

Attorney Geo. B. Barber Died Wednesday

Between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, attorney Geo. B. Barber, aged 82 and old pioneer of Lincoln County, passed away at his home in the western part of town, after several weeks of suffering.

Mr. Barber came to this part of the state and settled at Lincoln in the early days during the exciting period of the Lincoln County War. He was a young lawyer of exceptional ability and as the county needed such men more especially in at that critical time, he gained a remarkable practise which continued through his after life.

After the county seat was changed from Lincoln to Carrizozo he established his office here and was actively engaged until about one year ago, when he retired from active practice on account of his failing health.

Mr. Barber was considered one of the most able of New Mexico and especially so as a desk attorney and many men in his professional line came to him for advice. He was well known and highly respected as a model man and a jurist.

He leaves a widow, one son, George, Jr., a grandson, Ben West, Jr., and granddaughter, Josephine West, to mourn his loss. The funeral services will be held at the home of deceased at 8 o'clock this afternoon with Rev. Thomas V. Ludlow of the Methodist Church conducting the same and the remains interred in the local cemetery. The surviving members of the family have the sympathy of our entire community.

An Explanation

The following letter has been sent to the patients at Fort Stanton under date of Oct. 24:

Dear Sir:

As one of the Registrants on the petition to strike from the rolls of precinct No. 1, we are sending you this explanation, the object of which is to clear up any misunderstanding in regard to this matter.

Sometime ago the Republican State Central Committee sent an attorney to all the counties in the state to assist the local committees in regard to registration. This was because under our new election code, many changes had been made and the average voter was not familiar with the law.

This attorney in investigating the registration of precinct No. 1 informed us, that in order to avoid a contest after election it would be necessary to petition to strike from the roll those names of residents of Fort Stanton Military Reservation who were there for their health only. This information is strictly in line with an opinion from the attorney general's office, who is a Democrat and is running for governor on the Democratic ticket. This opinion is on file in the general offices at Fort Stanton.

As secretary of the Central Committee of this County it was my duty to attend to this matter. I went to Fort Stanton and called on Dr. Tappan explaining the situation to him in detail. We told him that there was no intention of including in this petition, the name of anyone who was employed in any capacity whatever, at Fort Stanton and that the object of the petition was to prevent a contest after election.

We certainly do not know what your political affiliations may be; that phase of the matter has never entered into the petition in any way. Dr. Tappan requested R. S. Fagan, chief clerk, to give me the information from the card index system kept on file in the offices at the Fort.

We found there were 63 patients registered in precinct No. 1 and of this number, 36 had never been employed in any capacity at the Fort. These 36 names were placed on the petition to be stricken from the roll. This was done from opinions of the best attorneys in New Mexico including the afore-mentioned attorney general, who is now running for Governor on the Democratic ticket. This ought to show that there is nothing political in the case as far as we are concerned. As a matter of fact, the object of this circular is to clear any official at Fort Stanton of any blame and we hope this will correct any erroneous reports that may be circulated in your community.

Yours very truly,

S. W. Kelsey,

Sec.-Treas., Rep. Cen. Com.

Hearing at Oscura

A hearing will be held at Oscura on Nov. 8, at 1 p. m., before the State Corporation Commission in connection with the closing of railway station at that point by the Southern Pacific Company, as the revenue taken in at that station, shown by a check of business handled during the past months, is $15.00 per month, where expenditures to keep the station open amounts to over $160.00 per month, which shows that the station is of no material benefit to any of the road's patrons.

The Carrizozo - Socorro Highway Across the Malpais Begins Today

The picture illustrates how it will be done

The T. J. Tobin, Construction Co., road contractors, who were successful bidders on the above project and also on the Tijeras Canyon job, are here and have the most complete equipment ever seen on road work in the state. Mr. Tobin came in Tuesday and was followed by the equipment with which the enormous undertaking of crossing the malpais will be accomplished.

Power equipment will be used almost exclusively in the building of this highway and after it is finished there can be no estimate placed on the amount of good it will do Carrizozo and surrounding country. Together with Project Engineer T. G. Brown and Chief Highway Engineer Davidson, they went over every point in detail. The necessary equipment to do the work will be tractor-elevating grader unit division, which will be used to do major portion of the dirt work. Other equipment will be used to work on the Malpais portion of the road.

Camp has been pitched on the job and the Malpais portion will occupy first attention. Because of the size of the organization and the kind and amount of equipment necessary to do the work, it is predicted by experienced road men that this job will establish a construction record for the state of New Mexico. Engineers interested in highway building, will watch the work with great interest.

Carrizozo's Road-Working Commissioner

Chas. F. Grey

Never in the history of Lincoln County, has there ever been a county commissioner who has so devoted himself to the interest of the county, as a whole. Mr. Grey is a road foreman and as such, he has been of valuable service to the county. As far as the highway department would allow him to go on appropriations allotted to the county, he has been untiring in his efforts to serve the people regardless of party followings. In our issue of August 7, we published an article comparing the road work done during the Dillon administration with the nothingness which we were compelled to accept during the administrations of Hinkle and Hannett. During those terms, even Democrats who were supposed to have prestige with the powers that were, did everything possible to get recognition, but to no avail.

Now, in the past two years, see what has been accomplished. We have roads which people from other states are complimenting us on. Mr. Grey is again a candidate for the office which he now holds and again solicits the support of the people. If you think he has served you well, if you appreciate the improvement where we had none before the present administration assumed charge, vote for the ones who have been friends of the county—the Dillon administration.

Nail-Picker Here; Picks 2500 Pounds First Day

The State Highway Department has placed one of its Nail-Pickers in this District, No. 2, which reaches from Carrizozo to Roswell. The nail-picker arrived here Wednesday morning and was set to work.

