MacDonald's Work Lesson for Farmers Two Fine Girls Mr. Mellon Stays

Ramsay MacDonald's work in America is well done. The United States and Britain have solemnly pledged themselves against war as between the two countries, and to the promotion of peace by all proper means everywhere.

What the future will bring forth what the British government following the present labor government, or what American public opinion may desire in the future, no one can say. But at least war has been classed as barbarous. The two most powerful nations in the world have declared against it, and that is progress.

It took human beings thousands of centuries to abandon cannibalism. Often, undoubtedly, they resorted to eat men no longer. And over and over the resolution was broken, when hunger came and the edible man was easily caught. But cannibalism has disappeared.

And war will disappear. Nevertheless, in days when the more civilized men were giving up cannibalism, they kept themselves ready to repeat those that might come to eat them.

The United States and Great Britain, denouncing and abandoning war as between Britain and America should keep ready and able to repeat others that might seek to enforce war upon them.

Farmers, crying for "relief," may learn from New York's striking truck drivers that real relief can be found in organization.

The drivers haul farmers' produce and wanted an increase in pay representing as much as the average farm or earns. It was not difficult. The agreement was made that any farm produce hauled into New York must be unloaded from the farm truck and reloaded into a truck operated by a member of the Market Truckmen's association before it could be delivered to a commission house.

Who pays for that reloading, for the second truck and the services of another truckman, all unnecessary?

The farmer pays, of course.

There are some serious young women left in the world, thank the Lord. Therefore future generations may hope for more Lincolns and Edisons.

Miss Isabel MacDonald, daughter of the Labor Prime Minister, spends her time in New York investigating children's courts, as she does in England. She thinks "if we gave children good homes, sanitary conveniences and generally good conditions, their morals would take care of themselves."

That's one fine young woman. Another is the daughter of Mr. Morrow ambassador to Mexico, and younger sister of Mrs. Lindbergh.

When she reaches Mexico City Miss Morrow will teach in a Mexican public school.

The fact that her father has millions does not concentrate her attention upon herself, or diminish her interest in the welfare of children.

French reorganization of army plans indicate that cavalry, now greatly reduced, will disappear from the French army in a few years.

The French know that horses have no possible chance against airplanes above and "tanks" rolling over the ground.

As well send rabbits to meet an on-rushing express train.

President Hoover's announcement that Secretary Mellon has promised to remain in office until 1932 is good news. The public appreciates the willfulness of Mr. Mellon, one of the two or three richest men in the world, to neglect his own business for the public.

CRYSTAL THEATRE T. J. Pittman, Mgr.

Thursday-Friday - "Her Card-board Lover" with Marion Davies; also 1-Reel Comedy.

Prof. and Mrs. A. D. Boucher were here from Corona last Saturday and the professor was much interested in the outcome of the baseball game in the world series, but we couldn't find out which team he favored. They left for home in the afternoon.

Mrs. Eva Emerson

and children left last Friday for Albuquerque, being called there on account of the illness of Mrs. Emerson's sister. She improved so nicely that they were able to return home Monday. While at the Duke City, they purchased a Dodge car which they drove home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neighbauer formerly of Carrizozo, but now residing at Hot Springs, N. M., were here for a few days this week, Uncle Fred being empaneled on the jury, but was released, and they left for the springs Tuesday. They like Hot Springs very well and are interested in a business proposition that holds out good promises for the future.

The Bakery-Cafe

comes to the front with its ad in this week's issue of the Outlook; Gus Banos, or "Smiling Gus" as he is called, will tell you all about his cafe and bakery, opposite the depot. Gus has lately located in his present location, and asks a portion of the public patronage. He also carries a line of fruit, such as bananas, oranges, candy, etc.

It requires not much intelligence to realize to what extent Mr. Mellon's work has contributed to national prosperity.

Himself a heavy taxpayer, directly or through corporation ownership, Mr. Mellon has paid off already many billions of the national debt. He continues the "pay as you go" policy not shouldering war debts on future generations that may be less able to pay than today's prosperous generation.

Senator Sheppard of Texas, as dry as the deepest spot in Death Valley suggests amending the Volstead act to make purchasers of liquor as guilty and criminal as bootlegging sellers.

Such an amendment, of course, would strengthen prohibition enormously. Respectable prosperity would refuse to buy, fearing jail and blackmail after buying.

But Senator Sheppard's amendment probably will not pass; many legislators are themselves bootleg customers and don't believe in taking prohibitory too seriously.

Our friends across the water were cheerful, with the British pound sterling going above par.

It means a good deal for England not to compete with Uncle Sam's pocketbook in shipbuilding.

Court Convenes

Court officials are here this week and several are coming up, one of which is the Kingston case, in which defendant is charged with murder. This is to be a trial by jury, but aside from this, the cases will all be of a minor nature left for the Judge to dispose of, the council for which cases will be H. B. Hamilton. Col. Pritchard is council for Kingston.

Paul Wood

who came here last spring with the Blackshire family and had for the past two months been the night clerk at the Carrizozo Eating House, left Monday for home in Cottonwood Falls, Kansas. We are sorry that Mr. Wood has left us, but like many more who have visited us from the east, after they have been here and enjoyed our wonderful climate for a while and return to the east, they hear the mountains calling them and the everlasting sunshine luring them on until they finally come back.

Old-Fashioned Chicken Dinner will be served at the Wetmore Hall tomorrow (Saturday) from 12 and lasting through until 2 in the afternoon. If you want a dinner like Mother used to prepare, don't neglect to be present. Be there and get yours!

Otto and Ernie Prehm have purchased the building directly across from the Prehm home. It will be a nice home for someone when completed.

Mmes. Geo. Dingwall and Allan Johnson are here for the Fair and are the guests of their mother, Mrs. A. E. Lesnet and brother, Frank Lesnet.

McDermott's Carnival

will show here next week, beginning Tuesday and showing until Saturday night. Ferris Wheel, Merry-Go-Round and Concessions. This carnival has visited us before and gave the best of satisfaction. They furnish a clean, wholesome entertainment.

George Hyde

of Capitan, arrived here yesterday from a pleasure trip over a portion of the state. He first went to Roswell where he met his sister, Ethel Read, nephew, Oliver, and took them to the Cotton-Carnival, after which he took them to East Vaughn where he visited a cousin. After visiting other places they returned to Capitan.

School Notes

(Alice M. French, Supt.)

The County School Superintendent has visited the following schools - Angus, Alto, Ruidoso, Upper and Lower, Sanchez school, Glencoe, Hondo, San Patricio, Encinoso, Richardson, Rabenton and Jicarilla.

On account of the good rains and large crops at home this year, very few of our people have gone to the cotton fields. This has given us a much better attendance for this time of the year than is usually the case.

The attendance at the Glencoe school necessitated a second teacher for the upper-grade work. Miss Verlyn Ballentine, an efficient and progressive teacher, was given the position.

The new roof, doors and windows add very much to the appearance of this school and the comfort of the pupils.

The schoolhouse from the Parsons Mill District has been moved down to Mon Jeau Park. The building presents a very neat appearance; is comfortable and attractive. Both teacher and pupils seem to be delighted with their new quarters.

Miss Viva Werner, Secretary of the Eighth Grade class of the Glencoe School, sent in the following notes -

The Glencoe school has an enrollment of 22 pupils, is progressing nicely. Mrs. Davis is our teacher again.

The 8th grade, composed of 5 pupils, organized last week and elected the following officers - Mary Bonnell, President; Rex Werner, Vice-President; Viva Werner, Secretary; Belson Duran, Treasurer.

As special aims we have chosen the three C's - Character, Culture and Citizenship.

Mrs. French, our County School Superintendent, was a welcome visitor last Thursday.

Our average attendance for the month of September was 95.4%.

We hope a large number of our students will win the Certificate of Attendance during the year.

Dr. Johnson, our county physician, has been untiring in his efforts to have all of the children vaccinated. He has visited practically all the schools in the County for this purpose.

