Davis Acquitted

The Stone-Davis murder case, which has occupied the attention of the District Court for the past week, terminated Wednesday night by the jury returning a verdict of not guilty, after being out but fifteen minutes.

The trial began last Friday, since which time, Carrizozo was full of interested parties on both sides, many of whom were witnesses for both the defense and prosecution. The jury had been under the care of bailiffs for a period of four days and five nights and plainly showed signs of fatigue.

Thus ends a case which has been on the docket for the past six years, in which attorneys have battled and at the last trial, the defendant was convicted of murder in the second degree, but was granted a new trial. Attorneys Hamilton and Gilbert conducted the case for the defense.

Ft. Stanton News

The Stanton team came out on top last Saturday and Sunday, winning two ball games from the fast 82nd Field Artillery team from Fort Bliss. The first game was won by the local team by a score of 2 to 1. Beles, for the visitors, should have won his game, as he allowed the local boys only one hit, but errors lost him the game. Flores had 2 put outs and 7 assists to his credit also.

The second game on Sunday went to the home team by the score of 8 to 7. The visitors put 8 runs across in the first inning, followed by 4 by Stanton. The home team made 2 more in the second and one in the third. The soldiers kept plugging along and finally tied the score in the 9th, and remained a deadlock until the 11th, when Manager Nesbit hit a single to right after two were out, scoring Parker from second base with the winning run.

The team will leave Friday afternoon for Fort Bliss for a two-game series, Saturday with the 82nd Field Artillery and Sunday with the Beaumont Hospital medicals.

Don't forget the big Fourth of July celebration at Fort Stanton this year: $100 fireworks, big dance, ball game with the crack 82nd Field Artillery team of Fort Bliss, free barbecue, rodeo, including riding wild horses, horse racing, goat roping, calf roping, wild cow milking, athletic events for all. Every effort is being put forth by the committee to make this the best 4th of July affair for all. Come early and enjoy the day here.

The Misses Shoff, Gunn and Rowen motored to Carlsbad Wednesday to make a trip through the National caves at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Boyd will accompany the ball team to El Paso this week-end.

Dr. Nesbit returned last Saturday after spending two weeks at Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Chas. Fritz of San Patricio was at the Post on business Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Howson spent last Sunday on the Ruidoso.

Dr. and Mrs. Reid left Sunday for a week's fishing trip at the Elephant Butte Dam.

The relatives of Mr. Arthur Globe wish to thank friends at Fort Stanton, Capitan and Lincoln for the many acts of kindness and Christian fellowship shown him during his illness and death at Fort Stanton.

A Day in June

Roberts—McMillan

On Thursday, June 14, Albert Roberts and Miss Euda McMillan sprung a complete surprise on their friends by journeying to El Paso and taking the marriage vows. The word leaked out the latter part of last week, but was regarded as a joke, but further information established it as a fact.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McMillan. She was born and reared here, and attended our schools, and her friends will extend their congratulations on their return from El Paso, where they will spend the remainder of the month.

The groom is youngest son of Mrs. Anna Roberts. He is a caller at the local station, where he enjoys the friendship of his associates, and the confidence of the railroad company. After a stay of the balance of June at the Pass City, they will return to Carrizozo and make this place their future home. The best wishes of this community are extended.

Marshal Lutz Nabs Tire Thieves

Wednesday night at about the midnight hour, Marshal Henry Lutz noticed three men in the act of dismantling a car next to the City Garage and upon investigation, found them in the act of taking tires and other parts from cars and loading them into their own car, preparatory to get them out of town.

At the sight of the officer, the men disappeared, but after securing the help of deputy sheriff Pete Johnson, he located one of the three men at the Star Cafe and landed him in jail.

Learning that the other two had left for Capitan, the sheriff followed, located one of them, brought him back and landed him alongside his partner, in jail.

The remaining man will be arrested soon, according to the sheriff. The amount of the stolen auto parts, which were recovered, consisted of two tires, a cylinder head from a Buick, several lenses, light globules, etc., the stolen goods amounting to near the $50 mark, which makes the offense one of grand larceny.

On trip to Illinois

Mrs. C. N. Lemmon, son Don and niece, Betty B. White left last Sunday for different points in Illinois, where they will visit relatives and friends for the remainder of the month.

Let's Play Ball Sunday!

Accidently Shot

Last Sunday afternoon, Mrs. S. Cook and son Everett Myers, both of whom are employed at Mayer's store, took a trip above town, and, as is customary with our people, he took along a .33 calibre rifle to get an occasional shot at a rabbit.

On their return, they stopped at the B & B Service Station to replenish their gas tank. After cranking the car, Everett stepped into his seat, and as he did so, reached his left hand over the windshield, his hand touched the rifle, which fell over and striking the emergency brake, knocked it out of safety, and it was discharged.

The ball passed through the fleshy part of his left arm, and running along the muscle, came out of the shoulder blade, and buried itself in the ceiling of the service station.

Mike Barnett of the service station phoned Dr. Shaver, who answered the call and attended to the wound, saving the young man much loss of blood, and relieved him of an amount of suffering.

At present, the young man is resting as easily as could be expected, and is to be congratulated on his narrow escape from death.

Truth About the Sowder - Fuller Ranch Deal

As the word went out last week, some people were of the impression that in the Sowder-Fuller ranch deal, the same was made as an even trade, when such was not the fact. The deal was made in the following manner, according to Mr. Sowder, who was interviewed this week in regard to the trade.

In the deal, Mr. Fuller acquires the North half of the Picacho ranch, which includes the headquarters; Mr. Slaughter of Roswell gets what is known as the Rock House place; McKnight & Pruitt of Roswell gets the Lake Camp ranch which adjoins the Mescalero Indian Reservation.

Mr. Sowder acquires the Fuller ranch at Carrizozo, and the conditions of the deal included $100,000.00; Mr. Sowder, instead of selling his cattle, the same not being included in the deal, will move them from the Picacho ranch to the Fuller ranch here.

Call to Ball Players

Everybody interested in baseball will please be at the ball park Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Ball players, especially, are urged to be present for a practice game, as Duran is anxious to come down Sunday, July 1, to clean us up, but we'll see that they don't. Be there, You, and be ready to play ball!

Speaking of Sidewalks

Allow us to again arise to speak of the new cement sidewalks being put in over town.

The Town Trustees started the ball a-rolling by putting in walks over on the town lots adjoining the Community Hall, which was followed by walks entirely around the building.

This was followed by a sidewalk from Ziegler Bros. store, to a distance of a half-block west, to the opposite side of the Community Hall.

Next in line, is the walk at the old Donaldson residence, now owned by Vincent Reil of the City Garage, where sand has been hauled and arrangements made for putting in a sidewalk around that place, which will connect it with those of F. A. English and Town Trustee S. F. Miller. — We thank you.

Marshall Atkinson Loses His Buck Wool, in Fire

At the beginning of the wool clipping, Marshall Atkinson, who has his large sheep ranch above Corona, quartered his bucks, as is the usual custom of our sheepmen, so that the buck wool can be kept separated from the general clip. After the clip, he released the bucks and stored the wool in careful manner. On the day of the fire, he sent all of his force to dinner, going himself, leaving only a boy to guard the place.

While at dinner, he noticed smoke arising from the direction in which the shed was located and hurrying there, found the place in flames. The fire had gained so rapidly in this short time that it was beyond control. The entire clip of buck wool was destroyed and with it went one of his fine porkers which was left in the place. The loss, Mr. Atkinson stated to us, was about $1500. How the fire started is still a mystery.

