Lindbergh Stunts Fire Prevention Week Another Biggest Bank Floor Broker--Sold Short

Colonel Lindbergh is a wonderful flyer, one of this nation's most precious possessions. For that reason it is too bad that he cannot be persuaded to exercise reasonable caution. An accident to Colonel Lindbergh would be, as President Hoover has said, "a great blow to the affections of the United States."

It would also be a great blow to aviation in the United States, which perhaps interests Colonel Lindbergh more.

It would check the progress of aviation seriously, arousing great distrust.

When Colonel Lindbergh was stung recently at Cleveland he amused himself swooping downward almost to the ground, at terrific speed, suddenly turning upward.

A competent engineer watching the stunt said: "His plane weighs 2,000 pounds. The stunt just performed puts a terrific strain on the wings and other parts equivalent to changing the weight of the plane from 2,000 pounds to 30,000 pounds."

Selecting the anniversary of the Chicago fire, President Hoover proclaimed a fire prevention week, urging "the strictest of ordinary care on the part of our citizens." He notes that "for two consecutive years fire losses in the United States have been decreased."

Life imprisonment, in every case, for arson might help, and would be justified, since arson indicates willingness to commit murder. Important, and neglected, is the task of fighting forest fires. Chemists and airplanes should combine to solve that problem.

Again "The world's biggest bank" makes its bow, bigger than any thus far. Charles E. Mitchell, head of New York's National City bank, absorbs the Corn Exchange bank, creating an institution with resources of two thousand five hundred millions of dollars.

This one financial giant will have 100 branch banks in New York. The old-fashioned million has given way to the new "billion."

Why doesn't Uncle Sam decide for himself what he wants in airplanes, cruisers, submarines and everything else? Do we NEED the approval of another country?

Mr. Good, secretary of war, speaking with President Hoover's authority, says the country is prepared to spend hundreds of millions in addition to fifteen hundred millions already spent for harbor and river improvements. The secretary of war says: "The government will think together every part of the country with a chain of inland waterways, making one great artery."

Chas. Thornton Bitten by Rattlesnake

Tuesday afternoon about four o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thornton, who reside on their ranch and farm near Ocurra, were picking peaches for market and had gone to the upper orchard where the fruit was more ripe than in the lower place. Mr. Thornton drove his car under one of the trees and began picking for an order to take to Ocurra. The fruit being fully ripe, some fell into a clump of weeds at the foot of the tree and stooping to pick it up, a huge rattlesnake hidden in the weeds, struck Mr. Thornton on the middle finger of the left hand.

Taking time by the forelock, he took a piece of heavy wire, bound it tightly about his wrist and accompanied by his wife, hastened to Carrizozo, after having phoned Dr. Johnson of the happening. On arriving at the home of Judge S. F. Crews, a stranger who had made a short stop there, volunteered his services to drive them here, as by that time the arm was badly swollen. On their way here, they were met by Dr. Johnson, who hurried the patient to his hospital, where he treated the trouble with Antivenin Serum and although passing a restless night, he was feeling much better Wednesday, when interviewed. He will be confined at the hospital for the remainder of the week, but fortunately, the close distance to Carrizozo and the effective treatment by Dr. Johnson, he will soon be about and attending to business, but Charley says he will be particularly careful in the future to guard against the concealment of rattlesnakes when picking peaches.

That's good news. The people want national improvements, have plenty of money and, fortunately, they have a President who is an engineer and understands problems involved. He would rather attend to great permanent enterprises and let somebody else attend to bootleg liquor.

News from Jerusalem that will doubtless cause indignation and mass meetings tells of the arrest of 44 Jews of Haifa, held without bail, accused of premeditated murder of Arabs during the recent Arab-Jewish riots.

Happy Free State of Ireland! It lacks the blessing of prohibition, but on the other hand it lacks our stupendous crime wave.

Irish military barracks are being changed into dwellings for workers. And Irish prisons are changed to broadcasting stations and other uses.

While this country multiplies its prisons, containing thousands of prisoners, with occasional frightful rebellions, the Irish Free State reports a total prison population of 700.

Britain is disturbed because the nation seems to have reached the "stationary point in population."

No wonder--the same animal cannot both good brood mare and a good cart horse.

S.P. Plans $500,000 Dam El Paso Herald

Approximately, the above sum will be spent by the Southern Pacific Company in the immediate construction of a dam on the north fork of the Bonito river, a short distance from Carrizozo, it was learned Tuesday. The dam proper will be 85 feet high, 200 feet long at the top and will be constructed between two mountains, with a capacity of 750,000,000 gallons. In addition to taking care of the railroad's needs, the dam will supply water for the towns of Carrizozo, Corona, Duran, Pastura, Vaughn and several stations along the route. Surveys have been completed and preliminary work is under way. The dam will be completed by the close of 1930. A 20,000-acre game refuge also has been established in that district by the S. P., in cooperation with the New Mexico game department.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Hoover and Senate Act in Case of Propagandist of Shipbuilders.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

