Exceed Previous Records

Although operating at a twenty per cent rate above maximum rated capacity, plants of the Frigidaire Corporation at Dayton, Ohio, are running behind orders and sales for the year to date have exceeded by far, all previous records, according to information received by F. A. English, local representative.

April shipments of finished products totaled 1501 carloads, he said. Compared with the same month last year, these shipments showed an increase of 129 per cent in household electric refrigerators, 85 per cent in compressors and 83 per cent in cooling coils. Present indications are that May will be another peak month in the company's history.

So great has been the factory's effort to meet this unprecedented increase in business, that a Frigidaire compressor is finished and ready for shipment every 12 minutes of the working day. The present plants comprising 53 acres of floor space, which placed into operation in 1927, were considered at that time adequate for the requirements of the business for a long time. Already, it is said, the absolute limit of production with present factory facilities has been reached.

New products of his company have contributed largely to the phenomenal increase in business. Mr. English said, "The Frigidaire cold control has been a primary factor in this popularity, he declared. "In one week, more than 100,000 recipe books, showing how this device is used in freezing desserts never before possible to make in the home, has been exhausted and a second edition of 250,000 is being issued. "Another contributing factor has been the new four cubic foot model, selling at the lowest price in the history of the company. It has brought the advantages of electrical refrigeration within the reach of hundreds of thousands of families which never expected to own a Frigidaire."

Big Dance at Fort Stanton

On Saturday night, May 25, there will be a big dance at Fort Stanton, given for the benefit of the Fort baseball team. Gun Lemp and his famous "Night Owl" of Roswell will be there to furnish some of the latest dance hits for all who attend. Remember that you will be treated most royally, as is the courteous custom with the Fort Stanton boys. Don't miss this dance.

Sunday—Monday—"THE COP," with William Boyd.
Tuesday-Wednesday—Norma Shearer in "AFTER MIDNIGHT."
Thursday-Friday—"ALL AT SEA," with Karl Dane and Geo. K. Arthur.

Listening Ears

heard a program given over the radio Sunday evening of the Carrizozo High School Orchestra and the soloists mentioned in last week's paper. The program was broadcasted from KOB station at State College, N. M., and with Marshall Beck as announcer, made the program distinctively Carrizozo. The numbers were heard very plainly here and Old Man Static was as kind to us, as he possibly could be, in order that we might enjoy the treat. The program was fine, and the eave droppers enjoyed the hour immensely.—You must also go to the School Auditorium Saturday night, May 18, and listen to Miss Alene Thompson's piano recital. No charge.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rolland have moved into the Ulrick residence, made vacant by the departure of the J. E. Farley family, who have moved to Alamogordo. S. S. Gillespie, foreman of the local shops, will occupy the place made vacant by the Rolland family.

Funeral of Asher Emerson

was held last Friday afternoon. The cortege started from the home of Shirley Phipps, where arrangements were made for the family's convenience on account of the Emerson home being so far distant from the Methodist Church. The remains were escorted to the church, where the sermon was preached by Rev. Ludlow, after which the trip was made to the Nogal cemetery, where the interment was made with solemn Masonic rites, conducted by Worshipful Master Charles F. Grey, assisted by his staff of officers. The funeral was attended by a host of friends of the family both from here, Nogal and elsewhere over the county.

Was it Suicide or Murder?

Sometime during the forenoon of Wednesday of this week, news of the death of Mrs. Severo Gallegos of Arabela, by having her throat cut, were received at the sheriff's office, who, together with his deputy, Pete Johnson, left for that place immediately and arriving on the scene they found Gallegos, who had been under suspicion of having killed his wife, but on questioning him, he stated that he had not committed the crime and that it was a case of suicide.

Sheriff Brady wired District Attorney J. Benson Newell, who came at once and at this writing, the officials are at Arabela conducting an investigation and after the same is completed, further particulars will be given to the public. As the matter now stands, stories one way and another are being aired and will require a further investigation before arrests can be made.

Victors Return

The Carrizozo High School Orchestra, soloists and others who accompanied that organization to Silver City to enter the state contest, arrived home today, flushed with victory. The orchestra won first prize over all contestants and Alfred Richardson won first prize in the vocal contest. The home-comers are receiving congratulations on every hand. The broadcasting from State College is mentioned in another article in this paper. "Rainbow's End" Operetta, by Lower Grades, May 25, 8 p. m., School Auditorium.

SCHOOL NOTES

(Alice M. French, County Supt.)

Most of the county schools close on Friday, the 17th, and many excellent programs are being prepared by teachers and pupils.

The following schools were visited during the past week: Encinosa, Richardson, Boca Canyon, Escondida, Bluewater, Arabela, Bethel and Macho. The closing program at the Arabela school was rehearsed during my visit and the teachers are certainly to be commended for the excellent work they are doing with the children.

One of the eighth grade graduates of the Arabela school, Miss Lucia Gomez, by selling pencils, made quite a neat little sum with which she purchased a large United States flag which she presented to the school. This is the first year in some time this school has had an Eighth Grade Commencement and the entire community is taking a great interest in all school activities.

Lincoln held its Eighth Grade Commencement Wednesday, Mr. Enloe, High School Supervisor, delivered the address, and the County School Superintendent presented the diplomas. There was also an excellent program prepared by the school.

There are ninety-one Eighth Grade Graduates in the county this year. Lack of space forbids us to publish their names.

The regular Teachers' Examinations are to be given on July 1, 2, 3 and on August 1, 2, 3.

The Captain High School Junior-Senior Banquet was given Tuesday night at the Buena Vista Hotel. The reception room was decorated with the Senior colors of red and white and the dining room and banquet table in the Junior colors of blue and white. The combined effect was most pleasing. Mr. Koogler acted as toastmaster and toasts were given by the Faculty, the School Board, County School Superintendent, the Seniors, Juniors and the Dramatic Club. The banquet was followed by a dance, the music being furnished by the "Mountain Boomers."

Junior-Senior Banquet

The Junior-Senior Banquet given at Community Hall Saturday, May 11, was the outstanding social event of the school year. The hall was beautifully decorated to represent a garden. A sumptuous three-course dinner was served and much credit is due the Ladies' Missionary Society for serving in such an efficient manner.

The following program of toasts was given, with Gladys Dozier acting as toastmistress: Junior Welcome, Mary Romero; Senior Response, Maurice Lemou; Prospective Seniors, Tom Cook; Our Future, Mack Shaver; A Little Humor by the Way, Helen Sterling.

The teachers present were called upon and responded. The local photographer was called in to photograph the banquet session. At the conclusion of the banquet a theatre party was sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burkett. The Juniors were voted royal entertainers, and the occasion will be pleasantly remembered by the graduating class of 1929.

THE BASEBALL TEAM

will go to Corona next Sunday for a return game with the Corona town team, which has been having some stiff workouts the last few days in an effort to get revenge when our boys go there. As many rooters as possible from here should accompany the team and help them beat the Coronites on their own grounds. The team could not go out for the usual workout last Sunday on account of the cold spell.

Real Jazz Music

will be furnished by the "Mountain Boomers" for the dance at Community Hall tomorrow night, May 18. It has been quite a while since we have enjoyed real peppy dance music, so we warn you not to miss this dance, for the "Boomers" will make you forget your sorrows and make you dance whether you are a dancer or not. Not a dull moment with these boys!

Attention, Masons

There will be a Regular Communication of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., on Saturday night, May 18, for the purpose of business and conferring the Third Degree.

All Master Masons are cordially invited.

C. F. Grey, W. M.,
S. F. Miller, Secretary.

Hust-Jones

Last Saturday morning at the local Baptist parsonage, with the Rev. F. C. Rowland performing the ceremony, Elmer Hust and Ince Jones, both of Nogal, were united in marriage.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Jones of Texas, and has been teaching in the Nogal school for the past year.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Hust of Nogal, and the young couple's many friends join with us in wishing them much happiness and success in their new relationship. The newlyweds will make their home at Nogal.