From the I. O. O. F. Mountain Home

Messrs. H. A. Borcharding, E. J. Heidrick and Elmer Lund were here Tuesday from Camp Lee Robinson, more commonly known as the I. O. O. F. Mountain Home in the White mountains, near Ruidoso. Mr. Borcharding is manager of the Home, where OddFellows, Rebekahs and their families go in the summer time to escape the heat of the towns and cities. They visited the local lodge of OddFellows which held its weekly session Tuesday night and were high in their praise of the new summer home, which is well equipped for services and the new road which will soon pass the Lodge will offer much better advantage for those who make this resort a pleasant retreat for the summer months. They left for the mountains Wednesday morning.

Community House to be Constructed

The Chaplain of Fort Stanton has been authorized by the Chaplains' Advisory Committee, the Bishop of New Mexico, the Seamen's Church Institute of America, and Government officials, to announce the building of a Community House at the Post for the use of the Patients and visitors.

The building will be known as the Seamen's Church Institute Community House. The site has been designated by Government officials, and the Chaplain will proceed immediately with construction.

The plans and blue prints with specifications have been received and accepted by the Chaplains' Advisory Committee.

The building will be built of adobe, pebble dashed and plastered with native rock. It will be 50 feet long by 25 feet wide, with a large club room in front, 30 by 23 feet, with a large open fire-place.

There are to be two bed rooms with connecting bath, a kitchen, dining room, hall, and the Chaplain's office and study. The suite will be available to the parents and friends of the Patients who visit the Post, and the House will be used for the general good of the Institution. There has been a long-felt need of such a building in Fort Stanton.

In an interview with the editor of The Carrizozo Outlook, the Chaplain said: "The Chapel of Our Redeemer, the Community House and the Chaplain are here to serve the Seamen, irrespective of Nationality, Denomination, or Creed, and I am happy to announce the immediate construction of the Institute for a more efficient service to Seamen." — Rev. Swift is Chaplain of the Seamen's Church Institute of America, 25 South street, New York City, N. Y.

Practical Four-Piece Ensemble

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

ANOTHER member in the ensemble family is announced. With the addition to the sleeveless short jacket here in the way the count stands—blouse, skirt (sometimes the two merge into a one-piece dress), long topcoat, and the aforesaid jacket. The practicality of such a "four-piece" need not be stressed. It speaks for itself.

As chic as they are utilitarian, are these four-piece ensembles. Among women who know a good thing when they see it, the idea is meeting with almost enthusiasm.

Much of the real service and enjoyment afforded by the four-piece costume depends upon a happy selection of the material from which it is to be made. Silk suits are the "just word" for summer town and country club wear. So why not choose silk? The ideal is a silk which washes, and which tailors perfectly. If it has every appearance of an exquisitely fine silencing, so much the better. It is of just such a silk fabric that the fetching four-piece in this picture is made. There is a bit of wool in its weave—just enough to give it a handsome appearance and to entitle it to the suggestive name of antelope silk.

Of course, the usual thing would be to say that the street ensemble pictured is in beige or in gray. On the contrary the silk, which has the appearance of fine kasha and which tints so perfectly in a lovely "dusty" pastel pink, one of the favorite shades this season. It is too fetching for words, thoroughly conservative and in every way in good taste for street wear. It might just as well have been in the very new aquamarine blue, or a soft grayish green, for fashion is in doring just such shades for these who wish something other than neutral gray, or beige. Perhaps the smartest of all shades for the summer silk tailleur is white when is not really white, but a shade once removed. Fashion refers to these esthetic tones as—jade white, grego, and the oatmeal color may possibly be here included. The skill of an expert couturier. The encouraging part about the ensemble in the picture is that it is not a formal made affair which requires pattern used for this ensemble is such as one can secure at any pattern department, and it is extremely simple to follow.

Note that the frock has a diagonal stitching and fashioning. Also a belt of self-fabric. As to the coat, it has the inevitable scarf collar.

Pongee is another silk favored for the making of the tailored washable ensemble. Since printed pongee is available it is effective, made-up with plain. Another clever effect is to trim with groups of machine stitching done in multicolor threads.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

Never use a hot iron or hot water on silk stockings.

When cooking a cracked egg add a teaspoonful of salt to the water.

A hint for stout persons: Wear clothes made of plain material with a dull finish.

To clean soiled ribbon, stretch them on a flat surface and scrub them with gasoline or soap suds.

Two essentials in preparing tough meat are plenty of moisture and prolonged cooking at a gentle heat.

TO MAKE CHOCOLATE ICE-BOX CAKE

Making Sponge Cake to Be Used for the Ice-Box Cake.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Chocolate ice-box cake is made of sponge cake with a chocolate custard mixture spread between the layers. It is put in the refrigerator overnight to give the flavors time to blend and intensify, and may then be served with whipped cream or icing as a dessert. To make the sponge cake, which is the basis of ice-box cake, the bureau of home economics gives the following ingredients and directions: Sponge Cake.

- 4 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup sifted soft-wheat flour
- 3 tbs. cold water
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 1/2 tsp. lemon juice

Separate the egg yolks from the whites and beat the yolks well. Gradually beat in the sugar, using a dower egg beater. Add the water and continue the beating until the mixture is very thick and light. Sift the dry ingredients and then fold them into the egg and sugar mixture. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and add the flavoring. Grease a tube pan slightly, pour in the cake batter, and bake from 45 to 50 minutes in a moderate oven at a temperature of 325 degrees Fahrenheit.

When the cake is cool, split into three sections, beginning at the top. Place the bottom section of the cake in the tube pan, and pour over it half of the chocolate custard mixture made by the recipe below. Then put the next section in place and pour in the remainder of the chocolate. Cover with the top layer. Set the cake in the ice box overnight, or for several hours. When ready to serve turn onto a platter and sprinkle with powdered sugar, or fill the center with whipped cream, or cover with chocolate icing.

Chocolate Custard Mixture.

- 1 pint milk
- 1/2 cup unsweetened chocolate (34 pound)
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 4 eggs
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla

Melt the chocolate in the double boiler. Add the sugar, salt, and milk. Mix well. Separate the eggs. When the milk is hot, pour the mixture into the lightly beaten yolks. Cool until thickened, stirring constantly. Add the butter, beat until well mixed, and fold this custard mixture into the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Stir in the vanilla. Chill before pouring over the sponge cake.

FRUIT FOR SHORTCAKE

When strawberries are over, other fruits may be used for shortcakes, throughout the season. In fact, in winter time when less fresh fruit is obtainable very good shortcakes can be made of prunes, dates, figs, raisins, dried peaches or apricots.

Recipes That Will Be Liked

By Nellie Maxwell

Could we judge all deeds by motives. See the good and bad within; Often we would love the sinner. All the while we loathed the sin. Could we know the power working To overthrow the integrity? We should judge each other's Errors with more patient charity.—Apoa.

We all like variety in our food and when it comes in some unexpected form it is especially enjoyed. Core red apples unpeeled and stuff the center with small pork sausages, then bake. They are not only appetizing but good to look at.

Russian Apples. Pare large, tart apples, leaving a narrow strip around the middle. Place each apple on a round of buttered bread. Fill to overflowing with mince-meat and bake a half hour in a hot oven, basting several times while baking. Serve hot with cream and cheese.

