Capitan Notes

Montie Gardenhire was a business visitor at Carrizozo Wednesday.

Mr. Hale spent Sunday in El Paso, returning home Monday.

Messrs. Hoover, Brubaker, Koogler, Capitan and Dr. Nesbit of Fort Stanton attended Masonic Lodge at Alamogordo Saturday night.

The seniors at the local school received their class rings Tuesday.

The Capitan Tigers will play Tularosa at Carrizozo Saturday night.

Jose Torres y Sedillo, who was lost in a snowstorm a few days ago, died Saturday.

On account of bad roads and snow, the games for last week with Luke Arthur and Hagerman were canceled.

There have been quite a few students absent from school the last few days on account of the snowy weather.

The pie supper and dance which was to be given last week was postponed owing to the bad weather, but watch for the announcements and everybody come and have a good time.

We appreciated practicing on the Carrizozo courts very much, as the weather would not permit us to practise on our courts.

The seniors have selected their play, "Babs," which we are sure will be a success.

Notice

For reason that the next regular meeting of the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce comes on Thursday, Feb. 23, the same date as the "Ben Hur" picture to be shown at the Crystal Theatre, the meeting has been postponed until Tuesday, Feb. 23. Further announcements with regard to the meeting will be made later.

Town Development

It used to be frequently said in smaller towns, that it is the business of a good citizen to mind his own business, keep out of debt and avoid breaking the laws. It was commonly thought that if he did that, it was all he could be expected of him, and he was conforming to the ideals of good citizenship.

But Carrizozo's development cannot be promoted in these times on any such limited basis. The fact that so many people still have this spirit, and expect to get along without doing anything particular to boost community movements, is one of the principal reasons why some small towns don't get ahead.

Some one must take hold and carry on the work of churches and fraternal societies. Some of the men with a special head for business need to work in some commercial and other needed development of the community. Some need to work in clubs for educational purposes, and for more interesting social activities. There is something that each one should do and we must all take hold to do something in these public lines, if we expect that a town is going to keep up with the game.

No Squeaks or Rattles In Victory Six Bodies

No builder of the finest custom bodies could take greater care or devise more effective means to eliminate all likelihood of squeaks, rattles and body noises than have Dodge Bros. engineers in designing and developing the new Victory Six, declares Vincent Reil, of the City Garage, the local Dodge dealer.

"The panels of the double wall steel body," Mr. Reil declares, "are lined with thick felt pads to insure against any possibility of drumming sound or of sounding board effect when the car travels over uneven pavements. Beneath the rear floor carpet, securely cemented to the floor, is a heavy pad of sound-proofing material and on the under side of the rubber mat of the driver's compartment is a similar pad. The body engineers state that over 85 per cent of the entire outside surface of the body, exclusive of the window openings, is lined with sound-proofing felt. This felt is effective not only in sound-proofing the body but also as heat insulation, making the car warmer in winter and cooler in summer. The polished plate glass windows slide in noiseless runways of felt and when lowered rest on rubber supports. So accurate are the dies used in the mammoth presses which form the double walled steel doors and the door openings in the bodies that the desired clearances at the top, bottom and sides of the doors are maintained within very close limits. The adjustable rubber stops against which the doors strike when closed are of liberal dimensions. The 'dove tails' which serve as guides when the doors are closed are padded with cushions of live rubber armored with metal to protect against wear. There is no 'clany' sound when a Victory door is slammed."

Brown, sportsman and former oil man of Amarillo, Tex., in the Mogollon mountains, 110 miles south and west of Magdalena, has been awarded to Geo. H. Merchant. Cost of furniture and equipment for the lodge which will maintain headquarters in Albuquerque, will run the price of the lodge to approximately $200,000.

Leap Year

The big snowstorm of last week made traveling had for those who must go from here to other places to transact business, but the snow has made the ground in such good condition by melting where it fell, that it will insure an early and abundant bean crop. On account of the heavy snow, no church services were held last week.

Gran Quivira Echoes

Frank L. Means has taken his cows and chickens to his home, 17 miles east of here and will establish his residence there. Mrs. Means will join him this spring.

A goodly number of people from surrounding localities have been coming in to listen over the radio, but it has failed to work as it should, of late.

The Gran Quivira bean farmers are talking over plans for the spring planting and everybody will be busy with plowing within a few weeks.

Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 13.—Visiting the Indian pueblo near here Saturday, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden was shown a silver-headed cane by the pueblo governor, Camilo Padilla, which had been presented to a governor years before by President Abraham Lincoln. Alamogordo, N. M., Feb. 14.—An Engleman spruce tree recently cut by the Southwest Lumber company in Willis canyon, near Cloudcroft, is claimed to be the largest of its kind found in the southwest. (Special Meeting)

Applications of the following persons were presented: Henry Lutz, Ira Robinson and Ernest Steffian. On motion of T. E. Kelley, seconded by A. Ziegler, the application of H. Lutz, was considered and Mr. Lutz was selected by unanimous vote of those present.

On motion of A. Ziegler, seconded by T. E. Kelley, it was voted that Mr. Vega be paid his full salary of $100 for the month of February; and a further payment of $90 for the months of March and April, which complete his unexpired term of office.

Skeleton With Rifle Beside It, Found

Roy, N. M.—A skeleton beside which was an old brass mounted rifle of the sort used more than 50 years ago was found the other day by a party of trappers in a cave, the entrance to which was hidden by brush in a canyon east of here. K. F. Guthman is informed. The gun, which was taken from the cave, appears to be a .45 calibre but no marks remained to disclose the name of the manufacturer. The stock had rusted away and only the brass mountings had withstood the elements, he said. The skeleton was in a crouched position against a wall.

