School Events

This year the grade school scores will be separated and a prize given to the school that wins most points. Last year the high school only received a silver cup. This year the winning High School will receive a cup and the winner of the grade school events a separate trophy.

All events will start promptly at the time scheduled as it will take all the time to run the entire program.

Since schools of the county vary in number of teachers, pupils and finances, the committee decided it would be difficult to award prizes on school exhibits except on some outstanding feature of each school. Schools are requested to bring a good exhibit of their actual work in the various school subjects, domestic science, art and handicraft, thereby showing what each is doing and benefitting by the work of other schools. Do not bring more than three examples of each type of work. Teachers will advise the committee as to the amount of space required for their exhibits. Exhibits must be sent to Mary C. Fritz, Carrizozo, not later than Oct. 10, or brought to the booth by 10 a. m., Friday, Oct. 12. Care will be exercised in looking after the exhibits, but the committee will not be responsible for any loss.

Purchases Angora Goats

Lester Greer came down from his Angora goat ranch in the San Andres mountains Monday and received a pair of the finest Angora bucks we have seen here for a long time. The goats are from the famous Landrum Goat Ranch at Laguna, Texas, which was founded in the year of 1860 by the father of the present owner. The goats are yearlings, one of which has its year's growth of Mohair, the other having six months' growth.

Mr. Greer estimates that the one bearing the year's growth of Mohair, will yield nearly 15 lbs.; the other about 8 pounds. Angora goats, said Mr. Greer, where they are run in such regions as we find in the San Andres mountains, must be sheared twice a year, from the fact that the hair becoming so thick and heavy with longer standing, the goats oftentimes are lost by becoming entangled in weeds and brush. Two shearings a year of bucks will net the owner about 15 pounds of Mohair, while with the females a lesser amount is realized. He left Tuesday with the goats for his ranch to place them among his large flocks which are composed of the finest stock he can purchase.

Drowned at Capitan

Last Sunday afternoon, at the James Payne ranch near Capitan, James David, little four-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grossman of Akron, Ohio, who have been visiting Mrs. Grossman's mother, Mrs. Payne, who has been ill for some time, was drowned in a tank. At first the child was thought to have been lost and after scurrying and searching in the hills and canyons, with the aid of neighbors, it was decided to investigate in the ranch tank. Monday morning reinforcements went from Capitan and after dragging the tank the body was discovered. It is hoped the shock will not have any complicating effect in Mrs. Payne's health, which at the time was rapidly improving. Funeral services were conducted at the home by Fred E. Clark of Capitan, one of the rescuing party. The sympathy of our people goes to the bereaved parents.

They Don't Look Well Side by Side

Ort in Chicago Tribune.

The above picture leaves but little to be told. The picture was painted by Gov. Smith in his speech of acceptance, and first shows what he said about so many men being out of employment. The second shows where he advocated the opening of the flood gates of immigration to let in a vast army of foreigners to undermine the wages of our home workers—and last, but not least, the American worker views the two pictures and asks the question: "Wonder how Al figures he can reduce unemployment and at the same time, allow more workers to come into this country?"

Above everything aside from the American wage scale, the workers are, and always have been, advocates of restricting immigration, and they are familiar with the views of Gov. Smith regarding this important matter which the picture so plainly shows. The desirable foreigners are remaining at home, while we get that portion which regards no law, wage scale or spirit of patriotism. This is the element of which we read almost daily who commit murder on the principal streets of our large cities, plunder homes of law-abiding citizens, and undermine the wages of our workingmen. But the Governor says the quota of immigration is altogether too small, and we should allow more and more of this element to come in. This, with Gov. Smith's views on the nullification of the 18th amendment, make good companion issues to point out to our rising generation.

Fire Prevention Week

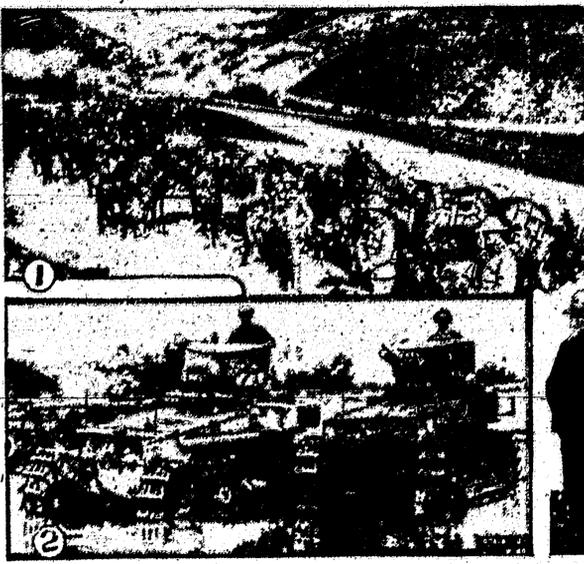

(Proclamation by the Governor)

Whereas, President Coolidge has issued a proclamation recommending that the week beginning Sunday, Oct. 7, 1928, be observed throughout the nation as Fire Prevention Week; and whereas, the organizations annually trying to stop the terrible waste caused by fire have reported progress since the observation of Fire Prevention Week in 1927. They state that in 1926 the national loss reached a figure of $60,548,624.00; in 1927 it dropped to $478,245,020.00. This is an encouraging gain in the warfare against fire but when we take into consideration that destructive fires are in most cases the result of carelessness, lack of precaution, negligence and ignorance, it becomes the duty of all responsible citizens to take an active hand in fire prevention education, so that each year this appalling loss of human life and property may be done away with.

Last year in the United States ten thousand people lost their lives and twenty thousand were maimed and disfigured in fires. Carelessness becomes a terrible thing when it shows the sacrifice of such a large army of good citizens.

Now, therefore, I, R. C. Dillon, Governor of the State of New Mexico, by virtue of the authority in me vested, do hereby designate and proclaim the week beginning Oct. 7, 1928, as Fire Prevention Week in the State of New Mexico.

Done at the Executive Office this 25th day of Sept., 1928.
Witness my hand and the great seal of the State of New Mexico.
R. C. Dillon,
Governor.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Florida, Porto Rico, Swept by a Terrific Hurricane—News of the Campaign.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
ON THE second anniversary of the great Miami hurricane the tropical storm that already had devastated Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands and some islands of the Lesser Antilles struck the east coast of Florida in the Palm Beach region and swept through the center of the state, turning again to the northeast and continuing its destructive course along the Atlantic coast. Reports coming through shattered lines of communication showed this hurricane was one of the worst disasters of recent years. The total number of deaths may reach 2,000, and many thousands are homeless and without food and clothing. It is impossible now to make a reasonable estimate of the tremendous property losses.

In Porto Rico late reports place the dead at 175 or more; in Guadeloupe, a French island, nearly 700 were killed; the known dead in Florida number at least 700 and may be many more. The city of West Palm Beach was practically wrecked, and the fatalities were many and the destruction great in the Lake Okechobee area which was inundated. Palm Beach, too, suffered severely, many fine residences and business buildings being destroyed. Florida National Guardsmen were called out promptly to prevent looting and to aid the sufferers.

The American Red Cross responded immediately to the calls for help from Porto Rico and Florida and supplies and physicians and nurses were hurried to the stricken regions. Generous citizens answered appeals for monetary aid with large subscriptions. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., heading the list in New York with $25,000. Relief Director Baker of the Red Cross went at once to Porto Rico to take charge of the task of reparation on the devastated island.