INTERFERENCE by individual citizens or corporations in the foreign relations of the United States is not to be tolerated by the President or the senate, and proceedings were started last week designed to put an end to that practice. The matter came to the fore when William B. Shearer, in a suit for remuneration, revealed that he had been employed by American shipbuilding concerns to attend the futile three-power naval limitation conference of 1927 and by propaganda to frustrate the plans for reducing naval armaments. President Hoover immediately issued a statement scathingly denouncing Shearer and his employers and ordered the Department of Justice to investigate the man's activities. The senate followed suit and adopted unanimously a resolution by Senator Borah directing the naval affairs committee to make an inquiry into the alleged employment of Shearer by shipbuilding corporations and the part played by them in the collapse of the conference at Geneva. Under the resolution the inquiry was limited to that, though Senator McKellar of Tennessee suggested it might be found wise to enlarge the scope of the inquiry to include all kinds of propaganda in the naval armament controversy. This course also had been urged by various persons outside of the senate who, while not defending the alleged activities of Shearer, condemned the propaganda of pacifists and other "little navy" persons.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader, said: "No question is raised as to the right of any or all parties to carry on propaganda within the limits of lawful action, but this involves a question of interference in what is essentially the foreign relations of the United States. There is no purpose to confuse the transactions mentioned with the long continued controversy as to whether the United States should have a large or a small navy."

The Arkansas senator declared no serious investigation could end that controversy or stem the flow of propaganda on that and virtually every major piece of legislation brought before congress. It was expected, however, that the investigation would end interference by interested citizens or corporations in the country's foreign relations, he said.

The corporations named by Shearer in his suit for $257,655 were the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation, the American Dredge Borel Electric corporation and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company. Eugene B. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, in a letter to President Hoover, admitted Shearer had been employed by the shipbuilders to attend the conference as an observer, but said this was done without his knowledge and that when the board of the Bethlehem corporation learned of Shearer's anti-armament propagandist activities his employment was terminated. The American Dredge Borel corporation issued a statement to the same effect.

WHEN the great tariff fight really got under way in the senate, the regular Republicans in that august body met defeat in the first test vote. Senator Simmons' resolution directing the Senate committee to obtain from the Treasury department information contained in the income tax returns of tariff beneficiaries was adopted by a vote of 51 to 37. The thirty Democrats all voted for the measure and were aided by 21 Republicans, including all the so-called radicals and several others. The information sought is to include profits or losses, gross sales, inventories, merchandise bought and costs of manufacture including materials, wages and salaries.

MEANWHILE President Hoover and his chief advisers in international affairs were considering new proposals from the British government for establishing a tentative naval reduction agreement and preparing an answer thereto, which was called by Ambassador Dawes Thursday night. The British plan called for reduction of the British cruiser fleet to about 80,000 tons on condition that the United States would limit its 18,000 ton 3-inch gun treaty cruiser tonnage to eighteen ships. Instead of the twenty-three now carried on the American building program.

Under this arrangement British would have fifteen 3-inch gun cruisers and the United States eighteen. Great Britain proposed that this disparity in big gun cruisers would be made up by allowing the British government to retain four older 7 1/2-inch gun cruisers and maintain an advantage in cruiser tonnage amounting to approximately 40,000 tons of small 6-inch gun so-called police cruisers.

In London it was announced that Prime Minister MacDonald had decided to call for the United States on September 28 to confer with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson.

PREMIER BRIAND'S proposals for a federation of European powers was enthusiastically received by the delegates of 23 nations to whom he explained his scheme, and they decided to try to bring the idea into force. Almost the only objection raised was that the plan might result in a loss of sovereignty of the individual states; and some of the statesmen emphasized that the union should be mainly economic. The French premier was asked to draw up a memorandum on his scheme to be studied by the European governments, and after they have replied a conference of all European nations will be called to consider the plan.

HAVING elected Peru, Yugo-Slavia and Poland to seats in the council, the assembly of the League of Nations considered and debated a number of important matters. These included a proposal by Louis Loucheur, of France, for the rationing of coal and sugar among the nations; an appeal by Count Apponyi, of Hungary, for revision of the Trianon treaty to return to his nation some of its citizens now placed as minorities in Rumania, Yugo-Slavia and Czechoslovakia; and a plan to place under the supervision of the league the international bank created under the Young reparations plan.

Dr. C. C. Wu, Chinese minister to the United States, proposed that the league advise its members to reconsider the extraterritorial treaties which, he said, shackled the Chinese republic and rob it of its sovereignty. The agenda committee voted against Wu's plea for adoption of a resolution for revision of treaties that have become inapplicable, on the ground that it opened up a question of too vast an importance, and the Chinese delegation threatened to withdraw from the assembly.

