Wall Street felt better, set up and took notice, feebly. The question is not "What has happened to those that gambled, in spite of warnings?" but "What, if anything, has happened to the nation, and its general prosperity?"

No buildings were burned down, no industries have died, no mines, railroads, steel plants have vanished.

Paper profits have been reduced to scraps of ticker tape. That's all. And, as one solemn banker said, "Many will now do more useful work than watching the ticker or the brokers' blackboard."

The most pathetic were the women speculators, amazed to learn that prices can go down. Chicago describes them weeping hysterically in La Salle street.

Scientists ask what has become of the Leonids, a swarm of meteors that have appeared in dazzling brilliancy about once in thirty-three years for more than a thousand years past.

They failed to come around when last due, and there is no sign of them now.

Our giant neighbor, Jupiter, may have absorbed them, as whales with wide open mouths absorb tiny creatures in the ocean.

Big things live on little things, even in cosmic space.

President Hoover's plan for a great system of inland waterways—realized, in prospect, the hope of those that welcomed an able engineer to the White House.

Total expenditures planned will amount to $225,000,000, and every dollar spent will pay for itself ten times over.

The President observes that the annual increase in expenditures will amount only to the cost of one-half of one battleship.

The President might have added that in modern war the whole of one battleship would be worth less than one-half of one cent, since battleships are now merely targets for submarines and airplanes, worth nothing, except to battleship builders.

The Carnegie foundation says college football is "tainted with money." Free teaching and cash bonuses are given to young men that can kick hard, run fast and tackle bravely.

It would be more pleasing if colleges sought great teachers as eagerly as they seek great quarterbacks.

But no great harm is done. The games and great crowds arouse young men's interest in college life and give college education to young men from rolling mills and rear ends of ice wagons, that might otherwise remain uneducated.

Progress in flying advances rapidly in Europe. A few days ago Germans showed a gigantic hydroplane with twelve engines, flying, carrying 160 passengers and crew.

Great Britain is building a plane of the same size, a triplane instead of a biplane, also with twelve engines, to go faster.

Henry Ford was the first to talk about a 12-engined plane "to carry 100 people, with a machine shop on board." The Germans and the British build the planes.

The Swiss parliament, elected by a moral and serious nation, proposes a law to punish blasphemy, suggests six months in prison for those that "orally or in writing insult God." Blasphemy should be punished because it sets a bad example and shows want of respect for the feelings of others.

But is it possible for any two-legged human microbe on this planet "to insult God?"

If the mice proposed to punish any mouse insulting Edison, you would say, "Mice, don't worry, you can't insult Edison."

How much less can any man insult the Creator of the Universe?

The nation read with affectionate sympathy of Mr. Edison's visit to Dearborn, where Henry Ford has rebuilt as it was in old days the simple Edison laboratory to which mice owe so much.

Mr. Edison was deeply moved when he saw his old tools, the chair in which he sat in his early youth, his primitive paraphernalia reassembled as they were fifty years ago when he developed the idea that now lights the world.

Capitan Notes

Prof. Koogler and J. A. Brubaker were Carrizozo visitors on Monday, attending to school matters of interest with the County School Superintendent.

The following Capitan teachers are attending the N.M.E.A., at Albuquerque this week: C.V. Koogler, Messrs. Cole and Weeks, Mrs. Otho Lowe, the Misses Lamont and Chambers.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Payne entertained the young folks with a Halloween party Tuesday evening at the Buena Vista Hotel. Dancing and cards were indulged in, after which, the host and hostess served refreshments. Everybody enjoyed themselves.

Extremely cold weather prevails here, accompanied by snow and rain.

Miss Mary Ferguson, one of the grade teachers in the Capitan school was a guest of Miss Louise Fritz, at Hondo, for the week-end.

Report of the financial condition of the Capitan school for September and October, 1929. Sept. 3, balance from last year, $2.41. Oct. 5, received from committee in charge of carnival, M. J. Coleman, Frances Gardenhire and Jane Provine, $171.90. Oct. 7, paid Titworth Co., for carnival supplies, $8.95. Paid F. H. Hall for carnival supplies, $2.00. Paid for stamped cards, paper, etc., to advertise carnival, $3.60. Oct. 8, received from Mr. Weeks to pay for band instruments, $121.25. Paid for money order for $121.25, $121.87. Paid to F. A. English to apply on Delco, $20.00. Oct. 29, balance on hand, $38.87.

Every old man can share Mr. Edison's emotions. The human heart is the same with or without genius to lead it a great name.

A million among those that see this column carry with them memories of youth—a sheikah hickory tree standing alone in the field; a grove of chestnut trees with yellowish green burrs about showing the brown nuts within; a pond that held "minnows" and catfish; a swimming hole—happy memories of a free life and boundless hope.

HALLOWE'EN MASQUERADE

A big crowd of amusement lovers gathered at the Wetmore Hall last night to take part in a masquerade dance with Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace as host and hostess. The costumes were many and varied, most of which were extremely funny. The entertainment opened with a Grand March with Mrs. Ziegler at the piano, after which, the masks were removed and general round "wonder who, who, is" was satisfied. Some came in silks, others in satins, others in ordinary dress and some in the tackiest make-ups that could be imagined. The Lovelaces are well known as entertainers, but this evening capped the climax. Refreshments closed the affair at 11:30.

Stars Entertained

Comet Chapter No. 29, O.E.S., entertained Masons, Stars, Rainbows and their friends at Community Hall with a delightful event lasting from 7:30 to 10:30, Tuesday evening.

The affair was opened by E. M. Brickley, who made an address of welcome for the Eastern Star and introduced Chas. Grey, present Master of the local Masonic lodge and was followed by Miss Frances Huppertz, Worthy Advisor of the Rainbow for Girls. Ernie Pehm gave an exhibition of fancy dancing which pleased the audience very much.

The feature of the entertainment was a farce entitled, "Female a la Masonry," in which a number of Stars took part.

The Community Hall was well filled with Masons, Stars and their friends and to say that everybody spent a pleasant evening would be putting it mildly.

The event was one of a series which will be given during the winter season, the next in all probability, will be by the Masons.

CORONA GLEANINGS

A large number of cattle, sheep and goats were shipped from Corona last week.