Judge E. W. Hulbert

came over from Tucuman last Saturday and went to the lower valley country and after visiting relatives and friends, came back here Tuesday, stayed over and returned home Wednesday.

Mrs. W. C. McDonald

arrived home Sunday from Columbia, Mo., where she spent the major portion of the winter with her daughter, Mrs. T. A. Spencer and children. Mrs. McDonald prefers the wind and dust of New Mexico to the murky, muddy and cloudy weather of the east and is glad to greet New Mexico sunshine. Mrs. Spencer and the children will be home as soon as school is out.

Little Jane Norman's Eighth Birthday

Last Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, Mrs. Wm. Norman entertained 22 little friends of her daughter Jane on her 8th birthday.

Games of different kinds were played, after which Mrs. Norman served dainty refreshments, assisted by Mesdames John Harkey and Ed Long.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Mexican Revolution Collapses, Leaders Taking Refuge in United States.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MEXICO'S latest revolutionary movement has finally collapsed after many premature announcements to that effect. By the end of the week the only rebel bands in arms were the troops of General Caraveo near Pulpito and some bands of guerrillas and "cristeros." An offer of amnesty had been sent to Caraveo and his men. Tuesday the rebels surrendered Nogales, where they had long held out against the federal attacks. Their leaders already had fled across the border and the soldiers agreed to quit after government officials had guaranteed them safety, food, clothing and shelter. Meanwhile General Almanan disposed his federal forces for a great attack on the rebel positions blocking his way to Agua Prieta, the last important stronghold of the revolution along the northern border. However, a conference held in the American customs house at Douglas, Ariz., resulted in arrangements like those at Nogales, and Agua Prieta was surrendered without a fight, the 1,500 rebel troops transferring their allegiance under guarantee. Francisco Elias was appointed provisional governor of the state of Sonora, which had now been nearly all brought under federal domination.

Whereabouts of General Escobar, military chief of the revolution, were unknown, but it was believed he and Gen. Roberto Cruz and Manrique were in the United States. Rebel leaders known to have come across the border included Gen. Ricardo Topete, Gen. Faustino Topete, Jesus Lizarraga, Gen. Ramon Iturbe, Deputy Ajrodo Romo, and Tomas Balderama, mayor of Nogales.

Capt. R. H. Polk and Patrick Murphy, American aviators flying for the rebel army, voluntarily crossed the international border into the United States and surrendered to Collector of Customs Fred E. Edwards. They were arrested by Department of Justice officials and charged with violation of the neutrality act.

NOTHING doing at present in the way of reduction of either land or naval armaments. Such is the admission of Nicholas Politis of Greece, chairman of the preparatory disarmament commission in session at Geneva. He said the commission would adjourn in a few days but would be reconvened before the session of the League of Nations assembly which has been set for September. "A number of declarations," he said, would be made concerning naval disarmament but there would be no discussion. General statements were made by the big naval powers in answer to Hugh Gibson's proposals on behalf of the United States withdrawing objections to naval limitation by categories and to the exclusion of trained reserves in considering land armament reductions. Earlier in the week the commission rejected Mr. Gibson's suggestion that "reduction" be substituted for "limitation" and the Chinese amendment proposing the abolition of conscription. Maxim Litvinov for Soviet Russia had offered an amendment calling for the alteration of the phrase in article A in the chapter on military armaments from "high contracting parties" to "agree to reduce appreciably the effectiveness of their armaments." After warm debate Litvinov agreed to change "reduce appreciably" to "limit and reduce" but most of the other delegates would not yield and the Soviet amendment went by the board.

In Washington it was stated the administration has no intention of seeking to bring about another naval disarmament conference in the near future, holding that the next move in that line is up to the League of Nations, and that such a conference would be futile until there had been an agreement in advance on a formula quite apart from that of tonnage upon which the chief naval powers were unable to agree in 1927.

LIVELY debates marked the consideration of farm relief legislation in the senate and various amendments to the McNary bill were introduced and discussed. Senators Watson of Indiana and Robinson of Arkansas, respectively majority and minority leaders, accused each other of inconsistency in their stand on the equalization fee and the debenture plan and kept the senate chamber in a turmoil for hours. An amendment to the debenture provision of the McNary measure offered by Senator Norris of Nebraska was accepted. It is designed to prevent overproduction by reducing debenture rates as production increases. Among other amendments introduced were: By McNary, exempting fruit and vegetables from the operation of the bill; by Capper, making the loan fund available to cooperative purchasing associations of farmers and permitting loans to cooperatives for the purpose of retiring existing obligations on marketing facilities; by Blaine, to provide that instead of a flat rate of 4 per cent, the interest rate on loans to be equal to the lowest rate on government obligations issued since 1917.

Hon. Paul Bestor of St. Louis was nominated by President Hoover as a member of the federal farm loan board to succeed Eugene Meyer, resigned. Mr. Bestor has been president of the Federal Land bank of St. Louis since 1922 and of the Federal Intermediate Credit bank of St. Louis since 1923.

ATTORNEY GENERAL MITCHELL's campaign for increased efficiency in the prosecuting attorneys' offices and his survey of conditions resulted last week in the summary dismissal from office of William A. Degroot of New York, United States attorney for the eastern New York district. Degroot had repeatedly refused to resign. William A. Gober, federal attorney for the southern district of Florida, and John Cook, for the northern district of Mississippi, already had resigned.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES called from New York for The Hague to take up his duties as a member of the World court which is to convene on May 15. He will sit on the bench of that permanent court of international justice not as a representative of the United States but as a judge elected by the League of Nations; for the United States is not yet a member of the court.

By a vote of 26 to 19 the house of lords of Great Britain rejected Lord Cecil's motion inviting the house to express the opinion that the time had come when Britain should sign the optional clause of the World court statute. By this clause states recognize the compulsory jurisdiction of the court.

EDITORIAL discourtesy" on the part of the Washington Post led Secretary of State Biltmore to send a letter of apology and regret to Prince de Ligne, ambassador from Belgium. The newspaper, publishing reports that the recall of the ambassador was imminent, said it was understood that he "has not been seen frequently enough concluding statesmanlike negotiations for his government" and that he was regarded by some of the leaders of his government as what might be termed in American "high hat."

COMPLETELY dominated by Premier Mussolini—who incidentally now holds eight of the thirteen portfolios in his cabinet—the Italian Fascist council of 493 and the senate held their opening sessions and organized by electing Giovanni Giolitti, minister of public works, as president of the corporation chamber and Luigi Federzoni president of the senate. Augusto Turati, secretary of the Fascist party, told the deputies that due to a drastic reform in the new chamber several changes in the rules and regulations governing its procedure had been decided upon by the grand council. The old rules, based on a chamber which had a majority and minority, were useless now, he explained, for the whole chamber was Fascist.

Sicily is now believed to be freed from the grip of the Mafia, for the trial of members of that malevolent society which has been going on for nine months, has ended in the conviction of 148 of the 161 defendants, and the imposition of sentences running as high as 23 years' imprisonment. The jury was out for seven days. Italy has Mussolini to thank for this, as for innumerable other things.

PRINCE HENRY of Great Britain, third son of King George, went to Japan last week for the purpose of conferring the Order of the Garter on the emperor of that country. He was greeted at Tokyo with a most extraordinary welcome. Emperor Hirohito himself meeting him at the railway station and accompanying him to the Kasumigasaki palace through gayly decked streets that were full of applauding citizens. At the palace the prince was greeted by the empress's hostess, Princess Chichibu, acting for the empress, who expects to become a mother for the third time.