A search for cartridge shells in the cave failed to disclose any, indicating to the trappers that a dead or early settler had been wounded and sought refuge in the cave after his last bullet had been spent.

Has Device to Pick up Nails in Road

Roswell, N. M., Feb. 18.—Harold Danenberg and Scotty Andrews have just completed a machine which will pick up all kinds of metal in the road. Danenberg gave a demonstration on the streets and alleys today and finished the demonstration with more nails than it was thought could be found on the pavement. It consists of two large electro magnets which run close to the road. They are energized by a direct current generator mounted on a truck. The machine was built for the state highway commission. It is the only machine of its kind in the world.

No, it wasn't the effects of the recent snowstorm that gave the lamp posts over town such snowy-white appearance, it's only another one of those little improvements so often done by our "City Dads." More power!

Boys Win and Girls Tie With Alamogordo

The girls' game was a real one; it kept the audience in suspense from the minute the first whistle was blown until the final one. The team played hard and fast the first part of the game but when the whistle blew at the end of the first half, Alamogordo was three-point ahead. This gave the players more spirit than they ever had before and each player gained more courage and strength. With this newly acquired zeal and with the cheers from our groups of yellers they entered the game the second half with eager determination and played harder than ever before. They exhibited the fastest and best playing that has ever before been shown by the team. But we met a nearly evenly matched team and the final score was 27-27.

The boys played with their usual accuracy and speed. With their excellent teamwork, goal throwing and close guarding, they ran the score up in great rapidity to 16-4 the first half. The last half Mr. Biddle played most of the second team, but they were mixed up in their lineup and did not score so much, so the regular team went back in the last quarter and succeeded in making the final score 29-17.

Episcopal services will be held next Sunday at the Wetmore Hall, as follows: Holy Communion at 8:30 a. m.; Morning Prayer at 11 a. m.; Evening Prayer at 7:30 p. m. Dean Joseph Sherrin of Tucumcari will conduct all services, to which the public is cordially invited.

On motion of A. Ziegler, seconded by T. E. Kelley, it was voted that Mr. Vega be paid his full salary of $100 for the month of February, and a further payment of $80 for the months of March and April, which complete his unexpired term of office.

There being no further business before the council, the meeting is declared adjourned.

Skeleton With Rifle Beside It, Found

Roy, N. M.—A skeleton beside which was an old brass mounted rifle of the sort used more than 50 years ago was found the other day by a party of trappers in a cave, the entrance to which was hidden by brush in a canyon east of here, K. F. Guthman is informed. The gun, which was taken from the cave, appears to be a .45 calibre but no marks remained to disclose the name of the manufacturer. The stock had rusted away and only the brass mountings had withstood the elements, he said. The skeleton was in a crouched position against a wall.

A search for cartridge shells in the cave failed to disclose any, indicating to the trappers that a scout or early settler had been wounded and sought refuge in the cave after his last bullet had been spent.

Has Device to Pick up Nails in Road

Roswell, N. M., Feb. 18.—Harold Danenberg and Scotty Andrews have just completed a machine which will pick up all kinds of metal in the road. Danenberg gave a demonstration on the streets and alleys today and finished the demonstration with more nails than it was thought could be found on the pavement. It consists of two large electro magnets which run close to the road. They are energized by a direct current generator mounted on a truck. The machine was built for the state highway commission. It is the only machine of its kind in the world.

No, it wasn't the effects of the recent snowstorm that gave the lamp posts over town such a snowy-white appearance, it's only another one of those little improvements so often done by our "City Dads." More power!

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Pro-Convention Doings of Republicans "Lindy" Reaches Havana.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

REPUBLICAN interest in the pro-convention Presidential campaign centered on the question of what Herbert Hoover would do in the matter of entering the Ohio preferential primaries. Formal steps to induce him to contest with Senator Frank B. Willis for the state delegation were taken by a committee of prominent politicians formed at Columbus and a petition to the secretary of commerce was circulated for signatures. Mr. Willis, being a "favorite son," has indicated that he is ready for the fight and it is admitted that if Mr. Hoover does enter the primaries, and loses, his cause will have received a serious blow.

Some of the eastern party leaders who are opposed to the Hoover candidacy, notably Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Charles Tilles, are reported to be alarmed by the growing strength of Hoover in the eastern states and to be laying plans to bring about a deadlock in the convention in the hope that this would be broken by the "drafting" of Mr. Coolidge. The Pennsylvania delegation will go to Kansas City solid for Mellon and ready to jump where he tells it to. Illinois and State Chairman Morris of New York have arranged that the New York delegates shall not commit themselves until something more definite is known as to the chance of re-nominating Coolidge. Governor Fuller of Massachusetts may be brought forward in order to check the Hoover campaign for delegates in the Bay state. It appears that these anti-Hoover leaders, if they could not have Coolidge, might line up their delegates for Dawson Mellon and probably others of them would prefer even Hoover to Lowden because of the latter's stand in favor of the McNary-Haugen brand of farm relief legislation. In Ohio the Lowdenites are backing Willis and in Indiana they are supporting Senator Watson, following Lowden will benefit by this when these gentlemen find their chances in the convention are nil.

