RECOGNIZING OUR DEBTS TO OTHERS

GOLDEN TEXT—Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:28-34; James 2:14-17. PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping One Another. JUNIOR TOPIC—Helping One Another. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Do We Owe to Others? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Fulfilling Our Obligation to Others.

The sum total of human duty as set forth by Christ in Matthew 22:34-40 is love to God and one's neighbor. This comprehends every conceivable relationship and responsibility of life. The measure of love to God is the whole capacity of man to love. The measure of love to one's neighbor is one's love for himself.

I. Loving God (Mark 12:28-30). Man's first duty is to God, the word which sums up his duty to God is love. By loving is meant a sincere desire for and a delight in the welfare of the one loved, and a willingness to do everything possible to further it. Love is not a sentimental emotion, but an ardent passion which absolutely sways the one who loves. When one is swayed by the passion to please, honor and glorify God, he is loving Him with his whole heart, strength and mind. To fail to render full obedience to this, the first and great commandment, is to be guilty of committing the greatest sin. By this test we can readily estimate our freedom from sin. Determined by this standard, all are guilty before God. We should put God first in all of life's relationships.

II. Loving Our Neighbor (Matt. 22:31-34). This obligation is like unto the obligation to God in that it centers in love. The measure of love is not the same. The measure of love to God is the absolute limit of human capacity. That unto our neighbor is "as thyself." Our neighbor is a finite being, therefore the love is not absolute. Who is my neighbor? This is answered by the story of the good samaritan in Luke 10:30-37. Our neighbor is one who is in need of our help. It is not a question of where he lives, but of his need of help. Some of the ways we can love our neighbor, as suggested by the texts selected by the lesson committee, are:

- 1. By co-operation (Neh. 4:15-23). The walls of Jerusalem needed to be rebuilt. The task was great and the enemies strong. Nehemiah could not have done it alone, though working all the days of his life, but "every one unto his work" made the walls a reality in a short time. Racial solidarity is a reality. "No man liveth unto himself," therefore human life is lived at its best in co-operation with one another. 2. By the strong bearing the infirmities of the weak (Rom. 15:1-7). By this means we build up each other. We are given strength, not to use for ourselves, but that we may help sustain the weak. We are not to please ourselves. Our supreme example in this is Jesus Christ. If He had pleased Himself, He never would have come down to earth, taken our nature and suffered the shame of the cross. The rich are to help the poor. Indeed, some are made rich in order that they may intelligently render helpful service to the poor. 3. By rendering lowly service (Phil. 2:1-9). The supreme business of life is to serve, not to be served. Christ came not to be ministered unto, but to minister (Mark 10:45). Christ, though equal with God, humbled Himself to become the servant of men. The human mind is naturally selfish, therefore the only way man can possibly render lowly service to others is to have the mind of Christ. The only way this mind can be in us is as Christ is in us, the Lord of our lives. 4. By rendering justice to everyone (Col. 3:12; 4:1). All our fellows have rights which must be recognized to accomplish which the elect of God must put on a mind of mercy and kindness (Col. 3:12). This kind of treatment finds illustration in our home relationships—wives and husbands, parents and children, masters and servants. Failure to render justice is a source of discord and confusion. 5. By giving to others (Jas. 2:14-17). Christianity shows itself in practical living and charitable giving. To profess to have faith and be destitute of practical deeds is to give the lie to our profession.

BROTHERS ALL

During the World war a desperately wounded German and an equally desperately wounded Englishman were lying on the field side by side. They heard each other murmur "Mother" and "Mother," and through ignorance of each other's language they found in "mother" a word that made them brothers. They made each other feel that they must pray together, and together they prayed "Unser Vater der bist im Himmel!" and "Our Father which art in heaven."

