S. Senate, but failed to mention their standard-bearer, Gov. Al Smith. We quote from the Deming Graphic in part, as follows:

The resolution read before the convention, endorsed the records of Sam Bratton, John Morrow, and instructed delegates to the state convention for J. S. Vaught for U. S. Senator. Mrs. J. A. Greene called the attention of the convention to the fact that the name of the Democratic nominee had not been mentioned and asked the reason why, but the chairman could offer no explanation and the resolution was adopted.

Lincoln County Roads Then--and Now

In a short period of eighteen months there has been such a wonderful change in the condition of the roads in Lincoln County, that we feel it our duty to call attention to some of the many permanent improvements that have already been made, as well as the new work now under way and what we may reasonably expect if the present administration is retained in office.

STATE ROADS

The most noticeable improvement to motorists is the condition of the roads over which they travel.

This improvement has been accomplished by better maintenance, more efficient patrol crews and foremen from the Encino Road School—uniformity of work, appropriate machinery for the work to be done—and an earnest desire on the part of everyone concerned to make and keep the roads in better condition than ever before.

Everyone connected with the roads of this county takes a pride in his work; something that has never been noticeable before—and all employees are courteous to the motorist and the public.

We make this statement without fear of successful contradiction that more has been accomplished on the roads of this County in the past 18 months of the Dillon administration than during the entire four years of the Hinkle and Hannett administrations; that there is more efficiency in both State and County road organizations, and the roads are in better condition than at any previous time in the history of the County.

The following is a list of the most important State Highway Improvements in this County since January, 1927—

1—The most important accomplishment is the recent letting of a contract on Federal Highway 566 for a part of the road between Carrizozo and Socorro. This road, when completed, will close the gap on the most direct route from Texas and the southeastern states to Grand Canyon and California. To the towns between Hondo and Carrizozo, the commencement of this work is the most important event that has occurred since the Railroad was built through this part of the country.

The survey of this road between Carrizozo and Socorro was commenced in the spring of 1927. As direct alignment as possible was made, which if approved on the west end by the Federal Bureau of Roads, will shorten the distance between Carrizozo and Socorro, 20 1/2 miles. The location out of Carrizozo, goes direct across the Mal Pais and the contract for this project (Federal Aid) 9.8 miles was awarded on July 25th by the State Highway Commission. Another 9 mile Federal Aid project will be awarded at the next letting this year. In addition to this, three State Aid Projects will be constructed to make a complete road from Carrizozo to Guy Hill's ranch on the Jornada Flat.

2—Steel bridge with approaches completed over Salado Creek, east of Capitan.

3—18 miles of road have been constructed from the Zumwalt place on the Carrizozo-Roswell Highway, via Angus and Alto. This road is now under construction and will be completed to the Ruidoso in October and will open up some of the most beautiful scenery in the White Mountain area.

4—The road from Capitan Three Mile Hill to Angus, six miles, has been completed, connecting with the Ruidoso road at the latter point.

5—11 miles of road from Hondo to Glencoe along the Ruidoso has been regraded, widened and additional drainage structures provided. A new survey and location of the entire road from Hondo to the Mescalero Agency line is now being made by the Federal Bureau of Roads which will eliminate all blind curves and reduce grades in many places. When constructed, this will be a modern highway in every respect.

6—At the request of ranchmen and farmers, a 20-foot wide steel rail cattle guard was built on the east boundary line of the Lincoln National Forest near Bonnell's ranch on the Hondo-Mescalero Road.

7—The road from Corona to Carrizozo, 50 miles, has been regraded, widened, straightened where possible and additional drainage structures and cattle guards built. A new bridge has been constructed at Robsart and appropriations made for other necessary bridges and drainage on the entire road between Corona and Tularosa. This will include concrete dips, gravel dips, small bridges and culverts.

8—The road from Fort Stanton's west gate to Hondo has been regraded and widened in places and drainage structures repaired. The entire road from Capitan to the top of Nogal Hill has been regraded, widened and additional drainage structures provided. The entire road from Carrizozo to Nogal has been regraded, widened, drainage structures provided. The worst two miles of road in the county when wet, between the Vega ranch and Nogal has been graveled. There were also a number of other bad stretches of road that were either graveled or covered with cinders.

Snappy

A young man walked into a baker's shop and asked for two dozen loaves. The shopkeeper looked surprised. "Have you a tea party on?" he inquired. "No, said the man. "I'm working at the menagerie, and the kangaroo has kicked the elephant, so I want to make a bread poultice."

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

America Assists but Japan Hampers the Nationalist Government in China.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

JAPAN seems to be doing what it can to hamper the new Nationalist government of China, while the United States is proceeding toward recognition of that government and taking the lead in negotiations to free China from the unequal treaties that have restricted the nation. Only a few days ago the withdrawal was ordered of 1,350 American officers and marines from the "danger zones" in China, so there will be left in Shanghai and Peking only about 2,000 of our troops. Immediately following this, Secretary of State Kellogg dispatched a note to the Nationalist foreign minister offering to begin at once negotiations for a new treaty that will permit China to levy on imports such tariff duties as she sees fit. Under the old treaties with various powers China is not permitted to levy duties higher than 5 per cent ad valorem. Abolition of the privilege of extraterritoriality and the recognition of the Nationalist government will, it is believed, come along soon in due course.

The negotiation of a new tariff treaty will not subject American goods at once to higher duties. Under the stipulations made by Secretary Kellogg, Chinese tariff autonomy would not become effective until the unequal treaties with all other nations also are abrogated. This precludes discrimination against American exports should other nations fail to scrap the old treaties.

The Nationalists have already renounced their old treaty with Japan, but the Japanese government refused to agree to this action, holding that, as a violation of the pact was not accomplished within the stipulated period, it was automatically renewed for ten years. Premier Tanaka told the foreign diplomats in Tokyo that Japan was unable to accept the Nationalist demand in view of the provisions of the treaty itself and would be unable even to agree to a revision of the treaty until the Chinese government withdrew its notice of abrogation.