CAPITAN NOTES

The Capitan Tigers organized last week and the following lineup forms the 1929 girls' team:

Guards - Amelia Fritz, Captain, Wynona Hall.

Forwards - Frances Ferguson, Georgia Stuart.

Centers - Dala Leslie, Ruth Merrill, Gene Brockwell.

Track practising is progressing nicely and we are planning on our teams bringing home the prizes from the Lincoln County Fair & Track Meet at Carrizozo this week.

Mr. Coleman, one of our high school teachers, has a new Chevrolet Roadster, purchased from the City Garage at Carrizozo, through its salesman, Monte Gardenhire of Capitan.

Mr. and Mrs. Witt Sears attended the Cotton Carnival at Roswell, after which they visited relatives at Carlsbad and returned home, accompanied by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Sears and sister.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lumpkins and son, Louie, spent a portion of last Sunday in Carrizozo, returning home in the afternoon.

Mr. George Titworth of the Titworth Co. Inc., was a business visitor at Carrizozo Wednesday.

"Ye Sterling Shoppe," operated by the Ferguson Sisters, is a gathering place for Capitan ladies who resort to the very best in their buying.

Mrs. Othe Lowe was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Peter Johnson at Carrizozo last Sunday.

Chevrolet Test Cars

at General Motors Proving Ground have already been driven upwards of 5 million miles, according to James M. Crawford, chief engineer of the company, who declared last week that use of this vast outdoor laboratory has been one of the principal reasons for Chevrolet's consistent success.

"An average of 12 test cars are in constant operation, purring up steep inclines, plowing through sand, mud and snow, driving into the teeth of heavy winds, testing speed and endurance on the track and subjecting themselves to every known performance trial," he said. These cars are not retired until they have been driven between 30,000 and 50,000 miles.

After an experimental model attains this mileage it goes to the experimental laboratory to be dismantled. Every part is inspected, all evidences of wear noted. If a detail is not as it should be, work starts immediately developing a new part or process to replace the old.

In addition to using the Proving Ground to develop new models and engine features, Chevrolet uses it constantly for checking production cars, and it is this phase of the work that is perhaps the most interesting to the public. In order to get an unbiased opinion of these production jobs, they are selected at random from the shipping platform at Flint and put directly on the Proving Ground. Here they are given a general check before going on the regular schedule.

Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Green of Corona spent several days here this week.

ALTO NEWS

An accident occurred last Sunday near Alto, while Elmo Traylor and Jap Coe were driving their motorcycle. They were driving rather fast and turned over, but were not seriously injured.

Mr. Knight has been thrashing beans all week for the Alto farmers.

Mrs. W. N. Hightower was in Las Cruces attending the wedding of her niece, Miss Pearl Pfingsten to Mr. Joe Kendrick's last week.

Mr. Luck and family visited Mrs. W. T. Hagee Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Peebles were in Capitan on business this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kendrick have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Warney West this week.

"The Voyage of Columbus" was staged at Alto last Friday night. There were some real home talent shown among the children, and the costumes were very appropriate and pretty for the occasion.

A. P. T. A. was organized at Alto Friday night. Mrs. Traylor was elected as president; there will be a meeting at Alto next Wednesday night and the rest of the officers will be elected. After the Club has been organized, there will be plays and other forms of amusements given for the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Pack have just returned from Roswell, where they attended the Cotton Carnival.

Ross Daugherty was in Tularosa Saturday, visiting friends and relatives.

Ferguson-Johnson

Last Sunday afternoon at the home of Rev. J. H. Skinner, Miss Sallie Johnson and Don Ferguson, both of this place, were united in marriage. Rev. Skinner performing the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson, Sr. She was reared in this county, where her friends are numbered by her acquaintances. She is from one of our foremost Lincoln County families, the parents being old settlers and rank among the best we have.

The groom was also reared in the county, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ferguson, residing on the Nogal Mesa, where they have lived for many years and like the Johnson family, are among our most leading and energetic citizens.

After the wedding, the young couple departed for Rodeo, N. M., where the groom is employed in the service of the Southern Pacific railroad company and where they will make their home. As they left so shortly after the ceremony was performed, their many friends failed to have the opportunity to offer congratulations, but the Outlook expresses the one wish, in which we are joined by their friends and admirers, and that is a wish for the best of everything in their new life.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Democrats and Radicals of Senate Defeat Hoover on Flexible Tariff.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

THIRTEEN Republican senators, nearly all classed as "radicals," united with the Democrats last week to administer a decisive defeat to President Hoover in the tariff bill battle. By a vote of 47 to 42 the senate adopted the Simmons amendment to the measure taking away from the President the power to make changes in the duties under the so-called flexible tariff provision which has been in effect for seven years. Mr. Hoover had urged that this feature of the bill be retained, but the majority of the senators decided that it represents a delegation of the taxing power by congress to the executive and might lead to further usurpation of the powers of the legislative branch of the government. Anyhow, that was their story and they stuck to it, although unbiased observers thought their action had more of a political than a principled basis. The President's position in the matter had the approval of nearly all the big farm organizations, but the radical Republicans, most of whom claim to represent agricultural states, disapproved this fact and took advantage of the opportunity to hit Mr. Hoover. The Democrats are not at all sure of keeping a solid front on the rate schedule, so they made this showing on an administrative feature, only four of their members voting against the Simmons amendment.

Under the amendment adopted, the President would be required to transmit promptly tariff commission reports to congress, adding his own recommendation if desired. Sole authority to make changes in duties would be vested in congress. To prevent the opening up of other tariff matters congress would be prevented from considering any amendments to bills embodying tariff commission recommendations which were not germane to the particular item. Senator Johnson said the tariff would be "infinitely more flexible" under the amendment than under the present law. Of course the house may reject the amendment.

ONE hundred and seventy-five convicts in the Colorado state penitentiary at Canon City mutilated, murdered half a dozen guards and barricaded themselves in one of the cell houses, defying the warden's forces and a detachment of National Guardsmen. The convicts had few guns but plenty of ammunition, and before they were conquered it was found necessary to use machine guns, dynamite and finally a 75-millimeter field piece from the rifle range at Golden. During the fierce battle Warden F. E. Crawford himself was badly wounded. The outlaws, who were led by one Danay Daniels, demanded unrestricted freedom, threatening the death of guards they had captured if this were refused. The state forces would not listen to any such proposals. The warden's men were reinforced not only by the militia but also by police from Denver and other cities and hundreds of armed citizens.

WILLIAM B. SHEARER, the "observer" for American ship building concerns at the Geneva naval conference of 1927, was a reliable and sensational witness before the senate committee that is investigating propaganda activities, and after hearing him the committee adjourned its sessions until the visit of Prime Minister MacDonald is concluded. This probably was wise, for Shearer had brought into the record and handed to the committee a document which would be internationally startling if it were genuine. This purports to be a letter addressed to David Lloyd George and was said to be "leaking with hostility to the United States." Shearer attributed it to Sir William Wiseman, whom he called the chief British spy in the United States during the war and who is now with Kahn, Leeb & Co. of New York. He said it was given him by a Mr. Summers of Los Angeles, who received it from a Mr. Wheeler, who got it from Ben McLendon, who extracted it from the files of the British consulate in New York during the war; and that he showed it to navy officers and to the then Senator Reed of Missouri, and it played an important part in shaping the naval policy of the senate.

Sir William Wiseman denounces the document as a "clumsy, absurd forgery." W. S. Summers of Los Angeles says he knows Shearer but knows nothing of the letter. L. B. Wheeler, formerly a federal secret service operative, says he never knew Shearer; and A. C. Merrill, a Navy department expert, has given an opinion that the document is spurious. All of which did not seem to abash Shearer. Several well-known newspaper correspondents who were at the Geneva conference and whose names were dragged into his story by Shearer, have declared that gentleman's statements to be lies.