THOUGH war between Russia and China has not been declared, and may not be, nevertheless an actual state of war exists on the Manchurian frontier and many deaths already have resulted. The Russians have been attacking with artillery and bombing planes and the Chinese have retaliated sharply. There was desperate fighting for several days for possession of the city of Pogranichnaya on the eastern border, and at first it was claimed the Chinese had won there, but later advice said they had been driven back 40 miles to Mullin, and that Pogranichnaya had been reduced to ashes. Soviet gunboats made determined efforts to force their way up the Sungari river, but it had been mined by the Chinese. Each side blames the other for the aggressive actions, and actual conditions are rather clouded. Negotiations for peaceful settlement were still going on in Beilin.

WHEN the great tariff fight really got under way in the senate, the regular Republicans in that august body met defeat in the first test vote. Senator Simmons' resolution directing the Senate committee to obtain from the Treasury department information contained in the income tax returns of tariff beneficiaries was adopted by a vote of 51 to 37. Senator Neppig introduced a resolution calling for immediate consideration of the case of Senator-elect Vance of Pennsylvania, and this, too, was said to be intended to delay the tariff measure, but on motion of Senator Watson the Vance matter was put over until the regular session in December. So the tariff battle continued.

EXHAUSTIVE inquiry into the disparity between prevailing wheat prices in the United States and Canada and also into the alleged congestion of wheat storage facilities by speculators who seek to depress prices for the incoming crop was announced by the federal farm board. It is being conducted by experts of the bureau of Agricultural economics of the Department of Agriculture at the request of the board, which hopes to obtain facts upon which to base future policies as well as to relieve the immediate emergency.

ONE of the most peculiar swindles of recent times was perpetrated on New York banks by Charles D. Waggoner, president of a bank in Telluride, Colo. Through code telegrams ostensibly signed by Denver banks, he obtained from the New York institutions certified checks for half a million dollars, most of which he had placed to the credit of his own bank. It was a kind of a Robin Hood stunt, for he says it was done to make it possible for the people of Telluride to recover the losses they have met through the manipulations of New York financiers. The latter, he asserts, bought three of the largest mines in the Telluride district and closed them to prevent competition, throwing most of the town's inhabitants out of employment and wrecking his bank deposit. Waggoner was arrested in Wyoming and said he expected to spend a long time in prison but was contented with the success of his ingenious scheme.

REV. O. J. KVALE, Farmer-Labor congressman from Minnesota, who succeeded Andrew J. Volstead, was burned to death when his summer cottage near Battle Lake, Minn., was destroyed by flames. Mr. Kvale, an ordained Lutheran clergyman, was the only Farmer-Laborite in the house, to which he was elected in 1922.

Arthur Bullard, former Washington correspondent, for a time chief of the Far Eastern division of the State department and associated in various capacities with the League of Nations, passed away in Geneva after a short illness. He was one of the best informed Americans on questions connected with the league.

Louis Marshall of New York, noted lawyer and Jewish leader and philanthropist, died in Zurich, Switzerland, following an operation. His had been taking an active and prominent part in the Zionist movement.

FLIGHT LEUT. H. R. D. WAGBORN was the Schneider cup for the British when he drove the supermarine Rella Royce plane around the Isle of Wight course at an average rate of 238.88 miles an hour; breaking all records for speed. His record, however, was smashed a few days later when A. H. Orlebar, in the same plane, flew four times over a straight three kilometer course at a speed of 365.3 miles an hour. One lap was made at the truly terrific rate of 365.3 miles.

CLAUDIUS H. HUSTON of Tennessee, Whittier politician and old-time friend of President Hoover, was unanimously elected chairman of the Republican national committee to succeed Dr. Hubert Work at a meeting in Washington.

OF SPECIAL interest to the central South was the office of President Hoover to hold up work on the Mississippi flood control project on the floodways extending from the Arkansas river to the Gulf of Mexico if the Senate congressmen interested requested it. Senator Robinson of Arkansas and Senator Randall of Representative Wilson of Louisiana concurred in this plan. This will permit the Administration to consider the alternatives involving payments for floodway rights and other features of the project. Property owners have protested against the raising under which they can obtain no compensation for floodway rights under recent legislation.

(By REV. P. R. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, (C. 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 29 REVIEW: SIGNIFICANCE OF THE EXILE AND THE RESTORATION

GOLDEN TEXT—The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children. PRIMARY TOPIC—Stories Retold. JUNIOR TOPIC—Stories Retold. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Some Great Men of the Period. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Providence in the Exile and the Restoration.

The grade of the class, the aptitude of the scholars and the genius of the teacher are factors which determine the method of review. For adult classes the following suggestions are made:

- Study the lessons of the quarter as illustrating the philosophy of history in God's dealings with His people in their captivity and restoration. Assignment of topics should be made at least one week in advance. Only adult scholars should be expected to use this method. The following subjects might be assigned: Why God Permitted Israel to Go into Exile. What Changed Views of Life Resulted from the Exile. The Bearing of the Exile Upon Prophecy. The Relationship of Divine Chastening to Divine Love.

- Character Study. Assign the outstanding heroes of the quarter's lessons to members of the class to have them report. This assignment should be made at least a week in advance. Some of the outstanding characters for consideration are: Ezekiel, Daniel, Nehemiah, Ezra, Zerubbabel and Malachi.