MAX day, the traditional day for Communist demonstrations, was especially lively in Berlin. The Reds and the municipal authorities both were organized as for warfare, and consequently the numerous clashes between the demonstrators and the police were bloody and desperate. All day and far into the night the rioting continued. The Reds barricaded streets and fought from the rooftops and the police used their rifles, machine guns and armored cars freely. "Hose wagons," designed to drench mobs with torrents of cold water, also were employed effectively. Probably a score of persons were killed in the battles and the wounded numbered many hundreds.

In Paris the police completely squelched the Reds, arresting more than 4,000 and preventing all strikes except that of the taxicab drivers. There was rioting in several other European cities, but in Vienna and in England the day passed peacefully. Moscow's demonstration naturally was immense and impressive. The Soviet army was out in force, leading a tremendous parade of civilians. Reds in Mexico City congregated in front of the American consulate general carrying banners attacking the United States, but they were speedily dispersed by the police.

Demonstrations of workmen in the United States were in all instances quite orderly.

JOHN J. RANKOB, chairman of the Democratic national committee, refuses to resign as urged by certain prominent Democrats of the South, but he and his fellow leaders have created a new executive committee which is to establish permanent and adequate headquarters in Washington and devote its efforts to the rehabilitation of the party throughout the country. For chairman of this committee they selected Joseph Rasmus of Kansas City, former member of congress, assistant secretary of the treasury during the Wilson administration, supporter of William G. McAdece in two campaigns and known as a dry. He was a Smith worker, however, in last summer's campaign.

Rankob's task, it was explained, will be to represent the national committee in efforts to coordinate the activities of Democrats in both houses, state organizations, and Democratic women's groups. "In order to build a strong, country-wide Democratic organization that will be a viable, going institution."

Unfair to Ask Citizens to Pass, by Their Vote, on Scientific Problems

By CIRCUIT JUDGE ROBERT M. TOMS, Detroit.

THE modern tendency toward democracy is a vicious perversion of our representative form of government. I am not referring to the political parties in speaking of the democratic and republican forms of government. In a democracy the people themselves elect their own officers and pass their laws, as they did in the town meetings in New England years ago. In a republic, the government is by proxy.

In Detroit we are getting away from the republican form of government when we submit important propositions to the people for vote. And what fools the people have made of themselves! A recent election demonstrated the folly of asking the voter, the man of the laithe or the grocery counter, to vote on an issue which should be decided by scientific and economic experts. At that election the rapid-transit proposition proved to be a popular "no" issue. Consequently the voters rejected the two other propositions on the ballot, which had nothing to do with the expenditure of money.

The people vote in cycles. Eight or ten years ago, we had a "yes" epidemic among voters. After the people got stuck on a couple of propositions, they began to vote "no," and they are still voting "no" regardless of the merits of the issue.

A few years ago Detroit voters decided they wanted street car tracks on the Belle Isle bridge. They voted "yes," without taking engineering problems into consideration. The tracks were laid and are there today, a monument of public legislation. They go nowhere, and not a wheel has been turned, but thousands of dollars were wasted.

It is not fair to the people to submit matters to them. The city should not expect the public to make decisions that can only be reached by men scientifically informed. This government either federal or municipal was never intended to be democratic. To call on the people to pass their own laws and ordinances is a vicious perversion of republicanism.

"Fear-Thoughts" Too Much in the Minds of the Present Generation

By REV. HENRY DARLINGTON (Episcopal), New York.

One of the great things that Jesus sought to give us was happiness, joy and peace. God meant us to get the most out of life. God could not have put beauty and harmony and music into the world unless he meant for us to enjoy it.

Here in America we seem to think that unless a man is working his finger nails, off there is something wrong with him. We seem unable to relax, to sit content on a beach and listen to the music of the waves. Do we ask ourselves ever, "What would Jesus do in the presence of a sunset? Would he not have sat in the cool of the evening and enjoyed it?"

Instead, are we not so anxious to go through the picture galleries that we never stop to look at the pictures on the walls? So eager to plan our children's careers that we haven't time to take them by the hand and let them enjoy the sunset?

Beside the inability of Americans to relax, there are three other "joy killers." These Puritanical ideas which too frequently make people think that to enjoy themselves would in itself be wrong, worry, and jealousy.

Jesus preached against worry. In one of the modern translations we find Him saying "Don't let these fear-thoughts get the better of you." Worry implies our lack of faith in the love of God and it tends to destroy what faith we have. Let us remember that even in the garden of Gethsemane, when exhaustion and anxiety hung over Him, these did not prevent Jesus from stretching out His hand and healing the man who was wounded.

Reign of Democracy Endangered by System of Choosing Chief Executive

By PROF. G. DICKINSON, University of Illinois.

The electoral college method of choosing the Chief Executive of the United States endangers the reign of the majority, upon which democracy is based. One of the chief faults in the system is the difference often found between the percentages of popular votes and electoral votes that a candidate receives. Hayes in 1876 and Harrison in 1888 were elected, although more popular votes were cast for their opponents.

It is possible, although improbable, to get the necessary 265 electoral votes with less than ten per cent of the popular votes cast. It is high time the United States abandoned an election system which endangers the rule of the majority.

Although President Hoover received only 58 per cent of the popular vote, he was given 444 electoral votes, which is more than 81 per cent of the total. Furthermore, a shift of only 500,000 votes from Hoover to Smith would have resulted in the election of a minority President, and a shift of 148,000 votes in the other direction would have deprived Smith of any electoral votes.

The average number of popular votes per each electoral vote was 69,000. In Illinois 107,000 votes were required for one electoral vote, whereas in South Carolina only 8,000 votes were necessary. That is, a vote in South Carolina was worth more than thirteen in Illinois and more than seventeen in California.

We elect our governors by popular vote; why not our Chief Executive?

Orphanages of Country Called on to Develop Special Type of Education

By AARON JACOBY, Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

The public institutions of today have become an educative force. They afford the children the advantages of contact with the outside world. Their charges are allowed to go to public libraries and schools, and to outside social functions.

But the institution of tomorrow must be different. The children of tomorrow will need things which neither the cottage nor the cottage type of institution can furnish them. They will need psychological treatment, vocational guidance and other things that our present institutions have not the physical facilities with which to supply them.

One of the great causes for a new kind of asylum is the fact that children committed today are no longer those who have lost one or both parents, but those from homes disrupted by economic or domestic trouble. In any opinion, they represent a group whose intelligence is considerably lower than those of 15 years ago.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctor's word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Soviet Help

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, denying the charge that labor was dickering with Soviet Russia, laughed and said: "The help that Russia could give American labor reminds me of a small boy."

"A small boy applied at a piano house for a job as piano porter. The head piano porter, a giant of a man, looked down at the boy and said: "What good would you be to me, a little snip of a thing like you?" "Couldn't I grunt," piped the boy, "while you lift?"

Confusion of tongues stopped Eabel, but it doesn't seem to affect New York.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of great importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.
Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physical and purgative. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will supply the bowels just as promptly.
Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest drugstore and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. 25, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottles.

The Settling of the Sage

They rode from the devastated fields and angled southwest across the range. When some ten miles from the Three Bar Harris dismounted on a ridge and she joined him, listening with entire indifference to his optimistic plans.

"We're only scratched," he said. "It won't matter in the end."

"This is the end," she dissented. "The Three Bar is done."

"It's just the start," he returned. "It's the end for them! Don't you see? They staked everything on one big raid that would smash the Three Bar and discourage the rest from duplicating our move. That would give Slade a new lease of life—delay the inevitable for a few more years. They made one final attempt and lost. They're through!" he asserted positively. "That's their last shot. We're only delayed—that's all. The homestead cabins are only charred. The old buildings at the ranch are gone. I'll put a crew in the hills getting out new logs and there'll be enough out-of-job peelers riding grub-line to rebuild the whole place. We've got our land. The hay is tramped flat right now but the roots aren't hurt. Next spring will show the whole flat coming up with a heavy stand of hay."