H. L. White of Dalhart has been a business visitor here this week; at present he is in Cloudcroft receiving cattle from Mr. Frank Montgomery. Mr. Rogers of Kansas City and Hewitt Payne of Nara Visa accompanied him.

Mr. Frank DuBois, Jr. spent the week-end in Corona with his family. He brought with him Elmo Stover, also of the University at Albuquerque.

Miss Lois Martin, teacher in the high school, suffered a dislocated elbow when she was thrown from a horse on the Benson ranch Saturday.

In a recent sewing contest conducted throughout the southwest by the White House of El Paso, Mrs. Nannie Roberts won first prize in one of the three divisions. Her entry was a lovely little blue housedress.

Mrs. Minnie Perkins is spending the week with her daughter, Mrs. Ross Schwab in Roswell.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hancock have returned from Alpine, Tex., where they visited relatives and where Mr. Hancock purchased 10 car loads of cattle which he has shipped to his ranch near here.

Otho Lowe of Carrizozo has made several trips to Corona this last week—he is selling Chevrolet cars.

All of the Corona teachers and Misses Edna Atkinson and Zella Dishman, Dora Elsie Ladd, are attending the Teachers' Convention at Albuquerque.

Miss Verdine Ware, who has been visiting her mother here, returned to her home in Alamogordo Wednesday. She was accompanied by Miss Mildred Downing.

Sad Accident Near Three Rivers

Last Sunday night about 11 o'clock, while on a trip from Roswell to Las Cruces, where they expected to obtain work as cotton pickers, five young men met with an accident, which may cost one of the lads his life. They had been picking cotton at Roswell, but on account of the fields being too wet to work they decided that they would try Las Cruces. They had arrived as far as what is called the S. Curve, this side of Three Rivers and going at a high rate of speed, failed to notice the curve until too late.

In making the abrupt turn, the car swerved to one side, slid across the road and turned over, pinning one of the boys, Jesse Coker by name, under the wreckage and badly dislocating his spine. The boys ran on to Three Rivers where they phoned Dr. Johnson, who answered the call and brought him here, where he is being given the best of medical attention, but the physician holds but small hope of his recovery, as he is totally paralyzed and has to be handled like a small child. The other four boys escaped without injury, but the car was demolished.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senators Begin Digging Up Facts About the Doings of the Lobbyists.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
INVESTIGATION of lobbies in Washington was begun by the subcommittee of the senate committee on judiciary, and Messrs. Walsh of Montana, Caraway of Arkansas and Blaine of Wisconsin, the more radical of the inquirers, made it clear that they intend to extract a lot of information concerning the individuals and organizations that try to exert influence on congress in relation to legislation of various sorts.
Alleged tariff lobbyists were the first to be called, and though some of them protested that information demanded was personal and not relevant to the inquiry, the recollection of the contempt proceedings against others who in recent times had refused to answer senate committee questions was potent, and the information sought was reluctantly given. On the opening day those quizzed included William Burgess, vice president of the United States Potters' association; Thomas O. Marvin, chairman of the tariff commission; I. B. Brozard, a member of the commission; F. L. Koch, chief of the ceramics division of that body, and Karl Langenbeck, his predecessor in that position. Burgess denied he was a lobbyist, saying he regarded himself as a legitimate representative of industry. Most of the facts elicited from this group of witnesses had to do with quarrels among them over the furnishing of information to the framers of the tariff bill, and to relations with importers.
Dropping the ceramics for the present, the committee took up the domestic beet sugar lobby, and the most interesting witness in this connection was H. A. Austin, secretary and treasurer of the United States Beet Sugar association. He said his salary was $9,000 a year and admitted that his organization spends about $70,000 a year in the dissemination of information concerning the industry and of propaganda. The latter, he said, was incidentally in favor of a high duty on sugar. Since the enactment of the 1922 tariff act, he said, the association has expended about $40,000 for these purposes. Classifying lobbyists in four groups, he claimed he belonged in the second class consisting of representatives of trade associations who present the case of their industry in an orderly way. For the third day the main witnesses were C. Eyanson, secretary of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association and Senator Hiram Bingham of the Nutmeg state, who had admitted that Eyanson was temporarily employed as his secretary and adviser during the consideration of the tariff bill by the finance committee and as such was admitted to executive sessions of the Republican members of the committee.

PROGRESS with the tariff bill in the senate was slow, and conferences between the Republican and Democratic leaders failed to speed it up. Smoot took to task the radical group for helping in the delay, and Borah, who wants to confine the tariff revision entirely to agricultural products, retorted that the measure could be passed in ten days if revised to suit agriculture.

WHEN the senate took up the confirmation of the members of the federal farm board the radical Republicans and Democrats talked in opposition for some seven hours, but all the appointments were confirmed by decisive majorities after Robinson of Arkansas, minority leader, had announced he would vote for them and let the entire responsibility for the board rest on the President. Thirteen votes were cast against Chairman Legge, twenty-seven against H. R. McKeirie, representing grain, and twenty against Carl Williams, representing cotton. Only Messrs. of South Carolina voted against the other five members.

The attack on Legge was based on his former connection with the International Harvester company; McKeirie was assailed because of his alleged belief that most of the help in the grain belt must come from the farmers themselves, while the southern Democratic senators charged Williams with lacking the proper views on boosting the price of cotton.

IN AN official report to the senate concerning the investigation of alleged financial manipulations and creation of monopolies by the power corporations, the federal trade commission charges that its efforts are being hampered by the withholding of vital records. Big holding company groups also are delaying the commission by slow responses to the comprehensive questionnaire sent to them more than a year ago, the report says. Senator Walsh of Montana, sponsor of the investigation, indicated he would move to broaden the commission's authority if necessary.

