large sums to unrecognized heroes, good children and deserving authors.

RECKLESSNESS in prohibition enforcement has again humiliated the American government. According to announcement by Secretary Kellogg, we have sent a note to the British government expressing regret and apology for the violation of the sovereignty of the Bahamas Islands last September when Larry Christiansen, commanding a coast guard run-clearing boat, seized two boats off the Bahama coast and then removed the liquor and prisoners to Miami. Mr. Kellogg promised that the coast guard would not again offend in that way, that the boats and liquor would be restored to their owners and that Christiansen would be transferred to another part of the country.

Probation administrators held their annual conference with Commissioner Dorn and other Treasury department officials in Washington. Among other topics considered was the increased use of airplanes in enforcing dry laws.

The Arizona Wool Growers' Association held one of the most successful meetings since its origin at Flagstaff. Probably the principal item of business was the report of the committee on cooperative marketing. This committee's recommendation that the Arizona Wool Growers go into this form of marketing was adopted.

William Faltin, three times sentenced to death for a murder he committed more than fifteen years ago, and who was sentenced to be hanged at the state prison in Florence, July 12, was saved by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles when his death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. Faltin killed Carl Peterson, with an iron bar in their cabin near Phoenix in September, 1912.

The State Highway Commission redistricted the state and awarded a contract to Ken Hodgman, of Los Angeles and Globe, Ariz., for the Cooley-White river highway. Hodgman, who recently finished building nineteen miles of road from Cutter to the Coolidge dam and still has his equipment at Globe, was more than $20,000 under the next lowest bidder. His bid was $122,022.29.

New Mexico has three members in the American Association of Osteopathic Examining Boards which will meet in Kirksville, Mo., in connection with the A. T. Still Centennial convention of the American Osteopathic Association, the week of August 6.

They are: President, Dr. C. H. Conner, Albuquerque; vice president, Dr. Mary Parsons, Roswell; secretary-treasurer, Dr. Mable S. Skeels, Albuquerque.

Hazardous lightning areas are being classified on the national forests according to the number of strikes recorded over a period of the past fifteen years. Townships where there have been three strikes or more per year are shown on the government's maps as "hotspots." In District Three which comprises New Mexico and Arizona, the Coconino has the greatest number of "hotspots." No areas of more than three per township per year appear on the Lincoln, the Santa Fe, and the Duff forests.

The report just issued from the office of Quince Record, district director of the U. S. Employment Service of the U. S. Department of Labor at Denver states that continuation of a general upward trend in industrial activity and employment is noted in Arizona, especially in agricultural, horticultural and construction lines. The labor supply is adequate in Arizona to meet requirements in all lines of activity (except at Jerome where a moderate number of experienced drift metal miners are needed) until cotton harvest commences on or about August 15, at which time several thousand additional cotton pickers will be needed in the following named counties: Maricopa, Pima, Yuma, Pinal, Greenlee, and Graham; most of these workers will be needed in the Salt River valley. The report states that a more healthy condition exists in all lines of industrial activity and employment in New Mexico, than for several months past. As a result of increased demand for labor, particularly in connection with outdoor seasonal activities, the heretofore surplus of resident and migratory labor is being absorbed to a minimum. The supply of farm labor, will likely be adequate to meet demands in all sections of the state until cotton harvest commences in southeastern sections of state during August.

Notices have been forwarded to members of the Arizona Good Roads Association that the summer meeting of the organization will be held in the city of Winslow, Wednesday, September 12.

An artesian well has been brought in in the Tuzigoot valley, north of Santa Fe, the first of its kind in Santa Fe county. It is flowing 1,000 gallons a day, the water rising two feet above the river bed. The well was set down as a test by the Indian irrigation service. It is an aid of the Tuzigoot people.

THE RETURN OF ANTHONY TRENT

STORY FROM THE START

Anthony Trent, once master criminal, now reformed, returns to New York after four years' absence. He learns his friend, Capt. Frank Sutton, is in Sing Sing. Trent is surprised to find his New York apartment occupied by a stranger, Campbell Sutton, who represents himself as the brother of Frank Sutton. Trent is asked by Campbell to force a confession from Payson Grant, whom he accuses of having crookedly obtained all of Frank Sutton's property and then married the latter's wife. Trent starts on a campaign to accomplish the downfall of Grant. He learns that Captain Sutton has escaped from Sing Sing and later, to his surprise, finds that Campbell is really Frank Sutton. Trent takes his place in society as the opening gun of his campaign against Grant. He becomes a house guest of the Grants. Trent discovers in Mademoiselle Dupin, Nation's French instructor, a friend of the old criminal days. She is now going straight. Trent is suspicious of a man known as Yeatman, ostensibly in the Grant household as a detective. Anthony realizes Yeatman is a crook, who is planning to rob the Grants and their guests.