It took in the main thoroughfares, and after weighing up the nails, spikes, old tin cans, etc., picked up during the day, it was found that the enormous amount of that mentioned above in refuse material which can do nothing but ruin automobile tires, was the result of the work.

The machine will be at the disposal of the district, and Chief Engineer Davidson assured us that it may remain here as long as we can make use of it.

This additional courtesy shown to Lincoln County by the present administration should not be overlooked.

To Voters of this County

Respectfully,

Ben Newell.

Chief Engineer Davidson Here

came in Monday to meet Contractor Tobin on Tuesday. Mr. Tobin arrived according to appointment, and was followed by the road equipment mentioned in another article in this paper. To the "Doubting Thomases" who have predicted that this enormous Malpais project was a myth and was only being used as political propaganda for the coming election, we not only refer them to the article above mentioned, but seeing is better than believing, and a trip to the scene of activity which commences today, will settle all arguments.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Italy Also Rejects Anglo-French Navy Agreement—Smith Invades South.

BY EDWARD W. PICKARD

ITALY, like the United States, has rejected the Anglo-French agreement as a basis for future naval limitation. Premier Mussolini's note is not so abrupt as Secretary Kellogg's, but is just as specific in its objections to naval limitation by categories, and undoubtedly completes the destruction of the agreement.

The note reaffirms Premier Mussolini's declaration in the Italian senate last June, when he said, "Italy is ready to accept as the limit of armaments any figure, even the lowest, provided it is not exceeded by any other continental European power, meaning, of course, France. It insists, however, on consideration of all branches of arms, land, naval, and air, in any discussion for disarmament."

The Fascist note launches into a lengthy explanation of why it favors limitation of global tonnage for navies instead of limitation by categories. The argument is identical with that advanced by the American delegation at the tripartite naval conference at Geneva a year ago, and repeated in the American reply to the French British memorandum.

"Each state must be left free to use its tonnage quota the way it believes it best answers its particular needs, both as regards the type of ships and its armament," Mussolini explains.

France, which admittedly would be the chief beneficiary of the agreement with England, is mighty tough on the subject. Last week the authorities in Paris seized the person of Harold Moran, correspondent of the Universal Service, because he had cabled to New York a letter Foreign Minister Briand had sent to French ambassadors regarding the interpretation of the pact and compelled him to agree to leave the country. Mr. Moran's explanation was that his employer, William Randolph Hearst, had handed him the document with instructions to send it to America.

The British cabinet voted to make public all the documents and correspondence in connection with the agreement "as soon as practicable." It was necessary first to get the consent of all the nations concerned. Sir Austro Chamberlain, British foreign secretary who is now in California in search of health and a rest, declined to discuss this subject or any other affairs of state. He is suffering from neuritis in his left arm but is said to be getting fatter and gaining weight.

GEN CHIANG KAI-SHEK, generalissimo of the Chinese Nationalist forces, was elected first President of the Nationalist government of the country, including Manchuria, and was inaugurated on the seventeenth anniversary of the revolt against the emperor on October 10, 1921. Chiang, who is only forty-one years old, actually is only President of the government state council but as he is also chairman of the Executive central executive committee, which controls the government, he is the dominant figure in China. The United States, Germany, France and the Netherlands were the only foreign governments that called congratulations to General Chiang.

Dr. S. Porkeo Cadman, chairman of the China famine relief organization in New York, has received from a mission in Kansu a letter telling of terrible conditions in that remote province. Last year's earthquake killed 25,000 and reduced 100,000 to dire poverty; this year's crops were ruined by drought and famine conditions prevail already; and to cap the climax the Moslems, who form a third of the population are in revolt and have massacred at least 200,000 persons.

GOV. AL SMITH was almost quietest the first part of last week, but as the campaign was concerned, but Wednesday night he left New York for a visit to the solid South. He passed through part of North Carolina and Tennessee, making no set speeches but appearing frequently on the rear platform of his car and stopping at Chattanooga for a conference with party leaders. Then he proceeded to Louisville, where he delivered an address on Saturday. His schedule called for a week of campaigning from Missouri to Ohio with a speech in Chicago October 30; then a brief rest in Albany followed by a final tour of two weeks in Atlantic seaboard cities. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland opened the Democratic campaign in Chicago with a rousing speech, most of which was devoted to the religious issue and a vigorous attack on intolerance. The rest of the time he spoke on prohibition, which he doesn't like. Ritchie was followed in Chicago by Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York.

Herbert Hoover, whose appearance in Elizabethton, Tenn., was declared by his supporters to have been a great success in the way of winning votes, put in much time preparing for his Boston address. He also conferred with New York state Republican leaders and told them the result there was up to them. They appeared fairly confident but do not underestimate the battle that confronts them.

H. O. Hansbrough, once a Republican senator from North Dakota and now a supporter of Al Smith, put forth the charge last week in a Minneapolis speech that Hoover "is credited" with owning oil and mining properties in Colombia and Mexico, and demanded that he withdraw from the campaign and permit the selection of a Republican candidate "who cannot be influenced in handling our foreign relations." Henry J. Allen, director of Republican publicity, learning that Hansbrough was to make the accusation, wired him that there was no foundation for the statement and that it could only be uttered for the purpose of gaining votes by deliberate lies. Hansbrough, however, delivered his address and made the charges, which he insisted were "based on facts."

SAN ANTONIO surrendered absolutely to the American Legion and the former service men had a fine time at their convention in the Texas city. General Pershing delivered an address on the opening day devoted mainly to a plea to the Legion to create an interest in good government that would impel voters to go to the polls on election day. Lord Allenby of England was given a great ovation when he was presented with the Legion's distinguished service cross. Wednesday the big parade was staged, with about 10,000 members of the Legion and its auxiliary in line and numerous bands filling the air with melody. The procession was more than four hours passing the Alamo where it was reviewed by various dignitaries. Louisville was awarded next year's convention, and Paul V. McNatt, dean of Indiana university law school, was elected national commander.