AFTER months of preparation a combined force of special treasury agents, deputy United States marshals and New Jersey police executed a grand coup on the rum smuggling syndicate that has been supplying New York and vicinity with its imported—and cut—liquor. Secret indictments already had been returned by a federal grand jury in Trenton, and then the surprise attack was carried out with speed and skill along the Atlantic coast from the tip of Long Island to Atlantic City. Thirty-five places were raided, many arrests made and great quantities of liquor seized. Among the places taken was the headquarters of the syndicate, near Highland, N. J., a mansion formerly owned by Oscar Hammerstein, Jr. Its twenty rooms were fitted like a club. In the basement the raiders found tunnels leading to underground vaults in which liquor was stored and where a number of machine guns and a quantity of small arms were hidden. The cupola on top of the mansion was equipped with telescopes and was apparently used as a lookout tower from where the smugglers could watch for their craft.

A mile from this mansion the raiders captured a hidden radio station from which orders in code were sent to the fleet of liquor ships and speed boats operated by the syndicate. The federal agents already had learned the code and one of them took the place of the arrested operator, to lure more of the big rum vessels to points where they might be taken by coast guard boats.

William J. Calhoun, prohibition administrator for New Jersey, who was in charge of the raids in his state, said the syndicate was a "million dollar outfit" which operated a fleet of six ships between St. Pierre and Bermuda and an auxiliary fleet of ten speedboats. Unofficial estimates placed the amount of liquor brought in at 300 cases a week. Ever since the interception and solution of a code message months ago, every operation of the syndicate had been under close observation by the federal agents and every detail of its business was learned. The liquor organization was elaborate and its personnel well trained.

FRANCE, Italy and Japan all have accepted the invitation to a naval limitation conference issued by Great Britain. Paris and Rome consulted on the form of their replies, and the result appears in the Italian note which was made public in Washington. Secretary Simmons called it an unqualified acceptance, but it does not commit Italy to accept any agreement reached in London as complete in itself and prior to an agreement on general land and sea disarmament. Indeed, the Italian reply says:
"The aim of this conference, to which the powers signatory to the Washington treaty are invited, should be to elaborate a text to facilitate the task of the League of Nations preparatory commission and of the subsequent general disarmament conference."
As has been said before, it is believed neither France nor Italy will consent to the abolition of the submarine, and France may not consent to naval parity with Italy because much of the French navy strength must be kept outside of the Mediterranean while Italy's is concentrated in that sea.

PRIME MINISTER MACDONALD, after a rest in New York and a visit to Niagara Falls, crossed over into Canada, where he was enthusiastically welcomed, and became the guest of Lieut. Gov. W. D. Ross in Toronto. In a farewell message to the people of the United States Mr. MacDonald said he was leaving this country "rich in the proof that while the Atlantic divides us, the cause of peace unites us." In Toronto he appealed to the American Federation of Labor to aid him in his disarmament and peace efforts.

SOVIET forces made the most extensive raid of the present trouble with China, pushing far into Manchurian territory along the Sungari river, occupying Linkiangshan and threatening Hsin and Fuchin and even Harbin. The Chinese fleet on the Sungari then got into action in co-operation with land troops and forced the rebels to retire. The invaders had seven gunboats and twelve airplanes.
China's latest Civil war threat was lessened by the news that Feng Yuhaiang, the disaffected general of 200,000 troops, had been detained at the capital of Shensi province by Commander Yen Hai-shan who, it had been feared, would combine with him to overthrow the government of President Chiang Kai-shek.

HABIBULLAH KHAN, the water boy king of Afghanistan, is out of it and the country has a new amir in the person of his conqueror, Nadir Khan. The forces of Habibullah were driven from Kabul after the citadel had been reduced by heavy bombardment and their master fled, after which various towns and districts made their submission to Nadir, who was reported to have been proclaimed amir. Another dispatch, however, said he would call a national assembly to choose a king.

BRITAIN'S new airship, the R-101, biggest and probably best of all dirigibles yet constructed, took the air last week on its maiden flight, and for an hour it circled, dived, climbed and zigzagged over the London region in an elaborate test of its powers. The trial was believed to have been entirely satisfactory to her builders and her commander, Maj. G. H. Scott. The huge ship carries 14 passengers and a crew of 39 men. It has five power units, each self-contained in a car along beneath the bag and each complete in itself, and replaceable without stopping the airship. The R-100, sister ship of the R-101, also is completed and ready for trial flights.

BY UNANIMOUS vote the American Federation of Labor, in convention in Toronto, decided to embark on a campaign for the unionizing of the southern states, pledging the forces and funds of organized labor for the effort. All "rafts unions were directed to center organizers in the South in the coming year and a special fund was set up to back the campaign. This action was the direct result of pleas made by representatives of the textile workers who have been involved in such serious troubles in the Carolinas and Tennessee.

Notwithstanding the vigorous protest of the Detroit labor council president, who demanded the extension of United States immigration laws to Canadians, the federation endorsed the executive council's immigration report approving of commuting across the border. The convention, however, called on congress for further restrictions on immigration. It also declared against universal conscription in time of war, and asked for limitation of the power of courts to intervene in industrial struggles.

AMERICA'S most distinguished visitor of the week was Mme. Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium and famous for her work with that element. She came over from France to receive from American admirers a second gift for the purchase of radium, to call on President and Mrs. Hoover and to pay her respects to Thomas A. Edison on the occasion of the golden jubilee of the electric light. Madame Curie is in poor health and therefore no strenuous program for her entertainment was arranged.

Members of the board of education of Tucson discussed the necessity of a new building program at a meeting held in Tucson, and it is expected that a vote on a bond issue in the neighborhood of $450,000 will be called soon as a result. A junior high school and a grammar school would be added to the present buildings under the plan.

The New Mexico Highway Commission recently sold $2,000,000 worth of state highway debentures to the John Nuyven Company of Chicago and associates. The debentures will pay 6 per cent interest, with premium of $1,637. Four other bond houses participated in the combination bid.

The City Council of Nogales recently authorized the fire committee to advertise for bids for the purchase of a modern fire engine at a cost of approximately $10,000.

Weatherford of Phoenix was successful bidder for construction of armories at Douglas and Nogales, his bid for both being $41,532.

Arthur R. Cox, Tulsa, Okla., barber, was freed of first-degree murder charges in Phoenix after the decision of Superior Judge Joseph S. Jenckes in ruling that the state had not presented sufficient evidence to hold him for trial. Cox, who was accused of shooting his wealthy Creek Indian wife, Minnie Cox, maintained the shooting was accidental.