She looked at him with a calmness and lack of interest that she knew must surprise him. He was the kind to frighten women with physical violence, and had been used to inspiring fear.

"If you need money, I have none. If you need help, I shall not give it." "You aristocrats have spirit," he admitted. "Listen, I am of les ouvriers. I was a fisherman at Deyst before I followed a woman to Bruxelles and strangled her because she laughed at me. You would not think to look at me I am so strong. Well, Mademoiselle Dupin, I am not going to strangle you yet."

Another scarlet-tipped cigarette was tossed from the window. There was no evidence of haste about him. He showed that he could afford to take his time.

"You say you will not help me. Very good. I do not need your help. I have already arranged everything. You have no money? What do I care? I am a man who likes the aristocrats."

"Pierre Redlich," she said slowly, "you are talking folly. You have no hold over me at all. I shall not help you and I shall not hinder you so long as you remain a detective. If you steal, you place me in peril, and I dare not risk that. Let us call it a truce. You have no power over me. Make no mistake about that."

He picked up the orange packet. "Here are twenty cigarettes left. I shall sit here and smoke them. When I have finished, you will come with me."

She did not understand what he meant. But she was oppressed with the certainty that he would not threaten idly.

"Are you, then, so anxious to go back to France and Dulsis your term? They do not pamper prisoners there as they do here."

"That I know," he retorted, "I have tried them both. No, madam, I am not anxious to go back. And I shall not. I used to wonder why others succeeded always and I was so poor and obscure." Redlich touched his forehead. "It is here that success is manufactured. Education, madam, knowledge. We Flemands learn languages easily. I have studied. I speak five as well as you do. Particularly well do I speak Spanish. It is to a land where they speak Spanish we are going."

"Well," she queried, "Pierre Redlich, you have become insane."

"No, madam. I am neither insane nor inflamed with drink. What I say, I mean. I have had you in my heart since I first saw you. I recognized you here before you saw me in Mrs. Grant's room. You were sitting by the sea reading, with no thought of danger. It was only when I came into Mrs. Grant's room that my pride was gratified. I saw that you had forgotten me. That pleased me. I saw you were frightened, and that pleased me even more."

She glanced at the alarm clock. It was midnight.

"I am tired," she said. "If you do not go I shall summon help. On one side the housekeeper sleeps, and on the other the butler. I have only to shout loudly and they will come."

Again there was that baffling, confident smile.

"Madam does not believe me when I say I have gained much wisdom since last I saw her. I will prove it. Miss Brewster is not there. When she went to her room tonight she found a rat there. It terrified her, and she sleeps in another part of the house. How do I know? Because I killed it for her. I also placed it in her room. As for the butler, he knows now that I am here as a detective. I have commanded him to sleep near his footman so that he may observe their movements. I have told him I suspect them."

She was convinced that he was speaking the truth.

"This leaves none but you and me on this corridor. The quarters of the servants cannot be entered from it. You did not observe in your terror that I locked the door as I passed in."

There is the open window, madam. Jump if you will. The marble terrace twenty meters below will make a tender deathbed.

She believed implicitly that she was trapped. Redlich was of the sort who have brought the terrorizing of women to a fine point. He rose and urged her to the window. She could barely see a white light waving gently at what she supposed was the bottom of the garden.

"It is the masthead light of my vessel," he said. "She is called La Belle Alliance, and I have wondered why she had that name. Now I know, madam. You and I shall be 'la belle alliance.' On board are a half-dozen men who do as I command. Presently I shall take you to them and say: 'Here is the woman I love.' Tomorrow I will come back for the jewels they pay me to guard."

"Do you suppose you can carry me there and not be seen?"

"I know it. Did I not tell you I had grown careful. You knew me in the old days, madam, when I was no better than a savage. Then, I should have beaten you senseless and carried you off. Now, I shall not hurt you."

He moved forward, twisted her arms behind her and pressed over her mouth and nose a chloroform-saturated towel. She fought for a long time, but the buzzing in her ears grew louder, and presently her muscles relaxed and consciousness left her.

Anthony Trent had been glad to get to his room early. By eleven all of the guests had retired. Always a lover of the sea, Trent pulled the wicker chaise longue to the window and lighted a cigar. He had turned out the lights the better to enjoy the night, the stars and the flickering lights of passing vessels.