- Summary of Contents. This method is usable at all times and can be adapted to most of the grades. The following suggestions are made for carrying out this method: Lesson for July 7—Before Ezekiel was commissioned as a prophet he was given a vision of the Almighty. After this vision he was given an experimental knowledge of God's Word. Lesson for July 14—Ezekiel sets forth personal responsibility as bearing on the prophet and upon the people to whom he ministered. Ezekiel's responsibility was to bear God's Word and sound the warning. The people's responsibility was to hear and obey. Lesson for July 21—Ezekiel is the prophet of hope. He ministered to Israel in captivity. God sent him to show to Israel the fullness of His plan for the world through them.

- Lesson for July 28—Because Daniel made the Lord the arbiter of his life, he was able to make known the king's dream, with its interpretation. Lesson for Aug. 4—While Belshazzar and his lords were engaged in drunken revelry, a mysterious hand recorded divine judgment. Lesson for Aug. 11—Because of jealousy certain wicked men plotted Daniel's downfall. They trumped up a charge against him on the ground of his foreign religion. Though the foolish decree of the king was executed, Daniel was delivered and his accusers were cast to the lions and destroyed. Lesson for Aug. 18—Though Israel went into captivity as a chastisement of the Lord, later He restored them. Lesson for Aug. 25—In the restoration of the people to their own land, the first thing necessary was the provision of a place for the worship of God. As soon as this work was done, violent opposition was in evidence. That which God sets out to do shall be completed. Lesson for Sept. 1—Through Zerubbabel the people were brought back and established in their own land, but they had gone far away from God. There was now need of a religious leader. Ezra was moved by the Spirit to lead them back to fellowship. Lesson for Sept. 8—When Nehemiah heard of the distress of his brethren in Jerusalem he took the matter to the Lord in prayer. The Lord gave him favor with the king, who permitted him to go back and build the walls. Lesson for Sept. 15—The method used in bringing back the people to God was God's Word. Because the Word was made plain, the people repented of their sins. Lesson for Sept. 22—Malachi as an aid to Nehemiah in effecting reforms pointed out the sins of the people, namely, base ingratitude, a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriage, and robbing God by withholding tithes. He pointed to a Day of Judgment when righteous tribulation would be meted out to the wicked and rewards would be given to the faithful.

STORY FROM THE START

Returning to America during the War of 1812, on a successful voyage, Capt. Lion Fellowes' merchant ship Sachem is sunk off Portugal by a British frigate. His crew surrenders, but Fellowes reaches shore exhausted. His life is saved by an English speaking girl who conceals her identity. He learns from her, however, that she is about to set out for Lisbon. Fellowes goes to Lisbon, hoping to find a vessel America-bound. He meets Capt. Chater, of the American ship True Bounty, an acquaintance. Chater offers him a berth on his mate, Fellowes refuses, knowing Chater is disloyal in trading with the enemy. He meets the girl who saved his life, Cara Inglepin, daughter of the owner of the True Bounty. Cara induces him to sail as mate.

CHAPTER III—Continued

Everyone but the duenna hastened on deck to watch the Badger come foaming down from windward.

"Oh, braye," cried Cara Inglepin, clapping her hands delightedly.

She received Fellowes' eager greeting with a hint of embarrassment—almost as if she regretted last night's kiss, she thought—and continued quickly:

"We are fortunate 'tis the Badger. Sometimes the blockading captain are very severe. But Captain Collishawe is a gentleman, and my father's friend."

"Crimplin" Collishawe! Yes, many Americans have called him friend!"

"Why, Lion!" There was asperity in her tone. "Tis vulgar, I vow! You must not speak so. You'll ill commend yourself to Captain Collishawe."

"I have no concern with Captain Collishawe," he returned, and walked away, heedless of her protest.

The Badger rounded to under the True Bounty's quarter. Collishawe hung in the mate's cabin, a tall, lean man, of about Fellowes' age, handsomely uniformed, his half-boots polished, his blue coat fitting trimly. His manner was haughty as he halted:

"Ahoy! What ship's that?"

"True Bounty, Cap'n Chater, from Lisbon for New York, with wine and lemons," answered Chater.

"I'll send a boat aboard you," snapped Collishawe. "Have your papers ready."

He turned to give some order, and Miss Inglepin ran to the True Bounty's side, waving her mantle.

"Oh, James," she cried. "Haven't you a word for me? 'Tis unmannerly, sir."

He swung around. The sternness melted from his features.

"Cara! What rare good fortune! I'll come aboard, myself."

The Badger's boat swung overside and rowed smartly across the gap of choppy water separating the vessels. Collishawe leaped from its gunwale to the rope-ladder Chater had ordered rigged for him, ascending its rungs as lightly as a monkey and vaulted to the merchantman's deck with hands outstretched to Cara. Their voices, friendly, clamoring together, exasperated Fellowes unreasonably. He tried not to listen to them, but he couldn't very well help himself.