As the hurricane moved up the seaboard the winds and tremendous seas wrought vast damage. Many vessels were sunk or driven ashore, and sea-side communities were driven from their homes by the waters.

HERBERT HOOVER and Governor Smith both started their personal speaking campaigns. The Republican candidate spent two days in New Jersey, and the apparent results of the trip were highly encouraging to his manager. His chief address was delivered in Newark and was directed especially to labor. He declared himself specifically in favor of high wages, free collective bargaining, restrictions on the use of injunctions in labor disputes, tariff schedules protective of American labor, continuance of immigration restriction, further expansion of our foreign export trade, and governmental assistance to the depressed textile and bituminous coal industries.

Democratic Chairman Raskob's report was that Hoover's speech was the beginning of a Republican campaign to misrepresent the Democratic attitude on the tariff and on immigration. Hoover's plans at present contemplate only a speech at Elizabethtown, Tenn., on October 6, and addresses in New York and Boston, before returning to California to vote. Hoover considerable pressure is being brought on him to speak also in Chicago and in Texas on his trip across the continent.

At Smith on his invasion of the Middle West was greeted everywhere by huge and enthusiastic throngs of supporters and also by thousands of agriculturists and their wives who were eager to know what he proposed in the way of farm relief legislation. His first address was in Omaha and was mainly devoted to a discussion of the farm problem. He again declared himself in favor of the essence of the McNary-Haugen bill but neither upheld specifically nor repudiated the equalization fee. Here are his words defining his stand:

"As I read the McNary-Haugen bill, its fundamental purpose is to establish an effective control of the sale of exportable surplus with the cost imposed upon the commodity benefited. For that principle the Democratic platform squarely stands, and for that principle I stand. Mr. Hoover stands squarely opposed to this principle by which the farmer could get the benefit of the tariff. What remains of the McNary-Haugen bill is a mere matter of method, and I do not limit myself to the exact mechanics and method embodied in that bill."

Smith's personal popularity among the workers he met in Omaha, Lincoln, Oklahoma City and elsewhere in the Middle West, pleased him immensely. While in Omaha a bunch of Indians made him a member of the Omaha tribe as "Chief Happy Warrior" and gave him a war bonnet.

Senator Borah started a series of speeches in eight states for the purpose of counteracting the effects of Smith's tour.

UP IN Wisconsin, where the political situation has been so puzzling, the conservative Republican forces, led by Kohler, nominee for governor, bested the La Follette crowd in the state convention by gaining control of the resolutions committee and having the convention endorse Hoover and Curtis and the national platform. The radicals, however, won the chairmanship of the state central committee, the place going to Herman L. Ekern, a devoted follower of La Follette.

Leaders of both parties were satisfied with the results of the primaries in Massachusetts. Benjamin Loring Young, former speaker of the Massachusetts house of representatives and the choice of Herbert Hoover's advisers, was returned a victor over Eben S. Draper, former state senator and choice of the Republican wet faction, as the Republican nominee for United States senator. He will oppose Senator David I. Walsh in November. On the Democratic side, Gen. Charles H. Cole, one of the original Smith-fors, President men, won an overwhelming victory over John J. Cummings in the contest for the gubernatorial nomination.

WHILE various religious and prohibition organizations were taking wallops at Al Smith for his attitude on the liquor question, the wet Republicans of the East, who are rather numerous, hailed with delight a letter from Otto Fahn, New York banker, to Vice President Dawes, in which the writer said:
"Knowing Mr. Hoover as both able and courageous, I have no doubt that, if elected, his experience in the actual administration of the Volstead act will lead him to recommend to congress suitable changes in its provisions. And I am convinced that such changes will be—and to be effective must be—not in the direction of increased stringency, but of increased liberality."

SEVERAL notable events in aeronautics marked the week. Juan de la Cierva, Spanish inventor, gave his novel "autogyro" its first severe test by flying across the English channel, and then demonstrated it again in flights at Paris. The machine rises and descends almost vertically by means of a windmill propeller and the wings are nearly negligible, being used only to keep the plane horizontal. It was said the British air force had ordered several of the machines and that France might buy one.

In Detroit the Packard Motor company announced successful completion of test flights with an airplane powered by an oil-burning motor, the first Diesel type aircraft engine ever built. The motor is of a radial air-cooled type and develops 300 horse power. With the use of the Diesel principle of oil for fuel the engine does away with gasoline, ignition systems, spark plugs, and other trouble "bugs." Elimination of these parts, officials said, results from the firing from compression in the cylinders, the Diesel action that has been applied up to this time in only extremely heavy engines for power plants and in boats.

Germany's huge new dirigible, the Graf Zeppelin, was tested in flights from Friedrichshafen and seemed to be entirely satisfactory. It is intended to send this air vessel on a trip to the United States in the near future.
The big Bellanca plane Roma was waiting at Old Orchard, Maine, for suitable conditions for the jump-off on its flight to Rome, and indeed did make one start but had to return because of a broken air intake on the carburetor.

ILLINOIS miners ratified the new scale and the mines at once reopened. But so large a majority of the men are opposed to the resulting reduction in their wages that there were several "wildcat" strikes of considerable moment. Officials of the Mine Workers' union believed the situation would adjust itself in a short time.

The federal mediation board announced that it had failed to adjust the wage differences between 55 Western railroads and their 70,000 trainmen and conductors and had abandoned its efforts. It is now up to the President to create a fact-finding commission if he deems it advisable. The men have voted for a strike but officials said the unions would take no definite action until after October 1.

Charles G. Eagle, New York silk manufacturer, who committed suicide recently, provided in his will for a trust fund of approximately $1,250,000 to purchase hotels and apartments in which worthy working girls live and to aid them in their careers.

HERBERT HOOVER'S name was brought into the federal trade commission's probe of public utility propaganda methods, when it was disclosed that the National Electric Light association purchased 49,500 copies of an address made by the then secretary of commerce in 1925 before the annual convention of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissions.

Among other vouchers produced before the commission was one indicating that William Allen White, nationally known editor, recently in controversy with Governor Smith, the Democratic Presidential nominee, over the latter's legislative record, was paid $500 for an address he made before the Electric Light association's convention in 1925.

NEARLY two thousand men who fought for the Union in the Civil war took part in the parade that marked the opening of the sixty-second encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, in Denver. To the music of the drum and fife they marched almost a mile, and few were forced to drop out of line. Commander Elbridge Hawk of Sacramento, Calif., reviewed the parade and opened the formal sessions of the encampment.

DR. J. LOUDEN, president of the League of Nations, created something of a sensation in Geneva by announcing to the league that he intended to call what would amount to a conference of the five great maritime powers, the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, for the purpose of agreeing on some plan for decreasing their naval armaments. Lord Cusheuden, British delegate, immediately declared he was sure the proposal would not please his government, and the reaction to it in Washington was decidedly unfavorable. Japan alone openly favored the scheme.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for October 7 PAUL IN EPHESUS

GOLDEN TEXT—We are his workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Bravery
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Bravery Against a Crowd.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Outgrowing Superstition.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Growing Together in Christ.

1. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv. 8-10).

1. In the synagogue (v. 8). Paul's custom was to go to the Jews first with the gospel, though they were his inveterate enemies. His preaching here was characterized by:

(1) Boldness. He knew that God had sent him and therefore that he was backed by divine authority. This should characterize every Christian worker.

