

PORT STANTON NOTES

Dr. and Mrs. Tappan were visitors at Carrizozo last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Howson and family, Earl Farr, Dr. and Mrs. Westhafer and Dr. and Mrs. R. Murdock were visitors in Paso last week.

Miss Gunn, Mrs. Hill, Messrs. Neff and Goldsmith were in Carrizozo last Thanksgiving Day for a football game.

W. A. Wunsch, former farm superintendent here, was a visitor from Carlsbad over Thanksgiving and the week-end.

Dr. R. D. Haire arrived last Saturday from El Paso for duty at this station. His home is in Clinton, Mo.

The Trowel Club is trying to arrange for two boxing bouts for December 26, as part of the general Christmas program. The participants being booked to come from El Paso and are reputed to be quite classy. It is hoped that Rodriguez and Lubero, two well known El Paso boys will be secured for the final bout that evening.

Much credit is due the dieticians for the splendid Thanksgiving dinner served this year. Nothing was left undone to make it complete. Turkey with all the trimmings that go to make for such a meal were served in sufficient quantities to satisfy the biggest appetite.

Manager Pittman Says "Brotherly Love" One of Best Pictures of the Season

Manager Thos. J. Pittman of the Crystal Theatre wishes to announce that "Brotherly Love," the picture to be shown on Christmas night, Dec. 25, is one of the two best pictures of the year, according to the judges' selection. The picture features Karl Dane (of keen spitting fame) also Geo. K. Arthur and supported by an all-star cast. If you want to laugh until your sides ache, then be sure to see this comedy-drama. Given under the auspices of the I. O. O. F. lodge.

Judge Norton, who had been here for a week or 10 days, left yesterday morning for El Paso, where he will spend about two weeks in resting up and recuperating. The Judge shows a marked improvement since coming down from Jicarilla.

Feeding the Wildcats at the Big Highway Camp

Walter LaFleur and his associates at the big Highway camp at the Malpais are proud of the pair of young wildcats which they captured several weeks ago. The boys take trips after working hours and usually kill enough rabbits to keep the cats in good humor, but one day this week, they failed to take their usual hunting trip, which put the cats out of food, so it fell upon Walter to purchase enough raw meat to tide the pets over until the next rabbit hunt. They prove to be poor pets, by the way, and although captured when very small, they are at times very cross and even vicious.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES

The Carrizozo Woman's Club will meet Friday afternoon, Dec. 14, at the school auditorium. Miss Delp and Mrs. French have prepared the following program under the department of Americanization:

Piano Solo - Lois Stadtman; First Aid - Dr. F. H. Johnson; Spirit of Patriotism - 4th and 5th grade pupils; Child Welfare - Mrs. Lydia Haystead, Field Representative of Bureau of Child Welfare; Play - "When Father Goes on a Diet," Miss Delp's Home Economics Classes.

Our state chairman of Americanization will be with us. The club earnestly solicits your presence; the club needs you and you need the club. - Come.

The roll call will be "Holiday Recipes." Bring your best one. Hostesses will be Mesdames Paul Mayer, M. U. Finley, Geo. Titsworth, J. V. Hobbie and John Haley.

At our last meeting it was unanimously decided to dispense with the Community Christmas Tree for this year in favor of the churches.

High School Orchestra Program Wednesday Night

The Carrizozo High School musical program and picture show at the Crystal Theatre Wednesday evening was the best attended of any event of a local nature that has been given in Carrizozo for some time past. The seating capacity of the theatre was taken up early in the evening, and at 8 o'clock, standing room was at a premium.

The musical program as published in this paper in our recent issues, was carried out in excellent style with director Burkett in charge, number after number being roundly applauded until the finish.

The program was followed by "My Best Girl" and the picture was a good one. On the whole, the event was a success even beyond the expectations of the promoters, and more such pleasant affairs in the future will be looked forward to with much pleasure.

$32,439 Is Paid to New Mexico from Forests

Alamogordo - New Mexico receives 25% of the receipts of the national forests in the state to be applied on state roads and schools, and the amount to be paid to the state for fiscal year ending July 1 was $32,439.25, according to figures announced by headquarters of the Lincoln National Forest here today.

The contribution from the Lincoln forest was $7,600; the Gila forest $6,137; Datil, $5,460; Carson, $4,655; Apache, $3,678; Manzano, $2,740; Santa Fe, $1,631 and the Coronado in Hidalgo county, $785.

The 25% fund is apportioned back to the counties in which the forests are located. On the Lincoln forest receipts of the counties average the following: Otero, $2,708; Lincoln, $2,987; Eddy, $909; Torrance, $600 and Chavez, $297.

Down from Coyote

Roy Bogle was down from Coyote Wednesday night to hear the program given by the Carrizozo High School orchestra and see the picture, "My Best Girl."