Suddenly there floated onto the balcony the glowing end of a cigarette thrown from some other open window such as this. Five minutes later another fluttered by to the terrace below. After similar intervals the stub on the balcony was joined by another. By twelve o'clock Trent had counted a dozen descend; somewhere above him a man was smoking cigarettes at the steady rate of twelve an hour. . . . With the last crimson end, came a sudden gust of wind and blew it into the room clear over Trent's head. He rose from his seat to extinguish it ere a hole was burned in the carpet. It was the end of a brand of cigarette used almost solely by the French. One day he had smelled the undistinguishable odor and found old Gilbert puffing at one; Gilbert said Mr. Yeatman had offered it. It was unlikely that anyone else would have such a supply or consume them so resolutely.

Yeatman occupied a small room at the head of the first flight of steps leading from the main hall. Under no conceivable circumstance could a cigarette thrown from the small window of this room drift down to Trent's balcony. Gravity forbade, for one thing.

Humorous Talk Went Unheeded After That

A good Bret Harte story is told by William H. Crane, the veteran actor, in "Footprints and Echoes." Bret Harte was engaged to deliver a humorous lecture in a small western city. Just after he had started, one of the deacons sitting on the stage grabbed hold of his coat and whispered:

"Hold on a minute, I want to make an announcement."

Harte was very much astonished and stepped aside, while the deacon took the center of the platform.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, after a pause, "is Mr. Rogers C. Jones in the hall?"

There was a protracted pause and, as Mr. Jones failed to respond, the deacon continued:

Three people used the rooms of the floor above that on which Trent's suite was situated. He knew that immediately above him was the room of Mademoiselle Dupin. It was conceivable that she smoked. But these coarse cigarettes in such unbelievable quantity were, he felt certain, consumed by some one else. Circumstances pointed to Yeatman. And what could Yeatman be doing there?

Very quietly, Trent crept to the little balcony and listened intently. He could barely hear some one talking rapidly in French. It was not the beautiful French of Madame de Beauharnais. The speaker was fluent enough, but lacked that delicate rhythm of the language as spoken by an educated woman.

When Trent had first examined his suite he had noticed that at this southeastern corner of the building a steel rod, a third of an inch in thickness, part of a device for protection from lightning, ran down to the earth. This rod of steel passed the edge of his balcony some two feet distant. On its way to the cornice above, it passed Mademoiselle Dupin's window at an equal distance. A man with a clear head and a sense of balance might make an ascent or descent without much danger.

Straining his ears, Trent was sure he heard, later, the higher-pitched voice of the woman for whose safety he was exercised. It was when it was raised in undisguised fear that he acted. Climbing back into his room, he drew on a pair of heavy gloves. Then he started the ascent of the rod. It was not easy to draw his face level with the window ledge. Fortunately he kept himself in perfect physical condition. As he pulled himself breast high to the sill the sweet and cloying odor of chloroform met him.

Mademoiselle Dupin was lying on the floor unconscious. Over her, Yeatman was stooping, tying her, hand and foot, with ropes adjusted with the sailor's dexterity. There was evidence of a struggle. Chairs was overturned and a vase of cut flowers was broken.

The horrified sight kept Trent immobile for the moment. While he watched, Yeatman picked up the unconscious girl, opened the door and switched off the lights.

Anthony Trent climbed into the room as quickly as he could and opened the door. In the corridor outside was in darkness. In the distance his sharp ears heard, distinct in the stillness of the silent house, the cautious tread of the burdened man half muffled by the rugs.

Yeatman, as he opened an unlatched door, had no idea the silent Trent was within a few yards of him. He kept to a little path which ran by the brick wall. A quarter-mile distant was the beach where his boat lay. By a code of flashlight signals he could summon help and be on board La Belle Alliance within a few minutes. He would, of course, come back to the house and see that the room just left in such confusion was put in order. He had no desire for local police interest.

Half-way between house and ocean was a fresh-water bathing pool with garden marbles set about it. On one of these Pierre Redlich placed the still unconscious girl. He was alarmed at her convulsed stop. The thought that she might be dead chilled him. He leaned down to hear the heart beat. And, as he stooped, he was conscious of a tremendous blow behind his ear. The swift appreciation of the pain was succeeded instantly by unconsciousness. Pierre Redlich dropped as one dead.

He was profoundly unconscious as Trent untied the girl and used the same ropes and gag for her assailant. He did not feel himself lifted by Trent and carried to the brick wall and dropped on the other side of it. Here, concealed in a part of a neighbor's garden devoted to the raising of vegetables, his dreamless sleep continued.