"You're a good partner, Cal," she said. "You've done your best. But the whole thing would only happen over again. Slade's too strong for us."

"Slade's through!" he asserted. "He's locked up and when he gets out his hands will be tied. Inside of a month the law will be in the saddle for the first time in years. Once Aldea gets a grip on things, with folks behind him, he'll never lose it again."

He painted the future of the Three Bar as the foremost outfit with a hundred milks, but her mind was busy with a future so entirely different from the one he portrayed that she scarcely grasped his words. Always she had heard her parents speak of the day when they should go back home; and she had always felt that the day would come when she, too, would live in the place from which they had come—with frequent trips back to the range. The love for the ranch had delayed her departure from year to year. But now the old familiar buildings were gone and there were no ties to hold her here, or even to call her back once she was gone.

Harris rose and pointed, rousing her from her abstraction. Down in the valley below them fled a long line of dusty horsemen.

"There is the law!" he said. "That's what I brought you here to see. It's what we've been waiting for. That little procession stands for organized law!"

She turned and looked behind her as her ear caught the thud of hoofs and jangle of equipment. The Three Bar men were just topping the ridge.

Harris knew that action, not inaction was the best outlet for her energies, temporarily smothered by the shock of the raid.

"I thought maybe you'd like to go," he said. "The faint will do you good."

She showed the first sign of interest she had evidenced.

"And we're going to the Breaks," she stated.

"That's where," he said. "We'll order them to give up and stand trial. They won't. Then we'll clean them out. Hunt them down like rats!"

The little band in the valley was drawing near. She recognized Carp, Bentley and another Slade man riding with the sheriff at their head.

"What's Bentley doing there?" she asked.

"One of Carp's men," Harris said. "If any of them get away from us Carp will bound them down. He wears the U. S. badge and won't be stopped by any feeling about crossing the Utah or Idaho lines. Rustling is of no interest to him. That's the sheriff's job. But Carp will round them up for obstructing the homestead laws."

The Three Bar men came up and halted. Harris and the girl changed mounts and led their men down to join the file of riders below.

It was well after sundown when they halted in a sheltered valley. Waddles cooked a meal over an open fire. Bed rolls were spread and the men were instantly asleep. Three hours before sunup the cook was once more busy round a fire.

The meal was bolted and each man lashed a generous tunch on his saddle before riding off.

Daylight found them twenty miles from camp and the horses were breathing hard. They turned into a coulee threaded by a well-worn trail. Three miles along this Bentley turned to the right up a branching gulch with eight men. Another mile and Carp led a smaller detachment off to the left. Billie rode with the sheriff and Harris at the head of the rest, holding to the beaten trail.

Harris motioned to Billie. "You fall back," he said. The men had drawn their rifles from the scabbards. "They never did post a guard. But there's just a chance. So for a little piece you'd better bring up the rear."

Harris turned up a side pocket and the men waited while he and the sheriff climbed a ridge on foot to investigate. Harris motioned to the girl.

"Come along up where you can see," he said and she followed them up the ridge.

"From behind a sage-clump Harris trained his glasses on the group a mile out across the shallow basin. Two men stood before a teepee near the stockade. There were two other tents inside the structure, with a number of men moving about them."

He handed his glasses to the girl.

"We'll be starting," he said. "By the time we get fixed the rest will be closing in. You stay here and watch the whole thing."

"I'm going along," she said. "I'm as good a shot as there is in the hills. And it was my ranch they burned."

The sheriff shoved back his hat and pushed his fingers through his mop of gray hair.

"Fact," he confessed. "Every word. But there's swarms of men in this country—and such a d—n scattering few of girls that we just can't take the risk. That's how it is. If you don't promise to stay out of it we'll have to detail a couple of the boys to ride guard on you till it's over with."

She knew that the other men would back Harris and Aldea in their verdict. She nodded and watched them turn back toward the horses.

There was nothing spectacular in the attack of Harris and the sheriff. They went about it as if hunting vermin, cautiously and systematically, taking every possible advantage of the enemy with the least possible risk to their men. The advance was slow as they closed in on the stockade. There was a sudden commotion among the men at the building. They were moving swiftly under cover. Some of the attacking force had been seen. The majority of the rustlers took to the stockade. Four ran into the main cabin.

It was as if she gazed upon the activities of battling ants, the whole game spread out in the field of her glasses. There came a tult in the action and she knew that the sheriff had raised his voice to summon them to come out without their guns and go back as prisoners to stand trial for every crime under the sun.

Not a shot had been fired. Inside the stockade she could see Lang's men kneeling or flattened on the ground as they gazed through cracks in the walls.

She made out Harris, crouching in a draw. A thin haze of smoke spurted from his position. Three similar puffs showed along the face of the stockade. Then the sounds of the shots drifted to her—fast, snappy reports. Throughout the next half-hour there was not a shot fired in the fat; no general bombardment, no wild shooting, but guerrilla warfare where every man held his fire for a definite human target. A man shifted his position in the stockade, raised to peer from a hole breast high, and she saw him pitch down on the ground before the sound of the shot reached her. One of her men had noted the darkening of the crack and had searched him out with a rifle shot. Three shots answered it from the main cabin.

She presently noted one of her men sitting under a sheltering bank and eating his lunch. She looked at her watch; it was after three—the day more than half gone and less than a hundred shots had been fired. Five men were down in the stockade. The shadows lengthened rapidly and her view through the glasses was beginning to blur when the gates of the stockade swung back and five horses dashed out, running at top speed under the urge of the spur, a wild stampede for safety, every man for himself.

She saw one man lurch sideways and slip to the ground; another straightened in the saddle, swung for two jumps, and slid off backward across the rump of his mount. The shooting ceased when six shots had fired. Four riderless horses were careering round the basin.

The stockade was empty, leaving only four in the house to be accounted for. A tiny point of light attracted her eye. It grew and spread. She knew that one of her men had crawled up under cover of night and fired the house. She thought of the burning buildings on the Three Bar and rose to make her way back to the pocket where the horses had been left in the care of a deputy.

All through the day she had scarcely moved and she was tired. The hours of inactivity had proved more wearing than a day in the saddle. Harris and the sheriff came in with their detail. There were no prisoners.

A little later Bentley's men rode up and five minutes behind them came Carp with the rest, and all hands turned in. At daylight the long return journey to the Three Bar was commenced. Twenty miles out from the ranch and before noon of the next day the sheriff and the marshals had split off with their men, leaving the Three Bar crew to ride the short intervening space to the ranch alone.

As she neared the edge of the Crazy loop valley the girl dreaded the first glimpse of the pillaged ranch.

They had reached the edge of the valley, and she looked down upon the ruins.

"Now I'm ready to go," she said. "I'll go and see what Judge Colton wants."

"He wanted you to get away before anything like this occurred," Harris said. "I knew that maybe we'd have tough going for a while at some critical time and wanted you to miss all of that—to come back and find the Three Bar booming along without having been through all the grief. So I wrote him to urge you to come."

"Well, I'm going now," she said. "I don't need to be urged." Harris pointed as they rode down the slope. The little cabin that old Bill Harris had first erected on the Three Bar, and which had later sheltered the Warrens when they came into possession of the brand, stood solid and unharmed among the blackened ruins which hemmed it in on all sides.

"Look, girl!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "Look at that little house. The Three Bar was started with that! We have as much as our folks started with—and more. They even had to build that. We'll start where our folks did, and grow."

CHAPTER XII

Harris sat on a baggage truck and regarded the heap of luggage miserably. Way off in the distance a dark blot of smoke marked the location of the crushing train which would take the Three Bar girl away.