Santa's Calling

Cliff Dwelling Ruins Found on Bonnell Ranch

Evidence that this section of New Mexico was at one time inhabited by Pueblo Indians or early cliff dwellers has been discovered in the unearthing of an ancient Indian city on the Burt J. Bonnell ranch, approximately 40 miles southeast of Carrizozo.

The ranch house, which has stood picturesquely in a fertile basin, surrounded by high peaks for the past 40 years, if not longer, is soon to become one of the most famous spots in the state should further excavation reveal what present evidence indicates.

Until an investigation was conducted over the ground by members of a Roswell paper staff, news of the recent findings of Burt Bonnell had not been made public.

Further excavation has been halted to await the arrival of archeologists who will delve into the underground secrets with skilled hands and prepare their findings in a proper manner.

The buried Indian city on the Bonnell ranch, which in the early days was frequently visited by Billy the Kid, bears a strange and interesting tale.

His curiosity aroused over the odd formation of a flat stretch of ground at the top of a peak not 500 yards from the old ranch house prompted Bonnell to scratch the surface with a spade a week ago. The first few inches of earth revealed nothing in particular, but further digging to a depth of about two feet brought to light a few pieces of crude pottery, odd shaped stones and finally human bones, white with age.

In a short time he had unearthed the complete skeletons of at least four humans and had found himself surrounded by solid walls of what appeared to be an underground house of the pueblo type. In one corner the body of a child was found, apparently having been buried, while the body of an adult was found close by in a sitting position. Two other bodies were in lying positions as if they had met death suddenly and were left to die on the floor of the room.

Pieces of burned wood bore evidence of a fire or possible conflict with a warring tribe, which, undoubtedly, had set fire to the building after killing off the people. The fact that no arrowheads were found among the ruins indicates the tribe was evidently of very early habitation. War-like instruments, shaped from stones about the size of a human head appeared to be the only weapons in use at that time. The stones were filed bluntly and grooves carved around them to which crude handles were apparently attached.

In the corner of one room was a bowl-shaped fireplace, which Mr. Bonnell said, was characteristic of pueblos. A handful of white ashes was still in the bottom of the bowl when fire dug out and nearby were bits of charred wood. All these had been preserved for years, perhaps centuries in the earth which had gradually covered the plateau, evidently washed down from a higher peak which rises to the north.

On all sides of the high hill, except to the north, there is a decided drop to the valley in which the ranch house is situated, while directly below the peak to the south is the winding highway which runs from Roswell past the Bonnell place.

All bones taken from nature's grave immediately crumbled when brought into contact with the air. One skull, in perfect condition, slowly began to deteriorate as soon as Mr. Bonnell took it from the ground and placed it on a shelf in his house. The teeth were large but perfect, as were the teeth and large jaws of others found in the only room partially excavated.

While photographs were carefully taken of the findings there is nothing of unusual appearance to indicate the relics of an ancient band of first Americans.

Nothing but a broad plateau at the top of a hill, with queer dips, mounds and unnatural levels, is to be seen. Here and there are small holes dug by Mr. Bonnell and a large hole about four feet reveals the room and walls of the underground dwelling. Across a deep arroyo to the east and on a similar peak may be seen a small graveyard. It has been there but 28 years.

"BROTHERLY LOVE"

Picture to Be Shown Christmas Night Under Auspices I. O. O. F.

On Christmas night, Dec. 25, Carrizozo Lodge No. 30, I. O. O. F., will present the picture, "Brotherly Love," a wonderful production, to the patrons of the Crystal Theatre.

The principal star in the picture is Karl Dane, the man who played the part of "Slim, the Riveter" in the "Big Parade" and who made it famous, as he always gives the picture fans the worth of their money (and then some.)

Karl has with him in this picture, an all-star cast, and it will be well worth seeing. After the usual Christmas dinner and the afternoon spent in the home or with friends, the question usually presents itself "What shall we do—and where shall we go tonight?"

The question can be easily answered by deciding to go to the Crystal Theatre and enjoying "Brotherly Love," a first-class Comedy-Drama.

Carrizozo Stars Visit at Tucumcari

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 27, the Tucumcari Eastern-Star Chapter held a reception to the Grand Matron, Mrs. Merle Davis. As this is her home chapter, there was a good turnout to receive the distinguished visitor.

There were many visiting Stars present and all of the Grand Chapter officers with the exception of one were present. Mesdames R. E. Lemon and F. L. Elliott of Carrizozo attended, Mrs. Lemon being the Grand Warden of the Grand Chapter of New Mexico. A banquet was served after the reception and as a tribute to the Grand Chapter officers, each was presented with a beautiful bouquet of choice flowers.

The Grand Matron made a splendid address in which she gave a review of the work being done over the state which showed an increase in membership and also additional zeal and interest in the work in general.

Piano Recital by the Pupils of Miss Alene Thompson

Miss Alene Thompson will give another of her charming Piano Recitals Saturday, Dec. 15, at 7:30 p. m.