GOV. AL SMITH went down to a country club at Hampton Bay, Long Island, for a few days of vacation during which he expected to make much progress in the writing of his speech of acceptance which will be delivered on the evening of August 22 from the steps of the state capitol at Albany. Herbert Hoover, who has been resting at his home at Palo Alto, Calif., started on a sailing and automobile trip of about a thousand miles through northern California. His acceptance address is practically completed and it will be made in the great stadium of Stanford university the evening of August 11.

Probably 100,000 persons will be present to hear Mr. Hoover, and as many will gather in Albany to listen to the words of Governor Smith. But their real audiences will be perhaps a third of the population of the United States in each case, for arrangements have been made for a hookup of sixty radio stations for the broadcasting of the speeches.

ONE of the hopes of the Democrats—the winning of Wisconsin—was stimulated by the hot fight up there between the regular Republicans and the La Follette group. The young radical senator is up for renomination and is opposed by G. W. Mend, mayor of Wisconsin Rapids. The real battle is over the governorship, for which there are three candidates. Gov. Fred Zimmerman, who is a dry and has become rather a free lance, seeks re-election. Walter Kohler was nominated by the regular Republicans on a middle of the road program; and Joseph D. Beck is the La Follette candidate and for Volstead act revision. Democrats believe their cause would be aided by the nomination of Beck and La Follette. The primaries are to be held on September 4. The wet section in Wisconsin is notoriously strong. On the other hand, the Republicans say that the Wisconsin swing toward Smith will be stopped effectively by the prospects of a good harvest and that they are confident of carrying the Badger state in November. John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, has resigned as chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors corporation, because, it was said, some of the directors of the concern who are supporting Hoover thought Mr. Raskob's retention of the position would make it appear that the corporation was backing the Smith candidacy. In his letter of resignation Mr. Raskob recognized this possibility and also said his duties as national chairman would take all his time.

In one way it was a Hoover week. The Republican candidate and Senator Hiram Johnson of California ended their eight-year-old feud; Robert L. Owen, former United States senator from Oklahoma and a Democratic power, announced that he would support the Republican candidate, believing him "the best qualified man any party ever presented for President"; Senator F. M. Simmons of North Carolina, who opposed Smith's nomination, resigned as a member of the Democratic national committee without explaining his action; and officers of the Daughters of the Confederacy in California declared most of that state's members of the order, Democrats in the past, would vote for Hoover. William H. Woodin, president of the American Car and Foundry company and for years a member of the staunchly Republican Union League club of New York, came out for Smith.

ROY O. WEST of Chicago, former secretary of the Republican national committee and a Democrat adherent in Illinois politics, was appointed secretary of the Interior to succeed Dr. Hubert Work, and assumed his duties in Washington. He faced several big matters that will require his official action. These include the Boulder dam investigation, big reclamation and irrigation projects, oil leases on public lands, and the Alaskan railroad. Doctor Work in introducing Mr. West expressed the hope that the latter might serve even longer than his own five-year term. In view of Doctor Work's close connection with Herbert Hoover his remarks were interpreted as implying that he expects Mr. West to remain in the cabinet in the event of the election of Mr. Hoover.

It was stated in Washington that President Coolidge had offered the vacant secretaryship of commerce to William M. Butler of Massachusetts, former Republican national chairman.

GENERAL NOBILE and the other survivors of the Italia-disaster arrived at Oslo, Norway, on the Citta di Milano and were immediately put aboard a train for Italy. An armed seaman guarded the vessel's gangplank and no one was permitted to see or talk with the Italians. With them were three Swedes who took part in the sledge expedition to search for Captain Amundsen and his comrades.

The Russian ice breaker Krassin, which rescued the Nobile party, had another chance to save lives. It received wireless calls for help sent by the German motorship Monte Cervantes which, with 1,300 passengers aboard, had struck a rock at Bell Island, Spitzbergen. The Krassin hurried to the rescue and sent divers down to examine the damage to the German boat's hull.

Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer hopped off from Rockford, Ill., in the plane Greater Rockford on their projected flight to Stockholm, Sweden, by way of Greenland and Iceland. But the plane was too heavily loaded and the aviators were forced to land on rough ground. Neither man was injured, but the machine was so badly smashed that the flight may be delayed for several weeks.

Paris, Marot and Caden, Frenchmen, flew to the Azores from Brazil on their way to the United States, but one of their motors was scratched hopelessly and they were ordered home.

JOSE TORAL, mayor of General Obregon, confessed that he was persuaded to commit the crime by Manuel Trujillo, an employee of the national state factory in Mexico City, who purchased and gave to him the pistol he used. He said he thought he was aiding the cause of the Catholic church, but now realized he had been the tool of labor leaders. A priest induced him to make the confession by telling him he was doing great harm to the church by concealing the truth. Luis Morones, head of the Mexican laborites, who resigned as secretary of labor and went into hiding, and his associates are bitterly scored by the agrarian groups which were supporters of Obregon. The agrarians are demanding that "all labor influences" be removed from the national government, holding them morally responsible for the assassination. They do not even ask the death penalty for Toral. During the week the Obregonista leaders were trying to determine who should become President on December 1. It seemed probable that either President Calles would be asked to succeed himself as provisional President under certain constitutional arrangements which might be made or that Aaron Saenz, governor of Nuevo Leon, would be favored.

REV. RT. HON. RANDALL THOMAS DAVIDSON, archbishop of Canterbury and as such primate of the Church of England, has announced his resignation which will take effect on November 12. He has been in poor health for several years, but the real reason for his action was his recent failure to obtain adoption by the house of commons of the revised book of common prayer. Doctor Davidson was eighty years old and had been primate since 1903. He always has taken a keen interest in industrial and economic affairs. It was presumed he would be succeeded by the archbishop of York.