"—dispatches on the eve of our sailing," she was saying. "Twas reported the Grand army evacuated Moscow in October, and was torn to pieces in the retreat. Napoleon, himself, barely escaped."

"Great news," applauded Collishawe. "And the Peninsula?"

"Lord Wellington carries all before him. Soul is on the defensive. Your people are certain they will drive him over the Pyrenees before autumn."

"Excellent! An uphill struggle, 'gad, but the French are nigh dashed. With the Russians on their backs—"

"But have you news for us?" she interrupted eagerly. "Have you heard of my father?"

He laughed on a keen, boyish note that Fellowes found gratifying.

"We hear from our friends. Your father does well, but is roundly abused. Your uncle diverts himself sitting out privateers against us." His face clouded. "The Yankees have tricked us once more with those rascals of theirs. Our Java struck to the Constitution in a fight off the Brazil. 'Tis said the Constitution refused to close, and hammered the Java with her long guns. I hold we are but discovering captives grown soft from fighting the French."

Chater frowned assent; but Cara Inglepin replied spiritedly:

"No, James, you are wrong, and you do your own country no honor thereby, since we Americans are but Englishmen transplanted to another land and trying with another government."

He laughed once more at that.

"—Tying with another government. You have a trick of language, Cara."

"The ye, they are for respecting the late President of the United States!"

of your father's opinion labor to supply our wants—and remedy the ills that run at home. But their eyes will be opened anon. Admiral Cockburn has proclaimed a blockade of their whole coast, and with Napoleon tottering we shall soon have sufficient troops in Canada to brush aside their militia levies, sweep down the Hudson and take New York."

"Aye, aye, Cap'n Collishawe, that's how it shall be," Chater cried servilely. "And if ye'll suffer me to attend ye to the cabin, we'll tell ye summat of interest along that line."

Cara seconded the invitation.

"Yes, ye, James, do let me give you a dish of tea. We've so much to discuss. I had vast success in Lisbon. There were friends bads me fetch messages to you, and my father will wish to know how the Admiral esteems our purposes. So come below, James, and meanwhile Captain Chater shall give orders to break out a barrel of port for you—yea, Captain Chater, and a charge of lemons to ward against the scurry."

Collishawe bowed his appreciation.

"A'waps thoughtful, Cara! Ah, I'll be grateful when this cursed war is ended, and I may call on you again in Broadway, and smoke my pipe in the garden under the tulip trees."

Her answering smile, as he ushered her into the cabin, was a dagger of jealousy in Fellowes' heart. Raging silently, the Long Islander didn't hear Chater's hail until it had been repeated.

"Fellowes! Ahoy, Mr. Fellowes! Ye heard Miss Cara's orders? Well, see to 'em. The port ye can take from the cabin stores—I'll send the key."

For the next quarter hour Fellowes was busy, slinging the keg of port overside, and breaking out the lemon, from beneath the forward hatch. When the task had been concluded he walked aft, entering the cabin companionway without knocking, as was his custom. At the end of the passage was the main cabin, a spacious apartment, with a long table thwartwise of the ship, about which sat Miss Inglepin, Collishawe and Chater, their heads bent over a small heap of papers. Fellowes could distinguish several documents which bore official seals.

"The Admiral should be off the Delaware capes," Collishawe was saying. "But we'll pass on the word to him."

"We must have time to consult our New England friends," interposed Miss Inglepin.

"Aye, 'tis no matter to be hasted," agreed Chater. And raising his head, perceived Fellowes in the companionway. "Well, naow, what will it be, Mr. Fellowes?"

"The cabin stores key."

"Oh!" Chater cracked his finger-knuckles abstractedly, peering from his mate to the Badger's captain. "Well, jest bang it on the hook there. That'll be all, Mr. Fellowes."

Miss Inglepin looked away as Fellowes strode across the narrow door, but Collishawe eyed him alertly.

"I've seen you in New York, haven't I?" Collishawe asked Fellowes, who replied, with a shrug:

"Very likely, Captain. I remember having seen you."

"Abl! Be so good as to shut the companionway door after you."

Fellowes tramped out. What were they up to in the cabin? He recalled Cara's conversation with Wellington. Was the True Bounty a medium for conveying intelligence of treasonable plots to the enemy?

Against the evidence accusatory he balanced his conviction of Cara's essential honesty, and not least, her fervid plea the night before. And he mustn't let jealousy of another man dye his opinions, he realized.

Perhaps half an hour passed, when the cabin door banged open, and Collishawe stepped out, Chater at his heels.

"Very good, Captain," the Englishman said in response to a remark Fellowes missed. "Please tell Miss Cara I'm sorry she was obliged to leave us. And I shall have to ask you to muster your crew. Very strict orders, 'er know. Admiral instructs me to seize every British subject in enemy vessels."

"Well, naow, sir, jest ye cast your eyes over the men," whinnied Chater.

"Good, honest Federals, every man jack of 'em. New Englanders, except a couple of lads out of Long Island."