Developments of the week in Illinois politics were exciting locally and promised to have some effect on the Presidential campaign. Gov. Len Small, desiring a third term, was forced to surrender to Mayor Thompson of Chicago, agreeing to make Big Bill his patronage dispenser in the metropolis in return for the support of the Thompson organization. The mayor has been strongly opposed to sending any Lowden delegates to Kansas City from Cook county and also is the political foe of Senator Deneen. So it is not unlikely that the friends of Lowden and Deneen will make an alliance with the supporters of Secretary of State Emerson, who is out for the gubernatorial nomination. In this way they might elect a considerable number of Lowden delegates throughout the state. The matter of Frank L. Smith, senator-elect, who was denied his seat, also enters into the Illinois situation. Mr. Smith resigned his credentials, was reappointed by Small and announced his candidacy for re-election in November.

Among the Democrats of the country the campaign of Al Smith goes along fairly smoothly but with somewhat less impetus. McAdoo's Virginia speech checked up the dry Democrats a lot and in several states the opposition to the New York governor was noticeably stronger. But it isn't strong enough yet to lead to revision of the prediction that he will be the party's nominee at Houston. The suggestion that Jesse Jones of Texas be named as Smith's running mate seems to meet with increasing favor.

SANDINO, Nicaraguan rebel leader, was reported to have gathered about 600 calvarymen near Jinotega and detachments of this force were engaged in looting coffee estates in the vicinity. Several appeals from planters for protection were received by the British charge d'affaires at Managua and he informed American Minister Patterson that his government expected full protection for British lives and property in the affected area. There already were companies of American marines in Jinotega, San Rafael del Norte and Matagalpa and steps were taken to strengthen the garrison at the last named city, whose citizens were becoming decidedly nervous. Sandino left a note at one coffee farm saying:

"The marines are very cowardly. They did not care to fight me in the Segovias. When they come here I will meet them and blood will flow in these hills near Matagalpa."

In view of the congressional attacks on our policy in Nicaragua, it is interesting to read that an investigator for the New York Times has found that Wall street's direct financial interest in that country is only $185,000, which is scheduled to be paid off in three months. The total American investment in Nicaragua is estimated at $12,000,000.

TRANSMATLANTIC television became a demonstrated reality last week when a group of persons in a darkened cellar at Hartdale, N. Y., gathered about the television invented by John L. Baird and saw the moving figures of a man and woman who were seated before an electric eye in a London laboratory. The transmitted vision came through the ether in the form of a humdrum hum, a musical bass of irregular cadence representing in sound the lights and shadows of their faces—all that was transmitted in the best. When the television, a black box compact enough to be carried around in a box, had done its work with this rhythmic "humble from across the sea" the vision urged Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, to tell the committee who were the beneficiaries of the notorious $50,000,000 Continental Trading company, Ltd., deal—information which Stewart declined to give and in consequence was cited for contempt, Senator Walsh wrote to Mr. Rockefeller asking his aid in unraveling the Continental mystery and the letter promised to do all he could to clear it up. Later he wrote Stewart saying the chairman owed it to his associates and stockholders and to the public to bring the questionable transactions into the fullest light. Mr. Rockefeller was summoned to appear before the committee Saturday.

COLONEL LINDBERGH ended his Latin American air tour Wednesday when the Spirit of St. Louis gracefully swooped down on the flying field at Havana after a 750 mile flight from Port au Prince, Haiti. Thousands of Cubans who had waited hours in the hot sun rushed forward with wild cheers and overwhelmed the soldiers and police. Not until cavalry men had cleared the field was the young aviator able to alight and receive the greetings of Charles Evans Hughes, Ambassador Judah and the high Cuban officials gathered to meet him. At the Presidential palace President Machado told him what he and his fellow Cubans think of him, and thereafter he was the guest of honor at the usual receptions, luncheons, banquets and balls. He announced that he would make his homeward flight direct from Havana to St. Louis, starting February 13.

The first air-mail service between the islands of the Antilles was inaugurated with Lindbergh's arrival Wednesday. Two sacks of mail from Santo Domingo and one from Port-au-Prince were delivered at Havana by the plane.

Costes and Lebriz, the Frenchmen who were the first to fly across the south-Atlantic, made their way up from Mexico City and on Wednesday brought their big plane, the Nungesser-Coll, down on Bolling field, Washington. They were elaborately entertained in the national capital, and on Saturday flew to New York.

IN A report submitted to the house with the 1929 treasury appropriation bill it was admitted by the appropriations committee that the failure of more than two-thirds of the agents in the prohibition service in the recent merit system tests has demoralized prohibition enforcement throughout the country. The report says that "without any eligible register from which to select the successors to these men, the service is in the predicament of having many individuals regarded as their best enforcement officers under sentence of rejection, but permitted to stay in the service with dismoralizing impediment."

Sebastian S. Kresge of Detroit was found guilty of adultery in his wife's suit for divorce in New York; thereupon there arose a cry that the $500,000 he had given the Anti-Saloon league recently should be returned. But it will not be, for Bishop Nicholson, president of the league, says the donation was not a philanthropy but a purely business proposition; that Kresge "saw that prohibition increased his own income, that it brought more nickels and dimes into his stores, and so he devoted $500,000 to aid this cause which directly affected him." In New York it was taken for granted that the league would use the Kresge money for the education of voters in its campaign against the nomination of Al Smith for President.

POWERS of the radio commission were extended for another year by the senate and it was believed this action would be followed by confirmation of the three members whose appointments have been held up. The extension bill provides that terms of present members of the commission shall expire at the end of the year's period and that new appointments of members of the appellate body to exist thereafter shall then be made by the President. Another provision of the bill limits licenses of broadcasting stations to six months and other classes of radio licenses to one year.