The Recital will be at the new High School Auditorium, and the different numbers will be given by Miss Thompson's pupils, and a treat is in store for those who attend.

Here will be a chance for Carrizozo music lovers to witness a demonstration as to what can be accomplished by proper training on the part of this popular teacher, and a display of talent will be in evidence. No admission will be charged and the public is cordially invited. Don't forget the date and place.

Here from Gran Quivira

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Claunch stopped over here Wednesday on a return trip from Fort Stanton, where they disposed of about 150 white leghorn pullets, which will be used in connection with the Xmas festivities. After a few hours' stay here, Mr. and Mrs. Claunch left for their ranch home near the Gran Quivira.

Sheriff Kelsey in California

Mrs. S. W. Kelsey received word Monday from Sheriff Kelsey, who is in California, to return with the president of the Block Mining Company, to answer charges as to the motive of the taking of three truck loads of machinery and supplies from the old American Mine at Parsons some time ago, at which time several arrests were made. The sheriff will return with his prisoner today or tomorrow. While in Los Angeles, he was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Queen, Mrs. Queen being a sister to Mrs. R.E. Lemon.

Sheriff Kelsey returned this morning from California, having in custody one Mr. Waller, head official of the Blok Mine, who must answer to charges of property taken from the American Mine at Parsons some time ago.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Lincoln County Roads and Road Maintenance

It will only require a trip in either direction out of Carrizozo to convince the skeptical of the good roads we are enjoying and the good work of the maintenance crews attending the same. We are too prone to criticize the work of our road foremen, more especially is this so, by that portion of our people who have chips on their shoulders and are continually looking for something to offer a criticism on.

It must first be remembered, that this being in the dry climate belt, our roads are not built to resist heavy rains, water spouts, etc., but they are what we commonly call, dry dirt roads, which, when a heavy rain comes, the low places are bound to be boggy for a short while, until the same dries out. Such condition existed after the last rain and snow, but the maintaining crews under road foreman Chas. F. Grey promptly attended to the low places and aside from a slight detouring which lasted but a few days, the roads were in as good condition as ever. If this part of the state had as much money as it needs, we could have concrete spillways in the low spots and our troubles would be over. Be that as it may, we have as good roads in Lincoln County as they have in any other part of the state, taking everything into consideration.

Foreman Grey is now working on a road from Corona to Gran Quivira and also has maintaining crews on the roads north and south of Carrizozo, both of which are being maintained in the most accurate and noteworthy manner. As an evidence of this fact, many tourists who have passed this way during the past year have been profuse in their praise of our good roads, while some of our own people who should at least be grateful to the state administration for giving us good service, where we had little or none during the Hinkle and Hannett administrations, are simply high-hatting the facts in the case and say, "we have nothing but mud holes instead of good roads."

Work on the new Carrizozo-Socorro Highway is progressing nicely. A new force of workmen are here and pitched their tents across the Malpais and they are beginning to work from that side of the project and will meet the forces who are working from this side. Filling on the approach from this side is being done with rapid strides, and at present, the fill is nearly to a 40-foot depth.

Steam scrapers are encircling the higher grounds and bringing the dirt to the scene of activity, with the big trucks we see daily going and coming from the new road.

We sometimes wonder how the rumble of these monster machines of industry sound to those who have said that the Carrizozo-Socorro Highway was only a myth, and was simply a grandstand play for political

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill.

A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crankshaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass.

As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts.

From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber.

This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump twice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour. Yet there is only one movable part—the oil pump.

As a matter of fact, the lubrication system for the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no service attention.

There is just one thing for you to do, but it is a very important thing... watch the oil! Change the oil every 500 miles and be sure the indicator rod never registers below low (L).

If the oil level is allowed to fall below low, the supply becomes insufficient to oil all parts as they should be oiled.

To insure best performance it is also advisable to have the chassis of your car lubricated every 500 miles. This has been made easy in the new Ford through the use of the high pressure grease gun system.

Proper oiling and greasing mean so much to the life of your car that they should not be neglected or carelessly done.

See your Ford dealer regularly. He is especially well-fitted to lubricate the new Ford and he will do a good, thorough job at a fair price.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Underneath the big fill, ripping will be done as a prevention from floods which might undermine the big project. Every precaution will be taken by Project Engineer T.G. Brown against any happening out of the ordinary, that could befall the new highway.

Where's Artie; We Miss Our Daily Laugh

Some are wondering what has become of the Journal column, "New Mexico Today" edited by Artie Hannett for the past two years? Can it be Artie is going to quit us?

Artie's column was better than a comic strip to many throughout the state—amusing and humorous because of his seriousness, and because the self-same seriousness didn't get across and sink in.

The Tucumcari News hopes the column will be resumed, the editor missing his daily laugh very much.

