FORT STANTON NOTES

Miss Helen Hilljas, nurse, returned from a vacation at Tucson, Arizona, last Friday.

Miss Salina Kane, chief nurse, left last week for an extended vacation with her sister in Fort Worth, Texas.

Successful deer hunters for the big game hunting season this year are: Dr. J. R. Murdock, Dave C. Parker and James M. Cavanaugh.

Miss Lois Shore, assistant dietitian, is in El Paso this week visiting friends.

General contractor Rowland Gilchrist of El Paso is here with a crew of men for placing a dividing wall in the station reservoir.

Messrs Payman, Goldsmith, McNeff and Dickey were in Roswell Tuesday.

Messrs. Northrup and Draper drove to Albuquerque last Friday night and returned Monday. They report a good trip, despite the muddy roads they encountered most of the trip.

With the advent of colder weather and the close of the big game hunting season, local hunters are making the rounds of tanks and lakes for ducks. Some success along this line has been reported.

Inspection engineer W. A. Brennan of the Supervising Architect Office is expected to visit the station this week.

A few of the Fort Stanton people have been over to Capitan during the week watching the loading of cattle. Shipments have been made almost daily and furnishes considerable excitement to the people.

All game wardens have received a supply of maps showing the various game reserves in the state. These are for distribution to the hunting public and anyone interested may have one for the asking. The map is revised as of Oct. 1, 1928 and is a valuable guide to hunters.

High School Orchestra in Concert December 5th

Mary Pickford in "My Best Girl" will be shown after the concert.

The Carrizozo High School Orchestra will give a short concert at the Crystal Theatre, Wednesday night, Dec. 5, at 7:30 p. m.

This concert will include marches written by Sousa, "The Desert Song," a waltz from the operetta "The Desert Song" and "Alita," a delightful flower song, and a xylophone duet.

The picture to be shown after the program is a United Artists Production, Mary Pickford in "My Best Girl." This picture will be quite an attraction, as Mary Pickford is a star we all enjoy.

The Orchestra has been rehearsing regularly since school started on the numbers to be played on the program, and expect to give the public a musical treat.

The organization has twenty members, the latest additions to the orchestra being Gladys Dozier and Tom Brown, both playing Clarinets.

The proceeds from this concert will be used in the spring to help defray the expenses to the State Contest which the orchestra expects to enter.

All the orchestra members will sell tickets at 25 and 50c — so buy your ticket from them, for a good program and a good picture is assured.

COMMISSIONERS' PROCEEDINGS

November term of the Commissioners.

Special meeting of the Board of County Commissioners:

The Board met Nov. 10, 1928, as a Canvassing Board to canvass the returns of the November, 1928, election.

Present—Chas. F. Grey, vice-chairman; W. B. Rose, Member; S. W. Kelsey, Sheriff; J. Benson Newell, District Attorney; Lotah Miller, Clerk. Absent—Hon. R. E. P. Warden, Chairman.

And now the Board proceeds to canvass the returns of the election. Upon the canvass of various poll books it was found that they were incomplete in that the judges and clerks did not sign in the proper places in several instances, and a list was made and the Clerk directed to issue summons to each and all of said election officials to appear Nov. 17, 1928 at Carrizozo, before the Canvassing Board, and complete the books.

In precinct No. 1, Lincoln, it was found upon a canvass that the total vote as certified as being 293; that for the offices of State Senator J. E. Gregg and Louise H. Coe, the returns showed Gregg as receiving 185, Mrs. Coe, 159, making a total of 294; that for M. J. Barnett 145, John L. Bryan, 149, for Assessor, making a total of 294; which could not be corrected by referring to the tally sheets, and the Clerk was directed to notify the District Judge and ask that re-count be made to correct said error, which letter follows, to wit—

Nov. 10, 1928.

Hon. Numa C. Frenger,
District Judge,
Las Cruces, N. M.

Dear Sir:—

Upon the canvass of the returns of various precincts today, we find that in Pct. No. 1, Lincoln County, the Election Judges certify a total vote of 293 being cast. We find upon the face of the returns, the following—

J. E. Gregg, 185
Louise H. Coe, 159

294

M. J. Barnett, 145
John L. Bryan, 149

We also find 23 rejected ballots, all of which are included within the 293 certified as VOTING, the said 23 being marked upon the Poll Book of the Election Judges. The various totals of the Counting Judges and Clerks indicate on the face thereof a total of 293 for various candidates by adding the votes for Republicans and Democrats for various offices.

These being discrepancies which cannot be corrected without a re-count of this Precinct, under provisions of Sub-Sec. 5, Sec. 347, Chap. 41, Laws 1927, we therefore notify you of same. We will recess our canvassing session until Saturday, the 17th of Nov., 1928, as we are advised you can be here on that date.

Yours very truly,
Board of County Commissioners.

Sitting as a Canvassing Board.
By Chas. F. Grey, Vice-Chm.
By Lotah Miller, Clerk.

November 10, 1928
Secretary of State,
Santa Fe, N. M.,
Dear Miss Fortune:—

Thanksgiving Day (A Proclamation by the Governor)

The history of Thanksgiving Day dates back nearly one hundred and forty years. President Washington, in 1789 recommended to the people of the United States:

"A day of public thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many and signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them the opportunity peaceably to establish and form a government for their safety and happiness."

As years and generations pass by, it becomes more evident that we should annually re-dedicate ourselves to the cause for thanksgiving recommended by the Father of our Country, for we have been given the opportunity to live in a land where our safety, freedom and happiness is assured and where our material prosperity has reached a plane never before attained in the history of the state or nation.

Now, therefore, I, R. C. Dillon, Governor of the State of New Mexico, do hereby proclaim Thursday, Nov 29, 1928, as Thanksgiving Day and a legal holiday in the State of New Mexico.

In recent years, efforts have been made for a patriotic observance of Thanksgiving Day by a general display of the Stars and Stripes. The American flag is the symbol of a mighty, free and prosperous nation; it safeguards our homes, it has led us victoriously through every conflict we have been called upon to meet, and it has never been lowered in defeat or surrendered at home or on foreign soil.

I therefore respectfully recommend that on Thanksgiving Day, the people of the state cease from their daily work as far as possible and assemble in their respective churches to express their gratitude to the Giver of all good gifts; that they share their abundance with those less fortunate among them, and that they pay the highest respects possible to the Flag which symbolizes our national honor, safety, peace and prosperity.

Done at the Executive Office this, the 16th day of November, 1928.

Witness my hand and the great seal of the State of New Mexico.

