Miss Thompson's Recital

Last Saturday evening at the High School Auditorium was well attended in spite of the fact that a big Masonic meeting was on, a storm was prevailing and the light plant out of commission on account of lightning striking a vital part in the plant. The program as appeared in this paper last week was carried out to the letter and much applause greeted each number as it was given. Miss Thompson is deserving of a great amount of credit and her pupils are deserving of much praise on the successful outcome of the recital.

In deference to the occasion and also to the Masonic meeting, the Crystal Theatre gave two shows, the last beginning about 10 o'clock, which gave those who attended the functions mentioned, a chance to finish up with a good picture and many took advantage of the opportunity. The "Mountain Boomers" postponed their dance at Community Hall to a later date, which will be announced later on.

Postponed Game

Just as our boys were getting ready to leave for Corona for a return game of baseball with the Corona town team last Sunday, Walter LaFleur of the local team received a telegram from Archie Perkins, in which he stated that they were having a big rainstorm at Corona and for the team not to come. The boys certainly appreciate this on the part of the Corona boys. If weather permits, the team will go there next Sunday.

Mrs. Geo. Dingwall

has returned to her home in El Paso, after a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. A. E. Leenert.

CRYSTAL THEATRE

T. J. PITTMAN, Mgr.

Saturday Only--Wm. Collier, Jr. and Audrey Ferris in "BEWARE OF BACHELORS," also comedy.

Sunday-Monday--"THE GIRL FROM RIO," with all-star cast. Also chapter 9 of the "Mystery Rider."

Tuesday - Wednesday - Glen Tryon in "THE KID'S CLEVER," also comedy.

Thursday-Friday--Greta Garbo in "THE MYSTERIOUS LADY." Also News Reel.

Charles and Gerald Cree came in Tuesday morning on No 11 from Bonnie Scotland, where Charley had been for nearly one year, during which time, the father, James E. Cree passed on. This is Gerald's first visit to America and seems to be well pleased with our country. We extend to the boys the glad hand of welcome and express the hope that Gerald will remain with us, although he says his visit will only last until September. Chas. has gained 25 pounds since his departure and looks capable of putting us all out of the house. Gerald is not so heavy, but we must remember that he is the junior of the two brothers and has plenty of time to catch up. It may also be added, that the boys are single, so get busy girls--they are exceedingly good looking.

John Gallacher Injured

Tuesday afternoon while hunting for a wild animal that had been killing some of his young lambs, John followed its trail to the edge of a cliff on the Chupadero mesa. He dismounted from his horse and climbed over the edge of the cliff, in search of a cave where he thought the animal might be hiding. It had been raining, making the rocky surface of the cliff so slippery that John lost his foothold and fell a distance of about 35 feet to the bottom of the ravine. Mrs. Gallacher, who had been following her husband, also on horseback, arrived later on and finding what had happened, hurried to the nearest neighbor for help and returning found him in an unconscious condition. He was brought to Carrizozo, where Dr. Paden ministered to his needs and in order to ascertain if any internal injuries exist, the Doctor took him to El Paso Wednesday night to have an X-Ray examination, and a report will be anxiously awaited. Later: John was operated on yesterday at El Paso and reports indicate that same was successful and that he was getting along fine.

Big Dance at Fort Stanton

On Saturday night, May 25, there will be a big dance at Fort Stanton, given for the benefit of the Fort baseball team. Gus Lemp and his famous "Night Owls" of Roswell will be there to furnish some of the latest dance hits for all who attend. Remember that you will be treated most royally, as is the courteous custom with the Fort Stanton boys. Don't miss this dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Gray

entertained a number of friends at a bridge party last Friday evening at their home in the western part of town. At the close of the function, the hostess served refreshments.

GENERAL RAINS

have fallen throughout the county. The stockmen are rejoicing, as they say that it will insure good range and green nipping. Coming at this time, the rains are quite unusual and we hope to have a "deluge" shortly, judging from the appearance of the sky overhead. It reminds us of the weather they have down in the 'sunny' south, so chilly that it cuts you through like a knife, when they have rainfall down in Dixie.

Sister of Outlook Editor Dies at St. Joseph, Mo.

Last Friday, May 17, at her home in the above named city, Mrs. Julia Pryor, aged 80 years, beloved sister of the editor of this paper, passed on to her reward.

She had been ill for a number of years, during which time, her courage and fortitude, coupled with her beautiful Christian resignation to the will of her Master was an inspiration to those who attended her during her illness.

Mrs. Pryor was an aunt to the famous bandmaster and trombone virtuoso, Arthur Pryor, and had made St. Joseph her home for many years, where she reared her family, two sons and two daughters, who still reside in St. Joseph. Her death leaves the writer as the only surviving member of the A. F. Burke family, but while he mourns her passing, the recollection of her tender loving kindness and her consecrated Christian life makes sweet memories bloom and banishes the pall of the tomb.

District Court Meets

Judge Frenger and his staff of assistants arrived in Carrizozo Tuesday night and court was assembled Wednesday morning with attorneys H. B. Hamilton, A. H. Hudspeth, Chas. Gilbert, and Col. Prichard on hand to attend to the interests of their respective clients. Court will adjourn the latter part of the week.

Answers Last Call

Tuesday last, at Lincoln, W. I. Brooke, for years a resident of this county, living near Angus, died of pneumonia, after a short illness. The news of his death reached here Wednesday morning, with no particulars other than that he had just returned from Roswell where he had been treated for the above-mentioned ailment.

Deceased was born and reared in Texas, coming to this part of the country about 18 years ago, locating near Angus, where he conducted a truck farm. Mr. Brooke was a modest, courteous man and had made many friends over the county during his residence here. He was a member of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M.

The funeral was held yesterday at Angus and the remains interred in the Angus cemetery with Masonic ceremonies. He leaves a wife, a son and two daughters, and the sympathy of the community is extended.

Prof. and Mrs. C. V. Koogler and children of Capitan, were Carrizozo visitors on Thursday of this week and while here, paid this office a call. They report a heavy rain on Thursday morning, a regular cloudburst, they say.

FORT STANTON NEWS

The 82nd Field Artillery base ball team arrives tonight for a 2 game series with the local team Saturday and Sunday. This army team has quite a reputation and those who saw games last year with this outfit will remember them as exhibitions of the finest kind of baseball. The Fort has a bunch of hitters this year that strikes are a fear to the heart of any pitcher, so come out expecting thrills. Sunday, June 2, Shorty Miller brings his smooth working "Loggers" here for a return game. On June 9, the team journeys to Carlsbad. Our boys lost to Shorty at Alamo two weeks ago 6 - 3 in a fine game. Watch us get even on June 2.

Gus Lemp writes that he will back up what the Outlook says about his music for the dance at the Fort tomorrow night. Fort dances have a reputation of being good ones and the committee intends to live up to the high standard set. The ladies have baked some fine cakes that will be served with ice cream during the evening.

The 4th of July committee is making fine progress for the usual big celebration here on Independence Day. The entertainment includes: Barbecue, Base Ball, Dance, Fireworks, under auspices of the Trowel Club, and Rodeo events. An Army Band has been invited for the day and if they can accept the invitation, there will be this big added attraction.

We have had several rains in the mountains the past week, measuring about 1 1/4 inches.

Jack Cleghorn Injured

At his ranch near White Oaks Wednesday afternoon, Jack Cleghorn, while attempting to hold a fractious horse which he had lassoed, forgot that he was standing inside the coil of the lasso when the animal broke away, dragging his victim after him for a long distance before he was stopped.

Jack sustained many painful bruises over the body, the skin being scraped from his legs and portions of his back, from his painful hauling over the hard ground. He was brought to Carrizozo and after receiving treatment from one of our local physicians, returned to his ranch and is feeling much easier, but he was fortunate in the outcome, as it might have resulted seriously or even cost him his life.