The Last Straw

Gallup is left with a good story born of the general election. It concerns a strong Al Smith booster, one Joseph Patrick Gribben by name, who arose early the morning after election and turned on his radio to hear the returns of the voting.

The bulletins were uniformly the same in significance: "Hoover wins in Virginia," "G. O. P. takes the lead in Florida," "Texas Goes Republican," and dozens of others of the same nature.

This failing to please, Joe turned off the switch. He was done with radio until all election dope was anathema.

Last Sunday after supper he ventured to the radio again for the first time since election. At that time, someone was offering a prayer—

"O, Lord, we thank Thee for the great moral victory Thou hast permitted to be won. We thank Thee for the high-grade citizenship Thou hast permitted to be preserved. We thank Thee for leading us to victory."

"So I just shut it off again," related the good Democratic Joe. "I just thought—if God Almighty is a Republican then there's no use in us Democrats fighting any more."

Why is a Newspaper Like a Woman?

That was the question put up to its readers by a southern newspaper. For the best answer, a subscription for one year was offered. Here are some of the replies:

"Because you can't believe anything they say."
"Because they are thinner now than they used to be."
"Because they have boldface types."
"Because they are easy to read."
"Because they are well worth looking over."

"Because back numbers are not in demand."
"Because they are not afraid to speak their minds."
"Because they have a great deal of influence."

"Because if they know anything they usually tell it."
"Because they carry the news wherever they go."
The correct answer is given thus: "Because every man should have one of his own and not run after his neighbors."

Famous Mining Strikes
By THOMAS E. STEWARD

Tennessee's Famous Mineral District

A UNIQUE American mining region is that of Ducktown, Tenn., which is of particular interest in the first place because it contains copper, sulphur, iron, zinc and lead, silver and gold, and in the second place because the fumes from its reduction furnaces have been used as a basis for developing one of the world's biggest centers for the manufacture of sulphuric acid.

Copper was the metal first mined in the Ducktown district and a study of the area made for the government by W. H. Emmons, head of the department of geology at the University of Minnesota, declares that some of this metal was extracted by the Indians prior to the days of white settlement. This would indicate that the Ducktown deposit may have been worked longer than any other in North America.

This district lies in an angle of three states—Tennessee, North Carolina and Georgia, but the principal mines are in Tennessee.

White men first began their search for metals near Ducktown in the 40's, and as usual, the first prospecting was for gold, of which some was found. It is told that an early miner named Weaver obtained a lease to exploit a mine known as the Hiwassee and shipped 31,000 pounds of ore to Boston for smelting. As it proved, this ore was extremely rich, running 25 per cent copper, but when the returns came back from the smelter Weaver had disappeared. Operations were suspended for a time and he had lost what might have been a fortune.

During the next decade, long before the great western and Michigan copper rushes were known, Ducktown was a frontier center of mining excitement and speculation. In 1855 nearly 2,700,000 tons of copper were produced in its mines, mostly by small companies owned in the North or in London.

The iron, precious metals, zinc and lead of the Ducktown area have been of chief interest to geologists, having existed in quantities so small that little has ever been recovered. For the most part the precious metal content has been so low that it would not have paid to extract it by refining.

It was the existence of a great amount of sulphur in the Ducktown ores that led to the mammoth development there of sulphuric acid manufacture. In the smelting of copper from these ores, the sulphur was removed. Conditions were found to be ideal for sulphuric acid manufacture and mammoth plants were built.

The importance of this substance is one often overlooked by the layman. It is a fortunate circumstance of the Ducktown deposits that the farming areas of the states surrounding it are deficient in the very fertilizers it can produce, thus providing a nearby market for its products.

Referring to the above statement, we beg to advise that it has for some time been the ambition of the management of the First National Bank, to show a statement with deposits of more than $500,000.00 and with Other Real Estate $1.00. Due to the loyal support of our friends and customers we have been able to now do both.

Included in the above stated deposits are savings accounts totalling $117,837.89 representing 336 accounts. In addition we have bought for our customers in the last year approximately, $100,000.00 in bonds and other securities. This indicates that folks are really trying to provide for the dull years that will always come, and when they come those who are out of debt with a laid by will have a good deal to be thankful for.

Improved
SAMSON
Windmills

With SELF-OILING
Boxes

The good qualities of this new device can be readily seen when compared with the old style, noisy, lumbering windmill, which had to be oiled every day in order to run. Now, your oiling troubles are at an end. The self-oiling feature of the new SAMSON wherein all bearings run constantly in a flood of oil, causes the windmill to run easily, make less noise and with less expense than any windmill on the market. As proof of the pudding is in the eating of it, so is the lasting virtues of the Samson windmill, made possible by a trial test. For full information SEE—

NEWSPAPERS MAKE JACK QUINN OLD

Veteran Spittballer Insists Scribes Want Him to Be Aged

Whenever a major league scout sits down, as Pat Monahan of the Southern division of the Red Sox staff did in company with Jack Quinn and "Rube" Walberg of the Athletics, there is sure to be a fanning bee.