"Some day you'll be wanting to come back, old partner," he predicted hopefully. The Three Bar isn't hurt. We're in better shape than ever before and a clear field out in front; for the country is cleaned up and the law is clamped on top."

She honestly tried to rouse a spark of interest deep within her, some ray of enthusiasm for the future of the Three Bar. But there was no response. She assured herself again that the old brand which had meant so much to her meant less than nothing now. That part of her was dead.

The trail of smoke was drawing near. Harris leaned and kissed her.

"Just once for luck," he said, and slipped from his seat on the truck as the train roared in. Good-by, little fellow. I'll see you next round-up time."

As the train slid away from the station she looked from her window and saw him riding up the single street on the big paint-horse. The train cleared the edge of the little town and passed the cattle chute. Three wagons, each drawn by four big mules, moved toward the cluster of buildings which comprised the town, the freighters on their way to haul out materials for the rebuilding of the ranch.

The work was going on but she no longer had a share in it. She was looking ahead and planning a future in which the Three Bar played no part.

Deane was with Judge Colton, her father's old friend, to meet her at the station. As they rode toward the Colton home she told the Judge she had come to stay and Deane was content. After the strenuous days she had just passed through she needed a long period of rest, he reflected; but the older man smiled when he suggested this.

"What she needs now is action," he said. "And no rest at all. Cal Warren's girl isn't the sit-around type."

Deane acted on this and no day passed without his having planned a part of it to help fill her time. And in the late winter, after having visited school friends who lived farther east, she found herself anticipating the return to the Colton home as eagerly as always in the past she had looked forward to seeing the Three Bar after a long period away from it. Converted by Airplane

An intelligent African was greatly shaken in his belief in Islam through recently seeing several airplanes visiting Zaria and the interior of his country. The sight of them convinced this man that the Moslem belief was indeed false, since amongst other things it teaches the solidity of the clouds above. This caused a thorough disturbance in the spectator's mind, and there is good reason to believe he will soon be turned in heart to Him who, though dwelling on high, yet desires to abide in every lowly dweller who yields to His love.—Montreal Family Herald.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Yesteryears in the Spanish-Southwest

By Paul A. F. Walter, in the Santa Fe New Mexican.

New Mexico is indeed fortunate in the completeness of the chronicle left by its early explorers, conquerors and colonizers. One of the most fascinating is the journal of Castaneda de Nagera which tells the story of the Coronado expedition into New Mexico 80 years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth.

The following is an account of the Pueblo villages visited by Coronado:

"The province of Cibola contains 7 villages; the largest is called Muzaque (Moqui); the houses of this country are ordinarily 3 and 4 stories high, but at Muzaque there are some which reach 7 stories. The Indians of this country are very intelligent; they cover the entire middle of the person with pieces of stuff which resemble napkins; they are garnished with tufts and with embroidery at the corners, and are fastened around the joints. These natives also have kinds of pelisses of feathers or have skins and cotton stuffs. The women wear on the shoulders a sort of mantle which they fasten around the neck, passing it under the right arm; they also make garments of skins very well dressed and trick off their hair behind the ears in the shape of a wheel which resembles the handle of a cup."

Of Tiguex he reports: "They are governed by a council of old men. The houses are built in common; the women temper the mortar and raise the walls; the men bring the timber and construct the frames. They have no lime, but they make a mixture of ashes, earth and charcoal which answers very well as a substitute. For although they raise their houses 4 stories high, the walls are not more than 3 feet thick. They make great heaps of thyme and rushes which they set on fire; when the mass is reduced to coal and ashes they throw upon it a great deal of earth and water and mix all together. They then knead it in round masses which are dried and which they employ as stones; the whole is then coated with the same mixture. This work then resembles somewhat a piece of masonry."

Of Cicuye (Pecos) it is written: "It is built on the top of a rock, forming a great square and the center is occupied by a public place under which are vapor baths. The houses are four stories high, the roof in the form of a terrace, all of the same height, and on which the circuit of the village may be made without finding a street to obstruct the passage.

To the first two stories there is a corridor in the form of a balcony on which they can circulate around the village and under which they can find shelter.

Upon these balconies, which serve as streets, open all the doors by which the houses are entered. Those which front upon the country are supported against those which open upon the court. These last are higher, which is very useful in time of war."

To Help Your Service

Telephone Users Play Important Part

Few businesses depend so much on the co-operation of their customers as does the telephone industry.

It is a three-cornered business; for one customer makes the call, another receives it and the Telephone Company brings the two together.

Talking directly into the transmitter, with the lips about an inch from the instrument, starts the call right and naturally makes conversation better.

Just a word about cut-offs. There are many ways in which they can occur, but only one correct way to restore the call. The called person should hang up, the calling party should report the cut-off to his operator, telling her the number called.

Answering promptly in the home or office is also important, for in addition to being a courtesy due one's telephone caller, it saves many an important call.

And it is just as important that the calling party wait a reasonable time for the called person to answer.

Wide Brim Hats of Gay Straws

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Welcome wide brims! It is a very fascinating and timely chapter which the hat wide of brim is writing into story of spring and summer millinery. Really, after all we have a right to expect wide brims, for what with the feminine note being so widely exploited in present-day fashions it is not possible for them to stay out of the picture.

Speaking of wide brims, if you are going to the seashore this summer be sure to take a very, very broad-brimmed rustic hat along to wear with your beach pajama ensemble, of course assuming that your costume is styled with the new very full and belted-in-at-the-waistline trousers, topped with a tuck-in blouse.

However, the wide brims of immediate concern are those models for town wear, such as the several types pictured here. An will be seen in this illustration there is no lack of novelty or diversity in this season's wide brims. One of the most interesting types in this group is the hat with the roll of the face brim shown in the lower right corner of the picture. This model brings its message of smartness direct from one of the leading ateliers of Paris.

The first hat in the group rolls its brim up at one side, drooping the other in most graceful manner.

To the right at the top is a glossy linen-like straw whose wide brim is fluted at one side near the back.

A charming sports hat in natural colored ballbunt is pictured in the panel. It is piped with navy blue and banded with blue held with a gold metal clasp. Straws in natural color are a very much exploited theme this season.

The new eggshell tint is charming. It has a more subtle beauty than either tan or beige. Many hats carry this exquisite color in monotone and it is as attractive in the smart linen-like straws as it is in felt or crocheted viscas. It also combines handsomely with other colors.

Among other of the new wide brims are those which reverse the usual order of things by being much broader at the back than the front. These drooping wide brims are featured in various ways. Sometimes the hat is "all brim" at the back and none at the front, the straw being plaited in to form a fringe across the nape of the neck. Then again the simple brim is not plaited, but measures considerably wider at the back with a medium brim in front.

With supple transparent hair hats of dressier men than the talloted bakus, ballbuntis, bangkoks and such, the tendency is to drape the brim at the front up against the crown, allowing it to flare wide at the sides and the back.

ANGER IN USING MEAT-SALT

Old-meat salt is usually filthy and may contain toxins of unknown virulence. And in some instances old-meat salt contains spores of disease-producing germs.

It does not pay to run the risk in using meat-salt. There is no practical way of testing the salt except to feed it to some farm animal. Then it may not all contain the same filth, toxins or germs.

Soft Custard Used as Sauce

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The serving of soft custard as sauce on various desserts not only makes them seem quite new and different, but adds materially to the supply of iron and vitamins furnished by the meal. For this reason, in families where there are growing children, it is a good idea to have custards frequently, but by varying the basis of the dessert, monotony will be avoided. For instance, custard sauce is good with most canned fruits, such as peaches, plums, apricots, or pears; with some of the fresh fruits; and with stewed dried fruits. The canned and stewed fruits should be drained before pouring over them so that the syrup does not dilute the custard. This syrup can be saved to sweeten and flavor fruit drinks or fruit gelatins.