GOV. ED JACKSON of Indiana went to trial last week on a charge of conspiracy to conceal an alleged offer of a bribe of $10,000 to his predecessor, Warren T. McCray, who was sent to the penitentiary. Jackson and his two codefendants, George V. Coffin and Robert L. Marsh, waived arraignment and were granted separate trials, whereupon the governor pleaded not guilty and the examination of jurors was begun. Jackson is alleged to have conspired with Marsh and Coffin to bribe McCray to appoint the man they designated as county prosecutor at Indianapolis. McCray refused the alleged bribe offer of $10,000 and "protection from prosecution in any county Criminal court." Then he appointed W. H. Remy, as prosecutor.

FLOOD control legislation making the government responsible for the entire cost is favored by a majority of the house flood control committee and the senate commerce committee; but President Coolidge made it known last week that he still believes the states should share the burden of expense. Fear of Wisconsin, a member of the house committee, stands with the President in this. He declares that if congress approves a program by which the federal government bears the entire expense of flood control work on the lower Mississippi the action will serve as a precedent which will mean future "pork barrel" projects. It will be difficult, he says, to resist legislation dealing similarly with other rivers.

Howe About—By ED HOWE

Nearly every business that blows up has been founded by a booster, and conducted by booster methods. Everyone believes in success, progress, the best methods, but a good many are suspicious of boosters. Too many devote time to boosting that should be devoted to quietly straightening things out; to hard work by correct methods. In half the towns in this country the real material interests are neglected in boosting for something the town is not entitled to. A good business institution gets all the boosting it needs from the men who built it up, and from citizens envious of its success. Boosting is the politics of business; nearly always boosters do not know much about real business.

A woman has turned up who has been married to six men. She declares they were all unfaithful. A woman who has had such an experience reminds me of a man who has had many business partners and failed to get along with any of them. Such a man usually does not amount to much; but maybe this woman was always right in her six quarrels. Still, a record of six marriages is not very nice; it reminds one of actors, or Indians, or colored people.

You are punished as your offending is serious to others. Seriously wound a man and the penalty is imprisonment; kill him, and you are hanged. No one much cares if you harm yourself; indeed, everyone will aid you in harming yourself. If you have a dollar, everyone will try to take it from you. You are supposed to have sufficient sense to look out for number one.

It is a poor observer who does not know something must be done about lawyers and judges. In a certain community a lawyer was taken out one night by a mob and whipped. For years the lawyer had been disturbing the community with mischievous and blackmailing suits, and the other lawyers and judges made no protest. Perhaps this was not the best way, but the people knew something must be done, and could think of nothing else.

Too many men cackle over eggs to be laid next week or next year. . . . The cackling of an honest hen over a duty well performed is well enough; but the crowing of roosters—do you know of any good excuse for the crowing of roosters?

A hard-headed old fellow I know, usually disposed to be candid and clean, wrote a piece of foolish sentimentality recently, and it shocked me as would a young girl smoking a pipe.

This financial sense we hear about is extremely simple: it is merely knowing that nearly every man will promise more than he can carry out.

Every man must realize the power of common sense, or he can't amount to much.

Newspaper gossip is not as interesting as that of a neighborhood. Owing to libel laws, the newspapers are restricted to winks and nods, and to generalizations that "we hear from a reliable source," that "a man of great prominence in the financial and social world is about to," etc., but in neighborhood gossip names are given, and the little "nasty" particulars.

Why are nice women nice? Because of the knowledge that being nice pays, and is easier than being tough. The greatest sermon ever written, or ever will be written, is that honesty is the best policy. No one man wrote this sermon; all men lived, proved it. Those who violate the sermon know better; they are actuated by meanness, recklessness. Many of them are jailed; a few hanged; all punished in one way or another.

I heard a fine old gentleman talking recently, and he said a thing that attracted my attention: "I believe in the boys chasing the girls, not in the girls chasing the boys." There is a lot in it, if you will think awhile, and recall the women you know who are chasing the men. It is a bad, vulgar habit. Nobody believes in it.

Retiring a has-been, if he be able to employ a young press agent, is a very difficult matter. Hundreds of old has-beens are hanging on who should have retired to slippers and fire-side years ago. A man who has once had distinction gives up as reluctantly as a pretty woman.

No one is honest unless he candidly looks over his affairs frequently, and confesses: "I've been a fool; I might have done better with less effort." But few of us do it; instead, we declare our sin was right, and fight for it with greater cunning and efficiency.

The trouble in a family is called a skeleton; but it is usually some fearfully alive flesh and blood person with, unhappily, no immediate prospect of becoming a skeleton.

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwiniski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman." With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grand-children, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good. Thousands of women past fifty say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

To the Youth of the Nation Falls the Duty of "Saving" Society

By DANIEL L. MARSH, President Boston University.

THE youth of today faces the age-old problem of "saving" society. In order to accomplish its task the rising generation must succeed in rejuvenating a moral and social conscience which, despite the best intentions of society, shows unmistakable signs of "petering out" periodically. It is education that will help in the saving process.

It is impossible to capitalize the good things of each generation so strongly that the accumulated moral strength will not subside and ultimately end in bankruptcy unless its strength is renewed with each generation. That means that each generation is faced with the necessity of saving society.

As a result, education must play its part and each generation must be taught certain fundamentals essential to an orderly state of society.

Among other things, America's youth must be taught to place only good and worthy men in positions of power, to enact just and equal laws and to enforce the laws upon all alike, without delay and without fear or favor, for delay causes fermentation of unsocial propaganda.

They must be taught to obey and reverence all laws as the political religion of the nation, for disrespect for law is a sign of social disintegration; to respect property as a divine institution, for by means of it the material wealth of mankind may be increased, the intellect developed and innumerable virtues exercised, and to recognize human rights as more important than property rights.