"The only question the writers ever ask me now, said he, 'is 'How old are you?'"

"Why don't you settle it, Jack," suggested Monahan. Issue a statement to the press saying, 'I hereby, under oath of a notary public, find myself in my forty-third year—or maybe you're older.'"

Jack faked a withering glare. "Well," said he, "it wouldn't do any good. They want me to be old for some reason. Back in 1912 I was sent to the Rochester club of the International League from Old Highlanders (New York Yankees now)."

Jack drew a pencil from his pocket and figured diligently. "That makes me sixty years old now," he said.

Quinn said one thing that might have sounded like heresy to Robert ("Lefty") Grove had he heard it: "Speed pitching isn't any good any more."

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Supreme Court Scores Klan; Hoover's Plan for Big Construction Reserve.

UPHOLDING a New York state law aimed especially at the Ku Klux Klan, the Supreme court of the United States last week declared in effect that the organization named in under-standable and a foe of public welfare.

The anti-klan bill was enacted by the New York state legislature in 1923. It provides that an organization which requires an oath as a prerequisite or condition of membership, "other than a labor union or a benevolent order, mentioned in the benevolent orders law," shall file with the secretary of state a sworn copy of its constitution, by-laws, rules, regulations, and oath of membership, together with a roster of its membership and a list of its members for the current year.

In the case which was carried to the Supreme court it was contended that the law discriminated between different associations, relieving such secret organizations as the Masons, the Odd Fellows, and others from compliance while being directed especially against the Ku Klux Klan.

Justice Van Diver, in the court's decision, held that the discrimination between associations was justified by a difference between the two classes of associations shown by experience. The difference consisted, he said, "in a manifest tendency on the part of one class to make the secrecy surrounding its purposes and membership a cloak for acts and conduct inimical to personal rights and public welfare, and in the absence of such a tendency on the part of the other class."

HERBERT HOOVER'S itinerary on his Latin American tour has been speeded up as arranged by Ambassador Fletcher, who accompanies the party as representative of the State department. The President elect now expects to be back in the United States the first week in January.

GREAT BRITAIN expressed disapproval of American methods of investigating the Vestris tragedy, but the inquiry at New York seemed to bring out much of the truth concerning the circumstances surrounding the sinking of the vessel. Most significant, perhaps, was the testimony of Chief Officer Frank Johnson. This, summarized, was that on the day the ship foundered the officers wouldn't go to their stations and that not a lifeboat set out properly manned or properly filled; that there was no general call to lifeboats; that the iron chains on a number of lifeboats broke, and the patent releasing gear failed to work; that at 4 a. m. the day the Vestris sank Captain Carey was unable to give "any helpful suggestions."

HOOVER foresees the time when there will be an ebb in the tide of prosperity, and he has devised a program to meet that situation which was presented to the conference of state governors in New Orleans. In brief, he suggests the creation of a three-billion-dollar state and federal construction reserve that shall do for labor and industry what the federal reserve has done for finance.

Governor Brewster told the governors that no infringement of legislative prerogatives was contemplated, because no project could be carried out except as the legislatures might direct, although the rapidly of the construction program, within defined limits, could be accelerated or retarded to synchronize with national and local needs.

ROBERT W. STEWART, chairman of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, was acquitted of perjury before the senate Teapot Dome investigating committee by the District of Columbia jury that heard the case. The verdict was virtually directed by Justice Bailey, who told the jurors Stewart could not be held guilty of perjury if it was found that a quorum of the senate committee was not present when the oil man appeared to testify.

LUTHERANS, the great German airplane concern, has made arrangements with the Russian soviet government under which Germany and Russia will join in developing the northern Asiatic air routes, over which the new combination will have a practical monopoly.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE told congress last year that the Boulder dam project, on the basis of a cost of $123,000,000, would not be in contact with his financial program. But the Sibert commission of engineers and geologists has reported to the President that the cost estimates are too low by perhaps $40,000,000, and there is speculation whether this will cause a change in the position of the administration. The commission holds that construction of a dam 650 feet high is feasible from an engineering standpoint, but proposes modifications in the plans with a view to obtaining greater safety. The report does not deal at all with many questions of policy that figure in the controversy over the pending legislation.

GOVERNMENT agents, assisted by police and Scotland Yard, have uncovered a big jewelry smuggling conspiracy involving millions of dollars. The first results of their work were the arrests of Morris Landau, New York Jeweler, and his daughter; William Ballyn of England, chief steward on the Cunard liner Berengaria, and Patrolman J. T. McIntyre of the New York traffic squad, whose post for many years has been the Cunard pier. The authorities allege that Ballyn received packages of jewelry from a confederate in Southampton, England, and handed them to McIntyre on the steamer when it reached New York, he in turn passing them on to Landau. The Jeweler's daughter is said to have acted as a messenger.