BRIQ. GEN. F. P. CROZIER, of England, right hand man of Lord Robert Cecil in disarmament efforts, sent to Ambassador Dawes a letter stating that in 1927 a man calling himself "Sherman" offered him large sums of money to cease his advocacy of a reduction of the British army and navy, and that in the newspaper portraits of Shearer he recognized likeness of that man. Shearer denies having approached General Crozier, saying he had not been in England since 1919 and never heard of the general.

When the committee resumes its hearings it will call Sir William Wiseman, former Secretary of State Kellogg and others whose names have come up in the inquiry. Under a resolution introduced by Senator Caraway the senate, through its Judiciary committee, also will start an investigation of all lobbies operating in congress.

GERMANY lost its foremost statesman last week when Dr. Gustav Stresemann, foreign minister, died of a heart attack following a stroke of paralysis. He had been in poor health for months but recently had so far recovered as to be able to take part in the reparations conference at The Hague and the session of the League of Nations assembly in Geneva. Doctor Stresemann, who was born in Berlin in 1878, was president of the German People's party, a member of the reichstag and was several times chancellor of both the empire and the republic. It was he who put into effect the policy of reconciliation with Germany's former foes and who brought his country into the League of Nations. He was looked upon as the backbone of the present Muller cabinet and Berlin politicians doubted whether the coalition government could be held together without him.

THAT tropical hurricane that swept westward from the West Indies, after killing some twenty persons and doing great damage in the Bahamas, struck Florida with devastating force, tearing its way upward from Key West to Pensacola and then veering over to the Atlantic coast region and dissipating itself in furious rain storms. The Floridians, being forewarned, had taken all possible precautions, but the property losses were considerable though the deaths were few. The rains in the Carolinas and Georgia added to the already serious flood situation there, the Savannah and other rivers having risen to stages unequaled in many years. All the way up to New England the storm crippled land and water transportation and wire service.

RANSAY MACDONALD must have been gratified with the reception accorded him by the officials and people of the United States. The prime minister's ship, the Berengaria, was escorted into New York harbor Friday morning by the cruisers Memphis and Trenton, and at quarantine he and his party were taken in hand by Mayor Walker's welcoming committee and landed at Battery Point. There they were met by Secretary of State Stimson and British Ambassador Sir Rames Howard and then a procession was formed to the city hall, where Mr. MacDonald was granted the freedom of the city. Soon thereafter the party took train for Washington, where the prime minister and his daughter Isabel went first to the British embassy. On Saturday Mr. MacDonald became the guest of President Hoover at the White House and the conversations on Anglo-British relations and naval reduction, the purpose of the visit, began. The social program arranged in the National Capital included functions at which Isabel was the central figure.

While the prime minister was on the high seas, Arthur Henderson, minister for foreign affairs, and Valerian Douglavsky, Soviet ambassador to France, got together and signed an agreement for full resumption of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Russia, including an exchange of ambassadors, and for the settlement of questions outstanding between the two governments. This agreement is subject to the approval of parliament.

QUESTIONING of the members of the federal farm board was continued by the senate committee on agriculture and the board was subjected to further criticism for not using huge sums of money to force up the prices of this season's wheat crop. Samuel R. McKelvie, of Nebraska, the wheat member of the board, had a sharp clash with Senator Brookhart on the question of whether or not the board was authorized to fix prices, the Iowa senator insisting it was.

Mr. McKelvie said that the board members hope that the new grain marketing corporation which is in process of organization at Chicago, will be ready to operate in such a manner as to stabilize wheat prices next year. It was the opinion of the board, he said, that it was not feasible to commence stabilization operations this year. In Chicago William H. Settle, chairman of the organization committee, said the grain marketing corporation would be completed within a week. At the call of the farm board the wool growers of the nation held a meeting in Chicago to discuss plans for a singular central marketing and financing agency for their industry.

THE American Legion, in annual session in Louisville, held the greatest parade in its history and then got down to business, adopting a lot of resolutions most of which concerned the care of disabled veterans and like matters. Woodlawn post of Chicago won first place in the drill team competition and Electric post of Milwaukee won the band contest. Boston and Los Angeles sought next year's convention and it was awarded to the Massachusetts city on the first ballot.

O. L. Bodenbacher of El Dorado, Ark., was elected commander unanimously. He was a school teacher who enlisted as a private in 1917 and was discharged two years later as a major. Mrs. Donald Macrea of Council Bluffs, Iowa, was chosen national president of the American Legion auxiliary.

LEADERS in the prohibition cause to the number of a score met in Washington and organized the "co-operative committee for prohibition enforcement" which is intended to coordinate the activities of the country's numerous dry organizations. The headquarters will be in Washington and the chairman is Patrick H. Callahan of Louisville. The committee proposes to lay a scientific groundwork for a campaign of education as to the benefits of prohibition.

President Hoover appointed John R. McNab of San Francisco as head of a special-body which will study and formulate changes in federal administration and judicial machinery. In announcing the appointment the President said the recommendations of this group would be submitted to congress for the more effective enforcement of the laws under the Eighteenth amendment.

FRIEZE VON OPEL, of Germany, wealthy automobile builder and race driver, made the first flight in a plane propelled by rockets as the car he recently tried out. He flew for about six miles at terrific speed and then, the rockets being used, came down in a crash that wrecked the plane though he escaped unharmed.

Costs and Efforts, the French pilots who started from Paris eastward on an endurance flight, were believed, toward the end of the week, to have landed in some remote Siberian forest.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1110 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny."

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way. Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

ONE PRESCRIPTION MADE FAMILY DOCTOR FAMOUS

Seldom has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than that of Dr. Caldwell in 1885, when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote the prescription as he found men, women and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, no energy, lack of appetite, and similar things.

Demand for this prescription grew so fast, because of the pleasant, quick way it relieved such symptoms of constipation, that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is always ready at any drugstore.

COULD NOT SLEEP NIGHTS

Helped By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fairhaven, Mass.—"I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during the Change of Life and I think it is a wonderful tonic. When I feel nervous and run-down my husband gets me a bottle right away. It is a great help to me and I think that if other people would only take it when they feel all run-down and take it as the directions say, they would find it a great benefit. My worst symptoms were nervousness and tired feelings. I could not sleep nights and I did not care about my work. I was so nervous I would cry if anyone looked at me."—Mrs. Anna Brass, 198 Washington Street, Fairhaven, Mass.

The Right Way to Redye Fine Silks

Textile makers always use special dyes for silk or wool. They know that is the best way. The makers of Diamond Dyes are the first to enable home dyers to follow this plan.

Next time you want to dye some of your more valuable articles of silk or wool, try the special Diamond Dyes in the Blue Package. They will give these materials clearer, more brilliant colors than any "all-purpose" dye. And they are just as easy to use as ordinary dyes. Like the white package Diamond Dyes, these dyes contain an abundance of the highest quality anilines. The blue package dyes silk or wool only; the white packages dyes, or fringes, any material. Either package; 15c, drugstore.

I HATE

BY
ARTHUR D. HOWDEN SMITH

STORY FROM THE START

Returning to America, during the War of 1812, after a successful voyage, Capt. Lion Fellowes merchant ship Sachem is sunk off Portugal by a British frigate. The crew surrenders, but Fellowes escapes shore exhausted. His life is saved by an English-speaking girl who conceals her identity. He learns from her, however, that she is about to set out for Lisbon. Fellowes goes to Lisbon, hoping to find a vessel America bound. He meets Captain Chater of the American ship True Bounty, an acquaintance. Chater offers him a berth as mate. Fellowes refuses, knowing Chater is disloyal in trading with the enemy. He meets the girl who saved his life, Cara Inglepin, daughter of the owner of the True Bounty. Cara induces him to sail as mate. Fellowes falls in love with her. The True Bounty is stopped by the British frigate, Bagder, Captain Colishawe. Debits his American citizenship Fellowes is taken aboard the Bagder as a "pressed" man. Maddened at what he believes is Cara's and Chater's treachery he strikes Colishawe, who orders him a hundred lashes, with the "cat." Fellowes' hatred of the three becomes an obsession.