Sylvester Mirelez Dies

Monday morning at an early hour, Sylvester Mirelez, aged 24, died at his home on the east side of an illness covering a period of about 2 years, the same being stomach trouble. Sylvester was employed at several of our grocery houses, the last being with Ziegler Brothers, where he delivered goods over the town. He was a young man of becoming manners, polite and courteous to the patrons and loyal to his employers.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Santa Rita Chapel, with Father Reyes conducting the services, and interment was local. He leaves a wife, father, mother and several sisters and brothers to mourn his loss.

1—Balloons starting from Pittsburgh in elimination race that was won by the navy bag No. 1. 2—Col. Walter C. Cole of Detroit elected president of the National Reserve Officers' association. 3—Twenty thousand Chicago Poles celebrating Kosciuszko day before the statue of the Polish-American hero in Humboldt park.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senate Coalition Deals a Rebuff to President in Farm Legislation.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
DEMOCRATIC and radical Republicans in the senate combined last week to deal a rebuff to the farm relief plans of President Hoover and his administration. The McNary bill was under consideration in the upper house and the elements named succeeded in inserting into that measure the export debenture scheme to which the President had declared his opposition. The senate committee on agriculture already had declared itself in favor of the plan, which the house had rejected when it passed the Haugen bill. The motion of Senator Watson of Indiana to eliminate the debenture provision from the McNary measure was beaten by a vote of 44 to 47.

Consideration of the line-up in this vote leads the unprejudiced observer to the conclusion that the supporters of the debenture plan were not necessarily sincere. Their number included all but two of the Democratic senators (Hansford of Louisiana and Wagner of New York) and thirteen Republicans, nearly all of whom are classed as radicals. The Democrats had decided to make a party issue of the matter, and the radicals have a habit of opposing the "regular" Republicans. Senator Johnson of California was among those who spoke for the debenture scheme, and he could not refrain from giving Mr. Hoover some stabs.

There was no doubt that the McNary bill would be passed after consideration of some suggested amendments, and it was equally certain that when it went to conference the house conferees would insist on the elimination of the export debenture provision. It was understood in Washington that President Hoover would veto the farm bill rather than permit it to become law with that plan included.

As approved by the senate the debenture provision authorizes the farm board to provide an export bounty on any or all farm products. The bounty would be equal to one-half of the existing tariff rates on the same commodity. Debentures equivalent to these rates would be issued by the Treasury department to exporters who could realize cash by selling them to importers. The debentures would be redeemable in the payment of customs duties on all kinds of imports.

PROMISING even a sharper conflict than the farm legislation, the new tariff bill was introduced in the house with the backing of the Republican majority of the ways and means committee and the united opposition of the Democratic members. The formulists of the measure, seeking to conform with the President's wish to avoid, as far as possible, ill feeling and retaliatory action by Canada and other countries, did not raise the tariff duties on agricultural products nearly as high as the farm organizations had desired; and, according to the Democratic spokesmen, they did increase the duties on many articles which the farmer buys. Republican congressmen of the Central and Far Western states also were dissatisfied with the agricultural features of the bill. Most duties are about doubled, and this pleases the farm groups, but their request for a tariff on hides was rejected. The rates on sugar are considerably increased, sugar importations from the Philippines being excepted. This brought loud wails from Cuban sugar producers and importers of Cuban sugar and from bottlers of carbonated beverages and other groups, and the farmers, as users of sugar, also objected. The bill is more intensive than Mr. Hoover desired.

Space is lacking for even a summary of the bill as offered in the house. In the activity it pleased scarcely any one, some of the strongest being dissatisfied in administration congressmen as well as in the Democrats. So it was certain that there would be a great battle over the measure in both the house and the senate.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR, oil magnate, is in the Washington jail serving out his sentence of 90 days for contempt of the senate. But still his foes are not satisfied. Maj. William Peske, superintendent of the jail, declared his noted prisoner would be given no special privileges; but Dr. Morris Hyman, the jail physician, needed a pharmacist, and as Sinclair is the holder of a degree in pharmacy he was assigned to the job. This saved him from being put in the "bull gang" at the Occoquan workhouse brick factory. Then suddenly an order was issued by George S. Wilson, director of the local board of public welfare, barring newspaper men from the jail while Sinclair is a prisoner there. Naturally this created something of a rumpus and Senator Hoffman of Alabama took the occasion to make a speech denouncing what he called "official trucking to a millionaire criminal." Other senators admitted they were making inquiries into rumors that the oil man was receiving undue consideration, some of these rumors coming by "grapevine" from his fellow prisoners.

CONGRESSMAN M. ALFRED MICHAELSON of Chicago is "not guilty" of importing liquor into the United States from Havana. So declared the jury which heard the case against Michaelson in Key West, Fla. The government proved that the congressman and his party brought six trunks labeled with his name, that one of them leaked at Jacksonville and that two of them were found to contain liquor. But Walter Gramm of Chicago, brother-in-law of Michaelson, came to the rescue and swore that those two trunks were his and that the legislator didn't know what was in them, and Michaelson testified to the same effect. Therefore the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal. Gramm, standing on his constitutional rights, refused to tell what he had put in the trunks. Federal officials very promptly arrested the complainant brother-in-law on nearly the same charges brought against the congressman.

HOPE for an agreement on German reparations based on a plan offered by Owen D. Young, one of the American experts, is not abandoned but seems rather slim. The details of the plan have not been made public, but protests are made by England, France and Belgium, each of which fears it would suffer by the proposed revised schedule of payments. None of them is willing to have its receipts from Germany cut down, especially if the United States makes no further concessions in the allied debts due it. The British government was trying to stall off any parliamentary discussion of the matter because of the pending elections, but Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill told the house of commons that the proposals in question would be unacceptable to the Baldwin cabinet.

CLEAR weather was vouchsafed to most of the scientists who went to the East Indies to observe the total eclipse of the sun, but the British party at Patani, Siam, saw nothing for the phenomenon was entirely obscured by clouds. At Hollo, Philippine Islands, where several American groups were stationed, and on the Island of Cebu, where there were others from this country, the weather conditions were excellent. The eclipse was seen for about five hours, though its totality lasted only four minutes. What the astronomers and physicists learned will be made known to the world later.

THOUGH the preparatory disarmament commission in Geneva adjourned with an indefinite date later in the summer without apparently having accomplished anything definite, President Hoover expressed gratification over the "promising character" of the results obtained by the naval powers represented. Said he: "All of the principal naval powers have expressed adherence to the principles suggested by the American delegation, which include the cessation of reduction instead of restriction of naval strength. They have expressed their desire for full and frank discussion and the development of the American formula into a practical step. The manner by which these discussions are to be initiated has not yet been determined, but the question will be followed up promptly."

TRAVELING about 900 miles, from Pittsburgh to Prince Edward Island, the navy balloon No. 1, piloted by Lieut. Thomas Settle and Ensign Wilfred Bushnell, won the national elimination race and will represent America in the international contest. The navy bag was in the air about forty-four hours. For a time it was feared that the Detroit Times balloon, with E. J. Hill and Arthur G. Schlosser aboard, was lost. But after hours of travel in rain and mist it came down in a desolate region of the Adirondacks.

THERE were three pieces of news last week of especial interest to the movie fans. First, Constance Talmadge, long one of the most popular of the screen stars, became the wife of Townsend Nelcher, Chicago millionaire, and announced that she had retired to private life. Then Ina Claire and John Gilbert, both prominent motion picture actors, were married in Las Vegas, Nev.; but there was no intimation that either of them would quit the screen. Thirdly, Tom Mix, hero of scores of "Westerns," was indicted by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles on charges of withholding $100,000 in income taxes and conspiring to defraud the government out of about $75,000 in income taxes for the years 1923, 1924 and 1927. The conspiracy charge is also made against E. J. Forde, brother-in-law of Mix, and J. Marjorie Berger, Hollywood income tax counselor. In announcing Mix's indictment federal officials intimated that similar action would follow against other prominent film performers. It was said that the government's losses from income tax frauds in the film colony have been approximately $10,000,000 in the last few years.