Savory Chicken Ragout. Cook together five minutes five tomatoes peeled and chopped, one green pepper and one onion, both chopped; one quarter cupful of seedless raisins and the juice of an orange. Cut up a fowl, roll in seasoned flour and brown in fat. Place the browned fowl in a casserole, add the tomato and other vegetables with a cupful of boiling water. Bake, adding more seasonings of salt and pepper and cook covered three hours. Serve on a hot platter with molded rice.

Mutton With Apples. Take a two-pound neckpiece of mutton, cut into serving sized pieces and remove the fat; roll in seasoned flour and fry until brown in butter or good drippings. Lay the browned meat in a casserole, add salt and pepper if needed, two small onions finely minced and cover with four apples sliced. Cover and bake for two and one-half hours in a moderate oven. Spread with currant jelly just before serving.

Have Some Vegetables. Children learn to dislike all foods that are recommended as "so good for you." Spinach has had this to fight for years. Perhaps it would be better to serve these good vegetables with no remarks as to their fine mineral content, tonic properties and vitamins wealth and just try to make them so appealing to the appetite that no one wants to refuse them. One popular early vegetable is asparagus and there is little probability of its being spoiled in the cooking. Simply steamed until tender, then served with butter it is delicious, or cut into inch lengths and cooked in very little water, cream added and a bit of butter. Served on toast with a cream sauce slightly thickened is another most appetizing method of serving it. The following is a bit different: Asparagus Shortcake.—Make a rich biscuit mixture and bake in two layers, one on top of the other, with the lower layer spread generously with butter. Wash and cut a bunch of asparagus into inch lengths and steam until tender. Season generously with butter, salt and pepper and add a pint of medium white sauce with two finely chopped hard-cooked eggs added. Fill and top the shortcake with this mixture and surround with parsley.

Savory Buttered Beets.—Wash a dozen young beets, cover with boiling water and cook for one hour or till tender. Slip off the skins in cold water and cut into thin slices. Heat three tablespoonsful of butter in a frying pan, add the beets, one teaspoonful of salt, lemon juice and sugar, prepared mustard and two tablespoonsful of vinegar. Serve hot.

Macedoine of Vegetables.—Prepare in a casserole and serve as a main dish. Take two large onions, two turnips (new ones), two potatoes, one cupful of corn, one green pepper and four ripe tomatoes. Chop the onions, shred the pepper and saute both in four tablespoonsful of butter; then arrange these in a dish in alternate layers, placing the tomatoes cut into small pieces, with the corn, between the layers. Season with one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar and pepper to taste. Add one-half cupful of boiling water and dot over with a tablespoonful of butter. Cook in a moderate oven for two hours. Thicken the gravy with flour blended with butter. Serve hot from the casserole. (©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

PRINT DRESS BEST FOR MORNING WEAR

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In every wardrobe there should be several easily laundered dresses for summer morning wear. These can be made at home at small cost from charming cotton printed fabrics, and if the colors chosen and the designs matter how high the thermometer climbs.

The illustration, taken by the bureau of home economics, shows a model made of printed cephyr with a full-gathered skirt, attached to a plain, basque-like waist, with short sleeves. Collars, cuffs and pocket tops are made of two shades of organdies matching two colors in the print, and bound with blue white lawn binding. Such a dress presents few difficulties of construction to the home sewer, and is easily washed and ironed.

VANILLA WAFERS SERVED WITH SUMMER DRINKS

To serve with iced tea, grape juice, orangeade, or any other cooling drink on the porch this summer, you will want some easily made cookies or small cakes. Nothing could be nicer for this purpose than vanilla wafers, which are made more easily than ordinary cookies because they do not have to be rolled and cut out. They are also excellent for serving with afternoon tea, or with ice cream or punch at parties. The following recipe from the bureau of home economics has been carefully tested:

- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 3 tbs. milk
- 1 egg

Cream the butter and sugar, add the well-beaten egg, the milk, and the sifted dry ingredients, then the vanilla. Drop by half-teaspoonfuls on a lightly greased baking sheet, allowing room to spread. Bake in a moderate oven (about 350 degrees Fahrenheit) for eight to ten minutes or until the edges are golden brown.

Gelatin Desserts

When making gelatin desserts, remember that the fruit juices may be added while the jelly is still in liquid form, but the fruit itself should not be put in until the mixture has solidified enough to hold the fruit and not allow it to settle.

Kiddies Evening Fairy Tale

By Mary Graham Bonner

It was the last day of school. The teacher was explaining the lesson, when all of a sudden what should stand before the schoolroom door but a big black bear.

He wasn't really so very huge. But how big he seemed in the schoolroom and how big he seemed to all of them.

"Oh, oh, hurry, scurry, run, run," they all cried.

They ran down to a big barn that was along the road, leaving the bear in the schoolroom.

"Well, well, well," he growled softly to himself. "I will have a fine tale to tell the other animals when I get home again.

"I will have had an adventure. But how queerly those children did act. They ran for all they were worth."

"I really don't understand it at all. Children come to the circus and gaze and gaze at us, and tell their mothers and their daddies how nice they think we are.

"But how they did run! And I came to pay them a nice call.

"Selfish, what is it if I smell?" continued the bear.

And then he jumped around for joy. "Goodness! Food! Wonderful, wonderful food! How kind of the dear little children.

the other animals! What a story! "Delicious, delicious," the bear kept repeating.

"This little morsel is good, too. Ah, the very kind of sandwich I like—and this one, too—my favorite!

"Ah, I have had a fine meal, a luxurious meal, fit for a king—no, fit for a bear!

"Yes, fit for a bear!"

And the bear rubbed his front paw over his well-filled tummy and again

growled, delightedly to himself some more, saying over and over again: "Delicious, such a meal!"

And as the day was rather mild and as the bear didn't mind the cloudy weather he went outside of the school and chose as his bed for a second nap the flowerbed in front of the school, which was filled with little tulips and daffodils and jonquils.

"A bed of flowers in truth," said the bear.

But along came the keeper of the animals of the circus, and led the bear back to his cage.

For a circus was traveling through the country and when they had stopped for a rest this bear had escaped.

But what a tale he had to tell when he was back in the circus again.

And though the children missed their lunches they felt happily relieved, too!

Testing Block Tin

It would be necessary to have a chemical analysis made to tell whether block tin is pure. A block-tin pipe will have the characteristic white color of tin on a filed surface. It will be soft and easily bent, and it will "crackle" on rapid bending. This "tin cry" is due to the motion of the large tin crystals. The melting point of pure tin is about 232 degrees centigrade, and this gives another method of checking the purity.

Choice Is Ours

One thing for ever remains our own, the right of choice, and no one can take that from us. We may not be able to change circumstances or to select our environment, but always it is ours to decide what we will do with them, whether we shall control them or allow them to control us.

Telephone Directory vs. Encyclopedia

By RING LARDNER

To the Editor: They seem to be a few people in the United States that still think we wasn't justified or something in declaring war on Germany, but I guess these birds would feel different if they stopped to think that it was a German that invented the telephone and if Louvain and the sinking of the Lusitana was a crime, what about the invention of the telephone which comes from the 2 Greek words tele, meaning far off, and phone, meaning sound and maybe it is on account of me living in Great Neck which isn't far from the Sound why maybe that is why the telephone service isn't so well you know.