Through an agreement between the new Federal Farm Board and the Pima Cotton Growers' Association, the association has secured a loan of $250,000 for five years at a rate of interest less than 4 per cent, based on stock owned in co-operative associations. A. H. Thompson, manager of the Safford branch of the cotton growers' association, stated in Safford on his return from attending the annual meeting of the association, held in Phoenix.

Work on the erection of a $100,000 hospital in Safford is to begin soon, and will be completed as rapidly as possible. The hospital is being established by Drs. J. W. Morris and H. W. Squibb, who, with Mrs. Sioux Squibb, have formed a corporation, to be known as the Morris and Squibb Hospital, Inc. The industrial employment survey report, recently issued by the U. S. Department of Labor, at Denver, states that the volume of industrial activity and employment seasonally increased in New Mexico during September, with the supply of labor equal to demands except for a slight shortage of cotton pickers reported in the southeastern sections of the state. Industrial plants, except saw mills, reported steady operations. Metal mining was normally active and considerable new metal mine construction and development work was under way in many metal mining districts, particularly at Questa. Metal mine labor supply and demand was fairly well balanced. A seasonal increase in coal mining occurred at Raton and other mining districts, with an ample supply of miners available. The report states that there was an upward trend in industrial employment in Arizona during September. The supply of labor equaled the demands in all lines, except agriculture, which reported a demand for several thousand additional cotton pickers, particularly in the Salt River valley. Cultivation of an increased acreage of lettuce in the Salt River valley has given employment to many field workers. Manufacturing plants operated steadily, the cotton gin starting their seasonal runs during September. Metal mining was active, although producing copper mines revealed a temporary slight reduction in output and forces. The supply of metal-mine labor equaled demands in most localities.

Statistics just released from the registrar's office at the University of New Mexico on the registration for 1922-23, indicate an increase of 214 students over the matriculation for 1921-22. The total for the current school year is 362 students, the men numbering 287 and the women 75, according to the compilation just made by Miss Alice Oleson, acting registrar.

Desert Petroleum Company of Holbrook, capitalized at $750,000, was recently granted papers of incorporation.

Peak Garmo Shown as One of Highest Mounts
Computations of triangulation observations of the Peak Garmo in Russia have just been completed by Richard Finsterwalder, a member of the Soviet-German expedition to Pamir, revealing that Peak Garmo has a greater altitude than any other mountain in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Its height is computed as being 7,493 meters or about 24,583 feet. No mountain on that part of the world exceeds Peak Garmo in height. The tallest in North America, Mount McKinley, is only 20,300 feet in height, while South America's loftiest peak reaches but 23,090 feet. Peak Garmo is also taller than any of the peaks in the Alps. In fact, the only mountains which are known to be taller are some of the peaks in the Himalayas and other of the tallest Asiatic mountains. Peak Garmo lies among the wild and inaccessible summits of the Pamir mountains. Its heights have probably never been reached by any human being.

Forty Miles of Water Tunnels
There are sugar plantations on Kauai, Oahu and Maui, in the Pacific, with 40 miles of tunnels and ditches to carry life-giving water, and a famous aqueduct on Oahu taps four valleys and traverses a tunnel 14,443 feet long. One plantation uses more water than the city of San Francisco, says Nature Magazine. Thousands of artesian wells dot the countryside. In 1925, about 776,000 tons of sugar worth $53,000,000 were raised on the 6,449 square miles that comprise this damb of water-surrounded land. The pineapple crop brings a revenue of nearly $34,000,000 annually.

Lesson for November 3

RESPECT FOR EIGHTFUL AUTHORITY

(World's Temperance Sunday) LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:13-17; Rom. 13:1-4. 1 Peter 2:13-17. GOLDEN TEXT—Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. PRIMARY TOPIC—Why We Have Laws. JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have Laws. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying the Law. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Effective the Will of the Community.

Though our citizenship is in heaven, we have obligation to the government under which we live.

1. Obligation to Pay Tribute (Mark 12:13-17).

This teaching concerning the tribute money came in answer to the question put to Jesus by representatives of the Pharisees and Herod. They would gladly have killed him, but they feared the people. Their only hope was to discredit him among the people.

1. Their question (v. 14).

Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not? The Pharisees contended that since God was the real king of Israel, it was not obligatory—yes, even sinful—to pay taxes to a heathen king. The Herodians were supporters of Herod. With flattery on their lips, they put this subtle question. For Christ to have answered "yes" would have discredited Him with the people, and to have said "no" would have made Him liable to arrest as an enemy of the government.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 15-17).

He requested a coin to be brought and inquired as to whose image and superscription it bore, declaring that those who accept the coin of Caesar should pay taxes to Caesar. Thus the Lord escapes their trap and inculcates a principle which applies to all time and conditions—as to the Christian's responsibility to civil government.

ii. The Christian's Obligation to the State (Rom. 13:1-7).

The believer is a citizen as well as a Christian.

1. Obedience to rulers (vv. 1-4).

This obligation is upon all Christians. Civil government is ordained of God, and rulers are His representatives. To refuse obedience to civil authority is to resist God. This does not mean that a Christian at the behest of the state should do that which is inherently wrong. The same is true of the child in its responsibility to its parents. While obedience to parents is the will of God for children, this does not imply that the child is under obligation to do that which is morally wrong, at the command of the parents. Submission to authority is the law of the believer's life.

2. The spirit in which the Christian renders obedience to rulers (v. 5).

He should regard it as his obligation because it is morally right.

3. Methods of expressing this obedience (vv. 6, 7).

(1) In the payment of personal and property taxes. The citizen who enjoys the benefits of government is morally bound to support it.

(2) Payment of duty upon merchandise, and license fees. The business exchange between nations must be regulated. For such regulations, expense is incurred, for which benefit the citizen should pay.

(3) Veneration for magistrates—"Fear to whom fear?"

Those who have the fear of God in their hearts will venerate their rulers, God's representatives.

(4) "Honor to whom honor." Civil officers should be honored because of the ministry they perform.

iii. The Spirit of Loyalty to Authority (1 Pet. 2:13-17).