WASHINGTON social circles are upset again by a revival of the Mrs. Gann controversy brought about by the action of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth. The speaker's wife declined to conform to the decision of the foreign diplomats giving the Vice President's sister the ranking place, and for the time being those two ladies are not to be seen at the same dinners. Mrs. Gann has plenty of friends and supporters, but the wives of most of the senators and Supreme court justices are in the opposite camp. Of course, when Mrs. Gann stays away from a function, Vice President Curtis also is absent. In December President and Mrs. Hoover will entertain the cabinet members and their wives for the first time, and Mrs. Hoover's method of solving the troublesome problem will be viewed with greatest interest.

BERLIN'S bloody May day riots, that lasted through nearly a week, were finally ended by the vigorous efforts of the government. The Reds threatened a general strike on the day the 21 victims of the demonstration were buried, but the workers failed to heed the plea of the Communists and funeral ceremonies were not marked by further serious disorders. The government in Berlin asserts it has proof that the riots were deliberately staged by agents from Moscow and the minister of the interior read to the Reichstag telegrams substantiating the charge. On the other hand the Communist leaders accuse the Nationalists and Monarchists of provoking the battles with the police as a means of forcing the authorities to disband the powerful Red organization. The Communist fighters were dissolved throughout Prussia and Bavaria and in the free city of Hamburg and all their funds were confiscated.

THE University of Porto Rico sustained a severe loss in the sudden death of Dr. Albert B. Hale, professor of economic geography there for the last three years. Doctor Hale in former years was commercial attaché of the state government at Buenos Aires and later was connected with the Pan-American Union. He was an authority on Latin America. Col. Max Bauer, chief adviser to General Lindbergh during the World war and afterward the organizer of the Chinese Nationalist army, died in a hospital of pneumonia.

Great Need of Today Is Return to the Idea of "Human Partnership"

By DR. RALPH SOCKMAN (Episcopal), New York.

THERE is too much patronage in American life today, and too little partnership. As our citizenry has been increasingly transferred from the soil to the city, we have changed the tempo of our thinking from the slower processes of the seasons to the quick exchanges and ticker tapes of the market place. The race of competitive life is so swift that we do not try to keep pace with one another.

The home illustrates the fact that parents do too much for their children and too little with them. The present generation of youth is more heavily patronized than ever were its predecessors. Somewhere between a bolshevism of adolescents and a paternalism of parents there ought to be a partnership in which the experiences of the elders are blended with experiments of the youngsters.

In philanthropy the old friendly personal helpfulness of our simpler earlier communities is being replaced by organized impersonal charity. In religion we have now largely a mere professional propaganda financed by silent spectators. We hire ministers to preach our sermons, evangelists to recruit our church members and musicians to voice our religious motives, while the laity simply sit back and provide the funds. Such patronage can never be an adequate substitute for the partnership methods of the early church.

Between Sincere Religionists and True Scientists There Is No Conflict

By GEORGE R. THROOP, Washington University.

There is a great deal of talk and discussion at the present time on the conflict of education as represented primarily by pure science, and religion as understood in the minds of many, but this is a most unfortunate and unnecessary condition.

To most of the true scientists and sincere religionists of the present day there is no real conflict. All the facts of nature and life and the universe are too unfathomable for us to attribute them to any merely blindly operating force. How this entire world of ours and all the universe could function without some power and guide greater than human comprehension and understanding is beyond the real scientists to fathom.

What we need most is charity and tolerance on all sides. Religious education is to address itself not only to the correction of our present ills, but it renders special service as a great prophylactic agent in human society. We have been working on the theory that somewhere back in the early history of the races, the train of civilization ran off the track, and that the business of religion has been to send out a wrecking crew, to extricate bruised humanity from the wreckage. The church has served as a kind of spiritual hospital for wounded men.

But the big job of the church through religious education is to teach men how to run the train so that there will be no wreck. Religion is not only a cure, but it is also a preventive.

Training of Younger Generation of Immigrants Important for Civilization

By DR. ROMAN DYBOSKI, Chicago Social Worker.

Training children of European immigrants in the culture of their parents' countries seems to me to be the best method of preventing a rift between America and Europe.

There is no use denying that a rift has opened up between America and Europe since the war. We are in danger of losing the unity of Western civilization and if the world breaks into two units a third party may arise, probably Asia headed by Russia.

The civilization of America and Europe is what we believe to be the best in the world, and the link between America and Europe seems to be the second generation immigrants. There must be people on both sides of the Atlantic who understand each other if there is to be unity of peace and unity of culture. It is the younger generation of immigrants who have the best strain of European culture. This helps them to understand Europe.

They should be encouraged to study the culture of America and some of them go back to their own countries to educate their people and help secure this unity.

Inventions and Discoveries Have Not Minimized Reality and Presence of God

By REV. W. HAROLD WEIGLE, Jr., New York.

In spite of what the pessimists of today maintain, it is possible to live a usual life in an unusual way. It is astonishing how hungry the human heart is today for things spiritual, and this applies to the person living in the slums and back streets as well as to those living on Park avenue.

While there are many disturbing factors in our national life yet this is not an irreligious age. The prolific birth of new cults is an evidence that people are very conscious of their need for God.

The great inventions and discoveries in this generation do not in the least minimize the reality and presence of God. We must study down to the spiritual depths in which God alone can be found. And this is not a closed secret. God can be found by any heart which diligently seeks Him. But we must seek and accept.

The church today is endangered by the loss of initial enthusiasm for a great cause and the loss of the keenness of discipleship among people who once enjoyed an ardent and profound religious life.

Men of Wealth Realizing That Riches Constitute Public Responsibility

By DR. ISRAEL GOLDSTEIN, New York.

Wealth is one of the severest tests of character. Mental care in connection with the possession of wealth frequently causes physical ill-health and nervous breakdown, while the abundance of physical comfort and luxury tends to produce an even more serious malady, "spiritual anemia."

The rich man who is wise, acts upon the principle that wealth is a public responsibility, and that therefore they who have it are obliged to use it in such a manner as to set an example in the art of living. America may point with pride and satisfaction to its two richest men, Mr. Ford and Mr. Rockefeller, as examples of sane and useful living. Even with greater pride may we point to the sons of these men, whose careers present a gratifying contrast with the proverbial "sons of the rich."

Makes Life Sweeter

Too much to eat—too rich a diet—or too much smoking. Lots of things cause sour stomach, but one thing can correct it quickly. Phillips Milk of Magnesia will alkalize the acid. Take a spoonful of this pleasant preparation, and the system is soon sweetened.

Phillips is always ready to relieve distress from over-eating; to check all acidity; or neutralize nicotine. Remember this for your own comfort; for the sake of those around you. Endorsed by physicians, but they always say Phillips. Don't buy something else and expect the same results!

Jerusalem's Population. The present population of Jerusalem is between 64,000 and 65,000. It is believed that the population of Jerusalem in the time of Jesus was about the same, somewhere between 60,000 and 70,000. Three hundred years before a Greek historian estimated the population at 120,000.—Pathfinder Magazine.

The Sagacious Smile. "Whenever you speak, you smile?" "Yes," answered Senator Borah. "A smile doesn't commit a speaker to any political policy."

Spanish Cadets Getting an Eyeful of New York

Seeing New York's skyline through sights of a gun, Spanish cadets got an eyeful, to say the least. They were there aboard the four-masted royal training ship, Juan Sebastian Elcano, after a 30,000-mile voyage.

Bureau of Standards Tests Girders for New Zeps

The bureau of aeronautics of the Navy department requested the bureau of standards to make tests on samples of the girders for the new navy 6,500,000 cubic foot air ships which are being built by the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation. It is planned to use these girders in the main framework of the airship. They are made of duralumin and are of especially high strength.

Memory of a Loyal Indian Honored

Potomantas, daughter of Chief Cook, the last king of the Pamunkey Indians, unveiling a tablet to Chanco, who saved the Jamestown colony from massacre in 1622. Two-thirds of the people were killed and all would have been massacred if Chanco had not warned them in time. Chanco was a Christian Indian and the first to be honored by a monument in Virginia. The memorial is at Surry court house.

