

FORT STANTON NOTES

The Right Reverend F. B. Howden, D. D., Bishop of New Mexico and Southwest Texas will visit Fort Stanton in the near future for the Service of Confirmation and for the dedication of the new Community House now under construction by the Church.

Senior Surgeon J. C. Perry was here Friday and Saturday for the purpose of inspection.

Miss Lois Shore, assistant dietician returned Sunday from a short vacation in El Paso.

W. C. Hendren and Frank Phillips were in Roswell Monday on business.

Leo Payman returned from Roswell last week with a new Pontiac Sedan.

The Christmas committee appointed by the medical officer in charge to work out plans for the Christmas entertainment for the patients, is actively engaged in arranging an entertaining program. Others co-operating to this common end are the Seamen's Church Institute and the Trowel Club. The committee is on the outlook for entertainment and suggestions are most welcome. The latter organizations will have a distinct part in the plans.

Work on the dividing wall in the reservoir is nearing completion and water can be turned in on one side Friday, according to the contractor.

Entertained Distinguished Visitor

At a well attended Stated Communication of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., Saturday night, Nov. 24, after the regular order of business was dispensed with, the degree of Entered Apprentice was conferred.

The lodge was honored by a visit from F. C. Rolland of Alamogordo, District Deputy Grand Master, who received the honors of the order and responded with a splendid address on the workings of the ancient institution, its aims, objects and what it has accomplished in its labor for the upbuilding of principles of mankind and brotherly love in the world.

Mr. Rolland is well known to Carrizozo people, he being a brother to A. J. Rolland, our popular and courteous druggist. Mr. Rolland was a guest at the home of his brother during his stay here and left for home Sunday morning. Carrizozo Masons entertain the hope that we may enjoy more such visits from our District Deputy Grand Master in the future.

The Prudes Here from Mescalero

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Prude of Mescalero came over last Saturday and went on to Santa Fe, where they spent Sunday and Monday, returning to Carrizozo Tuesday, and left for home Wednesday morning. During their stop-overs here, they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace.

Visiting in El Paso

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Reilly are in El Paso and will remain over for Thanksgiving Day as guests of the Bart Bailey family, returning home Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Reilly were guests of the Reillys here last week.

Funeral of Mrs. Helen Kalsen

The funeral of Mrs. Helen Pfingsten Kalsen, who passed away this life last Wednesday, was held last Saturday afternoon at Angus, the funeral services being conducted by the Rev. T. V. Ludlow of the Carrizozo Methodist Church and the escort of the remains to the cemetery being Masonic, according to the wishes of the family. The funeral was largely attended by the many friends of the family from different places over the county and the remains interred in the Angus cemetery.

Mrs. Kalsen, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pfingsten of Lincoln, was born Sept. 16, 1895, departed this life Nov. 23, 1928. The deceased was united with the First Baptist Church of Alamogordo at the age of 16 years and later became a member of the First Baptist Church, National City, California.

On July 8, 1921, she was united in marriage to John H. Kalsen, to which union, 2 children were born, Mary Helen, 6 and Margaret Ruth, 2 years old. Besides these she leaves to mourn her loss a husband, parents, two brothers, one sister, other relatives and many friends. Mrs. Kalsen was possessed of a perfect faith, a cheerful and sunny disposition, which endeared her to all who knew her, never complaining, but always ready to help where needed. She was a devoted wife, mother, a beloved daughter and sister and a cherished friend.

A Holiday Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace will leave the first of the coming week for California, where they will spend the holiday season, dividing their time with Mrs. Lovelace's sister, Mrs. Allison and the S. W. Wells family at Palmdale. They expect to return home about Jan. 10.

Visitors

John Fargeros was in from his ranch this week attending to business matters. Judge Norton of Jicarilla is spending the week here for the purpose of rest and recuperation.

Frank Maxwell was also in for two days this week.

Floyd Rowland won the prize turkey Wednesday night with ticket No. 4264, Crystal Theatre.

COMMISSIONERS' PROCEEDINGS

And for the purpose of the above and foregoing the undersigned has this day transmitted to the said J. L. Lawson to act as his representative as aforesaid the said writing from the said county canvassing board together with the ballot box key for said precinct which has heretofore been transmitted to the undersigned at Las Cruces, New Mexico, this the 14th day of November, A. D. 1928.

Numa C. Frenger, District Judge.

The election officials from Lincoln, as follows, were present: E. C. Dow, A. L. Hulbert, Helen A. Rice, Grace Bursleson, Fritz Pfingsten. The box was opened by the county clerk and all five of the above named officials proceed to recount in the presence of J. L. Lawson and the board of county commissioners, R. E. P. Warden, Chas. F. Grey, W. B. Rose. After ballots were counted, corrected tallies were made, the ballot box re-locked and one key returned to the clerk and one to Mr. Lawson. The secretary of state did not return the Poll Books for precinct No. 1, which were sent to her by the above named officials.

And now the board proceeds to canvass the returns of the election and after duly canvassing said returns declare and certify that the candidates voted for at said election received the number of votes set opposite their respective names in the list appended below:

"BROTHERLY LOVE"

Picture to Be Shown Christmas Night Under Auspices I. O. O. F.

On Christmas night, Dec. 25, Carrizozo Lodge No. 30, I. O. O. F., will present the picture, "Brotherly Love," a wonderful production; to the patrons of the Crystal Theatre.

The principal star in the picture is Karl Dane, the man who played the part of "Slim, the Riveter" in the "Big Parade" and who made it famous, as he always gives the picture fans the worth of their money (and then some.)

Karl has with him in this picture, an all-star cast, and it will be well worth seeing. After the usual Christmas dinner and the afternoon spent in the home or with friends, the question usually presents itself "What shall we do—and where shall we go tonight?"

The question can be easily answered by deciding to go to the Crystal Theatre and enjoying "Brotherly Love," a first-class Comedy-Drama.

Members of the Rebekahs will act as ushers to see that everybody receives the utmost courtesy and comfort. If a dance should be held on that night, the dancing will not begin until the show is over, so you may see the show and enjoy the dancing afterwards.

Little Martha Warden Passes On

In our last week's issue of the Outlook, we expressed the hope that little Martha Warden, who was badly burned by the explosion of a gasoline can about Nov. 12, would survive the ordeal, but hardly had the paper got into circulation before she took a turn for the worse, and at 11:30 Friday night, she passed away.

The funeral was held at the Methodist Church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock with the Rev. Thos. V. Ludlow conducting the services, and attended by many friends of the family from over the county, and the remains interred in the local cemetery.

The unfortunate happening has filled the homes of Carrizozo people and those of surrounding towns with sadness, and at different times during her illness of about 10 days, strong hopes were entertained for her recovery, but to no avail.

Little Martha was a bright child, unusually attentive to her duties at school, and affectionately devoted to her parents. She was a favorite among her playmates, and many were her friends among the older people on the ranches, and at Carrizozo.

To the sorrowing parents and relatives, the deepest of sympathy goes out from our community.

Here from Tucumcari

Mrs. John Grayson, sister of Mrs. Fred Pfingsten, who was at Lincoln to attend the funeral of her niece, the late Mrs. Helen Kalsen, left Monday for her home in Tucumcari, after visiting Mrs. J. V. Hobbie and mother, Mrs. Brown here.

Engineer Here

Jerry Lassiter, maintenance engineer for the State Highway was here for a few days this week.

CRYSTAL THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday—George Sidney, Geo. Lewis and Patsy Ruth Miller in "WE AMERICANS;" also Comedy.

Wednesday—One Night Only—Mary Pickford in "MY BEST GIRL" and NEWS REEL. A Benefit Program for the High School Orchestra. Admission, 25 and 50c.

Thursday and Friday—"ON ZE BOULEVARD," You will laugh a-plenty at this one.

Coming—"Brotherly Love," a Comedy-Drama starring Karl Dane. Given under the auspices of the I. O. O. F. Christmas Night.

Died at Sioux City

Last Friday, Nov. 23, Mrs. John Ohge, sister of Mrs. R. E. Blaney passed away after an illness of about six months. Mrs. Ohge will be remembered by many Carrizozo people as she visited her sister here about 3 years ago. This sad happening on the date of the regular meeting of the Rainbow Club for girls, the Assembly out of respect for Mrs. Blaney, Mother Advisor of the Assembly, postponed its meeting to another date. Mrs. Blaney has the sympathy of our community.

Thanksgiving Services

The High School Auditorium was filled yesterday morning to hear the program as published in our last week's issue on page 3. The program in its entirety, was worthy of more than ordinary comment and from start to finish, the audience paid the closest attention as each number was called and the participants performed their respective parts in a commendable manner.