UNITED SPANISH WAR VETERANS held their annual convention in Havana, Cuba, where more than 7,000 members and their friends were welcomed by President Machado. Col. William L. Grayson of Savannah, Ga., was elected commander in chief almost unanimously; and Otto Raftis of Minnesota senior vice commander and Frank E. Shea of Connecticut junior vice commander. The parade, which was held on the anniversary of Cuba's ten-year revolt, was participated in by Cuban army contingents and officers and men from the battleship Texas. The Marine memorial was officially dedicated with impressive ceremonies.

THE American navy's big dirigible Los Angeles successfully made the round trip from Lakehurst to San Antonio and back for the purpose of visiting the Texas city at the time of the American Legion convention. One night air mail flyer made complaint that he narrowly escaped collision with the airship because of its lack of lights.

COMMANDER RICHARD E. BYRD is really on his way to the Antarctic, for, with members of his party, he set sail from San Pedro, Calif., in the whaler C. A. Larsen, the flagship of his expedition. The other three vessels will be met in New Zealand and the expedition will go thence to Ross sea. Byrd expects to make an airplane flight over the South pole, but this will be only an incident, for the commander's chief purpose is to make a long and intensive study of the Antarctic regions.

CLERGY and lay members of the Episcopal church in large numbers gathered in Washington for the forty-ninth triennial general convention of the church. The opening service was held in the natural amphitheater on Mount St. Alban, and President Coolidge delivered an address in which he emphasized religion as the underpinning of all government and of all society. In the first session of the house of deputies Dr. J. B. Barney Phillips of Washington was elected chairman.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE learned the other day that a score of ministers to foreign countries who graduated to their present positions from the foreign service of the Department of State had tentatively agreed to try to hold on to their jobs by withholding their resignations when Mr. Coolidge retires next March. The President thereupon made it known that the future of these "career" diplomats would rest wholly in the hands of his successor who will have full power to remove them.

President Coolidge has appointed an unusually large number of career men to the highest diplomatic posts. While sympathetic toward as permanent a foreign service as it is possible to attain, the President fears the present reported move on the part of the ministers is simply another manifestation of a disposition by some government services to attempt to organize themselves into self-perpetuating bodies.

EVIDENCE against dry law offenders obtained by tapping wires is still admissible in federal courts regardless of state laws making wire tapping a crime, for the United States Supreme court has refused to review its decision so holding. Justice Holmes dissented in the original case, denouncing the government for willfully breaking one law to enforce another. New York was aroused by the discovery that about thirty persons had died there within a few days supposedly from drinking alcohol that had been poisoned by government agents to make it unpalatable. The police promptly closed a lot of speakeasies in the lower East side section where most of the alcohol was obtained.

FOR the second consecutive time the New York Yankees of the American league won the world series, defeating the St. Louis Cardinals of the National league in four straight games. The final game was remarkable for the number of home runs. Babe Ruth closed the season in a blaze of glory by making three. As their share of the gate receipts the Yanks received $3,531 each, and the Cards $4,107 each.

TEXTILE workers of New Bedford, Mass., have called off their strike that had lasted 23 weeks and accepted a compromise under which wages will be reduced 5 per cent instead of 10, and the manufacturers will hereafter give the workers 30 days' notice of any proposed wage cut.

GRAF ZEPPELIN, the huge German dirigible, the first to cross the Atlantic carrying paid passengers, started from Friedrichshafen Thursday morning on its memorable flight and landed at Lakehurst, N. J., where the navy air station had made all preparations to ground and house the airship. There were but three paying passengers, two of whom were Americans. Press representatives numbered four. The official guests included Commander Charles E. Rosendahl of the United States navy, representative of the German and Spanish governments, Lady Grace Drummond Hay and Count Brandstein-Zepelin, the inventor's son-in-law. Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, was also its chief pilot. A large quantity of mail was brought over on the airship.

It was expected the Graf Zeppelin would remain in the United States about ten days and then return to Germany.

The industrial employment survey report, recently issued by the U. S. employment service of the U. S. Lumbering continues normally active in the Flagstaff and McNary districts. A large program of highway construction is under way in many sections of state. A moderate increase in railroad freight transportation forces will likely be noted during October and November. The report for New Mexico states that resident and migratory labor in most all sections of state is well employed. Opportunity for employment is sufficient to afford all available migratory and part time workers with employment during October, in connection with the cotton harvest campaign in southern and southeastern sections of state. Harvesting of miscellaneous fall crops and fall plowing is affording general farm labor with steady employment. Metal mining continues active. Metal mine labor supply and demand well balanced. While the coal mining operations are seasonally increasing, the local supply of coal mine labor has been ample as far to meet requirements. Oil field prospecting activities, which continue on an extensive scale, particularly noted in southeastern sections of state. Industrial plants are operating steadily. Cotton gins have commenced their seasonal runs. Lumbering—both wood and mill operations, particularly in the Bernalillo district, is normally active. Building and general construction continues active. The building labor supply and demand is reported well balanced, except at Roswell, where a moderate number of first-class building mechanics are needed. An extensive program of highway construction is under way.

This Little Girl Got Well Quick

"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Turnage, 217 Cadwalder St., San Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her. Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

"You can't do it," he gasped. "You had your trial and were justly sentenced. You've tried for a new trial and it was denied."

"I tried without the new evidence I am going to submit."

Grant's brain was clearing.

"You have no new evidence."

"I shall have," Sutton returned. "For what purpose do you suppose I have followed you here if not to get some?"

"You'll get none from me. What's more, I'm expecting two friends here any moment."

"They are hunting for me in the woods miles away. I set a false trail for them to follow. They will not return until daylight. Payson, there is no human help for you here. I have seen to that. We have three hours together. You are going to confess everything to me and I shall have these friends of yours witness it. Although they do not know me, they dare not ignore me when I tell them all."