(2) Argument. The gospel message is in accord with the highest reason.

(3) Persuasion. It is not enough that the minister come boldly with a reasonable message. It must be accompanied with persuasion. "Knowing the terror of the Lord, we persuade men."

(4) The message should have definite content. It was concerning the kingdom of God. Paul's supreme theme was salvation through Christ.

2. In the schoolhouse of Tyrannus (vv. 9, 10). Paul's earnest scriptural and persuasive preaching only hardened the hearts of the Jews, even causing them to speak evil openly of this way of salvation by faith in Christ. It was for this reason that Paul separated the disciples from them and retired to the schoolhouse of Tyrannus, where he continued his ministry for two years with glorious results.

II. God Working Miracles by Paul (vv. 11-16). Ephesus was noted for its wonder workers, therefore if Paul's ministry was to be successful God must in an extraordinary way put His seal upon the work. So wonderful was the divine power manifested that even handkerchiefs or aprons brought from Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits. Everywhere the supremacy of the Lord Jesus Christ was recognized. Seeing the marvelous power operating through Paul, certain strolling Jews who went about the country practicing the magical arts at the expense of their poor unfortunate fellows, undertook to use the name "Jesus" in their incantations. Knowing that the connection with Christ was not real on the part of these Jews, the use of His name by them only enraged the evil spirit who struck them and overcame them. The name of Jesus is only powerful on the believers' lips.

III. A Glorious Revival at Ephesus (vv. 17-41). 1. Fear fell upon all (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits created impressions favorable to Christianity. 2. It brought to the front those who professed faith in Christ, while not living right lives (v. 19). They believed but had not broken from sin. Great blessing would come to the church if some awakening could come to those whose lives are not in keeping with their profession and cause them to openly confess and make a new start. 3. Gave up the practice of Black arts (v. 19). This means forms of jugglery by use of charms and magical words. All such are in opposition to the will of God, therefore no one can have fellowship with God and practice them. They proved the genuineness of their actions by publicly burning their books. 4. The uproar of the silversmiths at Ephesus (vv. 23-41). 1. The occasion (vv. 23, 24). This was the power of the gospel in destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows. 2. The method (vv. 25-29). Demetrius, a leading business man, called a meeting and stated that because of much people turning from idolatry business conditions were threatened and that the market for their wares was weakening. He stated, "This our craft is in danger." The world is willing to tolerate any kind of religion or moral awakening so long as it does not interfere with its business or manner of life. He further said, "The temple of the great goddess Diana will be destroyed." He became quite religious when he saw that business was being interfered with.

4. The uproar of the silversmiths at Ephesus (vv. 23-41). 1. The occasion (vv. 23, 24). This was the power of the gospel in destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows. 2. The method (vv. 25-29). Demetrius, a leading business man, called a meeting and stated that because of much people turning from idolatry business conditions were threatened and that the market for their wares was weakening. He stated, "This our craft is in danger." The world is willing to tolerate any kind of religion or moral awakening so long as it does not interfere with its business or manner of life. He further said, "The temple of the great goddess Diana will be destroyed." He became quite religious when he saw that business was being interfered with.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating. This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or acid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

The RETURN of ANTHONY TRENT

"That I cannot say. Colonel Ogilvie was killed in the war and so was Von Schonbrunn. The man who was my secretary in Old Westbury—you remember, Edward Conway?—he is dead. Madame de Beffumont, who was with me in Long Island, she is in prison in England for a long term of years. No, I think I am in no great danger, except from your police."

Lying back in her chair she stared out to sea. Trent wondered what of the past she was trying to capture—or forget. He would have given a great deal to know how much of her heart was filled by the two men she had loved. Probably she was a romantic girl when she met de Beffumont and married him. The feeling had almost certainly been genuine. And then there was the ex-officer of lancers, Captain Moinmouth. Perhaps in the bitterness of finding his pride greater than his love, she had put aside all thought of him.

"There were statements about you in the papers yesterday," she said, after a long interval of silence, "which interested me very much. There was a reference to a certain lady of rank to whom it was said you had been engaged."

"It was true," he said quietly. "Some day I may have the opportunity to tell you of the extraordinary circumstances which took me to her home."

"It was said that she died very suddenly."

"Yes," he said slowly, "that is true. I have never spoken of it before. I have never felt able to. Looking back it seems like a dream. You know what I had been. Well, I was taken into the heart of one of those old, exclusive English families who do not welcome strangers or open their gates to wealth. It was there I felt the agony of being trusted when I was not worthy. One can't fight off love. I tried to, but it was too big for that. I was safe there. I felt like a battered ship which has come unexpectedly into a sheltered harbor. Because I was a guest in such a home none suspected me or even inquired. Yet, my own country folk did, because I did not grace the pages of their social registers. . . . I wonder if anyone will be able to understand me when I say that I was thankful she died before she could find out the life I had led. A score of times I wanted to tell her, but she wouldn't listen. She thought I wanted to confess some conventional indiscretions such as gambling debts. It was not in her heart to believe the man she loved had been a professional thief. I do not mean she was too proud to believe that. Rather it was her love which had cast out all doubt."

"We were to have been married in a few weeks. We were riding together. She was a very daring horse-woman and put her hunter at one of those granite boundary fences they have in Cornwall. She had taken the leap before, but perhaps this was the moment when her beautiful life was marked to end. I am not a religious man, mademoiselle; I have been one who meered and disbelieved; it was not any fear of hell that made me give up the old ways. It was to keep faith with her."

The woman listening said no word. She could see that to such a silent, reserved man as this the relief of being able to speak of what he had kept hidden was very great.

"And yet I am glad that she died then, for it would have broken her heart to find me out. Her father had great properties in Australia, and we were to have gone there to live. I think he knew there were secrets I dared not tell him. He was a very wise and sad old man. Sometimes I think we might have lived without the shadow falling on us. But this meeting of yours with Pierre Redlich reminds me of what might have been in store. I do not think I could ever have had complete rest of mind. There is a high sense of honor which will not permit itself to be betrayed even by love. . . . I realized that as I went into the church, my head bowed as a mourner, and saw weeping men and women there instead of wedding guests."

He did not speak again until the launch came to its dock.

At the door of the Central Park apartment he left her. "I don't feel like talking to them tonight. You have been very good to listen to me." He pressed her hand and turned away abruptly.

CHAPTER XI

Trent becomes a producer. David More returned to Fort Lee with a lot of five houses which might suit his employer. One of the five seemed to be exactly what Trent required. It was an old frame mansion of sixteen rooms standing in twenty acres of land. The rental was low because the absentee owner had allowed his property to get into a bad condition of repair. To the west the gardens came to an end on a bluff about twenty feet above the railroad. An iron bridge crossed the tracks from this bluff. There was a flight of steep steps, with a padlocked gate at the bottom which descended to the flat land by the Hudson side.

A feature of the place which seemed to impress Trent was a flower garden, a hundred yards square. In the center of this waste was an old ruined summer house. From this nothing of the house or road could be seen. In front of it was the broad river.

"I like privacy," Trent told the agent.

"You'll surely get it here," said the man. "You are not overlooked and you've no near neighbors. There's iron gates to keep the crowd out, and there's one of the few outlets to the river which is legally yours to use. I haven't a more desirable property on my lists. If you want to buy I can make you a very low price."