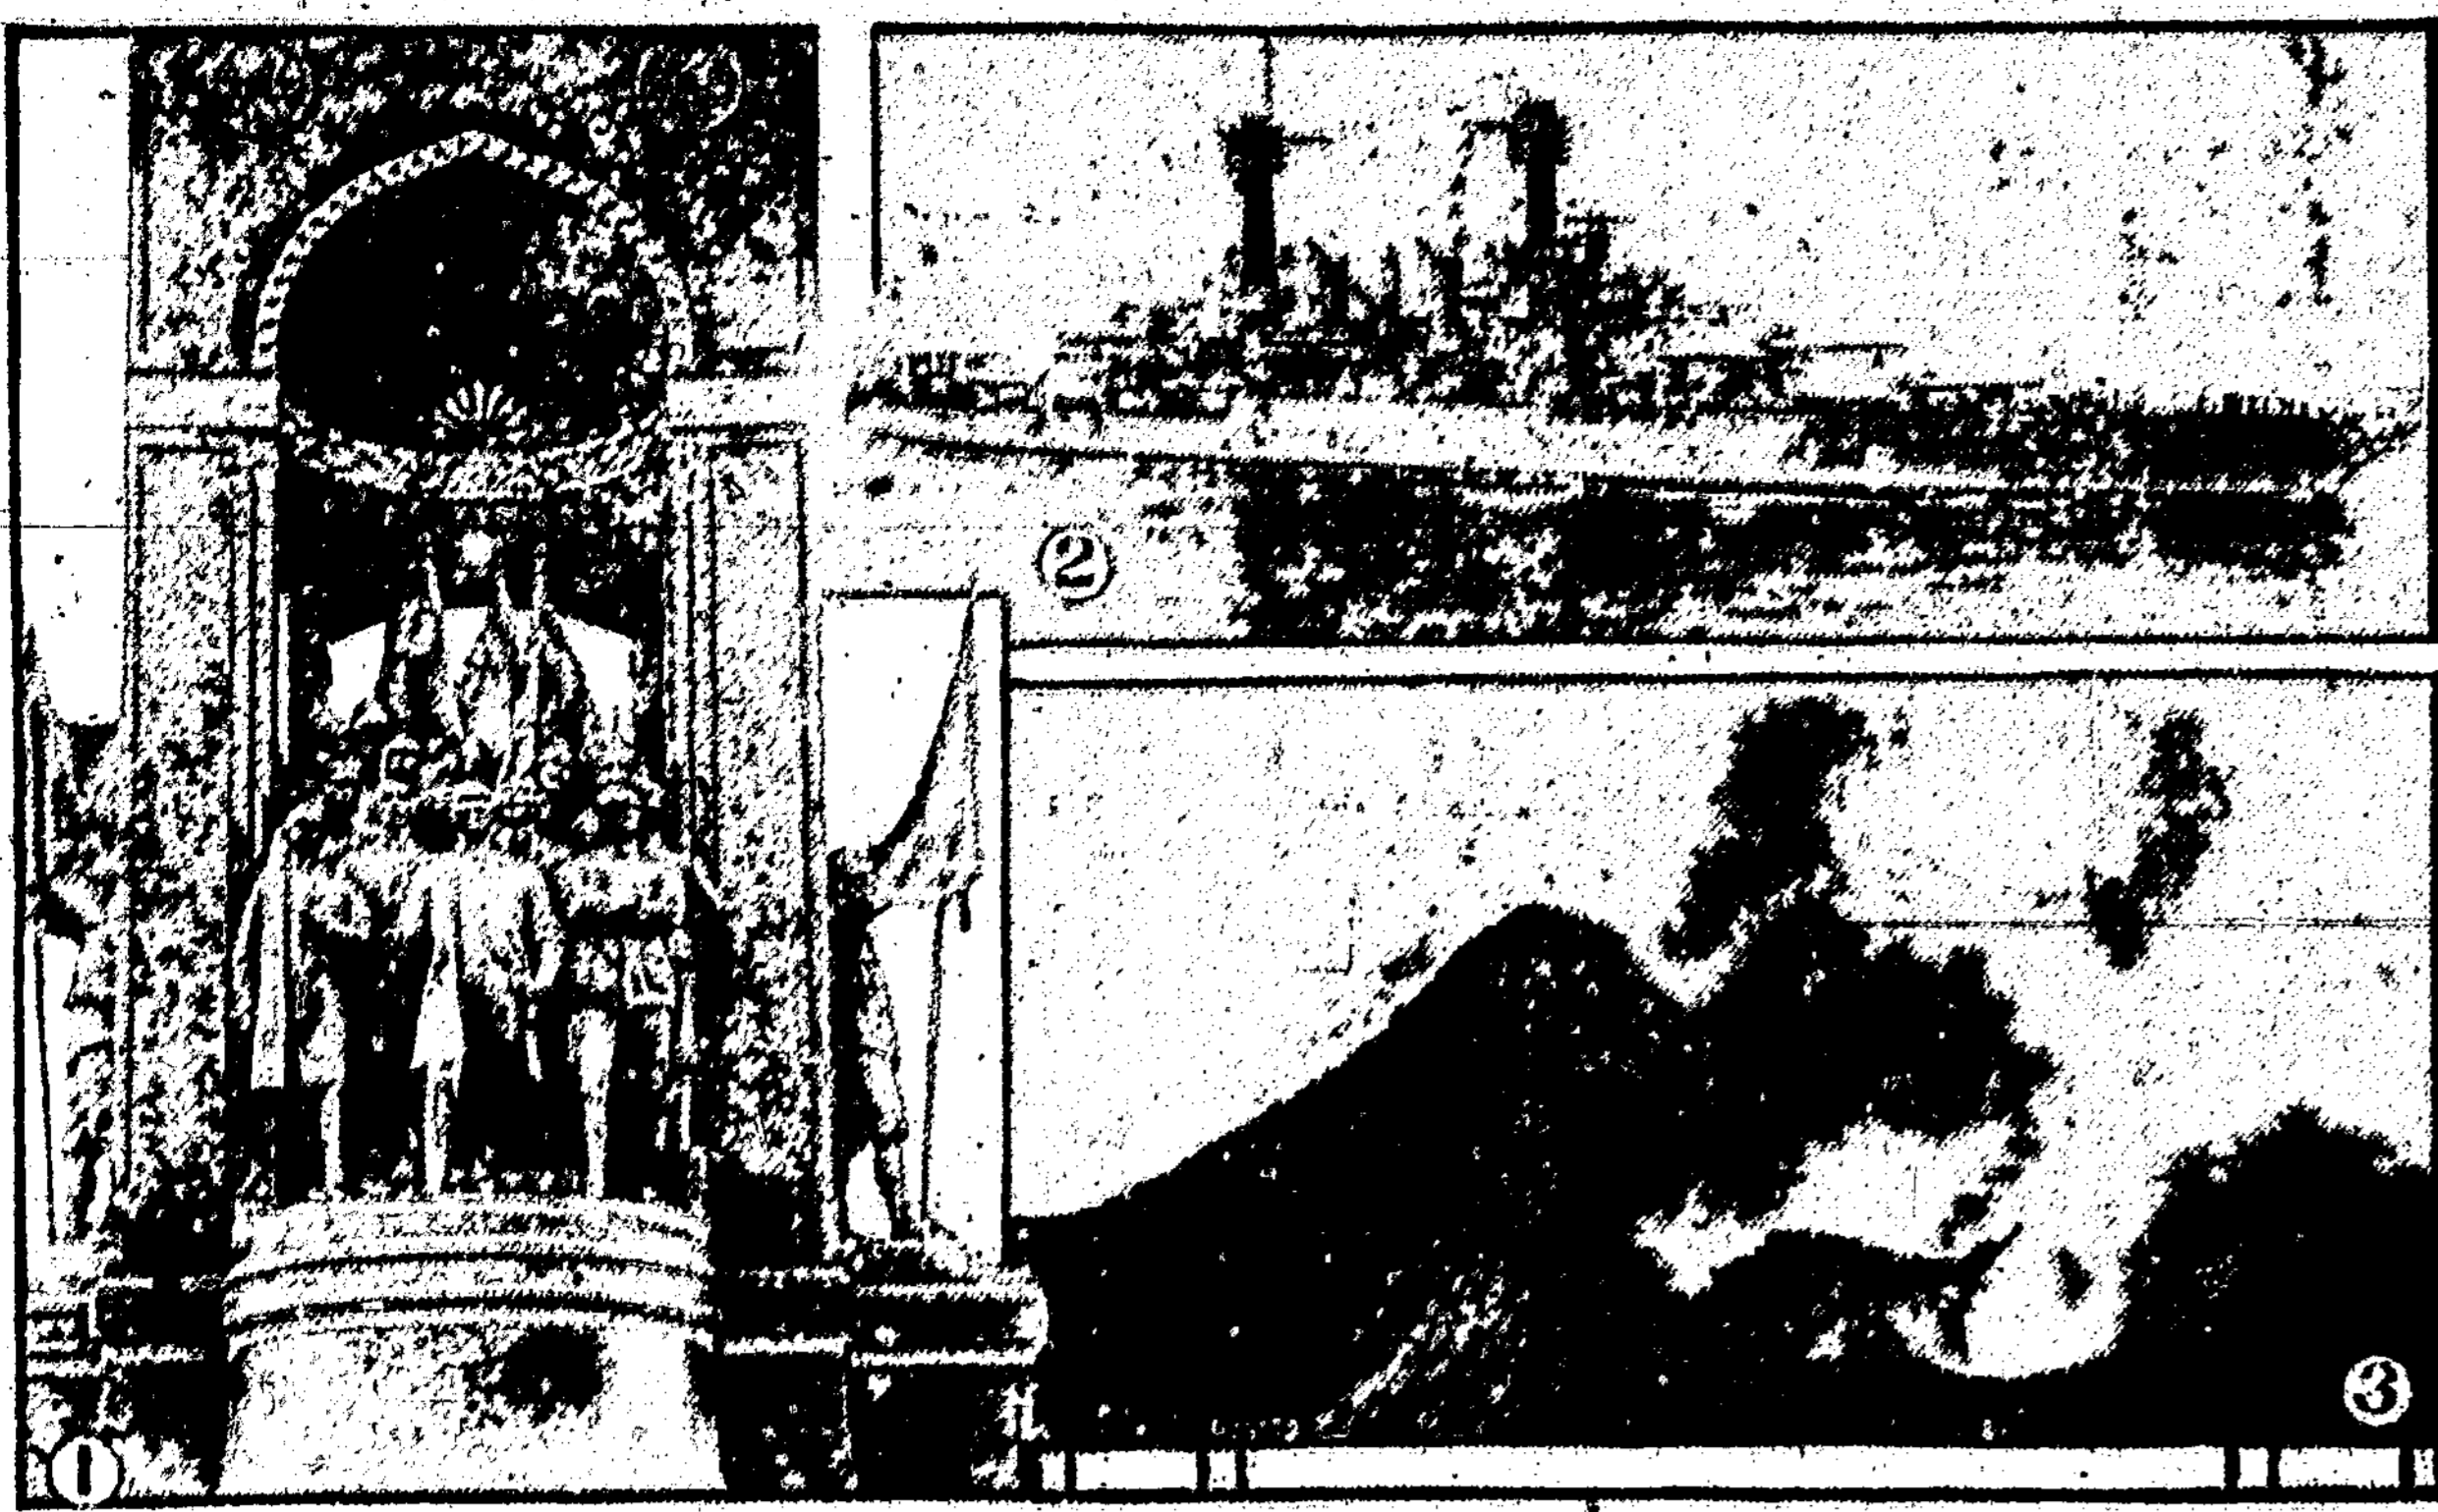

Great credit is due the teachers who instructed the little ones, who, without an exception, followed out the directions of their instructors to the letter and without an error. The services closed at 11:15.

New License Plates

The new license plates for automobiles are here and are in the hands of J. B. French, who wishes to announce that they may be had at his office without sending to Santa Fe for them. This affords a convenience to owners they have not had in the past. The plates are of a cream-yellow background with tulodian red numerals and bear the Zia sun symbol. Mr. French has 800 of the new plates now on hand and will be given out to those who first pay their automobile tax for the new year.

Home from Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Adams and Henry Hoffman returned Wednesday from a trip to southern Missouri, where they visited at the home of Mrs. Adams' mother, Mrs. Lindsay, at Bernie. On their way to Bernie, Mr. and Mrs. Adams visited with Mr. Adams' mother, Mrs. J. R. Adams at Tulsa, Okla. They have been absent over a month.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Ship and Crew Blamed for the Loss of Life in the Vestris Disaster.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ONE hundred and eleven persons, of whom forty-three were women and children, perished when the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris sank about 250 miles off the Virginia capes. The rescued were 215 in number and were picked up by vessels summoned by the B O B call of the radio operator on the Vestris. Who, if anybody, was to blame for the terrible loss of life was to be determined by official investigation. Many of the survivors were certain that the captain, William Carey, was responsible for it. He went down with his vessel and cannot defend himself. The stories told by the rescued passengers agree that the ship was in evident peril Sunday night and that Captain Carey delayed the sending of calls for help until ten o'clock Monday morning, presumably hoping to save salvage fees, which are heavy. Though the Vestris was inspected at New York on November 7 it is asserted she sailed with some of her life boats and lowering davits in poor condition and that none of the boats were sufficiently equipped with oars, provisions, etc. Before she got far from port a heavy flat developed, and the cargo shifted when heavy seas broke through one of the coaling ports.

When the captain finally did send out the B O B call it was answered immediately by several vessels, including the American Shipper, the French tanker Myrtam and the North German Lloyd liner Berlin. The battleship Wyoming and five coast guard vessels also were rushed to the scene. But hours before the first of these arrived the Vestris had rolled over and gone to the bottom. Almost at the last minute the passengers and crew took to the boats, but some of these boats were smashed, and others upset. The old rule of the sea, women and children first, was observed, but only ten of the thirty-three women survived and all of the twenty children perished. Twenty-one bodies of the dead were recovered. Captain Carey was said at the London offices of the steamship company to have been an experienced seaman with an excellent record. Staying with the ship and dying with the captain was M. J. O'Loughlin, the radio operator.

SIX members of the flying school squadron at San Antonio, Texas, were killed when an army transport plane crashed. The right wing and tail piece of the plane broke off at an altitude of 3,000 feet and it plunged into a tall spin. The men killed were all in the cabin of the plane and had no chance. The pilot and another man, who were in the front seat, were thrown out and landed with parachutes.

MOUNT ETNA calmed down toward the end of the week and it was believed the eruption was nearing its end. The river of molten lava was beginning to solidify and its advance was much slower, but it still was menacing several towns. Officials of the Fascist government were most efficient in evacuating and assisting the refugees, all of whom were provided with shelter and food. Ample funds were voted by the council of ministers. The work of reconstruction already is being planned, among the first things being the building of new transportation routes around the fresh lava deposits. The total damage is estimated at $3,000,000. Three towns were ruined, two railroads cut and partly submerged and many hundreds of acres of lemon groves and vineyards destroyed. Very few lives were lost for the inhabitants had ample warning.