R. C. DILLON, Governor.
Attest: Jennie Fortune, Secretary of State.

The net proceeds of the Fair in the sum of $670.68 was applied on this and the $500.00 donated by the Carrizozo Woman's Club. The Trustee made a note for $700.00 to take care of the balance and retire others small bills including the cost of 24 orchestra chairs that will be installed.

The Carrizozo Woman's Club have a locker and a cupboard; the Woman's Home Missionary Society have a locker and cupboard, with their own keys. It is suggested that when dishes or other like articles are bought, that if possible to do so, each buy articles alike so that when all organizations join they can use their material and make a better showing than if each had different dishes, etc.

The building is now well equipped for a Community Center, for which it was intended and when in use, it must be taken care of. Trustee.

The Trustee of the Community Hall will be glad to join in this uniform buying of equipment.

Corona Visitors

Bit the Hand that Fed Him

Wednesday - morning, Deputy Sheriff Pete Johnson, Jr., turning in at 1 o'clock, after being out on official duty and on awakening shortly after 2, he discovered that someone had taken his watch and a $5 gold piece from his pockets.

Search was made for the thief and on investigation, the gold piece was found to have been changed at the Star Cafe, where the thief had stopped for lunch, but up to the present time, the thief has not been apprehended.

The fact is apparent that the stolen property was taken by someone who had been befriended by the sheriff's force by allowing a night's lodging in the "cooler" and a warm breakfast, and thus he had become well enough acquainted with the surroundings as to know where the deputy's room was located, and perhaps was under the deputy's bed when he retired.

People should beware of tramps and let them go on to other places, instead of giving them alms, only to be victimized like Mr. Johnson was in return for his kindness. — Let us hope the guilty party is soon brought to justice and the stolen property recovered.

Almost Robbed the American Mine

A short time ago, the equipment of the old American mine at Parsons was sold, but the property was left at that place for the future disposal of the buyer, Mr. Kennedy. John Wright, who has been caring for the equipment for the buyer, made a trip to Parsons the first of the week and found that a portion of the equipment amounting to over $2,500.00 was missing.

A search was made by Sheriff Kelsey at the different mines in that locality and 3 truck loads of the equipment was found at the Block Mine on Eagle Creek a short distance above Alto. The stolen property consisted of motors, pipe fittings and various pieces of machinery, including a complete assaying outfit.

Several arrests were made, but the parties were truck drivers, who claimed that they were simply working under instructions from their superior officers. The head official of the Block mine is now located at Los Angeles and a warrant for his arrest has been sent to that city. There are others who are being sought; and at this writing, Sheriff Kelsey is on the trail of some parties who have been nearer the light than the truck drivers and arrests will follow. In the meantime, the plot thickens and developments will reveal interesting news within a few days.

Commissioner - Elect Visits

County Commissioner - elect A. F. Stover was here from Hon-do Monday and returned home late in the afternoon.