"I might even do that in six months' time," Trent said. The situation was delightful, and he had long been thinking about giving up city life. It would be a pleasing feat to make his home within a few miles of the famous prison.

It was plain the agent was impressed by Trent's way of doing business.

"I'd like to have you in this part of the world," he said. "Take it from me, this side of the river can't be beat for beauty and convenience. As to train service, there isn't such a good one anywhere."

Trent gave him a check to stem the flood of eloquence, which was let loose.

"Are you able to leave the store for a couple of weeks, maybe more?" Trent asked More. "I want you to come here and have the place cleaned up. I don't want you to have your family here. You can get what you want at the local stores. Don't encourage tradesmen to call. Is that clear?"

"Absolutely," said More. "I'll keep 'em off, Mr. Trent. A little exercise won't hurt me now, I'm all rested up." "I shall be back in a few days. I want you to get here before noon tomorrow."

A quality Trent appreciated in David More was his lack of inquisitiveness. None of the unusual errands upon which Trent had sent him elicited surprise. His not to reason why.

Escape From Danger Makes for Pleasure

In escape from dangers of all kinds we find one of the greatest thrills in life. The small child asks to be chased and squeals with delight as she escapes; small boys skate over thin ice; grown men hazard their fortunes by gambling, and women risk their reputations by reading risqué stories—all that they may have the thrill of escape from something.

The stories of universal appeal, from "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Jack the Giant Killer," up to the highest tragedies, are stories of escape or attempted escape. Even our spiritual struggles are dramatized stories of escape. "The Pilgrim's Progress" is the story of Christian's escape from the City of Destruction, though the

It was three o'clock when Trent stopped before the brown stone house where Clarke lived.

"Clarke," he said, after a short conversation, "did anybody ever tell you you looked like a cop?"

"It's been a godsend to me," he was told. "I could get through the police lines any time at all just on my face. Having to lick a bunch of cub reporters into shape began it. Why?"

There was a gravity about Trent's manner which he had not before revealed. "Have I ever asked a favor of you?" he demanded.

Clarke looked at him puzzled. Trent had done him innumerable good turns, as this very house proved. He had asked nothing in the way of repayment.

"No, son, you never have, and you could have asked quite a plenty. What's on your mind now?"

Anthony Trent talked to him for ten minutes. Clarke interrupted him now and then with a pertinent question.

"Will I do it?" he said, when Trent finished. "Boy, you know d—n well I will."

"That's a tremendous relief," Trent said gratefully. "When everything is ready I'll phone you and send a car for you. Tell your wife you are touring with me if she seems anxious."

"You've got a hard assignment ahead," Clarke commented, "and there's a raft of difficulties to overcome. Suppose he doesn't come through?"

"I shall be in the soup," Trent confessed. "I'm not disguising the fact that this isn't exactly legal, but I feel we can pull it off. I wouldn't ask you and the others if I thought there was much danger. I'll admit the risk though."

"He ought to be a tough bird," Clarke commented. "He got away with it all right at the trial."

On the face of it, the Weems comedy seemed dead loss. But Trent had ideas concerning pictures which he did not share with his partner. It was to the Fort Lee studio he took his way after dinner. Weems was "shooting" at night, and the six-reel special would also be in course of production.

Trent spoke to the technical director.

"Which of those carpenters you're laying off do you recommend?" He had learned that with the completion of the feature's big sets not so many hands would be required.

"Those four," said the technical director. "Stafford, Clancy, Cleveland and Dale."

When Messrs. Stafford, Clancy, Cleveland and Dale were paid off they recurred instantly other positions. They knew Trent had an interest in a production. They presumed he was to be one of the new lights in filmdom. They had seen many such in a heaven where comets and falling stars were common phenomena.

Stafford was the foreman. He was a superior sort of mechanic who aimed at being a technical director some day. There were conditions in this new job which were unusual, but board and lodgings, plus pay, seemed too good to perill with questioning.

The Grant house party on his second visit was of a different character, as Anthony Trent recognized. Only Kathryn Holland remained of those who had been there before.

Less attention was given to lingering dinners and more to dancing and tennis. Payson Grant greeted Trent with effusion. He felt rather out of it with the younger men. He had played tennis only to find his wind was gone and his heart fluttering.

La Belle Alliance had been floated off on the highest tide of the year; she was undamaged and now in charge of harbor authorities. Investigation had discovered stolen property of all sorts. Redlich and his companions would not be brought to trial for some time.

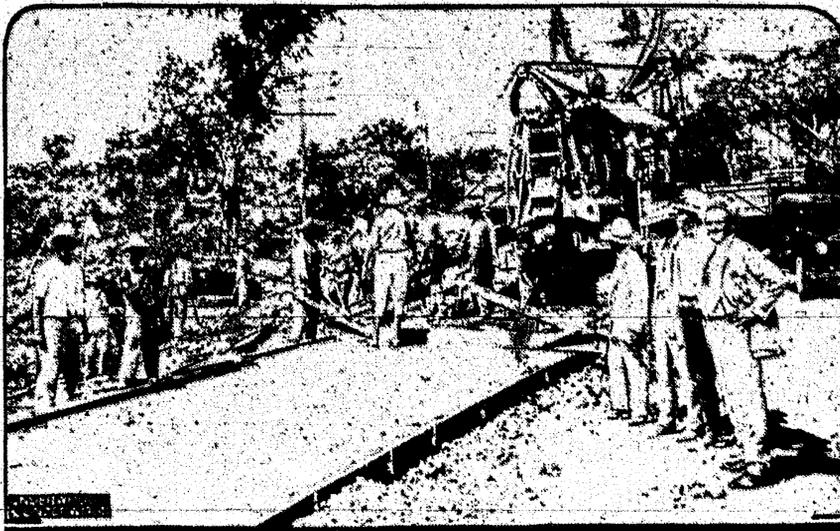

One of the problems which perplexed Trent was how to deliver another of Sutton's messages to Grant without attracting suspicion to himself. It was unlikely that Grant would think one of his guests culpable; but there was always the possibility of it.

As before, he was struck with the lavish richness of the house and its appointments. It represented part of the fortune Sutton had amassed and laid at the feet of the woman who betrayed him. A lawyer had told Trent that her position was secure. The gift had been made freely and without compulsion. From the covert looks she continually gave Payson, Trent did not think the second husband was proving any more satisfactory than the first.

Under the steady influence of the stimulants Grant found he could not do without, he was developing a coarseness of face and manner which gave her increasing irritation. Before long she knew she would hate him. There were thorns with her roses.

The Happy Warrior

Somebody invents a slogan, keynotes a character, creates a legend, and lo, an idol is made.

The idol is O. K. as long as he sticks to his role and lives up to his character.

When he slips, it is not so good.

Jim Reed blew up because, with a proverbial reputation for being the hard-boiled fighter who simply didn't give up, he trimmed and hedged in a pinch to get an office.

Now comes A. F. Smith, touted as the Happy Warrior, the joyous crusader, smiling through Oklahoma.

What does the blithe knight of the sunny countenance say as he jousts merrily in the lists of that prominent and well-known commonwealth?

He talks about "one of the meanest things" done in his campaign.

"The man who votes against me because of my religion is not a genuine American."

He denounces criticism of his Tammany affiliations as a smoke screen to hide attacks on his religious faith.

He denounces the Republican national committee for circulating "scurrilous propaganda."