When a man stops to think that the telephones are invented by a German, why you can't help but believe the rest about them for inst. inventing tear-gas and etc. but not only that but it also shows how vs. democracy they was when they invented something that nobody but only the leisure class can use because for inst. I and you could not never afford it even if we only figured our time on 10c per hr. which nobody gets as little as that now days only the president of Harvard college or a soldier or something. For inst. if I am out here in Great Neck and want to talk to somebody in N. Y. City why it wouldn't only cost me about $2.00 to go down there and see them why if I telephoned it would be 30c for the call and 2 days to put it through and if I worked on a 8 hr. basis on 10c per hr. why that would be a total of $1.50 for the 2 days that it took for them to put the telephone call through where I could go down and see them, and get back in 3 hrs. or some such figure.

But in the case of the leisure class, it's different as the only real work they half to do the whole yr. around is make out their income tax blanks which only takes 3 months to figure out how they can beat the gov't. and if it was not for the telephone they wouldn't know what to do the rest of their time where as now when they get tired of poker and bridge and etc. and have got a few days left on their hands why all as they half to do to kill a couple of days is try and get somebody on the telephone.

But I don't want my genial readers to think this crabby article means that I don't hold no brief for the telephone company. On the other hand, if it was not for a German inventing the telephone why they wouldn't of been no American inventing the telephone directory which is the greatest institution we got left here from a amusement pt. of view.

The telephone directory has never been given the credit it deserves and personally I have got I regret in life which is that I didn't keep all the telephone directories which was ever gave to me as it would save me from buying a cyclopedia which costs $29 a case which opposed to a telephone directory that don't cost nothing if you ever get it and has got 8 or 9 times as many names in it and besides that the names in the cyclopedia is 90% dead compared to the names in the telephone directory which is only 50% dead when you try and call them up.

I also wished I could bring 4th a modern vol. to prove my assertions, but unfortunately the only telephone books I got in the house is the latest one from Great Neck where you already know the number of the grocery store and the butcher shop and the taxi cab Co. and Mr. Quan who loans you money and also the N. Y. City telephone directory of May 2, 1917, and I suppose if I live here a couple more years they will give me a October book of 1917 and keep me up to date.

So I will half to prove my point if any by quoting from the N. Y. City telephone directory of May 2, 1917, as follows as they say:

In the first place it says that useful information can be found on Page 17. So you turn to Page 17 and the first thing that strikes you in the eye is a ad that says we sell artificial limbs that fit. Well, suppose that some morning you was to wake up and have a craving for a artificial limb that fit you and you didn't know how to go about it to get one and they was not no telephone directory in the home why here would you be at? You would half to call up and ask for information which is another word for practical joke and they would finally give you a firm that sold artificial limbs that didn't come near fitting and you would buy I and half to walk down the st. all out of kilter and people would look at you and make you feel like a fool.

On Page 22 they give you information for telephone users which they don't claim is useful but it says you can call information free of charge and also the Co. wants criticism but it should always be made by telephone, why by the time you reach the party it would be 3 or 4 yrs. later and the management would of changed.

All told, it looks to me like the telephone which was made in Germany was enough excuse for us fighting them where as the telephone directory which was made in America is a work that ought to go down in history like "Huckleberry Finn" or "Casey Jones" or something.

E. B. The book also says that they have got rest rooms for operators, but don't say nothing about rest rooms for birds that call up.

Tout Elder as Olympic Hope

IF NOTRE DAME ever had an Olympic candidate, he is Jack Elder, the flying Fenian on track as well as on the gridiron.

Jack Elder.

During the indoor season Jack equaled the world mark for the sixty-yard dash for the first time this season against Northwestern to tie the world indoor record .062.

time of .074 for the seventy-five-yard length established by H. A. Russell of Cornell in 1920, who ran the distance in equal time indoors and outdoors.

Burden of Unemployment to Be Relieved by Decrease of Population

By DEAN INGE, St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

HOUSES in 1950 will be childless and servantless. The whole face of the country will be spotted with bungalow growths, within which childless couples will sleep, after racing about the roads in their little motor-cars.

The population will, I think, begin to decrease slowly about 1950. The increase at present is entirely due to the preponderance of young lives in the population, which keeps the crude death rate (about 12 per 1,000) very much below the real death rate (about 18 per 1,000).

Social equality will go further even than economic equality. Education is rapidly removing the dialectical differences which in England, perhaps more than in other countries, accentuate social barriers.

Best Work in Name of Christianity Is in Line of One's Daily Activity

By REV. C. R. BROWN, Dean Yale Divinity School.

Pious gestures of religion are easy enough, but it is much harder to perform the little tasks that come up every day. Pilgrimages, missions and such acts of devotion are all well and good, but the best work done in the name of Christianity is that which persons do in the line of their daily activity.

When Christ had cured the insane man, when, as the New Testament story goes, He had cast the devils out of the body of the man and transferred them to a herd of swine, the man asked Jesus to let him become a disciple and help Him in His work of spreading the Gospel.

The religious life of a college student is an example that I might cite. The student thinks of his daily grind of studying, writing papers and reading the books that are assigned as a thing entirely apart from his religion.

But such things are only incidental to religion. Religion does not dwell out in the suburbs and come into town only once or twice a week. It is something that should be inherent in one, inspiring all his actions.

American Man Has Become Mere Cog in Nation's Vast Industrial Machine

By W. J. TURNER, English Journalist.

It would be possible without very much distortion to depict America as offering something analogous to the harem system of Asia, but reversed; for in America it is the men who are in the harem.

The American man is kept for breeding and for making money; he has no real part in the social, intellectual and spiritual life of the country. All day long and often far into the night he sits at his desk or rushes through the streets like an automaton.

He is a smaller or a greater cog, or at best a dynamo, in the industrial machine and he is kept blindly in motion by the ceaseless pressure of the industrial system whose only goal is the filling of every square mile of the continent with farms, factories or skyscrapers.

And what then? What is to be done when, from New York to San Francisco, the entire country is nothing but wheat, bacon, textiles, machinery and skyscrapers? Nobody knows; nobody dares even to pause to put that question.

Religious Customs and Festivals Only a Mixture of Magic and Myth

By WILLIAM BROWN, Deposed Episcopal Bishop.

Jesus Christ as a divinity is wholly a myth. If He ever lived as a man, there are no historical facts of His life. The customs and festivals associated with religion are nothing but a mixture of magic and myth.

The only difference between the pagan magician and the modern priest is that the magician was attempting to work miracles in the real world to save humanity from actual dangers while the priest is trying to save mythical immortal souls in a mythical life after death from a mythical hell.

Science is the real Christ that will redeem the world from slavery. The progress of humanity has been gained through slavery, oppression and war. Science brings to mankind a new mastery of the world that renders such methods of progress obsolete.

Discoveries of Modern Science Reveal Abiding Spiritual Message of Bible

By CHAPLAIN KNOX, Columbia University.

There are those who are deeply concerned today about the Bible. They fear that its authority and influence have been lessened by the discoveries of modern science. They fear that modern Biblical study disturbs faith.

But the Bible has not been taken away. All that has been removed is a limited and hampering conception of it which concealed its full truth, and we are enabled now to see its greater and abiding spiritual message.

Read the story of creation in Genesis as a literal statement of scientific fact, and one is left in perplexity. Read it for the spiritual teaching for which it was written, and the story will have a permanent value.

Chance Brought Wild

Rice to United States

Rice came to America by accident. In the year 1694 a rice-laden vessel from Madagascar bound for Liverpool put in to Charleston harbor in a raging storm.