Custard sauce is also good with plain cake, puddings, such as brown betty, steamed fig pudding, or chocolate bread pudding, or with Bavarian cream or other gelatin desserts. It is a good plan to put it on the table in a pitcher to be passed to each person.

Soft custard should be cooked in a pan surrounded by hot water below boiling temperature. A double boiler is the best utensil for the purpose. While cooking, custard should be stirred constantly to make it smooth and velvety. As soon as the mixture thickens sufficiently, to coat the spoon it is done and the pan should be removed at once to a bowl of cold water to check the cooking. If cooked beyond the point when it coats the spoon custard is likely to curdle. If cooked too rapidly it is difficult to keep custard from cooking too much. The following directions for cooking soft custard are from the bureau of home economics:

Heat a quart of milk with six to eight tablespoonfuls of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt in a double boiler. Beat four to six eggs lightly and pour slowly into them some of the heated milk. Pour back into the double boiler and stir constantly until the custard coats the spoon. Remove at once from the fire and place the upper part of the boiler in a bowl of cold water. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla. Chill the custard until wanted.

Remove Salt From Mackerel

As with any cured fish, the salt used for preserving mackerel must be to a large extent removed before the fish is cooked. The bureau of home economics says that when you have selected a good fat salt mackerel, soak it overnight in cold water to cover. Taste it. If sufficient salt has been removed, the fish can then be placed under the flame of the broiling oven and cooked slowly to a light brown. If the fish is still very salty after soaking, place it in a skillet, cover it with cold water, allow the water to come to a boil, and pour it off. Then broil. Put the cooked fish on a hot platter skin side down, pour melted butter over the fish, and garnish with thin slices of lemon and parsley.

Fairy Tale for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

As the clouds were passing along they heard the water fairies, and saw the ripple on the water.

They hurried along to the eastern sky. And as they passed Mr. Sun they barely stopped to speak to him. In fact, they almost covered him up.

"I don't think the west breezes are friendly today," said Mr. Sun. "When they go to see the east breezes I know they're tired of me."

"As for those clouds—they passed me by without speaking at all!"

When the clouds went along to the eastern sky and the breezes all blew from the east, Mr. Sun decided he might just as well take a rest.

"No one wants me for a little while," said Mr. Sun. "I'll have a short nap in that nice dark cloud bed which puts me to sleep so quickly."

Down on the earth the people were saying:

"How quickly the sun has disappeared. He is completely covered up by a great, dark cloud."

And when the King of the Clouds came forth wearing his purple-black robe, he said:

"Where are my fine raindrops? I want some of my nice big raindrops, too."

"Here we all are," said the little raindrops. "We are sleeping in the cloud beds you gave us."

"Tumble, tumble," said the King of the Clouds, as he pulled the little raindrops out of their cloud beds.

And down on the water they pattered and fell.

"Oh, how cool they are, and how lovely," said the water fairies.

"How delicious," said the Queen of the Water Fairies.

The fairies swam around and chatted with the raindrops as they came down on the water, which had been growing very warm owing to Mr. Sun.

The water fairies and the queen felt so happy and cool that as they swam around they almost went asleep.

They closed their eyes so the raindrops would not fall into them, and they just listened to their chatter and their patter and their splatter.

Of course, they would talk, too, and say how happy they were, and when they did, the little raindrops would run in their mouths and give them cool drinks.

But so fresh and cool did they feel, and so happy, that they wanted to go to sleep and have wonderful dreams, too, of cool, cool, refreshing rain.

"Go to sleep," said some little voices.

They looked about them and saw the east breezes were whispering to them.

"Who will look after us?" they asked.

"I will," said the King of the Clouds. "But how will you be able to see us through the rain?" they asked.

"I will look out for that," said Mr. Sun, who came peeping back again.

"And I'll talk to the King of the Clouds, too, for we haven't had a chat in ever so long."

"Don't worry, little water fairies, the cool rain will not stop."

"Ah no, it won't stop because I've come, and I, too, will make it so bright the King of the Clouds can watch over you."

The water fairies looked, and a wonderful rainbow had appeared—a rainbow of gorgeous colors sparkling in the rays of Mr. Sun.

So the water fairies were watched

HELPS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

A damp, clean sponge is good to take lint off broadcloth.

Three tablespoonfuls of cocoa equal one square of chocolate.

Raw vegetables such as chopped lettuce or cabbage or chopped or grated carrots are good for the little child.

Place the bedroom mirror so that the light falls on the user rather than on the mirror to get the clearest reflection.

To prevent glare from artificial lights use frosted bulb's, lampshades which cover the bulb, and indirect lighting fixtures.

Hang up the frequently used kitchen utensil whenever possible. It is much easier to find a small utensil like an eggbeater when it hangs on the wall than when it lies on a shelf or in a drawer among other utensils.

Some Good Things for the Table

By NELLIE MAXWELL

"He is a friend who lives with a large-heartedness that takes as well as gives—And is no less."

For a salty bread to serve for luncheon, for a picnic or as a sandwich for any occasion the following recipe will give satisfaction:

Orange Nut Bread.—Beat two eggs until light, add one cupful of sugar and add three-fourths of a cupful of milk alternately with three cupfuls of flour sifted with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt. Add two tablespoonfuls of melted shortening, one-half cupful each of fresh, finely chopped orange peel and pecan meats. Mix and pour into a well greased bread pan and allow to stand fifteen minutes before baking in a moderate oven forty minutes.

Steamed Bran Bread.—Take one cupful of bran, one cupful each of sour milk and flour, one-half cupful each of raisins and sugar, one tablespoonful of molasses, one teaspoonful of soda, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and when all the ingredients are well blended add two tablespoonfuls of melted shortening. Turn into a greased mold and steam for three hours.

Peanut Butter Bread.—Take two cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of sugar, six ounces of peanut butter, four tablespoonfuls of shortening, one cupful of milk and two well beaten eggs. Sift the dry ingredients, add the butter and shortening, then add milk and eggs, beat well and turn into a greased bread pan and bake one hour.

Quick Coffee Cake.—Take two cupfuls of flour, three and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth of a cupful of milk, one-third cupful of shortening, two eggs beaten, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and one-fourth cupful of raisins. Sift the dry ingredients, mix into them the shortening, then add the sugar and eggs, which have been well mixed. Add the raisins and roll out to fit a pan. Cover with a sprinkling of shredded almonds and a bit of citron if liked and bake in a hot oven.

Foods, Be Good.

Here is a different manner of serving chicken. Be sure to try it.

Chicken With Lemon Sauce.—Stew a chicken as usual in salted water with three onions. Sift the fowl in tender. Serve with the following sauce: Break three eggs into a bowl, beat well, add a little salt and pepper. Squeeze the juice of five lemons into another bowl, strain and mix very slowly with the eggs, stirring constantly. Now add a cupful of the chicken stock slowly and cook over water until smooth and thick as heavy cream. Turn over the chicken which has been carved in serving sized pieces.

Salmon With Asparagus.—Steam the salmon, if canned, until heated through. Place on a hot platter and pour over it a hot cream sauce into which has been stirred finely minced peppers and chopped stuffed olives. Arrange around the platter long stalks of richly buttered asparagus, or the vegetable may be cut into inch pieces and served with butter.

Miami Pie.—Make a pastry shell and fill with the following: Beat two eggs, add one-half cupful of sugar, one cupful of corn syrup, three tablespoonfuls of butter and pour this into the unbaked crust and sprinkle with one-half cupful of pecans. Bake, cool, cover with whipped cream and serve.

Recaloped Tuna With Peas.—Melt five tablespoonfuls of butter, add six of flour and when well blended add three cupfuls of milk, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of celery salt, one cupful of tender cooked peas and two cupfuls of tuna fish, flaked. Place in a baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake twenty minutes.