He lambasts the alleged senseless, foolish, stupid attacks on the Catholic church.

He denounces as "lies, a series of reports which reached him."

He brands alleged "libelous slanders."

He brands reports that he is not "meritorious" as willful lies.

Can this, indeed, be the Happy Warrior whom his chief protagonists have pictured as jubilantly leading the cohorts of the singing crusaders against the filled-with-consternation and fleeing foe?

Al Smith has disappointed both adherents and opponents by this unfortunate lapse from his proper character by falling back into the defensive, by losing his temper, by denying all and sundry the right to oppose him conscientiously on the wet issue or because of the record of Tammany, by attempting unjustly to saddle the Republican national committee with real or imagined "whispering," by ignoring the forthright declaration of Herbert Hoover upholding every American's right to worship God as he chooses.

We offer in contrast the restrained reply of the Hoover secretary of the absurd charge, voiced by a Democratic senator in a public address, that Hoover is a tippler; the charges, not whispered, but broadcast with full campaign authority, and in part by Smith himself that Hoover is really a Britisher and in effect a traitor to his own land, that he tried to rob the farmers during the war, that he conspires with power companies to oppress the common people, that as a cabinet member he aided and comforted thievery and fraud and loot and betrayal of the nation's resources. We have heard no allegation by Hoover that all these charges are really founded

Velvet for Evening Wear

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

The picture until it would express an entirely different individuality. The idea might be varied by substituting one of the sheer capelets of tulle which are on the list of smart details for the evening mode. The most enchanting novelties of this kind are being shown, some elaborated with embroidery, or if of chiffon they are apt to be handpainted. Some have floating scarf ends but they are fitted carefully about the low neckline. Oh! there is no end of lovely alluring things of this sort coming out for wear during the coming autumn and winter social season.

Then, too, the evening gown of black velvet may be made to look regal under the magic touch of costume jewelry. Pearls have come into their own again and several ropes of the new-fashioned pearls which are in tints as well as white would richly endow the classic in velvet here pictured with new beauty. Colored crystal jewelry is quite the rage, also, mounted in massive showy settings.

Paris again smiles with approval on costume flowers. Feather flowers are a favorite theme, also tiny beaded effects, also the favor for gardenias still persists. Garlands of hand-made silk flowers also handsomely embellish many a black velvet evening gown. (© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

SHOULD EMPTY OPEN CANS

The practice of allowing foods to stand in open cans is not good house-keeping. After a can is opened the contents should be stored in a clean vessel—preferably of earthenware or porcelain. However, it is fair to say that the danger of a tin can is usually exaggerated. The inner surface of cans used in packing foods is treated with a shellac which is insoluble in ordinary food juices. It is only when a flaw is present that acid foods may attack the container.

If you can indulge in but one hand-some new evening frock this season, by all means let it be of black velvet. Even to a greater extent than heretofore, if such be possible, the mode high lights sheer exquisite velvets for formal wear.

Have your velvet frock styled with utmost simplicity, perhaps somewhat after the manner of the classic gown in the picture, with a view to adding accessories later. That is, the bodice should be well fitted and, of course, sleeveless. The hemline of the skirt should measure very wide, and, of course, dip to the back, which is the very, very proper thing for all evening-wear hemlines to do at present.

plaited net. These are frequently made with long sleeves, and they proclaim their festive intention, in that they glitter and sparkle with all the glamor of a true evening mode. The idea originated in Paris. Now, such a jacket would transform the frock in

Fish and Nuts as Food

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Salmon is rich in the oils which contain the valuable vitamin D. Since this essential accessory to the diet is not abundant in any other of the common foods than the fatty fishes, children should be encouraged to eat salmon frequently.

Salmon is a popular fish because of its delicious flavor. When fresh it is superior, but the canned variety is recommended to those who cannot obtain the fresh fish. A few ways of serving this good fish follows: Salmon With Celery.—Drain the liquor from a pound can of salmon, reserve the liquor and remove the bones and any skin. Flake the fish. Melt three tablespoons of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, when well blended add one and one-half cups of milk, stir and cook until thick, then add the liquor from the can and one-fourth cupful of water in which a cupful of celery has been cooked. Add the salmon, diced celery, seasoning of salt and pepper and serve in nests of creamed potato, topped with a spoonful of buttered peas. The salmon may be served in patty shells instead of the potato.

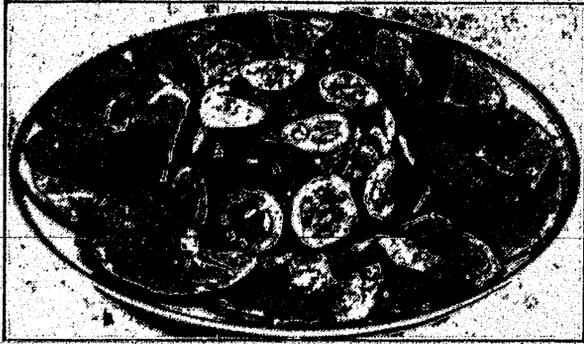

Salmon Salad.—Take one pound of salmon, remove from can, drain and remove bones and skin, add seasoning of salt, pepper and onion juice. Shred two heads of lettuce into fine shreds, mix lightly with one small can of its equivalent in fresh cooked peas, one-half a cup under diced and three hard cooked eggs cut into rings. Serve with mayonnaise dressing. This may be cut into half for a small family.

We are all familiar with nuts on cakes, in salads and sautés, as a relish, to serve on the dinner table, but how many use them as a rich food to take the place of meats? Some form of nut is on the market the year round. Chestnuts are the best in the months of October, November and December. Peanuts are like the poor—always with us. Walnuts and hickory are freshest in the fall, though they keep fairly well during the year. Pecans are another delicious nut which keeps during the year. Bitternuts, hickory nuts, pecans, walnuts and olivets may be used interchangeably in most recipes. Filberts and peanuts may be used in place of the more expensive almond. Nuts are usually blanched for serving, especially pecans and almonds. If time is taken walnuts and filberts as well as pistachio nuts may be blanched. Cover the nuts with boiling water and let stand for a few minutes, then dash in cold water and slip off the skins with the fingers.

The brown skins from Brazil nuts are usually peeled off with a knife. The skin of bitternuts, pecans and hickory nuts are so delicate that they are not often removed. To blanch chestnuts make a grish

COLD MEAT FOR DAINTY LUNCH

Cold Sliced Lamb Leg With Mint Gelatin.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cold sliced meat for lunch may be just cold meat, or it may be so transformed by its associations that it may be offered without hesitation to the most special guests. A case in point is illustrated by the photograph from the bureau of home economics, which has developed this very delicious and decorative gelatin to accompany cold slices of lamb. Tradition has linked the flavor of mint with lamb in many ways. The addition of crushed pineapple and slices of cucumber to a mint gelatin raises it from the commonplace to the unusual. Needless to say, this appetizing luncheon combination is very appropriate for hot weather.

Mint-Flavored Cucumber and Pineapple Gelatin.