Hoover and His Family Getting Election Returns

Example of Outdoor Advertising in China

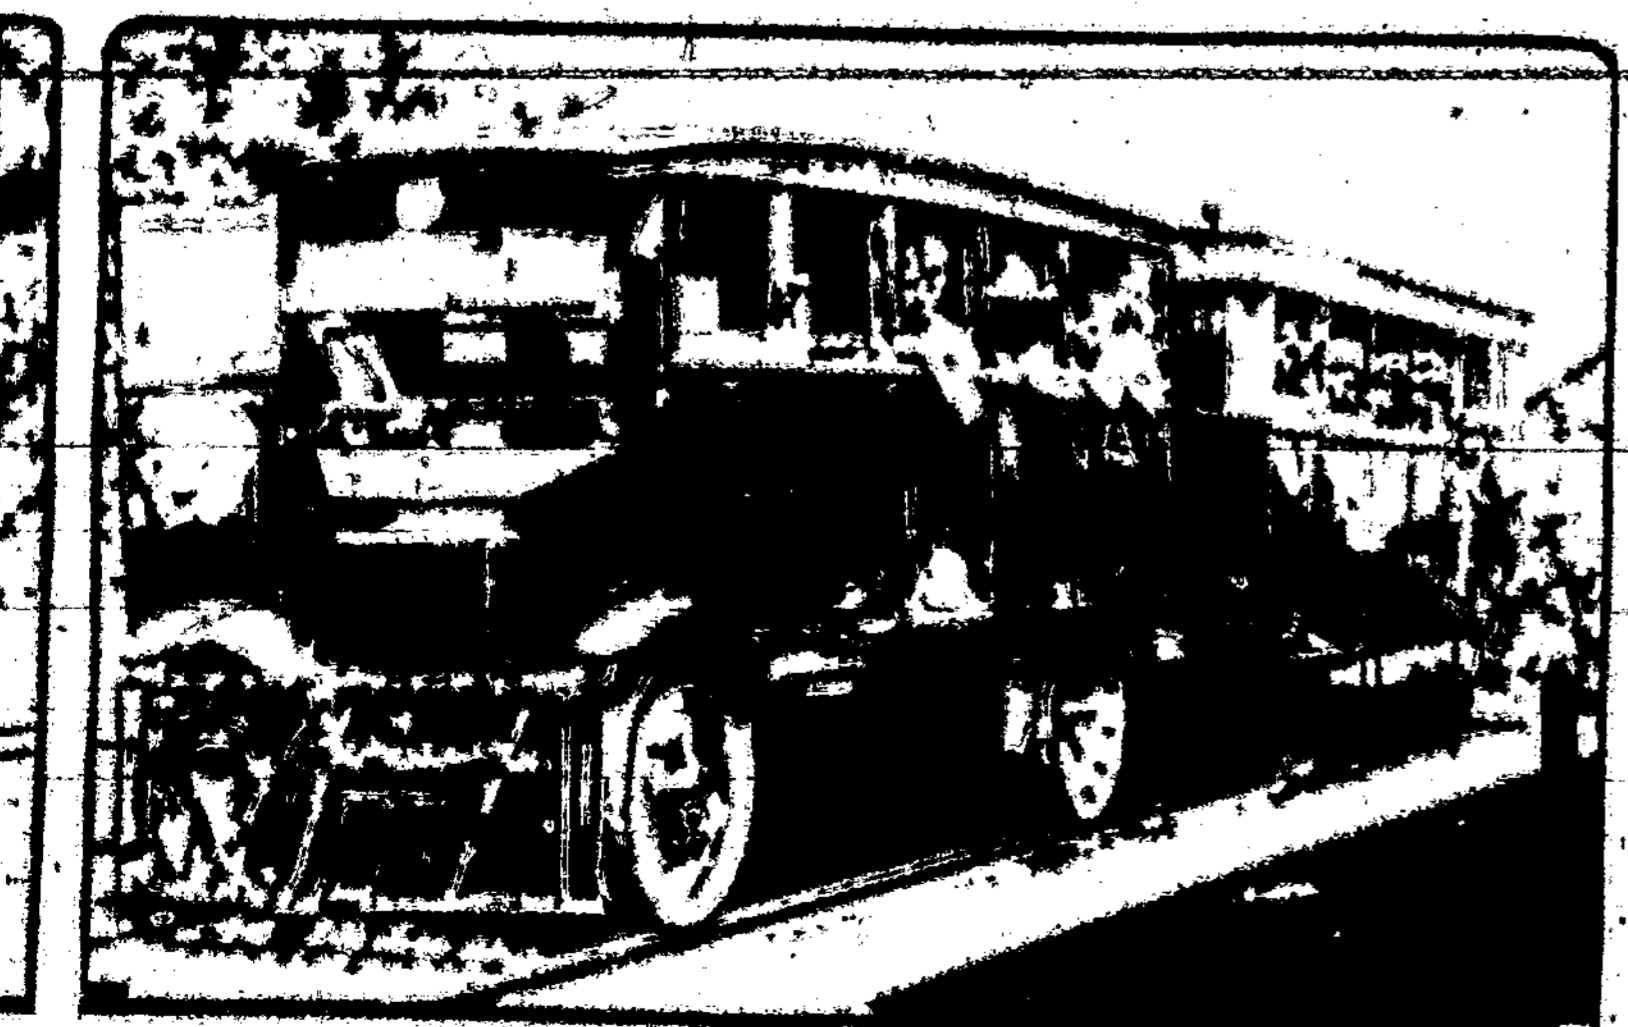

The Chinese are emulating the Americans in outdoor advertising, but, as this photograph from Ichang shows, their advertisements are not quite such bits on the scenery.

Honeymooners in Jail, but Happy

Among the striking employers of a lottery company in Kenosha, Wis., who were sent to jail for violating an injunction against picketing were Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett, who were married just before starting to serve their sentence.

One-Man Railroad Runs Forty Years

Taber, Iowa, is the terminus of a one-man railroad which is 11 miles long and which has been giving residents of the section excellent service for the past forty years. E. V. Stopper is agent, owner, general manager, conductor and sometimes even the engineer of this line, upon which the Interstate Commerce Commission has put a value of $135,000. The road runs between Taber and Malvern. Mr. Stopper himself builds his cars and powers them with Ford engines.

KEYES INDICTED.

District Attorney Max Keyes of Los Angeles, Calif., who was indicted by the grand jury on charges of willful misconduct and corruption in connection with the Julian Petroleum company investigation and trial.

WINS HERO MEDAL

Hugh O. Smith, former living in the vicinity of Stronghurst, Ill., has just received a Carnegie hero medal for his feat of saving the lives of Mrs. John Peasley and her four children, all of whom were unconscious from smoke and would have perished in the flames but for his daring rescue.

THE RETURN of ANTHONY TRENT

By WYNDHAM MARTYN

"It's worth a half-million dollars today," Trent went on. "There are many bigger stones worth half that, but none has the blue-white flame of this. It is too famous, a diamond to try to sell. You know that as well as I." His voice sank. "There's an old diamond-cutter who has done work for me at Zwaneburger street in Amsterdam. He would cut it in half for a price and forget all about it. If he did that no expert dare swear that he knew the stone. We ought to realize at least a hundred thousand apiece for each half. Think what that would mean to us. I could loaf about the world comfortably and you could go somewhere and find peace and freedom from the strain you are enduring now. What about it?"

She rose to her feet, her face colorless. "You have been so good to me," she said quietly, "that I have come to think of you as the best man I have ever known, the most gentle and chivalrous. Perhaps because I so much wished to believe it, I thought you had in reality put your old life behind you as sincerely as I have done. And, too, I thought you believed in me."

"I do," he said. She shook her head. "No. If you had you could never have offered me that." She pointed to the scintillating temptation. "You have shown me I did not know you and that you thought me a hypocrite." She realized that this was the most bitter moment of her life. Not until now had the consciousness of her love for Anthony Trent forced itself so strongly upon her. She had admired him at first for his skill and audacity, for the insolent coolness with which he had worked alone and laughed at authority. Then she had come to see the finer side of his complex character, the generosity which distinguished him and the absence of pettiness. These characteristics she saw now she had idealized until she had reared upon their structure an Anthony Trent who did not exist. The leopard had not changed its spots.

"You mean you won't use any of the money I can realize for you on this stone? Think well before you answer."

"My mind was made up long ago. I need no time for consideration."

"Well," he said, after a pause, "if so, what will you do?"

"That I cannot say yet, definitely. Mrs. Kinney thinks she can get me work. I have some skill in fine sewing and the mending of old lace; it was taught me at my convent."

"How long will your eyes stand that strain?" he demanded. "The idea is ludicrous. You propose to pass the rest of your life as a working woman because of this silly prejudice. I can get you something better than sewing."

"Already I am too much in your debt to accept more." Gone was the pleasant intimacy of a few minutes earlier. He could see almost a horror in her face. She regarded him as one who had seen the light for a little while and then, at adversity's first breath, gone back to the old and easier ways.

"Don't look at me like that," he said, "try to forget what I said." She shook her head. "That would be impossible."

She could not understand how in a moment such as this he could regard her with a whimsical smile. Had he no intuition to warn him that his defection had wounded her irremediably? That he should think her repentance only a matter of words showed her how ill she had judged him.

"If you have made up your mind," he said, "I suppose there is no more to be said."

"Nothing," she answered. "I cannot repay you for all you have done for me. I am afraid I shall never be able to do that. I am leaving here today. Good-by, Mr. Trent."

"Not tonight," he said earnestly, "please do me one favor. I am leaving town tonight and shall be back till Friday. Wait till then."

"I prefer to go tonight." "If you won't do it as a favor I must put it in another way. I'm afraid it will sound rather brutal. Mademoiselle Dupin, you are under certain obligations to me. Apparently they weigh rather heavily on your mind. You can repay me by remaining here until I return. At the outside it will be forty-eight hours. If it is not much to ask, is it?"

do not know that before the United States went into the war a certain illustrious royal personage who is, oddly enough, very popular here, made a secret visit in a battleship in order to hasten this country's entrance into the war. He was here as a secret guest of the government. Absolute secrecy was preserved. Only once did he leave his fast cruiser and come by night to meet official Washington. Yet that night the Nizam's diamond which he carried as his bringer of fortune, his talisman, his good luck stone, was stolen. His own government thought it unwise to allow it to be known he was here and your own dare not advertise the loss. Now do you understand what a satisfaction it would be to catch the woman who took it?"