GOD'S LAW IN THE HEART

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 31:1-10; John 1:17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thy word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against thee.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Knowing God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Knowing God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Can We Know God?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Law in the Heart.

I. Restoration of Israel (vv. 1-14).
1. Time of (vv. 1-5).
This points to the glorious future. Not only the children of Judah, but the other tribes as well, shall be restored to their land. They shall be drawn by Jehovah's everlasting love (v. 3). God gave them the land. The peculiar distinctions of the chosen nation shall again be manifest. The time is coming when not only shall peace spread over that land, but it shall again be tilled, and fruitful.

2. The Lord will conduct them to their own land (vv. 6-9).
(1) The cry of the watchman (v. 6). This will be the signal for return.
(2) Exultant prospect (v. 7).—The prospect of deliverance will call forth a song of joy.

(3) Prayer of the Jews (v. 7).
God inclines all true prayer, moving the people to pray for that which He is about to do unto them.

(4) The returning remnant (vv. 8, 9). They shall come from all parts of the world, whence they have been scattered. When they shall look upon Him whom they pierced, their consciences shall be smitten, causing them to repent of their sins.

3. Appeal to the nations (vv. 10-14).
(1) Sound forth the good news (v. 10): The one who scattered them will now gather them in and shepherd them.

(2) Ransomed by the Lord (v. 11): Their deliverance is preceded by the provision of the ransom.

(3) The exiles shall flock back to their land to enjoy God's goodness in it (v. 12).

(4) Their mourning shall turn to joy (v. 13).

(5) They shall be satisfied with God's goodness (v. 14).

II. The Desolate Condition of Ephraim (vv. 15-20).

1. Rachel weeping for her children (v. 15).
This pictures Rachel, ancestress of certain of the tribes, weeping for her banished children.

2. Ephraim will surely return (vv. 16-19).
The nation is seen showing penitence for sin, requesting divine help in turning back and in confessing sin.

3. Their tender reception (v. 20).
In spite of chastisement, God loves Israel and will with open arms receive her back.

III. Action Urged (vv. 21-26).
Something is required of Israel. Before the prodigal could enjoy the blessings of his father's house, he must return thereto.

1. Israel must return and take possession of the land (v. 21).

2. Israel was to take the initiative (v. 22).
This is expressed by the declaration that the Lord hath created a new thing in the earth, namely, "a woman shall compass a man." It is usual for the man to make the initiative—to make overtures to the woman, but in this case, God shall create a new thing. The custom will be reversed. The woman "compassing" the man pictures Israel with eager affection approaching her divine husband.

3. The land shall be made righteous (v. 23).
The people are responsible for the restoration of prosperity and the righteous rule of the land.

4. A satisfied people (vv. 24-26).
IV. The New Covenant (vv. 27-40).

1. Freedom from the power of heredity (vv. 27, 30).
Those who are joined to Jesus Christ are in possession of a new law of life superior to the law of heredity.

2. The law within (vv. 31-33).
Through regeneration the heart has within it not only the desire but also the power, by the Holy Spirit, to rise above and to be free from carnal impulses.

V. The Source of the New Covenant (John 1:17).
Through the incarnation the Son of God identified Himself with the race by the incorporation of Himself with it. Those in Christ are new creatures.

Easy Life Valueless
An easy life is not likely to be valuable to itself or to others.

All Growth Is Slow Growth
You cannot force the growth of human life and civilization any more than you can force these slow growing trees. That is the economy of Almighty God, that all growth is slow growth.—Gaynor.

Religion
When you see a man with a great deal of religion displayed in his shop window, you may depend upon it he keeps a very small stock inside.—Spurgeon.

South West PARAGRAPHS

The Apache County Fair will be at St. Johns, Ariz., October 4 and 5.

The Coronado trail from Clifton to Springerville is now open for the 1923 touring and camping season.

The Arizona State Baptist convention was held in Globe May 15 to 19, at the First Baptist church.

Ernest W. Bowman was acquitted by a jury in District Court at Roswell, of the murder of Henry Clay Reno.

The Carlisbad Current Argus, published for forty years as a weekly and semi-weekly, made its first appearance recently as an afternoon daily newspaper.

The new Arizona fruit and vegetable standardization act became effective March 23, just in time to begin the shipments of the spring crop under the regulations provided under this law.

The spring lettuce crop in the Salt River valley officially closed May 2, with a total shipment of 3,952 cars. The total for the state is 4,353 cars, 400 cars having been shipped from Yuma.

Miss Helen Gilman of Bisbee was elected campus queen for 1923 at the Northern Arizona State Teachers' College. It was announced in Flagstaff after the annual Mardi Gras, held for the benefit of the college year book.

The New Mexico State Firemen's Association will meet at Gallup, August 26, 27 and 28. A fine list of prizes for individual three-men and five-men teams has been arranged, the prizes ranging from $25 to $175.

Earl Roltzman, superintendent of schools at Superior, was elected president of the administrators' section of the Arizona State Teachers' Association at a business session following a two-day conference of the organization in Tucson.

A total of 417,940 head of cattle were shipped from Arizona during 1923, according to reports issued by the Live Stock Sanitary Board of Arizona. The largest shipments from any single county was Cochise, with 99,621 head.

The 700,000-acre Tres Rios Land and Cattle Company, near Alamogordo, N. M., owned by Albert H. Fall, was sold at public auction to Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, for $168,260, plus $2,000 interest, to satisfy a mortgage foreclosure judgment. Doheny's representative was the only bidder.

Final dividends to be paid creditors of the defunct First National bank of Las Vegas, will reach a total of 73 1/2 per cent, according to notice given to 1,300 claimants by A. E. Rawlings, receiver, who served official notification by letters that a final dividend of 13 1/2 per cent will be available for payment within two or three weeks.

An all-southwest celebration in one of the West's last frontiers will mark the dedication on June 14 and 15 of the Grand Canyon highway bridge near Leo's Ferry, Arizona, opening the first north-south tourist route between Utah and Arizona, and making accessible to through travel some of the most scenic regions of both states.

April gasoline tax collections in New Mexico increased $16,000.66 over April, 1923, according to a report issued in Santa Fe by Miss Mary Bartolino, assistant comptroller. The total collections were $152,237.50, as compared with $136,045.50 a year ago. Of the increase, $16,041.61 was represented in gasoline fees and $35.95 in station license fees.

With their interpretation of "The Yallant," Prescott High school won first place in the one-act play contest conducted at the fourth annual meeting of the Arizona State Dramatic Association, in Tucson. Clifton was second with "Pearls," and Phoenix third with "My Lady's Lace." Eight schools were entered in the contest. Superior High school had forty members in its cast.

Net revenue collections in Arizona of $250,879.03 from all sources, including gasoline taxes for April, were revealed in a tabulation of receipts and disbursements of the State Highway Department's motor vehicle division, made public in Phoenix. The statement contains totals for the ten months of the fiscal year, July 1, 1923, to April 30, 1923, showing net collections of $2,422,224.45 for that period.

A gun and knife battle, resulting from an argument over the location of a piece of fence, cost the lives of three men and two others are in the hospital at Roy, N. M., seriously wounded. The dead are: Pat LeDoux, who leaves a widow and seven children; David LeDoux, Jr., and Phillip Spurlock, who is survived by a widow and five children. F. Coldron, father-in-law of Spurlock and another LeDoux boy, are seriously wounded.

Ben Spalding of Phoenix was elected president of the Arizona Scholastic Press Association, in annual convention in Phoenix, which was attended by six school newspapers of the state. John Knox, Bisbee, was elected vice president and Lewis Allison of Mesa was named treasurer.

Motor vehicle registrations, totaling $2,298 the first four months of 1923, brought license revenues amounting to $400,594.30 to the Arizona State Highway Department's motor vehicle division, according to a statement issued in Phoenix.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that, early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Looks

Senator Edwards is the subject of a story that they are telling in Trenton.