- 2 lbs. gelatin
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 5 lbs. sugar
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 1/2 cups boiling water
- 1/2 cup canned water
- 1 lb. drained
- 2 lbs. pineapple juice
- 1/2 cup diced cucumber
- 4 lbs. lemon juice
- 2 drops oil of peppermint
- Green coloring matter

Soak the gelatin in the cold water until soft, add to the boiling water with the sugar and salt, and stir until all are dissolved. Cook and add the crushed pineapple, diced cucumber, pineapple and lemon juice, oil of peppermint, and enough coloring matter to make the mixture pale green. Set the container in ice water, and stir until the gelatin mixture begins to congeal. Rinse a mold with cold water, coat it lightly with some of the clear gelatin, and place thin slices of cucumber in the bottom and sides. Then fill the mold with the rest of the gelatin mixture and let stand in a cold place until firm.

MILK EXCELLENT IN MAKING BREAD

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In making white bread the use of whole or skim milk to supplement the proteins and minerals of wheat flour is strongly recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. Since bread is a staple food-stuff, the use of milk in bread would insure a better nourished population. Dry skim milk may be used in bread making with good results. In addition to supplementing the nutritive value it improves the general appearance of the bread loaf and enhances its ease of manufacture.

There are, however, certain differences in flours and in their reaction to skim milk in the dough which influence the ease of bread manufacture and necessitate special attention to certain stages of the process. In order to determine what these differences in flours are and how they affect the handling of bread made with dried milk, a study was made by the bureau of dairy industry of the United States Department of Agriculture.

It was found that the hard spring wheat flours used in the experiments reacted more favorably to the use of dried skim milk than did winter wheat flours. The range of fermentation time in which doughs give good bread is increased by using skim milk. This adds to the ease of manufacture and is a very important property. The lactose of the milk imparts a desirable golden-brown color to the crust of the baked loaf. The texture and color of the crumb are also improved.

Food of Silkworms

Baby silkworms can suck the juice from only young tender leaves of the mulberry tree, but as they grow older the older leaves must be fed them.

RESIZING IMPROVES LIMP RUGS

If the rug is too limp to lie flat on the floor, or if they curl along the edges and corners, they will be greatly improved by re-sizing. Lay the rug right side down, on a bare floor in a room where it won't need to be disturbed for a day or so. Tack it down securely and sprinkle evenly with a generous solution made from dissolving table salt in hot water. Use about a fourth of a pound of salt to a half gallon of water.

Fairy Tale for Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The first Dingo dog sang this verse: "I'm not a fox, no, I'm not a fox. For I'm a Dingo dog, a Dingo dog. And my brother, my dear brother, is another, is another."

Then the second Dingo dog sang the same verse, and then they sang it together, and the chorus was simply: "How-wow, how-wow, how, all together, how-wow-wow."

And then both sang again and this was their song: "We're friends in the zoo. As doubtless you're, too. For we seldom growl, and you never scowl."

The Dingo dogs said they had seldom, seldom, seen their visitors, the children, scowling.

"Yes," said the second Dingo dog, "we both come from Australia."

"So we both do, you see," said the first Dingo dog.

"Ily alas or grace," said the second Dingo dog.

"It's enough that we're dogs, and Dingo dogs, wild dogs of Australia."

"We're plain yellow dogs," said the first Dingo dog.

"Quite enough," said the second Dingo dog.

other animals in the zoo and then the first Dingo dog said: "What's the news?"

"What do you mean?" the other animals asked.

"Well," said the first Dingo dog, "what is there to tell us? What is going on? What is there going to be going on—you know—the news."

"The news," repeated the second Dingo dog.

"Well," said one of the animals, "we're fed by the keeper and we sleep and we eat—of course we eat when we're fed like sensible animals do."

"People come to look at us and hear of what we do and from where we first came."

CORRECT POSITION IN DOING HOUSEWORK

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

These two pictures, demonstrating good and bad sitting posture, are almost self-explanatory. They were posed by a farm woman in Hampshire county, Massachusetts, in connection with a series of talks on posture given by the county extension agent for women. The woman in the first picture is sitting peeling potatoes in a position frequently seen for such tasks. It causes her head, shoulders, and abdomen to slouch forward, while her feet, rather tensely wound around each other, will soon add to the general sensation of fatigue produced by her posture. In the other picture she is sitting correctly, well back in her chair, her feet firmly on the floor in a position that enables her to retain her good posture without effort. Her back and shoulders are straight without strain, her head held so as to see what she is doing without its being pushed forward, her lungs are not cramped, and when her back is fatigued she will not be distressed or tired as she would be had she sat as in the first picture.

Studies of correct posture for doing various household tasks have been made in this country by farm women under the direction of the home demonstration agent.

Taking the Blue Out of Monday

By RING LARDNER

To the Editor: I don't know how it is around different parts of the country but out our way the boys is all worried about Blue Sunday and what they going to do with themselves when the Lords day alliance gets to work on the sleeping beautys down in Washington and slips another dose of bug poison to the boys that still staggers to their feet when the band plays the land of the free.

A few of the boys takes the proposition like a joke and say they won't nothing come of it, that the Master Minds that makes our laws will knock this one for a row of rubarb. Well they said the same thing in regards to prohibition but you can drive your flyver up and down Main St. all day long now days without getting side swiped by no beer truck.

The boys might as well get it in their bean that the new law will go through like it was playing Yale and in a few more wks. old Mr. Monday, that everybody uses to crab at because it meant to go to work, will be a 2d Xmas with people wakening up full of zip, and slapping 1 another on the back and hollering merry Monday and many of them.

Personally I haven't saw no draft of the statue but they tell me it provides for everybody to go to church and as far as that is concerned why they might just as well because it also provides that they won't be no movies or no ball game or no Sunday paper and you can't dance or go riding or swimming or plinking or shoot craps or play cards and etc. with penalties all the way from 30 days to a couple of minutes in the electric easy chair.

Well friends when this comes they's just 3 ways to take it. You can pack your tooth brush and night gown and move to Paris or you can stay here and obey the law or break it. Now will many books and songs has been wrote about the glory of gay Paree I seen enough of it so as I would advise my readers to stay here even after the Master Minds passes the next amendment witch is coming after this one and witch will provide that you can't eat meat or have corn.

As for obeying the law they's no use obeying the letter unless you also obey the spirit and the spirit of the law is to see that everybody has a rotten time Sunday, yourself inclusive. This ain't as easy as it sounds like, so for the benefit of my readers I have figured out an ideal program for a blue sabbath as follows:

- 6 A. M. Get up and take a cold bath. Shave with ice water and find your own clothes.
- 7 A. M. Breakfast. Burnt toast with any good coffee substitute.
- 7:30 to 9 A. M. Don't smoke.
- 9 A.M. to 1 P. M. Sabbath school and church.
- 2 P. M. Have duck for dinner to witch is invited a man that was in the war and his wife and 4 kiddies. Ask the man about the war.
- 3 to 5 P. M. Keep asking the man about the war. No smoking.
- 5 P. M. Vespers
- 6 to 7:30 P. M. Try and call up somebody that has got a new number. 7:30 to 9 P. M. Church.
- 9 P. M. to bedtime. Talk nice about everybody.

As for the boys that wants to evade the law, the 1st place they can't be too careful as the penalty is going to be mighty stiff like for inst. 8 yrs. if you are caught laughing unless its at 1 of the ministers gags or some funny crack-in the colic for the day.

But for the boys who is willing to take a chance I have got up a serious of substitutes for the different crimes like motoring etc, that can be pulled off without no fear of detection unless the people you play with and invite into your home is a wolf in cheap clothing.

Motoring.—Every time you get home from church run out to the garage and change tires.