Mademoiselle was awakened from the anesthetic by the dashing of cold water on her face. Out of the mists of memory she thought she heard Trent's voice. Then the fear of Redlich returned and she began to struggle.

"It's all right, you poor child," Trent said tenderly. "I'm here and he has gone."

He assisted her to a seat nearer the house where their voices could not carry to Redlich's vegetable bed. She was still unstrung and nervous.

Reasons for Hoover

Extract from the Santa Fe New Mexican

"As an independent voter who did his bit to elect Roosevelt in 1904, Taft in 1908 and Wilson in 1912 and 1916, and who enjoyed a personal friendship with all three, and who since then has voted for the Democratic candidates for the presidency, I shall, in 1928, support Herbert Hoover for the presidency," says Irving Fisher, professor of economics in Yale University. He gives his reasons as follows:

1—Mr. Hoover is a great humanitarian, who came into politics not as a politician, but as a friend of his fellow-men.

and it was Hoover's work in Belgian relief, undertaken not as a personal ambition, but as a personal sacrifice, which first brought him into notice and prominence as Food Administrator.

From that day to this he has been a great world figure in the relief of human suffering and Child Welfare. In post war relief, through his ingenious device, the "Food Draft," millions were kept from starvation in Germany, Austria, Poland, Russia and elsewhere.

2—Mr. Hoover is a Quaker, whose very religion is world peace.

3—Mr. Hoover is a practical economist, and one to whom is due more largely than to any other man, improvement in our prosperity.

4—Mr. Hoover is a genuine dry, one who, as a humanitarian wants to secure the full benefits of prohibition for the health and happiness of American homes and as an economist wants to secure its full benefits—many billions of dollars' worth per year in the savings of human life.

5—Mr. Hoover is above the suspicion of political corruption. To wipe out disgrace of political intrigue I would rather see Hoover and the Hoover administration in the White House than Smith and the Tammany Hall in the White House.

6—A candidate should be judged for what he can accomplish as president and Governor Smith certainly has not had Hoover's experience with our great national and world problems, nor has he displayed Hoover's knowledge of them.

Missionary Society Met

The Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Geo. L. Strauss last Thursday. The meeting was very interesting and it was decided to serve a supper at the ranch home of Mrs. Nettie Lemon on the second week in Sept. This is to be the biggest effort the society has made in this line this year. The committee for arrangements is as follows: Mrs. Nettie Lemon, Chairman; Mesdames Allie Green, Kate Grumbles, C. M. Lucky, B. I. Stimmel. At the close of the meeting the hostess served delicious punch and cake.