PRESIDENT-ELECT HERBERT HOOVER is on his way southward aboard the battleship Maryland, and all of Latin-America is getting ready to welcome him on his good-will tour. It was decided that the first port of call should be Corinto, Nicaragua, where he would be met by President Diaz and would have an opportunity to indicate the policy his administration will pursue in dealing with situations similar to that which arose in Nicaragua and which resulted in the policing of the country by American marines. From there on the tentative program calls for stops at Balboa, Canal Zone; Callao, Peru; and Valparaiso, Chile. The governments of Colombia, Ecuador and Bolivia also asked that Mr. Hoover visit those countries.

The President-elect is accompanied on his tour by Mrs. Hoover and their son, Allan. The others in the official party are Henry P. Fletcher, American ambassador to Rome, representing the State department; George Akeron, secretary to Mr. Hoover; George Harr Baker of New York, a personal friend; Commander Augustin T. Beauregard, United States naval aid to the President-elect, and a force of four clerks and interpreters.

Before leaving Palo Alto, Mr. Hoover made it known that he had not discussed his cabinet appointments with anyone and would do nothing in that matter until his return in January. William J. Donovan, assistant attorney general of the United States, spent several days at the Hoover home and at once it was rumored that he would be given the post of attorney general.

In a letter written for the Manufacturers' Record, Mr. Hoover expressed his profound appreciation of the heavy vote given him by the Southern states, and promised that he would give that section of the country all the help he could in the way of flood control and development of an inter-coastal canal system and hydro-electric power.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S Armistice day address, delivered at the American Legion exercises in Washington, aroused a lot of comment, mostly favorable in this country. He made an earnest appeal for the construction of additional cruisers for our navy, and then passed to a review of American relations since the war, giving Europe notice of changes in our foreign policy. He took America's former allies to task for their criticism of this country, announced a tightening of American purse strings on loans to Europe, placed the blame for the failure of the Geneva three-power conference and the efforts to attain cruiser limitation squarely upon the selfishness of England and other European nations.

The French press didn't especially like the President's remarks; and in London Lord Birkenhead in a banquet speech said: "My answers to the President of the United States would be that we ask nothing from them except good will. When we discuss questions of naval construction we do not invite lectures as to whether we are pacific or not. When America claimed the right to build a certain number of cruisers our answer was: 'We agree. Let them build as many as they like.' There is one thing no English government ever will do. They will not surrender the right to build a sufficient number of light cruisers to protect the empire for which they are responsible trustees."

GOY. AL SMITH went down to Biloxi with a party of close friends to rest and play golf, but before departing from New York he issued a cheerful radio address to his fellow Democrats. Admitting his disappointment with the outcome of the election, he yet refused to admit that the defeat had crushed the Democratic party and declared that it must carry on its political fight along the lines and upon the principles it always has stood for and that it should be a constructive rather than a destructive force. These principles, he asserted, are at great defeat as they would have been in victory. Citing the large popular vote he received, he said: "We have the assurance from the election returns that the Democratic party is a live, a vigorous and a forceful major minority party. The existence of such a party is necessary under our system of government."

The governor reminded his hearers that Mr. Hoover would be the President, not of the Republican party, but of the United States--of all the people--and as such "is entitled to all the cooperation of every citizen in the development of a program calculated to promote the welfare and the best interests of this country."

LOUIS J. TABER, master of the National Grange, in addressing the opening session of the annual convention in Washington, urged that congress call a halt on the expenditures of public funds for new reclamation projects. "The government should act with caution in the development of new lands for agricultural production during this period of depression and surplus," Mr. Taber said. "The grange must fight against appropriations for new irrigation and reclamation projects until there is evidence of need for the land for food purposes, or until agriculture again prospers."

The grange is in favor of the export plan of farm relief in preference to the McNary-Laugan bill, which it considers dead.

HIGHWAY officials from nearly every state, in annual convention in Chicago, expressed the belief that there would be an unprecedented expansion and development of improved roads during the Hoover administration, because of the encouragement he gave the movement in his St. Louis speech, and the association asked for a largely increased federal aid appropriation.

STATISTICS made public by the Internal Revenue bureau show that 62 individuals entered the $1,000,000 or more income class in 1927 and that the total number in that group was thus brought up to 253. The report shows a marked decrease in the number of persons having incomes up to $10,000 a year and a considerable increase in those reporting higher incomes, as compared with the figures for 1926. There was a big decrease in the gross incomes of corporations.

JULIU MANIU, leader of the Rumanian peasant party, was summoned by the regency council to form a ministry for that disturbed country, and undertook the job, to the great joy of the peasants and workmen. He made up a cabinet and began work by dismissing a lot of lesser officials in different parts of the country, saying he wished to clean "Rumania's Augean stable of its corrupt and dishonest incumbents before the new elections are held so that the Liberals with their huge political machine can not falsify the returns." All the opposition parties have combined to fight to the death against the Maniu government. This combination is backed by the big corporate interests and says it will spend money freely in the national elections early in December.

Raymond Poincare yielded to persuasion and formed a new ministry for France with himself as premier without portfolio. But he had to leave out the Radical Socialists because they refused to co-operate with him and thus his parliamentary strength is considerably decreased. He also omitted M. Louis Marin, leading opponent of the war debt agreement ratification.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ASA KEYES of Los Angeles pleaded not guilty to charges of bribery and will go on trial, with seven others, on December 5. An interesting feature of this case is the possibility that the Almes Sempie McPherson kidnaping conspiracy matter may be reopened. Witnesses before the grand jury submitted documentary evidence said to have supported allegations that about $300,000 was used in the defense of the avian geist before the district attorney dismissed the charges of conspiracy which were made against her. Over in England, where Almes has been evangelizing, she denied this story with scornful satire.

MME. SIGRID UNDSBY of Norway has been given the 1928 Nobel prize in literature, and Henry Bergson, French philosopher, that for 1927 held over from last year. The Nobel awards for chemistry, for both years were carried off by Germans, Prof. Heinrich Wieland of Munich and Prof. Adolf Windaus of Goettingen. The peace prize for 1928 will be awarded by a committee of five in Oslo.

Progress of Agriculture Greatly Aided by Fairs and Their Exhibits

By DR. BRADFORD KNAPP, Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

FAIRS and expositions have become important in our educational systems. They have a valuable place in every step in agricultural, industrial, commercial and educational advancement. To them we come to compare notes, to learn what our neighbors, far and near, may be doing in their work. From them we learn the new things, the improved ways, the very existence of things almost unknown. I have seen many a farmer come to the fair with an exhibit which he believed to be the very best to be found anywhere, only to discover that some other farmer has a better one. The thousands who came with no exhibit got the thrill of seeing what can be. Two hundred years ago in England, fairs were general sales day when farmers gathered to sell their products. Fairs were markets. Then some one began offering a prize, and so grew our modern fairs. Agriculture has made more progress since fairs and exhibits became a part of our system than in all history before that time. As a national policy, industry, labor and banks have laws which prevent, or tend to prevent, disaster. What we need is a national policy toward agriculture. Three times in a little more than a hundred years we have seen this thing happen to agriculture. Some day we will acquire the wisdom to solve the problems and prevent the misery accompanying such a disaster on these occasions.

Irresistible Forces Moving to Make End of Era of Lawlessness

By ARTHUR V. LASHLY, Director of Crime Survey, Chicago.

Crime in America has reached the point of saturation. But I am persuaded that history will note the swing of the pendulum in the other direction and that the next ten years will see some remarkable readjustments of our attitudes toward crime, criminals and the enforcement of law.

The reaction of the people is already making itself felt in the movement for law enforcement and the suppression of crime which is sweeping the country. This movement has crystallized from a number of small beginnings in several of the states until it has assumed a national aspect. The people are studying the question as it has never been studied before. Citizen committees and official commissions, organized to obtain and publish the facts, and to keep a day-by-day check upon law-enforcing agencies, have sprung up in a number of cities and states. The press of the country is almost unanimous in its advocacy of better laws and better administration and enforcement of those laws.

These activities, in my opinion, have substantially contributed to filling our prisons to overflowing, especially in states having large urban centers. And, in my judgment, you will see an over-increasing prison population as this movement gains headway and becomes irresistible, until government again has crime under reasonable control.

Americans Generally Unappreciative of the Benefits of Real Leisure

By DR. DANIEL GREGORY MASON, Columbia University.

In America little true leisure exists--what we have is mostly not the genuine article. We have plenty of what we carelessly suppose to be leisure--more probably, thanks to our economic good fortune, than is to be found anywhere else in the world; but most of it, spoiled by wrong emotional attitudes and fallacious ideas, falls short of creativeness, and so is not real leisure at all.

The fatigue-poisoned mind and body, too dull to enjoy quiet beauty and true thought, craves the crude excitements so abused among us: restless speeding in motor cars from nowhere; the rapid movements and trivial but exciting dangers of the amusement park; superlatives and exaggerations in talk; the artificial stimulants and feverish pumped-up gaiety of the "wild party"; the "thrills" so insistently demanded by the younger generation; violent plastic arts using harsh angles and garish colors; noisy, mechanical, over-accented music.

Leisure in order to be fruitful and to make us happy, needs some such stimulus and control as work gets largely through social means; and our next question must therefore be, how can these be achieved in the case of leisure without jeopardizing, as direct social control would seem to do, its equally essential spontaneity and irresponsibility?

Spiritualism the Great Force to Bring About Almost Crimeless World

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, English Writer.

I can vision the coming of a practically crimeless world through the advancement of clairvoyance. We shall have a clairvoyant in every police station and there the criminal will be hunted down so that crime will become the most difficult, if not impossible, action to conceal. Clairvoyants will often be able to tell the actual perpetrator of the crime.

If you give them a portion of the dress of the slain person, they frequently will be able to throw themselves back to the time of the killing and get a kind of intimation of the circumstances and the method used by the criminal.

Spiritualism is going to revolutionize the world in every way. It will get religion back to actual contact with people and will revolutionize science, medicine and criminology.

There are at least two doctors in the United States who are engaged entirely in casting out devils. Ordinary doctors could do nothing with the invasion, but these men persuade it to leave.

World Understanding Forwarded by Foreign Students in American Institutions

By DR. PAUL MONROE, Columbia University.

The democratic interchange of common cultures and intellectual developments is one of the most potent influences toward elimination of international conflicts, and the last few years have seen a vast change in the type and number of foreign students studying in America, particularly at Columbia university, which is the center of this educational interchange.

The culture of the generation gone was for the few, and the influence of these students scarcely penetrated outside the limits of the intellectual class. Today it is different. Foreign students are from all classes, and are studying education with a view to returning to their countries and improving their systems. Many of the students are sons of the ruling classes; others are some of educational leaders.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use PHILLIPS MILK of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take. Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

PHILLIPS Milk of Magnesia

Snappy. Robert--I hate a fool! Roberta--Well, you certainly are not egotistical.

Worth Knowing When Winter-Cold-Come!

Did you ever hear of a five-hour remedy for colds? There is one, and it really does bring you out of it completely. Even if it's gripe, this method works, only takes longer. Pape's Cold Compound is in tablet form. Pleasant-tasting, but it surely has the "authority!"--Adv.

The worst beating a bully ever gets is from some man who doesn't want to fight.

Girl at the Top in Health Test

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in the West are being restored to health and strength by the purely vegetable tonic and laxative known as California Fig Syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compete with it as a gentle, but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion. A Kansas mother, Mrs. Diana Allgire, 610 Monroe St., Topeka, says: "Bonnie B. is absolutely the picture of health, now, with her ruddy cheeks, bright eyes and plump but graceful little body and she stands at the top in every health test."