"I'm Captain Fellowes of New York, whom you crippled out of the True Bounty."
"How's your back?" snapped Colishawe. "Why aren't you on duty?"
Fellowes slipped out of the loose pea-jacket he wore, dropping a mass of bandages with the garment, and turned to expose his stripes to the Englishman's inspection.
"You ought to see it," he said. "You might like to describe it to Miss Inglepin, when you go to smoke your pipe in her father's garden."
Colishawe's cheeks whitened.
"No occasion for this exhibition—or for your insistence. You were flogged for striking your commander—you should have been hung; I made allowance for your excited condition." He hesitated. "It ought not to be necessary to have to tell you that the lady you mention was in no way responsible for your being pressed. If you're a gentleman—"
"But I'm not," objected Fellowes. "I'm a common sailor. I've been flogged to convince me of it—one hundred lashes of the cat."
Colishawe rubbed his chin, embarrassed, apparently of a loss.
"See here," he exclaimed impatiently. "I'm a—d—sorry this happened. You acted most foolishly, but I wouldn't have ordered the cat if there'd been any way out of the mess you got yourself into."
"Oh, d—n you and your sympathy," Fellowes answered, gently venomous. "And d—n your lies. I know what you are up to. I know what Miss Inglepin is up to. You aren't fooling me."
The Englishman stared at him coldly.
"That will do," he rasped. "Go below. And if you insult me again I'll send you to the brig in strict confinement. Clinch!"
"Aye, aye, sir!"
"Escort this man to his berth. He's not to come on deck unless he conducts himself in accordance with discipline."
"Aye, aye, sir!" The bosun was flustered. And as soon as they were out of earshot of Colishawe: "Wot 'ave I been atellin' ye? Want to get that back cut up again? Only that the cap'n's kindly ye'd be stripped at the mast this mornin'!"
Fellowes sobbered.
"I hate him. I think I hate him more every day. I hate him for what he did to me. I hate him for being sorry he did it. I hate him—Oh, I just hate him. D'you understand, Clinch? I hate him! Whatever he does, I hate him!"
"Tain't Christian, lad," rebuked the bosun. "Tain't nowise Christian. Now, 'ere's yer berth. Lie down, and rest up a piece, likely ye'll get some o' that hate out o' ye, then."
"No, Bob," Fellowes answered wearily. "It's a part of me. It won't come out."

CHAPTER V
Escape
Plying her regular patrol well to seaward of Sandy Hook, the Bagder was the vidette of the New York squadron, always on outpost.
One of the first things Fellowes discovered was that the blockaders were in constant communication with the shore. At night sloop and privateers would steal out from the Jersey coves or the Backway inlets, with fresh meats and vegetables—and information that was much more valuable. Well-dressed society would climb aboard the sloop-of-war, hats pulled low over their eyes, and he escorted to the cabin, where they talked into the small hours.

Obviously, Ben Inglepin's daughter was not singular in her disloyalty; the country seethed with factional strife as in the days of the Revolution. There must be many Americans who hated Madison worse than the stupid Prince Regent—Americans who would wreck their country, procure its defeat, sacrifice a measure of its independence, rather than see the Democratic administration triumph.
Fellowes regarded the intercourse between the blockaders and the shore as encouraging for his plans to escape. He was certain the tide of treason was flowing unchecked. The continuing visits of the contraband traders were sufficient proof, and the news that percolated from them through all ranks indicated how disastrously the national effort was being crippled by political jealousy and incapacity.
But he waited with unabated confidence. His back was entirely healed and he was glad to do his share of hard, physical labor. Work helped to dull the curling itch of humiliation. Colishawe ignored him, and he avoided Colishawe as much as he could.
With the crew he was, if not popular, respected. But then any man would have been respected aboard the Bagder, who could boast the friendship of Bob Clinch and Cuffee Crookneck. Clinch was all-powerful forward, and no sailor would have dared to risk the giant negro's wrath. The nigger, men said, fought with his teeth; he'd eat yer alive, if 'e got primed.
One July morning the Bagder left her consort off the Hook, hauled her wind and stood to the northwest on long, reaching tacks, and Fellowes' eye glinted expectantly when she closed a low, sandy shore that after noon, and dropped her anchor outside the line of breakers. The hunger in his face drew Cuffee to him.
Fellowes caught the negro by the arm.
"That's mine, Cuffee! That's my load."
In his excitement he had raised his voice slightly, and Tom Grogan rolled across the deck.
"Easy all, messmate!" advised Tom. "No need to git yer dander rized up. These landin' parties is reg'lar diversions on the blockade."
"Landin' parties?" exclaimed Fellowes. "Who told you a party was going ashore?"
"Nobody, but I seed Clinch afussin' with the long boat, and we ain't no chured here for to rest our spars."
Fellowes glanced aft to where the launch lay on its chocks. Bob Clinch was bending over it. As Fellowes watched him, he straightened and strode forward.
"Oh, Bob," called Fellowes. "What's this I hear about a landing party?"
"Cap'n's orders. Dark o' the moon, ye see." Clinch winked mysteriously.
"Fine time to raid 'em, eh?"
"Is that what you're after?"
There was disappointment in Fellowes' voice.
"Ow should I know, lad? The cap'n ain't give me 'is confederance. All 'e says is: 'Esson, landin' party tonight. Overhaul the longboat and pick the twenty good men. Pistols 'n cutlasses. Ye'll go with me.'
"He's going, himself?" Fellowes asked eagerly.
"Aye, aye, lad. That's 'ow I understand it."
Clinch stumped off, and Fellowes fixed his gaze again on the shore that was so near, and so unattainable. He had been right. Cara Inglepin's treason was bearing fruit. Tonight, perhaps, it would flower. And he was helpless to interfere!

He groaned, and Tom inquired anxiously:
"Ye ain't goin' to be silly, 'n trot 'cause ye can't go in the longboat?"
"Dat him land," spoke up Cuffee. "Dat him home whar he lib."
"Not my home, Cuffee," denied Fellowes. "That's Fire Island, the Great South beach. My home is across the Great South bay beyond it—at Babylon, where the landing party are going."
"Who tole ye that?" demanded Tom.
"I'm as positive as I can be," the Long Islander concluded. "Colishawe, himself wouldn't go with an ordinary raiding party. No, he is going to meet her—Miss Inglepin—a cold note of passion rang in his voice as he spoke the name—"and her father. At Chater's farm, of course. They must have something for him, political or military information—and if we could only get there in time we might raise the militia, and trap them all!"
"Mebbe so we swim fo' sho'," suggested Cuffee. "Cuffee him, Krooboy. All Krooboy swim plenty. Cuffee swim fo' beach, pull yo' wud him."
Startled and doubtful, Fellowes surveyed the expanse of restless blue water and the smother of breakers.
"It would be a hard swim, Cuffee," he objected. "I can swim a little, but—"
"I chn't," granted Tom.
"Cuffee pull yo' boat," grinned the negro. "Dat easy fo' Cuffee."
"Foolishness," grumbled Tom.
"We must make a try for it, Tom. If you won't come—"
"Cuffee no let yo' drown," promised the negro.
"We'll stand by you, if you'll stand by us," Fellowes pleaded earnestly. "But we must make a try for the shore. We may never have another opportunity. Why, we'd deserve to be flogged, if we didn't go!"
Tom spat disgustedly.
"Oh, I'll go," he agreed. "Flogged or drowned, it's all one."