The governor planted the rice and several months later harvested the first crop ever grown in America. Since that time rice has steadily advanced until now it is a leading product of the southern states.

The Best Coeducator. "Yes, I'm an anti."

"We antis are coming back into our own," he continued. "The decline of Bolshevism, the rise of Fascism—these are signs that we are on our way. We haven't arrived yet, of course."

"I'm anticoducation, and the other day a lady took me to task about it. She said: 'Sir Thomas, you ought to be ashamed to say that sex won't let male and female students work together. Anticoeducation indeed!'"

"Oh, well," said I, "I'm no anti when it comes to the greatest coeducational institution in the world." "Yes," said she. "And what coeducational institution is that?" "Marriage, ma'am," I answered.

Memorial of Schiller

A hitherto unknown letter of Friedrich von Schiller was found, at the town of Asch, Czechoslovakia, by the college professor, L. Hueller. The letter, not dated, is addressed to Amalie von Imhoff, a niece of Frau von Stein, whose epic poem, "The Sisters of Lesbos," was included in Schiller's Almanac of the Muses in 1800.

Sees Age of Airplanes. C. C. Calhoun, Washington lawyer, has ordered an airplane landing roof and pilot house on top of his new house in Chevy Chase. He is, he said, anticipating the day when airplanes will be almost as common as automobiles, and that day is close at hand, he predicted.

Coincidence in Names

Mrs. Elizabeth Minot went to Augusta, Maine, to make her home in Spring street, going a distance of 300 miles. When she arrived she found that her neighbor was Miss Elizabeth Minot. The women are not related and until Mrs. Minot arrived in Augusta, neither knew the other existed.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Jersey City has released Outfielder Fleming to Baltimore.

Beaumont has sent Pitcher Tisin to Fort Smith of the Western association.

The St. Louis Browns announced the acquisition of Frank E. Wilson from Cleveland.

Paddy Bruman, veteran infielder of many leagues, was given his release by the Dallas Steers.

Palestine has taken on Pitcher Jake Knott, recently released by Dallas. He formerly pitched for Corsicana.

Frank Crosotti, just seventeen years old, is hailed as the boy wonder third baseman of the Pacific Coast league.

Tommy Connolly, infielder released by Chattanooga, has been picked up by Atlanta and placed in the outfield.

Infielder Art Ewaldt and Outfielder Harry O'Brien, both veterans, have been released by the Des Moines Demons.

"To think," thought the fan as he studied the standings, "that I stood in line nine hours to get a ticket for the opener."

Frank Welch, former Boston outfielder, sent to Hollywood and released by the Stars, has been added to the Seal roster.

All things are relative. The small town fan worries just as much about the fate of the town team as the fans do in the big league cities.

The Dallas Steers are still at it, trying to strengthen. They recently purchased Pitcher Homer Blankenship from the Shreveport Sports.

Pitcher Joe Marty has been taken on by Albany under option from the New York Yankees. New York got him from Lincoln last season.

Outfielder Lefty Swanson, cut from the Fort Worth roster because of the player limit regulations, has been signed by the Beaumont Exporters.

To make room for First Baseman Jimmy Hudgens, purchased from Seattle, Memphis sold Pitcher Leo Dickerman to Shreveport of the Texas league.

Baby Doll Jacobson, the veteran outfielder who was taken on by Jack Dunn at Baltimore, has been released. He failed to strike anything of a stride with the Birds.

Pitcher Sia Hopkins of Texarkana appears to be due for work in faster company, according to all reports which are being borne out by his pitching this season.

With his inned badly crippled, Manager Jack Zellvert of Milwaukee sent out a hurry call for Ollie O'Mara, veteran infielder who was with the Brewers this spring, but was released.

The Pittsburgh club announces that it has returned Pitcher George Peary to Wichita of the Western league. The player was obtained from Wichita last fall. Pittsburgh retains the right to recall him.

Ike Davis, released by Portland, still claims his trick knee is all right and that he will prove it yet before the season is over. He could not get going with the Beavers, however, either in the field or at bat.

Hank Gowdy, now a member of the Montreal team of the International League, is one of two Boston Braves of 1914 who are in active service. The other is Rabbit Maranville, reserve infielder of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Publicity of Figures in Player Sale Is Harmful

Robert Quinn, president of the Boston Red Sox, is taking the lead in suppressing overemphasis on player values. He steadfastly refuses to name the terms, whenever such terms are cash, whereby he acquires or sells a player. With Quinn it has become a matter of policy.

When Quinn announced the purchase of Ken Williams from the St. Louis Browns, he was besought on all sides for the details. These he gave freely until pressed for the amount of cash involved. There he balked.

"I never tell how much a player costs me," he explained. "It doesn't do the club any good and it certainly doesn't do the player any good."

Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn club, happened to come along just as Quinn made his observation and agreed.

"Me, too," he said. "That ought to be written into the rules of the major leagues. A lot of harm has been done by releasing those outlandish figures, which, even if they were true, were all out of proportion and placed false value on players."

It is the shortest cut, in opinion of many experienced baseball men, to the end of the mad "money moon" that is generally supposed to have undermined the caliber of playing material.

John McGraw Was First Holdout Known to Game

John J. McGraw has confessed he was the first "holdout" known to baseball. There has been many a one since and McGraw has had to battle with several famous members of the Giants, but this first exploit of his gave the biggest monetary return, comparatively speaking, than any of the later and more advertised cases.

"I pitched a game for East Homer one Sunday, back in 1880," said McGraw. "I walked from Olean to East Homer and back, and they gave me $2 for winning a good game of ball. I wish some of my pitchers today would put as much into a game as I put into that one. And I walked back and forth—didn't get home till after dark."

"The next week they came after me again. But I held out. I sold my price was no $2 bill, but $5 and a carriage ride from Olean to West Homes and return. And I got it. And we won again."

Farm Revolt a Put up Job, says Tondre

City Slickers Among the Marchers; Friction Stories Exaggerated, He Says

The "Farmers" demonstration at the Kansas City Republican national convention consisted chiefly of city guys, in the opinion of U. S. Marshal Joseph Tondre, who returned from the convention recently, being one of the first Santa Feans to get home.

"The convention was very harmonious," he said. "The stories of friction appearing in some newspapers were overplayed, in my opinion."

"There was nothing to the farmers' parade. In the first place there were not more than 500 in the line and most of the marchers were men who had nothing to do but loaf about the pool-halls in Kansas City."

"There were not more than two dozen farmers, men with tanned faces and calloused hands in the crowd and most of them were wearing shoes that wouldn't last half an hour down on the farm. I am inclined to believe, the demonstration was simply put over by somebody's money."

The enthusiasm for Hoover was tremendous, he said, especially on the night when he was nominated.

People jammed the streets two blocks from the convention hall; they were informed of what was going on by loud-speakers on the roof of the hall, and at the street corners.

Mr. Tondre was assistant sergeant at arms at the convention. —Santa Fe New Mexican.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(By Rev. P. H. Fitzwater, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Lesson for June 24 REVIEW—JESUS THE SAVIOR

GOLDEN TEXT—Choose you this day whom ye will serve.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches How to Listen.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Listen. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus our Lord and Savior.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Son of God With Power.

For senior and adult classes a good method of review will be to study the principal facts and give the leading teaching of each lesson.

Lesson for April 1. Before going to the cross Jesus endeavored to make clear to the disciples the reality of His divine personality and the meaning of His suffering and resurrection.