"What about your officers?" Collishawe spun on his heel, and looked straight at Fellowes. "You, sirrah! I told you in the cabin I had seen you before. Your name is Fellowes, ain't it?"

"Yes, Captain," Fellowes answered quietly.

"Born in London, weren't you?"

"My father was—"

"Born in London?"

"My parents were in London because—"

"Went to Etob, eh?"

"Yes, but I don't see—"

Collishawe strode over to the gangway.

"A couple of you men up here," he called down to his boat's crew. And then, over his shoulder to Chater: "I'll have to press this man, Brit-born, and not of the type we can encourage in disloyalty."

"But I am an American citizen," Fellowes protested. "My father was consul—"

Collishawe ignored him.

"Bundle this feller overboard," he directed the two bluejackets who had swarmed the gangway.

The bluejackets had seized Fellowes by either arm, and he tried to wrench out of their grip.

"Captain," he appealed to Chater, "you'll never submit to this! It's barefaced kidnaping."

Chater cracked his knuckles loudly, his sly twinkle belying the mournful droop assumed by his nut-cracker features.

"Don't, for marcy's sake, go and fight, Fellowes," he begged. "Twon't do ye no good." He addressed Collishawe direct: "I calculate ye kind of misunderstand, Captain. I've knowed Fellowes for years. His father was in London—"

"Immateral to me what fetched his father to London," snapped Collishawe. "He's British-born. Got on with him, men."

Fellowes began to struggle, but the two husky bluejackets pinioned his hands behind his back. One of them snatched a loose coil of rope from the deck, and slipped a loop around his waist.

"Over with ye, me 'earty," he said cheerfully, and gave Fellowes a shove.

The Long Islander tumbled out the gangway, and skillfully checked by his captors above, was lowered like a meat sack into the waiting quarter-boat, heaving on the swell under the True Bounty's lee.

A little stunned by his bumping descent Fellowes lay where he had fallen while Collishawe dropped singly into the sternsheet. The True Bounty had way on her, and was already sliding through the water; but Fellowes had a brief glimpse of the duenna's face, very white and worn.

That it, he thought it was the duenna he saw, for the first time since parting out over Tagde bar, but he decided he must have lost his senses. For the face at the port said distinctly, with a thick tongue:

"Arrah, holy saints, they've stole the poor lad clane away!"

Fellowes was dumfounded, dazed by the suddenness of the injustice which had overtaken him. A whip was lowered from the yardarm of the Badger, and he was slung through the air as casually as so much merchandise. Collishawe, who followed him by way of the Jacob's ladder, was equally casual in manner.

"Slack off this man's bonds, Mr. Curry—" to an officer, who held a spy-glass under his arm—"have that quarter-boat hoisted aboard, and make sail for our station. Bosun! Clinch! Where's Clinch?"

"Aye, aye, sir!" A stalwart, battered sailor, with a jagged scar across one cheek, coiled up, tugging at his forelock.

"Have this man mustered in—able seaman—draw clothing for him."

But Fellowes turned desperately to Collishawe.

"Look here, Captain," he exclaimed, "you've made a mistake. I'm not a British subject—"

"Born in London, weren't you?"

"Yes, but my father and mother both were American citizens. My father was our consul."

"Humph! Don't think that lets you off. However—Humph! Got your press protection?"

"Press protection?" Fellowes repeated thickly. "No! Why should I carry one? I'm an American citizen, I tell you—and no common sailor, into the bargain. I hold master's papers."

Collishawe eyed him coldly.

Mangian Love Letters Inscribed on Bamboo

Perhaps the queerest type of love letter known in the world is that in vogue among the Mangians of the hill lands and mountains of Mindoro, P. I., who still hold to the ancient alphabet of about three vowels and ten consonants which they group into words inscribed on bamboo in a single vertical column, their bolos serving them as a stylus. They are an extremely simple and timid people and their more aggressive Malayan neighbors have made them hunt cover in the highlands and the primeval forests. For business, aside from the very important business of making love, they hardly need writing at all; and surely no bamboo ledgers to record their wealth. But love makes an ardent demand upon them at upon other folk, and their swains fallen victim to Cupid whelp, get their bolos, slash down a good-sized bamboo, and go to work writing with intense gusto. So that a love message may be strung along the length of a 25-foot pole, and the one end trailing in the forest path as the poet induces a warm postscript on the other. Popular dandies soon have enough easily etched poles to build a hut—to burn such telltale documents would be to light a fire endangering the forest. Specimens of the love letter poles have been acquired by scientists and translated, and the astounding truth discovered that a Mangian in love is an inordinate liar!

Curious Reflection

"Have you seen the Museum ghost?" asked my friend, an Egyptologist, when with him in the Egyptian gallery of the British museum. We had just passed the empty black basalt coffin of a priest of Ptah, but on looking through the glass case that contains a statuette of Isis, he pointed out that the previously empty coffin now held a mysterious figure! My companion's explanation of this somewhat disturbing apparition was that the reflection of an emphy in a coffin on the other side of Isis' case was caught by one glass of the case and thrown by the other glass right into the vacant coffin of Ptah's priest! The illusion is certainly remarkable.—London Mail.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Thieves Follow the Night Watchman

The thief, who knows just when to strike, will follow the night watchman and after he has past a given point where the pilferer has selected his stand, he does his work, well knowing that the officer will not back-track on his beat. After he has passed, the thief takes his time for he has studied out the officer's beat and knows just how long it will be before he passes that point again.