It seems that the senator made an anti-prohibition speech at a Trenton banquet, and was congratulated on his eloquence by a politician who had been changing from wet to dry and dry to wet every month or so for the last seven years.

"Splendid, senator!" said the politician. "I never heard a more brilliant and moving speech. And yet you don't look like an orator, either."

"Maybe not," said Senator Edwards. "And no more do you look like a weathercock."

Red Cross Ball Blue is the finest product of its kind in the world. Every woman who has used it knows this statement to be true.—Adv.

The Widower's Grief

Senator Norbeck, discussing his bird bill, said in Washington:

"I hope there is no hypocrisy in the love for birds that is voiced everywhere. I hope there's nothing in it of the widower."

"This widower went on terribly, terribly, at the church services for his wife. A friend the next day consoled with him, saying he had never seen such awful grief."

"Ah, George," said the widower, "it's a pity you didn't get out to the cemetery. If you could have seen the way I cut up there!"

Professional Capacity

"Shorty finally broke into the movies."

"So?"

"Yes. He baked the custard pies for the comedians."

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

The Law's Delays

El Paso Evening Post:

There is something very significant in the establishment of the National Public Tribunal of the American Arbitration Association, which is being formally opened this month — a tribunal, incidentally, in which a number of El Paso business men are participating members. This organization, built up by voluntary effort through six years of patient work, means the creation of machinery for arbitration of business disputes without recourse to courts and lawyers.

Courts and lawyers are too expensive for most business disputes. And what is more, they tend to tangle rather than untangle disputes. As long ago as Shakespeare the "law's delays" were a by-word. A number of industries have already set up their own methods of settling disputes, as witness baseball and movie. But this new arbitration machinery is for the general business public. It is really the beginning of a new set of courts which may one day entirely supplant the present system.

Historically considered, the legal profession is a big cobweb woven about the place and the power of the judge. In the beginning the 'court' was the entrance to the judicial chamber. In this 'court' or gateway, unofficial hangers-on collected to buttonhole prospective litigants, and to get a little money out of them for showing them the best way to favor the judge.

Why Did the Baptist Pastor Resign?

This question is being asked, and will be answered by the pastor in a frank but kindly manner at the Sunday morning service, under the subject 'Three Adjustable Reasons.'

There will be no evening service on account of the services at the High School Auditorium.

Notice of Special Services

Rev. F. C. Rowland will hold services at the Capitan Baptist Church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Everyone cordially invited.

It costs very little to recondition a MODEL T FORD

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company will continue to supply parts as long as they are needed by Ford owners.

So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T, we suggest that you take it to the nearest Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of any replacement parts that may be necessary.

You will find this the economical thing to do because a small expenditure now will help to prevent costlier repairs later on, increase the value of the car, and give you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of only $2.60 you can have your generator put in first-class condition. A new universal joint will be installed for a labor cost of $3. Overhauling the carburetor costs $1.50; steering gear, $3.50; radiator, $7.50. A complete overhauling of the rear axle assembly runs between $5.75 and $7 for labor. An average price of $22.50 covers the overhauling of the motor and transmission.

These prices are for labor only because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The cost of these parts is low, however, because of the Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

WHY CAMELS ARE THE BETTER CIGARETTE

Camels contain the choicest tobaccos grown . . . expertly blended for matchless taste and fragrance.

They have a welcome mellowness and mildness that you will find in no other cigarette.

Smoke them as often as you like, Camels never tire your taste.

The quality of Camels is never permitted to vary.

Only a superior cigarette could have won and held world leadership for all these years as Camel has done.

You can bank on the quality of a cigarette that continues to be the biggest success in smoking history

Memorial Day, 1929

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

HIS ENLISTED in a Pennsylvania regiment in June, 1775, and marched to the siege of Boston. He followed Montgomery to Quebec, and starved and froze amid the snows of Canada. Wearing the Continental Buff and Blue, he fought under Washington at Trenton and at Princeton, and in the summer of 1777 he went with Don't Morgan to repel Burgoyne's invasion of New York.

At Saratoga the bayonet thrust of a Hessian grenadier struck him down. What if the historians of the future were to call this conflict, whose din was now sounding faintly in his ears, one of "the fifteen decisive battles of the world"? He was conscious only of the torture of thirst as his life ebbed swiftly away until death finally stilled his cry of "Water! Water!" A great monument stands on the spot which once witnessed the "pomp and circumstance of war"—the surrender of a British army. But, nearby, the smooth, green and gives no sign that the soil beneath holds the dust of a young Pennsylvania backwoodsman, one of the many who died in defense of American liberty. Who was he? Just an Unknown Soldier of the Revolution!

Before the ink on his enlistment papers in the First Infantry was scarcely dry, another boy, who had never before been beyond the confines of the rock-strewn acres of the little New England farm where he was born, was on his way to the western frontier, there to serve in a lonely outpost called Fort Dearborn. It was as though he were on another planet, so far as communication with the world he had known was concerned. But somehow he managed to live through the cold, desolate winters and the hot, fever-breeding summers amid the swamps along the Chicago river.

With the summer of 1812 came the news of war with Great Britain, and, more alarming still, the threat of an Indian outbreak. Then—orders to evacuate Fort Dearborn.

One hot August day the retreat began. From out of the sandhills along Lake Michigan swooped the fierce Potawatomi. A short, desperate fight and the Fort Dearborn massacre was history. That night there was a hellish cry in the Indian camp and the pitying stars looked down upon a writhing figure at the stake. What if this was one of the acts in the mighty drama called "The Winning of the West"? What if the future was to see one of the world's greatest cities rise on these sandy shores? Could that knowledge have been recompense for the fiery agony of this New England lad whose unmarked bones were hurrying feet of Chicago's millions today beat an endless requiem? Who was he? An Unknown Soldier of the War of 1812!

Though some of his neighbors denounced it as an "unholy war" into which President Polk was leading the nation, a certain Middle Western farm boy was one of the first to respond when the President on May 13, 1846, called for 50,000 volunteers to drive the Mexicans back across the Rio Grande. And so he was among those who landed with "Old Fuss and Feathers" Scott at Vera Cruz and started toward the City of Mexico. To his parents back in Ohio came cheerful letters from the boy, telling of the rapid succession of victories won by the American army and assuring them that the war was almost over and that he would soon be home. His last letter was written the night before Scott's soldiers stormed Chapultepec. The boy's parents awaited his return in vain. Today in the environs of the City of Mexico there is a little cemetery in which stands a small granite shaft bearing these words: "To the memory of the American soldiers who perished in this valley in 1847, whose bones, collected by the country's orders, are here buried—750." And so this Unknown Soldier of the Mexican war sleeps among the 750 in alien soil.

Fort Sumter had been fired upon. In the upper Shenandoah valley of Virginia a father was bidding goodbye to his two sons. "Pray God, you two never meet in battle," he said. And one rode north to wear the Federal Blue under General Patterson and the other rode south to become a member of Gen. Thomas J. Jackson's "Stonewall Brigade." Whether or not his prayer was answered, the father never knew. He never saw either again.

Perhaps in some Valhalla two warrior spirits reminiscence of Chancellorsville and Antietam, of Manassas and Malvern Hill but there is no bitterness in their tones as they call each other "Yank" and "Johnny Rebs." The crumbling dust of the bodies which once housed these spirits rests under a great monument of rough-hewn granite and polished marble in Arlington cemetery near Washington, D. C. On this monument is an inscription which reads: "Beneath this stone repose the bones of 2,111 unknown soldiers gathered after the war from the fields of Bull Run and the route to the Rappahannock. Their remains could not be identified but their names and deaths are recorded in the archives of their country; and its grateful citizens honor them as of their noble army of martyrs. May they rest in peace." It was the spring of 1900. A Colorado miner, coming off the night shift, joined a group of his fellows gathered about one who read in a Denver paper the headlines: "War With Spain." A month later he was on an army transport that steamed through the Golden Gate into the broad Pacific. The next year he was one of "a detachment which set out through the Philippine jungle in pursuit of a party of Moro raiders. There was a deathlike hush as they pushed on through the steaming heat of the jungle. A moment later its stillness was shattered by the sounds of men engaged in furious hand-to-hand combat, bayonet against bolo, a swarm of little brown men clawing at a group of swearing, desperately-struggling khaki-clad figures and bearing them down to earth by sheer force of numbers. A few months later back in the Colorado mining town a hand played "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," for the troop of "our boys" was home from the war. But out in the province of Sulu a rusted Krug-Jorgensen and a webbed cartridge belt already nearly hidden by the lush jungle vegetation, marked the last resting place of one who didn't come home—an Unknown Soldier of '98-'99.