"They'll send you back to jail."

"If so, it will not be for long."

"You're got things twisted," Grant said eagerly. "If they see you here, they've got to send you back. They'd be punished if they withheld the information. Your chance is to go back now. If I wanted to call for help nobody would hear. If you want to keep your freedom make your getaway before they come and find you here."

Grant trembled for the success of his suggestion. Sutton's expressionless face and lack of physical violence no longer seemed so terrifying. Perhaps the long prison term had brought him near to insanity. He had so often hoodwinked his former friend in other days that the desire to attempt it at this moment of peril lent him plenty of specious cunning.

He was bold enough now to light a cigarette and sit back in his chair easily.

"Frank," he said, almost as though he had determined to act generously, "I won't try to stop you if you escape now. Every moment you remain here brings you in greater danger of being caught. Any moment some of the help might come in."

Sutton shook his head.

"At this hour? Nonsense. I know how the help's camp is run considering I've been in hiding there. They are all asleep. We have more than two hours; that will be enough for me."

Grant took out something of its newly-gained assurance. He assumed the character of Grimes. Sutton was not to be deceived as readily as he hoped. Grant had allowed himself to be misled because he had looked for a madman lusty for vengeance and had been confronted with one who, instead, expected he would sign a confession.

"We are going to talk this over," Payson Grant remarked. If he were not able to persuade Sutton to make his escape, it might be possible to keep him here until Weld and Trent returned. He did not believe they would remain away until daylight.

In answer Sutton rose to his feet and pushed his chair back. Then he came to Grant's side.

"Fool!" he said contemptuously. "Do you think you can deceive me like that. Don't you realize that I've had years to think over this very conversation and wonder what excuses and subterfuges your pitiful, mean soul would try?"

"What are you going to do?" Grant said. His fortitude was dropping from him. Again he was coming under the influence of profound fear.

"As you won't sign the confession now, I'm going to beat you until you do. Get up."

"You're not going to kill me?" Grant cried. There was the look of anger in the other's eye which left him weak.

"Possibly," said Sutton, "but that depends on you. If you don't sign what frees me from prison, I shan't bother what becomes of you, or me."

The tragedy of his situation dawned on Grant in its full horror. Unless he signed his own commitment warrant he would be beaten, bruised, tortured and finally forced to sign. There seemed no escape. All his life Payson Grant had feared physical pain. When he was suffering he was a coward willing to promise anything for alleviation of his condition. He knew that a man of Sutton's powerful physique would hurt him so badly that he would attach his signature to any document. It was an ordeal by torture, one of those inquisitional punishments which he had read of as a child.

His hands closed nervously on the butt of the automatic. In this hour of need he thought, suddenly, that Sutton was an outlaw whom any man might shoot and be certain of approbation. After all, he had proofs in a number of letters that Sutton had threatened him. The world would commend him for killing in self-defense.

Payson Grant fired six shots into the body of the man who had been his friend and benefactor. The range was not more than six feet. He was not made of the material to take joy in killing. The noise startled him. The look of agony on Sutton's face was unnerving. The crash that seemed to fill the house when, in falling, Sutton swept a little smoking table to the ground was horrible to him. From the inside pocket of the dead man's coat he took the confession. He glanced through it. To sign such a document would be to incriminate himself irrevocably. He tossed it on a flickering log and watched it flare up.

The paper was still flaming when his door burst open and Weld, followed by Trent, came in.

"What's this?" Weld cried, looking at the crumpled body.

"He attacked me," Grant answered, "and I had to shoot in self-defense."

Trent was kneeling at Sutton's side.

"Who is it?" Weld demanded.

"A man who came in and attacked me."

Weld glanced around the room. But for the smoking table there was nothing disturbed.

He Heard Weld Tell Some One a Murder Had Been Committed.

"Come in and attacked you, eh?"

"Took me utterly at a disadvantage," Grant declared.

Trent rose up from the silent man's side.

"He's dead. He was shot several times and—he wasn't armed. To me it looks like premeditated murder," said Trent impressively.

He pulled a coverlet from the bed and hid the dead man from view.

"It was not murder," Grant cried. "I tell you he came in and threatened to kill me so I had to protect myself. That's the man who gave you that letter for me one night at Deal Beach. You asked if it was a black-hand threat."

"That's not the man," Trent said, shaking his head. "Nothing like him. If I were you, Swithin, I'd send for the police or whatever you have here that could take charge. This is nothing less than murder."

"He threatened me, I tell you," Grant cried.

Weld cut short his protestations.

"If I were you," he advised, "I'd keep what I had to say until the sheriff comes. You are in a very bad position and I shall have to repeat what you say and that might damage your case."

"You've got to see those threatening letters," Grant said feverishly looking from one to the other. "They're in that coat."

The two men watched him take out an envelope with an air of triumph. He handed it to Weld. "Read," he commanded.

The envelope was empty.

"What am I to read?" Weld asked.

They allowed him to look into other pockets, but the threatening letters were not there. Sutton must have taken them, he supposed. He told them so.

"Get them," Trent suggested, glancing at the outline under the coverlet. "He can't hurt you now."

But Grant shrank back. The sheriff would find what he wanted.

"Let me get my lawyer on the long distance?" he pleaded.

"You must ask the sheriff that," Weld answered.

Grant was conscious that these two men were not regarding him in a friendly fashion. Instead of sympathy, even approbation, it was plain they were already strongly prejudiced against him.

"There has to be an inquest," he heard Trent tell Weld, "and nothing must be moved until the authorities permit it. We'd better go down and telephone for them now."

Grant, a man on each side of him, was taken to the hall where the telephone was. He heard Weld tell some one a murder had been committed.

"They'll be here in an hour," he told Trent.

"You'd no right to say it was murder," Grant protested. "That prejudices them against me."

"It looked like a murder," Trent remarked.