Lesson for April 2. The resurrection of Jesus Christ was attested by an angel and He was afterwards seen by many witnesses.

Lesson for April 3. In order to revive the drooping spirits of the disciples, Jesus was transfigured before them.

Lesson for April 4. Jesus as a son was faithful to His parents. He had a high regard for the true home.

Lesson for April 5. Jesus' answer to the question of the rich young ruler concerning what he should do in order to inherit eternal life shows that the one thing absolutely necessary is supreme love to God and that we should be willing to part with everything for His sake.

Lesson for April 6. While Jesus was resting in the shadow of the cross, the disciples were disputing as to who should be greatest.

Lesson for April 7. Jesus entered Jerusalem and officially presented Himself to the Jewish nation according to prophecy.

Lesson for April 8. Under the parable of the husbandmen who betrayed their trust, Jesus shows the Jews to be guilty of persecuting the prophets and of murdering the Son of God.

Lesson for April 9. Jesus is coming in glory and will enter into judgment with those who have been unfaithful.

Lesson for April 10. Because Jesus took the place of the sinner, He was despised and rejected of men.

Lesson for April 11. On the cross Jesus made the supreme sacrifice for the sins of the world.

Lesson for April 12. "Daniel purposed in his heart." That's the trouble with a great many people; they purpose to do right, but they only purpose in their heads, and that doesn't amount to much.

Lesson for April 13. "Arrows of the Holy Ghost." Deep convictions of sin will not spring from rational consideration.

Lesson for April 14. "The Way." If you ask the way to the crown—'tis by the cross; to the mountain—'tis by the valley; to exaltation—'tis by that humbleth himself.

One of the most remarkable features about the University of New Mexico is its rapid growth in the last two years, having jumped from 610 students for the academic year 1921-22 to 990 for the academic year 1922-23. This rapid increase is to a certain extent taken care of by the return to New Mexico of a number of students who were studying in other universities, 186 being added to the enrollment in this manner.

Four Aviators Make Flight Across Pacific Ocean in Three Big Hops.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CALIFORNIA to Australia by airplane in three hops! For the first time the Pacific ocean has been traversed by the air route, the great feat being accomplished by two Australians, Capt. Charles Kingsford Smith, war ace, and Charles T. P. Uim, and two Americans, Harry W. Lyon and James Warner. Their machine was the monoplane Southern Cross, once used unsuccessfully in the Arctic regions by Captain Wilkins.

In constant communication with the mainland and with vessels by radio, the aviators made the flight to Hawaii without much trouble. The worst part of the trip was the next hop, nearly 8,200 miles to the Fiji islands, and during this they ran into repeated storms that were most skillfully dodged by Kingsford-Smith, the chief pilot. This was the longest overseas flight ever made, and if they had been forced down before reaching Suva the only possible places to light without disaster were two coral atolls in the Phoenix group 1,500 miles from the starting point in Hawaii. As it was they landed safely at Albert park, Suva, with only 30 gallons of gas left in the tanks, having made the hop in 84 hours and 33 minutes. Whites and natives of Fiji joined in giving the flyers a rousing welcome. After a brief rest the plane was flown to Nasel beach for the take-off for Brisbane, Australia, 1,762 miles away, the route taking the aviators through a region of frequent storms, south of the Loyalty islands and New Caledonia. From Brisbane they were to fly to Sydney, 500 miles to the south.

Sydney newspapers printed the report that Captain Kingsford Smith was on the brink of insolvency and started a campaign to raise a fund for him. When the trans-Pacific flight originally was planned Kingsford-Smith sought the aid of the Australian government and it was promised. Advance payments purchased the plane and the flyer came to the United States. There followed the disasterous Dole flight from Oakland to Honolulu in which seven lives were lost. The Australian government withdrew its support and urged Kingsford-Smith to return home. He refused and continued plans for the California-Australia flight on limited resources and finally obtained backing from Allan Hancock, millionaire oil man of Los Angeles. But even with this backing the flyer faces financial ruin.

During the week there were reports, based on alleged radio messages, that Nobile and the dirigible Italia were on Franz Josef land east of Spitzbergen. Search for the missing explorers was continued by the steamship Hobby, by Lieutenant Holm, Norwegian aviator, and by parties of Alpine chamois. The Italian department of aeronautics was in communication with Captain Wilkins, hoping to induce him to join in the hunt by air.

SO FAR as the Republican national committee was concerned, Herbert Hoover was given nearly all the contested Southern delegates in the hearings conducted at Kansas City. The contests, however, it was stated would be carried before the committee on credentials and possibly before the convention. In the committee hearings the secretary of commerce won 65 out of 73 contested delegates, his most impressive victory being in the case of Texas in which he gained the entire delegation. By conservative estimates this brought the total number of Hoover votes to 472, the majority necessary to nomination being 543. The experts then figured that Mellon with his 79 Pennsylvania delegates could put Hoover across the line—if he chose to do so. The contest for the South Carolina delegation, which was for Lowden, was withdrawn by the Hoovers.

Among the politicians gathered in Kansas City many expressed the opinion that Senator James Watson of Indiana or Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas would make a good vice presidential nominee. Some Hooversites especially favored Watson for second place, figuring his nomination would "pull the stinger of the corn belt."

Former crusaders of the regions surrounding Kansas City were preparing to move on the convention city in considerable numbers, by automobile and train, and many of them were banded on which was printed this amended version of the Hoover slogan: "Who but Hoover? Anybody."

ACCORDING to the partial report of the senate campaign fund committee, total expenditures in behalf of the various Presidential candidates to date have been only $731,067. Of this sum the Hoover expenditures have been $380,822. Frank O. Lowden is credited with having spent $90,022.00. The committee found $570.50 has been collected and expended by the supporters of Vice President Dawes. The expenses of Governor Smith of New York, leading Democratic aspirant, were $121,471.04. Collections to the Smith fund amounted to $120,011.40. The Reed pre-convention campaign fund amounted to $41,430.04. His expenditures are listed at $38,752.70.

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING made a rush trip from Paris to Clerbourg and jumped aboard the Leviathan for the United States, and both in New York and in France the report was circulated that he was called home hurriedly by friends who were starting a boom for him as a dark horse candidate for the Republican nomination for President.

MARSHAL CHANG TSO-LIN, Northern war lord, gave up his dictatorship and abandoned Peking to the Nationalists. With his household he fled to Manchuria and just as his train reached Mukden it was bombed presumably by Nationalist agents. Some soldiers were killed and Chang himself was so badly injured that his recovery was considered doubtful.

The Nationalist troops gradually occupied Peking while forces left by Chang and those of the foreign legations strove to prevent disorder. General Hsi-shan, for years known as the model governor of Shansi province, was appointed garrison commander of the Peking-Tientsin area, and at once began the work of reconstruction and development. The Nationalist government asked the immediate evacuation of American troops from Tientsin, where the United States has maintained part of a regiment since the Boxer rebellion. In Washington it was stated that our government could not comply with the request at once.

PASSING upon two cases arising in the state of Washington, the Supreme Court of the United States has ruled that evidence of prohibition violations obtained by wire tapping is admissible in a criminal proceeding and that a conviction resulting from such evidence is not a violation of the constitutional guarantee against "unreasonable search and seizure." The question was decided by a five to four ruling. Chief Justice Taft wrote the majority opinion. Justices Holmes and Brandeis, in dissenting opinions, scathingly denounced the placing of judicial sanction upon the commission of a crime to detect crime. Justice Butler also filed a dissenting opinion and Justice Stone announced he concurred with the views of Justices Holmes and Brandeis and Butler.