Vegetable Plank.—Remove the seeds from four green peppers and parboil them for ten minutes. Beat two eggs and add one-half cupful of milk, one cupful of salmon, one-half cupful of bread crumbs, one tablespoonful of butter and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Fill the peppers with this mixture and surround the plank with mashed potatoes to hold the peppers erect. Brush plank and bake in a hot oven until well heated through.

Graham Bread.—To two cupfuls of rye milk add two teaspoonfuls of soda, three cupfuls of graham flour, two-thirds of a cupful of brown sugar, a teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Mix all together and bake in a steamer one hour.

Osnaburg Featured in Household Furnishings

Osnaburg Useful for Curtains, Draperies, Couch Covers and Cushions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Natural-colored osnaburg, brightened with bands of cretonne, was effectively used for most of the furnishings of this boy's room, planned by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. Osnaburg, which you may know as Greenville cloth or almanac cloth, is an inexpensive, durable, somewhat coarsely-woven cotton fabric with irregular threads that give it charm for household decoration.

The draw curtains at the window of this room are very easy to make and will appeal to the average boy. Draw curtains may be arranged by means of cords and rings to pull together or apart, or, if a wide casing is used for the rod, they may slide back and forth on the rod itself. Face-colored cretonne or print should be chosen for the bands of trimming.

The bed has a fitted cover of osnaburg with a gay border corresponding to that on the curtains, and the same combination of cretonne and osnaburg is used for the round pillow in the wicker chair.

Plaited drapery of osnaburg is fastened to a board which forms a convenient bookshelf under the window and at the same time conceals the radiator when it is not in use. All of the furnishings of the room are plain and easy to clean, and the use of color in the draperies and bed cover provides the necessary cheerful atmosphere.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips' Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

WORKS HARD IN THE FIELD

Relies Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rankin, Illinois.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic before and after my first child was born six years ago. Then when my second child came and I felt weak and run-down, I took it again. I am still taking it and I am feeling better. My mother used it for herself when I was small and always got good results. She still takes it. I do all kinds of heavy work, including my housework and I also help in the field. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and will gladly do so at any time. I am willing to answer any letters asking about this medicine."—Mrs. E. M. CAMPBELL, Route 2, Rankin, Ill.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, (C. 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for May 19

JEREMIAH CALLS TO OBEDIENCE

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 7:1-28. GOLDEN TEXT—Hearken unto my voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people. PRIMARY TOPIC—Obeying God. JUNIOR TOPIC—Obeying God. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Doing What God Commands. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obedience Essential in True Religion.

The prophet stood in the gate of the temple in order that the multitudes might hear him. The occasion was the coming together of the people from all over the country to attend some feast.

1. What God Requires (vv. 1-7).
1. Amend your ways (v. 3).

Their general course of living should be reformed, bad deeds giving place to good ones. On the basis of this change, God would permit them to remain in their city and country. Failure to do this would eventuate in their expulsion.

2. The folly of trusting in religious forms (v. 4).

The people regarded the temple as a charm against evil, irrespective of the condition of their hearts. Without a heart experience, the most sacred institutions and ordinances are valueless.

3. Social justice (v. 5).

The proof of their having reformed was the execution of judgment between man and his neighbor. The proof of one's being in touch with God is his fair dealing with his fellowmen.

4. Not to oppress the helpless (v. 6). The stranger would likely be ignorant of the laws of the land. The widows and orphans could easily be imposed upon. Protection for the weak is a requirement of godliness.

5. Not walk after other gods (v. 7).
Worship of idols and conformity to heathen customs go hand in hand. True morality is determined by the attitude of the individual toward God.

II. Solemn Warnings (vv. 8-15).

1. Teaching of false prophets (vv. 8-11).

These prophets taught the people that attention to ceremony, and observance of religious forms, exempted them from strict attention to morals. Those who heeded the words of the lying prophets were not slow to steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely and practice idolatry. They would even come into the Lord's house and claim freedom to practice such abominations. The sacred temple itself, filled with such worshippers would be a den of robbers.

2. Warning of Shiloh (vv. 12-15).

God caused His tabernacle to be set up in Shiloh, but in Eli's time He gave it into the hands of the Philistines because of the idolatry of the people. (1 Sam. 4:1-10). Even so would He do with the temple, the city and the whole country. This He had already done with Ephraim, the northern kingdom.

III. The Hopeless Condition of the People (vv. 16-20).

Their propensity to do evil was so strong that all efforts at reclamation were futile.

1. Pray not for them (v. 16).

There is such a thing as sinning unto death, in which case prayer is useless (1 John 5:16).

2. Entire families devoted their energies to that which provoked God's anger (vv. 17-19).

This was done by young and old—men and women. They did to provoke God's anger. He assures them the outcome of such conduct would be their utter confusion.

IV. Judgment to Fall (v. 20).

Because the people poured out their offerings to idols, the furious anger and wrath of God would be poured out upon man, beast, tree, and the fruit of the ground. How this has been fulfilled, the history of the Jews makes clear.

V. Obedience Better Than Sacrifice (vv. 21-28).

The prophet appealed to history to show that God requires heart service rather than the observance of religious forms. Blessings came to Israel through obedience, while cursings followed disobedience. On the condition of obedience to His requirements, God promised to own them as His people and to bless them.

Confidence in Prayer

And this is the confidence that we have in Him, that, if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us; and if we know that He heareth us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of Him.—1 John 5:14, 15.

No Discharge in That War

There is no man that hath power over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death; and there is no discharge in that war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it.—Ecclesiastes 8:8.

A Neglected Bible

A neglected Bible means a starved and strengthless spirit, a comfortless heart, a barren life, and a grieved Holy Ghost.—F. B. Meyer.

Kingman High school, with thirty-seven points, led all other contestants in the annual high school scholastic contests held in Flagstaff, Ariz. Prescott was second with nineteen points and Flagstaff third with six points. Contests were held in commerce, declamations, one-act plays and music.

Col. William J. Donoran, chairman of the adjourned tri-state Colorado river conferences in Santa Fe and Albuquerque, N. M., has set May 25 as the date for reconvening the parley between representatives of Arizona, Colorado and Nevada in Washington, D. C., according to advices received in Phoenix, Ariz.

Jack D. Ryland, Tucson, has been appointed assistant secretary of the Arizona fair commission. A. L. Moore of Phoenix will continue as secretary. Authority has been granted the Imperial Mining Company by the Arizona Corporation Commission, to issue and sell 1,000,000 shares of capital stock at 10 cents per share.

Notices to employees of the Miami Copper Company, Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company and the Old Dominion Copper Company of Globe have been posted, announcing a 5 per cent reduction of wages, effective May 1. The last wage increase was made when copper was selling around 20 cents per pound on April 1.

District Judge Carl P. Dunifon of Silver City, N. M., made permanent a restraining order to prevent James W. McAlpine of Milwaukee, Wis., and others from transacting business of any kind in the name of the United States Copper Co. He ordered the return of 1,191,993 shares of capital stock, held in McAlpine's name, returned to the treasury. The court ruling nullifies the election of a board of directors at a stockholders' meeting in Silver City in March, 1928.

New Mexico bankers lead all others in the United States in their affiliation with the state organization, according to the report of Mrs. Margaret Barnes, secretary of the Bankers' Association, presented to the convention recently held in Las Vegas. Every state bank is a member of the state association and every national bank a member of the American Bankers' Association, the secretary stated, and called attention to the fact that this record is not equalled in any other state in the Union.

The effect of the new law creating a State Supreme Court of five justices for New Mexico instead of three, is already being evidenced in the work of the New Mexico court. The work of the court has been speeded by dividing the judges into teams of three.

His legs cut off and his left hand mangled when he fell beneath a train at Bodega, eleven miles east of Belen, N. M., W. C. Elliott, employee of the maintenance department of the Santa Fe railroad, died shortly after at the Santa Fe hospital, Albuquerque.