November 11, 1922, in Arlington cemetery a great throng stood with bared heads as a bugler blew "Taps" over a new white marble tomb in which had been placed the body of a dead warrior. Of him it has been written, "Once he trod our streets—perhaps the very pavements which we daily travel. It never entered his head that he would become a symbol of sacrifice and his tomb a shrine of pilgrimage. If any one had foretold as much to him, how he would have laughed! If anyone were to reveal to us who he really was—that he had been a cashier in a New York bank or a taxi driver in Chicago—would he still retain his power so deeply to move us? Who was he, this Unknown Soldier, whom we have exalted out of humanity into sainthood?"

That question of identity can never be answered. But of him this can be said: since that day seven years ago Memorial day has had a new meaning. On this day his tomb is a shrine before which in spirit all Americans bow reverent heads. For thus they honor not only the Unknown Soldier of the World war but the Unknown Soldiers of all of our wars—the Revolution, the War of 1812, the Mexican war, the Civil war, the Spanish-American war. We cannot decorate their graves in accordance with the Memorial Day custom, for their last resting places, unmarked, are scattered far and wide over the face of the globe. Some of them fell before Indian bullet and lance on the wind-swept plains of the Great West. Some of them died in China, in the Philippines, in Mexico. Some of them "went West" on the battlefields of France and Belgium.

So in alien soil they keep their lonely "blivouc of the dead" and while we cannot pay them the same honors on Memorial day that we do the others who gave their lives for their country, we can offer up to them our tribute of gratitude by remembering on that day what they did even though we do not know who they were.

Man's Uppermost Thought
Whatever one may read into the name of patriotism, however variously the citizens of a nation may love their land, with whatever admixture of criticism and doubt they yield their support, love of home and fellowship with one's own people remains the common lot. Man cannot escape them if he would. The beat of their drum is in his blood, and their memories march as banners in a lasting parade.
He who hesitates is heeded.

Day for Thoughts of Peace

Memorial day is no longer a day for the recollection of martial times alone. It is a day given less and less to parade the salutes of guns, the clank of armor. It is a day given more and more to quiet and individual strengthening of that "bridge of love" that stretches from the dead to those who live. It is a day set aside for memory. When the saw and shingle link of World war veterans grows old and weak, may these memories be more of peace and sweet life than of war and red death!

Extremes in Cemeteries
The annual report of Quartermaster General Chestnut says that Arlington is the largest national cemetery both in area and number of interred. The smallest is at Balls Bluff, near Leesburg, Va., about one-half acre in extent and containing the bones of one known and twenty-four unknown dead.

STONEHAM LIKES GIANTS' CHANCES

Owner of Team Believes New Yorkers Will Win Out.

In the opinion of Charles A. Stoneham, president and principal owner of the Giants, his club is one of the four which will fight it out for the pennant and he believes that the Giants under John J. McGraw have enough of an edge on the three others to turn the tide in their favor, barring the possibility of serious injury to important players at some critical period of the race.

"McGraw has brought back from the South a well balanced team that has overcome its greatest weakness of a year ago," he said. "That weakness was its inexperience. The young fellows who lacked experience last year now have it and the additions we have made have added strength where it was needed.

"The race will not be an easy one, from what I can observe and from what Manager McGraw tells me. The Cubs, Pirates and St. Louis must be reckoned with. But if the fight really is among these three clubs and the Giants, you will find the Giants in every scrap and battling to the last. I think McGraw has put together a fine team. The pitching is much improved, the catching should be greatly bettered and the reserves are strong. McGraw is very keen on having reserve strength and he seems to be pretty well satisfied with what he now has.

"I said the fight looked as if it would be among four clubs. As a matter of fact, it may be a much different race, with several other clubs making trouble.

"Everything considered, I feel optimistic about the Giants coming through. I have taken a leaf from Manager McGraw's book, however, and refuse to be precise about our winning. There are such things as jinxes and I would hate to conjure one up to injure our chances."

Big League Prospect

Vincent Chimenti, third baseman of the Lafayette university baseball team, on whom all scouts of the big leagues are keeping their eyes these days. Chimenti is a star around the hot corner, while at the bat he is steadily improving. His coach, Bill Coughlin, former major league star, says Vince will go a long way in pro baseball.

Sport Notes

A veteran backfield is intact for the University of Pittsburgh football team.

Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete, is said to be muscle-bound at the age of forty-four.

Chick Meehan of New York university is considering two football teams for next fall.

Michigan has a hard football schedule with Harvard, Iowa, Ohio, Illinois, Purdue and Minnesota.

Bobby Coock, speed skater, will captain the University of Wisconsin winter sports team next year.

Indiana led the nation in basketball attendance with nearly 10,000,000 fans turning out the past season.

Only two men are lost from the New York university line, but the two were stars, Al Lassar and Bob Marrabes.

Oklahoma A. & M. wrestlers have won an even dozen championships since 1921—three national and nine sectional.

Referees officiating at games played by the Canadian Professional Hockey league will in the future wear numbers so that the fans may know their identity.

Dick Harlow advised his Western Maryland football men to go out for the lacrosse team this spring. Dick thinks lacrosse a fine conditioner for the gridiron squad.

After 12 seasons of steady campaigning, Tipity Wicket has run his last race. The fourteen-year-old steeplechase little gelding started 200 times and won 78 races.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

PUT ON YOUR ARMOR

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK

PUT ON YOUR ARMOR

THE romance of scientific achievement has been written in the past fifty years. More advancement in pure and applied science has been made in that period than in all the past centuries combined.

And what is true concerning science generally is equally applicable to the healing art. There can be no doubt about the matter; the saving of life through modern preventive methods is one of the outstanding achievements of the age.

Smallpox, which formerly possessed devastating power is in this day a now-and-then proposition only. Typhoid fever, which slayed its many thousands annually is at the present time at bay. Diphtheria, which as late as a decade ago was a terrible and terrifying enemy to child life, is now in many jurisdictions practically extinct. Scarlet fever, the power of which has remained unchallenged until the past few years, is losing its fearful hold. And so the fascinating story goes.

However, the point to this historical recitation is not to prate about the past or even boast about the present, but to place everyone on guard concerning the future.

It is not enough for the individual to brag about public sanitation, pure water supplies, control in the communicable diseases and modern supervision over foods. Nevertheless that is what many people do, and that is practically all they do.

Of course too much credit cannot be given to officials and scientists who are responsible for the present satisfactory state of public health affairs. But it must be understood that there are still a few things left for the individual to do if the personal safety factor is to be developed to its highest expression.

Life is a battle, a daily struggle with enemy germs, enemy living conditions and enemy habits. If this fact would be more generally recognized there would be a phenomenal decline in the sick and death lists.

Toxin-antitoxin for your children is their scientific protection against death or serious illness in that form. And scarlet fever immunization for the susceptible, young and old, is considered to be equally efficient.

Typhoid vaccine is effective for at least seven years. A journey into a far country, or even to summer resorts where the purity of the water supply may be questionable, demands this prevention. And the efficiency story of vaccination for smallpox is an old and conclusive one.

These are all simple, harmless and powerful weapons. If life is worth anything it is worth living. So put on your armor, and live!

SMART ALECKS

THE percentage of "smart alecks" is a fixed ratio in the general population. This large group has ignorance for its basis of intelligence! It is positively painful to see the number of people who in their own conceit insist upon overriding the judgment of learned and scientific men.