Despite himself, Fellowes was unable to keep his eyes off Colishawe, methodically concerned with preparations for the longboat's expedition. An undercurrent of excitement pervaded the crew. Each of the men selected to go was surrounded by a knot of friends, and Bob Clinch was trailed along the deck by sailors, who hoped to be chosen at the last moment. Mr. Curry and the other officers were hurrying about their various duties; the gunner was inspecting pistol-flinits, and packing bags of grape-shot for the light three-pounder which squatted in the longboat's bow. Only Colishawe remained phlegmatic and undisturbed.
Watching Colishawe, fury slowly welled in Fellowes' heart. He pondered the thoughts which occupied Colishawe, tried to plumb the secrets concealed behind the Englishman's hawk-nosed face.
Battis lanterns shed goutts of yellow radiance on the deck, and the longboat's company followed their captain down the Jacob's ladder, Clinch tugging them off at the gangway. Cars rattled in the thole-pins. "That you Clinch? Take the tiller. Give way, men."
Fellowes stole forward. Men were dousing the extra lights. A pair of ship's boys were sparring by the main-hatch, egged on by a circle of sailors. The confusion of the longboat's departure hadn't quite died down.
"Cuffee?" whispered Fellowes.
"Yah, mearse." The negro rose from the windlass. "Tom been under bow-sprit heel."
"Good! We must go quickly."
They slipped over the catheads into the water that rippled purringly about the bow. Tom muffled a groan.
"Drown me, ye will," he murmured dismally.
"Cuffee no let yo' drown," returned the negro, placing one of Tom's hands on his shoulder. "Hol' on dar."
And he vanished in the darkness with the celerity of a fish, towing Tom's foundering bulk as easily as though his companion was a lump of cork. Fellowes pursued at a more moderate pace. He couldn't see twenty feet beyond his nose; the Bagder was a vague huddle of spars, in a few strokes more became invisible. He traced Cuffee's progress by Tom's puffed and snortings. It was easy, he told himself, driving ahead, hand over hand, legs kicking rhythmically. Ah, but not so easy, he discovered soon, as the little waves kept slapping at his face, and his limbs grew heavier and heavier.

Vegetables Enjoyed by Epicures of Old Times

The beets of ancient Greece were black and white and the leaves as well as the roots were used. The leaves were generally preferred to lettuce, though lettuce was highly thought of for its cooling effect.
There are accounts of lettuce being served in its natural state at the tables of Persian kings as far back as 500 B. C. The Romans generally cooked it. Roman lettuce was black and its milky juice was said to induce sleep. In sixteenth century England, where eight varieties were found, it was cooked or served with oil and vinegar.
Only in recent years have mushrooms been anything like abundant on the market, and outside the large cities they are considered a rarity still; yet mushrooms have been available for thousands of years. Said Pliney: "The last device of our epicures to sharpen their appetites and tempt them to eat inordinately is the cooking of mushrooms."
Often they prepared the dish with their own hands to enjoy the odor. The mushroom, however, fell into discredit at the death of Emperor Tiberius Claudius, on account of the wild it had rendered Agrippina, his wife, in poisoning him.

Beginning of "Derby"
When the "Derby" was organized 149 years ago, the most visionary had no idea of the extent to which the race meet would grow. A few hundred sporting men attended the first Derby, in 1750, and it was won by Sir Charles Bunbury's horse Diomed. Its present glittering life was painfully absent, and at that time London had no telephone, gas or railway. It was frequently 38 hours before even the larger towns knew the winner. The guard of the mail coach spread the news, and in some remote villages the winner was not known until a fortnight after the race.—London Mail.

Grand Jury Would Ruin Blameless Citizens

(El Paso Herald)

In a manner mild but earnest, and in phrases suave but unmistakable, Gov. Dillon of New Mexico bids the grand jury of Santa Fe county to mind its own business.

Certain facts stand out plainly in relation to the grand jury's action.

Its report showed almost eagerness to use this Frank Quinn case as a basis for urging the discharge of Messrs. Springer and Davidson.

It would not be fair, of course, to entertain the suspicion that the motive was perhaps partly political.

The grand jury was grossly unfair in evidently desiring to have these officials ejected from office, disregarding their splendid records for the conduct of the department and the construction of highways—records that seem to be recognized with more admiration in other states than at home.

It would be entirely unjust, as Governor Dillon has said, to discharge Messrs. Springer and Davidson, merely on account of unproved charges against another man. To do so would put a stigma against their reputations as to work irreparable injury, socially and financially.

At this point the grand jury enters again. By its report, it has injured Messrs. Davidson and Springer; it's mere statement unsupported by any sort of proof set before the public, has branded these officials as being unfit to hold office.

Were such a statement to be made by the individuals, or any of them, in their private capacities, they could be sued for libel or slander.

In the form of a grand jury report—and all the worse for that apparent authoritative—it is issued and does damage without redress.

Let us hope the people of New Mexico have the good sense to refuse to be influenced by the report of the grand jury of Santa Fe county.

When it has grounds for indicting Messrs. Springer and Davidson, then will be the time to talk. That time, one feels assured, will never come, for the honor and integrity of the chairman of the highway commission and the chief engineer of the highway department has never been impugned prior to the grand jury's attack.

Congratulations to Gov. Dillon for maintaining his poise; for refusing to allow himself to be dictated to in a manner which, if he submitted to the dictation, would destroy the good name of two of the finest highway builders and most reputable citizens in the southwest.

The Chevrolet Red "O.K. That Counts" Tag Protects Your Used Car Purchase.

Every reconditioned car we offer for sale is identified by means of the Chevrolet red "O.K. that Counts" tag. This tag is the purchaser's assurance that the car to which it is attached has been gone over carefully by expert mechanics—that it has been thoroughly reconditioned—and that the price is based on the car's actual ability to render service.

Due to the overwhelming popularity of the new Chevrolet Six, we have on hand at this time an unusually large group of these "O.K.'d" cars. Come in! You are certain to find the car you want—at a price that will save you money. Make a small down payment and drive your car away!

Use of Cooking Thermometer

Bread Dough Should Be Kept at a Temperature of 82 Degrees Fahrenheit During the Rising Period.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the important uses of the general purpose cooking thermometer is in making yeast-raised bread. The temperature of the dough should be kept constantly at about 82 degrees F. throughout the mixing and rising periods. This can only be done exactly when a thermometer is used. An oven thermometer, too, will be wanted when the bread is baked. The following directions for making bread at home are given by the bureau of home economics. The materials indicated yield about three and a half pounds, that is, three large or four small loaves of bread. Hard-wheat or bread flour is called for. If a soft-wheat flour is used a larger quantity is needed; also more yeast and sugar. For the same amount of liquid about two and a half pounds or two and three quarters quarts of sifted soft-wheat flour will be required, and about double the amount of yeast and sugar. The liquid in either case may be milk, water, potato water, or any combination of these.

About 2 1/4 lbs. or 3 lbs. sugar
2 1/2 qts. of sifted hard-wheat flour. 1 ounce (2 cakes) yeast.
1 cup liquid
1 tsp salt

With the temperature about 82 degrees F. bread can be made by the straight dough method with the above ingredients in about four hours from the time the dough is raised until the loaves are put into the oven. A small quantity of the liquid, about one-half cupful, must be set aside for softening the yeast. If milk is used, it must be scalded first to check the growth of bacteria, and then cooled. The part reserved for softening the yeast should be cooled quickly, and the rest may be poured while hot over the sugar, salt and fat. Other liquids than milk do not require heating, but often this is done for convenience in dissolving and melting the sugar, salt and fat. In any case the liquid mixture should be brought to a temperature below 100 degrees F. before mixing with the yeast. The temperature should be adjusted so as to bring the temperature of the dough to about 82 degrees F.

The flour, except about one cupful, should be added to the liquid and mixed thoroughly with a spoon, the hands, or a mechanical bread mixer. All the flour may be added at once if experience has shown the amount necessary. It is impossible, however, to tell beforehand how much flour will be required unless flour from this lot has been used. The dough should be as soft as it can be conveniently handled, but it should not be sticky. More flour is required with water than with milk.