DURING a debate on unemployment, Prime Minister Baldwin of England told the house of commons that lower freight charges on all selected traffic, including agricultural produce, coal and basic industries, would go into effect next December, ten months earlier than had been planned, and would bring industrial relief estimated at $20,000,000 a year. The prime minister also announced that the export credits scheme, which is due to terminate in September of next year, is to be extended for another two years, while the government will assist with money grants the removal of unemployment labor from distressed areas to other districts. Another scheme of the British government, announced by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill, is the sending of more than 10,500 persons to Canada from the mining districts at a cost of $3,000,000.

During the world in 23 days and 15 hours, Capt. C. B. D. Collyer and John Henry Mears established a new record when they stepped from a boat at the Battery, New York city. The journey was made by steamships and airplanes and they traveled in all 19,725 miles at an average speed of 840 miles a day.

DAME ELLEN TERRY, Britain's best loved actress and almost as well known and well loved in America, died at her home in Kent in her eighty-first year. In deference to her own request there was "no funeral gloom" at the obsequies, held in the village of Small Hythe and St. Paul's church, London, and her ashes were deposited in the crypt of St. Paul's. Others who died during the week included Dr. George Colvin, president of the University of Louisville, Kentucky, and Rear Admiral W. M. Folger, retired.

FRANCE to send representatives to Paris for the signing, on August 27, of the Kellogg antiwar treaty. The ceremony will be held in the famous Halle d'Horloge of the ministry of foreign affairs and will be most elaborate.

The referee stopped the battle, Healey having been knocked unconscious in the tenth and being at Gene's mercy. It was estimated that Tex Rickard, the promoter, lost $400,000 by the contest.

Indication that the total valuation of all property in Arizona for taxation purposes this year will show an increase of $10,000,000 is shown in an abstract of county tax rolls prepared by Charles R. Howe, chairman of the state tax commission.

A motion for a rehearing of a suit brought by the Citrus Growers' Association against the Salt River Valley (Ariz.) Water Users' Association to determine the validity of two bond issues aggregating $5,000,000, was denied by the Supreme Court.

Hundreds of persons from the plains of west Texas and the valley towns of New Mexico are spending their vacations in the Lincoln national forest. Commercial organizations of Alamogordo and Roswell estimated the visitors at more than 200,000 last year, and that the 1925 season will probably exceed that number.

Following Gov. R. C. Dillon's suggestion that proposed legislation be prepared early, State Land Commissioner E. F. Pankey has made three suggestions. These are for a law providing for the disposition of 25,000 acres of land just granted New Mexico by Congress; a code covering mineral leases, in the event of passage of a proposed constitutional amendment, and protection of the public interest in gas and oil development in southeastern New Mexico.

The acquisition of a large tract of land for the production of out-of-door operas, pageants and concerts and work on the remodeling of campus buildings are steps taken recently in Gila College's expansion program at Safford.

Gasoline consumption in New Mexico increased 22 per cent in the fiscal year just closed over the one preceding, while the number of motor vehicles licensed in the state gained but 7 1/2 per cent. This reflects the tourist increase that highways bring about.

The Controversy in the Church at Antioch (vv. 1-5).

This difficulty was a most serious one, for it threatened the disruption of the church into Jewish and Gentile divisions. It was not a question of the admission of the Gentiles into the church, that had been settled some years before when Peter received Cornelius and his household. The question now was, on what ground can they be received? Should Gentile converts be required to keep the Mosaic law as a condition of salvation? This issue was brought on by the coming of certain men from Jerusalem, who declared, "Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved (v. 1)." The question was so difficult that Paul and Barnabas were unable to put them to silence. These Jewish legalists had the letter of the Scripture on their side. They could point to the command where this was enjoined upon believers (Gen. 17:14). Paul could not point to any Scripture where it had been abrogated. If Paul could plead that Abraham was justified before he was circumcised, his antagonists could answer, "Yes, but after justification the rite was divinely imposed." The brethren at Antioch decided to refer the matter to the church at Jerusalem. Accordingly, Paul and Barnabas and others were sent as a deputation to Jerusalem.

II. The Deliberations of the Council (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter's speech (vv. 6-11). He argued that God had borne witness to His acceptance of the Gentiles by giving the Holy Spirit to them as unto the Jews (Acts 10:34-47). Since therefore, God had not put a difference it would be folly for them to do so.

2. Paul and Barnabas rehearsed their experience (v. 12). They told how that God had set His seal of approval on their preaching of salvation by grace through faith apart from works, by the working of signs and wonders through them.

3. The argument of James (vv. 14-21). He took the fact declared by Peter and showed how it harmonized with the prophecy of Amos (Amos 9:11-15). He showed that the reception of the Gentiles was not in conflict but in strict harmony with God's plan. As set forth in James' speech, God's plan is as follows:

(1) To take out from among the Gentiles a people for His name (v. 14). This is what is now going on, the preaching of the gospel to the ends of the earth, and the calling out of the church.

(2) After the church is completed and removed, the Israelitish nation will be converted and restored to their land and privileges by the Lord Himself at His return (vv. 16, 17).

(3) Following this will be the conversion of the world through the agency of converted Israel (v. 17, cf. Rom. 11:15). He showed that there is no conflict when the Scriptures are rightly divided. His judgment was that the Gentiles should not be troubled with things that are Jewish, but should be warned to "abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood."

III. The Decision (vv. 22-20).

The Jerusalem church came to a unanimous agreement and accepted the resolution offered by James. They not only sent a letter stating the decision of the conference, but took the wise precaution of sending influential men along with Paul and Barnabas to bear the same testimony by word of mouth. This letter denied the authority of the Judaizing teachers (v. 24), and declared the method by which this decision had been reached (vv. 25-27). The Holy Spirit was to be given first place, and the Gentile believers were instructed to abstain from meats offered to idols, from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication.