In holding wire tapping did not amount to a search and seizure within the meaning of the fourth amendment to the Constitution, Chief Justice Taft said that while this amendment might have a proper application to a sealed letter because of the constitutional provision for the Post Office department and because such a letter is in the possession of the government it could not apply to communication by wire.

UNCLE SAM proposes to get a lot of money from Henry M. Blackmer, the wealthy Denver oil operator who fled to France to avoid the Teapot Dome inquiry. Income taxes, interest and penalties aggregating $6,400,000 have been assessed against him and tax liens filed in Denver and

New York federal court. Also writs of attachment against any property held by or for Blackmer were filed with 22 companies or individuals, including all financial institutions in which Blackmer is believed to have accounts. In New York city they were also served upon banks with which he did business.

Only a part of the tax, interest and penalties assessed against the oil man was understood to be for his alleged profits in the Continental Trading company, an adjunct of the Teapot Dome case.

LITHUANIA'S assertion, in her recently adopted new constitution, that Vilna is the capital of the country was denounced before the League of Nations council by Poland when the council opened its fifteenth session in Geneva. Foreign Minister Zaleski submitted a copy of his note of protest to Kovno in which he asserted this could only envenom the Polish-Lithuanian relations. Lithuania's claim, he said, had no juridical foundation as Poland's rights over Vilna were definitely established by the Vilna and Polish diets and by the ambassadors' conference in 1924. It was not believed this session of the council would do much business as both Briand of France and Stresemann of Germany were absent on account of illness.

VIENNA received reports, seemingly authentic, that Ahmed Bey Zogu, President of Albania, was getting ready to proclaim a monarchy with himself as the king. He had had a stormy career, fighting with the Democrats and Liberals and once being wounded by an assassin. In December, 1924, he led a successful revolt against Bishop Noll's rule and next month was appointed President by the national assembly. He is only thirty-four years old and besides being President has held the offices of premier and commander in chief of the national forces.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI took a good deal of wind out of the sails of his detractors by the restraint of his annual address before the Italian senate. His hearers were especially interested in what he might say about the threatening situation in the Balkans, but the Duce cut out all violent talk and made a plain offer of friendship to Yugo-Slavia. Then dismissing the idea of enmity, he declared Italy could not wait forever for Yugo-Slavia to settle its domestic problems, and warned that treaties would be no good anyway if a friendly, moral atmosphere between the two peoples was not developed. He ridiculed the prediction made by a former Yugo-Slav minister that war soon would break out between the two countries, ending with a peace signed at Venice. He had nothing to say concerning the disputes with Austria about Upper Adige, but announced that a treaty would soon be signed with France that would settle all outstanding differences between the French and Italians.

Mussolini spoke at some length about the astonishing growth of the United States in wealth and world power. He said he had no complaint to make against American immigration restrictions and the Italian quota, though deploring the reasons which prompted that legislation. "As for the naturalized Americans of Italian origin," he continued, "they are American citizens and therefore foreigners so far as we are concerned. We limit ourselves to hoping they will continue to be proud of their Italian origin."

ATLANTIC CITY having abandoned its annual beauty contest, the "International pageant of pulchritude" held in Galveston attracted the attention of those who enjoy such affairs. Selected beauties from many states and a number of foreign countries gathered in the Texas city, and paraded along the sea wall. Miss Ella Van Hoeson, the entrant from Chicago, was first chosen as "Miss America," and then, being adjudged the most piquet tude of the whole lot, was crowned "Miss Universe." She is twenty-two years old, tall and slender, with long dark brown hair. The other prize winners in their order were the girls from France, Italy, Colorado, West Virginia, Canada, Luxembourg, Ohio, San Antonio and Tulsa.

STORY FROM THE START

Anthony Trent returns to New York after nearly four years' absence. Once known as the master criminal, Trent is going straight. The purser accuses Trent of jumping overboard from the Politia at Liverpool, but is disappointed when Trent shows no surprise. He learns his friend, Capt. Frank Sutton, is in Sing Sing. At New York Trent is startled to find somebody occupying his house. The stranger is Sutton Campbell, the brother of his best friend, who is serving ten years in prison. Trent is asked by Campbell Sutton to force Payson Grant to a written confession, having crookedly obtained all of Captain Sutton's possessions and later married his wife. Trent, after long hesitation, consents. Trent starts on a campaign to accomplish the downfall of Grant. He learns from an old friend, Clarke, that Captain Sutton has escaped from Sing Sing, and also learns that Captain Sutton has no brother. Coming home one evening threatening to expose Campbell Sutton, Trent finds, to his great surprise, that Campbell is the escaped Captain Sutton.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Neither of them knew that Sutton's large mining interests in South America were in a parlous state from the beginning of the World war in 1914. When he carried his burdens alone. And when he knew he was to go overseas and had those premonitions of death which are as often wrong as right, he made over as nearly all of his fortune to his wife. And to Payson Grant he gave larger control of the office. There was an old and trusted bookkeeper who was left to watch. This aged and deserving keeper of accounts was dismissed by Payson Grant while Sutton was still on the troop ship, eastward bound. His protests were ineffectual. The old watchdogs who had their blood followed the head bookkeeper.

It was fortunate for Grant that a loaded revolver was found in Sutton's pocket when he was dragged from laboring the man who had wronged him. It was, to begin with, an infraction of the Sullivan act and as such punishable with seven years' imprisonment as a maximum. And every minute of the trial swelled Grant's ultimate triumph. It had been easy to buy false testimony from a former maid as to cruelty. And Sutton insulted the judge and turned the jurors against him. It seemed that fate, after smiling on Sutton's career and bringing him fortune and honor, was now bent on his utter destruction.

Considering Sutton's long absence abroad, and the martyred years his wife had spent, the divorce seemed to the sympathetic world neither hurried nor unjustified. And, since Payson Grant had plenty of money to indulge his tastes, and had not yet met a woman he liked more than Natica, happiness seemed in a fair way to be a settled state.

Then Frank Sutton escaped from Sing Sing and, notwithstanding the precautions Grant had surrounded himself with, he was uneasy. "Nat," he said, coming up to the room where she was breakfasting in bed, "Frank has got out of Sing Sing!" Her alarm was not so noticeable as his.

"They always capture them," she observed. That he was troubled did not escape her. She knew he was physically afraid of her ex-husband. But the modern society woman is not to be won by the hard-hitting male as are the women of other spheres. She thought fighting was a stupid, archaic practice and counseled Payson to get a permit to carry a revolver. "You think he'll come here?" she demanded. A vulgar brawl which might be seized upon by the Saffron Press distressed her immeasurably. Why couldn't Frank stay in prison, she wondered. He had been tried and convicted. She felt she would always treat her former husband for the nobility he had brought her. It was quite easy for her to forget that she was the cause. All emotions of a violent nature were wrinkle-producing, she believed.

"He's after me," Payson said gloomily. "And he may get me." "Not if you're careful," she said. "Frank was always a most obvious person without subtleties or nuances of any kind. The sort of man who remains a grownup boy is fatiguing. He is just as likely to ring the front door bell and ask you to step into the hall and be killed." Payson Grant frowned. This was callousness he did not expect. "Don't let Nat," he expostulated, "you might be serious. I tell you Frank is a whole lot deeper than you ever suspected."