Evidently the memory of the affair was unpleasant. "You will excuse me," she said, and ignored his outstretched hand. Her refusal to take it was not crudely done. Except that he divined her purpose he might have seen in the incident merely an oversight. "Why don't you give me your hand?" he asked. "If any two people in this troubled world ought to be friends they are you and I."

"In the life I have chosen there will not be room for friendships like that. I shall work to forget."

"And I'm to be one of the forgotten."

"I Shall Work to Forget."

ten. Somehow you give me the impression that I've disappointed you." "Disappointed!" she cried, her hands pressed against her heart. "If that were only the word."

Quickly she went from the room. Trent looked after her and he was still smiling. "She wouldn't shake hands," he murmured as he walked down the stairway.

Mrs. Kinney came to the side of the woman whose sobbing distressed her immeasurably. She had grown to experience sincere affection for this mysterious and lovely visitor.

"What is it, my poor dear?" she whispered. "I did not know one's heart could break twice." Mademoiselle Dupin cried wildly.

For a long while the shrewd housekeeper had watched her visitor's increasing interest in Anthony Trent. Of her employer's attitude Mrs. Kinney was in no doubt whatever. She supposed there had been some dreadful quarrel which seemed tragic now but which would pass over as other storms end.

"It will be all right," she said, comforting her. "Never, never in this life!" sobbed Mademoiselle Dupin.

Trent's destination was Washington and his mission to see a cabinet officer of wide influence who had formerly been ambassador to the Court of St. James. Anthony Trent had met him in London under circumstances so far out of the ordinary that he did not think he would have difficulty in recalling himself to Mr. Hill.

Cabinet officers are not easy of access. From his room at the New Willard Trent sought to speak to him over the telephone. This proved to be impossible. The cabinet officer was protected from telephonic assaults by a private secretary whose manners were too brusque to suit Anthony Trent.

The secretary after learning that Trent would not tell him why he desired to see Mr. Hill said it was idle to continue the conversation. Half an hour later Trent came face to face with the secretary. He found him a big, overbearing youth who was holding his position during the recovery from an automobile accident of the real incumbent of the situation. "I can't ask Mr. Hill to see you unless I know what it's about," he said bluntly.

"It is private business," Trent returned, "I cannot discuss it with you."

"Then you won't discuss it with the chief," said the other.

"I came from New York to see Mr. Hill and I'm going to see him. Also, I am not going to satisfy your curiosity."

"He's dated ahead for three days." Trent looked about him. He was in an ante-room with a big davenport and some comfortable chairs.

"I shall pass the time agreeably enough," he said. "I have slept on the hard ground, and that davenport is luxury."

"You can't sleep here," the secretary cried. "I shan't allow it."

"I'm afraid you take yourself too seriously," said Trent lighting a cigarette.

The secretary knew that in less than an hour Mr. Hill would pass through the ante-room. In that case the victory would go to Trent.

"We'll see you tomorrow afternoon," he said. "At four."

"We?" Trent retorted. "I'm afraid I must deny myself the pleasure of your presence at the interview. I'll remain here until four tomorrow." He had a shrewd idea that Mr. Hill must pass along sooner or later.

"Give me your card," said the secretary scowling. In two minutes he returned. "Three-thirty tomorrow," he said crossly. "The chief will give you just two minutes."

"Try again," said Trent pleasantly. "What do you mean?" the other asked.

"I vaulted over this two-foot barrier and looked through the crack of the door. I saw you sit down, light a cigarette, read a letter through twice and then come back. You didn't even go into Mr. Hill's room. Listen, I'm here to see Mr. Hill now. Go back there at once."

"I will not," said the other flushing. He saw the danger signal in the intruder's eyes. The secretary was overbearing but he was not courageous. For a moment he thought Trent was about to leap the barrier.

"I'll give you twenty seconds," said Trent. "After that I shall surprise you."

"There's a man outside," said the secretary, speaking to the cabinet officer, fifteen seconds later, "who says you're got to see him. I don't like the looks of him at all. If I were you, sir, I'd have him thrown out."

"Only the President can say I've 'got' to see him," said Hill frowning. "I'm much too busy today anyway. What was the name?"

"I didn't get it," the secretary lied. "Can't you read?" snapped Mr. Hill. He took the card from the other's fingers. "Anthony Trent! Is he waiting?"

"Yes, he wouldn't take a hint." The secretary was sullen. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Keys of Early Times Not Easy to Handle

The possessive and acquisitive instincts in man, which seem to develop early and to die hard even among the most advanced of nations, writes Louise Gordon-Stables in the London Daily Telegraph, must have produced in quite primitive stages of human evolution some form of lock for the safeguarding of valuables, and capable of being negotiated only by its owner. In several passages in the Old Testament we come across references to such contrivances, as, for instance, in the Song of Solomon, where we read, "My hands dropped with myrrh and my fingers with sweet-smelling myrrh upon the handles of the lock."

And that the key proper to the Oriental lock was of great size and considerable weight is borne out by the lines: "And the keys of the House of David will I lay upon my shoulder." For these keys, fashioned of wood and studded at one end with iron pegs to correspond with holes in the wooden lock, might, in the case of the door of the city or of a public building, measure a couple of feet in length and were correspondingly heavy, so that a bunch of them would be carried most easily slung at one's back, the cord threaded through holes in their other extremity, being held in front.

Arbor Day

Type-planting festivals are probably as old as civilization. Sacred trees and groves, planted avenues and roadsides, shaded academic walks and memorial trees were common long before America was discovered. Arbor day, as such, however, is purely American in origin and grew out of conditions peculiar to the great plains of the West, a country practically treeless over much of its area, but supporting a flourishing agriculture and with a soil and climate well able to nourish tree growth. Arbor day originated and was first observed in Nebraska in 1872.

Thanksgiving

We thank You for this glorious land of freedom and of peace.
We thank You for its harvest true, and for the year's increase
In health and wealth of wisdom. Lord, we lift our hearts to Thee
And thank You for our year of peace and great prosperity.

Give Thanks That Are So Greatly Due

It is told that a Scotsman made at one time a road through the rough hills of the highlands and at the top of the last height hewed a stone into a seat and inscribed thereon, "Rest and Be Thankful." In this spirit also is Thanksgiving day appointed, at the peak of the year as nature has fashioned it, for rest and the strengthening of the spirit and for the giving of thanks where thanks are so greatly due. Don Ross, writing in the Philadelphia Ledger, reminds his readers:

Three centuries ago the wherewithal of the first Thanksgiving feast was provided by four Pilgrims with bladders, who in one day "killed as many fowl as served the company almost a week." In less dramatic fashion the turkey of today comes to our board, though his persistence over a week in the various reincarnations of cold pickings, hash and soup is a custom well established. The turkey, let it be noted, is in all respects a fitting offering, having pure American ancestry and no entangling alliances with birds of other feather.