America's youth must learn to think clearly and not to confuse liberty with license; nor public opinion with mob psychology; to appeal to reason instead of to physical force and violence as a means of settling disputes, and to rise above all class and racial fear and hatred and jealousy and animosity.

Time for America to Declare to the World Its Definite Peace Policy

By DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, President Columbia University.

The time has come to take the outstretched hand of Europe that has been offered us and to declare the peace policy of the United States in terms that our people desire and applaud and that the whole world can understand.

If we join nations on a like plane of civilization in saying that in our dealings with each other we don't contemplate fighting, that we contemplate only discussion, only conciliation, only arbitration, and in the extreme case judicial settlement, and that we have reached a civilized point where we are not going to consider fighting them, believe me, so long as those nations and ours keep their word, war of a serious kind will have a much harder time in breaking out than it has now.

There are a large number of persons at the great diplomatic center of Washington who talk about peace but are alarmed when asked to do something definite. My appeal is to the public sentiment of America to say to ourselves and to the world that we are ready to this extent to manifest that will to peace which is the only thing that can establish the habit to peace.

Child Seldom Will Be Found Better Than Home From Which It Came

By DR. ALBERT PARKER FITCH, New York (Presbyterian).

The human race as far back as Plato has been trying to find a substitute for the home so we won't have to be bothered with the annoyance and care of children, but no one has ever succeeded. Fathers and mothers represent God to the child, who says nothing and sees so much, and in my 18 years of teaching undergraduate boys and girls I have come to know that you can expect the child to be just what the home was from which that child came.

There are two ways of loving your children. One is in the creative way, which sees in them the coming man or woman that should be fine and great, and the other is the lazy and indulgent fondness which a cat will give to her kitten. This kind of love makes a milksoy of the boy and a shallow, inefficient woman.

If the parents never talk about God, read the tabloid newspaper and cheap literature, the boys and girls will never learn the supreme value of life. They will not get it anywhere if they don't get it in the home.

No Possibility That Movement for Christian Reunion Can Be Stopped

By BISHOP WILLIAM T. MANNING (Episcopal).

The movement for the reunion of Christendom cannot be stopped, despite the recent papal encyclical opposing the movement. No utterance can or will stop or retard that great movement. I don't think anyone seriously wants to stop it. It is going on and the Christians all over the world, Catholic and Protestant, are drawing nearer to each other.

Our own church and the Anglican communion throughout the world will continue to play a large part in that movement, because in the providence of God the Anglican church includes in itself those things which are true and essential for which Protestantism stands. It was for this reason our German brethren at Lausanne, at the world's conference on faith and order, last year, applied to the Anglican church the name "bridge church" because they recognized the fact that we stand in a unique relation with the Catholic world on the one hand and the Protestant world on the other.

Modern Father Shares With Mother Preschool Training of Children

By DR. LOIS HAYDEN MEEK, Educational Director.

Women are educating men to the point of taking an interest in the scientific training of children of preschool age. Formerly this particular form of education was considered the duty only of women. But the departure of many women from the home into the business and professional worlds has created a new situation. Both the mother and the father are at home and with the children an equal number of hours now. It is not as it used to be, when the mother's entire day was spent with her youngsters.

With this greater equality, fathers have realized that the preschool training is as much their job as their wives. And as a result most prominent educators among men and in men's educational organizations are making a study of the problem with specific relation to the father in the home.

Brevity the Highest Point of Eloquence

The story is told that when Abraham Lincoln was conferring with a committee over a speech the President was to make, he said: "If I am to talk 45 minutes I will not need any time for preparation, but if I am to speak 10 minutes I would like a week to get my remarks ready."

Lincoln could say more in a few words than any man of modern times. In literature and oratory, it has always been the brief, simple, lucid style of expression that has created the most lasting impression.

The late Senator Beveridge was never able to live down the quip of "Mr. Dooley," who described one of his oratorical flights in the senate as a "spache'ye cud waltz to."

Many of our writers and public speakers should learn with Cicero that "Brevity is a great praise of eloquence."—Thrift Magazine.

Mellon Family Richest

The Mellon family is probably the richest in America, with the Ford, Rockefeller and Baker families following in the order given. This is the conclusion of a writer in the Boston News Bureau, a financial newspaper, who says that based on actual value of securities and asset values of other property owned, the Mellon family heads the list. The 4,300,710 shares of Gulf Oil company stock held by the Mellons is cited as one reason. And this is only one of the big industries in which the Mellon family is interested.

Where Husbands Can Shop

"Blushless" shopping for men has now been established by a Detroit department store, which has a "men's corner," where when he wants a present for her he can be pathetically lured into the mysteries of step-ins, fancy garters, silks, satins, broadsides, etc. Here he is made to feel he is in a masculine atmosphere, despite the femininity of the goods and the judicious salesladies who obtain the customer's confidence and then sell him exactly what he needs, greatly to the benefit of his wife, mother, betrothed, or niece, cousins and aunts. —Copper's Weekly.

5-PASSENGER COACH $535

"The most valuable car ever offered for so little money"

John G. Willys

So rapidly has demand mounted for the perfected Whippet, that four great plants—at Toledo, Elmira, Pontiac and Toronto—are taxed to capacity, and enlargement and expansion, to permit even greater production, are already under way. People continue to express amazement that cars of such remarkable quality and mechanical perfection can be offered at such low prices.

Here is true beauty—in color, lines, proportions and interiors. And here, too, are features which distinguish the finest American cars—low-slung full vision bodies, BIG 4-wheel brakes, gasoline tank at rear, full force-feed lubrication, silent-timing chain, oversize balloon tires and snubbers and long semi-elliptic springs. See this car—ride in it, and compare it with any other light car—for looks, for performance, for quality, for all-around desirability—in short, for value.