"Dear boy," Natica pleaded. "you are trifling with my digestion. I've a most important luncheon party and I want to feel at my best. Don't worry about it. I'm not." "You take it altogether too lightly," he said, frowning. He started as he heard a knock on the door.

"It's probably Mademoiselle Dupin," Natica told him. "I take an hour's conversational French now."

A quietly dressed woman entered. He hardly glanced at her. It was the lady of distinguished French family, who was to enable his wife to converse in polite and idiomatic French. She had set her mind on a chateau near Paris next year and the capture of the old noblesse.

Although Natica Grant allowed her husband to think she was not concerned about Sutton's escape, it, in truth, bothered her more than she admitted. When he had been sentenced, and public interest had centered upon other matters of the moment, she supposed the scandal would soon be forgotten. And now there was to be more of it. It might conceivably injure her in her campaign against the noblesse who were destined to be her neighbors. Mademoiselle Dupin was coaching her in the foibles of the people she desired to conquer.

Since two weeks had gone by without the apprehension of Frank Sutton and the police confessed themselves without clues of value, Mrs. Grant hoped he had escaped. He had spent some of his early years in South America at his father's mining property, and knew a little Spanish. Frank was one of those strong men who could readily do laboring work. Payson was different; she could not imagine her present husband in overalls.

Payson, for all his air of carelessness about the result, was in secret afraid by dire fears. He added two gallons of blood to his establishment. He bought them because they were one-man-dogs, he had heard, and turned them loose at night in the grounds. That he had paid for them was, perhaps, not sufficiently impressed on the canine intelligence, for they treed him as he crossed from the house to the garage to tell Regan, his head chauffeur, that a police officer had warned him of a pilfering tramp in the neighborhood.

Natica was shown this new and nervous mood when he threatened to assault a small, defenseless man who had called to inquire if the new porch was satisfactory.

"You are drinking too many cocktails between meals," she said. "It may be I am," he returned, "I feel shot to bits, and that's a fact, Nat. H—!" he exploded, speaking truth for the moment. "Frank got a rotten deal all round, and some one's got to suffer."

"A judge sentenced him. I didn't," she said coldly. She had convinced herself that Sutton merited punishment, and Payson's imputation seemed both annoying and false.

Grant had not been so anxious to leave his own country for the untried delights of the French chateau as Natica. But he found a new pleasure in the idea now. He could be more inviolate in the Chateau St. Remy-les-Chevrouse than in Deal Beach. It had its consolations, being only an hour's motor trip from Paris. He told his wife he was ready to go whenever she pleased.

"We shall stop here for the summer," she said. "We've invited too many people to run away like that. Also, I've sworn my accent shall be perfect before I go."

Never during the long hours in which Frank Sutton spoke of the wrongs he had endured at the hands of Payson Grant did he use the threats which Campbell Sutton had swung over the head of Anthony Trent like a club. In one mood of despondency he advised Trent to give up an idea born of hate that the atmosphere of prison nurtured. But he had reckoned without his friend's loyalty.

The spectacle of Frank Sutton brought to the dust, his name dishonored, the woman he loved married to the man who had doubly betrayed him, was not of a nature to lessen Trent's determination to inflict punishment. And it was not to be an act solely of vengeance. He resolved to vindicate Sutton's name. He was not sure how this would affect the convict's status legally; but there would be money enough to retain the best of counsel, and in the end no doubt a pardon could be won.

"I shall seek quarters in a more fashionable locality," he told Sutton. "While I want nothing better than this, it is not from Central Park, West, that those who storm society proceed."

At a house agent's whose clientele was a distinguished one Trent learned of several furnished apartments for subtenancy along the Avenue. He was looking at one in the rear of the house in the Fifties.

"I'd like one facing the Avenue," he remarked. "Is the one in front occupied?"

"That belongs to young Stratford Van Boden," the agent said. "I let it to him, but he's abroad now."

Trent knew a good bit about this youngest disappointment of one of America's most celebrated families. He had likeable qualities, but little moral stamina. And of course his enormous fortune had attracted to him the least worthy if most fascinating of the demi-monde.

"Would he submit?"

"The house agent was doubtful. He considered it unlikely because the monetary need did not exist."

"He is always hard up," Trent remarked. "I'll send a cable."

It was a costly cable and the answer prepaid. Stratford remembered Anthony Trent well and pinched for ready money. The terms were generous ones and acceptable.

Within a week of meeting Frank Sutton Trent was established in the most luxurious apartments he had ever seen; the home of one whose place in society was unquestioned. It was Trent's first step. He had paid attention to his base as military tactics had instilled in him the advisability of doing. The advance was his next problem. He found in Van Boden's rooms the members' list of all the exclusive clubs a Van Boden need belong to. They were clubs to which Trent could not hope to enter other than as a guest. He was not deceived as to this.

He glanced down the columns with interest. Presently he found the name he was searching for. It was in the most exclusive young man's club New York possessed.

Anthony Trent remembered very well his first meeting with Swithin Weld. He had gone into the super-savvy Bachelors' club in Hamilton place, Park lane, with his friend, Arthur Grenville. At dinner he was among a group of men of rank and fashion. And, since so many foreigners imagine all Americans of a type fit to be guests at such a club as the Bachelors' must be glad to meet one another, Swithin Weld was introduced to his fellow countryman by a marquis who thought they would fall into one another's arms.

Swithin Weld had never heard of Trent, and said so. He remarked it in a tone that was not conciliatory. He thought he knew every eligible American. Those he did not know were not eligible socially. Weld supposed that this ANTHONY TRENT was one of those Americans, to be met with all over Europe, who have a genius for understanding alien people, are welcome visitors in great houses, and visit their own country but rarely.

One night, after a successful day at Sandown, Weld had gone to one of the most notorious supper clubs in London. There he had taken too much champagne for one of his temperate habits, and had been inveigled into a secluded cardroom where three experts had taken what he had won at the races, and left him heavily in debt. It was while the winners were waiting for the check which he hesitated to draw because he had not sufficient balance at the bank to meet it, that Trent came along. Trent knew the men with whom Weld was playing to be notoriously crooked. Apparently the gamblers would not accept L. O. U.'s. To obtain a check drawn when funds were not in the bank to meet it was a serious offense in London, and would enable them to make the Weld family pay through the nose for its return. The sum was two thousand pounds.

Marvelous How Birds Wing Back to Home

Bird lovers have believed for centuries that migratory birds return to the same home, year after year. Modern science has proved this belief to be right. Birds are taught in traps that do not hurt them, marked with tiny leg bands of aluminum, each bearing a number, and released. Next year, the same birds are caught again in the same locality, often when occupying the same nest.

Evidently, a bird's memory for direction and location must be quite as marvelous as the older writers believed. The catbird winters as far south as Panama, yet catbirds marked in northern Ohio came back to the same neighborhood, year after year.

Sometimes they move a few rods or furlongs, but the frequency with which they return to the very spot is astounding.

Cats find their way back to the old home across a township, horses across a county or two, and dogs have been known to pass through several states in returning to a beloved master, but birds find their way across a continent, and sometimes over a sea as well.

I will give dances at the Nogal Amusement Hall at Nogal, on the second and fourth Saturday nights of each month. "Shepherd" Joe and Tommy Current will wrestle for purse prizes and there will be prizes given to the best dancing couple at each dance. I wish to thank the patrons for past favors of patronage and will do all in my power to make the dances more attractive and entertaining as time goes by. — Jesse May, Nogal, New Mexico. It