When the flour and liquid are thoroughly mixed and the dough no longer sticks to the sides of the bowl, it is ready to be kneaded. If a bread mixer is used, it kneads as well as mixes. To knead by hand, turn the dough out on a clean floured board and work quickly with the palms of the hands until it is smooth and elastic.

Allow the bread to rise to about double its bulk in a place where the temperature is from 80 degrees to 85 de-

Fairy Tale for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Mr. and Mrs. Emu were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Ostrich one day when Mr. Ostrich began talking of the children.

The emu family look something like the ostrich family. They have very long legs, but instead of beautiful feathers their bodies are covered with something which looks very much like gray hay.

Their necks, which are long, also have the same kind of hay covering. "You see," said Mr. Ostrich, "we looked after our children together."

"In the daytime Mrs. Ostrich would sit on the eggs and at night I would tell her to rest and I would sit on them."

"Of course," said Mr. Emu, "it is something the way with us as it is with you."

"I help Mrs. Emu, but then I find she lets me take over all the work to do."

"To be sure," said Mrs. Emu, "and why not? I always say to myself: 'If he's willing to work, it would be foolish of me to stop him.'"

"Yes, that is what I always say," "You certainly do," said Mr. Emu. "And you live up to your words, too."

"Don't you sit on your eggs during the day?" asked Mrs. Ostrich. "I like to have a hand in the hatching out of the eggs."

"I hardly call it having a hand in the hatching when you sit on the eggs, my love," said Mr. Ostrich, with a foolish smile. "And besides you haven't a hand."

"I know," said Mrs. Ostrich, "but it's something creatures say so I thought, I would, too."

"You asked me a question," said Mrs. Emu. "Do you, or do you not, want to have it answered?"

"From the way you are going on talking it would appear that you do not wish to be informed."

"How grandly you talk, Mrs. Emu," said Mrs. Ostrich. "To be sure I do wish to have my question answered."

"She talks grandly," said Mr. Emu, "because she can spend her time thinking of words and so forth."

"She does not have to work, nor even look after her children."

"Right, my dear," said Mrs. Emu, "but as I said before you always offer to help me, so I give right up to you."

"You give work right up to me," said Mr. Emu.

"It's this way," explained Mrs. Emu. "Mrs. Emu finds me sitting on the eggs, and she always says:

"Oh, can't I do that for you?" "Now wouldn't it be extremely foolish for me to say that he could not."

"If he is so willing, I must be willing, too. Then I get used to being idle and doing nothing but wander about and I forget about Mr. Emu and the work, until I find he is looking after the children."

"I think you forget about me on purpose," said Mr. Emu, "but it makes no difference—for I do not mind hatching the eggs in the least."

"Do you hatch the eggs?" asked the ostrich.

"Yes," said Mr. Emu. "Mrs. Emu lays them. Then I hatch them out, and what is more I look after the children until they are able to care for themselves."

"Well, that is strange," said Mrs. Ostrich. "We like to divide the time."

"It simply means," said Mrs. Emu, "that you follow the ways of the ostrich family and we follow the ways of the emu family."

"We have different family ways—that's all."

OATMEAL AND DATE BARS FOR LUNCH

Good for the children's lunch boxes, or for social occasions, these bars are easily made and sure to be liked. The bureau of home economics, United States Department of Agriculture, supplies the recipe.

Oatmeal and Date Bars.
1/2 lb. dates (1 1/2 cups pitted dates) 1/4 tsp. salt
1 cup nut meats, powder
1 cup chopped eggs
1/2 cup oatmeal 1 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup flour

Cut the pitted dates into small pieces. Mix the oatmeal, flour, salt and baking powder and add the nuts and dates. Beat the eggs, add the sugar, and stir into this the other ingredients. Place the mixture in greased shallow pans and bake in a slow oven (300 to 350 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 30 minutes. When cool cut into bars or squares, and roll in granulated or powdered sugar.

Shoes Require Much Care

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is not necessary to discard shoes as soon as they begin to show signs of wear. Shoes with ripped seams or with outsoles worn through can often be repaired and worn for a long time. Perspiration is hard on shoe leather. It is, therefore, an economical plan to have two pairs of shoes for alternate daily wear. This permits each pair to dry out between times. Shoes not in use are kept best on shoe trees, which can be bought at reasonable prices.

Mud, water, or excessive dryness ruins leather. Oil and grease preserve it. Boots and shoes kept clean, pliable and water resistant will last longer. Those for farm or other heavy outdoor use need greasing. Those for street wear need polishing only, although the soles may be oiled or greased.

Children's shoes will wear much longer if the youngsters are taught to polish them regularly, to oil them once or twice a month with a little castor oil, and to avoid getting them soaking wet.

can sometimes be hand-stitched at home.

With a modest repair kit many minor shoe troubles can be cured by anyone handy with tools.

Send to the United States Department of Agriculture for a copy of Farmers' Bulletin 1522-F entitled "Leather Shoes—Selection and Care."

LEISURE FOR MOTHERS

By NELLIE MAXWELL

"There's nothing that's of great concern except to live and love and learn."

Today with all the modern conveniences and plenty of leisure for some mothers, the question is not what shall the average mother do with her leisure, but how may she obtain a little.

It may seem improbable to the class that has leisure, to realize that there are countless numbers who have none. In spite of the fact that the world is full of labor-saving devices, we need not go to the remotest districts of large cities nor to the slums (so-called) to find leisureless women—the country is full of them—on the little farms where wood and water must be carried in as well as the waste carried out; mothers of little children work from sun to sun with work never done, until the joy of living is completely crushed out of them. What a marvelous uplift this world might have, if the leisure women might share a little of the burden of those who never knew the joy of a vacation. Share it without making the other feel that she was accepting charity.

In some little towns there is a custom that might well be more common: It is that one day or half day in the week, one neighbor takes charge of the children of another or more, as she can manage. This gives one a free time to go shopping, visiting or to do anything that she chooses and she takes her turn with the children on a day when she can best look after them.

How many people with roomy cars might give an afternoon to help some tired mother, by relieving her of her brood, and giving them a happy time. There are not enough owners of cars who look for those who have none, to give them a little pleasure. There should be no one in this day and age who has not enjoyed an auto ride, if there is an auto in the town.

With running water and a bathroom, hurried mother finds it lessens her work as well as weariness. A hot bath and soak in good hot water will relieve tired nerves of the mother as well as restless children. Before the auto is bought the house should be equipped with a few comforts such as a bath and a washing machine, then when the time comes for the auto, there will be leisure to enjoy it.

Unless you are sure of a mild, well flavored vinegar, the lemon affords the best of acids for dainty salads and other things, like pudding sauces. "Practically all chefs discard vinegar and use the 'spitting drop of lemon juice' because it gives a more exquisite flavor."

New York Salad.—Arrange slices of pineapple on tender lettuce leaves. In the center heap tender celery cut into strips and mixed with lettuce. On each pineapple section lay a section of orange freed from all membrane. Serve with french dressing.

Fruit Cup.—Take one cupful of skinned, seeded white grapes and the membrane from a cupful of orange sections. Mix all together with a cupful of pineapple slices, one-half cupful each of orange juice and pineapple syrup. Add a few grains of salt and sugar if needed. Put into a freezer with the juice fractions. Serve in glasses garnished with a maraschino cherry.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is expelled; all sourness is gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take. Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

USEFUL WORK A CHRISTIAN DUTY

LESSON TEXT—Gen. 2:15, Ex. 20:9, John 5:17, John 9:4, Acts 20:33-35, 1 Thess. 3:10.

GOLDEN TEXT—This we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing Our Work Well.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Doing Our Work Well.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Honest Work Essential to Success.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gambling Spirit Hurtful to Business and Morals.

I. The First Man Set to Work (Gen. 2:15).

Work was God's primal thought for man. Even in the state of innocence man was to have useful employment. With the coming of sin, new burdens were added.