Thousands of school children in Arizona, who will be community builders themselves in just a few years, were told all about what Arizona produces, the true value of what the state produces, and what it is capable of producing, it was announced in Phoenix by the Arizona Industrial Congress, in connection with "Trade at Home—Use Arizona Products" Week, observed recently.

Articles of incorporation for Transcontinental Radio Co., Ltd., were filed with the Arizona Corporation Commission in Phoenix, recently.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK

AN INVISIBLE ENEMY

THOSE who are in a position daily to check up on accident news clippings are shocked at the number of self-inflicted deaths that are a by-product of automobile ownership.

The situation is explained because of the great difficulty which all of us experience in appreciating reality if the evidences thereof do not make themselves felt through our senses. If we can taste, see, touch, or smell a thing, we will admit its actuality. On the other hand, if these things are lacking, we work on the false assumption that they do not exist.

For example, polluted water can look, taste and smell like the pure and sparkling kind, and more frequently than otherwise does so. Bad milk is just as white and often as palatable as is the safely pasteurized or tuberculin tested raw product. Therein lies the hazard.

If the human eye had microscopic power that alone would save us from much harm. On the other hand, we would lose a tremendous amount of fun in the consciousness of all the ugly and death-dealing "bugs" with which we daily come in more or less contact. In fact such an arrangement would be decidedly unpleasant. Things, therefore, are better as they are.

To overcome the invisible enemies, nature has endowed people with common sense and the ability to exercise it by being careful. But that is exactly where we fall down.

Consider this automobile by-product, carbon monoxide. It possesses all the characteristics, and more, of a master criminal. It cannot be seen, it cannot be heard, it cannot be felt, it cannot be smelt, in fact its presence can in no way be noted by the ordinary human senses, yet its ability to slay is only exceeded by its cowardly character. If you give it a chance it creeps up like a thief in the night and promptly makes a funeral of you.

During the cold season foolish people persist in starting their automobiles in closed garages. Not being satisfied with the chance of being killed by this practice others will insist upon tinkering with their running machines under the same conditions. And it is these practices that are daily responsible for the array of headlines which notify the world of the lethal power of carbon monoxide.

It may be a little chilly with a garage door open; indeed it may be cold. But what's a little weather compared to a few bunches of flowers that you will be unable to smell. Beware of carbon monoxide if you value your life.

FALSE OR TRUE?

ONLY forty-five million tooth brushes are sold in North America annually. And there are more than one hundred and fifteen million people to use them. So figure it out for yourself!

However, it is fair to assume that you are "sold" to the tooth brush habit. All right. But how much further do you go?

Formerly, the dentist was reluctantly visited only when something went wrong with the teeth. So long as everything felt all right it was improperly assumed that everything was all right. But we are educated now. We know better. Are we not informed that neglected teeth create disease and abbreviate life? Have we not repeatedly heard that gastric ulcers, kidney infections, rheumatism, neuritis and our ancient and powerful enemy, heart disease, can sometimes be traced directly to infected incisors, canines or molars? Certainly, we have. And there the matter ends for a good proportion of us. We immediately lapse into the Victorian style of "putting it off" until something hurts.

By all means clean your teeth with an approved tooth paste, but don't attempt to delegate to your favorite brand the functions and work of your dentist. It would be very nice to be able thus to slide out from under that little electric buzzer which plays such a shivering tune while one holds on to the arms of the dentist's chair waiting for a nerve to be jolted loose. But the buzzer and the man behind it are essential. After all, the discomfort which is usually not so bad as anticipated, is a small price to pay for a good set of your own teeth and the health insurance for which they stand.

Twice a year, then, to your dentist. Pay it up to him. It's his job. Your's is to see that you get there and that he is bending over you once every six months. If delayed a longer time than this things may happen to you which will be difficult to remedy. Taking chances does not pay.

An extra hint: "Stove teeth" are poor substitutes for the real thing. Those who start in young enough to pay a semiannual visit to their dentist in all probability will never be compelled to "play false."

Suggestion

Mr. Suburb came in from working in his garden. "It's fierce," he declaimed to his wife, "the way the neighbors' chickens scratch around in my vegetable. I tell you what, next year I'm going to put in a mighty small garden." Mrs. Suburb looked up from the evening paper. "Why not keep some chickens yourself?" she inquired. "Seems to me there's more revenge in that."

Commercial Uses of Airplanes in Europe

The delivery of newspapers by airplanes is commonplace in many parts of Europe. Fleets of special planes are employed. Bundles of papers are dropped from the speeding planes, flying on regular schedules, so that the late editions are carried 100 miles within an hour. Last year German air lines alone covered a distance of 3,582,250 miles and carried 10,000 passengers. The surprising activity of the air routes in Europe today is shown by the latest air timetables. In place of the tabulated figures of ordinary railroad schedules, airports and connecting lines are indicated on maps. The time for departure and arrival of airplanes is printed within circles denoting the various cities, and can be read at a glance. The map has no geographical boundaries or political divisions, for the airplanes overleap all the ancient barriers.—Nation's Business Magazine.

The Usual Agnes Repplier of Philadelphia, one of the four members of the Roselle exposition committee, sparkles in her conversation as brightly as in her essays.

At the Acorn club the other day Miss Repplier discussed the case of a pretty girl who married a man to reform him, failed in her task, and returned home to her parents. "Yes," Miss Repplier said, "she married him to mend his ways, but she soon found out that he wasn't worth a darn."

To Start 3,000 Farms According to a government land development scheme, 3,000 farms will be laid out in the wheat belt near Perth, Australia. The plan involves the building of 700 miles of railways and the expenditure of $42,000,000. It will be submitted to the imperial authorities soon.

CAPITAN — NEW MEXICO

Died at Lubbock

News was received here Wednesday by Oscar and Albert Snow of the death of their nephew, A. C. Jordon, aged 11, at the home of his parents at Lubbock, Texas, of heart trouble. Following the message, Oscar and Albert Snow and John Jordon of White Oaks, brother of the deceased, left for Lubbock to attend the funeral, which presumably will be tomorrow. The Jordons are well known here. They resided in Carrizozo for quite a while, Mr. Jordon being in the employ of the Electric Light Company when they installed one of the new rollers. The Jordons have the sympathy of their many friends in Carrizozo. Mrs. Jordon is a sister to Albert and Oscar Snow.

20th U. S. Infantry

in charge of Col. St. Clair and numbering 600, passed through here yesterday on its return trip from Nogales, Arizona, to Fort Russell at Cheyenne, Wyoming, after being ordered to Nogales to protect the border during the recent rebellion. During their brief stop - over here, privates Roy Hendley and Herbert Blue made the Outlook a pleasant call. The boys had several thrills during their stay on the border and at one time, a shell from the rebel lines fell dangerously close to them, but a volley from Uncle Sam's boys averted any further trouble.

Harvey Foster

of the Sierra Vista Dairy and Messrs. Merchant and Yates of Capitan made a trip to San Angelo, Texas, about one week ago and while there, they made an agreement to go fishing. There were many people on the banks and had tried in vain to make landings, but to no avail. When the Lincoln County, New Mexico men arrived on the scene, Harvey began to catch fish and landed nearly one hundred fine catfish. Mr. Merchant finally got a bite and in his eagerness to bring him to shore, lost his balance and fell into the river. Harvey was too busy to give him any assistance, but there was plenty of help from the ones who could not catch fish, so that he was promptly pulled out - but Mr. Merchant still insists that San Angelo is dry.

Mrs. E. T. Pitcock

of Corona, who has been at the home of Dr. P. M. Shaver for the past three weeks, contracted typhoid fever and was taken to El Paso Wednesday morning. She was accompanied by Mr. Pitcock, who will remain until his wife's condition warrants his return.