IV. The Decision Delivered to the Church (vv. 30-35).

The church was called together to hear the report. Its reading brought rejoicing. They were now free to prosecute the great missionary work.

Knowing How to Pray

The life of a man upon earth is a warfare; and it is much better, in the midst of enemies and dangers, to be acquainted with one fortress than with many laws. He that knows how to pray may be pressed, but cannot be overwhelmed.—Robert Leighton.

Enemies Hard to Fight

It will require more than a few hours of fasting and prayer to cast out such demons as selfishness, worldliness, and unbelief.—T. L. Cuyler.

The RETURN of ANTHONY TRENT

by WYNDHAM MARTYN

"I must leave this house at once," she exclaimed. "He recognized me. He is here to rob, and if I tell Mrs. Grant he will revenge himself. You see I dare not remain."

"But where was he taking you? Why did he chloroform you?"

She gripped his arm as though the fears which had passed in their most vivid form were again taking possession of her.

"Do you see that little light moving gently? It is a tramp steamer he has chartered. He was to carry me down to South America with him. I was to have been held there until tomorrow night. Tomorrow he is going to rob the house and make his escape. It is all planned. They fear the fine weather is going to break up and if he delays later than tomorrow he cannot escape by water from here."

He felt her shudder at the realization of her narrow escape.

"I hope I've broken his d-d neck," Trent muttered. His arm was about her waist and her head rested on his shoulder. She sighed a little bitterly. She supposed that a woman such as she had no right to expect happiness.

"I cannot tell you more now," she said, rising. "I am still half stupefied from the chloroform."

"But where are you going?" he asked. "The first policeman you meet would arrest you."

"I dare not stay here."

"I've an excellent plan," he said cheerfully. "I have a secluded apartment and a dear old housekeeper who is absolutely reliable. I'll take you to her now. You can stay there for twenty years if you want to. You'll find another guest in Natica Grant's former husband, whose money bought all this luxury. He's hiding there till I can make the world safe for him."

"You must not run into danger on my account," she said.

"It will be more dangerous for both of us if you are denounced by Redlich, who will get free some time. The butler may feel he has to tell his employer that you and I know one another, and then I shall be invited to say why you sent letters to me and I sent 'em to you. Our safety depends on your getting away immediately."

"But how? There are no trains or trolleys at this hour, and the men in the garage would hear you driving your car out."

"Not with ordinary luck," he assured her. "I can roll her down the grade to the street. I shouldn't need to start the motor till then."

Trent had a garage key and rolled out his car so noiselessly that none heard him. He wrapped Mademoiselle Dupin in a heavy fur coat and further disguised her with violet-colored goggles.

"I've got to make time," he said as the machine began to hum rhythmically, "and I daren't be arrested for speeding. This cool night air will blow those fumes away pretty soon. When you can, tell me just what happened."

She told him what had occurred since Redlich entered her room.

"I hope I shall never smell that tabac Maryland again. . . . Never have I felt so alone and hopeless. How could I know that the cigarettes he was throwing from the window would save me? Once on board that ship and there would have been no more help for me in this world."

He set himself to banish these terrible memories.

"You will forget it in your new home," he reminded her. "You will be with two of my dear and faithful friends. Don't forget, by the way, to write a note to Mrs. Grant saying you were suddenly called away."

From Jersey City he telephoned to Mrs. Kinney.

"We shall be expected," he said, climbing back into the car, "and you will find yourself at home."

During the quiet few minutes of the ferry trip he told her why she would find Sutton there.

"He will think this trouble of mine has interfered with what you were going to do for him," she said contritely.

"Then he'll be wrong. I've plans all mapped out for Sutton."

To a woman of Mrs. Kinney's type there was something not a little alarming in being called from her slumbers at such an hour. But during the years she had been with him she had come to repose implicit faith in Anthony Trent. She wished she could see him happily married if a woman his equal might be found.

She saw, as the door opened, a tall woman with distinguished features, as Trent introduced her. "Welcome, Mrs. Kinney," she said approvingly of the unflashy dress she wore. "This was one who should be splendidly arrayed."

Captain Sutton only knew she was beautiful and had rather the grand manner with her.

"Miss Dupin," Trent declared, "is going to stay here until her affairs are more settled."

"I owe my life to Mr. Trent," she said simply. "Tonight I was in very grave peril and he saved me."

"It's a habit with him," Sutton said. "He's engaged in saving me right now."

"Captain Sutton is a profound exaggerator," Trent laughed. "Let us have some coffee."

"Let me arrange my hair first," Mademoiselle Dupin said, looking in a mirror. "I am bedraggled."

"While she's gone," Trent said, "you've got to copy these pleasing communications in your own handwriting." He passed a paper to the captain on which a half-dozen paragraphs of a few lines each were penciled.

Sutton saw that they were rather melodramatic threats addressed to Payson Grant.

"I don't understand," he said, bewildered.

"He will, when he gets them," Trent laughed. "These are necessary to the complete destruction of his morale."

When Sutton had written each paragraph on a piece of plain paper, Trent put them in his pocket. "Good," he exclaimed. "I can't tell you much now, but I'll be back in a few days with everything outlined. Meanwhile, just a word about Miss Dupin. She's in just as much danger as you are. She must not be encouraged to do more than look out of the window."

"You can't mean that girl has been outside the law?" Sutton was astonished.

"One of the cleverest and nerviest of them all," Trent said. "Sutton, she is the only person I have met in my career who fooled me and got away with it. And she's as much through with that sort of life as I am." He shifted a little uneasily on his chair. "I wonder what sort of a d-d fool you think me for talking like this? I suppose you think my nerve has gone? Perhaps it has."

Sutton touched the other's arm with a swift, sudden motion of affection.