"I owe you an explanation," Grant began, "and you ought to be willing to listen."

"We shall hear it all at the trial," Trent said.

Grant looked from one to the other, wildly. If he had such difficulty in making these men, who had been his friends, believe, how much more trouble would he not have with others?

"The man I had to shoot," he said, "is the man who got ten years in Sing Sing and escaped when he had served nearly three of them. He was Frank Sutton. Mrs. Grant was formerly his wife. Everybody knows he threatened to kill me."

"Why?" Weld snapped.

"He thought I had done him an injury," Grant faltered a little.

"Had you?" Trent demanded, looking him full in the eye.

"I was his best friend," Grant returned, more firmly.

"It's my opinion," Trent said, "that you'll have some difficulty in making a jury believe it was necessary to empty your automatic into the heart of a man who had neither gun, knife nor other weapon with him."

"Another thing," said Weld, "it isn't going to be easy to explain why you didn't call for help. Trent and I were both in the hall, smoking. If you had called we should have heard. Apparently you made no sort of attempt to summon help. Juries get curious over things like that."

"It was too sudden," Grant explained. "I had no time. It was his life or mine."

"And he wasn't armed!" Contempt was in Weld's tone.

"How could I know that? I daren't take a chance. Who would offer knowing the desperate sort of man he was? I tell you he threatened me in open court as you can read in the newspaper report of the trial. I'm going to call up my lawyer." Grant moved toward the telephone.

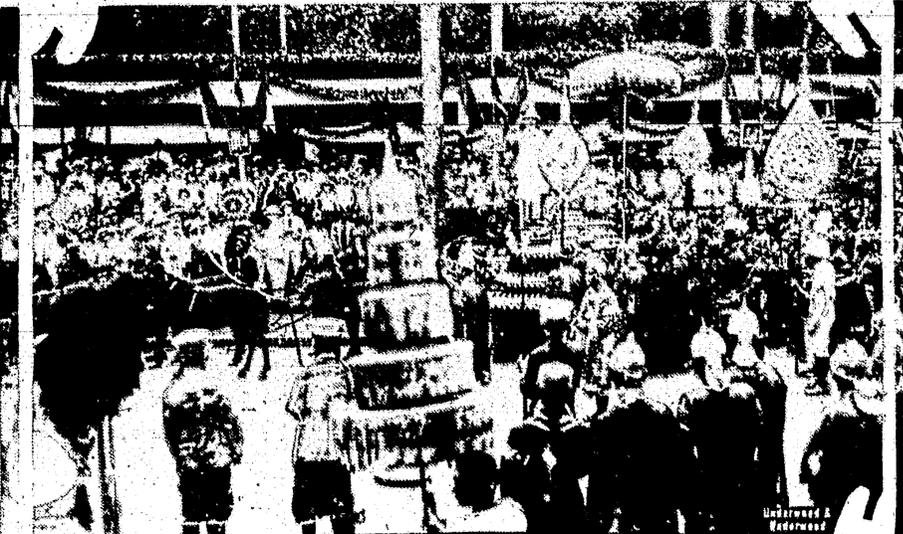

"Not till we have the sheriff's permission," Trent said. Grant felt himself forcibly propelled toward a closet where a store of logs was kept. He was thrust in. The key was turned on him. In vain he beat half hysterical against the heavy oak door. Finally he sat on a pile of logs in the darkness. He could not understand why he had been so treated. He would sue for damages; he would expose their high-handedness. But these threats gave him little comfort. Naticca would get enough of the wrong sort of notoriety now. Sometimes the course of justice was unaccountably perverse. He might not get acquitted after all. He sat brooding unhappily on his troubles until his dungeon door was flung open and he was hauled, blinking, into the light.

There were three strangers gathered about the blazing fire. One wore a sheriff's badge; a second was his deputy. The third man, whom they addressed as "doctor," was a keen-eyed man of strong build and middle age. He looked at Payson Grant very shrewdly. It was a glance that was not easy to meet.

"And this is the murderer!" he commented.

The Spirit of Revenge

Injustice always brings punishment in its train, but the spirit of revenge often grows with time, and is stronger in the descendants of those who have suffered than it was in the sufferers themselves; while the penalties fall not on those who did the wrong, but on their more innocent successors, who are trying to atone for the past. —James Bryce.

Banana Employed by the Serpent in Eden?

"Early inhabitants of the East believed that the banana plant was the source of good and evil and that the serpent which tempted Eve hid in a bunch of the fruit," according to W. T. Pope of the Hawaii experiment station of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Undoubtedly this legend influenced the early classifiers who designated two species of the plant as Musa paradisiaca (fruit of paradise) and Musa sapientum (fruit of knowledge). The common name, "banana," was adopted from the language of an African Congo tribe, and first came into use during the sixteenth century. Prior to that time the fruit was called "apple of paradise" and "Adam's fig."

The name "banana" seems to have been borne for a long period by the fruit, which was eaten raw. The term

"plantain" was given to a variety which, though closely related to the banana, is edible only after being cooked.

The generic name "Musa" for the banana group was bestowed by the botanist Linnaeus in honor of Antonius Musa, a learned physician of the early Roman empire.—Chicago Journal.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

The Mud Daubers

In their frantic efforts to gain possession of the reins of government both state and national, the Democrats, despite their own proposition to have a campaign free from mud-slinging, are resorting to all kinds of filthy accusations against the Republicans. Beginning with the head of their ticket and extending all along the line, their attacks are the most vile and ridiculous we have known of for years past.

We ask all reasonable minded people to compare speeches made by the Republican candidates on their visits to Carrizozo and elsewhere over the state with the mean, filthy, mud-daubing policies of the Democrats. If anyone who attended the meetings when the Republicans were here can name one thing said other than that of a mild temperament toward their opponents, let he, or she, speak out. Contrary in the extreme, is the truth in the matter.