New Mexico May Have One More Congressman

If a bill now pending in Congress passes, a re-appointment of representation by the states in Congress will be changed, which will increase some and decrease others, as follows:

Alabama will lose one; Arizona gains one; California gains six; Connecticut gains one; Florida gains one; Indiana loses two; Iowa loses two; Kansas loses one; Kentucky loses one; Louisiana loses one; Maine loses one; Massachusetts loses one; Michigan gains four; Mississippi loses two; Missouri loses four; Nebraska loses one; Montana gains one; New Jersey gains two; New Mexico gains one; New York loses two; North Carolina gains one; North Dakota loses one; Ohio gains three; Oklahoma gain one; Pennsylvania loses one; Tennessee loses one; Texas gains two; Vermont loses one; Virginia loses one; Washington gains one.

The bill, which is ready to present to Congress, is very likely to pass, according to those who claim to be on the inside of affairs in general and the same will change the complexion of that law-making body to a large extent. Taking into consideration the states which are either Republican or Democratic to the extreme, the change may be easily figured out, but as to the doubtful ones, nothing but an uncertain estimate can be made. But let us not worry, for the bill has yet to be passed.

GENUINE NAVAJO INDIAN RUGS

AN UNUSUAL GIFT WHICH WILL LAST A LIFETIME

The Rugs of the Navajo Indians are unlike any other rugs ever produced as art-of-weaving has been brought to a perfection with this tribe of the Southwest. The designs are of their own figures and symbols and are seen nowhere else. These Rugs are of a texture and quality that will outlast Oriental Rugs. The wool used is sheared from live sheep which insures strength and firmness. They will wear a lifetime and become heir looms. The time is not far distant when genuine Navajo Rugs will no longer be woven, as the old Squaws who do this work are getting fewer and the present generation does not take up the work. For this reason the rugs now on the market are much sought after by lovers of Indian Rugs.

OTHER MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 5:21-24; 25-43.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thy faith hath made thee whole.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Great Healer.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Healer of the Sick.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Giver and Preserver of Life.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Works of Faith.

The accounts of the raising of the damsel and the healing of the woman are so interwoven as almost to constitute one narrative. But since the persons are diverse and places separate, they should be treated separately.

1. Jairus' Daughter Raised from the Dead (vv. 22-24 and 35-42).
1. Jairus' urgent mission (vv. 22, 23).
- His only daughter (Luke 8:42), perhaps his only child, lay dying. In this time of utter helplessness, he came to Jesus, for he had faith in His ability to raise her up. In the providence of God, sorrow, sickness and death are often used to bring needy men and women into contact with Jesus. He showed the proper attitude toward Jesus, "He fell at His feet" (v. 22).
2. Jesus goes with Jairus (v. 24). Jairus believed that if Jesus would lay His hand upon his daughter she would live. Such faith always gets a response from Jesus.
3. News of his daughter's death (v. 35).
- The messenger who brought the news of her death suggested that Jesus should be excused from going further, as it was now too late.
4. Jairus' faith strengthened (v. 30).
- As soon as Jesus heard the words spoken concerning the death of this girl, he said to the father, "Be not afraid, only believe."
5. The mourners rebuked (vv. 37-39).
- He now dismissed the crowd and allowed only three of His disciples and the parents of the damsel to enter this chamber of death with Him.
6. Jairus' faith rewarded (vv. 41-43).

He took the damsel by the hand and issued the command for her to arise. The expression "Talitha gumi" in the Aramaic seems to be freely expressed, "Wake up, little girl." She straightway arose and walked and partook of food.

11. The Woman with an Issue of Blood Healed (vv. 25-34).

1. Her helpless condition (vv. 25, 26, cf. Luke 8:43).
- She had been a great sufferer for twelve long years.
- Her faith (vv. 27, 29).
- She possessed a real and earnest faith. For a poor enfeebled woman after twelve years of suffering to press her way through a thronging multitude shows that she possessed a determined purpose. The test of the actuality and quality of one's faith is the activity which characterized the life. Her faith was so strong that she believed contact with the Master's garments would secure the needed help. Though her faith was strong, it was imperfect. She only knew Him as a wonder worker, but through this experience she came to know Him as a compassionate Savior.
3. Her healing (vv. 29-32).
- As soon as she touched the hem of His garment she experienced in her body His healing power. Jesus Himself was conscious of the outgoing of virtue, therefore inquired, "Who touched me?" to which the disciples replied with amazement, "Thou seest the multitude thronging thee and sayest thou, 'Who touched me?'"
4. Her confession (v. 33, cf. Luke 8:47).
- She thought secretly to get the blessing of healing, but Jesus perceived that virtue had gone out from Him and had her make a public confession.
5. Jesus' words of encouragement (v. 34).
- With the communication of His healing virtue, He spoke most gracious and comforting words to this poor woman, telling her that it was her faith, not her touch that had saved her. Faith does not need to face dangers and to exhaust itself in active endeavor in order to gain Christ's blessing. All that is required is a trusting prayer. Not only did she gain the blessing, but had the distinction of being the only woman on record as having been addressed by Jesus as "daughter," which shows His spirit of tenderness to those who come to Him with their needs.

Are You Really Well?

To Be Fit There Must Be Proper Kidney Action.