The pathetic feature is the hopelessness of logic in persuading them that they are wrong. Sound argument, common sense—with these things they will have nothing whatsoever to do. They know it all. Why should they bother?

Well, if a semiliterate person blinded by his own magnificent brain desires to indulge in fancies relative to his health, there is not much that can be done to stop him. And it is this particular breed of person who fills the pockets of the charlatans, cultists, faddists and other peculiar reactionaries whose wares are fine words, half-truths, bluff and sometimes downright lies.

But children should have a better chance. Death is a pretty big price for youngsters and babies to pay, simply because they have parents who are ignorantly stubborn and blissfully headstrong.

A little while ago a woman refused to have her boy immunized against diphtheria. She even would not permit the simple test to be made that would prove or disprove susceptibility. None of this modern foolishness for her! "Lots of my friends' children never had diphtheria either," she argued. Well, she took the chance. But her boy got diphtheria and diphtheria got the boy.

It would be cruel to tell this misguided parent that in a left-handed way she killed her child. But that is exactly what happened. Her painfully ignorant wisdom and sense of superiority blinded her to the plain facts about modern preventives.

The toxin-antitoxin procedure is simple, harmless and efficient. If your child is over six months old and has not been immunized, you too are in the "smart aleck" class. Get out of it at once.

Net Lazy
If you think you are too tired to walk to work, just put it down to the fact you are eating hopelessly soft. Think of the Chinese cooks. He pushes a wheatshearer loaded with eight persons. Try that on your way downtown.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

For the first time in her life she was glad to be sheltered and pampered as were other girls. But there was a growing restlessness within her—a vague dissatisfaction for which she could not account. She groped for an answer but the analysis could not be expressed or definitely cleared in her mind.

Deane planned with her of evenings but the planning was all of play. No word of work crept into it. If only he would accept her as wholly into that part of his life as he did into the rest.

And suddenly she longed to sit for just one evening before the fire and plan real work with Cal Harris. He had been the one man she had known who had asked that she work with him—or that he should work for her. She had drifted along, expecting that that same state of affairs would go on indefinitely, believing that he filled the void left by old Cal Warren. But now she knew he held that place he had created for himself. They had worked together and she had deserted the sinking ship to play the part of the tinsel queen.

She was conscious of a flare—half of resentment, half of apprehension—toward Harris for not having sent a word of affairs at the ranch.

Judge Colton entered the room and interrupted her reverie by handing her a paper. In the first black headline she saw Slade's name and Harris'; an announcement of the last chapter of the Three-Bar war.

The first line of the article stated that Slade, the cattle king, had been released. There was insinuation proof to convict on any count. She felt a curious little shiver of fear for Harris with Slade once more at large. The article retold the old tale of the fight and portrayed Slade, on his release, viewing the range which he had once controlled and finding a squatter family on every available ranch site.

She had a flash of sympathy for Slade as she thought his sensations must have been similar to her own when she had looked upon the ruins of the Three-Bar. But this was not out by the knowledge that he had only met the same treatment he had handed to so many others; that he had dropped into the trap he had built for her. She found no real sympathy for Slade—only fear for Harris since Slade was freed. The old sense of responsibility for her brand had been worn too long to be shed at will. She knew that now.

"I suppose you'll be surprised to hear that I'm going back," she said.

Her father's old friend smiled across at her and puffed his pipe.

"Surprised!" he said. "Why, I've known all along you'd be going back before long. I could have told you that when you stepped off the train. He left her alone with Deane when the younger man arrived. She plunged into her subject at once.

"I'm sorry," she said. "But I'm going home. I'm not cut out for this—not for long at one time. I want to smell the round-up fire and slip my twine on a Three-Bar calf; to throw my leg across a horse and ride, and feel the wind tearing past. It will always be like that with me. So this is good-by."

Four days later, in the early evening, the stage pulled into Coldriver with a single passenger. The boys were in from a hundred miles around for one last spree before round-up time. As the stage rolled down the single street the festivities were in full swing. From one lighted doorway came the blare of a mechanical piano accompanied by the scrape of feet; the sound of drunken voices raised in song issued from the next; the shrill laughter of a dance-hall girl, the purr of the ivory ball and the soft clatter of chips, the ponies drowsing at the hitch rails the full length of the street, the pealing yelp of some overenthusiastic citizen whose night it was to howl; all these were evidences of the wide difference between her present surroundings and those of the last eight months. She gazed eagerly out of the stage window. It was good to get back.

As the stage neared the rambling log hotel where she would put up for the night a compact group of riders swung down the street. Her heart seemed to stop as she recognized the big paint-horse at their head. She had not fully realized how much she longed to see Cal Harris.

Instead of dismounting to a group they suddenly split up, as if at a given signal, scattering the length of the block and dismounting singly. There was something purposeful in this act and a vague apprehension superseded the rush of gladness she had experienced with the first unexpected view of the Three-Bar crew. Men who stood on the board sidewalks turned hastily inside the open doors as they glimpsed the riders, spreading the news that the Three-Bar had come to town. The driver pulled up in front of the one hotel.

"I'll come off right now," he said. "Slade's in town."

"Sure," the guard replied. "Why else would Harris ride in at night like this unless in answer to Slade's threat to shoot him down or sight her the girl inside?"

kill Harris on sight whenever he appeared in town. Slade had many friends. The Three-Bar men were scattered the length of the street to enforce fair play.

The guard opened the door and motioned her out, but she shook her head.

"I'm going to stay here," she asserted.

Her answer informed him of the fact that she was no casual visitor but one who knew the signs and would insist on seeing it through. He nodded and shut the door.

Harris had dismounted at the far end of the block and was strolling slowly down the board sidewalk on the opposite side. Groups of men packed the doorways, each one striving to appear unconcerned, as if his presence there was an accident instead of being occasioned by knowledge that something of interest would soon transpire. A man she knew for a Slade rider moved out to the edge of the sidewalk across the street from Harris. She saw the lumbering form of Waddles edging up beside him.

He Met Her at the Mouth of the Lane.

Other Three-Bar boys were watching every man who showed a disposition to detach himself from the groups in the doors. The blare of the piano and all sounds of revelry had hushed.

The girl felt the clutch of stark fear at her heart. She had come too late. Harris was to meet Slade. It seemed that she must die with him if he should pass out before she could speak to him again and tell him she was back. She had a wild desire to run to him, at least to lean from the window and call out to him to mount Calico and ride away. But she knew he would not. She was frontier bred. Even the knowledge that she was in town might unsteady him now. She sat without a move and the driver and guard outside supposed her merely a curious on-looker interested in the scene.

"A hundred on Harris," the driver offered.

The guard granted a refusal.

"I'd bet that way myself," he said. From this she knew that the two men were hoping Harris would be the one to survive; but the fact that their proffered bets backed their sentiments was no proof that they felt the conviction of their desire. She knew the men of their breed. No matter how small the chance, their money would inevitably be laid on the side of their wishes, never against them, as if the wagering of a long shot was proof of their confidence and might in some way exercise a favorable influence on the outcome. No man had ever stood against Slade. She noted Harris' gun. He carried it with the same awkward sling as of old, on the left side in front with the butt to the right.

"Fifty on Slade," a voice offered from the doorway of the hotel. The guard started for the spot but the bet was snatched up by another. Wild fighting rage swept through her at the thought that to all these men it was but a sporting event.

Her eyes never once left Harris as he came down the street. When almost abreast of the stage Slade stepped from the doorway twenty feet in front of him and stopped in his tracks. Harris turned on one heel and stood with his left side quartering toward Slade, the old pose she remembered so well. There was a tense quiet the length of the street.

"Those you hire do poor work from behind," Harris said. "Maybe you sometimes take a chance yourself and work from in front." His thumb was hooked in the opening of his shirt just above the butt of his gun.