Cards, craps and etc.—Set in church with a pal and bet on any of the following propositions. 1. The next gal that comes in will be a blonde. The odds agajust this is about 2 to 1, unless it's a ski jumper's church. 2. Will the text be from the odd or even number chapter. 3. Who will cough next a man or a woman.

Surf Bathing.—Fill the bath tub with water and pour 1/2 bbl. of salt in it. Then you and the wife and kiddies put on a bathing suit and get in. You duck them and they squeal.

Picnic.—Put your dinner in a basket along with some bugs and dirt. Sprinkle the dining rm. floor with leaves and sand burrs and set down and eat.

Movies.—Put out the lights and shut the window curtains. Hang a sheet at one end of the rm. and set and chew gum.

Baseball.—Get on the ironing board and keep hollering, "That a boy." Funny Papers.—Your wife gets in bed and you pretend like its 2 A. M. and you are just getting home. She says where have you been. You say you been to a lodge meeting. She breaks off a bed post and hits you over the head with it. You say "Tam." Golf.—Hide a couple of balls 1 Sunday and look for them the next.

Lonely Man If he has no faults what does the poor fellow do for congenial companions?—Tobias Maize.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

HIS AMBITION

"Ambition," said Norbert Quinn, "is a funny thing. My friend, Christopher Morley, prince of fantasy and 'twentieth century Elizabethan, confided that he wished that he could draw and also that he could write successful plays.

"Quite in contrast is my little friend, William, who is saving up money to buy an airplane. It's quite a worthy motive," I told him. "You are quite an ambitious boy."

"You bet I am!" William agreed, and added, "You see, I want to fly over Bobby Miller's yard and drop down bricks on him."—Los Angeles Times.

NEW YORK FARMERS NEVER WITH SMITH

Agriculturists Have Consistently Opposed Him.

Al Smith, swinging into the West in the hope of capturing the farmer vote, is preceded by the devastating statement of Charles S. Wilson, former commissioner of agriculture of New York state, to the effect that New York farmers have been definitely against him in each of his five campaigns for the governorship.

Mr. Wilson, himself a large farmer, has sent out broadcast an analysis of Smith's past five campaigns, showing that in each one he was elected by the vote of New York city, the seat of Tammany politics.

Outside of New York city, Smith failed thus in his five campaigns: In 1918, carried two counties; in 1920, carried none; in 1922, carried thirteen out of fifty-seven; in 1924, carried one; in 1926, carried four counties.

"As a candidate for governor," said Wilson, "Smith would have been defeated, outside of New York city, at each of the elections in which the city gave him office, and usually he would have been snowed under. He would have failed by net losses ranging from $3,000 to $10,000. Election statistics show that he has been a local leader only, and a survey of sentiment in New York state show that many of his supporters as governor do not consider him of Presidential caliber. He has never been a state leader, because he has never gained the confidence of the state at large.

"The same statistics manifest that the last two elections of Smith are far from proving that he has made any gains in the confidence of the state at large. On the contrary, the last two elections prove that he has lost a considerable share of the support he had previously received in the districts outside of Tammany control.

"New York farmers, knowing Smith intimately," continued Wilson, "have no faith in his farm relief proposals, and I want to warn the westerners to whom he is carrying his promises, that he has consistently failed to alleviate the farm conditions of his own state. All of his measures have been consistently blocked by the legislature, and the attitude of the legislature has been upheld by the farmers in a body.

"They have recognized clearly that it would be detrimental, if not suicidal, to entrust the great agricultural interests of the state to an agricultural board appointed by a Tammany governor. It must be remembered that New York is one of the leading agricultural states of the Union, in spite of the financial and industrial activity which involves so much of its effort, and the farmers' problems in many cases are parallel to those of the farmers in the farther west sections.

"Therefore, when they make it plain that they have no confidence in the Smith farm relief proposals, they do so with the sincere hope that they may save their fellow agriculturists throughout the country from falling into a trap and being obliged to wait four more dreary years to rectify their error. They are solidly behind Hoover and his farm relief plans."

Women Will Approve Hoover's Peace Stand

"The recent signing by 13 nations of Secretary Kellogg's peace treaty in Paris is undisputable evidence of the Republican party's policy of international good will and understanding," William H. Hill, Hoover-Curtis campaign chairman in New York, told a group of business men.

"The treaty constitutes a foundation upon which Herbert Hoover, if elected, will proceed to build the greatest world peace structure ever dreamed of," he said. "There is no question of his desire for peace among nations and, with this treaty, which has been praised throughout the world, to begin with, he will be able to demonstrate further, the peaceful intentions of America.

"The Kellogg pact should constitute a new appeal to the women of the country to vote for Hoover and continue the policies of a Republican administration which has shown itself so alert in grasping the opportunity to further international friendship," said Mr. Hill. "Women, women's clubs and women's magazines have long been striving for concrete evidence of the country's desire for world peace and they have it in the Kellogg treaty and in the pronouncements of Hoover that he will not cease his efforts until actual world peace is obtained. It should encourage the thousands of women workers in the Hoover campaign, moreover, because they have, for the first time, an issue of their own standing out prominently in the pledges a Presidential candidate has made to the nation."

For Hoover and Law

Gifford Pinchot, militant dry crusader and former governor of Pennsylvania, let it be known that Herbert Hoover's stand on the liquor question, above all else, was responsible for his decision, not only to support the Republican nominee, but to take the stump for him. He said, "I'm for Hoover and against Al Smith. That goes without saying." Asked his reason, he said: "I'm dry and for the Eighteenth amendment. Al Smith's wet and against it."

Desirable Rural Situations to End Movement From Farm to City

By DR. GEORGE H. THOMAS, Chicago.

IT IS said that on every country road is a boy beating his way to the city. That accounts for one of our rural problems. Agriculture is still America's biggest business, but a majority of Americans now live in cities. Contrary to popular opinion, the smallest rural communities grew in population during the last census decade. Our littlest communities—villages and towns up to 2,500 inhabitants—are not populating our cities. There is no generalization to explain the fact.

St. Andrew's church, Farm Ridge, in LaSalle county, is an example of means of fostering a desirable rural situation. Farm Ridge is not even a village. It is a community only in the sense that it has a center of religious and social life; no store, no post office, no town hall, no movie, no wayside barbecue.

One stands on the church land, a property two city blocks long; at one end is the church athletic field, at the other is the church cemetery, looking north, south, east and west over the fertile rolling prairie, he sees a farmhouse, the only one in sight, a mile away. Here lives the nearest parishioner.

St. Andrew's is self-supporting, but appearances belie every traditional feature of the "church near the home," which is the meaning of the word parish. On most any average occasion, the churchyard is packed with cars; the rectory lawn swarms with children from a few weeks old to boys and beautiful nonlipstick girls, in all years of the teens.

The fricassee one gets at the parish dinner is not cold storage chicken. After dinner, the church is packed for services and there are some outside who cannot get in.

This country church is a unique experiment station for solving a national rural problem. It has been a success, against handicaps. For it was established more than seventy-five years ago. One marker in the little cemetery in the churchyard bears the inscription: "Horace Beardsley, born Kent, Connecticut, 1782."

Possibility That Life Processes May Have Started by Pure Chance

By DR. D. W. SWANN, Philadelphia.