"Trent," he said, "you know we men never can say what's in our hearts because we feel ashamed of showing anything deeper than the ordinary. You haven't lost your nerve. You haven't lost anything. You've found something."

Perhaps they were both glad when Mademoiselle Dupin came into the room. She had arranged her hair in a manner so much more becoming that it seemed to Trent she had wrought a miracle. There was no mention of the graver events of the night. It was Trent's aim to leave her in a brighter mood.

"Before I go," he said, "and I haven't ten minutes left, write out your formal resignation."

While Mademoiselle Dupin was at the escritoire he walked to the kitchen where Mrs. Kinney had gone.

"You told me once you had been a dressmaker," he began.

"For three years," she said.

He took out a roll of notes and put them in her hand.

"Take Miss Dupin's measurements as well as you can without letting her know it, and go to a good store and buy something suitable for her to wear. For some reasons I can't explain she's doing penance. She's done enough of it. I can't bear to see her dressed as she is now. I have known her a long time and I have never seen a woman better turned out than she used to be. Destroy those things she has so she simply must wear better ones. After a time she'll get happier."

Mrs. Kinney never asked for amplified instructions.

"I understand perfectly," she said.

Many Persons Unable to Distinguish Colors

It is a curious fact that color-blind persons are not often aware of their defect of vision. Even scientific men frequently fail to detect this defect in themselves.

The following is a favorite theory to account for the cause of color-blindness. The eye is capable of four distinct color sensations—blue, yellow, red and green. These arise, however, from only two sources, each of which has a double action, producing the sensations of two complementary colors. One of the sources of sensation corresponds to blue and yellow, the other to red and green. Most color-blind people are deficient in the latter source of sensation and can distinguish, therefore, only blue and yellow, with their compounds, but sometimes the reverse is the case. The number of persons afflicted in

"She will probably want to help you in the house. Let her. It will do her good. Don't let her sit alone and mope."

When Trent returned to the big room Mademoiselle Dupin had written a note regretting her hurried departure, and informing Mrs. Grant that she could be addressed at the general delivery, San Diego, California. This pleasant city had the advantage of being only seventeen miles from the Mexican border.

Trent left the two prisoners in a manner so light-hearted that they were assured of his ultimate triumph. Outside the door his face lost something of its confidence. So far as he knew he had brought the "Countess" to the city unseen and unsuspected. But he had no means of knowing that some prying eyes had not observed him.

It was light when he came in sight of the big, white palace by the sea. He brought his car up the slight ascent almost without noise. He saw none about and no face peering from any window.

On the table in the hall he placed the letter Mademoiselle Dupin had written. Next he ascended with the utmost caution to the deserted top floor, which was shut off from the servants' quarters in the rear. It was well he had thought to make the room tidy. Furniture was upset and flowers fallen from their vases were on the floor. There was such obvious evidence of a severe struggle that he wondered none had heard. He gathered up what of her belongings he could see and stuffed them into a grip. Mrs. Grant might be resentful at the sudden departure of her teacher, but she need not now fear violence and call in officials.

There was another thing to do before he took the rest he craved. Under the door of Payson Grant's room Trent thrust one of the letters Sutton had written blindly. He could prophesy without fear of error that the coming day would be an exciting one.

CHAPTER VII

The Letter From Nowhere.

Albert Thorpe, the butler, was the first in the house to awaken. Since Mrs. Grant had ordered him to obey Yeatman implicitly, he slept uncomfortably on a camp-bed drawn across the door of the footmen's room and might not even rebuke them for snoring since his errand was a secret one. At daylight he considered himself free to go downstairs and mix himself a little stimulant. Next he took a handful of sweet crackers from a silver box and opened a door leading to the terrace. Here, every morning, the alreadies were wont to wait for the biscuits and hear the jovial sort of talk dogs love.

They were in their accustomed place this morning; but not again would they prance about their friend and show their affection. The man saw instantly that they had come to their end through poison. For all his stately airs and commanding presence, the butler had a soft heart where dogs were concerned. Tears filled his eyes and the desire for vengeance inflamed his heart.

After all, the detective had been right in his precaution if mistaken in his methods. Thorpe immediately sought out Yeatman. Obviously a search of the premises must be made under the detective's leadership.

Mr. Yeatman was not in his room; his bed had not been slept in. It was in another sort of bed he had passed a night full of alarms, cramps and the intrusion of inquisitive rodents. When he came to consciousness, in the cold hour of dawn, he found himself so securely bound that movement was impossible, and so well gagged that he could utter no sound.

He did not doubt that his assailant—no amateur in violence—was a confederate of the woman he had so nearly abducted. He had been incredibly stupid to be so rash. It had always been with him that a woman made him banish his caution. There was the male attitude to dangle the woman which had been his ruin ere this.

He saw before him only immitigable disaster. While he was lying amid cabages, the house was being robbed which he had been engaged to protect. He would be blamed for being a bad detective when he had desired to be a successful thief.

Thorpe called up Regan at the garage.

"The two dogs have been poisoned," he announced, "and it's my belief burglars did it. You'd better search the grounds while I go through the house."

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Would Become a Saloon Party

Extract from an article by Rev. L. B. Lawrence in the Baptist New Mexican:

"The only way to save the Democratic party is to defeat Al Smith. If Smith is elected, the party becomes the tool of Tammany. Tammany put Smith on the ticket in spite of the protests of the South — and once in power, it will make the party the tool for its political plunder. It becomes a party of nullification and repeal. It will become, as Smith says, a 'saloon party.'"

"The South, if she preserves her high ideals, will repudiate Tammany, and if Smith is buried under an avalanche of votes, so large that Tammany will never come back, it will be forced to loosen its stranglehold on the Democratic party, and those who believe in the principals of the party will have a chance to rebuild on the principles of its founders."