Life Never Always Sunshine or Sorrow

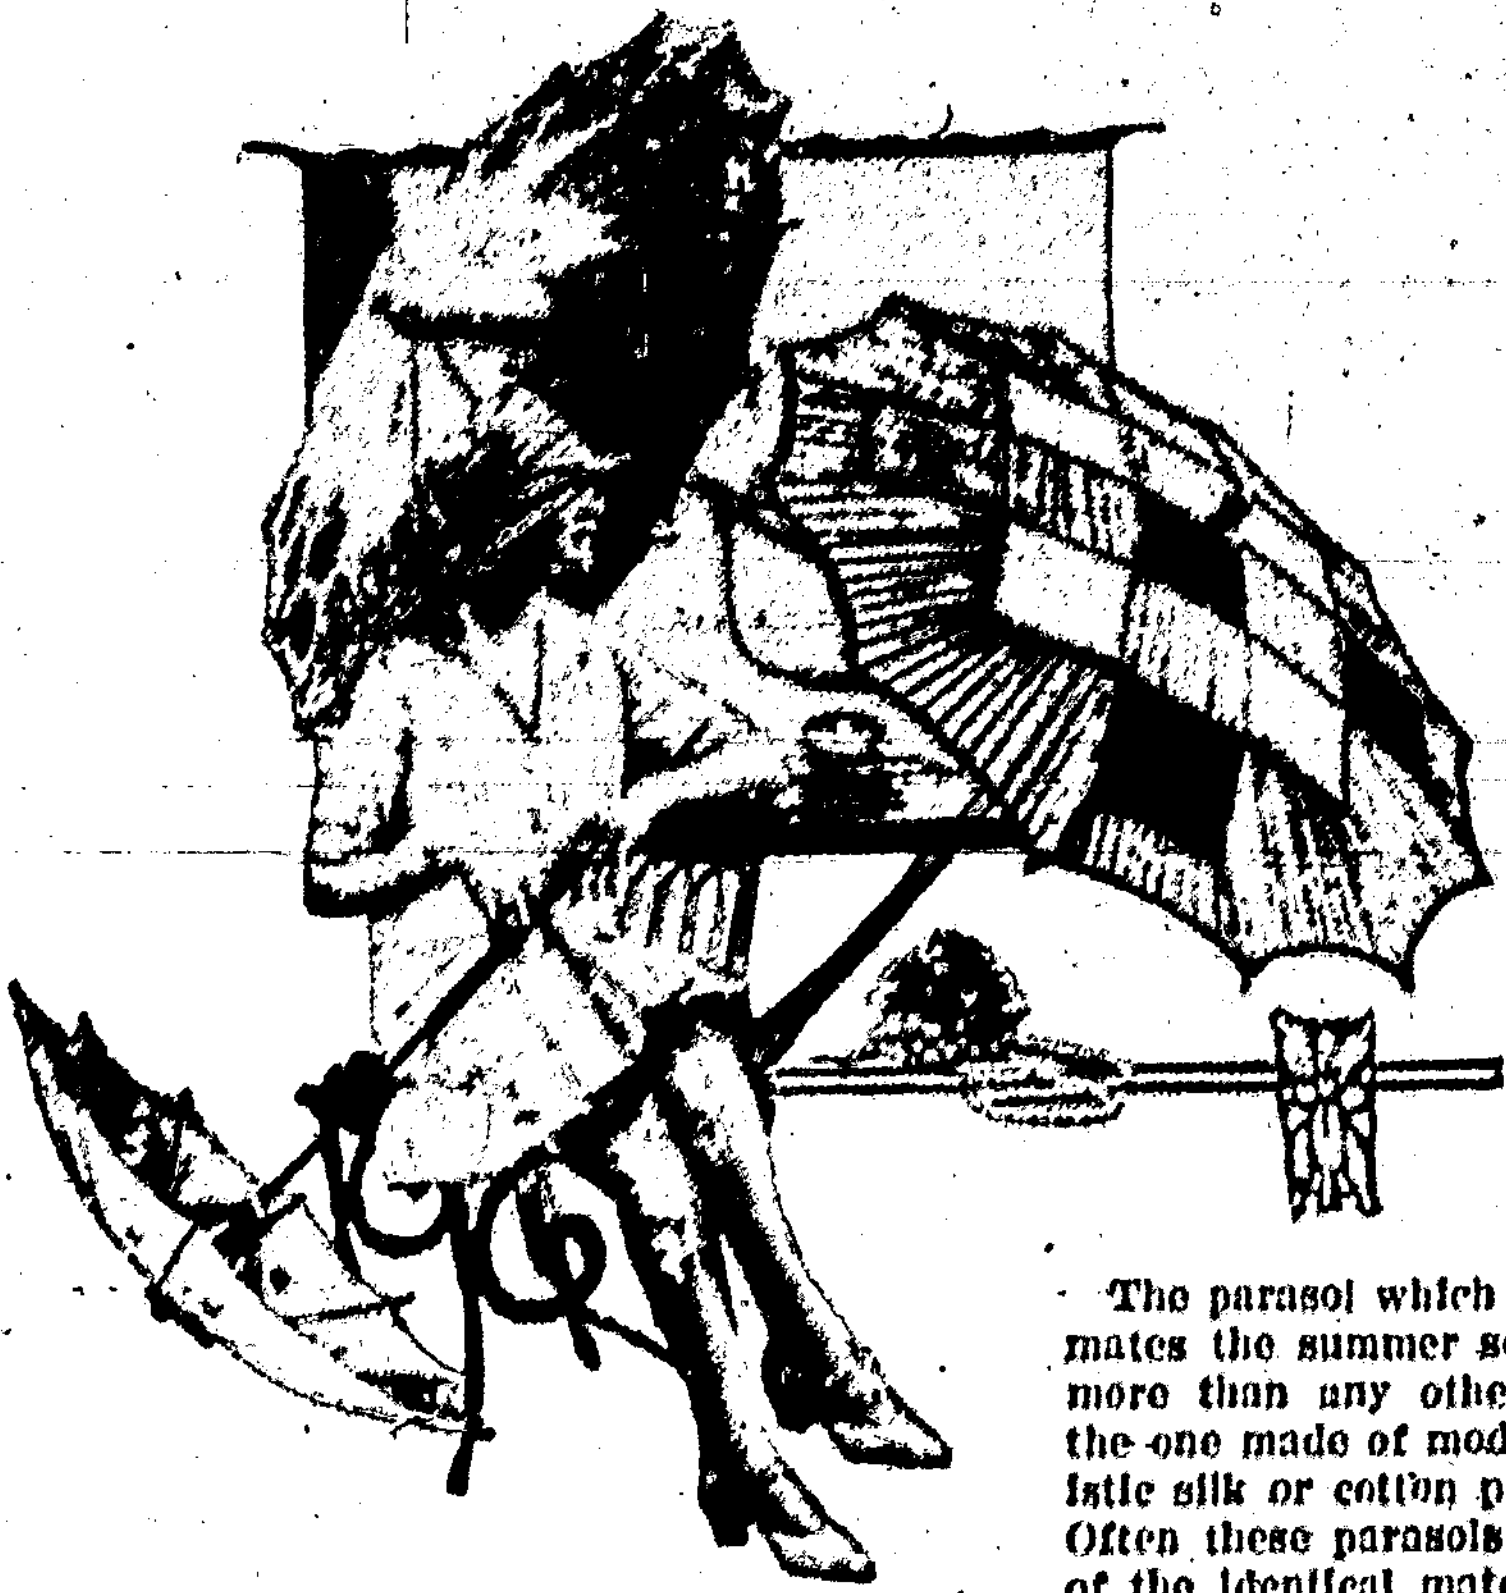

Life itself is short; time is fleeting; and we should learn to accept our lot with reasonable complacency. That does not mean that one should sit quietly and dumbly when beset by crushing adversity. Make the best possible fight against the enemy; but in the end, after you have done your very best, try to rest content, whatever the outcome may be. Sometimes our experiences are bitter; other times they are sweet. But if we do our part, play the game of life intelligently and honestly, we can usually be assured of fitting rewards. And when affliction that we may think is undeserved is meted out to us; we may chafe at its harshness, though at times it cannot be avoided, try as we will. But whatever adversity or misfortune may come to you there should be many exquisitely delightful remembrances, and you should at all times try to live within their ecstatic imagery.—True Story Magazine.

The Rain Gauge

The earliest rain measure, or gauge, was first used in Korea, in the fifth century. Galileo, Sir Christopher Wren and others experimented with measures, but the first gauge of which there is any authentic description was made in England by Mr. Hook in 1665. The rain was collected by means of a funnel into a flask, weighed, and the weight converted into inches—a different method. It was not until 1801 that the late G. J. Symons designed a satisfactory pattern of gauge. In

Parasol Is Popular

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

The parasol which accompanies the summer scene more than any other is the one made of modernistic silk or cotton print.

PARASOLS are seen in growing frequency at afternoon fetes, sports events and beach parties.

One sees cunning printed silk parasols to match the plaited-skirt frock, black velvet ones to go with the new smart black beach ensembles.

One of the new French Lovellien findings favor among American fashionables is the parasol made of sheer velvet.