The loyalty of the Christian to right authority should be glad and free. The Christian recognizes the necessity of social order, and will graciously submit to the authority of rulers and faithfully perform his obligation as a citizen, not through cringing fear, but as the Lord's free man, for the Lord's sake. By means of this free submission as God's servant, he puts to silence the ignorance of foolish men (vv. 15, 16).

1. Honor all men (v. 17).

He will see in every man the image of God and therefore give honor to him. A Christian will attend to the proprieties of life among all classes and in all relations.

(2) Love the brotherhood (v. 17).

The Christian has a peculiar love for those who are of the same household.

(3) Fear God (v. 17). This is final, reverential fear.

(4) Honor the king (v. 17). This had a peculiar significance, for in all probability the wicked Nero was then the reigning monarch.

Veils and Hair Nets

THE other day, I saw a picture of a mother who was snapped, if they snapped them then, in a veil and hair net of the vintage of the nineties. It made me smile to think of how the girls used to shut themselves in behind all the mosquito netting.

Well, there was the milliner's hat parked out away up on top of the mop of hair, and the veil was necessary to hold the thing in place. The hair-net did what it could to keep the mop from unswitching.

The Fattimas of yesterday were a modest-looking bunch. They had little chance to flirt, for a wink would be lost behind the netting. They must have spent most of their time wondering whether the hat would stay on and the hair up.

We Flames of Youth are different in many ways. We don't use any guy ropes to keep the mass of millinery on top of the stack of hair, but trim the flowing locks, and pull the hat down where it will stay.

When it comes to getting away to a swift start, we of the bathing suit period of our nation's history are miles ahead of the slow movers who took an hour to dress. Then we can get there in ways unknown to the slower generation. We can duck our way through the crowd in the morning and make a slick getaway when five p. m. rolls around. We are dressed for the rush and the crush.

But while we are footing up the column of gains, we'd better look for any possible losses. We have lots of speed that the older generation knew nothing about. Yep, we're all right when it comes to speed, pep, and nerve.

At the same time, I don't think that the girls of today have lost any real modesty since they laid aside the concealments which their mothers had in the form of veils.

No, it's better and fairer to say that we are just as modest inwardly even if we aren't so outwardly. If womanly modesty consists in wearing corsets, veils, and such disguises, I don't care if we aren't so prim.

My only objection to the frank, sports costume of the day is that it gets the wrong kind of attention. It gets the attention of the eyes, but makes no such appeal to the heart as the costume of helplessness and concealment in vogue a generation ago.

The men will have to get used to us. Then they will see that we are playing the same woman's part in different costumes.

Red Music

THE other evening, I attended a musical at a fashionable home on Fifth avenue. I might tell you something about the long-haired male musicians who trusted to their artistic appearance to pull them through, but I have better news for you. As for myself, I suffered in silence most of the time, until the refreshments were served.

But what struck me was not the way the females were punished generally, but the way a certain girl performed. She was only nineteen but she played like sixty, and it wasn't that either. After she had galloped all over the keyboard and made runs up and down from treble to bass, I noticed that she was mopping up the females with her handkerchief. There was blood all over the white keys.

The girl had played with such power and with such disregard for her tender fingers that they had bled all through the performance. It was no wonder that the grand piano had to give out the music which the men couldn't dig out and for which the audience applauded her to the echo.

A girl like that is bound to make an impression upon the world as well as the piano, and I am sure she'll get some sort of decoration which will look nicer than the adhesive plaster she wore after she had played the bloody sonata. She put her life into her work when she did her stuff, and the old music box had to take notice.

Most of us think that success in music, literature, or business depends upon luck, when as a matter of fact it depends upon the way we put our life and our life blood into our art or our work. Music and money are bound to come when one plays the way that girl did, for she was like a miner who dug the gold nuggets out of the earth with his fingers.

There's a lot of talk nowadays about putting the artistic touch into your work, and I suppose it's all right, but there's nothing that can take the place of the human touch, like that of pianist and carpenter.

A lot of our work is a makeshift, a make-believe and consists in holding down a job. The ones who get there and bust into Who's Who are the guys of both sexes who are willing and able to put themselves into their tasks.

We have so many mechanical contraptions that we are losing sight of the human factor. We have player pianos and steam hammers, but we can't get away from the fact that there must be a living person behind the works.

It seems to me that this sort of logic will work with the typewriter as well as the piano, with the fountain pen as well as the hammer.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Denver Boy is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. C. G. Wilcox, 3855 1/2 Wolf St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep easy and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

Lamb Feeding Club Planned by County Agent

Alpine Avalanche:

As an initial move in boys and girls club work a lamb feeding club for the Highland territory is being planned by Tri-County Agent Ernest Gibbens in the near future. There will be a meeting in Alpine tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the C. of C. offices for the purpose of explaining to the boys and girls and their parents the particulars of this move. Gibbens stated. A like meeting will be held at Fort Davis the same day at 1 p.m.; a third meeting at Marfa at 4 p.m.

"As most everybody knows there is a growing interest in club work of the various kinds all over Texas," Gibbens says. "As yet there has been no club work of any kind conducted in this section, the lamb feeding club being the initial move. Several boys and girls in each of the three towns of Marfa, Alpine and Fort Davis have agreed to feed from 3 to 5 lambs each. It is hoped that there will be at least 50 lambs fed in each of these places this winter, these lambs to be shown at the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show next March where attractive prizes are offered on individuals, groups of 3 and groups of 5. The top fifty lambs from this section could be exhibited as a curload class where prizes of $150 in club classes and $150 in the open classes are offered." Gibbens urges the co-operation of the parents in this splendid work stating that many people engaged in successful lines of agriculture and livestock in America today started in as club members.

School Notes

Alice M. French, Co. Supt.

The following schools have recently been visited by the Co. Supt.: Corona, Brown, Joneta, Zacate Canyon, Mt. View, Arabela, Macho, Bethel, Bluewater and Escondida. Both teachers and pupils are most cordial in their welcome and anxious to show the work they are doing.

Corona Hi this year has an enrollment of 47. Mr. Boucher took me over the entire school system and they are certainly doing a high class of work in that school. Mrs. Van Scoyoc and her Domestic Science classes deserve special mention. They are redecorating and re-decorating the room and putting down new linoleum. When finished, their quarters will present a very attractive appearance, and all the money for this work has been raised by the class.