Again, when the time comes to turn off the lights, the officer makes his rounds and past experience has taught us that theft has been committed after the town marshal has gone on his rounds to turn out the lights in the early morning hours. It would seem that some means should be devised so that the officer could stay on his beat and not be prevented from that duty by having to turn out the lights. By having the lights turned out by someone, other than the town marshal, the officer could then pay particular attention to protecting the business houses, unrestrained by other interferences.

The cost to the town for turning off the lights, would be nominal, compared with the loss that might in the future, as it has in the past, been sustained by having theft committed, all of which has been done in the early morning hours. If the town council feels that it could not stand the expense of having the lights turned off, the business houses could easily defray that expense by monthly contributions to that end. As a further evidence in support to what we have said, we would cite the robberies at Rolland's Drug Store, Ziegler Bros., and the Outlook Art & Gift Shop, all of which thievery was committed in the early morning hours when the town marshal was busy in turning out the lights.

Observe These Suggestions

Detroit, Sept. 25—Millions of dollars could be saved annually by the automobile-owning public through a more strict observance of the factors that control the gasoline mileage offered by the average automobile, it was revealed in a survey on fuel economy completed today by the Chevrolet Motor Company.

The matter of economy has always been a factor of the uppermost importance with Chevrolet in the designing of its cars. The survey sets down specifically a number of factors, which, if observed, should increase your mileage two to five miles to the gallon. They are:

1. When standing or waiting for the light to change, don't race your motor.
2. When you are to make a stop of more than one minute, turn off your motor.
3. Don't drive at excessive speed unless the occasion demands. Remember that the faster you drive the more gas you consume. So when you find that you are about out of gas and are heading for a gas station, take it slowly and your chances to get there are greater.

4. When starting watch the choke. Don't drive with the choke out more than necessary.
5. Be sure that your brakes are not dragging; inspect them frequently.
6. Have your valves ground when they need it.
7. See that the idling adjustment on your carburetor is set at the proper point so that the mixture is not too rich.
8. Don't fill your gas tank full to the cap, as some will escape through the vent in cap.
9. Don't ride the clutch.
10. Watch gas line for leaks at joints. Check it periodically to see that fittings are tight.
11. Be sure that spark is in fully advanced position.
12. Avoid excessive use of brakes in traffic.

Observance of these suggestions, the survey points out, will save money for the motorist and, add considerable mileage to your driving and reduce the number of necessary stops at the gasoline station.

HE DARED DEATH TO SAVE COMRADE

OLIN E. PERDUS

ON September 14, 1928, Olin E. Perdus and E. R. Higley, line messengers, were at work re-stenciling poles along the Savannah-Jacksonville Long Distance telephone line. Higley, encumbered with a heavy tool box and climbers, stumbled and fell from a bridge into the flood-swollen waters of the Altamaha River near Jessup, Georgia. Although only an ordinary swimmer, Perdus immediately dived into the river. He secured a grip upon the drowning man and fought his way fifty yards through the floating debris to the river bank. Unable to reach firm ground at this point with his helpless burden, he obtained a foothold on one of the lower branches of a tree and hauled the unconscious man up into the branches, where he unstrapped and cast off the heavy tool box and climbers. Again he had to fight his way twenty-five yards farther through the flood to some logs which had lodged against a tree. Here he pulled his comrade out of the water upon the logs and applied artificial respiration, restoring him to breathing and consciousness.

SHE SAVED LIVES WHEN FLOOD CAME

MRS. ALTHEA P. MARKS

ON the night of March 12, 1928, the town of Saffcoy, California, with its inhabitants of about 400 people, lay peacefully asleep when the St. Francis Dam broke. The telephone office is located in the Marks home on low ground in the center of the village. Soon after midnight, Mrs. Althea P. Marks, local agent for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, received word of the destruction of the dam and the aqueduct. Realizing that the enormous amount of water impounded by the dam might inundate the town, she, nevertheless, remained at her switchboard, warning the residents of the community to flee for their lives; calling those whom she could reach by telephone; and sending messengers to others. She kept everyone informed as to the progress of the flood, and after it had subsided, she continued, without respite for three nights and two days, to render essential public service in connection with relief work. The village suffered considerable property damage from the flood, but due largely to the warnings sent out by Mrs. Marks, no lives were lost in that portion of the valley.

A total of more than 17,000,000 telephone calls were handled last year at the University of Minnesota switchboard. There are over 500 lines on the University branch, and four regular operators.

SWEET CORN Families everywhere are enjoying the great seasonal delicacy, corn-on-the-cob; and regretting that the season is all too short. But science now has taught us that with ease and accuracy we can have our own corn-on-the-cob all winter.