Very simple parasol types accompany the sports costume. These often match the costume they complement.

Curried Chicken

Curries of all kinds have penetrated to the western world from India, and this unusual way of preparing chicken is no exception.

1 fowl weighing 3 1/2 to 4 pounds 1 1/2 cup curry 1 1/2 cup water 1 1/2 cup sliced onions

Disjoint the fowl and simmer in the water to which 1 teaspoonful of salt has been added.

as the frock, or they are made to match hat, bag, belt and other accessories.

An interesting thing about this season's sunshades is the unusualness of their shapes.

contours are the "last word." The circular shape often gives way to odd silhouettes such as squares or six or eight cornered forms.

Women who are skillful with brush and paint are designing lovely parasols and hat sets in this way.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

Milk which sours rapidly has a better flavor than that which sours slowly at a low temperature.

If your last summer's dress looks faded, try a little tinting material in the starch when you launder it.

The best mid-morning lunch for the child is fruit or milk with or without bread and butter or graham crackers.

An easy way to clean a stained aluminum kettle is to boil rhubarb leaves and water in it for a few minutes.

make orderly and attractive, she put a lengthwise pole made of an old broomstick, and provided as many clothes hangers as she needed.

Having the closet arranged so that it was just as easy to put things away as to throw them on the bed or a chair, was a direct help in curing this girl of some untidy habits she had developed.

During the warm months when there are several dresses in the wash for each girl or woman in the family, and a great many for the little tots who wear cotton rompers or bloomer dresses entirely, it is a good plan to keep a supply of hangers downstairs near the ironing board.

Cooking Greens Without Water

Those who do not especially care for the flavor of kale or dandelion greens may find more acceptable a blend of these greens with spinach.