Miss Frances Sandoval at Escondida and Mrs. Geo. Dixon of Bluewater had very attractive exhibits for the fair, but at the last minute were unable to get in with them. They have this work on display and it adds very much to the appearance of the rooms.

The State Teachers' Convention meets this week in Albuquerque and many of our county teachers are planning to attend. As the last legislature passed a bill allowing two full days' salary to teachers attending the convention, we anticipate a much larger attendance this year than formerly. The program offered at this meeting is instructive and inspirational and we hope that all teachers who possibly can, will attend.

Arabela School Notes

The school now has an enrollment of 42 and the attendance for last month was 95%, the best record in this school for years. The community is proud of their school and doing everything possible to build it up. The repairs on the building are about completed; the play grounds have been improved, and a library has been started and in a month's time $20 worth of literature has been donated.

Miss Inez Gomez, Mrs. E. S. Dorsey and pupils extended to Supt. French and Mrs. Allie Stover a hearty welcome when they visited last week. Mrs. Geo. Dixon also was a visitor on Friday.

Arabela was favored by a light snow and a visit from Jack Frost on the night of the 22nd.

Cold Weather Starting

Detroit - To many automobile owners, 'cold weather driving' and 'hard starting' are synonymous.

It is true that an engine does not start as easily in winter as in summer, but a little care on the part of the owner will go a long way toward minimizing the difficulty. Chevrolet Motor Co. engineers pointed out.

Since the inception of the Chevrolet car more than 18 years ago, company engineers have been applying themselves to the problem of easier starting.

Making use of the 'cold room' facilities of the General Motors Research laboratories and working for hundreds of days in zero weather at the General Motors Proving Ground, Chevrolet technical men have been attacking the 'cold motor' problem for many years.

In considering the ease of the car that is difficult to start in cold weather, Chevrolet engineers call attention to the rather obvious fact that an engine in good condition will perform all its functions, including starting, more satisfactorily than one that is out of adjustment.

The principal parts which have a direct bearing on the starting of an engine are - Battery, starting motor, carburetor, spark plugs, ignition system and valves.

As the efficiency of the battery is materially reduced in cold weather, it should be given great consideration. If the electrical system is weak, complete combustion cannot be obtained

Mrs. Juan Pacheco Dies

Last Saturday night at about 10 o'clock, Mrs. Juan Pacheco passed away at her home after a lingering illness of nearly two years' duration.

The Pacheco family have been permanent residents of Carrizozo for the past ten years, coming here from El Paso in 1919.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Father Terrazas at the Catholic Church Monday morning and interment made in the local cemetery. She leaves a husband, five daughters and two sons to mourn her death and to whom the sympathy of the Spanish-speaking people of this community is extended.

brother to Sheriff Brady, Adenago Martinez, Charley Frits and several others were here from Hondo the first part of the week, attending to court matters.

To the Heads of the various Fair Committees:

In behalf of myself and the directors of the C. of C., I desire to express my appreciation of the way you handled your department during the Fair. I shall be pleased to have you pass this on to the other members of your committee.

The Fair exceeded all other efforts by a wide margin and the net amount up to this writing is $924.19; gross receipts $2081.08; total expense $1106.89. The net amount will take care of an expense note of $859.49, leaving a balance of $64.62 to be otherwise applied. The building now carries only the balance of the bonded indebtedness of $2950.00 with interest paid to July 25, 1929. The total cost of the hall to date, excluding interest and upkeep has been $10,807.85. This is what Audit No. 3 will show when we get around to make it.

If in handling your work you find that you can make suggestions whereby the efficiency of the department might be improved when another Fair is held, kindly feel free to make them and we would appreciate having them at this time.

Yours very truly,
E. M. Brickley, Active Manager,
Chamber of Commerce.

Good Posture Important

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. Posture is the result of habit—the unconscious reversion, by the muscles and bones, to the positions they have been allowed to take day after day. Finally they assume these positions automatically, and if they are not correct we develop bodily distortions, an unattractive appearance, and a whole series of unsatisfactory consequences. Poor posture leads to fatigue, to backache, to strain on the wrong parts of the body and often to one-sided growth or such physical imperfections as a narrow chest, round shoulders, protruding abdomen, and many others. It is possible to maintain a good posture while engaged in almost any household task. The fact that all household activities must be performed repeatedly, suggests that they may be made to encourage habits of good posture or to correct poor posture if one thinks definitely of how one is standing, sitting, or sleeping while at work. Take each a simple matter as standing at a pass closet or cabinet to operate an electric toaster, shown in the photograph by the United States Department of Agriculture. A home demonstration agent in Massachusetts used this frequently recurring activity to show farm women how to stand and how not to stand. She showed them how they looked when they allowed their shoulders or hips to slump forward, and the right way to stand while working at a counter or table. Various demonstrations of posture have been given, showing farm women the right and wrong positions for dishwashing, mopping, handling foods in the oven, sitting to prepare vegetables, and so on. Any one interested can apply this idea to a scrutiny of her own way of working. It is sometimes possible to see oneself in a large mirror as a particular task is carried on, and to note improper positions of head, shoulders, hips, back, or feet.

HOMEMADE SHOWER BATH

An old barrel or an inexpensive steel tank set on four posts or a platform and equipped with faucet and a short length of garden hose makes a shower bath for father and the boys and the hired man. The gas engine or windmill can be turned, on a few minutes in the morning to fill the tank and the old reliable water heater, the sun, removes the chill from the water during the day.

Fur and Lace, Felt and Velvet

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

There is no doubt about it, hats are far more interesting than they have been for many and many a season. In fact, all indications point to a revival of the real art of millinery. One feels, viewing the autumn and winter displays, that hats are no longer just hats, rather are they "creations" which tell of an era in headwear where the touch of the "milliner born" becomes absolutely imperative in the scheme of things.

In the conjuring of modish millinery, the employment of lace and of fur unfolds an endless vista of possibilities to the designer. From hat to coat, frock and ensemble, the idea of enlivening black with touches of white fur wins appeal. To wear with a dressy black velvet or broadcloth or perhaps suade-finished cloth coat or jacket—where white fur appears at neck and wrists—modistes are creating hats of the type of the little ermine-trimmed hat pictured at the top of this group to the left.