In Hallowed Memory.
Out of the past this feast is hallowed by long and honorable history, unimagined by the Pilgrim fathers, who stirred batter and peeled potatoes under the orders of the Pilgrim mothers. Its first observance was in reasonable peace, with Indians enough and to spare, but no unpleasantness. Later occasions were spiced and peppered with unfriendly arrows, and the Indian sign of a feathered barb in the stout plank door interrupted many a peaceful meal. The Indian sign no longer marks our threshold; it is transferred to father's pocketbook, where it leaves a scar—deep and ominous enough, though one endured with cheerfulness.

Man is an adaptable creature. For most of the year he is content and well fed on a breakfast of hasty eggs and coffee rashly inhaled, a lunch snatched on the run and a dinner discreet and digestible, but on high days and holidays his capacity is thrice multiplied. Thanksgiving dinner is no mere meal; it is a symphony in food-stuffs; an epic of eatables; a panorama of the animal and vegetable kingdoms. Its calculated harmonies, the fruit of long years of feminine wisdom, convert even the cynic and dyspeptic into a valiant trencherman. His temptations and opportunities must call on the special Providence that is kind to overzealous ambition if "good digestion is to wait on appetite and health on both." The fact that we survive it marks this marvel; that there is no digester like good company; no spice like good talk and laughter; no appetite like that which attends the warmth of opened hearts.

Gifts Beyond Price.
This is a universal feast that knows no creed. "It is good to give thanks unto the Lord"; it is good for all men to find gratitude on special occasion for the grace that knows no occasion. The free gifts are the greatest gifts—the high privilege of life, the knowledge of the loveliness of the varied world, the unmeasured wealth of love around us. For these we give thanks, for it is by their mystic alchemy that success and peace and strength are made worth while.

Thanksgiving is not a human habit, which is a fact little to our credit. For this we shall probably be forgiven, as we are forgiven so much, if the habit of remembrance lives on. The gods have always been kind to human happiness, and when our Thanksgiving is adorned with good cheer, with laughter, with "sports of strength and skill" and with the companionship of those we love, we practice an ancient custom and a true one. There have been many creeds, many peoples, many strange habits and observances. But never in the history of the world nor in any race or country have men forgotten the joy of the harvest nor failed to honor the eternal faithfulness of the changing seasons.

Remember Only Mercies.
So we may forget the faint hazard of abdominal repentance on the morrow and forget also the cold winds of the young winter and the coal bills that settle like birds of prey on the budget of November. Instead, we may "think of our mercies," as preached old Uncle Tom, and remember old friends and the distant ones of our family, and remember also to give a helping hand with the dishes that will soon be piled so high.

So for this day the latchstring is out, the fire burns bright on the hearth, the family is home again and the past and future do homage to the present. Loneliness we shut out of doors with the shivering trees and the wind-swept streets, and happiness is complete in the full circle of familiar and friendly faces. And more than these are with us, for the heart of all America knows today one happiness, and the history of her people for 300 years is renewed in the countless homes that are her glory and her bulwark.

True Thanksgiving in Spirit of Happiness

The only dispiriting feature of Thanksgiving is that it is popularly observed but once a year. Who doesn't enjoy deep November weather, with its accompaniment of rich-hued leaves crackling under foot? Who doesn't approve roast turkey and all its comrades of the groaning board?

Who doesn't now and then relish a well-played game of football? Who doesn't welcome the homecomings of relatives and friends?

Whose heart does not warm to his Maker, in the active consciousness of the blessings which surround us? Providence is blind. The Almighty is gentle. His face smiles when we are thus in celebration. Happiness often is the purest form of worship.

We often hear it lamented that Thanksgiving has come to be but a day among other days, that its original significance has faded. Isn't it probable that we make a mistake, however, when we attempt to substitute the dead ashes of yesterday for the live embers of today? Those first Thanksgivings are of tender memory and have indeed their lessons, yet they serve not as proper standards for present-day observance. Our problems are different, our environment is vastly changed, our hopes and aspirations have graduated with the passing of years. The Father is the same, the human faith and love are of the same fire.—Farm and Ranch.

Combining Holidays

It has been suggested that Thanksgiving day be combined with Armistice day and celebrated November 11 each year, with legislation by congress and the legislatures of the several states making it a legal holiday, but the proposal has not made much headway yet.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

MODEL 40 ELECTRIC, $77

For 110-120 volt, 50-60 cycle alternating current. Requires six A. C. tubes and one rectifying tube, $77 (without tubes). Also Model 42 with automatic volume regulator, $85, and Model 44, an extra-powerful "distance" set, $104 (without tubes). For direct current, Model 41, $87 (without tubes).

What a comfort to know your radio is faithful...

"MARY, turn on the radio and see what the weather man says. Then let's see if there isn't a good male quartette somewhere, or a brass band—"

What a satisfaction it is to know your radio will do its duty. Good, reliable Atwater Kent Radio! What a host of friends its dependability has made! You can always count on an Atwater Kent—wherever radio is known, that's what they say.

This quality of steadfastness is built in, and doubly assured by 223 factory tests or inspections. Hence the common remark, "If Atwater Kent makes it, it's right."

On the air—every Sunday night—Atwater Kent Radio Hour—listen in! Prices slightly higher west of the Rockies. ATWATER KENT MANUFACTURING CO. 4764 Wiscachickon Ave. Atwater Kent, Pa. Philadelphia, Pa.

From the house current
The 1929 Atwater Kent all-electric set is powered wholly from the house lighting circuit. You snap a switch to turn the current on and off, just as you do with an electric light. Always ready to operate. Current costs only a fraction of a cent an hour.

—or from batteries
The 1929 battery set also has clear tone, selectivity, great range and plenty of volume, plus beauty and compactness.

—at a money-saving price
You cannot buy the all-round satisfaction that Atwater Kent Radio gives, for less than the figures quoted here. You can pay a great deal more without getting more.

"Radio's Truest Voice" Atwater Kent Radio Speakers Models F, EC, E-3, semi-quality, different in color. Each $10.

Some Revised Opinion

About the Red-Haired

Scientists have discovered all kinds of odd facts about humanity. For instance, an expert recently stated that he had never seen a bald-headed lunatic!

Now comes the even more peculiar disclosure that red-headed girls may be bow-legged, but brunettes are, as a rule, knock-kneed. These facts are based on data supplied by a certain artists' club which has been collecting statistics respecting its models.