HEAVY rains caused serious and widespread floods in Kansas, Missouri, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Illinois, the overflowing rivers doing vast damage to property. Many towns were inundated, and the losses of farmers were severe. In the five states about a score of persons were drowned.

GREAT BRITAIN, France and Germany agreed on a conference of experts, to be held probably in December in Paris, to plan revision of the Dawes reparations plan and evacuation of the Rhineland. But Foreign Minister Stresemann, appearing before the Reichstag after his long illness, made a speech that the French press said, would scare away the doves of peace, for he had harsh words concerning the continued occupation of German soil by the allies, and he does not consent to the connection of reparations with war debts.

DISPATCHES from Vienna said Ivan Michailoff, Macedonian revolutionary leader, was threatening to march on Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, on short notice, and that the population of that city was panic-stricken. The public buildings were occupied by troops and the streets were deserted in the evening. The Bulgarian cabinet was summoned, but its problem was serious for it was believed a majority of the troops and officials were siding with Michailoff.

AMONG those whose death claimed during the week was George H. Jones, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. He had been with the corporation for thirty-five years and was known as "the man who never played."

DR. W. W. CUMBERLAND, the American expert who has made a survey of the financial and economic conditions of Nicaragua at the request of President Diaz, has submitted a new plan for the rehabilitation of that republic.

The RETURN of ANTHONY TRENT

by WYNDHAM MARTYN

COPYRIGHT by GORSE & HOPKINS

WNU SERVICE

"I don't think there'll be any need to," Trent returned. "I'm not a simple and reckless optimist. It means I know my man."

Had there been anyone to observe Trent as he telephoned to Mr. Hill a little after midnight, that rare quality—hesitancy—might have been noticed in one who was rarely in doubt and always quick to act. Mr. Hill's voice came back almost instantly.

"You've seen that diamond for the last time," said Mr. Hill.

"What do you mean?" Trent demanded.

"Simply that a cable was dispatched to his royal highness late this afternoon that a messenger was bringing the Nizam's diamond to him as fast as an airplane and the Mauretania could accomplish the trip. What you ask has been arranged and you'll have to be at my office tomorrow morning at ten. Good-by—and good luck to you both."

Victory! Trent walked to the hotel window and looked over the city now growing still. The same restful quiet was stealing over him. How curiously things worked out, he reflected. Life seemed a matter of adjustments, compromises, equanimity, logical and satisfying when one understood them.

The appointment at Mr. Hill's office, his interview with members of another department, and the final triumph caused him to lose the noon train.

Only a few minutes were left of the forty-eight hours when he entered his apartment. Mademoiselle Dupin, already dressed for going out, was waiting impatiently.

"You were just going?" he demanded, looking at the clock. "You wouldn't have given me five minutes' grace?"

"Mrs. Kinney has secured a position for me, and I have a train to catch."

"Sewing?" he asked.

"I am to teach French and music to some children. I have been very fortunate."

"From your point of view, perhaps, Mademoiselle Dupin, you can't go just yet; your class must wait. I have a great deal to talk about."

"But the train," she protested. "It is to Greenwich I go."

"Greenwich has an admirable train service; take another."

She could not understand his mood. Although his words were peremptory he was looking at her with a smile. How, she wondered, passionately, could he smile at her when she was trying to go where she might be able to forget him?

"You are going to teach other people's children because you think that is the only way to obtain peace of mind. You won't succeed that way. You may change your place of abode, but you can't forget your dread of the police any more in Greenwich than you did in Deal Beach."

"I would rather do that than what you suggest," she said, her head held high. "If I were to take even a little stolen money my last chance of living honestly would be gone. I am even more sorry for you than for myself. I thought you were in earnest. You have so many talents that it is tragic you should go back to that life."

"And so you won't shake hands when you leave me?"

"Monsieur," she cried, "what use would that be? Our ways lie so far apart. I am resolved to work for what I need. It will not be easy, but I shall do it. It is possible I may starve, but I will not steal. Is there nothing I can say to influence you? You tell me you have lost your money. Well, it was generously spent; and I shall never be happy until I can pay you back what I have cost. You tell yourself that you will win a competence and then give up this life. That will bring you to ruin. It is the reef upon which you will be wrecked."

"I believe that, too," he said meditatively. "I wouldn't care to risk it again."

"But you will not need to," she said, with something of scorn in her voice. "You have the Nizam's diamond."

He smiled at her in the frank, boyish fashion she had seen in him only once or twice.

"I've lost it," he said.

"Lost it?" she repeated.