Do you find yourself running down—always tired, nervous and depressed? Are you stiff and aching subject to nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizzy spells? Are kidney secretions scanty and burning in passage? Too often this indicates sluggish kidneys and shouldn't be neglected.
Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of the kidneys and thus aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Doan's are endorsed everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Hamlet's Home Restored

Only the canopy taken to Stockholm by the conquering King Charles X in 1658 will be absent when the Kronberg castle at Oeresund is opened as a museum.
Denmark's wonderful castle of the Renaissance—home of Hamlet—has been completely restored. Authenticities are now ready with plans to refit it as a museum, with its old paintings, furniture and gobelins, these relics to be retrieved from the Danish museums.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Dr. Ronald McAllister, psychologist, undertakes to solve the mystery of the murder of a relative, Henry Morgan. The dead man's papers reveal that he had been in New Zealand, where McAllister had lived in his youth. Will Harvey testifies to seeing a woman in a green cloak at the Morgan home the night of the murder. Doctor McAllister is asked to see a young woman patient in a hospital. In her delirium she mutters in a strange language which only McAllister understands. He suspects she may know something of the murder. A carefully hidden map is discovered by McAllister and Assistant District Attorney Ashton in Morgan's home. While they are searching a young woman enters the house in the darkness, and escapes, leaving behind a green cloak. The name of Jane Perkins, a housemaid, is brought into the case and McAllister believes he has a clue. In response to an advertisement of the finding of a green cloak, a young woman, giving her name as Jane Perkins, housemaid at The Meredith, claims it. McAllister takes two laboratory instruments to The Meredith for an undisclosed purpose.

And yet his manner when he took the chair that Wilkins placed for him, and glanced over the menu card suddenly became leisurely and deliberate. He had a little chat with Wilkins, taking the advice of that gastronomic expert as seriously as if a good dinner were the only subject that he felt the slightest interest in just then.

The waiter got our order at last and went away with it to the kitchen, and Wilkins himself, with a grave inclination of the head, started to move away, but the doctor called him back. "I wonder, Wilkins," he said, "whether you can find out for me if there is a chambermaid named Jane Perkins employed in the hotel."

The man shot a quick look of surprise into the doctor's face, a look quite at variance with his ordinary stiff immobility.

"Yes, sir, there is such a young woman working here," he said. "It happens that I am acquainted with her personally."

"Ah," said the doctor in a tone of satisfaction, "that simplifies matters. I might have known that you would be able to help me. Wilkins, it happens that I very much wish to have a little conversation with that young woman."

Wilkins inclined his head gravely, without a word. "You'll arrange it for me, won't you?" said the doctor. "I'd like to have her sent to my room immediately after dinner."

There was a momentary silence after that. Both of us looked up in some surprise that the man did not answer. His face was unusually grave.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he said with a little hesitation; "I hope you'll forgive the liberty, but I have, as I was saying, something of a personal interest in that young woman. I hope she's not in any difficulty, sir. I hope that she has not been doing anything that she shouldn't have done."

"I'm inclined to think not," said the doctor, "but unless I am mistaken, she's in a difficulty."

Wilkins said nothing, but his silence was expectant. He was too well trained to ask any questions, but it was very evident that he wanted to know more.

"I think I may venture to be frank with you, Wilkins," the doctor resumed. "Of course what I say is between ourselves, and I want your promise to say nothing of it to the young woman in question."

"Yes, sir; certainly, sir." "In the investigation of the Oak Ridge murder the other night a certain green cloak was found, which in the state attorney's office, is believed to have been worn by an unknown woman who committed that crime. That cloak was advertised as found, in the afternoon papers, and was almost immediately claimed and identified beyond a doubt by this Jane Perkins, who gave The Meredith as her address."

"She didn't do it, sir," Wilkins interrupted quickly. "I'm sure she can't be guilty of the crime of murder. She's a very quiet girl, sir—a good girl."

"I have made a little investigation of that mystery on my own account," said the doctor, "and I'm inclined to think you're right. I should, however, be glad to have some better founded reasons for that opinion. There are certain circumstances which point at her directly enough to bring her under serious suspicion and to make her a good deal of trouble. If Mr. Phelps and I can convince ourselves, in advance, of her innocence, we will gladly do all that is within our power, both in representations we will make to

Mr. Ashton and otherwise, to shield her."

"That's very good of you, sir," said Wilkins. "I'll see that she's sent up to your room the moment you have finished dinner."

There was another little silence; still Wilkins kept his place beside our table. Presently, after a little apologetic cough, he spoke again.

"It strikes me, sir, that it might, perhaps, be as well if the young woman were not to know that she was to be questioned. If she is innocent, it would only fluster her, and if she is guilty, it would give her time to prepare herself. If you wish, I will arrange to have her sent to your apartments, instead of the regular chambermaid who works upon that floor, to prepare your bedrooms for the night. In that way she'll suspect nothing."

The doctor glanced at him shrewdly. "That was a very able suggestion, Wilkins. Thank you for making it."

"Not at all, sir," said Wilkins. "For the present," the doctor concluded, "you will remember that you are to say nothing of this conversation to anyone, either to the other people in the hotel, or to—Mr. Ashton."

"Certainly not, sir."

The arrival of some other people in the dining room called him away just then, and we did not see him again until we were half through our meal. Then, looking up, we found him standing, silently, in his old place.

"The matter is arranged, sir," he said to the doctor. "The young person is at her own dinner just now, but she'll go up to attend to your rooms in about half an hour."

"Very good," said the doctor. "We can have our instruments ready by that time."

At the word "instruments" the man started, and looking up, I found him regarding the doctor with a queer, half-frightened expression.

"Speaking of instruments, sir," he said, stammering a little, "there isn't going to be any mesmerism, or—"

The doctor interrupted him with a full-voiced laugh. "No hocus-pocus whatever, Wilkins; no black art, no clairvoyance, or anything of that sort. The instruments I speak of simply serve the purpose of a stop-watch, and the test is a perfectly simple, straightforward one."