According to the industrial employment survey report for the mountain district, just issued from the office of the U. S. Department of Labor, in Denver, industrial activity and employment were reported in Arizona as satisfactory for this period of the year. While the supply of labor was ample for requirements, indications point to a shortage of field workers. Harvesting of the cantaloupe crop in the Yuma and Salt River valleys was finished the first part of August, releasing many workers for cotton cultivation and miscellaneous farm work. Cotton picking will start early in September. It is probable that there will be a need for a large number of additional field workers to handle the cotton and lettuce crops in the Salt River, Casa Grande, and Yuma valleys this fall. There was a gradual increase in the demand for dairy workers. Manufacturing plants reported capacity operations in most instances. Cotton gins will start their seasonal runs in the immediate future. Lumbering in the Flagstaff, McNary and Williams districts is expected to continue quite active during the fall months. Metal mining, including construction and development work, continued quite active in the Bisbee, Tombstone, Globe, Miami-Superior, Jerome, Ajo and Prescott districts with the supply of skilled and unskilled metal mine labor about equal to demands, except at Ajo, where a small shortage of unskilled metal mine labor exists. Normal summer conditions prevailed in practically all lines of industry and employment in New Mexico during August. Agriculturalists were busy in harvesting, threshing, fruit picking, plowing, and other miscellaneous seasonal farm work; with the farm labor supply indicated as equal to demands, until the cotton picking season. Metal mining continued active and considerable new metal mine construction and development work is under way in several of the mining camps. A slight shortage of experienced metal miners exists. Coal mining revealed a gradual seasonal increase with the supply of

INCREASE IN EMPLOYMENT LAST MONTH IN COLORADO

Denver.—The industrial employment survey report for the mountain district just issued from the office of the U. S. Department of Labor here states that the major industries in Colorado have reported an increase in production and employment during August with indications for a further expansion in September. Plenty of labor available to meet the increase in the demand for seasonal agricultural workers in most localities. Threshing activities and harvesting of the sugar beet, fruit, potatoes, cantaloupe, onion, and miscellaneous vine crops will offer employment to a large number of workers during September. Harvesting of the sugar beet crop will provide employment for thousands of field workers for a period of six or seven weeks, starting the latter part of September. An urgent demand was reported for miscellaneous workers at Monte Vista and other sections of Rio Grande county. Practically all manufacturing establishments operated steadily. The beet-sugar factories will start their seasonal runs late in September, providing employment for approximately 8,000 skilled and semi-skilled workers for a period of about three months. Approximately 1,200 skilled mechanics have been engaged in the annual overhauling of the beet-sugar factories. Plants manufacturing mining machinery and construction equipment engaged additional help; also the automobile assembling plants. A seasonal increase in meat packing operations is expected in September. There was a gradual increase in metal mining and some difficulty was experienced in securing skilled metal miners. A seasonal increase in coal mining is expected in September with the supply of coal-mine labor equal to the demand. Building and general construction continued quite active and work under way includes miscellaneous telephone construction, municipal improvements, and highway construction. Large forces were employed on the various projects under way. Establishments and institutions catering to the tourist traffic reported a decided increase in the employment of male and female workers during August. Railroad shops and maintenance-of-way forces should be steadily employed throughout September, while a seasonal increase in employment is expected in railroad freight-train service departments during the next few weeks. The railroad labor supply and demand were well balanced during the past thirty days.

When They Come Back

Silver City Independence:

Charles Reukauf, formerly principal of the school at Tyrone, now a resident of Lewistown, N. Y., is hearing the call of the west, and particularly that portion of it of which Silver City is the hub. Furthermore he is coming back some day. At such a great distance he is able to visualize the beauties of this mountain country, its charm, opportunities and advantages even better, more accurately and completely than those whose good fortune it has been to pass the greater portion of their days here.

"Perhaps you do not know," he says, "or have not observed the wonderful things in your country. Heaps of sun; air that is not stifling; dryness that is a relief; vegetation that is not so abundant as to be an obstacle; few cloudy days, winters that are mild and desirable; lacking water-soaked swamps and meadows, also the base of our existence, mosquitoes; highly colored birds and insects and reptilia; gorgeous sunsets; ever-changing landscapes and mountain views at different times of the day and seasons; good hunting grounds; most wonderful natural conditions for picnics; the largest flowers in the world and the most intensive; an imaginary mine in every rocky ridge; some moon and some sky, and, above all, the heart of western pioneer romance; a mecca for the sick and a paradise for the well. That is the reason I am coming to live again in the country of Geronimo, Billy, the Kid and Kit Carson."