"Let us say exchanged it." His face became grave. "You must listen to me very carefully. Can you imagine that I, Anthony Trent, who has been what you know only too well, should have put all the Allied governments under obligations to me? It's true, nevertheless. What I did was of a nature so secret that it could not be published. I received no reward from my government. I wasn't officially thanked. The only thing that I got from it was the friendship of our ambassador to St. James and a sort of promise that if ever I were in a tight place I had something to trade with I never dared ask him just why he should imagine I might ever need such help. I've just come back from Washington, Mademoiselle Dupin."

"I do not see how that concerns me," she murmured.

"You will," he retorted. "The man I went to see was a cabinet officer. When I last knew him he was our ambassador to England. I reminded him of that velle promise. I told him, frankly, I'd come to make a deal with him. I said I would give him back a certain historic diamond stolen from a visiting royalty several years ago if all the warrants against the woman who took it were quashed. He wanted to know how I could be sure that this woman would not do the same sort of thing again. He doubted if people of that sort could be relied upon."

"And what did you say?" Mademoiselle Dupin cried, eagerly.

"I told him I had put her to the supreme test and that she had come through."

"How do you mean—a test?" she exclaimed.

"My offer to have the diamond cut and share the proceeds with you."

"I am bewildered," she cried. "I cannot understand yet. If you spoke as you did to test me, then you have not gone back to the old life?"

"Never again," he told her.

"And I have doubted you. I am ashamed."

"You hadn't any alternative," she declared. "The main thing for you to understand is that the warrants against you have been quashed. The vast machinery that had set itself to enmesh you has been stopped. In the United States, at all events, you are free from arrest for what you did."

"Answer me this, please," she said anxiously. "Can you go to the cabinet officer if anything is discovered about you in future?"

"That," he said evasively, "will have to be considered when the time arrives."

"She shook her head. "I see it very clearly now," she said. "You have given me what would have saved you. How can I thank you for that? It is impossible. One thanks for the little courtesies of life. I am overwhelmed!"

She covered her face with her gloved hands. She was free. Through all the broad land there were no police empowered to recognize and arrest her.

"I haven't told you the truth, always," Anthony Trent said. "I have plenty of money. I'm not ruined in anything but hope."

She smiled for the first time, and there were tears in her eyes. The clock struck the hour.

"There goes my train to Greenwich," she said.

"Aren't you sorry to hear I am bankrupt?" he asked.

"But only of hope," she answered. "That is not serious. It springs eternal, one is told."

He smiled a little ruefully as he looked down at her.

"You don't even want to hear what hopes they are," he complained. "You are not making it easy."

"What hopes are they?" she said softly.

Suddenly he knelt by the side of her chair.

"Vera," he whispered, "I love you. It was because of that I had to put you to that test. Forgive me. Look at me, my dear, I cannot bear this silence."

"What would you have me say? There was something caressing in her voice which set his heart beating madly. "That I love you? That I could say, gladly. But if I did, would you believe me?"

[THE END.]

Ink Blot Spelt Ruin for Engineering Firm

A big British engineering firm put in a bid for building a great bridge for a foreign government. The head of the business spent six months in getting out plans. His bid was accepted, the material bought in great quantities, men engaged, and machinery built.

A time limit was set for the commencement and finish of the bridge, and one day the chief was sitting at his desk perfecting his plans and making sure of the smallest details, when he accidentally upset an inkpot and drowned his most important papers in a black sea.

In a fever of anxiety he tried to reconstruct his plans from stray notes. It was impossible, and he then cabled the foreign government begging for more time. This was refused and the contract repudiated. The loss drove the firm into bankruptcy.

PAUL GOES TO ROME

LESSON TEXT—Rom. 1:8-15; Acts 27:1-28:31.

GOLDEN TEXT—I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul and a Storm at Sea.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Voyage to Rome.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul Makes the Most of Circumstances.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Divine Leadership in Paul's Life.

I. Paul's Longing to See the Romans (1:8-15).

Rome was the center of the world's power and influence. Paul longed to visit that metropolis with the gospel so that it might find its way from that center to all parts of the world. He had a twofold object so far as the Roman church was concerned.

1. That he might impart unto them some spiritual gift to the end that they might be established.

2. That he might be comforted by their fellowship. There is a reciprocal relationship between the minister and the people unto whom he ministers.

II. Paul's Voyage to Rome (Acts 27).

1. The ship (vv. 1-4). It was a vessel of Alexandria sailing from Myra to Italy.

2. The company (vv. 1, 2). Two of Paul's friends, Aristarchus and Luke, were permitted to go with him. Besides these three, there were two hundred and seventy-three in the ship (v. 37).

3. Overtaken by a storm (vv. 7-20). Paul had advised that they winter in Fair Havens (vv. 9-12), but his advice was unheeded. The gentle south wind deceived them so they loosed from Crete, only to be over-taken by the tempestuous wind called Euroclydon.

4. Paul's serene faith (vv. 21-26).

(1) His rebuke for failure to heed his advice (v. 21).