Mrs. W. E. Fribley The long, steamy process and inaccuracy attending cold pack and boiler methods discourage many a front trying to can the dainty ears of corn. But the pressure cooker method of corn canning avoids steam in the kitchen and assures accurate heat and shorter time in processing.

The blanching process is much shortened and the finest product is obtained where this step is done very quickly and deftly, the ears or cut corn being packed rapidly into the sterilized jars, the rubbers and caps adjusted and the product placed in pressure cooker as quickly as possible.

Vogue for Tweed Apparel

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Ditto, ditto for tweed, says the mode, and with increasing emphasis. Ensembles, coats, suits and street frocks issuing forth from the ateliers of noted French couturiers all continue to accent the vogue of tweed.

Novelty, both in color and patterning, is the key which unlocks the door to chic, not only for tweeds but for all now autumn and winter woollens.

Wonderfully effective are the 1923 tweeds which are nubbed or flecked, or perhaps plaided, checked, chevron or herringbone-striped with white or in some instances light yellow.

Fifteen years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became famous for a single prescription, which now, after forty years, is still making friends.

Today Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people never think of using anything else when they're constipated, headachy, bilious, feverish or weak.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made today according to the original formula, from herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant-tasting; thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children.

of Farwell, Tex., brother of Mrs. George Roberts of Corona, had his left leg amputated at the thigh last Saturday at the Johnson Hospital, the operation being performed by Dr. Johnson, assisted by Dr. Shaver and nurse, Mrs. Sullivan.

The cause of the trouble happened 14 months ago, when Mr. Larson was in the employ of the Santa Fe Wheat & Elevator Co., at that place, and attending to the engine which ran the machinery, he slipped and fell with his left leg in a pool of scalding water, and on attempting to withdraw the leg, it became fastened and he remained in this condition until fellow workers in an adjoining room heard his cries and came to his assistance. He could have been rescued sooner, but at the time the accident happened, a freight train was passing close by and workmen couldn't hear his screams for help.

The injury left his leg in a cramped position and caused so much pain, and also having to get about on crutches, all of which caused him much annoyance and suffering, that he decided to have the leg amputated, as it would be of no use to him for the remainder of his life, and now, after he recovers and the limb is strong enough, he will have an artificial leg which will enable him to get about nicely and attend to business.

Silva-Montoya

Last Monday afternoon, Justice of the Peace A. H. Harvey united in marriage, Vidal Silva and Miss Lucy Montoya, with Sheriff John E. Brady acting as best man and Mrs. Francisca Silva as bridesmaid.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Montoya, for many years residents of the Jicarilla country, but who have made their home in Carrizozo for the last three years.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Silva, Sr., who reside on their ranch home in the Tucson mountains.

A dance was held that night at Navarro's to celebrate the occasion, to which, the couple's many friends attended to shower their congratulations.

Jailer Sam Farmer was floor manager at the dance and he urged the boys on to dance old-time sets such as quadrilles, etc. Sam, Juan Martinez, Ben Tellez and Frank Vigil surprised the young sheiks by demonstrating to them how well they could still swing them to right and left.

the untiring little dispenser at Ziegler Bros. Store, is taking a much-needed vacation. Ben is making a stage curtain for future plays which the Catholic Union will present, and has it almost completed. Ben went about town and procured ads from the different business houses and the money realized therefrom, was turned in to the treasurer of the Union as a donation to the cause.--Unbeatable spirit, Ben!

The Catholic Union

presented their program last Saturday night to a large crowd at Navarro's Hall. All seemed to enjoy, not the proficiency of the participants, but their effort in trying to do something difficult, and the Union, as a whole, wishes to thank such a considerate audience.

McDonald's Music-Mixers, the peppy, up-to-date, joy makers, pleased the dance fans at Community Hall Tuesday night and we hope to see that popular musical organization with us again after their tour to the coast where they are engaged for the winter season. Mac and his bunch of good fellows, as well as good musicians, will always be welcome in this locality, because they are "all right"

Serum For Snake Bites

Prof. Louis Garshenfeld of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy in a timely article in Hygiene, describes the principal poisonous snakes found in North America and gives instructions for first aid in case of attack.

Serums made from the venoms of poisonous snakes are now available and every camping party should have a supply. The serum, injected into the blood, neutralizes the poison of the snake. Since the serum of one snake is of no value in the bite of another, it is necessary to know what kind of snake did the biting. When bitten by a snake, place a tourniquet immediately above the bite (between the bite and the heart.) Squeeze the wound to make the blood flow freely. Cutting the wound and suction are not necessary if the antivenin is given promptly. An antiseptic may be applied as there is always danger of infection. Don't pack the wound with crystals of potassium permanganate; don't apply poultices or alum or parts of the body of snakes or other animals; don't pour coal oil or whiskey on the wound; don't take alcohol or ammonia internally in any form. Coffee and strychnine should be avoided, unless symptoms of weakness or giddiness develop.