II. The Time to Work (Ex. 20:9).

"Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work." Six out of seven days should be devoted to work. Idleness on any of the six days is as great a sin before God as working on the seventh day. Let it never be forgotten that the fourth commandment is an ordinance of labor, as well as rest; in fact, there can be no rest unless there has been work. The idler and the Sabbath breaker are equally guilty before God.

III. The Working of the Father and the Son (John 5:17).

The God of the Bible is a working God. It is true that God, when His creative work was done, rested; that is, He desisted from creative work, but there is other work besides that of creation. There is no such thing as inactivity in the divine kingdom. God is in His ceaseless activity everywhere. To be godlike is to be active.

Jesus had healed an impotent man on the Sabbath day. The Jews sought to kill Him for this good deed, and when He linked Himself with God in this, they more earnestly sought to kill Him, because He made Himself equal with God. The special points of equality with God were:

1. Giving life to the dead. Only God had shown Himself able to raise one from the dead.

2. Judging mankind (John 5:22). His claim to being the Judge of all mankind was His supreme claim to deity.

IV. Urgency of the Work (John 9:4).

"I must work the works of God while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work."

These words were uttered in connection with the appalling need of the man who was born blind. Delivering lost men and women from their sins is the work of God which must be done. The night is coming when no work can be done. The night therefore for the world is when Jesus is withdrawn from it.

V. Paul an Example of Working (Acts 20:33-35).

Paul did not work to hoard up money, but to support himself while preaching the gospel. A truly great preacher is the one who preaches not only in word but in deed.

VI. The Man Who Will Not Work Should Not Eat (1 Thess. 3:10).

Growing out of Paul's teaching concerning the coming of the Lord, a tendency to idleness developed at Thessalonica. They reasoned that if the Lord's coming was so near, work was useless. The true teaching concerning the coming of the Lord is, "Occupy till I come." Earnest attention to present duty is the scriptural attitude toward the second coming of Christ. Those who will not work should not eat. This is the right principle upon which to base all work of charity. It is the efficient cure for pauperism. It exhibits the right economic order and should apply to all classes.

VII. The Object of Work (Eph. 4:28).

This text sets forth the only three ways by which to get money or possessions of any kind.

1. To steal.

Theft was common among the heathen. It is common today, even in civilized countries. Many ways of obtaining money can be designated by theft.

2. To receive as gifts.

To have possessions which have been stolen is, of course, wrong. To have that which benefactors have given is right, even though it may not bring a blessing. To have that which we have earned is not only honorable, but gives personal satisfaction in that it has come through toil.

3. To work for.

To have possessions which have been stolen is, of course, wrong. To have that which benefactors have given is right, even though it may not bring a blessing. To have that which we have earned is not only honorable, but gives personal satisfaction in that it has come through toil.

Master of the Situation

There is always the unknown quantity, always the equation we cannot solve. It would seem that it is not the will of God that we should be our own masters, but that we should be the masters of the situation. It must be enough to know that He is Master of It.—F. C. Alsworth.

God Always Answers

God always answers prayer, but sometimes in His infinite wisdom He says, "No."—Baptist Record.

LESSON OF PRISON OUTBREAKS

By DR. HASTINGS H. HART, Penology Expert.

PRISON outbreaks do not just happen. There is always a reason: defects of the law or mistakes in the treatment of criminals in or out of prison. The recent rebellions are traceable directly to cruel overcrowding, poor feeding, violent increases of the length and severity of sentences, withdrawal of the long established practice of reducing time served in consideration of good conduct, the sharp curtailment of the granting of paroles and, above all, the restoration of the ancient inscription above the prison gates: "Abandon hope, all ye who enter here."

Up to five years ago life prisoners and those sentenced for twenty, thirty, or forty years, lived in hope of a pardon, a commutation of sentence, or a parole, and it was a prison proverb that the worst men made the best prisoners; but today that hope has been replaced by deep despair and a bitter resentment which are intensified by the fact that in many cases of two men working side by side and sentenced for offenses which differ little in enormity, one may have a sentence two or three times as long as that of his fellow workman.

Outbreaks occur because it is a recognized fact that the rich and influential criminal can hire able criminal lawyers to defend him and can command the aid of influential politicians to intercede in his behalf and thus escape in whole or in part the just penalty of his misdeeds.

The newly awakened public interest in the crime question should be continued and extended, and prison authorities should be sustained in the development of an adequate program for the remedy of existing evils.

ORGANIZED VICE IN CHICAGO

By JOHN LANDESCO, Criminal Research Director.

Gangsters and gunmen control the destinies of more than ninety economic industries in Chicago. A notorious overlord of organized crime in the Chicago region now is a stockholder in a business enterprise and insures it "the best protection in the world."

A survey of racketeering disclosed an extensive breakdown of local government machinery in the Illinois metropolis. The police, state's attorney and courts are failing to maintain law and order in the fields of labor and business as they have failed to repress outlawed activities of gambling, vice, bootlegging and robbery.

While failure to enforce prohibition laws has given the gangster a stronger financial position, I do not blame prohibition alone for Chicago's condition. Defiance of law and order in the city is by no means limited to the field of prohibition.

Organized vice, which has imbedded itself in Chicago's political structure from policeman to high city and county officers, includes terrorism by bombs, racketeering, gambling, robbery and many other crimes, as well as beer and whiskey running. Apathy in law enforcement over a long period, as well as the breeding in the slums of a low order of man adaptable readily to the uses of the gang, are elements behind organized vice.

CHRISTIAN MUST CONQUER SELF

By DR. CAMPBELL DARST, Episcopal Bishop East Carolina.

Personal selfishness is proving ruinous to Christian programs throughout the world. Sentimentality and excessive ritualism are obstructing the development of a vital and real faith. Nominal Christians are substituting form for literal acceptance of Christ. Early churchmen saw the heroic in Christianity and, utterly regardless of self, they pushed forward the boundaries of the kingdom of God. We have lost a lot of that spirit and the program of Christ has suffered.

We shape an easy program for ourselves. We substitute the form of the church, the liturgy and the ritual which we enjoy, for a literal acceptance of Christ and his faith. There is a prevailing tendency to cushion religion. Christians are unwilling to face the obligations of their faith. Too many of us want to be disciples of Christ but are unwilling to bear the burdens of Christianity, to accept the responsibilities of His followers. We do not actively and continually witness our Christian beliefs.

Our great difficulty is that we have not met the great test. We have not conquered self. It is self that flings insurmountable barriers across the pathway of Jesus; self that occupies rooms that were intended as dwelling places of Jesus; self that must be forgotten if the progress of religion is to be unobstructed.

HIGHER LIVING LEVEL COMING

By WALTER A. STRONG, Publisher Chicago Daily News.

We Americans are beginning to realize that we cannot burden the rest of the world with our surplus prosperity as represented in our standard of living. We cannot expect nations outside of our boundaries to support permanently a standard of living so far higher than their own.

We recognize that the standard of living costs in the United States has a very definite relation to the standard of living in other strongholds of civilization. If one accepts this theory, there is no upward limit to the standards of living throughout the world except a fair balance in human existence. Tariff walls, cartels and other political mechanisms which tend to perpetuate differences in standards of living come down as standards of living are equalized.

The sum total of labor, materials and credits will eventually be balanced and the balance will create a uniformly higher level throughout the world.

SLAVERY TO MATERIAL THINGS

By DR. CHARLES L. GOODELL, Federal Council of Churches.

Man has always been a slave to things which are seen. From the very first it has been almost impossible for him to shake off the rude grasp of the material. The greatest teaching of the ages was not that of scientist or publicist, but the teachings of the Nazarene, enforced and enlarged by that of the Fisherman of Galilee and the Tentmaker of Tarsus. The greatest nation is not that with the greatest army or navy. It is, after all, only manhood that counts. Only a nation actuated by great principles can long remain a great nation.