Use equal quantities of spinach and kale and half as much dandelion greens. Cut or chop these into short lengths and cook them for 3 minutes in a frying pan in which enough butter has been melted to season the greens and prevent their sticking to the pan.

Strawberry Shortcake

Strawberry shortcake for breakfast, made with or without plain cream, makes a delicious variant of the ordinary diet.

VALUE OF THE ULTRA-VIOLET RAYS

Children Playing in Their Sun Suits.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Children seek sunny places to play in almost as instinctively as kittens look for warm pleasant spots where the sun's rays help them to drowse contentedly.

Legs, armholes, and neck are finished with a flat binding. This garment is cut from a romper pattern having a fold in the crotch.

The other little suit is more boyish in cut, with short trunks or trousers of opaque white material buttoned to a waist of heavy net, reinforced by flat straps.

Children's Bedtime Story

By Mary Graham Benner

The elephants were working even though they were talking to each other from time to time, too.

They were in a far off land and they were doing a great, great deal. These elephants worked from morning until night piling up great quantities of lumber or wood and then helping to build rafts.

This wood was sent to help make the great ships which are built, and oh, how important is the work that the elephants do in this way.

"I think my lucky stars I am here," said one of the elephants.

"I feel the same way," said another elephant, "even though I don't quite know what lucky stars are."

"If they're the things to thank for being here, I want to thank them, too."

So the elephants went on working quickly and steadily and they built their tummy elephant smiles and they waved their trunks and laughed as they said:

"We help in the building of great ships which sail over the ocean."

"We're not just good for doing tricks, we can work, really work, and help oh, so much."

And those who were working with the elephants admired them more and more each day.

Though I work hard I enjoy it. Their work was important and so very too.

When morning came the elephants did not complain about getting up.

They did not beg for five minutes more of sleep, nor did they say they had no wish to work.

They got up just the time they were supposed to get up.

"If I were in a circus," said one of the elephants, "we would have to do tricks."

"Even though I live far off here I keep in touch with what is going on in the world."

"I heard some travelers and adventurers talking about circus elephants and so I know."

"I wouldn't want to do tricks and bow to people. I feel so much more sensible in being a working elephant and in doing something worth while."

"Of course, it is all very well to do tricks, but it's not my way of living an interesting life."

"Well," said another elephant, "the ones who do tricks work, too."

"They must work to keep in good form, and they must do their tricks all the time. It all depends on what one is used to doing and what one's tastes are."

And all the elephants said they thought that was so.

PERSONALS

Moved Here — Welcome!

T. G. Brown, Engineer in charge of the Carrizozo - Socorro project has moved to our city. Mr. Brown is the proud father of a newly born 8-pound girl named Martha Leonor, and he has been seen passing the cigars. Too bad it wasn't another engineer! Mrs. Brown and baby will be up soon from their home at La Luz to join husband and daddy.

Notice

The Rodeo that was to be given at Corona on August 3 and 4, has been postponed until August 31 and Sept. 1, because of the present dry weather. But be here on the last dates mentioned; there will be dancing both nights with Gus Lemp's "Night Owls" of Roswell.

Tides of Puget Sound Enormous in Volume

Puget sound, the many-branched inlet of the Pacific ocean, is one of the most picturesque bodies of water in this country. Its shores, once densely wooded, have been denuded for the most part by the lumberman's ax, but the neighboring mountains offset this loss and afford a wonderful background to the scene. Although the natural beauties are many, the treacherous waters of the Narrows, a contracted part of the sound which opens farther south into quiet bays and the ports of Olympia and Shelton, are feared by all who are acquainted with that locality. The tides are extreme and their ebb and flow causes a rush of water through the Narrows. Twenty-five or thirty miles above the Narrows, in the upper reaches of the sound, the tides attain a height of twenty feet or more. Viewed from the shore, which is generally precipitous, the surging of the water as the tide sets in is magnificent, but this is the scene of many tragedies which occur each year. Tremendous whirlpools are formed in the slender passage and rarely have rowboats and such small craft escaped when gripped in the swirling water. Even large steamboats creak and groan under the strain of breasting these twisting currents. The roar of the tides when running at full resembles the distant boom of the surf.

Standard of English Speech Not Possible

A recognized authority on English words and speech recently said: "Not long ago a conference was held in London for the purpose of arriving at a universal standard for English speech. At one time I believed that it was impossible. Later, the subject was brought to my attention by prominent educators. Under the stress of arguments presented to me I weakened in my judgment, and was willing to go on record as saying that it might be possible to standardize English speech, but after two years of close study of the whole subject I feel that my first judgment was right. "It is as impossible to standardize the sounds in American and English speech with the hope of having the standardization accepted throughout the English-speaking world as it is to stem the tide of the sea."