We were proud of our candidates. The manner in which they held to the issues of the campaign instead of making attacks on their opponents met with the approval of their hearers and made votes for the party instead of losing as the Democrats are doing with their mud-slinging. Gov. Smith headed the mud campaign and his followers eagerly followed suit. His dirty campaign will go down in history as the meanest that has ever been waged and is in line with the past tactics of his organization—Tammany. Tammany knows no other policy, but that of violence in its methods to gain power, but now in the twilight of the campaign, one can plainly see that results of such methods, which, while they may work out in circles where that organization holds sway, the people of the United States will repudiate such practice.

In the state, the Democrats have spoken every mean and contemptible thing that they could mention about Governor Dillon, Senator Cutting and other candidates on the Republican ticket, without even a cause. Mr. Dow says that if elected, he will stop all road work, throw the highway employees out of work, cut the highway department from head to the feet. He condemns the good roads he rides over to fulfill his political appointments.

Mr. Vaught carries his mud board and trowel, slanders in vicious terms, his opponent, Senator Cutting; attacks all good measures enacted by the Dillon administration, but the people are wise enough to see for themselves and will repudiate such policies at the November election.

Engineer of Civilization

Herbert Hoover is engineering our material civilization as a whole; and that without grasping the human spirit, dispiriting the human soul. Even though the work fell at times to mind and incompetent successors, it must go on; for he has shown a new way.—Will Irwin.

To the Voters of Lincoln County

Carrizozo, N. M.
To the Voters of Lincoln County Ladies and Gentlemen:
On the solicitation of many friends, both Republicans and Democrats, I have accepted the nomination for the office of County Treasurer on the Republican ticket.

The time is very short and it will be impossible for me to see all the voters, and I am taking this method of soliciting your support in the coming election on November 6th.

As you know I have filled public offices in Lincoln County several times and feel that I am qualified for the office of County Treasurer. My record speaks for itself, and if you can consistently support me in the coming election it will be appreciated.

Yours very truly,
Eumaldo Duran.

WAYS TO PREPARE RICE WITH MILK

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Cook rice in water when you expect to use it as the starchy food at dinner, as an ingredient of various made dishes, such as steaks or scalloped combinations, or in soups, cakes, or breads.

Cook it in milk when you wish to increase its food value. Its flavor, too, is enhanced when it is cooked in whole or skim milk or in half milk and half water. The rice will sometimes absorb as much as four times its volume of milk, so a cupful of rice and a quart of milk will result in a combination that is high in food value. Rice cooked in milk may be served as a breakfast cereal, or as a dessert with various kinds of fresh, canned or dried fruits.

You know how delicately creamy old-fashioned rice pudding is—the kind made without eggs—in which the thickening of the milk is done by

United States Department of Agriculture for the bulletin, which is free. Old-fashioned Creamy Rice Pudding—

1 1/2 cups uncooked rice 1/2 tsp. nutmeg or 1 quart milk cinnamon 1/2 cup sugar 1 tsp. salt
Wash the rice, add the other ingredients, pour the mixture into a good-sized baking dish, and cook in the oven slowly for about two or three hours, stirring it frequently. If allowed to cook slowly the milk thickens to a creamy consistency and the rice swells to several times its original size. If double the quantity of rice is used, the mixture does not require such long cooking, as the rice in swelling thickens the liquid more rapidly, but the product is not so creamy.

Rice Bavarian Cream.

1/2 cup uncooked rice Nutmeg or cinnamon
4 cups milk Whites of 2 eggs
1 1/2 lbs. granulated sugar 1 tsp. salt gelatin dissolved in 1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 1/2 lbs. cold water 1/2 cup sugar

Wash the rice and cook it in the double boiler with the sugar, salt and milk until soft and thick, stirring it frequently. Soak the gelatin in cold water, stir it into the hot rice mixture, add the spice, and let the mixture cool. When nearly set, fold in the whites of eggs beaten stiff, stir in the vanilla, and turn the mixture into molds. Serve with whipped cream or with a custard sauce, dotted with tart jelly.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

Moisture and extreme heat destroy the wearing quality of shoe leather.

If brown sugar is kept in an open container in the refrigerator it will be free from lumps.

In canning peaches choose those that are firm, sound, and uniform in size. The over-ripe, soft and broken peaches may be used for jam or peach butter.

Because bread molds quickly in hot weather, it is well to send bread boxes twice a week, dry them in the sun, and keep them free from old crumbs and scraps.

Rice With Milk.

long, slow cooking. The milk acquires a characteristic flavor. Another good rice and milk pudding is rice bavarian.

Plain or Printed Velvet

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

There is no need to question whether to wear or not to wear velvet during the coming months, for the mode has definitely settled the matter. As to whether this new velvet gown or gowns, for every woman is sure to feel the urge of buying more than one, be plain or printed, that is entirely a matter of choice, for fashion sponsors one as much as the other.

Nor is there any arbitrary rule as to whether plain velvet be reserved for evening wear and print for day-styling. Although in regard to printed velvets one notes that the small all-over repeat designs are popular for daytime ensembles, suits and frocks, while the flowered velvets which are so new and so colorful as were the summer chiffon prints we loved so well, are as yet more or less reserved for evening wear.

At a glance, the models in the picture bespeak their intention for dressy, day-time wear. Note the charm of the yoke lines which are featured derfully attractive in the now-so-fashionable warm brown tones. However, while it is true that the new browns are in evidence more than any other color range, still they do not fill the picture to the point of crowding out other equally as fetching colorings. An outstanding favorite among velvet prints is that of the ever-pleasing black and white combination. Black spotted with white or with a silvery shadowy white patterning is among prints most liked.

Sometimes the black-and-white idea is worked out in a different way. That is, the ensemble is made up of a black-and-white printed velvet jacket posed over a white sheer velvet blouse, the skirt being of sheer velvet in monotone black.