"The new leaders laugh to scorn, the protests of the South — and why? Because they believe that no matter whom they nominate, the South will vote the ticket Straight. They presume that the South is tied up in mental narrowness. I resent the assumption and sling it back into the teeth of the Tammany Tiger and the wet bunch that are making it. I do not believe that the Christian men and women of the South are so prejudiced, politically, that they will forget right and wrong, when they come to the polls next November."

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Would Become a Saloon Party

Extract from an article by Rev. L. B. Lawrence in the Baptist New Mexican:

"The only way to save the Democratic party is to defeat Al Smith. If Smith is elected, the party becomes the tool of Tammany. Tammany put Smith on the ticket in spite of the protests of the South -- and once in power, it will make the party the tool for its political plunder. It becomes a party of nullification and repeal. It will become, as Smith says, a 'saloon party.'"

"The South, if she preserves her high ideals, will repudiate Tammany, and if Smith is buried under an avalanche of votes, so large that Tammany will never come back, it will be forced to loosen its stranglehold on the Democratic party, and those who believe in the principals of the party will have a chance to rebuild on the principles of its founders."

"The new leaders laugh to scorn, the protests of the South -- and why? Because they believe that no matter whom they nominate, the South will vote the ticket Straight. They presume that the South is tied up in mental narrowness. I resent the assumption and sling it back into the teeth of the Tammany Tiger and the wet bunch that are making it. I do not believe that the Christian men and women of the South are so prejudiced, politically, that they will forget right and wrong, when they come to the polls next November."

Fairy Tale for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM RONNER

"I'm glad you like the sea as I do," said Mr. Sharp-Tailed Sparrow, "and it is nice that you have your nest in the same salt water marsh that I have chosen for my nest."

"This marsh leads right into our beloved ocean, as we can see from here."

And then both birds began to sing a song about the beautiful ocean and how they loved the salt water and the salt air and the salt sea breezes. They said it made them feel so full of life. They never got tired of the sea because it was always changing.

"It's strange that we should have met here," said Mr. Sharp-Tailed Sparrow, "though I have heard our two families often did have their nests in the same places."

"And I've heard that we do the same things—we build the same sorts of nests, and are just as alike as brothers."

"We're cousins," said Mr. Seaside Sparrow.

"But we are like brothers," said Mr. Sharp-Tailed Sparrow.

"We admire each other's ways," said Mr. Seaside Sparrow.

"Yes, that is why we do things so much alike," said Mr. Sharp-Tailed Sparrow.

"Let's take a little hop through these glorious long grasses."

"It's almost like playing hide-and-go-seek," said Mr. Seaside Sparrow.

So they went through the tall grasses and pushed and ran over the sand, or rather hopped over the sand.

They chattered and chirped and trilled and squeaked in their funny little voices and chattered of everything possible, but mostly they talked of the sea and of how they loved the sea.

wind and the salt in the air and the salt in the sea and the salt in the marshes.

In fact they agreed that they were very fond of salt and they were so glad that the sea always was salty.

They said how horrible it would be if the sea were ever without salt, and then they became quite sad.

But after awhile they comforted themselves by remembering that the sea had never been without salt as far as they had ever heard, and they didn't believe it ever would be.

"What sort of a home do you have, Mr. Seaside Sparrow?" asked Mr. Sharp-Tailed Sparrow.

"I have a nest of seaweed and long grasses which I find does very well—grasses such as we have here," said Mr. Seaside Sparrow.

"And Mrs. Sparrow has greenish white eggs, speckled with brown which she lays in the nest."

"I often cover my nest with dried-out seaweed, dried by Mr. Sun."

"The very same ways as I have," said Mr. Sharp-Tailed Sparrow.

And then they talked of their many cousins, the Nelson Sparrows, the Dusky Seaside Sparrows who would only live in Florida, and of the many other seaside sparrows.

But most of all they enjoyed finding out that their ways were just the same.

Household Notes

A coat of tan is a coat of health; but don't put it on too quickly.

If stockings are purchased half a size longer than is actually needed for the foot, less mending is required.

Crisp foods like toast, celery, or raw cabbage for children give the teeth exercise and encourage digestion.

To prolong its usefulness and increase its efficiency, keep your sewing machine clean with gasoline and a stiff brush.

Rhubarb is one of the best palates for spring appetites and contains valuable calcium and iron. Use it while it is plentiful and inexpensive.

SANDWICHES WITH CREAM CHEESE

Cream Cheese Mixed With Finely Chopped Watercress.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The rolled sandwiches in the illustration, taken by the United States Department of Agriculture, are spread with cream cheese mixed with finely chopped watercress. Chow chow, chili sauce, or any desired pickle mixture might have been used in place of the watercress. Equal parts of soft cheese, chopped olives, pimento, or green peppers, and nuts might be used. Many different finely chopped vegetables may be worked into cream cheese to be used in this way. Some of the best liked are parsley, watercress, lettuce, spring onions, chives, radishes, cucumbers, and celery. Onion or lemon juice may be included in the seasoning.

The bread for rolled sandwiches should be fresh and elastic in texture, so that it will not crumble or break when rolled. Spread the sandwich mixture on the cut end of the loaf, then with a very sharp knife, cut off the thinnest possible slice, roll it up, and trim the ends.

Toasted crackers are used for the round sandwiches. In a hollow on top of each a little colorful jelly is placed. These crackers should not be spread until just before they are to be eaten, as the cheese softens the crackers if allowed to stand.

Pitching to Babe Ruth

By RING LARDNER

To the Editor: This is just a few items of information about a ball player that maybe you have never heard of him so I will tell you his name in the first paragraph and his name is George Ruth, but they call him Babe on acct. of him being over 6 ft. tall and pretty near as wide and he is a great left hand pitcher that don't pitch.