Much of the credit for her perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since babyhood to keep her bowels active during colds or any children's ailments and she has always had an easy time with them. She always responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the carton so you'll always get the genuine.

"AS NECESSARY AS BREAD"

Mrs. Skahan's Opinion of Pinkham's Compound

Saugus Centre, Mass.--I have taken 10 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and would not be without a bottle in the house than I would be without bread. It has made a new woman of me. I used to be so cross with my husband when I was suffering that I don't know how he stood me. Now I am cheerful and strong and feel younger than I did ten years ago when my troubles began."--Mrs. JOHN SKAHAN, 29 Emory St., Saugus Centre, Mass.

HE SAVED, 22

His name is Licorice—and he is one of the outstanding heroes of the Vestris disaster. Lionel Licorice—his full name—was in command of lifeboat No. 14 when the Vestris sank, and took charge of the lifeboat containing 22 persons. After the American Shipper rescued the boat, the 22 people all joined in to praise the lad and said they owed their lives to him.

Lesson for December 2

PAUL BEFORE HIS JUDGES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 24:1-26:32; GOLDEN TEXT—I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul on Trial. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul on Trial. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul on the Witness Stand. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul Defends His Life Work.

1. Paul Before Felix (24). 1. The accusation against him (vv. 1-9). This was made by Tertullus, perhaps a Roman lawyer employed by the Jews.

(1) A pestilent fellow (v. 5). This would indicate a fellow utterly base and corrupt—a plague.

(2) An inciter of rebellion, a lover of sedition (v. 5). This is hoped would bring him into conflict with the Roman power.

(3) That he was ringleader of a sect (v. 5). This was designed to throw contempt and suspicion upon the Christians.

(4) That he had profaned the temple (v. 6).

2. Paul's defense (vv. 10-21). (1) His frankness and courtesy (v. 10). He gave recognition to the fact that Felix had been ruler long enough to be able to judge justly, as the habits and ways of the Jews were familiar to him.

(2) The charges made (vv. 11-20). a. The charge of sedition denied (vv. 11, 12). The falsity of this he showed by the fact that the time, was too short. Besides, his conduct showed the contrary.

b. The charge of heresy (vv. 14-18). This he made by a confession and a denial. He admitted that he was of this "way," which they called heresy, but denied that Christians were schismatic. He showed that his actions were clearly in keeping with the Hebrew religion, that he worshipped the same God (v. 14), fully believed in the same Scriptures (v. 14), and had the same hope of the resurrection of the dead.

c. The charge of sacrilege (vv. 17-21). This he refuted by saying that he had come all the way from Greece to worship at the feast (v. 17), and had brought gifts for his nation.

3. Felix trembles before Paul (vv. 22-27).

Wicked as Felix was, Paul's manner won his favor, though he did not release him. His sentence was "indulgent imprisonment," which kept him free from his enemies while under Roman protection. When brought before Felix, Paul reasoned of righteousness, self-control and judgment to come. Felix trembled.

II. Paul Before Festus (25:1-12). More than two years had elapsed since the trial before Felix, but Jewish hatred did not abate. As soon as Festus, the new governor, went to Jerusalem, he was besieged with accusations against Paul. His accusers desired that he be brought to Jerusalem for trial, intending to lie in wait and kill him on the way. Festus refused their request but agreed to give them an opportunity to go down to Caesarea to accuse him. They were unable to prove anything against him. Festus, willing to please the Jews, proposed to send him to Jerusalem for trial. Seeing that it was impossible to get justice before Festus, Paul made use of his right as a Roman citizen and appealed to Caesar.

III. Paul Before Agrippa (Acts 25:13-26:27).

1. The occasion (25:13-27). This was the visit of Agrippa and Bernice to Festus. Upon their arrival they expressed a desire to hear Paul.

2. Paul's defense before Agrippa (26:1-27).

He introduced his defense (vv. 1-3) by expressing his delight in now telling his case to one who could follow his line of argument, for Agrippa was an expert in questions concerning the Jews.

He then indicated his manner of life (vv. 4-12) by showing that he had lived in the strictest accord with the most rigid sect of the Jews. He then indicated his supernatural conversion (vv. 13-15). After his conversion he was commissioned by Christ (vv. 16-18). As soon as he had received his commission he rendered obedience (vv. 19-23). Seeing how thoroughly in earnest Paul was, Festus interrupted him and attempted to account for his enthusiasm by attributing it to the ravings of an unbalanced mind. Despite this, he made his appeal to Agrippa (vv. 24-27). He courageously appealed to Agrippa's knowledge of the work of Jesus and of the prophets. Agrippa was so impressed by Paul's appeal that he declared he was almost persuaded to be a Christian.

WEEKLY South-West NEWS ITEMS

Plans are being formulated by the Douglas Chamber of Commerce to undertake the raising of $1,000 to advertise the Broadway of America highway extending from Broadway, New York, to Broadway, San Diego.

Ducks at the Pecho reservoir near Florence, Ariz., seem to have recovered from an epidemic which killed off so many lately, according to a report made in Florence by C. E. Butler, steward of the Florence Duck Club.

Manuel Payno Mariscal, veteran in the Mexican consular service, has assumed charge of the Phoenix Mexican consulate, succeeding Alex V. Martinez, who left Phoenix two months ago to join the staff of the Mexico City consular service.

About all that remains to be done to call the Douglas, Arizona, international airport complete is the completion of a water pipe line from that city to the landing field. Negotiations are under way to have the government move a hangar from Camp Jones to the new port.

Southern New Mexico counties by pooling their product received the highest price paid for mohair in many years last week when 200,000 pounds were sold at 60 cents a pound. Growers selling independently outside the organization received from 57 to 59 cents a pound.

That twenty-one of Arizona's largest taxpayers pay two-thirds of all states' taxes, while all of the 99,979 others are paying, only the remaining, one-third, was revealed in Phoenix in figures compiled by the state tax commission, and released by Chairman Charles R. Howo.

The Skelly Oil Company's Joyner No. 1 well, located in the southeast quarter, Lea county, New Mexico, has been shut down awaiting erection of a storage tank to take care of the big flow. The drillers hit pay sand recently and the well shot 100 barrels in twelve minutes.

A long drought and subsequent cold rains have combined to inflict unusual hardships on Navajo Indians who have been raising sheep in the mountain districts near Farmington. Sheep shipments in this section have been delayed by the slowness with which the sheep have been brought down from the mountains. A drought previously had shortened contract buying. The Indians will suffer a heavy loss from the 1927 schedule of production and sale.

The Corporation Commission has adopted air commerce regulations for Arizona, governing the operation of air craft as common carriers. The new rules, which became effective with their adoption, are in conformity with the air commerce regulation of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce. It was said, and will not conflict with interstate regulations. It will mean that all air lines operating in Arizona must now receive a permit from the commission. The rules will not affect airplanes operated as private conveyances for pleasure.

With approximately one thousand Navajo Indians in attendance, the sixth annual Navajo Indian Tribal Council meeting was held at Leupp near Winslow. The session was presided over by Hon. Edgar B. Merritt, assistant commissioner of Indian affairs of Washington, D. C., who delivered the opening address and outlined the past activities and future policies of the Indian Department. Besides the twenty-four delegates from the various tribes on the reservation in Arizona and New Mexico, the superintendents of the various districts, and other high officials in the Indian service interested in the council, were in attendance.

The recent report issued in Denver by the U. S. Employment Service of the U. S. Department of Labor states that notwithstanding a moderate surplus of unskilled, migratory, seasonal workers in northern sections of New Mexico during October, the demand for miscellaneous workers was sufficient to absorb all available transient labor adapted to cotton picking work, particularly at Roswell and in other cotton districts of southeastern sections of state. Fall harvesting (except cotton) in all sections of state was practically finished during October. Employment will be afforded a considerable number of general agricultural workers in fall plowing and live stock feeding during November and December. The report states that the average level of industrial activities and employment in Arizona is higher than for the past several years, and is due to improved conditions, and unusual activity in agriculture, horticulture, and in new construction and development work, especially noted in the Salt River, Yuma, Casa Grande, and Tucson districts.

One thousand teachers of the three counties of Maricopa, Pinal and Yuma assembled in Phoenix for the three-day convention of the central branch of the State Education Association.

The machine installed on New Mexico's highways some months ago to clean them of nails, bits of metal and other metallic objects which cause punctures has made such a success in its first few months of use that now four "nailpickers," as they are called, are in daily operation. The entire primary highway system of the state is patrolled by these machines.

Volcano Lays $18,000,000 Catania, Sicily.—The loss caused by the torrent of molten lava pouring from Mount Etna Wednesday was estimated at about eighteen and one-half million dollars. The damage estimates included eight and one-half million dollars for devastation of forests, three million dollars for destruction of agricultural lands and two and one-half million dollars for interruption of traffic and consequent loss to commerce. Destruction of buildings, roads, bridges, railways and telephone and telegraph lines made up the balance.

Silverton.—Mrs. Anna C. Bell, the only woman candidate running on an independent ticket in this section of the state, was re-elected county superintendent of schools for San Juan county.