Another interesting point is that red-haired women suffer less from serious diseases than their darker sisters. This is due to the fact that their skin throws off poison more rapidly than a dark person's.

Also, red hair, which a generation ago was jeered at, nowadays is admired, as it should be. The red-haired girl has proved that she is not hot-tempered, but, as a rule, much better balanced mentally than a brunette. —Exchange.

A Treat in Store

Clare Sheridan, the sculptor of half-American and half-English blood, is coming back to lecture again. She said the other day to London correspondent:

"My other American lectures failed because they were too heavy. My new lectures will be light and airy—full of epigrams, you know. My lecture on love, for example, will begin: "Love-making consists in a man running after you till you land him."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Vanquished Hopes.

Mother—Junior, do you know where the new candy shop is on Main street? Junior (expectantly)—Yes! Mother—Well, I want you to go into the grocery next door and get me a pound of onions.

Denver Boy is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. C. G. Wilcox, 3551 1/2 Wolf St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

Chief Mourner: "Mrs. Smith seems to have got over the death of her first husband." "Yes, but her second husband hasn't."—London Tit-Bits.

Imitators are a servile race.

Sleep Bullets for Beasts. Bullets carrying sleeping poisons have been invented by Captain Harris, director of the Harris zoological expedition to South Africa. The nose of the bullet carries a hypodermic needle, which on impact discharges a powerful drug. The animal is unconscious an hour.

Jazz Has a Place.

Nothing has done so much good for music in its way, says an authority on music in the Woman's Home Companion, as good jazz because it has stirred up a rhythmic vitality and removed a cloying, sentimental which threatened to enshroud music at the end of the last century.

Optimism is the philosophy with which we regard ourselves.

LAUNDRESS BENEFITED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Nashville, Tenn.—"I cannot say too much in favor of the medicine. I was in a run-down condition. I worked in a laundry but my health got so bad that I had to give up work. I got a bottle of Lydia E. During the Revolution, the people observed an annual Thanksgiving Day by proclamation of the Continental Congress. After peace, observance of the day was discontinued until 1789, when Washington, as President, appointed Thursday, November 26, 1789, a day for general thanksgiving throughout the Union. Later he also appointed February 19, 1795, Washington's proclamations were followed occasionally by those of other Presidents, but for the most part, Thanksgiving Day, although regularly observed, was a state affair for a number of years.

In 1863, President Lincoln issued a proclamation, appointing the fourth Thursday in November with a view of having the day kept thereafter, annually without interruption. Since that time each President—with the exception of Garfield, whose assassination prevented—has issued an annual proclamation and Thanksgiving Day has become a national holiday.

To the first half-million new Ford owners

TO THE half-million men and women who have received new Fords in the last eleven months, there is no need to dwell on the performance of the car.

You have tested its speed on the open road. In traffic you have noted its quick acceleration and the safety of its brakes. You know how it climbs the hills. On long trips and over rough stretches you have come to appreciate its easy-riding comfort. Continuous driving has proved its economy of operation and low cost of up-keep.

This is an invitation to you to take full advantage of the service facilities of the Ford dealer organization so that you may continue to enjoy many thousands of miles of carefree, economical motoring.

The point is this. You have a great car in the new Ford. It is simple in design, constructed of the best materials and machined with unusual accuracy. It is so well-made, in fact, that it requires surprisingly little attention. Yet that doesn't mean it should be neglected. Like every other fine piece of machinery, it will serve you better and longer if given proper care.

One of the best ways to do this is to take your car to the Ford dealer every 500 miles for oiling and greasing and a checking-up of the little things that have such a great bearing on long life and continuously good performance.

Such an inspection may mean a great deal to your car. To you it means thousands upon thousands of miles of motoring without a care—without ever lifting the hood.

Ford dealers everywhere have been specially trained and equipped to service the new Ford. You will find them prompt and reliable in their work, fair in their charges, and sincerely eager to help you get the greatest possible use from your car for the longest period at a minimum of trouble and expense. That is the true meaning of Ford Service.

Improved SAMSON Windmills With SELF-OILING Boxes

The good qualities of this new device can be readily seen when compared with the old style, noisy, lumbering windmill, which had to be oiled every day in order to run. Now, your oiling troubles are at an end. The self-oiling feature of the new SAMSON wherein all bearings run constantly in a flood of oil, causes the windmill to run easily, make less noise and with less expense than any windmill on the market. As proof of the pudding is in the eating of it, so is the lasting virtues of the Samson windmill, made possible by a trial test. For full information SEE—

Sacramental Absolution Cure for Diseases of the Soul Caused by Sin

By REV. SELDEN P. DELANY (Episcopal), New York.

THE soul is the tenant of the body, as man is the tenant of his home. Man makes use of the improvements that science and invention have given him, the electric light, water systems and heating plants. He may move out, and when he does his house is no longer a home—it is silent and dead. It is thus with the soul. While it may use the brain, the body, the senses, it is not in any manner to be confused with them. This is an error of materialistic philosophers; they teach that the soul is an effluence with which the material body glows for a time. Christianity teaches that the soul may exist apart from the body. When the soul leaves, the body dies and relapses into its component elements. As God created the soul and infused it into the body as soon as there was a body capable of receiving it, so one day will He recall it, when and as it seems best to Him.

The soul is a thing apart. It has its needs; the most insistent needs of human life, as necessary to the general well-being as the foods of the flesh. It needs spiritual food—the food that is to be found in the bread of life which came down from heaven. It needs to be cured of the diseases caused by sin through sacramental absolution.

If we carry on a persistent moral struggle against sin and doubt the soul awakes and grows. How foolish it is to ignore the needs of the soul: it is our most precious possession. Of what benefit to enjoy good health, to indulge the pleasures of the flesh, to amass a fortune or build great houses, to acquire lands, if the soul is starved and dying. When the day comes that our bodies have lost strength and vigor, our senses have failed us and our earthly existence draws to a close, what will all this avail us? What will be the condition of our souls?

"What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

Politics, but Never Personalities, Have Definite Place in the Pulpit

By REV. CHARLES FRANCIS POTTER, New York.

The pulpit not only has the right to discuss national issues of a moral nature, but is in duty bound to do so. The idea that politics and the pulpit should be kept apart and especially that the pulpit should not "meddle" in politics is a quaint survival of the period when religion was supposed to have nothing to do with daily life; when a deacon could in all conscience pass the plate on Sunday and "deacon" his apples on Monday. Those were the days when Christians were so busy getting ready for the next world that they let this one go to pot. Politics was considered "worldly" matters and it was not just the thing for real devout Christians to be concerned with them. Women, particularly, risked their reputations if they showed any interest in political matters.