Slade held a cigarette in his right hand and raised it slowly to his lips. He removed it and flicked the ash from the end, then inspected the results and snapped it again—and the downward move of his wrist was carried through in a smooth sweep for his gun. It flashed into his hand but his knees sagged under him as a forty-five slug struck him an inch above the buckle of his belt. Eyes as he toppled forward he fired, and Harris' gun barked again. Then the Three-Bar men were vaulting to their saddles. Harris careened down the street, leading the paint-horse, and within thirty seconds after Slade's first move for his gun a dozen riders were turning the corner on the ran-

Before the spectators had time to realize that it was over, the Three-Bar men were gone. Slade had many friends in town.

The girl had seen Harris draw merely a single pull from left to right and by his quartering pose the gun had been trained on Slade at the instant it cleared the holster; not one superfluous move, even to the straightening of his wrist. The driver's voice reached her.

"Fastest draw in the world for the few that can use it," he said.

The guard opened the door. The girl was sitting with her head bowed in her hands.

"Don't take it that way, ma'am," he counseled. "He was a hard one—Slade."

But he had misread his signs. She felt no regret for Slade, only a wave of thankfulness, so powerful as almost to unnerve her, over Harris' escape, untouched. She accused herself of callousness but the spring of her sympathy, usually so ready, seemed dry as dust when she would have wasted a few drops on Slade.

The next day, in the late afternoon, Harris looked up and saw a chap-clad rider on the edge of the valley. She had ridden over unannounced on a horse she had borrowed from Brill. She answered the wave of his hat and urged the horse down the slope. He met her at the mouth of the lane and together they walked back to the new buildings of the ranch. The men breaking horses in the new corrals were the same old hands. The same old Waddles presided over the new cook shack. Her old things, rescued from the fire, were arranged in the living room of the new house. A row of new storerooms and the shop stood on the site of the old. And in the midst of all the improvements the old cabin first erected on the Three-Bar stood protected by a picket fence on which a few vines were already beginning to climb.

After the men had quit work to greet the returning Three-Bar boss she went over every detail of the new house. The big living room and fireplace were modeled closely along the lines of her old quarters; heads and furs were on the walls, pelts and Indian rugs on the floors. Running water had been piped down from a sidehill spring. The new house was modernized. Then Harris saddled Calico and Papoose and they rode down to the fields.

As they turned into the lane they heard the twang of Waddles' guitar from the cook shack, the booming voice raised in song in midafternoon, a thing heretofore unheard of in the annals of Three-Bar life.

"There'll be one real feast tonight," Harris prophesied. "Waddles will spread himself."

They rode past the meadow, covered with a knee-deep stand of alfalfa hay.

"It was only trampled down," he said. "She came up in fine shape this spring. We'll put up a thousand tons of hay."

He held straight on past the meadow, turned off below the lower fence and angled southwest across the range. The calves and yearlings along their route gave proof that the grading-up of the Three-Bar herds was already having its effect. Ninety per cent were straight red stock with only a few throwbacks to off-color strains. The two spoke but little and near sunset they rode out and dismounted on the ridge from which, almost a year before, they had viewed the first move of organized law in the Coldriver strip.

A white-topped wagon came toward them up the valley along the same route followed by the file of dusty riders on that other day. A woman held the reins over the team and a curly-haired youngster jostled about on the seat by her side. A man wrangled a nondescript drove of horses and cows in the rear.

"That's the way we both came into this country first, you and I," Harris said. "Just like that little shaver on the seat."

"Will they find a place to settle?" she asked, with a sudden hope that the newcomers would find a suitable site for a home.

Maybe not close around here," he said. "Most of the good sites you can get water on are picked up. But they'll find a place either here or somewhere else a little further on."

He slipped an arm about her shoulders.

"It's been right lonesome planning without a little partner to talk it all over with at night," he said. "Have you come back for keeps—to help me make the Three-Bar the best outfit in three states? I can't hold down that job alone."

She nodded and leaned against him.

"That's what they wanted—old Bill and Cal," she said. "But it's nice that we want it too. I've come for keeps; and the road to the outside is closed."

They stood and watched the sun pitch over the far edge of the world; and down in the valley below them the hopeful squatters were looking for a place to camp.

[THE END.]

Persian Rug Designs

In regard to significance of designs authorities on oriental rugs say that the rug itself typifies the universe, and the various designs the ever-changing course of life. The principal color, if red, typifies life or victory; if blue, royalty; if white, purity; if green, devotion, and if black, evil. In patterns the swastika means good luck; the flower and knot, fortune and life everlasting; and the circle, immortality. The star of six points represents Allah.

Phil May's Humorous Suggestion to Artist

The death of old Lord Iveagh, head of the Guinness family of Guinness stout fame—on the Iveagh estate of $55,000,000 no less than $22,000,000 goes to the government—led a prohibition officer to say:

"I'll tell you a story. You've heard of Phil May, the great black-and-white artist? Well, May had a red and bulbous nose; and Shannon once did portraits of him and of Lord Iveagh for the Royal academy.

"As May's red-nosed portrait was being finished he happened to see the great stout brewer's on an canal.

"I say, Shannon," he said, "you ought to hang Lord Iveagh and me side by side. Call him 'Cause' and me 'Effect.'"

That Kind of Fellow Altogether Too Slow

"Too much promiscuous kissing is bad for young people," declares Judge Ben Lindsey. "It robs juveniles life and gaiety of its wholesomeness and is a grave threat to high moral standards.

"Things that would have been shocking a few years ago are now regarded as virtues and lack of them is liable to make one a social outcast.

"Some college coeds were decorating their frat house for Christmas when one of the girls asked the head of the decorating committee:

"Aren't we going to have any mistletoe this year?"

"No," replied the other, "I've found that the fellows who need it aren't worth a hang."

Nation's Paint Bill

The paint bill of the United States during 1927 reached the tremendous total of $519,000,842, according to a census of manufacture taken by the Department of Commerce. More than 1,000 establishments were engaged in the manufacture of paints and varnishes, and a total of 23,001 wage earners, other than salaried employees, were engaged in turning out the product. New York state led, with 162 plants engaged in the business, and Illinois ran second with 109.

Tim Snort Stops His Paper For Economy

"Third Notice." Every editor or has received them. The postmaster sends them to the editor. The postmaster is not to blame. For instance, here is a man by the name of—well, say Tim Snort—who sent 8 notices to stop his paper. He did not want it any longer; we wondered what was the matter. Upon investigating our subscription list we found that Tim was short $5.70. He had never paid a cent and yet had stopped his paper as a matter of economy—to us. A few evenings ago we stopped in a church and Tim's melodious voice rang out clear in a song, "Jesus Paid It All." We may have been mistaken, but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing that he had made an assignment of his liabilities to the Lord.—Exchange.

In addition to this the Magdalena News aptly says: "If there are any 'Tim Snorts' on the News' list, we earnestly hope that they will stop the paper real pronto, and not shift this burden onto the Lord, for His burdens are already tremendously heavy, we know, because He has so many more 'Tim Snorts' on His list than we can possibly have on ours. But Tim will have to sing like h—ll if he ever gets into heaven with that handicap."

Glencoe Woman's Club

The last meeting of the year was held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Werner, assisted as hostess by Mrs. Geo. Coe. In the business session the New Year Book was enthusiastically adopted, as outlined by the program committee. The subjects were: September, Americanization; October, A Parliamentary Drill; November, Plans for a Consolidated High School; December, Modern Trend of Religion; January, Book Party; February, Featuring Southeastern New Mexico; March, Better Homes; April, Music Day; May, Art Tea.

A splendid report of the Fourth District Convention was read by Mrs. Roselle, when mention was made in a special way of our newly-elected President, Mrs. J. V. Tully. The program subject was, "Looking Forward," lead by Mrs. Tully and was responded to by the following talks: Better Laws, Mrs. W. F. Coe; Better Churches, Mrs. Geo. Coe; Better Schools, Mrs. Ota Jones; Better Children, Mrs. A. F. Roselle. An exciting feature of the afternoon was the big hail storm which halted the meeting several minutes. The club adjourned, looking forward to a splendid time next club year.