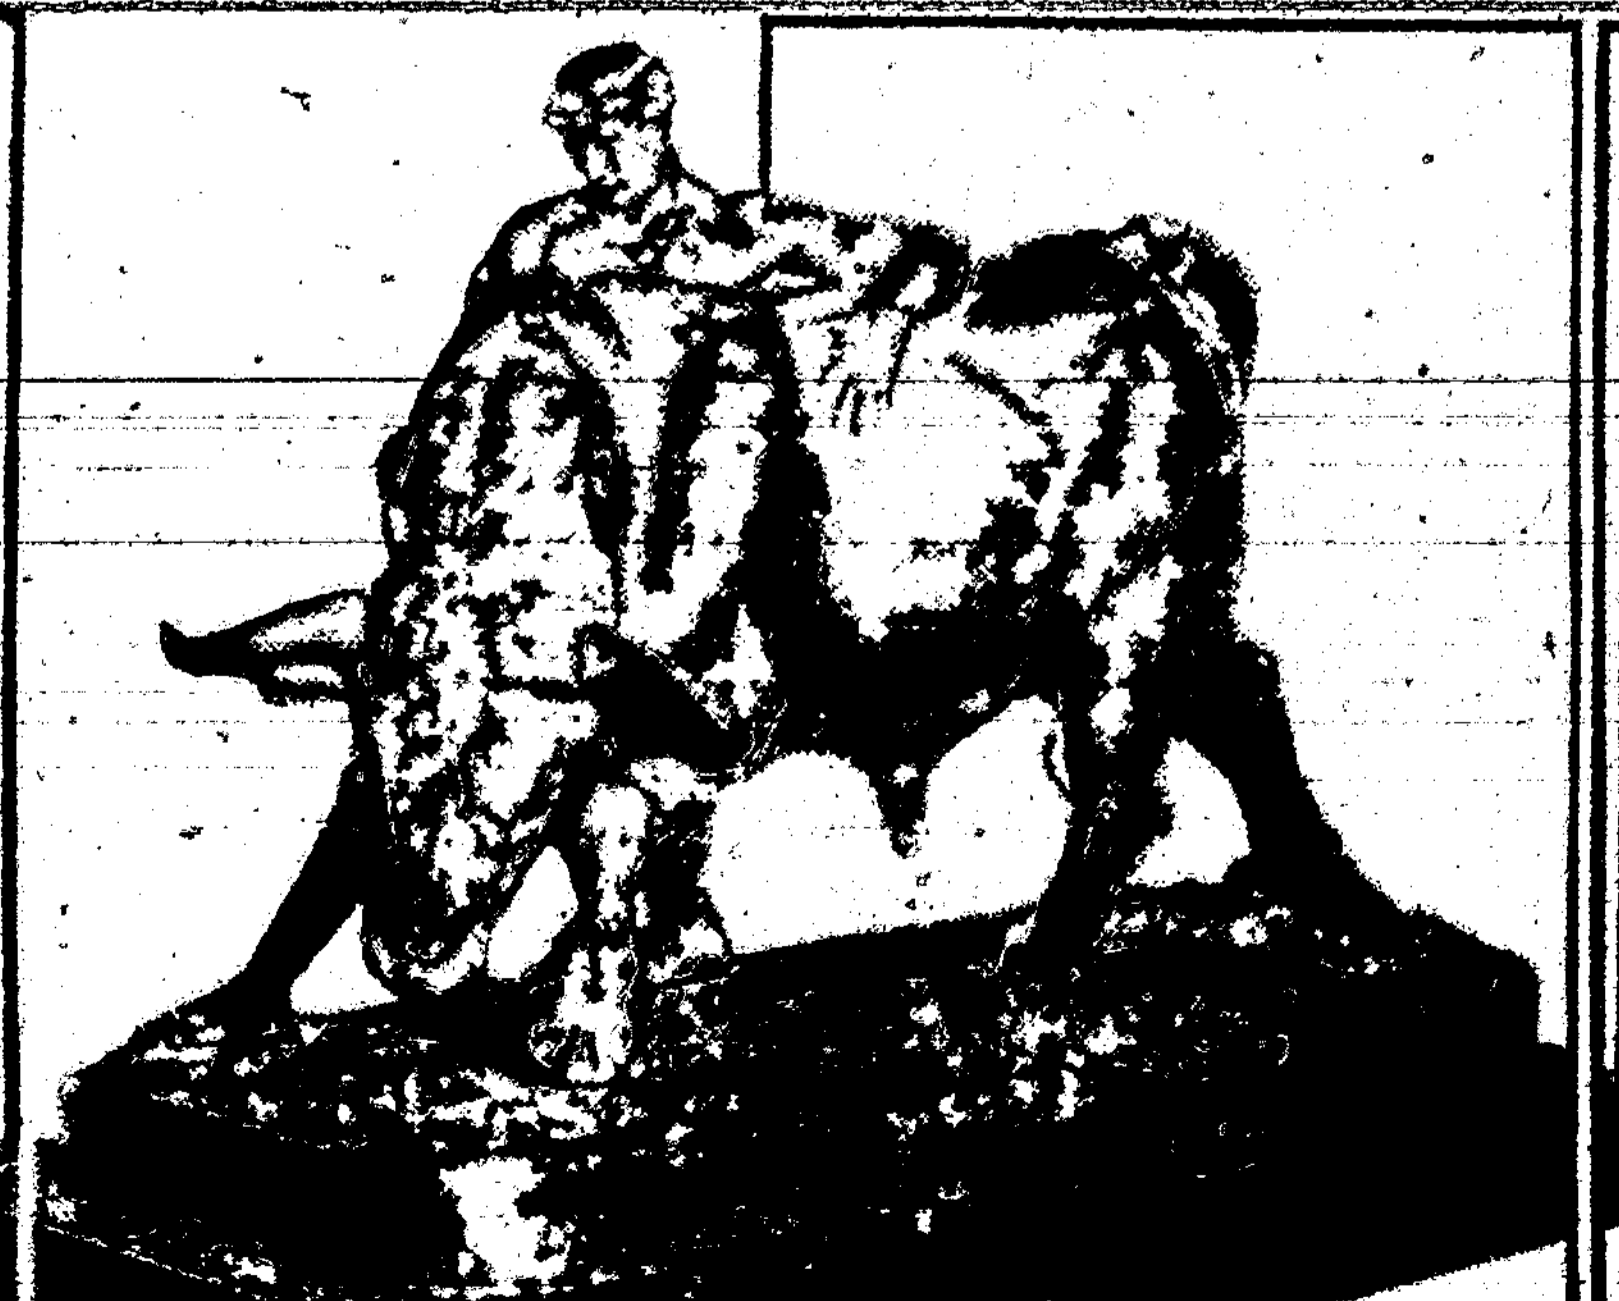

Colorado Springs.—The Burghard Floral company of this city made a clean sweep at the national chrysanthemum show in Chicago, winning seven first prizes.

Luminous Paint Kills Inventor East Orange, N. F.—Dr. Sabina Von Sochocky died Wednesday a victim of the luminous paint which he had invented for the painting of watch dials in the plant of the United States Radium Corporation, formerly located in Orange. Deaths of a half dozen women, who were employed in the plant to paint watch dials, have been attributed to the assimilation of radiactive substances.

Kansas City Banks Merge Kansas City.—Consolidation of the New England National Bank & Trust Company and the Fidelity National Bank & Trust Company to form one of the largest banking institutions in the southwest, was announced here a few days ago by officials of the banks. EDITORIAL COLUMN

"How the Mighty Have Fallen"

Where, oh where, have the great and mighty warriors of the New Mexico State Democratic party gone and what, if anything, are they doing?

Has the mighty Hannett disappeared, gone into his hole and dragged his column, "New Mexico Today," in after him? At least, we scan the pages of a certain paper for the column, but find it not, so we venture the prediction above stated.

What? Are we to have no more white-winged articles to show us the light on the undoings of the Republican party of New Mexico? Are we no longer to burn midnight oil in reading the sayings of the prophet and be compelled to burn a rag to clear the atmosphere?

What has become of the new recruit, in the form of Col. G. W. Pritchard, who stumped the state to help "undo" the wrongs which he claimed had been inflicted on the people of the state by the Republicans?

What has become of the mighty cowboy-lawyer, Bob Dow, who with his lasso attempted to twirl about the officials of the state, who had been, as he claimed, looting the treasury for private gain? Has he burned his lasso, doffed his spurs and settled down to private life, after such a ride in the limelight?

What has become of the "Side-walks of New York?" have they slipped into Hudson river? Silence as deep and dark as Egyptian night, seems to pervade in every quarter. Let the warriors and defenders of the people speak out!

The answer comes like the proverbial horn in the fog. The "happy" warriors, doomed as they are, to undergo another mess of H—for the next two years, must hunt for new pastures and stack up some more fodder for two years hence—Great Guns of War, must they wait that long in torment to frame up another line of misrepresentation, if so—so be it—Selah!

Mrs. W. A. Cassar was hostess to the club in her pretty new home at Hollywood on Nov. 24. Arrangements and plans for conducting the Glencoe Woman's Club Library were completed, and Mrs. Roselle was appointed Librarian.

The Library is receiving many good books which the community is enjoying. Plans were made to have a New Year's Party, Dec. 28, in the form of a Box Supper and Program.

Everybody is invited to come with a box or money to buy a box. A nice program on Fine Arts was given and the meeting closed with the serving of delicious refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on Dec. 22, at the home of Mrs. Nelson Bonnell. Program leader, Mrs. Myrtle Davis, subject: "New Mexico School Code," and "Social Service in the Community."

NOTICE

State Engineer's Office

Number of Application 1804

Santa Fe, N. M., November 13, 1928. Notice is hereby given that on the 10th day of November, 1928, in accordance with Section 26, Chapter 49, Irrigation Laws of 1907, George T. Petors of Columbus, County of Luna, State of New Mexico, made formal application to the State Engineer of New Mexico for a permit to appropriate the Public Waters of the State of New Mexico.

Such appropriation is to be made from Ruidoso Creek which is a tributary of Rio Hondo at a point which bears South 1435 feet distant from the W 1/2 corner of Sec. 19, Twp. 11 S. Rge. 13 E., being in the SW 1/4 Sec. 19, Twp. 11 S., Rge. 13 E., by means of a diversion dam of stone and concrete and ten-foot feet are to be conveyed to a point which bears N. 8 degrees E., 1073 feet distant from the S E corner of Sec. 19, Twp. 11 S., R. 13 E., where the water will be returned to the stream undiminished in quantity, by means of a ditch and there used for power purposes.

Any person, firm, association, or corporation deeming the granting of the above application would be truly detrimental to their rights in the water of said stream system shall file a complete statement of their objections substantiated by affidavits with the State Engineer and serve a copy on applicant on or before the 15th day of January, 1929, the date set for the Engineer to take this application up for final consideration unless protested. In case of protested applications, all parties will be given a reasonable length of time in which to submit their evidence in detail or arrange a date convenient for a hearing or appoint a referee satisfactory to all to take testimony. Appearance is not necessary unless advised officially by letter from the State Engineer.

Herbert W. Yeo,
State Engineer,
Nov 23-30

The New Ford Speedometer

The speedometers of the new Model 'A' Ford cars have shown remarkable accuracy in the measurement of speeds.

Designed and built to maintain an accuracy of within three miles fast at 70 miles per hour, these speedometers of the new Fords thus far have shown, in tests, an average accuracy of not more than 1 and a half miles fast at 70 miles per hour, or just one-half of the tolerance allowed.

The allowed tolerance of three miles fast at a speed of 70 miles per hour means, translated into terms of average driving speeds, that if the speedometer on the car indicates a speed of 24 miles per hour, the actual rate of travel of the car at that time is not less than 23 miles per hour, or that if the speedometer shows a speed of 47 miles per hour, the car actually is traveling at a speed of not less than 45 miles per hour.

Whatever the speed limit allowed by law, the driver of one of the new Fords may be certain that he is within that limit if his speedometer indicates exactly that figure which is the legal limit.

The speedometer, which is standard equipment on the new Fords, is one of the best known and finest of all makes. It is driven from a gear on the drive shaft and measures speed from the revolutions per minute of the shaft.

The tests of these instruments that are being made regularly in the Ford Engineering Laboratory at Dearborn are interesting. The speedometers are tested against an electric tachometer, which in turn is checked with an integrating revolution counter, the most precise device made for determining speeds in the revolutions-per-minute.

Leap Year Privilege

Has Been Legalized

Leap year was so named by the English because by the old Julian calendar every anniversary on that year leaped over one day in the week, but how long the name has been in existence is not recorded. Likewise the origin of "ladle" privilege on this year is lost in antiquity, although legend has it that St. Patrick inaugurated the custom.

It is said that in 1288 the following law, legalizing leap year customs, was enacted in Scotland:

"It is statut and ordais that during the rein of hir maist blisssit Mageste, for ilk yeare knowne as lepe yeare, ilk mayden ladye of bothe highte and lowe estait shall have liberte to bespeke ye man she likes, albeit he refuses to talk her to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum ane pundis or less, as his estait may be; except and awis if he can make it appeare that he is betrothit aneither woman he than shall be free."

When the Illustrated Almanac quoted this statute in 1865, however, its authenticity was questioned. It was said no such law appeared on the statute books of Scotland, nor were there records of any such fines. France once had a law on behalf of the feminine leap year wooers, and the custom was legalized in Genoa and Florence in the Fifteenth century.—Detroit News.

Forms of Salutation

That Seem Peculiar

If some one should approach you and say, "How do you perspire?" or ask you if you have eaten your rice, don't be offended. These are the words by which the Egyptians and Chinese say "How do you do?" when they meet an acquaintance.

All races have their own peculiar forms of salutation. On islands near the Philippines natives grasp the foot of the person they wish to greet and gently rub their faces with it. South Sea Islanders rub noses and exchange gifts, while the Moors kiss each other's shoulders.

"How is your strength?" was the greeting in ancient Rome, where every man was a warrior. The Greeks, with other things than war on their minds, said, "What business are you engaged in?"

The Frenchman's "I am charmed and enchanted to meet monsieur" is difficult to improve upon. "How do you find yourself?" is the German's greeting, and when a guest rises from table they express the hope that he has had a hearty meal and that he will find himself the better for the cheer of the repast.

Explaining the Wind

The blowing of the wind is owing to the presence of more air at one place than at others. This causes a push from the places of more air toward those of less, and the greater this difference in quantity of air the greater the push, and the faster the winds. Now, it is difference in temperature that causes the difference in the accumulation of air; in March the difference in temperature between the southern and northern portions of the United States is greater than at any other time of the year, hence the difference in atmospheric pressure between these regions is then greatest and the resulting winds strongest. These winds are not mainly north and south, as the pressure is, but from west to east. This is owing to the effect of the rotation of the earth, in a way fully understood, but not capable of brief explanation.

