MORE FORD DETAILS

The new Model A Ford automobile contains some of the finest examples in the world of new metal treatments for resistance to wear and to the torsional strain imposed upon some of the parts of the modern internal combustion engine.

One of these is the crankshaft. In this latest Ford product, the crankshaft is made of a special Ford carbon manganese steel, developed under processes of metal blending and heat treatment that are new to the industry.

These processes produce a crankshaft that is heavier than any previous Ford crankshaft, that is tougher to resist wear and stronger to resist the torsional strain of high-speed performance.

The weight of the shaft in itself makes for smoother operation and the static and dynamic balancing process to which it is subjected before installed in the motor still further reduces the chances of vibration.

This carbon-manganese steel is only one of more than 40 different kinds of steel, each representing a special treatment, which are used in the manufacture of the new Model A Ford car.

Jess also asks his former patrons to give the new owner a trial and be convinced of the same good service for which the Garage has been noted.

Injustice to Farmer in Making Capital Investment Basis for Taxation

By DR. EUGENE DAVENPORT, Illinois College of Agriculture.

THE farmer has a case in demanding something other than capital investment as a basis for taxation. The laboring man, with his bare hands often enjoys a much higher income than the average farmer, yet as a laborer he pays no taxes. He will argue that he pays them indirectly in the form of rent and grocery bills. So does the farmer as a consumer pay the same indirect taxes. Besides, he pays heavy taxes as a producer, which the laborer, the clerk, the teacher and the professional man entirely avoids, even though often far more able to pay than the farmer, who must help to school the others' children.

Only two ways of reaching this nonpaying citizenry have suggested themselves—a poll tax, which is impracticable if not unfair, and certain commodity taxes which are bitterly resisted as tending to increase the cost of living.

The farmer is the last to resist the commodity tax, even when it seems to be a new kind of taxation, for, like the gasoline tax, it reaches many a citizen not heretofore contributing to the public exchequer. We are doing well with the gasoline tax, which reaches no one in distress, and we may go further in this period of improved school and general highway construction.

Among Greatest Needs of Modern Youth Is the Principle of Self-Denial

By DR. ERNEST R. GROVES, University of North Carolina.

The flood of discoveries and inventions have sophisticated youth and so multiplied the interests of parents as to restrict the importance of family experience. The automobile especially has contributed an opportunity for anonymous freedom which has tempted youth by furnishing him with a sense of social isolation and revealing to him the ease with which parental ties can be temporarily severed.

Social conditions have encouraged the philosophy of self-expression. Along with this has gone the sweep of luxury standards from which few children, however poor, can escape.

Forced constantly into an atmosphere of luxury, with their appetites and pleasure cravings exploited by commerce, they have repudiated the self-denial virtues that in the past have been so prominent. This discarding of what in the past has been the chief machinery of control is the most significant element in the present youth situation.

There can be little doubt as to the best means of helping youth in their ordeal. More attention must be given to the early years of childhood, and the demands of adolescence and independence be recognized from the first, so that the impressionable years may be used to lay a foundation for early self-control.

Position of Labor Today the Best in the History of the World

By JAMES J. DAVIS, Secretary of Labor.

There never was a time before when the worker was as well off as he is today. That is not to say that there is not still room for improvement. It is to say that there is no place in the mind of an intelligent man for the pessimistic claim once advanced by Socialists that the rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer.

The poor are not getting poorer; they are getting richer, too. Moreover, for the first time in human history there is reason for thinking that involuntary poverty is a thing which can be conquered.

It is not going to be conquered by agitators, much less by politicians; it is going to be conquered by the application of labor-saving machinery to industry.

It formerly was thought by some persons that the classes made prosperity, not the masses. We are learning that this notion must be reversed. For it is not the classes that make prosperity; it is the masses.

The prosperity of America today is based on the fact that the workers' wages become a highly important factor in our economics.