The two other fur-touched models in the illustration employ black broadtail for the toque in the lower left corner, and leopard skin for the scarf-and-hat set shown next to it. In the instance of the black broadcloth snug hat with its bow and flat cuff of broadtail again is seen the tendency to match the hat to the costume. This ensemble theme is resulting in all sorts of fabrics entering into the list of hat media, such as broadcloth, tweed and novelty wools. In fact any material used for the dress or suit is apt to be duplicated in its accompanying hat. It follows also, what with the observance of complementing the costume with a matching hat—that women who keep pace with the mode, will find it necessary to buy many more hats than they have in some other seasons.

Three of the sketches herewith demonstrated that lace is being as effectively worked by milliners as fur. Lace treatments may be said to be approached from two different angles, one is the use of insets as shown in the brimmed-hat centered at the top of the picture, also in the sketch to the right; the other is the adding of an ornamental veil, such as gives such a piquant air to the concluding model in the group.

When motifs of crepe lace are inset into felt shapes, which they so frequently are, emphasis is placed on their being a perfect color match. These matched lace effects are developing into one of the most fascinating themes offered in millinery fashions this season.

Food for the Family Table

By NELLIE MAXWELL

The following recipes, gathered from here and there are sure to please the family:

Chassertes.—Fold in one and one-half cups of grated cheese in the well beaten whites of three eggs, add salt and cayenne and pile on circles of toast and brown in the oven. These are nice to serve with a simple salad.

Rice and Beef Cutlets.—Take one cupful each of chopped uncooked beef and rice (cooked), combine with one well beaten egg. Make a sauce by frying one-half tablespoonful of onion in one tablespoonful of butter and then add one tablespoonful of flour and one-half cupful of milk. Simmer until smooth, add one-half teaspoonful of minced parsley, one-half tablespoonful of tomato sauce, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add this to the rice and beef mixture and form into cutlets. Brush with beaten egg, roll in fine crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Strawberry Ice Cream.—Crush one junket tablet and dissolve in a tablespoonful of cold water. Add one cupful of sugar to a pint of milk that has been warmed to new milk temperature. Add the dissolved tablet, stir well, pour into a freezer and freeze to a mush. Add a half pint of cream whipped, two cupfuls of crushed strawberries, and two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Mix well and let stand until well frozen.

Lemon Crumb Pudding.—Pour two cupfuls of milk over two cupfuls of bread crumbs, add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth cupful of sugar, one beaten egg, the grated rind of a lemon, three tablespoonfuls of the juice of a lemon and one tablespoonful of melted butter. Pour into a buttered baking dish and serve with creamy pudding sauce.

A dainty canape and easy to serve is one prepared thus: Prepare very small cream puffs—just enough for a mouthful—fill with any prepared mixture one desires—caviar, or seasoned chopped egg with anchovy.

Molasses Cake.—Take one cupful of molasses, one-half cupful of sour milk, one and three-fourths teaspoonfuls of soda, one-third of a cupful of butter, one egg, two teaspoonfuls of ginger, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and two cupfuls of flour. Mix as usual and bake in a slow oven. Bake in a sheet.

It is surprising how much more flavorful many of our foods are made by the addition of a bit of sugar. Our best meat cooks add a pinch or more to all roasts and steaks of meat; a bit added to almost all vegetables is an improvement, especially corn, peas and beans, which sometimes lack sweetness.

For the coffee stirup make extra strong coffee—one and three-fourths quarts of water to a pound of coffee, add three and one-half pounds of sugar and boil for three minutes. Bottle for use.

Brazilian Salad.—Take equal parts of finely cut fresh strawberries and pineapple with one dozen Brazil nuts cut into very thin slices. Marinate with lemon juice and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Tarte aux Oignons.—Slice thin four large onions. Put in a quart of cold water for a few minutes, add a teaspoonful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of salt and cook a few minutes. Drain and add to a saucepan in which has been melted one-quarter pound of butter and cook until lightly browned. Add three slices of bacon that have been cut in small pieces, and let cook. Let the mixture cool until just warm, then add three eggs lightly beaten with four tablespoonfuls of cream. Fill tart shells with the mixture and pour melted butter over them and bake until set.

An Attractive Bathroom

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

An attractive bathroom is a housekeeper's pride, and the care given it is well repaid, not only from the sanitary standpoint, but because somehow its gleaming porcelain and well-shined fixtures, as well as its fresh dainty linen, reflect the standards of the home. Because it is in constant daily use by every member of the family, the bathroom and everything in it needs going over every day. The hand-basin and tub must be scoured, the toilet made scrupulously clean, nickel or other metal fixtures wiped and polished, and the floor mopped and wiped, depending on its condition and kind. The water pipes and traps scratch the enamel. Tubs and bowls should be scrubbed with a fine scourer or with water containing a little kerosene, rinsed with clear hot water, and wiped dry.

The stains made by water containing an excess of iron may be removed from porcelain or porcelain-lined tubs and bowls with oxalic acid solution, which is a poison and must be entirely washed off. The overflow pipes should be flushed, washed with hot soapuds or soda solution and a long-handled brush, and flushed again. Then the seat, the cover, the chain, and the handle should be washed and wiped. All cloths and utensils used in cleaning the bathroom should be should be frequently examined, too, for stoppage or leaks, either of which should receive prompt attention from a competent plumber.

The regular replacement of soiled towels and wash rags with clean ones, and attention to soap dishes, shelves, and the linen and medicine closets at frequent times are also very necessary details of bathroom care.

Fine scourers may be used on all fixtures, except the basins of home economy. For porcelain and enameled iron fixtures, kerosene and washing are especially good; the kerosene cuts the grease, and the washing supplies the abrasion. Some of the commercial cleaning preparations used for enameled and porcelain fixtures are so gritty that they scratch the surface and thus make it harder to keep them clean. Special care should be taken to select one that will not scalded and dried, preferably in the open air.