Well, I day in May I had seen a whole lot of sporting events that hores you to death and the White Sox from old Chi was playing in New York City so I thought I needed a little more boring, so I went to the Yankee's Stadium and went down to the bench and Mgr. Schalk was setting there and he says hello to me but I just made a face at him, but he asked me to set down a minute and a boy named Thomas was going to pitch and he was out there warming up and finely he got warmed and came into the bench and Mgr. Schalk said:

"Come here and sit down a minute, Tommy, as I want to talk to you."

So Tommy set down and Mgr. Schalk said to him:

"Say, listen Tommy, They's a man on this New York club named Ruth and he isn't Cobb and he isn't Speaker or Sleser or Jackson. He is a bird that if you ever throw a ball where he can reach it that ball won't be available for tomorrow's game and baseballs cost as much money as other commodities now days, so if you don't mind, why when this guy comes up there don't pitch him anything that he can lay his bat against it, but roll the ball up there on the ground and I'll take the consequences." So Tommy said: "Yes, sir."

Well, they started this game in the first inning and the White Sox didn't do nothing, and it come the New York's turn to get their innings and there was 1 out and Koenig got on 1st base and along came Ruth. The next thing I seen of that 2 dollar ball was when it was floating over the right field bleachers. So when Tommy came into the bench Mgr. Schalk says what did I tell you and Tommy says I didn't mean to pitch it where it went.

So the next time Babe come up all he got was a 3 base hit because they were pitching more carefully to him. Well, after a while it become necessary to put in a pinch hitter for Tommy and Red Faber was sent in to finish the game. Mgr. Schalk didn't tell Red where to pitch to Babe because Red's what you might call an old timer, so Red pitched one at this bird's Adam's apple and he hit it into the right field stands for another homer, as I have nicknamed them.

Now this isn't no reflection on neither of these pitchers witch I hope is both friends of mine, but if I was managing a ball club in the American league, I would tell them how to pitch to this bird. I would stand on the mound and throw the first ball to first base and the secod ball to second base and the third ball to third base and then I would leave the fourth one out in the right field, because he couldn't be in all these places at once and furthermore, they's a rule that makes a batter stand in the batter's box and if a person pitches in that direction with this guy up why all you can say about them is that they are a sucker.

For inst. the last time the White Sox was here a certain prominent Chicago baseball writer was setting next to Col. Ruppert that owns the Yanks, and this Geo. Ruth comes up and the brewery king says to him, how much will you bet that he don't crack one out of the park on this occasion. So the baseball writer says what's the proper odds? So Jake says, well I don't want to cheat you and I'll bet a pt. to a qt. that he murders one. So the sucker took it and the first ball was a foul that went into Mr. McCurly's ft., and the next was a ball and then the old boy took one right over the middle for another strike and the next one hasn't yet been located, but when last seen it was soreing over a cigarette sign in right center.

Another way to make him stop hitting home runs off of you is to refuse to pitch when it's his turn. The most useless thing in the world when this guy's up there to bat is the opposing catcher, because if you can't throw a ball past Mr. Ruth why it don't make no difference if it's caught or not, where as if you try and throw one over the plate it won't never get as far as the catcher.

Once a guy came here with the St. Louis Browns and struck the Babe out three times in one afternoon. And if he is smart he will let that go down into posterity, and the next time they tell him it's his turn to pitch vs. the N. Y. club he will say he has got a sore arm.

HOT WEATHER DRESS FOR LITTLE GIRL

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Here's an excellent type of sleeveless dress for a little girl to wear on warm afternoons in summer. It was designed by the bureau of home economics to be made from any plain commercial pattern that has kimono sleeves with a seam on the shoulder. The armholes are made at the point most becoming to the child. Carried out in white or pastel shades, it is pretty enough for a party, and yet if developed in colors, such as old rose, green, delft blue or even darker shades, it would be entirely suitable for ordinary wear on hot summer days. The material is fine cotton voile, and the only trimming consists of the attached design in leaf green yarn, and the neck binding and tie of green voile to match. This dress is so simple that it can be cut out and made on the sewing machine in about two hours.

The armholes and front opening are bound in the white voile, and slight gathers are taken in at the neck and bound in green voile. To make the attached trimming, the yarn is wound machine. On children's dresses handwoven hems facilitate letting the dress down when necessary. The first hem should be very wide to allow for growth. In sheer materials like voile the turned under part of the hem will look best if it is the full width of the hem, and the allowance for letting down can be taken care of in this way.

MAKING COTTAGE CHEESE

One gallon of skim milk will make about one and one half pounds of cottage cheese. If the milk is sweet it should be placed in a pan and left in a clean, warm place at a temperature of about 75 degrees F. until it clabbers, when it should have a clean, sour flavor. Ordinarily this takes about 20 hours. A small quantity of clean-davored sour milk mixed with the sweet milk will hasten the process, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

An agreeable sight is an old man who is dressy to his dying day.

There is such a variety of fancy cakes and desserts that one may prepare with choux paste that it is a good recipe with which to become familiar. To the untrained cook, the making of choux paste seems difficult, but if directions are followed carefully even the most inexperienced will have good results. The proper mixing and baking are the important things to remember: Take one cupful of hot water, one-half cupful of butter—a mixture of lard and butter may be used—but of course butter is better, add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and place over the heat, as soon as the butter is melted bring the mixture to the boiling point quickly, then add one cupful of flour, all at once, stir briskly until smooth and continue cooking and stirring until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan in a golden creamy mass; now remove from the heat and continue stirring until it begins to cool, pour into a cold bowl and wait until it is slightly warm to the touch. Now we are ready to add the eggs, using three and adding them without beating, one at a time, beating the mixture well after each egg is added, beat until the mixture becomes creamy; it will seem as if it will not blend, but keep beating until it does become as smooth as satin. Drop in spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and bake in hot oven at first then in a moderate oven. If one before taking from the oven—it must feel light and buoyant. The best flour to use in making these puffs is a combination of equal parts of pastry and bread flour. Ecjalms are made with the same paste, but they are made in long, narrow fingers and allowed to stand five minutes before putting into the oven. Small puffs will bake in less time but the ordinary sized cream puff will need thirty minutes, the first ten in a hot oven and finish in a slower heat.