Artificial Lace

There is no weaving employed in the production of artificial lace. The manufacturing is done by a machine, which consists in its essential parts of a receptacle containing a cuproammoniacal solution of cellulose, a metallic cylinder upon which is engraved the negative of the design and a cogulation vat. A rotary motion is given the cylinder, over which flows the solution, which, entering the interstices of the engraved pattern, fixes itself immediately in the cogulative liquid, out of which emerges the texture ready to be dyed and dressed. Artificial lace is both beautiful and unalterable. It will wear well and is less combustible than ordinary lace and is waterproof.

Try This for Amusement

Here is a little problem to try when you are lonesome. It is more than odd and interesting. Set down these figures—1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8, leaving out 3. Choose one of these figures and multiply it by 9. Then multiply 12845679 by the result. To your surprise the final result will be made of nothing but the first figure chosen. For example, suppose you choose figure 5. Multiplying 5 by 9 gives 45. Multiplying 12845679 by 45 gives 578055555. Add no matter which figure is chosen to begin with the final result will always contain 9 duplicates.—Pathfinder Magazine.

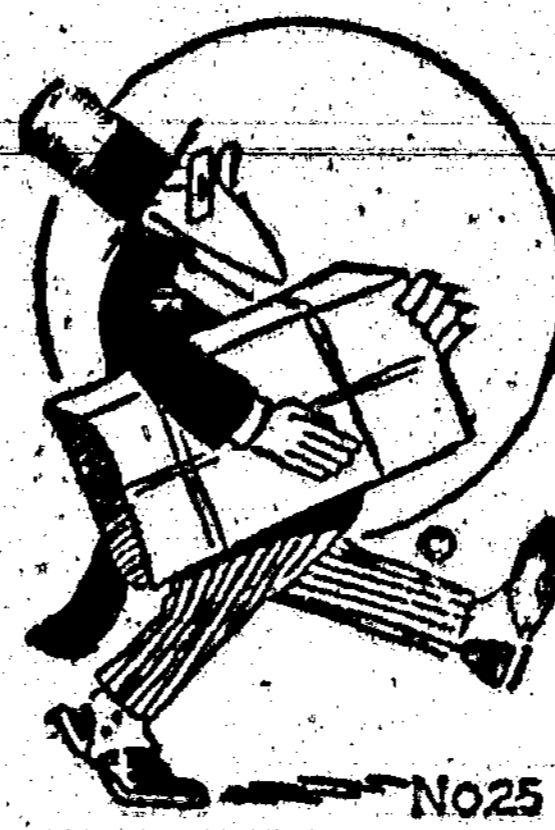

No Splinters

Little four-year-old Tummie, with his parents, was spending the week-end at the home of his aunt and uncle. The aunt, who is an excellent cook, had prepared a number of appetizing dishes, among them a delicious pudding flavored with coconut. When the Sunday evening lunch was being served, Tummie said in a low voice to his mother:

"I don't want any more of that pudding with splinters in it."

Improved SAMSON Windmills
With SELF-OILING Boxes
The good qualities of this new device can be readily seen when compared with the old style, noisy, lumbering windmill, which had to be oiled every day in order to run. Now, your oiling troubles are at an end. The self-oiling feature of the new SAMSON wherein all bearings run constantly in a flood of oil, causes the windmill to run easily, make less noise and with less expense than any windmill on the market. As proof of the pudding, is in the eating of it, so is the lasting virtues of the Samson windmill, made possible by a trial test. For full information SEE--

Fairy Tale for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

It was a little time before Christmas, and Judy dreamed that she was up in Santa's workshop.

There she saw tables and tables and tables with half-made toys upon them.

She saw huge barrels and packing cases and toys being taken off. She saw Santa's huge pack which he wore upon his back on Christmas Eve as he went to visit all the boys and girls in the world.

She saw toys which were all finished and were standing up by each other in rows, which hadn't been put away for the great Christmas season yet.

There were Teddy Bears and woolly lambs, little pink rag pigs and there were trains of cars and boats and airplanes.

There were games and balls and tops. There were sailor boy suits.

There were whistles and all sorts of toy animals. There were dolls all beautifully dressed, with china faces and china bodies.

There were some with rag bodies but china faces, and there were others—oh, there were so many of all sorts she simply couldn't look at them all.

She felt dizzy looking at so many. And she saw Santa Claus, his red coat lying on a chair nearby, working for all he was worth, putting toy after toy, painting one, putting it together, fixing it so it would be all right.

There he was, his white beard hanging way down on his chest and his eyes well, they had never seen such eyes before.

They were laughing! Yes, actually laughing. She saw those blue eyes of his twinkle and she saw them laugh.

Oh, how happy he looked. And yet how busy he was. He no sooner finished one toy than he made another.

Goodness! How quickly he worked. Now he was making—what was it—could it be?

Judy held her breath. This was almost too exciting!

Yes, he was actually making a doll—the very sort she wanted—a nice rag doll with a painted face, a doll to hug and love.

Oh, how she would love that doll Santa Claus was making.

Then it seemed as though the shop

were far away and the toys grew less and less clear, and the last she saw was an arm of a rag doll being finished while Santa smiled as though to say:

"You'll do, little doll, you'll do."

Then she heard her mother calling her to get up. "It's late," her mother said.

"Oh mother," Betty began, "I had such a dream. I dreamed I saw Santa Claus in his shop."

"Oh, he was the most beautiful old man I ever saw in all my life—and yet he wasn't exactly old—no, not old at all.

Oh, How She Would Love That Doll.

"Oh mother, you should have seen his eyes! How they laughed.

"And he was making—think, mother—he was making a rag doll. The very sort of a doll I hope he will give me for Christmas.

"Do you suppose he may give me that doll, mother? And I saw the whole shop and all the toys—and everything.

Could it be?

"Oh, I hope Santa Claus brings me a rag doll."

Now the Dream-King had sent this dream to Judy, and it was as real as a dream can be.

But it was absolutely real that Santa Claus was making a rag doll and that that rag doll was going to be found on Christmas morning in Judy's stocking.

For the Dream King had told Santa Claus it was what she wanted and that was why Santa Claus had smiled so when he had finished making the doll—because he knew how the doll was going to please Judy, and how dearly she would love it.

Scalloped Smoked Fish and Egg

Any of the smoked fish with large flakes may be used, but haddock makes a particularly good dish of scalloped fish. The bureau of home economics tells how to prepare it.

- 1 1/2 cups flaked smoked fish
- 2 cups milk
- 4 tbs. flour
- 6 tbs. butter
- 4 to 5 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- 1/2 cup bread crumbs
- 4 drops tabasco

Stir the bread crumbs into two tablespoonfuls of the butter, melted. Prepare a cream sauce of the remaining butter and the flour and milk. Grease a baking dish and put in a layer of fish, then egg. Pour over this the cream sauce, and continue until all of these ingredients are used. Sprinkle the buttered bread crumbs over the top, and bake in a quick oven until the sauce bubbles up and the crumbs are brown.

Conveniences in the Kitchen

Folding Conveniences in the Kitchen.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Where there's a will there's a way. Mrs. Devoe of Worcester county, Massachusetts, was determined to make her kitchen more convenient after she had talked with the home demonstration agent about the improvements needed. She realized that considerable extra planning and work would have to be done, especially as the suggested improvements would require an expenditure of about $150. So Mrs. Devoe concentrated on her own special source of income—her raspberry patch. From the sale of her fruit she earned enough to carry out her cherished plan. Most of the work she did herself.

To economize space there is a folding ironing board on a closet door, with an electric plug for the iron conveniently placed. A drop shelf near by becomes a work or lunch table when wanted, but it is out-of-the-way when access to the flour barrel or pantry shelves is needed. Mrs. Devoe put in a new sink, drainboard and wash tub on the other side of the room, a cupboard for china, and convenient drawers for supplies and linen. She has plenty of hot water now because she put a paper packing around the tank in the hot water closet. Everything is painted white.

It is by such improvements as these that the farm woman is making her work easier, brighter and more interesting. Extension workers in every state are pointing the way to labor-saving arrangements and equipment.

Cook until smooth and, just before serving, add a cupful of cream, one-fourth cupful of shredded almonds, one teaspoonful of beef extract, eight olives stoned and cut into small pieces, one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice and salt and cayenne to taste.

Scalloped Cauliflower.—Cook the cauliflower until tender, then drain and place in a buttered baking dish; on top of the cauliflower place a layer of good snappy cheese, then a layer of white sauce and cover with more cauliflower. Some Good Things to Eat

By NELLIE MAXWELL

'Tis the human touch in this world that counts. The touch of your hand and mine. Which means far more to the fainting heart Than shelter, and bread and wine.

For shelter is gone when the night is o'er, And bread lasts only a day, But the touch of the hand and the sound of the voice, Sing on in the soul always.—Spencer M. Free, M. D.

Before the freezing weather destroys all the good mushrooms found in the woods, can or dry some for winter. They make delicious soup, gravies, and combined with meat, dozens of savory dishes.

The people from foreign countries—Bohemia, Poland and neighboring countries, find a wealth of the appetizing fungi which they preserve by salting in wooden tubs, and dry as well. In the markets the dried mushrooms sell for several dollars a pound. A handful of the dried mushrooms soaked will add plenty of flavor to a large dish.

Green Peppers Stuffed With Mushrooms and Chicken.—Prepare the peppers by cutting off the stem ends, removing the seeds and pulp, then parboil for five minutes; drain. Place in gem pans in which a little water is placed and stuff. Use chicken, mushrooms that have been fried in butter, seasoning bread crumbs, an egg for binding if desired and cream to make the contents moist. Bake long enough to brown the buttered crumbs on top and serve very hot.

Roast Beef With Mexican Sauce.—Roast cold thinly sliced roast beef in the following sauce: Cook one onion finely chopped in two tablespoonfuls of butter until light yellow. Add one red and one green pepper finely chopped, also one clove of garlic and two tomatoes also chopped. Cook 15 minutes, then add one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth teaspoonful of celery salt, and table salt to taste.

Orange Ice.—Make a syrup, using four cupfuls of water to two of sugar, boil 20 minutes, add two cupfuls of orange juice, one-fourth cupful of lemon juice and the grated rind of two oranges. Cool, strain and freeze.

Walnut and Salmon Salad.—Take three-fourths of a cupful of salmon one-half cupful of walnut meats, three fourths of a cupful of shredded cabbage. Flake the salmon, cut the walnuts into small pieces, crisp the cabbage in cold water. Drain and mix the ingredients, add one cupful of salad dressing and serve on lettuce.

Household Hints

Corn silk is easily removed with a brush.

Fresh grass or mildew stains on fabrics will disappear if washed in clear cold water. Don't use soap for them.

Leaving the oven door ajar for half an hour after baking allows the moisture from cooking to escape and prevents a rusted oven.

Children of woe, parents learn to make their own decisions and not rely constantly on the judgment of others.

Wrapping garbage with newspaper each time it is thrown out and lining the garbage pail with paper will help to discourage flies.

Elastic goods will last longer if washed with a soft brush and soap, rinsed thoroughly and hung up to dry slowly at room temperature.

Long Haired Furs Trim Coats

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

The fur coats in the picture feature long haired furs used to trim flat trim pelts. To the woman who aspires to be modishly cleaved, they are sure to prove alluring. The model to the left is as fetching all in beige as it is all in gray. However, gray broadtail with silver fox is first choice owing to the fact that gray has unexpectedly made its way to the very front color rank. The model to the right stresses the beauty of light fur trimmings on dark, a contrast which is strongly featured this season.