SUB ROSA

By MIMI

Movies and Morons

THIS morning I talked with a man who said that the success of the movies was due to the way the film producers played into the hands, or eyes, of the morons. I told him I thought that was not nice at all.

It's not that I'm a bounder for the eye punishment which one gets from the shooting and kissing and pleasuring which greet our wistful orbs when we want a filmed play. But I do go as a matter of amusement, education and habit.

I believe that the movie began as a Nickelodeon for it was run on a five-cent basis, but now it's a great industry like Standard Oil or U. S. Steel. It has stock because people take stock in it. But there are limits to the screen and you mustn't expect it to educate you the way day school and night school do.

There's a moral censorship of the screen, so I have heard, but it seems to me that there should be a mental one, too. We don't want to have the conscience shocked by a low-toned performance, and we don't want our brains to be stung by a low-browed show either.

There have been and still are great minds which have devoted themselves to the stage—Bernhardt, Duse, John Drew, Mantell, Southern and Marlowe. You can't compare Hollywood names with these, can you?

You and I want to see a show with some sense to it. We'll stand for all the horse-play and monkey-business, the kisses and the pies, if only the film-maker will make the film seem natural. We hate to be kidded by these screened fairy tales which are supposed to give us real life.

In the other arts the best minds set the standard of taste. The architect of the Taj Mahal or the Parthenon didn't try to figure out what the gang in India and Greece would like. He gave them the ideal in stone.

The great painters haven't ever acted like the boys who make up the comic strips for the edification of thoughtless people. No, the fellows like Raphael and Correggio, who swung the fancy brushes, gave people the best and let 'em take it or leave it.

The same with Shakespeare, whose old plays are still running, and Ibsen and Clyde Fitch. Even old Barnum gave something like an ideal circus.

But the movie has played down to low taste and when it becomes a movie-talkie, it may be shown up so that it will have to brace up to meet the demands of good sense and good taste.

Every Kitten Has Its Day

YES, she has and this is the day. It's Mother's day, once a year, but the flapper may claim the other 364 as her very own. Then there are dog days in the good old summer time, but the kitten has a whole calendar full of these purring days of the present.

The way that the styles are figured out in Paris, if that's where they do come from, every girl has a chance to display her charms. Even the plain girl can make a good impression with these modern frocks to any nothing of hostility.

You see, it's like this: In the old days with the old patterns, about all you could see of a girl was her face, which was all right if she happened to be pretty and nothing else. The plainer girl who could shine in a bathing suit, where form counted, didn't have much of a chance, for one couldn't go bathing all the time.

But the modern frock suits the plain girl to a T. Her face may not be dimpled, but she may be able to make up for that with tricky ankles. Her countenance may not be resplendent, but where form counts in the beauty game she's bound to score.

Mother Nature is certainly eccentric when it comes to putting human beings together in separate bundles. She will atack a large head with its full face on a slender body, and try to pair off arms and legs when they are not at all proportionate.

The contrast between face and form is very noticeable in most women, although now and then Nature will adapt the pretty face to the graceful body, but how often the beauty of the village or town was not so proud of her shape, and how just as often the girl whose face was not of the same candle power had a figure that would make the Venus of Milo want to reduce.

The girl who has form with grace doesn't need to take any dust from the girl who has just a pretty face but nothing about her that would suggest the dancer, or swimmer. There is charm about every woman no matter how little she may think of the impression she makes upon her mirror.

And these are the days when a woman's charm has its chance.

Much of this supposed beauty business is not a matter of creams or powders, but just plain health.

Thank goodness, girls, that you and I can move about in a free and easy costume where handsome is that handsome does its daily exercises and practices proper diet to say nothing of proper hours.

It's our Big Day, all right, if we will only realize it and make the most of it.

To Identify Genuine Aspirin

THE increasing use of Bayer Aspirin every year is proof that it has no ill effects. It is the accepted antidote for pain. It always helps; it never harms. Quick relief when you've a headache, or cold; or are suffering from neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatic pains yield, too, if you'll only give these tablets a chance. But you want genuine Aspirin, so look for the Bayer Cross on every tablet. The box always bears the name Bayer and the word "genuine" printed in red. Proven directions inside.

Aspirin is the trade mark Monocloacetic ester

Here's one granddaughter who takes advice from elders

Schoolgirl learns simple health measure

WITH all the talk there is nowadays about the independence of the sub-deb generation, your reporter got a great kick out of hearing a grandmother describe how her granddaughter was following a good old tried and true method of improving her general health.

Starting right

"My granddaughter, Margaret," says Mrs. Zell of 6231 Catherine Street, Philadelphia, "read about Nujol, was interested in it, so sent for a sample." It seems she has been taking a tablespoon of Nujol once a day since and expects to continue this treatment. Already she has found an improvement in her general health, her system functioning normally where other remedies had failed.

That's one of the best things about Nujol. It is just as harmless for young girls, or babies even, as it is for adults. For Nujol contains no medicines or drugs. It can't upset

Baby Dress Society Vogue
Dressing as babies and going to parties with scooters and toy motor cars has gripped the fancy of those who have been called derisively "Bright Young People" in England. The fashion has started another serious wagging of heads over the younger generation.

A young man can have such a headless mind that he doesn't know what vocation he wants to follow.

When Babies CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

True Electrification is Growing

Use of electricity on American farms is increasing at a steady rate. A thorough survey just completed by the United States bureau of the census shows that production of individual electric plants in 1917 was more than 7 per cent greater than 1925. Since the great bulk of individual electric plants are used on farms, this is a positive indication of the steady spread of rural electrification throughout the country.

Dominance of the electric plant in farm and ranch electrification has resulted in an unheralded but important economic development in this field, as the bureau of census show. Although production of electric plants was more than 7 per cent greater, the cost to the farmers and ranchers who have purchased the equipments has saved them two and one-half million dollars.

Recent figures from the National Electric Light Association show a total of 454,100 farms receive electricity from high-lines. One manufacturer of electric plants has produced nearly 350,000 of these units; while the total of all electric plants is near the 475,000 mark. This reveals the fact that the individual electric plant is an overwhelming factor in farm and ranch electrification.

The bureau of census figures reveal a decrease of 4,022 electric central power stations in 1926, as compared with 1925. With the number such enterprises decreasing, while the number of individual electric plants is steadily increasing, farm and ranch electrification depends on the individual electric light and power units which the farmer or ranchman installs on his place. The true field of farm and ranch electrification—more farmers and ranchmen using electricity for light and every-day power applications, is steadily increasing. This is the one important phase of farm and ranch electrification, rather than getting a comparatively few farmers and ranchmen to use more electricity. For particulars regarding the installing of Frigidairo for the home and Delco Light for the ranch or farm, see daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sabino Vidaurri, escaped serious injury last Saturday afternoon when she, together with two other little girls were running across the street at play from Vidaurri's Store. A car was approaching from the south side and the children failed to notice or hear it. The car was traveling fast and the driver realizing his predicament, swerved his car to the left and came within a foot of striking a porch on the other side Mary, who was in the lead, was hit by the front right fender of the car and knocked to the ground, bruising her face considerably, but aside from this and the shock she received, Mary was not hurt and was out at play the next day.

Mrs. Lola S. Medina

came in Sunday morning from Tucumcari and will visit with her sons, Alex and Jose Chavez and families during the Lincoln County Fair. She was accompanied here by Alex's wife and son, who had been visiting in Tucumcari.

Town Marshal Lutz

was attending to his duties at the local railroad station Tuesday when he noticed four boys getting out of a box car and this being strange, Mr. Lutz grabbed the collection and on questioning them, found neither of the four to be over the age of 12. He took them to jail and called up the sheriff at El Paso where the boys had told him they lived and was informed that a search was being made for the boys and said he would send for them, which he did and the next train brought Mr. and Mrs. Westover, parents of two of the boys, the other two giving the names of Jones, which Mr. and Mrs. Westover verified. The little fellows were hungry and said they were going to Utah. They were taken back to El Paso.