Summary Dishes

During the warm weather of summer, as the appetite is not so keen, more dainty and less hearty foods are enjoyed here are some old standbys:

Ice Box Pudding.—Take one half cupful of minute tapioca and add to one pint of hot grape juice, place in a double boiler and let stand over hot water until cooked and clear.

Add one cupful of sugar, remove from the heat and add one-fourth cupful of orange juice, one small bottle of marsh-mallows cut fine, using the juice. Cool and before the tapioca is thick pour into a greased mold lined on the bobbin, after loosening the shuttle tension, and white thread is used for the upper stitch. The design is marked and attached on the wrong side of the material. The turned-back corners of the square pockets are also trimmed with the stitching. These pockets are made of a double square of voile, and turned with the seams in. They are in keeping with the design on the front.

It is a good idea to use a double bias neck binding about three-fourths of an inch wide when folded. The raw edges and the top of the dress are sewed together, with the binding lying on the right side of the garment. The binding is then folded over, but does not have raw edges to be turned under on the other side. A second stitching, also on the right side, very close to the first seam, holds the fold edge and makes a neat finish.

Hems on any dresses are much more attractive if put in by hand, and often not better than when stitched on the

Frocks With Coats to Match

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

THE call of the midsummer mode is to complete the costume picture with a complementary coat. Greatest enthusiasm is shown by both fashionists and fashionable for the new custom of matching the coat to the frock.

This popular matching mode finds its happiest expression in the realm of gay print ensembles which top lively patterned dresses with coats of the selfsame lively patterned material. The picture emphasizes the fact that this colorful ensemble vogue which is so prominent in the midsummer landscape features both "the long and the short of it" as far as coats are concerned.

The model to the left, as you see, is the fashionable seven-eighths length. It is a highly colorful affair from start to finish, its navy silk background being enlivened with a print done in vivid scarlet and buff—quite Spanish in its coloring. The hemline of the dress and its diagonal front opening are scalloped. A piping of plain red outlines all the edges.

One is almost justified in referring to this three-piece sports costume to the right as a travelogue ensemble, because of the fact that the printed crepe of which it is made is one of those new scenic silks, this one cleverly depicting certain famous playgrounds of the world. There are palm trees and little figures and sea and sky and such, admirably depicted so as to produce a handsome all-over design. The colors are particularly fetching, harmonized and blending so as to produce a fascinating pastel effect.

Another important style feature of this sports frock is the fact of the blouse being seen sleeves. The sleeveless mode is spreading. This, however, need not alarm those who do not admire sleeveless frocks. Likewise those to whom sleevelessness is say-thing but becoming may solve the problem of being chic by wearing a sleeveless coat of the identical material as that of the dress. Most of the sheer costumes for breezy garden party wear and the like stress a matching coat, as well as do the smart sports outfits of silk and crepe, of pique or linen as the case may be.

A "Company" Dessert

Here's a "company" dessert that will appeal to your guests, whether young or old. It must be made several hours before it is wanted, and that is always an advantage, since it permits the housewife to "get the dessert out of the way" and give her attention to other dishes on the menu. The bureau of home economics sponsors the recipe:

1/2 lb. dried apricots 1/2 cup boiling water
2 1/2 cups cold water 1/2 cup whipping cream
1 1/2 lbs. gelatin 1/2 pint whipping cream
1 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoonful salt

Wash the apricots and soak them over night in 2 cupfuls of cold water. Cook the apricots until soft in the water in which they were soaked and press them through a fine sieve or colander. Put the 1/2 cupful of cold water over the gelatin and after it stands for 5 minutes add the boiling water. Stir until the gelatin has dissolved, then add the sugar, salt, and apricot pulp. Chill and fold in the cream which has been whipped. Line a serving dish with lady fingers or slices of sponge cake, and pile the apricot mixture lightly in the center. Place the dish in the cold for an hour or more before serving.

Lincoln Co. Fair & Track Meet Oct. 12-13, 1928

The management has been officially advised that Corona will enter this year a track team which they think would make Atlanta or Charley Paddock look as if they were standing still while doing their "dead level." The boys from the north town also have a string of two-year olds that they are willing to enter in the races against any colts of the same age from anywhere.

road by Lincoln and Chaves Counties and the State Highway Commission. On account of the mileage and rough country this road cannot be completed this year but the above amount will make a good start. Work on this road was commenced last week.

10—Carrizozo - Gran Quivira: Funds have been set aside for the construction of this road and work will start sometime this year.

11—New Equipment has been purchased for maintenance forces in this County. This equipment consists of two Five-Ton Tractors, 2 Adams Maintainers, two Ford Trucks, one 7 1-2 Ton Monarch Tractor and one Liberty Truck.

12—We cannot refrain from mentioning the new cattle guards adopted by the State Highway Department. Railroad iron, 20 feet wide, with properly-graded approaches is certainly an improvement over the old pinion pole guard when you had to get into "Low" to avoid a wreck.

We respectfully submit the above as a record of accomplishment in the brief space of 18 months.

All the roads of the State and County are now marked with Standard Interstate Highway Markers for the protection of the public. This is a uniform system used in other states and the yellow signs show all the dangerous points along the Highway. State roads are marked with circles, with yellow back-grounds and black letters with the number of the highway in the center. All diamond shaped signs, are warning signs. Federal Highways are white shields with black letters marked, "U. S.," with the proper number of the road. It is also very noticeable, that all Commercial Signs have been REMOVED from All State Highways and there is nothing left except official signs of the State Highway Department.

In the near future, we hope to offer a resume of the work done on the County roads under the new system inaugurated by the present Board of County Commissioners.