Exquisite lace is contributing fascinating beauty touches to the new velvet gowns, Jabots, capelets, novel cuffs, collars and yokes of dainty laces are more and more in evidence on daytime as well as evening frocks.

The original dress, as photographed, is black but it might just as well have been in any one of the modish browns, or deep wine or jungle green, for the new velvets are especially sought in these shades.

RECIPES FOR COOKING HAM

Here are two ham dishes—one which utilizes the last of the cold cooked ham after it has been ground up—and the other suggesting a new way of cooking a slice of broiling ham. The bureau of home economics gives both recipes.

Ham Souffle.
2 cups scalded milk 2 cups finely ground cooked ham
2 tbs. butter 1 tbs. chopped parsley
2 tbs. flour 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1/2 tsp. pepper Salt to taste

Prepare a cream sauce of the flour, butter and milk. Separate the egg yolks and whites and beat each well. Mix the bread crumbs, the yolks of the eggs, and the ham with the cream sauce. Add the pepper, salt and parsley. Fold in the beaten whites of eggs and turn into a greased baking dish. Bake for about 35 minutes at a medium temperature. Serve from the dish.

USE OF RAYON

Use of rayon, the name commonly accepted for what was known as "artificial silk," has extended to practically all lines of fabrics and for many household furnishings such as curtains and draperies. Rayon is made from either wood pulp or cotton by chemical treatment which reduces the raw material to a sticky fluid. This fluid in turn is drawn out into a fiber by a machine that might be called a "mechanical silk worm."

Indoor Diversion

Tommy had two presents at the same time—one a diary, which he kept very carefully for a while, and the other a pea-shooting popgun, which he fired indiscriminately on all occasions.

One day his mother found the following terse record in the diary: "Monday cold and sloppy, Tuesday cold and sloppy, Wednesday cold and sloppy—shot grandma."

When fruits are eaten raw none of the vitamins content is lost.

Nellie Maxwell's Recipes

Those who like coffee flavor will enjoy the delicate aroma temptingly confined in:

Steamed Coffee Pudding.—Cream one fourth cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar, and one egg lightly beaten. Add four tablespoonfuls of finely ground coffee and ten cupful of milk and scald ten minutes. Strain through a cheesecloth, sift together two and one-fourth cupful of pastry flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add this alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Turn into a large buttered mold and steam for two hours. If steamed in smaller molds, steam one-half hour. Serve with the following sauce: Melt one-half cupful of butter, add one cupful of powdered sugar and one egg slightly beaten. Add one cupful of milk which has been scalded with three tablespoonfuls of coffee and strain. The milk and coffee may all be prepared at one time and the milk for the sauce reheated.

Emergency Pudding.—This is one of the old standbys which may be stirred up and steamed while the dinner is being eaten. Take one cupful of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder and a half teaspoonful of salt, add enough rich milk to make a drop batter. Butter cups and drop in a spoonful of the dough. Then add two to three tablespoonfuls of canned cherries or any juicy fruit—the more juice the better. Top with more dough, leaving space 'o rise and put to cook in a pan of boiling water, cover it closely. If ordinary tea cups are used for molds, this recipe makes four large puddings. If smaller ones, care must be taken not to have the boiling water come up too high—set them on a trivet. Serve with cream and sugar. Cook fifteen minutes, then remove cover and serve.

Muskmelon With Ice Cream.—Cut golden muskmelons into halves, remove the seeds. Serve with a ball of vanilla ice cream and dust with nuts or garnish with pieces of candied ginger to simulate seeds.

An emergency shelf with a few cans of different foods, fish and fowl, will be found a most satisfactory possession in time of need.

Salmon Souffle.—Remove the skin and bones from a can of salmon, separate into flakes and season with one teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice, with pepper and paprika to taste. Cook one-half cupful of bread crumbs with one-half cupful of milk five minutes. Add the salmon, the yolks of three eggs beaten thick and

FURNISHING FARM HOME SUN PORCH

Arrangement of a Sun Porch in Virginia.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
This pleasant sun porch was added to a farm home in Montgomery county, Virginia, as a part of the general improvement of the home carried out at the suggestion of the county extension agent. The door into the living room was formerly a window. No new furniture was bought, as the living room was fitted out with several refurnished pieces from the attic and chairs were thus released for the sun room. New crocheted rag rugs were made, and the old hanging lamp bracket from the living room was pressed into service as it was no longer needed within doors. The simple valanced curtains relieve plainness without obscuring any of the welcome sunshine.

Fairy Tale for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Now, are all my brothers and workers ready?" asked Jack Frost.

"We all are," chimed in all the Frost Brothers and the workers.

"Then we will divide into groups as we usually do," said Jack Frost.

"Ah, how nice it is to get back to the same old fun and the same old games and the same old windows and the same old flowers," said Master Chilly.

"The flowers are all different," said Master Very Cool.

"No matter," said Master Chilly, "they are all the same kinds of flowers and we do the same things to them."

"That is the fun of it," said Master Heavy Frost.

"The windows will be the same nice windows," said Jack Frost, "and we can get out our magic paint brushes and do all sorts of pictures of turrets and towers, or great bridges and of deep chasms."

"We can make knights and ladies, kings and queens, princes and princesses, all with our magic paint brushes."

"It's fine to be Jack Frost, and it's fine to belong to such a fine band of workers," he said, pausing his chest proudly.

"Let's get started," said Master Heavy Frost.

"Yes, I will whisper that in their ears, or in their faces."

"You won't need to tell them any such thing," said Master Very Cool.

"They will know just as soon as you draw near to them that the frost is on its way and that afterward winter will follow and that it is no time of the year for little flowers—except a few of the very strong little flowers.

"And, too, you can't do all your work in one evening. But the autumn is quite long and there are lots of places with gardens."