Successful Only in West

The English walnut originated in southwestern Asia and has been under important cultivation in the United States since 1830. It is successful only in the far western states, mainly in California, Oregon and southwestern Washington. The principal center is around Los Angeles in southern California. Planting is constantly being increased in central California, northwestern Oregon and contiguous territory north of Portland. It should be grown under 2,000 feet of altitude. The climate requirements are moderate but uniform temperatures, considerable moisture, and freedom from radical drops in temperature.

Youthful Diagnostician

Helen Jeanne, the two-year-old daughter of a physician, deemed herself an efficient authority on medicine. One afternoon she sat in her rocking chair, crooning to her curly, blond-headed baby doll. Finally a disquieted look clouded her face. She exclaimed, "My baby doesn't give me any patience 'a tall!" and rocked more furiously than ever. After a minute or two, Helen Jeanne placed her soft, baby hand on her doll's forehead and, after a moment of reflection, shouted: "Muvver! Baby has ossifal temperature."

Hawk Farmer's Friend

Biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture points out that some hawks are highly beneficial to the farmer, preying almost entirely upon small mammals, such as mice, ground squirrels and rabbits. Food of other hawks consists chiefly of birds. The bird eaters should be killed at every opportunity, but it is equally important that the others be spared, for they destroy many small animal pests of the farmer. The bird-eating hawks include the Cooper hawk, and the sharp-shinned hawk.

Sounded the Same

"I've broken my favorite jazz record eight in two," said the flapper mournfully. "Guess I can fix it, though." Then she carefully glued the two parts together, putting the glue on the back side, the side that she didn't care for. Then she played it—and found she had glued a back side and a front side together. "What shall I do?" she exclaimed. "Never mind," said the cynical parent. "It sounds just about the same as if you had glued it right."

Bill Wettstein's Training School

Perhaps working one's way through school via the dish-washing or hash-slugging route had a lot of romance connected with it. It makes good reading in the American Magazine under the heading "From Waiter to Bank President." But—and it is a big But — "Them Days is Gone Forever" for the fellow who devotes a little time and perspiration to mastering a musical instrument.

Slinging hash certainly has its drawbacks. It is not conducive to acquiring poise nor is it very profitable. In fact, my recollection of several boys at college who paid their way over this route is that they had a pretty tough time of it and acquired an expression both timid and painful. Of course they've since made good—because anybody who wants education that bad, is willing to work at anything to get it, just can't help making good. They've got the right stuff in them.

But it was all so unnecessary. They just picked the hard and long route to accomplish what boys today are putting over as a pastime, having a lot of fun while they are doing it, making more money in an evening than their predecessors made in a week and acquiring a high degree of self-confidence, so necessary for success.

They are popular, belong to the Frats, and are much sought after, and they make better students because they are musicians. On this very subject, John J. Tigert, U. S. Commissioner of Education, says, "I believe that all children should be taught some musical instrument. It has the effect of training the memory, quicken-perception, stimulating imagination, encouraging concentration. It makes for mental discipline. Music students are nearly always at the head of their classes in other studies."

Every school and college has its share of boys making money, meeting the proper associates, forging ahead through the school dance orchestra or band. Where there are young folks, there are dances and parties, and the popular vehicle of musical entertainment is the school dance orchestra. Players get from five to twelve dollars a night which certainly beats the old pastime. If you want to assure yourself of a college education—start on a musical instrument now. There are abundant opportunities open to learn, and the cost won't be much.

You'll find the saxophone and clarinet easy instruments to learn to play, and are easily mastered, provided of course that you put your heart into the your work.

Above all things get a good instrument. It will last longer—is cheaper in the long run—and you'll make much better progress with it. Great artists like Herbert Clarke, Arthur Pryor, Edward Llewellyn, Gustav Heim; use the best instruments that money can buy. Not because they cost more—but because they are the best vehicles for the conveyance of perfect tones. The Master Craftsman uses the best of tools.

Many of you who read the preceding article may say, "How does music and a college education concern me. I'm too old to go to college," and in this you may be right, but only partly so. Somewhere in your town is a boy; maybe your boy, who some day will finish high school; or who some day, before he finishes, will tire of education. Let that boy own a band instrument; let him have a different interest than in books and he may keep on. To keep on, that alone is worth more money than the instrument costs, and the boy who goes still farther than high