If your preference is for two flat furs used together, then vision, if you will, a white caracul coat with a collar of black persian lamb, the revers of the black fur being that long they face the front opening at each side down to the hemline. Speaking of white caracul, it is winning fame in fashion's realm as a trimming on tweed suits and coats.

A distinctly new method of contrasting furs is being effected in this way—the coat itself is fashioned of a thin fabric-like fur, and is entirely untrimmed. The collar is made so as to admit of wearing a separate fur piece. This fur piece may be a sumptuous twin-skin fox scarf. Then again it may be the intention of the designer to complement the coat of supple thin fur with one of the new fur accessory sets which have entered so intriguingly into the winter style picture.

These new fur ensembles, which necessarily must be of fabric-like fur, exhibit scarfs remarkable for their novelty. Some of them assume the contour of odd-shaped capelets or perhaps distinctive three-cornered shawls. There's a muff, of course, for mufflers are "in" again, and a modish little fur hat to match—sometimes a fur envelope parasol.

When one handsome fur trims another, then the answer is luxury, and that is exactly what the fur coats bespeak this season, fashioned as they are so frequently of supple flat pelts which in turn are magnificently colored and cuffed with furs of long-haired variety.

Natural gray broadtail trimmed with silver fox, or beige caracul with persian and cuffs of fitch, or black broadtail and black caracul with rich maroon, sable or other brown furs, or snowy white fox or ermine—thus does the story of fur coats recite their beguiling trends.

Rompers for Winter Wear

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Among the various practical designs in rompers suitable for children of three or four years old, there is none more easily made than the romper of colored print shown in the illustration. It is cut with wide, short, raglan sleeves which may be extended to the wrist if preferred. The neck is flat, outlined by a shaped band of plain contrasting material, carried to the bottom of the front opening. Plain material is also used to finish the sleeves and pockets and to make the loose leg bands into which the rompers are slightly gathered at the sides.

White piping outlines the colored bands and adds to the decoration. Three large flat buttons, easily managed by little fingers, are used for the front fastening, while in the back two buttons at each side keep the drop seat in place.

This romper may be made from any ordinary romper pattern with raglan sleeves. The bureau of home economics, which designed this adaptation, does not have patterns to distribute. It will be noticed that the legs are cut slightly higher on the sides to prevent them from slipping down over the knees.

Peculiar Light
Fox fire is the phosphorescent light emitted by forest or rotten wood and is a peculiarity of certain species of fungi. Climate has no effect on this condition except as it affects the growth of the fungus.

Any Woman Can Look Stylish

By MAE MARTIN

Most stylish-looking women are just "good managers." They know simple ways to make last season's things conform to this season's styles.

Thousands of them have learned how easily they can transform a dress, or blouse, or coat by the quick magic of home tinting or dyeing. Anyone can do this successfully with true, fadeless Diamond Dyes. The "know-how" is in the dyes. They don't streak or spot like inferior dyes. New, fashionable tints appear like magic right over the out-of-style or faded colors. Only Diamond Dyes produce perfect results. Insist on them and save disappointment.

My new 64-page illustrated book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of money-saving hints for renewing clothes and draperies. It's Free. Write for it now, to Mae Martin, Dept. E-143, Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

The Return of Anthony Trent

by Wyndham Martyn

Copyright by Parsa & Hopkins WNU Service

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

"It would take more than one of your hints to move Anthony Trent. I wish Heaven would give you the sense to recognize the people I like to see and those who bore me. Anthony Trent's by way of being a celebrity. Send him in."

"I've persuaded him to see you," said the secretary to the visitor.

"Yes, I know. I overheard you," Trent smiled.

Mr. Hill wrung Anthony Trent's hand warmly.

"What has dragged you from Europe's gilded saloons?" he demanded.

"Business mainly, and a desire to know whether what you told me in London holds good in Washington."

Hill was a shrewd man and one accustomed to believing that he was a good judge of human motives. Yet this keen-faced visitor had puzzled him for years. Mr. Hill had hesitation in classifying him. He only knew that he liked him and thought under some circumstances he might fear Anthony Trent.

"Sit down," he said cordially, "and tell me what's on your mind."

"Do you remember what you said to me in London?"

"I asked you to lunch, I think, and naturally talked about men and things. One doesn't have to carry luncheon conversation as mental baggage."

"I expected you to fence," said Trent smiling. "I'll recall it. You may have forgotten that it was I who found that William, prince of Missbach, was hiding in a certain Croatian castle although he had been buried with all the pomp due to his rank."

"Certainly I remember it," said the ex-ambassador warmly. "It was a very useful piece of information for us and we were able to discount the lies that Count Michael Temesvar was telling us. Why it was one of the most extraordinary feats I ever heard of. It was invaluable to the Allies."

He looked at Trent keenly. "Tell me, is your life made up of these amazing doings? I've been hearing a lot about your capturing a pirate ship and sailing her over dry land into Guggenbush's old home."

Trent ignored Deal Beach.

"In London," he said, "you made a sort of veiled promise to me."

"Are you sure?" Hill retorted. "I am not noted for veiling things."

"I am sure, and you did veil it in this instance. You said that our government had no such way of repaying those of her citizens as rendered her special and meritorious service. Your very words, Mr. Hill. You said if I had been English I might have had my name in the 'Birthday Honor List.' You likened me to a 'mute inglorious Milton' and then made a most extraordinary statement."

"Did I?" Mr. Hill queried. "I was a diplomat then new enough at the game to believe in esoteric utterances. Just what do you remember me to have said?"

"That if ever I got into a tight place I should have something to trade with. Have you forgotten?"

"No," said the cabinet officer, "I remember the whole thing very vividly. That still goes. What tight place are you in?" Was he at last to learn something more definite about this amazing Anthony Trent than the mere hypothesis he held that the man had some secret manner of life? Mr. Hill had known Trent slightly for ten years. He remembered one of the editors of a magazine he had owned being enthusiastic concerning the detective stories written by a young Dartmouth athlete named Anthony Trent. The series after a year or so was discontinued. Hill learned that the former writer had inherited a fortune from an Australian uncle and wrote no more for gain. Then Trent had turned up in England, as an intimate friend of an aristocratic and exclusive family, causing much heart-burning among some of his own fellow countrymen who were denied the privilege.

The ambassador who had observed Trent closely in London had come to the conclusion that he was always on guard. It seemed as though his muscles were tensed as if for a struggle and his mind singularly alert as though danger were near. Mr. Hill had several times asked himself why a young American with money and friends need adopt this attitude. He hoped that he was about to learn the reason.

"None," said Trent. "I've come to ask you to help a friend."

Mr. Hill was conscious of disappointment.

"What's the nature of the trouble?"

"As you were in London in 1915 you know all about the secret visit of a certain royal highness who came over here to hasten our entrance into the big scrap."

"Now how the devil did you know that?" Hill exclaimed. The visit had been kept unknown for political reasons.

"I also know," Trent went on, "that the wonderful diamond given the prince by the maharajah of Leptalki when they shot tigers together was stolen from him in Washington and has not been recovered."

"I don't see how that could have leaked out," said Mr. Hill, "but you are quite right. The well-known crooks were rounded up and either locked up or else sent out of the District of Columbia. Washington was thought to be as safe as, let us say, Carmel-by-the-Sea, and yet the jewel was taken. It was a blot on our secret-service."

"Is it known who took it?"

"They know the woman but they have lost her as well as the stone."

"The woman may be lost," Trent remarked, "but as to the diamond—I think you exaggerate." He tossed the little leathern bag on the other's knee. "I'm hoping it's going to bring me good luck."

Mr. Hill stared at it, fascinated.

"Where did you get it from?" he demanded.

"Not in Washington or from his royal highness. You can consider it taken in a way not usual but hardly illegal."

"Why bring it here? You must know a large reward was offered for it."

"That part of it doesn't interest me. I brought it here because I want to make a trade with you."

"You are acting for your friend?"

"I am. I'll return this diamond, cancel the reward, if you'll have the warrants which are out against the woman who took this quashed. I'll turn over the Nizam's diamond if I have your official word that she is to be free from police interference in future."

Mr. Hill was still staring at the gem. He had never seen so large a diamond at close range. He saw himself at a cabinet meeting tossing the gorgeous thing on the table with some such remark as, "The prince's bauble, gentlemen!"

"In other words," he said slowly "you want us to give this expert the opportunity to go on working with the pleasing knowledge that the police won't interfere."

"Nothing of the sort," Trent corrected. "I'm not fool enough to expect a bargain of that kind. I merely want your assurance that the warrants now in force will be quashed. If she does anything in future to bring herself within reach of the law she is prepared to suffer for it. I may as well tell you she never will do anything crooked."

"You must have supreme confidence in her."

"You couldn't have expressed it better. I have."

"I must remind you that your confidence may be dictated by some purely personal liking which has nothing to commend itself to me. You must not expect me to be swayed by sentiment. How can I assure myself or my colleagues that your impressions of her are not false?" Mr. Hill smiled at the younger man kindly. "Don't be offended when I say that the police considered her at the time of the loss of this diamond one of the cleverest women working outside the law. She perhaps set out to persuade you she was deeply wronged. She may have campaigned to get your sympathy. She was said to have been very beautiful. Think over what men have done in the past for lovely women and then blame me if you can for doubting her repentance."

"I can't blame you," Trent said slowly. "It seems a trait of human nature to try and keep people down rather than to help them. What do you know about her, Mr. Hill?"

"I am told she is an aristocrat talking a dozen languages and used to all the ways of high society. She is said to dress beautifully and talk with a slight foreign accent. There was something unforgettable about her. I think it was her eyes. What color are her eyes?"

"A deep brown, almost black," said Anthony Trent promptly.

"Trent," said Hill smiling, "they're as green as jade and you know it."

"Few people see color in the same way," Trent reminded him.

"But few confound green and brown. Be frank with me. Why should I believe that the Countess—I think that is what the police call her—wants to go straight?"

Anthony Trent's face grew sterner. There was a curiously dominating personality about the man, Mr. Hill admitted.

"Heaven may rejoice over the salvation of a sinner," he said, "but the world evidently does not. I'll prove what I say. Yesterday afternoon I saw her. She had no prospect ahead but drudgery, so I tempted her with relative luxury. I told her I would have that diamond there cut in half and give her a hundred thousand dollars for her share of it. I begged her to take it. I reminded her of the life woman-convicts lead in our barbarous prisons. She turned the opportunity down cold. I tell you if ever the devil was watching for a soul there was his chance. Literally she wouldn't hear of it. Her one idea is to make reparation."

"Was it fair to tempt her?" Hill asked.

"I can never fully explain to you just why I did it. One of the reasons was I wanted to assure myself that what I believed was true. I don't think I ever suffered more than when I was trying to shake her resolve."

"There was a new tenderness in his voice which Mr. Hill did not miss. "I don't think I've ever felt prouder than when she turned my proposition down and thought me a renegade."

"You must take an uncommon interest in this brown-eyed lady," the former ambassador said slowly.

"I do," Trent admitted, "that's why I'm here."

"I might point out," said the other, "that you have put your head in the mouth of a lion perfectly able to snap it off close to the collarbone if he chooses. It's true you have the diamond in your pocket for the moment, but what's to hinder me from ringing a bell and having you and it seized?"

"If you observe," said Anthony Trent, "you will see I am occupying a position of strategic advantage."

He was sitting in a leathern armchair by the side of an open fire in which some oak logs were burning. "Hammer blows may not hurt diamonds but heat does. I have only to drop this into the flames and the Nizam's gem will never sparkle again. Carbon to carbon. It would distress me very much to have to do this, Mr. Hill."

"You are resourceful," the other admitted. After all, it was not likely that the man who had outwitted Michael Temesvar would be caught napping.

"I've got to be," Trent conceded. "What is the answer?"