Spirit of Co-Operation and Mutual Interest Needed in International Relations

By DAVID KINLEY, President University of Illinois.

Science has brought the nations of the world closer together. The Mediterranean, the Atlantic, the Pacific oceans have been successive centers of the world's civilization. Babylon, Athens, Rome, London, Washington, are the successive centers of the world's influence. We are no longer self-contained. What happened in the Balkans forty years ago affected Europe only, or mainly. What happens in the Balkans today affects us very directly and materially. So of China and the islands of the sea. We must recognize more fully than ever before that national success is not to be obtained from the distress and disaster, and still less from the exploitation of other nations. The idea of co-operation and mutual interest which is the spirit of science and is becoming more largely the spirit of modern business must also be the spirit that dominates our international relations.

For World's Best Interests, Science Should Be Subservient to Religion

By RABBI JACOB KOHN, New York.

The question of science and religion is no longer a question of conflict, or of the nature of a conflict. Religion recognizes that there is a fundamental purpose in the matter and energy with which pure science deals. Applied science, however, should be subservient to religion for the happiness of the world.

If the World war showed anything, it demonstrated that every chemist and inventor, every practitioner of an applied science, can be an enemy of mankind, and that his art can be used against as well as for the advancement of human happiness.

Lord Haldane said that the mighty power of science, by which I take it he meant applied science, should be applied to man's happiness, and that the application of that power was not a matter for the scientists, but for the ethical philosophers of the world.

Young Lady's Elbows No Longer A Hat Rack

"I just couldn't resist any longer telling you of your wonderful medicine, Milks Emulsion. I have been constipated as long as I can remember. Had typhoid fever when I was eight years old and since then my bowels haven't moved freely. Doctors have given me bowel medicine and I have taken pills, salts, castor oil, and everything a person could think of. They didn't do me any good whatever.

"Now, whenever I hear anyone say they are constipated, I immediately tell them of Milks Emulsion. I have taken about 12 large bottles, not all of them regular. Now I keep Milks Emulsion in the house and take it regularly. I have taken so much medicine that I thought it was all alike.

"I had a sallow complexion, no color, and felt miserable all the time; but now I have the color of health, and health is something I wouldn't exchange with anyone for a fortune. I wouldn't take ten times the price I paid for Milks Emulsion for the results I have obtained.

"I am 19 years old and weigh 105 pounds. Have gained 5 pounds since taking your medicine and am still gaining. My face is round and my arms are getting round. Before, people used to hang their hats on my elbows, thinking they were hatracks. Now I am going to keep on with Milks Emulsion until I weigh 125 pounds.

"I mentioned your Emulsion to two doctors. They both admitted it was good, and no one knows better than I that it is not only good, but wonderful.

"You may publish this letter if you wish and anyone that wants to ask me about your medicine may do so. I promise to answer every letter. In fact, I couldn't do enough for Milks Emulsion to repay them for what their medicine has done for me. I remain, very respectfully yours, ROSEMOND BOWER, Frontenac, Kan."

Gas Mask for Housewives

Fumes from ovens are kept from the nostrils and eyes by a gas mask which has been especially adapted to domestic instead of war use. It is easily slipped on or off and affords an unobstructed vision through wide lenses. It may also be used by hazy-veiled victims to avoid dust.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Leading Question

"I'm afraid I didn't make myself plain."
"No? Who did?"

Oklahoma Girl Strong as Boy

"Louise Alice was fretful, nervous and all run-down from whooping cough," says Mrs. P. J. Kolar, 1730 West 22nd St., Oklahoma City, Okla. "The little I could force her to eat wouldn't ever digest. She became underweight, sallow and weak.

"Then I decided to try California Fig Syrup, and the results surprised me. Her bowels started working immediately, and in little or no time she was eating so she got to be a pest at the table, always asking us to pass things. Her weight increased, her color improved and she began to romp and play again like other children. Now she's the picture of health, and strong as a boy."

Pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable California Fig Syrup acts surely and quickly to cleanse your child's stomach and bowels of the souring waste that is keeping her half-sick, bilious, sallow, feverish, listless, weak and puny. But it's more than a laxative. It tones and strengthens the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. Ask for it by the full name, "California Fig Syrup," so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

Cold Need Cause

Slings can't always keep from catching cold, but they can get the best of any cold in a few hours—and so can you. Get Pape's Cold Compound that comes in pleasant-tasting tablets, one of which will break up a cold so quickly you'll be astonished.—Adv.

FOR COLDS

ASPIRIN

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try a Bayer Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Bayer Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. Improved SAMSON Windmills

With SELF-OILING Boxes

The good qualities of this new device can be readily seen when compared with the old style, noisy, lumbering windmill, which had to be oiled every day in order to run. Now, your oiling troubles are at an end. The self-oiling feature of the new SAMSON wherein all bearings run constantly in a flood of oil, causes the windmill to run easily, make less noise and with less expense than any windmill on the market. As proof of the pudding is in the eating of it, so is the lasting virtues of the Samson windmill, made possible by a trial test. For full information SEE—

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applied for work as a rider. Will Hammett, son of Warren—known to all as "Billie," is the owner of the ranch. The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one. The newcomer is put to work cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris under certain conditions. The new arrival is the man, and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious. Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation as a "bad man," visits Billie. He has long wanted to marry her, but she dislikes and fears him. Slade, endeavoring to embrace Billie is interrupted by Harris. Harris half jestingly proposes that the girl marry him and so settle the matter of the ranch ownership.

"I reckon that'll be Blue?" Harris asked of Evans and the lanky one nodded. The men scattered round the corral and each watched his chance to put his rope on some chosen horse. The roan kept others always between himself and any man with a rope but at last he passed Harris with but one horse between. Harris slipped his noose across the back of the intervening horse and over the blue roan's head.

"You've been busted and rope burnt a time or two," Harris remarked, and he led the horse out to saddle him. The big blue leaned back, crouching on his haunches as the man put on the backstaple. His eyes rolled wickedly as Harris smoothed the saddle blanket and he flinched away with a whistling snort of fear, his nostrils flaring, as the heavy saddle was thrown on his back.

Harris tightened the front cinch and the blue horse braced himself and drew in a long, deep breath.

"That's right, Blue, you swell up and inflate yourself," Harris said. "I'll have to squeeze it out of you." He fastened the hind cinch loosely, then returned to the front and hauled on the latigo until the pressure forced the horse to release the indrawn breath and it leaked out of him with a grunting sigh.

"I wonder now why Morrow is whistling his tommyhawk for me," Harris remarked as he inspected the big roan. "You're a hard one, Blue. I'll let that saddle warm up on you before I top you off."

"Well, step up on him and let's be going," Morrow ordered surlily.

Harris took a short hold on the rope reins of the backstaple with his left hand, cramped the horse's head toward him and gripped the mane, his right hand, on the horn, and swung gently to the saddle, easing into it without a jar.

"Easy Blue!" he said, holding up the big roan's head. "Don't you bang your head with me." He eased the horse to a jerky start and they were off for Rill's at a shuffling trot. Three times in the first mile Blue bunched himself nervously and made a few stiff jumps but each time Harris held him steady.

"You'd have made one good little horse, Blue," he said, "if some sport hadn't spuffed you on the start."

They left the horses drooping at the several hitch rails before the post and crowded in.

Some detached themselves from the group and occupied themselves with writing. Several started a game of stud poker at one of the many tables. Harris wrote a few letters before joining in the play, and as he looked up from time to time he caught many curious glances leveled upon him. Morrow had been busily spreading the tidings that a would-be squatter was among them and they were curious to see the man who had deliberately defied the unwritten law of the Cold-river range.