Then, seeing that the man was still not entirely convinced, he added, "You can be present yourself, if you care to be."

"That's very good of you, sir," said the man. "On the young woman's account I will be glad to come, if you

Birds to Be Classed as Master Builders

Birds are the most perfect builders, and—strange as it may sound—there is scarcely a trade that you will not find represented among these feathered craftsmen.

Many of the nests of American birds are marvels of ingenuity, but their greatest efforts pale beside the wonders of the tropics. Weavers, carpenters, tailors, plasterers, tunnelers—these are but a few of the many trades that we find practiced when the nesting season arrives.

The sand-martin and the kingfisher, both belong to the guild of tunnelers, and are content with a burrowed hole. Ducks, gulls, water hens, and corn-crakes are all primitive builders, with no ideas beyond a rough and scanty collection of materials loosely thrown together on the ground. The house swallow is a plasterer, can wait until I can leave the dining room. That will be about eight-thirty, sir. I'd be sorry to keep you waiting, but she might be alarmed at any sort of test, and she has a good deal of confidence in me, sir."

"Very good," said the doctor, "only don't come up to the room with her. Follow along later, on some errand or other, and we'll call you in. Perhaps we'll make a little demonstration on you in advance, just to give her confidence."

A look of decorous amusement appeared on Wilkins' face.

"That will be very interesting, I'm sure, sir," he said. "As he bowed himself away I could see that he was still smiling."

"It's curious," I observed to the doctor. "We've seen that man daily since we came here to The Meredith to live, but I got an absolutely new impression of him this evening. It never occurred to me before that when he laid aside his professional manner he might be a thoroughly human, kindly old chap, with as many affections and concerns as any of us, and with, perhaps, about the same opinion of our reality as we have always had of his."

"We'd better get on," said the doctor, "cutting the action to the word. 'We haven't any time to waste.'"

As we walked over toward the elevator Wilkins preceded us and rang the bell for us, just as he always did. I had it my tongue's end to make some reference to our engagement with him for a little later in the evening, not that it was necessary, but simply because it was more natural to say, "In half an hour, then," or something of that sort, than merely to nod and answer his good night. I think he must have perceived that intention, certainly he checked it by looking, just then, a little more wooden and professional than ever. I understood when I glanced over his shoulder and saw that Ashton had just come in. He was not looking our way. Whether he had made a point of not looking, I do not know; but I was glad that I had not blurted out, in his hearing, any reference to the unusual and highly unprofessional sort of engagement that the doctor and I had with Wilkins.

"A rather remarkable man," said I as we stepped into the elevator. The doctor nodded.

A few minutes later, in the doctor's spacious sitting room where we had set up our instruments and now sat waiting for the arrival of the subject we meant to test by them, we heard a rattle at the door.

"No timidity about that," observed the doctor in a whisper; "and no ex-frontery, either. A plain, common-sense, professional knock. Let her in will you, Phelps?"

It was with a mounting excitement that I crossed the room and laid my hand on the knob, for there, on the other side of this door, was one of the elements of our mystery. What would she prove to be? Another innocent person, tangled by pure chance in the spider's web of circumstance which surrounded our mystery; or would she turn out to be, herself, one of the splinters of the web?

When I opened the door I got, instantaneously, a very good view of the girl, for the sitting-room was brightly lighted and the little entrance hallway where she stood comparatively dark. And that first look of mine brought a disappointment, there was no doubt of that. I had not known exactly what I had expected Jane Perkins to be like, but something different from this, certainly. The whole look of her as she stood there, an appearance so pervasive that it baffled analysis, was of stolid stupidity.

Her eyes were dull, her cheeks a very dark red, so that as I looked at her first I suspected a perfectly reckless use of cosmetic. Of course the standard I compared her by was the wild girl in the hospital, for upon the doctor's theory of Harvey's testimony, that wild girl's profile had reminded him forcibly of this English housemaid. There was a crude sort of resemblance between the two faces—the heavy brows and lashes, the black hair and general contour of the features. Indeed, the thing that occurred to me as I stood there was the ridiculous futility of written descriptions of faces, when the same description would include two people whose general air and appearance were so diametrically different.

I found it impossible to describe the wildness and curious unearthly distinction of that other face; I found it as difficult to analyze the tameness, the commonplace banality of this one. And yet, seen in silhouette, they might look a good deal alike.

THE MIRROR

A Little Bit Humorous

Father wanted to use the ink, but its condition clearly indicated that six-year-old Jane had had the same idea.

"What have you been doing to the ink?" he asked. "I put some water in it to make it weak," replied Jane. "But what for?" "Cos I'm sending a letter to mother and wanted to whisper a secret."

Forgot to Count

They were quarrelling, and the wife said to her husband: "You were bright and sweet enough in summer at the seaside, you old bear! I'd just like to know how many girls you made love to at the hotel before you met me." "Twelve," the man groaned, "but I didn't remember to count them until it was too late!"

A Strange Mistake

"How can you spend your time doing nothing?" "Doing nothing? Do you realize that the work performed by the mere vital processes of the human body every 24 hours amounts to lifting 3,400 tons? Doing nothing, indeed!"

Did It Himself

The other day a dainty young woman walked into the People's Trust and Savings bank at Chillicothe, relates the Constitution. She stepped up to the teller's window and presented her bank book, money and deposit slip. The cashier looked at the slip, and said, "You didn't foot it up." "Oh, no," replied the sweet young thing. "I rode up in daddy's car." And the cashier proceeded to do the adding-machine stunt without another word.—Kansas City Times.