"I don't want the diamond destroyed. I hate wanton waste. If I can I'd like to help you. You gave your government very important information during a period of unrest after the war. Some consideration is due to you. If I can arrange the matter that is the factor upon which I shall count. But remember this, Anthony Trent. You are using up your credit to pay the debts of some one else. I ask you is it worth while?"

"It is," said Trent quickly.

"When do you leave Washington?"

"As soon as I get your answer. I'm hoping to go at noon tomorrow."

"All right. Call me up here tonight between twelve and half past. I'll give you my private telephone number. What's this?" he demanded, as Trent thrust the little chamolli leather bag into his hands.

"You'd better keep it," said Trent.

"Aren't you inclined to be overconfident?" Mr. Hill demanded. "You can't put it in the fire now."

Find Canoe Belonging to Age of Bronze

A boat, tied to its landing wharf for 3,000 years, has been found buried under six feet of peat in an ancient bog in upper Swabia, according to Dr. Oscar Paret, a Stuttgart archeologist.

It is a dugout canoe about fifteen feet long, hollowed out of the trunk of a giant oak. The sides, Doctor Paret says, were shaved down to a surprising thinness. Several paddles were found in it. A number of earthen vessels and bronze objects found in the turf around it date the boat as of the Bronze age, about 1000 B. C., contemporaneous with the sieges of Troy and the reign of Solomon in Jerusalem.

The boat was found at the end of one of three long wharves which ran back to the vicinity of the remains of a number of houses. Apparently there was once a village on the edge of the bog, on solid ground separated from the open water of the lake by a wide, marshy margin, which could be crossed only by these causeways.

When the village site was abandoned, the vegetation in the bog and the lake continued to grow until the take disappeared and the piling up of the dead leaves and stems buried all the works of the ancient men who lived there and used to go fishing in their dugout canoes.

Far-Fetched Reminder

Brother and sister were sitting on the creek bank, fishing. Sister threw out her line with a new bait and it became entangled in some brush. She at once appealed for aid in recovering it. Brother drew it in, dragging some debris with it.

"Where's the figger?" she asked.

"The what?" from he, who had not noticed the flosser was gone.

"The—er—what—you may call it, the—oh, you know, the Irish canny."

"Oh, the cork!"

"Yes, yes," she replied, "that's it."

UP AGAINST IT

"Why the tears?" asked Elsie of the lace department.

"I'm weeping for that woman's husband," snapped Elsie of the silk department as she began getting the stock back on the shelves. "She nearly drove me looney trying to please her in the hour she was here, but think of the poor dud who's got a job of trying to please her seven days a week, year in and year out."

A Typical Patriot

"You say he is a typical American patriot, but what do you mean by that?"

"That he hangs out the flag on holidays if he reminds of it, hums the national anthem after the second line, forgets to register and kicks about the men the others have voted into office."

HE WAS TOO SLOW

"Could I miss you good night?"

"Gosh! I begin to doubt it!"

The Accursed

Oh, I shall be, till Gabriel's trump. Nostalgic for some distant dump. And ever doomed to weep me dry For some lost mediocre guy.

An Untouched Reserve

The Guest—Do you think there are many fish in this lake?

The Landlord—There ought to be a lot of 'em. Nobuddy ever catches any out of it.

Knew the Symptoms

Wife—John, dear, I felt I must come to the office. I suddenly had such a longing to see you.

Husband—And did you bring the bill as well?

SOMETHING WRONG

"Say waiter—this fish—"

"Yes, sir. Jus' bought today, sir!"

"Perhaps so my dear man, but was it at a remnant sale or something?"

Futile Advice

If you were I and I were you, We'd tell each other what to do, And then in disappointment sigh, The same as just plain you and I.

Ten Dollars Needed

Mrs. Benham—The doctor wants to try the X-rays.

Benham—He will have to wait until I raise the XX.

His Clever Trick

Friend—Tell me your secret of success. How have you obtained so many patrons in such a short time?

Dry Goods Merchant—I got a parrot and trained it to cry out, "Oh! isn't she lovely?" every time a lady entered the store.

Needed

"I am willing," said the candidate, "to trust the people."

"I wish you'd open a grocery store," said the little man in the audience.

Luxury Enough

The Middle-Aged Man—My dear, think of the diamonds, automobiles and good times we are going to have if you marry me.

The Girl—I suppose a rich father can do the same for me. Please do marry my mother.

"I hear your neighbors have a new solarium in their house."

"Goodness, maybe that's the awful thing we hear 'em playing on."

Tale of Two Tombstones.

Forgotten, two headstones such as are placed on graves stood in a North Atchison yard without causing much comment for years until they stirred the curiosity of Theodore Arenberg, relates the Atchison Globe. He inquired and learned the two tombstones had been there thirty-five years or more. They are no monument to the dead but to a deadbeat. The piece was originally the home of a contractor who, at last, despairing of collecting a bill for work done accepted the two tombstones in payment and, not knowing what else to do with them at the time, had them set up on his front lawn.

Mother Appreciates What Milks Emulsion Did for Her Boy

"I am writing you in regard to our son, who is fifteen years old. I want to tell you how we have appreciated what Milks Emulsion has done for him. He hadn't been strong since he was nine years' old, when he had whooping cough and scarlet fever at the same time, ending up with Bright's Disease.

"By doctoring with specialists he finally got rid of Bright's Disease, but he was bothered terribly with constipation. The only thing that would give relief was injections of warm water, and finally we used olive oil injections.

"Last August a lady told us to try Milks Emulsion. This we did, and after taking three bottles of Milks Emulsion he hasn't to this day had to have another injection. He goes to school every day, eats his Emulsion right along, and is gaining and doing fine.

"I felt that I must write and tell you what a grand medicine Milks Emulsion is and what it did for our boy, hoping some other boy or girl will know what a great medicine it is. There isn't too much praise I can say for it. Just refer anybody to me, MR. AND MRS. JIM WILLIAMS, Kellerton, Iowa, R. R. No. 3.

Helium in Australia.

Helium, the rare element of great value in aerial warfare, and also used in marine diving, has been found in the petroliferous gas coming from a well near Brisbane, Australia, and a search for other deposits is being made. Although the quantities so far found are of little commercial value, the discovery is regarded as being of great scientific importance. Under the petroleum act of Australia all helium recovered belongs to the crown.

Sparrows Were on Guard.

Throughout a day a Philadelphia man concerned himself with the welfare of two sparrows. He had heard their cries and upon looking up at the eaves of his house had seen the two birds apparently wedged helplessly in a hole there. He had no ladder long enough to reach them, nor did he care to shoot them. So he waited trying to think of a method of rescuing them. At sundown he was surprised to see the sparrows emerge from the hole with no difficulty. Then it dawned upon him that he had seen a large black bird with a long sharp beak hovering about the house, and that the sparrows were stationed in the hole to guard their nest from the invader.

Rain Marred Record.

A record of 55 consecutive wedding anniversary celebrations under sunny skies was broken for Mr. and Mrs. Newton D. Crossman of Amherst, Mass., when rain fell to mar their fifty-sixth wedding day. Mr. and Mrs. Crossman were married in Shutesbury on a bright April day in 1872. Each succeeding anniversary was an ideal one from a weather standpoint until the last one.

Power of Divining Rod Known in Olden Times

Knowledge of the divining rod evidently was possessed by the ancients, for a suggestion of the forked stick, the virgula divinatoria, is to be found in the wand of Mercury; in the rod of Moses who drew water by striking the rock on Horeb; the magic rod of Circe, and the rod which the Greek historian Ctesias claimed could attract gold and silver. Agricola, discussing in 1550 the use of the rod as a divining tool, gave it as his opinion that the behavior of the rod depended upon the person using it, since the rod was not attracted in the hands of all men alike. According to a translation of Agricola's book by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, "The twigs will not move for everybody but only for those who employ incantations and craft."

This, it might be mentioned, is the modern opinion—the rod works best in the hands of those who employ craft, although the Engineering and Mining Journal admits the rod has undoubted successes to its credit.—Detroit News.

Wife's Need Something Peleg Could Not Buy

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of automobile fame, was praising a rival automobile manufacturer who had just spent a hundred millions in improving his plants.

"There!" said Mr. Sloan. "There we have the reason why America forges ahead so fast. Besides the American method the methods of Europe evoke the image of old Peleg Cloce.

"Old Peleg Cloce's wife sat reading, and as she had outgrown, or rather outaged her spectacles, she had to hold the paper at arm's length in order to see the print.

"Father," she said, with a sigh, "go wish, the next time you go in to town, you'd buy me a pair of stronger specs."

"Huh," growled old Peleg Cloce "it ain't stronger specs you need; it's longer arms."

Famous Royal House.

Orange is a small town near Avignon in the south of France, once the capital of a small independent principality of the same name. In 1531 the principality passed by marriage to the younger branch of the ducal house of Nassau. The head of this house became known as prince of Orange. One was leader of the party in Holland of civil and religious liberty, and a later prince of Orange became King William III of Great Britain.

Deer Invaded Bank.

A full-grown doe deer staged a holdup of the Berwick (Pa.) National bank, but failed to escape. B. D. Frens, cashier, and Clayton Culp, teller, were in conversation when the door slammed open and Culp looked up to see what he thought for an instant was a huge dog. He called to it and it bounded at his cage and was thrown back. It made two other unsuccessful leaps to clear partitions before it went into a conference room off the main lobby, where it was penned up.

Mrs. Wm. Gallacher Kills Her Deer

On their return from the deer hunt in the Mogollon mountains they brought in a fine 10-point buck which was killed in the Gallo mountains, the foothills of the Mogollon range. Mrs. Gallacher felled him with the first shot. There is more to the story: The Outlook family was presented with a choice portion from Mrs. Gallacher's kill, for which we bow our thanks.

A Letter of Appreciation to E. M. Brickley

Carrizozo, N. M.,
Nov. 27, '28
Mr. E. M. Brickley,
Pres., Chamber of Commerce,
Carrizozo, N. M.,
Dear Sir:

We, the Athletic Association of the Carrizozo High School, wish to express our sincere gratitude for the entertainment and financial aid which has been given us this year by the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce.

In our minds, the only way which we can see fit to repay you is to be good sports in all our athletic games which are before us, and surely with the backing which we know we have always had and which has now been confirmed, we should be able to make our teams Winning Teams, and we intend to do all we can in order to make them so.

Again, we wish to express our sincere gratitude and appreciation.

Respectfully,
Athletic Association,
Carrizozo High School.
(Signed) Mack Shaver,
Business Manager.

Woman's Club Notes

The Carrizozo Woman's Club met Friday Nov. 16, at the home of Mrs. R. E. Lemon. Miss Melasa, drama chairman, had charge of the program. She presented a one-act play, "Not a Man in the House," which was a scream from beginning to end. The ladies who did not attend certainly missed a treat.

Our state president is asking each club for a dollar per member this year to be applied on the Donahue Loan Fund, which is a fund to help girls through school. Our president expressed the wish that our club would contribute 100% of its quota. This is a most worthy cause, and none of us who have a daughter can feel absolutely sure that she will never need to ask aid from such a fund. Here is a chance for all of us to really help deserving girls. A portion of our time was devoted to "Safety First Week."

At the close of the meeting the hostess, assisted by Mesdames Beck, Cleghorn, Huppertz and Lemmon served delicious refreshments of cake and coffee. The ladies all departed feeling that they had spent a most enjoyable and profitable afternoon. Next meeting will be held at the School Auditorium; Dec. 14. Miss Delp, chairman of Applied Education, has charge of the program. Come. See our new school building. — Mrs. Nickels, press and publicity. — Too late last week for publication.

The club, under Applied Education Department, will hold their annual Bazaar Dec. 15, at Community Hall, from 1 to 6 p. m.

Home Economics Classes

First and second classes served hamburger sandwiches, coffee, and lemonade at the Community Hall kitchen on the night of Nov. 24.