Waddles had instructed Evans to start the men back before the spree had progressed to a point where they would refuse to leave Rill's and so leave the Three Bar short-handed. At the end of two hours he looked at his watch and snapped it shut.

"Turn-out!" he shouted. "On your horses!"

CHAPTER IV

It is said that there comes a day in the life of every handler of bad horses when he will mount one and ride him out, master him and dismount—and forever after decline to ride another. Riffey Foster was evidence of this. For three years Rife and Bangs had been inseparable, riding together on every job, and the shaggy youth topped off the animals in Foster's string before the older man would mount them. As Bangs went about his work his faded blue eyes were ever turned toward the Three Bar and what stood in the door of the blacksmith shop.

The girl was vaguely troubled as she noted this. Bangs and Foster had returned for their second season at the Three Bar. All through the previous summer the boy had evidenced his silent adoration, his eyes following her every move.

The scene round Billie was one of strenuous activity, every effort bent toward whipping the remuda into shape for the calf round-up in the least possible space of time.

Green horses were led out, one after another, to be saddled for the first time, and those previously broken required a few workouts to knock the wire edge off their unwillingness to carry a rider after a winter of freedom on the range.

Three men were shoeing horses tied to snubbing posts at ten-yard intervals before the shop. One animal that had fought viciously against this treatment had been thrown and stretched, his four feet roped to convenient posts, and while he struggled and heaved on the ground Billie Foster calmly fitted and nailed the shoes on him. Cal Harris finished shoeing the colt he was working.

"That's the last touch," he said. "My string is all set to go."

"You have five colts saddled for your circle bunch," he said. "But you didn't pick a single cow horse. The boys have sorted out the best ones and the few that are left won't answer for a man that insists on a gentled string."

"Creamer and Calico will do for me," he said. "I broke them myself and maybe I can worry along."

"Did you break them like that?" she asked. Bangs was topping a horse that strenuously refused to be conquered and as they looked on the animal threw himself.

"Like that? Well, no—not precisely," Harris said. "They're not breaking horses. They're proving that they're bronco-peelers that can ride 'em before they're broke. A horse started out that way will be a bronc till the day he dies."

Three men were lashing their bed rolls and war bags on three pack horses and when this task was completed they rode down the lane, each one leading his pack animal. Harris knew this as evidence that they would start after the calves on the following day. The custom was to exchange representatives to ride with each wagon within a reasonable distance, the reps to look after the interest of the brand for which they rode.

"How many reps do you trade?" he asked.

"Three," she said. "Halfmoon D, V L and with Slade."

The Halfmoon D lay some fifteen miles eastward along the foot of the hills; the V L the same distance to the west, but cached away in a pocket that led well back into the base of the range, a comparatively small outfit owned by the Brandons, father and four sons, who made every effort to keep the bulk of their cows ranging in their own home basin and exchanged reps only with the Three Bar.

Slade's home place lay forty miles south and a little west and his cows grazed for over a hundred miles, requiring three wagons to cover his range.

During the afternoon the three reps

Universal Belief in Horseshoe as "Lucky"

Almost everyone at some time has found a horseshoe. And almost every one who found one has either proudly hung it up or tucked it away for safe keeping.

What then could be more appropriate than to use the horseshoe as a beautiful door knocker to adorn the entrance of your home? Or to use it as a door stop, or book ends, or as an ash tray for your living room?

The horseshoe has been accepted and recognized as a symbol of good luck almost universally for many centuries.

Ancient mythology credited the horseshoe with threefold powers of good fortune. The shape suggested the saintly halo. It was made of iron, a metal of unusual strength, and its relation to the horse, a favored animal, gave it extraordinary power.

Washington adorned a doorway at Mount Vernon with a horseshoe. Lincoln cherished this treasure and at his early youth, Lord Nelson hung one on the mast of his great ship Victory.

Everywhere in England, Europe, and even in far-off Hindustan, the horseshoe stands for just one thing—good luck.

It is proposed to mark North, Central and South America by a great highway.