(2) Elds them be of good cheer (v. 22).

(3) He promised safety (v. 22).

(4) The source of his information (vv. 23, 24). It was revealed unto him by the angel of God.

(5) The reason for Paul's faith (v. 23).

"Whose I am and whom I serve." The consciousness of having been chosen by God and being engaged in His service enables one in the midst of the most violent storm to rest in God.

5. The ship's crew all safe on land (27:27-29:10).

This was exactly as the Lord had said.

(1) The hospitable reception by the natives (28:2).

(2) Paul gathering sticks for the fire (v. 3).

(3) Paul bitten by a poisonous serpent (v. 3). Among the sticks gathered there was a serpent. Perhaps it had already coiled itself up for its winter's sleep, but when warmed by the fire it darted at Paul and fixed its fangs upon his hand. At first the natives thought that he was an escaped murderer and that retributive justice was being meted out to him.

When they saw he was unharmed they concluded he was a god.

(4) Paul heals Publius' father (vv. 7-10). Paul now reciprocated the kindness of these people.

III. Paul's Arrival at Rome (28:11-16).

Brethren from Rome came some forty miles to meet him. This greatly encouraged him, for which he gave thanks to God. His desire to preach the gospel at Rome was now realized. He was treated with great leniency, being allowed to hire a house and live apart, except that he was constantly under the guard of a soldier. Being chained to a soldier was tedious, but it gave him a chance to preach to the soldiers, which he could not have done in any other way.

IV. Paul's Ministry in Rome (vv. 17-31).

1. His conference with the leading Jews (vv. 17-22).

He did not, as usual, wait for the Sabbath day to speak to the Jews, but after three days' rest he called the chief Jews together because of a desire to have a fair understanding with them. The result of this interview was that the Jews took neutral ground.

2. Paul expounding the Kingdom of God and persuading concerning Jesus (vv. 23-31).

He pointed out a real kingdom, the Messianic Kingdom, with the historic Jesus as King.

Prayer

Prayer is the great lever of the spiritual life; nay, to speak in various figures, it is the tung by which it breathes, it is the atmosphere in which it floats, the wing by which it speeds its flight, and the language by which it daily communes with its own Original.—W. Kniglit.

The Richest

Scotch Flemings

In Newhaven, a little fishing community on the shore of the Firth of Forth, Scotland, there is a colony of fisherfolk who are the descendants of Flemish settlers of the Fifteenth century. The settlers, refugees from the Thirty Years' war waged by Charles V in Flanders, carried with them their native customs and manner of dress, which are still in evidence despite the long sojourn among the Scotch.

John George Has a Remarkable Collection

John George, who resides on his ranch about 7 miles east of Carrizozo, has a valuable collection of curious rocks which he has from time to time found in the washouts of the rock and dirt coming down from the mountains, several of which are indeed wonderful, to say the least.

After a hard rain several years ago, Mr. George crossed down one of the arroyos on his ranch in search of one of his cows which had become separated from his herd, and noticed a queer-shaped rock protruding from the bank. He released the rock, carried it home and noticing a crevice encircling it, he took a dull hand axe, and striking the rock, it fell apart, revealing two inscriptions, one of which read, "Foreo," the Italian term for "Fire." On the other side of the rock the inscription read, "Givan" which, in short, stands for "Giovanni," meaning "John."

Other rocks in his possession have the pictures of trees and animals of various kinds, which make up a remarkable collection of things in the curio line. When you are in his locality, pay Mr. George a visit and look over his collection.

What a Chinese Elm Can Do

In recent years, quite recent in fact, there has been considerable interest in the Chinese Elm as a tree adapted to the Southwest.

Nurserymen have been unable to propagate the seedlings fast enough for the demands for them.

Several specimens have been growing in Alamogordo for several years and seem to be doing well. A number were set out on the N. M. School for the Blind by Supt. Smoll and have made a wonderful growth for the time planted. Also a number of Chinese Elms were set out on the courthouse yard last spring and are growing rapidly and will soon make quite a showing.

As to what the Chinese Elm will do under rather favorable conditions of water and soil may be seen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Agnew.

In April, 1927, Mr. Agnew set out one Chinese Elm tree. In its 17 months of growth it has developed a trunk girth of 17 inches, or a diameter of 5 1/2 inches. The tip of the tallest center branch reaches skyward 18 feet, and the lower branches will have to be cut to give the tree the shape of a typical shade tree.—Alamogordo News.

Could Not Be Questioned

To avoid chartering a special car to ship 200 pounds of Limberger cheese, a manufacturer packed it in a rough box and checked it for a corpee. At the first stop he went ahead to the baggage car to see there was no trouble. He stood by the box in a disconsolate attitude and shaded his eyes with his hand. The baggage man was sympathetic. "A relative?" he asked. "Yes, my brother." "Well, you have one consolation, he's dead, all right." —Deming Graphic.