We have somewhat overcome the inhibition about women in politics, but we have not yet waked up to the fact that ministers have just as much right in politics as women have. The same people are objecting to the pulpit speaking on political matters as used to protest if a woman opened her mouth on subjects that were supposed to belong only to the domain of her husband.

It is true that personalities and partisanship are out of place in the pulpit, but that is not because it is the pulpit but because they are out of place anywhere among gentlemen. The important thing to remember is that the pulpit is the place for proclaiming truth and justice, and if political matters get in the way of the progress of truth and justice, then so much the worse for politics.

Expectation of Imports of Gold in Immediate Future an Erroneous One

By BENJAMIN M. ANDERSON, JR., New York Banker.

England alone, of the important countries of Europe, is in a position where gold would be expected to leave, and the possibility of gold leaving is increased, on the face of things, by the lower rates of interest prevailing in England as compared with those of the United States. The British, moreover, have been reluctant to raise their rates of interest, since there appears to be a widespread opinion in England to the effect that even moderate increases in interest rates discourage business, while low rates encourage business.

None the less, the exchange seems to expect very little gold from England. In the first place the British have been accumulating gold laboriously in anticipation of the merging of the currency notes, and for this they wish to have on hand an adequate gold reserve. In the second place, the export of gold from England would automatically tighten money rates in England, and the British financial authorities, understanding this quite well, may be expected to raise their rates in anticipation of the export of gold, or to use other protective measures, rather than to allow the export of gold to force them to raise their rates.

Even if gold comes to the United States from Europe in moderate volume, there is no certainty that we should make a net gain of gold. Canada ordinarily takes gold from us in the autumn and Canadian exchange is usually strong during the autumn months.

The probabilities are strong against the expectation that we shall gain enough gold to relax our money market in the near future.

Intelligent Reading the Cornerstone of Continuous Intellectual Growth

By DEAN W. S. GRAY, University of Chicago.

Detailed studies of the various activities involved in self-education show clearly that reading and the use of libraries and other printed material are the most common and valuable means of providing for continuous growth. An analysis of the uses made of reading in American life reveals several discouraging facts. First, many boys and girls discontinue reading as soon as they leave school. Second, many adults are not interested in reading and do not know the sources of valuable reading material. Third, the character of much of the material read by adults and provided for children in the homes is open to serious criticism.

The solution of the reading problem lies in vigorous efforts by the home, the school and the community to develop habits of intelligent reading, to stimulate strong motives for and permanent interests in reading, to develop attractive places in which children and adults may read, and to provide worthwhile reading material that satisfy their interests and needs. These obligations cannot be assumed entirely by the home, the school or the community. They are obligations which must be cared for through the co-operative effort of all agencies interested in the welfare of children and adults.

PHILLIPS Milk of Magnesia

Gulls Liked Strawberries.

Strange picnic guests were entertained at a clambake on the shore at Belfast, Maine, when a flock of seagulls, after circling about, swooped down and made an attack on a plate of strawberry tarts, although they left the apple tarts on the plate. Only one of the birds succeeded in getting away with one of the tidbits of dessert, and he was followed for some distance by the others trying to get a bite.

Letters "Relayed" in Early Colonial Days

In the English colonies in America before 1630 such postal facilities as existed were supplied by private enterprise. In 1630 the General Court of Massachusetts took the first step toward the establishment of a government postal system. In Virginia each planter was required to convey the dispatches, as they arrived, to the next plantation, and so on. In 1672 the government of New York established a monthly mail to Boston, and this practice was followed in other colonies. Benjamin Franklin was identified with the early interests of the colonial post office. In 1737 he was appointed postmaster of Philadelphia. In 1739 the delivery of letters by penny post was begun. In 1775 the colonies combined to establish their own post office and to pay the necessary officials. The Continental Congress appointed a committee to devise a postal system, which went into effect July 26, 1775. Benjamin Franklin was unanimously appointed postmaster general.

The Whimsical Max.

Paul Jones of the family of the University of Pennsylvania, said on his recent return from Europe:

"I have a great admiration for Max Beerholm, and in August I visited him in his villa at Rapallo, on the Italian Riviera.

"I had visited him before, and had told him a story about James Joyce; but I forgot this on my second visit, and retold the Joyce story.

"The whimsical Max, when I finished, said:

"That's a good story, but, really, if you tell it to me again I shall have to tell it to you."

Treasure for America?

California may soon gain the altar from the famous Stoke Poges church. It was in the churchyard of this church that Gray wrote his "Elegy in a Country Churchyard." If the suggestion now before the local church council receives the final approval of the chancellor of the diocese, the altar will soon cross the Atlantic to adorn the "Church of the Little Flowers" near Los Angeles.

Trials of the Tubers.

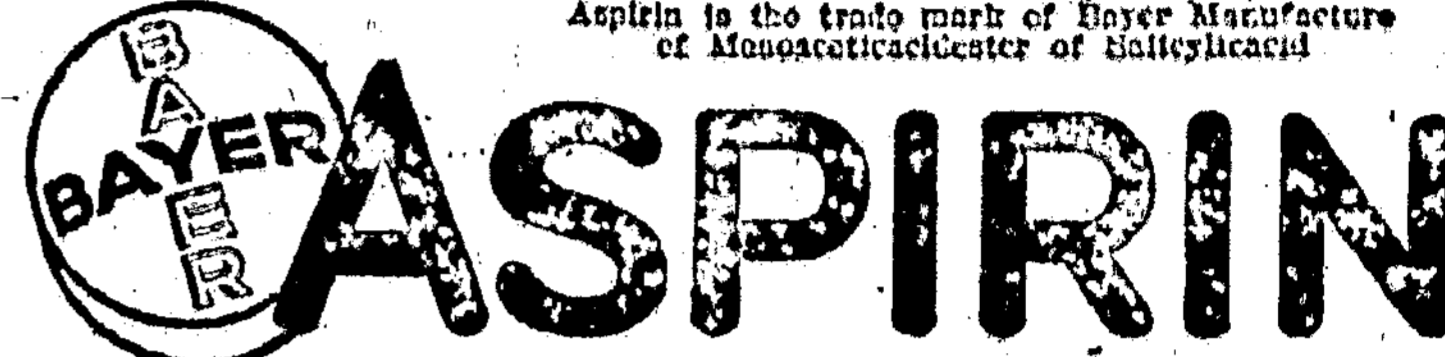

"Can you imagine anything worse than being a cornstalk and having your ears pulled by farmers?"
"How about being a potato with your eyes full of dirt?"—Montreal Star.