"Ah yes, we have a good many evenings from now on when we can work, eh, Jack Frost?"

Jack nodded his head and waved his cap about in the air, saying, "These are my days and nights.

Yes, these are to be our nights for fun and froezing."

"Frost-biting, you mean," said Master Chilly.

"Don't contradict your elders and superiors," said Jack Frost hastily. "I may correct you, but you may not correct me."

"Oh, don't let's quarrel when we're going to nip the flowers and paint beautiful pictures on the windows," said Master Chilly.

"That's right, we won't quarrel," said Jack Frost. "And besides, you were right. I must admit it—these are to be our frosty nights, hurrah!"

So the Frost Brothers, the Frost workers and Jack Frost at the head of the procession started off for their evening's fun.

They went this way and that. They visited gardens and they nipped flowers. They painted pictures upon the windows and they had one of their gorgeous autumn parties.

But toward the morning Mr. Sun came and drove them away, saying, "You have lots of time yet, Jack Frost and partners, and you mustn't do all your work in one night."

So Jack Frost and his partners, his brothers and his workers rested for the day while they dreamed of other wonderful pictures they would draw when night came along, and of other flowers they would nip, and how they would have one party after the other, right through the lovely chilly autumn.

And when the night came once more they were at work and at play, for both words mean the same to Jack Frost and Company!

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

"When America stepped in," he said, "a very plausible yarn" was told us, but this plausible yarn didn't alter a pretty horrid state of affairs.

"A minister was calling on a lady when her young son galloped into the room. High over his head he held a rat by the tail.

"We got him in the cellar, mamma," the little fellow piped. "Don't be afraid. He's dead all right. We lammed him and beat him and jumped on him till—"

Lesson for October 28 PAUL'S LAST JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Acts 20:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT—Remember the words of the Lord Jesus how he said, it is more blessed to give than to receive.

Paul's Visit to Greece and Miletus (20:1-16). Two incidents marked this trip: 1. The Jews laid wait for him (vv. 1-5).

1. Review of his three years' ministry (vv. 18-21). (1) The spirit of his ministry (v. 19). He was humble, tender and faithful in spite of the many trials which befell him.

2. The present state of things (vv. 22-27). Having reviewed his ministry, he now points out clearly, (1) His immediate purpose was to go to Jerusalem (v. 22).

3. His charge to the elders (vv. 28-35). (1) The ground of (v. 28). The flock for which they must care was purchased by the precious blood of Jesus and they had received their commission from the Lord.

4. Paul Tarrying Seven Days at Tyre (21:1-6). His destination was Jerusalem. He was pressing thitherward with all speed, but on account of the unloading of the ship he was obliged to wait at Tyre for seven days.

5. Paul at Jerusalem (vv. 15-17). The brethren at Jerusalem, gladly received him and his companions. Paul's lodging place was with an old disciple.

Little Things Little foxes that spoil the vineyards; Little compromises with the world; disobedience to the still-small voice in little things; Little indulgences of the flesh to the neglect of duty; Little strokes of policy; doing evil in little things that good may come; and the beauty, and the fruitfulness of the vine are sacrificed.—J. Hudson Taylor.

TAMMANY IDEA NOT WELCOME IN SOUTH

Lifelong Democrats Indorse G. O. P. Candidate.

Thousands of letters continue to pour into Republican National headquarters extolling the fitness of Hoover for the Presidency and citing the reasons why many old Democrats are finding themselves voting for a Republican for the first time this year.

From the bayous of Louisiana, C. Cottingham, president of Louisiana college at Pineville turns from his educational pursuits to say, "You need only to call on me for any special service I may render Hoover. The state of Louisiana will cast the largest Republican vote in its history and some of the southern states will go Republican, I am sure."

In New York city, George L. Upshur, lifelong Democrat and a son of the late Rear Admiral Upshur, visits the Republican speakers' bureau to tell Col. John Q. Tilson that Governor Smith symbolizes the return of the legalized liquor traffic and the Tammany idea in politics. The old South, solidly Democratic for so long, is weakening, he said.

Rock-ribbed Republican West Virginia will remain that way, Charles E. Carrigan of Charleston writes. The national ticket, headed by Herbert Hoover, has the unqualified respect of Virginians and the local ticket as well as the state ticket are both unusually strong in the present campaign, according to Mr. Carrigan.

Mellon Makes Strong Appeal for Hoover Business is business with Andrew Mellon and he looks at it unbiased by politics. According to an editorial which appeared in the Binghamton (N. Y.) Press, Mr. Mellon finds "no cause for worry" and the Press finds that his views are a powerful indorsement of Hoover.

Arkansas Not for Smith Arkansas is safe for Hoover, Col. John Q. Tilson of the Republican National committee was assured by former State Senator J. H. Keel, a veteran of sixteen years in the state legislature of Arkansas. He called at the office of the head of the speakers' bureau to say that the revolt in Arkansas against the Smith-Robinson ticket would assure the Republican victory.

The Wisconsin Dells GEOLOGISTS declare that once upon a time that section of the United States which is now designated as Wisconsin was covered by a massive sheet of ice—somehow like the Greenland of today. This ice period probably came to an end some 60,000 years ago. As this far-reaching ice field began to melt and break up and Wisconsin took its place in the sun, the ice water escaped by cutting a channel through a sandstone ridge which ran crosswise to its course and the Dells of Wisconsin river came into existence and the river sought a connection with the Father of Waters so as to have an outlet for its liquid cargo.

Compare the Candidates It is evident that Governor Smith regards the farm problem as the supreme challenge to the next administration. Which is better fitted to deal with it—Hoover, the product of an Iowa farm with world-wide experience in great business enterprises, and with the co-operation of another product of the wheat and corn belt, Charles Curtis, or the governor of a seaboard state, without a farm background or any intimate knowledge of farm conditions?—Kansas City Star.