The Chevrolet Motor Co.

announced on Oct. 2, at Detroit, that more than 1,200,000 of the new 6-cylinder Chevrolet cars have been placed on the road since the first of the year.

This achievement accomplished in little over nine months, is three times the best showing of any other manufacturer of 6-cylinder cars in a calendar year and tops Chevrolet's record total for the entire year of 1928.

It is now certain that 6-cylinder production will set a world record this year, surpassing for the first time in the history of the industry the output of four cylinder cars. This leadership of the sixes will come about chiefly because of Chevrolet's record showing this year.

Chevrolet factory officials declare that the dominating reason back of the leadership of the six is the public preference for the advantages which this type of construction affords. They point out, too that the influence of great volume production, which has enabled the industry to get 6-cylinder prices down to the lowest on record and has made it possible for Chevrolet through maximum volume to offer six cylinder performance at a price that formerly bought only a four.

With a new yearly record already assured, Chevrolet factories are continuing on the biggest fall production program ever undertaken by the company. Nine assembly plants and seven large manufacturing plants are facing the busiest final quarter that Chevrolet has ever known.

The heavy fall program was made necessary, it was explained, to bring production up to the level of the demand and make possible quicker deliveries to owners.

"To love one maiden only, cleave to her, And worship her by years of noble deeds."

—Idylls of the King.

Whether or not a man can love more than one maiden is a question almost as old as the human race. The philosophers and poets are no more agreed on the subject than are common mortals.

"No, we never sicken with love twice," writes Jerome K. Jerome. "Cupid spends no second arrow on the same heart. Love's handiwork are our lifelong friends. Respect, and admiration, and affection, our doors may always be left open for, but their great celestial master, in his royal progress, goes but one visit, and departs. We like, we cherish, we are very, very fond of—but we never love again. A man's heart is a firework that once in his life flashes heavenward. Meteor-like it blazes for a moment, and lights with its glory the whole world beneath. Then the light of our sordid common-place life closes in around it, and the burned-out case, falling back to earth, lies useless and uncaared for, slowly smoldering into ashes.

Emerson evades somewhat the question of whether a man can love more than one maiden, but seems of the opinion that there is little chance that one will fall violently in love after the age of thirty. He, however, thought love quite as potent a force as Arthur believed it, writing: "For, though the celestial rapture falling out of heaven scizes only upon those of tender age—no man ever forgot the visitations of that power to his heart and brain, and art; which made the face of nature radiant with purple light; the morning and the night varied enchantments; when a single tone of one voice could make the heart beat, and the most trivial circumstances associated with one form, is put in the number of memory; when we became all eyes when one was present, and all memory when one was gone."

Bacon thinks that even one maiden is altogether too many to love. He states: "The stage is more beholding to love than the life of man. You may observe, that amongst all the great and worthy persons (whereof the memory remaineth, either ancient or recent), there is not one that hath been transported to the mad degree of love; which shows that great spirits and great business do keep out this weak passion. You must except, nevertheless, Marcus Aurelius, the half partner of the empire of Rome, and Appian Claudius, the decrepit and laughing."

Home Canning Made Easy

TOMATOES
Tomatoes are one of the easiest of vegetables to can. They are an acid vegetable and as such do not present any of the difficulties that sometimes arise in canning the non-acid vegetables. Tomatoes are so rich in Vitamin that they are quite necessary to the diet, and fortunately retain their vitamin value after being canned. All who can many quarts of tomatoes for their winter means when vitamins are not so plentiful.

Grace Viali Gray, housewives will find many quarts of tomatoes for their winter means when vitamins are not so plentiful.

For the solid pack, pack the tomatoes whole, pressing down firmly enough to fill all air spaces and only the juice which drains from the tomatoes during peeling and cutting. If the tomatoes are to be sold, this is the type of pack that government regulations require. Add 1 teaspoonful of salt to every quart. Seal and process. Process means sterilize.