The Fergusons Were Here

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ferguson and daughter Mora, son Don and Mr. and Mrs. Champ Ferguson were here from their homes on the Noyal Mesa yesterday. Wallace, who is now at Joint, Mich., is employed at the Bulck shops in the work of finishing Fisher bodies. He likes it there and also likes the Michigan state.

Feels Grateful

My gratitude goes to the people of this county for re-electing me commissioner of the 3rd dist.
Chas. F. Grey.

Recovering Nicely

Little Martha Warden, who was so badly burned by gasoline last week, is improving as fast as could be expected after such a trying ordeal. The only discomfort she seems to feel is in the forming of the new skin, which is knitting rapidly and produces an itching sensation, which causes restlessness and annoyance, but we are glad to say, she is on the road to recovery. Eddie Johnson, who was burned by gasoline at a camp fire two weeks ago, is able to be out again.

Fills Appointment

Dr. W. H. Broadbush, Optometrist was here according to his appointment Monday and Tuesday. He said that business was very good here and also at Alamogordo, which he took as an indication that the result of the last election had not been the means of interfering with trade, but seemed to benefit it.

Word from Prof. Koonce

In a letter from Prof. J. E. Koonce, who is now at Hot Springs attending to some real estate interests at that place, he said, among other things: "We Democrats are going to have as good a President as you Republicans."—Good Americanism, Professor.

Corona High School Will Give Operetta

On the night of Wednesday, Nov. 28, the Corona High School will give "The Feast of the Red Corn," an Operetta, at the Gymnasium.

This event is sponsored and directed by Prof. A. D. Boucher, Supt. of the Corona Schools, and promises to be one of the most delightful affairs of the season, being composed of all girls' voices.

The admission will be 25 and 35c, and a large attendance is expected. All who can attend from Carrizozo and other towns will be amply repaid for so doing, as Corona never does things by halves, and the operetta will be worth your while to see.

Sweet and 'Whit' in El Paso

E. H. Sweet left for El Paso yesterday morning on No. 1 and L. A. Whitaker left at 9 o'clock this morning for the same place. They will spend the week-end at the border with relatives and friends.

Here Yesterday

Mr. and Mrs. George Titworth of Capitan and Mrs. Berry of Fort Stanton were Carrizozo business visitors yesterday, returning home in the afternoon. Mrs. Chloe Fisher of that place was also here on business.

Wilbur Dishman Visits Us

Wilbur Dishman was in Carrizozo on business from his home in Corona last Monday, and paid this office a friendly visit. Mr. Dishman reports a nice snowfall in Corona recently, 2 1/2 inches.

Attention, Oddfellows

There will be business of vast importance to come before the next regular meeting of Carrizozo Lodge No. 30, to be held Tuesday, Nov. 27. All Oddfellows are urged to be present.
J. L. Bryan, N. G.
W. J. Langston, Sec'y.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Davis have moved from Noyal to Carrizozo and will make this place their future home. We are glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Davis with us, and extend to them the hand of welcome.

Big Job Commences

E. C. Hale, associated with the Tobin Construction Co., which corporation has the contract for the Carrizozo - Socorro Highway across the Malpais, came in this week from Albuquerque and is looking over the beginning of the work on the big project.

Beginning at the R. E. Lemon place and extending through the lower lands, it is muddy and boggy, which prevents any work being done there, until the same dries out, but the workmen are digging dirt from a pit and conveying same to this side of the Malpais, where the first activity begins. The force will work from this side, filling and concreting as they go, during which time, the lower lands will be drying out and as soon as this condition improves so that it can be done, the work of putting in that piece of the highway will begin.

In our next week's issue, we hope to be able to give a complete review of the work, and from time to time, keep the people posted on what will be the most valuable highway Carrizozo and other places along the line have ever had.

NOTICE

State Engineer's Office
Number of Application 1804
Santa Fe, N. M., November 13, 1928
Notice is hereby given that on the 10th day of November, 1928, in accordance with Section 26, Chapter 49, Irrigation Laws of 1907, George T. Peters of Columbus, County of Luna, State of New Mexico, made formal application to the State Engineer of New Mexico for a permit to appropriate the Public Waters of the State of New Mexico.

Such appropriation is to be made from Ruidoso Creek which is a tributary of Rio Hondo at a point which bears South 149 1/2 feet distant from the W 1/2 corner of Sec. 19, Twp. 11 S. Rge. 13 E, being in the SW 1/4 Sec. 19, Twp. 11 S, Rge. 13 E., by means of a diversion dam of stone and concrete and ten sec. feet are to be conveyed to a point which bears N. 6 degrees E., 107 1/2 feet distant from the S E corner of Sec. 19, Twp. 11 S., R. 13 E., where the water will be returned to the stream undiminished in quantity, by means of a ditch and there used for power purposes.

Any person, firm, association, or corporation desiring the granting of the above application would be truly detrimental to their rights in the water of said stream system shall file a complete statement of their objections substantiated by affidavits with the State Engineer and serve a copy on applicant on or before the 15th day of January, 1929, the date set for the Engineer to take this application up for final consideration unless protested. In case of protested applications, all parties will be given a reasonable length of time in which to submit their evidence in detail or arrange a date convenient for a hearing or appoint a referee satisfactory to all to take testimony. Appearance is not necessary unless advised officially by letter from the State Engineer.
Herbert W. Yes,
State Engineer.

Down from Ancho

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Hightower and children were here from their ranch near Ancho this week and like most of our people from the ranch regions, they have good reports to offer for stock and range.

Ships Cattle

Tom McDonald came up this week from the Moching Bird Gap with a nice herd of cattle which he shipped to eastern markets. Tom said ranch conditions were good and his cattle would winter over nicely.

More Deer and Turkeys

A. D. Brownfield came in Wednesday, after a deer hunt and brought the proof of his successful trip in the form of a fine 10-point buck.

John Harkey and son Fay took a trip to the Water Canyon Monday afternoon and returned with three fine young wild turkeys. They were out but a few hours. M. U. Finley took first prize by killing an 8-pointer, weighing 266 pounds.

A. C. Snow is among the lucky hunters who brought in his deer. T. E. Kelley came in with two wild turkeys and a nice bunch of quail. The season is now over for deer and the unlucky ones are saying: "I just grazed him."—Sad story!

Junior Woman's Club

Lois Stadtman was hostess to the Junior Woman's Club last Friday. We had a splendid meeting. Two new members were received. Our next meeting will be held at the home of Frances Green, on Friday, Dec. 7, at which time we are to have an old fashioned grab bag party. Each guest will bring a small parcel securely wrapped, but unmarked, for the grab bag.