Science heretofore has always felt that everything that happened could be traced to some cause, which, in turn, always had a definite effect. But we now know that the results of many purely physical phenomena, such as the transmission of heat—depend upon what science inadequately calls "laws of probability"—which is just another name for chance or luck.

Either one accepts the view of creation handed down by the Bible, or else the scientist nods his head and says he cannot answer the question. Life processes may have started by pure chance.

As a matter of fact, even the subconscious belief prevalent among physicians that laws of chance as introduced into their own subject were merely makeshifts for something more fundamental, has, in the past year, received a severe blow.

For in the most modern development of atomic structure, the old idea of the universality and definiteness of the laws which control the actions of the most fundamental entity in all physics—the electron—have had to give way to laws of chance.

No longer do we say that if an electron finds itself in an electric field, a certain consequence will definitely follow. We say only that there is a probability that such and such will take place.

No longer do we rest in the belief that the velocity of an electron will remain constant so long as it is not under the influence of an electric field. It may suddenly change its state of motion. From being at rest, it may suddenly decide to move about like a dog tired of inaction.

All that this means to the layman is that science by chance may run into the secret of synthetic life—without now even knowing anything about its start. There is no telling how soon or how long before something may happen to open the volume to the right page.

Spirit of National Interdependence Great Need of the Present Century

By REV. C. EVERETT WAGNER, New York (Methodist).

The next document to be signed by the revolutionary rebels of all nations is a declaration of interdependence. The crying need for such a declaration in this Twentieth century is just as urgent as the one in 1776 for independence of small countries like the Thirteen Colonies. There was a time when the development of individualism should be stressed, but the world of 1776 is an entirely different world from that of 1928, and the demands of a social-while civilization are also different. The inherent moral, spiritual, social, economic and political conditions under which we are now living demand that we shall work out in some successful way a scheme of living together in this old universe as a family of nations.

The intelligent people of America can no longer be like ostriches, sticking their heads in the sand whenever this question of our relationship to other nations is considered. To make effective this declaration of interdependence the revolutionary rebels of this age must stimulate a tremendous sympathy for the peoples of all countries. The words "stranger," "foreigner," "heathen" should be dropped from our vocabularies.

Criminal Youths of Country Recruited From Homes That Are Divided

By PERRY T. ALLEN, Springfield (Mo.) Attorney

The modern youthful criminal is not the product of poverty and want, but the result of unrestraint. They seek the thrills, look for some new experience that will offer a "kick" and do not falter at the most brutal and nauseating crimes. They are prideful of the notoriety given them because of it, and glory in their misdeeds as an accomplishment which places them above the other mortals.

Eighty per cent of the youthful criminals of the United States come from divided homes—homes that were broken up by divorce or abandonment. The others come from homes where the break exists, but where it is not shown publicly but known to the child.

To meet the world, coming generations must be prepared individually. First is necessary, but the child, to know that it will burn, need not be dragged through the flame. A child taught from the day it is born until it reaches the age of twelve years the meaning of discipline, the difference between right and wrong, and is given the correct example by his parents, knows no other course but the right.

Unpleasant Type of Visitors to America

Mary Roberts Ripchurt, who was recently awarded a $1,200 income tax refund, said at a Washington reception: "A thing like that refund makes me feel very friendly toward our country. Everybody, by the way, feels very friendly toward our country nowadays except the third-rate English novelists who flock over here to lecture.

"I said to one of these novelists the other night: 'Well, sir, how do you like the U. S. A.?'

"'O-er-rather tiresome,' he answered.

"'Haven't you seen anything that attracted you, sir?'

"'Well—er—no; can't say I have.'

"'But take Niagara Falls. Have you been to Niagara?'

"'Spent the day there.'

"'Well, now, come, isn't Niagara a sight worth seeing?'

"'He yawned.

"'From the Canadian side—yes,' he said."

Constipated Since Childhood; In Fine Shape Now

"I just couldn't resist any longer telling you of your wonderful medicine, Milks Emulsion. I have been constipated as long as I can remember. Had typhoid fever when I was eight years old and since then my bowels haven't moved freely. I have taken pills, salts, castor oil, and everything a person could think of.

"Now, whenever I hear anyone say they are constipated I immediately tell them of Milks Emulsion; I have taken about 12 large bottles, not all of them regular. Now I keep Milks Emulsion in the house and take it regular. I have gained so much medicine that I thought it was all alike.

"I had a sallow complexion, no color, and felt miserable all the time; but now I have the color of health, and health is something I wouldn't exchange with anyone for a fortune. I wouldn't take ten times the price I paid for Milks Emulsion for the results I have obtained.

"I am 19 years old and weigh 105 pounds. Have gained 45 pounds since taking your medicine and am still gaining. My face is round and my arms are getting round. Before, people used to hang their hats on my elbows, thinking they were hatracks. Now I am going to keep on with Milks Emulsion until I weigh 125 pounds.

"You may publish this letter if you wish and anyone that wants to ask me about your medicine may do so. I promise to answer every letter. In fact, I couldn't do enough for Milks Emulsion to repay them for what their medicine has done for me." ROSEMOND BOWER, Frontenac, Kans.

Wreck Gives Up Trifles

Still Farther Back

Wife—But, my dear, no woman wants to look dressed as though she came out of the Ark.

Hubby—Huh! You women aren't so averse to looking as though you came out of the Garden of Eden, I notice.

Super-Sentimental

"I notice the Seatons didn't turn in their old auto on their new one, after all."

"No. They hadn't the heart to let it go into the hands of strangers who might abuse it."—Pathfinder.

NURSES know, and doctors have declared there's nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it's genuine Bayer; that name must be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—in red—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box:

Seemed to Be Final

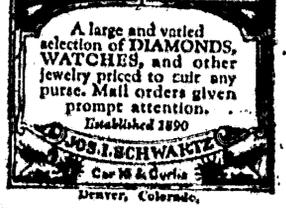

He was looking very sad and dejected as he came into the office one morning, and the other fellows chipped him.

"What's the matter, Jim? Your girl turned you down?"

"Yes," came the dismal reply.

"Well, don't take it so badly," comforted Griggs. "A woman's 'no' often means 'yes,' you know."

"Quite probably," came in even more mournful tones. "But this girl didn't say no—she said 'rats!'"—Stray Stories.

Right

Orville Wright, at a dinner in Dayton, talked about his controversy with the Smithsonian Institute.

"My brother and I worked hard," he said. "Our first flight was the result of years of hard work. Well, it's very galling to see the credit of all that work given to another.

"My brother, talking about our years of work, said one day at a dinner in France: 'Necessity, the mother of invention, found the airplane the hardest one of her children to raise.'"

Salmon Once More

Five ex-service men were gathered at a table in a restaurant recently. The waiter, asked to suggest something in the cold meat line, said there was some good salmon on the menu. Only one of the five took the suggestion. The other four agreed they had enough during the war to last the rest of a lifetime. —Detroit News.

Soft for Him

She—What do you think of my new dress?

Improved SAMSON Windmills With SELF-OILING Boxes

The good qualities of this new device can be readily seen when compared with the old style, noisy, lumbering windmill, which had to be oiled every day in order to run. Now, your oiling troubles are at an end. The self-oiling feature of the new SAMSON wherein all bearings run constantly in a flood of oil, causes the windmill to run easily, make less noise and with less expense than any windmill on the market. As proof of the pudding is in the eating of it, so is the lasting virtue of the Samson windmill, made possible by a trial test. For full information SEE—