OFFER $5225 IN PRIZES IN NATIONAL CANNING CONTEST
To ward off a threatened surplus of farm products in many sections and to improve more extensively with the economy and healthfulness of home canned foods, a National Canning Contest is now under way to find the best jar of canned fruit, vegetables and meat in the country. Two hundred and twenty-two cash prizes totaling $5225 have been hung up by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, including a grand sweepstakes prize of $1,250 for the best jar of canned food entered in the contest. Any woman or girl is eligible to enter the contest, but entries must be in not later than October 1, 1929. Further information on the contest and free jar and entry tickets for sending in entries may be had by writing to Anne Williams, Director, National Canning Contest, 925 S. Human Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

For the other type of pack, the irregular, broken or extra large tomatoes can be used. Scald and cold dip to remove the skins. Mash, fill jars. Add 1 teaspoonful salt to each jar. Partially seal and process.

Whole canned tomatoes look more attractive and should always be canned this way for exhibition purposes. They should be canned whole, also, when desired for salads. The other type of canning enables one to get more tomatoes in a jar and is excellent for soups.

Tomato puree can also be made by cooking tomato pulp until it is the consistency of catsup, after which it is strained, strained and packed hot in jars and canned. It is all ready for use when the jars are opened.

After the jars of tomatoes and tomato puree are ready for canning, put them in the steam pressure cooker. Have boiling water almost to reach the rack in bottom of cooker. Fill cooker with jars, adjust cover by tightening clamps opposite each other. At the same time, see that all clamps are tight and no steam escapes except through the petcock. When steam comes from the petcock, close petcock completely, and allow pressure to rise to 10 pounds. Sterilize 10 minutes at this pressure. Keep uniform pressure to prevent loss of liquid in jars.

Remove cooker from fire at the end of the processing period, and allow gauge to register zero before opening the petcock, then open gradually to prevent loss of liquid in jars. Remove jars, completely seal, invert, cool, watch for a few days, then store in a cool, dry place.

Time cracks and splinters under the sledge of science, and the stern front of years that once faced men irrevocably has yielded in many places and broken down. A message from London to Chicago, a hundred years ago, was at least three months on the way. Wide water to cross in sailing ships and the wilderness of Alleghany mountains took many hard fought weeks. In 1866 a message from London still was five weeks or so away. In 1904 a message could come from London in about half an hour. Yesterday a man talked to THE TRIBUNE over the telephone from his London office, and time for the bones had disappeared.

BANKING FINDS THE WAY TO SAFER ERA

By FRANK W. SIMMONDS, American Bankers Association

In considering the banking situation throughout the country, the fact should be kept in mind that while one bank in ten failed during the past eight years, it is far more important that nine banks out of ten, operating in the same general field, serving the same communities and meeting almost identically the same problems, weathered the economic storm of readjustment successfully.

Banking is regarded as the keystone of our entire business structure, hence bank failures are rightly regarded as intolerable public calamities that must absolutely be prevented. The three major objectives of all inter-bank organizations, whether local, county, district, state or national, are to make banking safer for all concerned and, through increased efficiency in bank management and supervision, to lessen or eliminate all forms of losses so that greater rewards may accrue to banking and better service to the public.

Clearinghouse associations among banks in city, county or district groups undoubtedly constitute the chief line of defense against bad banking practices. They have demonstrated that they are the principal factor in bringing about reformation in banking regulations, improvements in banking methods and the observance of sound banking principles.

Men today are more intelligently group-minded than ever before. Banking is combining the best elements of competition with sound group action. By virtue of this combination, individual thought has much wider possibilities of expression. In general, group action has not stifled but has stimulated individual thinking and initiative.

There never was a time when successful bankers were so alert to the value of team work for putting the entire banking structure in prime condition. Sound bank management is the order of the day. Constructive cooperation is more than a sentiment, it is an economic necessity.

After following the rainbow for some distance the bride was awarded by finding in its folds many useful and beautiful gifts with showers of good wishes from members and friends.