Tiled walls and floors are easily wiped clean with soap and warm water to meet a scouring powder. It is a good plan to use two cloths, a wet and a dry one, and to clean a small area at a time, wiping it dry. The use of too much water may result ultimately in loosening the cement in which tiles are laid. If the floor is covered with linoleum this treatment is preferable to mopping.

The photograph, taken by the United States Department of Agriculture in Montgomery county, Virginia, installed after a water system had been put into the house on the advice of the extension agent. It is light, well ventilated, and quite easy to care for.

Fairy Tale for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Minna had been taking a walk, and now she was stopping before the music shop in the little town where she lived.

She was looking at everything in the shop. It was such an interesting window.

She always loved to look at it. Whenever she had time she stopped and gazed into the window—and sometimes, when she really hadn't the time at all she stopped and looked in!

Although it was late in the afternoon and she should be hurrying home, she stopped now and looked.

There were several lights in the shop, and she could see everything distinctly.

A light shone directly on a violin, the only one left, for Minna knew that the other four had been bought this year by three of the older boys and one older girl, who were taking violin lessons.

The violin looked rather lonely by itself. How she wished she could hear it played!

There was a saxophone in the window, too, a radio and a talking machine, a music box, ukulele and a harmonica, and, too, a metronome.

Minna didn't like a metronome. A friend of hers was made to practice with the metronome going all the time.

That was different from Miss Drumble. She didn't believe in the metronome. It made a pup-pet too mechanical and without enough sense of rhythm, Miss Drumble said, and Minna quite agreed with her.

A metronome so insisted upon every note being played right on time, and that wasn't so easy, but a metronome never seemed to care whether you found time difficult or not.

To a metronome everything should be so dreadfully right.

Some notes, Minna felt, wanted to go more quickly even if the time of the music and the metronome did agree that they shouldn't.

The metronome was so strict.

It always wanted its own way, and always appeared so satisfied with itself.

To be sure, Miss Drumble wanted her to keep correct time, but Miss Drumble wanted her to understand and feel rhythm more than anything.

Minna tried to see back in the shop where there were many other sheets of music, more musical instruments, radio, pianos, even a bugle, and such a dear looking little piccolo.

There weren't many books of exercises—that was another reason why the shop was so fascinating.

There were any number of song books. Minna liked to sing songs.

What a wonderful shop this was.

Minna liked it better than any other in town.

To be sure, she liked the peanut man's little stand, where peanuts were always being roasted, and popcorn was always popping—ready to be put into bags with the butter soaking through the paper.

But the peanut man's stand couldn't possibly be called a shop.

It was quite different. And, certainly, if she ever were given her choice of the two there wouldn't be a doubt about choosing this one.

She had lingered and looked long enough. She must be on her way now.

But there was something about the manner in which the lights back in the shop were blinking and flickering that kept her there.

It was as though something must be going to happen. Something exciting, something surprising, something—

Had some one spoken to her? She was sure she had just heard a voice, a squeaky voice.

But there was no sound. Maybe she had only imagined she had heard it. And then she heard the voice again.

It was quite distinct this time.

To think that some one from this fascinating shop was talking to her, too!

Mexico Growing Tea

The common oriental tea of trade is now produced in small but commercial quantities in Mexico, according to the Mexican ministry of industry, commerce of labor, which has some samples of this—possibly new agricultural product at Mexico City. This Mexican tea, which is of good quality, is being produced by a private planter who has been experimenting near Culcattian, Oaxaca, for some years. The fact that Mexico can produce this tea may become of great significance, for heretofore all tea-drinking countries have been dependent upon the Orient with its monopoly prices.

The Right Way to Redye Fine Silks

Textile makers always use special dyes for silk or wool. They know that is the best way. The makers of Diamond Dyes are the first to enable home dyers to follow this plan.

Next time you want to dye some of your more valuable articles of silk or wool, try the special Diamond Dyes in the Blue Package. They will give these materials clearer, more brilliant colors than any "all-purpose" dye. And they are just as easy to use as ordinary dyes. Like the white package Diamond Dyes, these dyes contain an abundance of the highest quality anilines. The blue package dyes silk or wool only; the white package dyes, or fints, any material. Either package; 15c, drugstore.

When Coxy led his army of the unemployed to Washington, he was worth $1,000,000 or more. He was particularly interested in good roads, and the "army" had its inception in his belief that the roads should be improved throughout the country as a means of furnishing work for the unemployed. He has lived to see a miraculous change in the highways of the United States.

HAD TO WORK TOO HARD

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Gave Her Strength

St. Carmel, Pa.—"After my second baby was born I had to work too hard and be on my feet too soon because my husband was ill. After his death I was in such a weakened and run-down condition that nothing seemed to help me. I am starting the fourth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel a great deal better. STORY FROM THE START

Capt. Lion Fellowes' American merchant ship is sunk by a British frigate off Portugal in the War of 1812. The crew surrenders, but Fellowes reaches shore exhausted. His life is saved by an English-speaking girl, who conceals her identity. She is about to set out for Lisbon. Fellowes goes to Lisbon where he meets an acquaintance, Capt. Chater of the American ship True Bounty, who offers him a berth as a mate, but knowing Chater is disloyal in trading with the enemy, he refuses. He meets the girl who saved his life, Cara Inglepin, daughter of the owner of True Bounty. She is bound for home and induces Fellowes to sail as mate. He is in love with Cara. The vessel is stopped by the British frigate, Badger, Captain Collishawe. Despite his claims to American citizenship, Fellowes is taken aboard the Badger and "branded" man. Maddened at what he believes is Cara's and Chater's treachery he strikes Collishawe, who orders him a hundred lashes with the "cat." Fellowes' hatred of the crew becomes an obsession. Off New York Fellowes escapes from the Badger. He conceals a plot in a meeting to be held at Chater's home.

"Saul Chater!" Mrs. Rhodes' lips clamped in a tight line. "Ya mean that skunk?"

"That's what we want to find out. I've sent Joe Doak and Paris Eaches to rouse Sopher and the Fencibles. We'll catch the English, and overhaul the farm." He hesitated, strangely reluctant to name Cara Inglepin, despising himself for his embarrassment "Chater has visitors."

"Mr. Benjamin Inglepin from New York, 'n' his daughter," corroborated Mrs. Rhodes, her jaw still very square. "An arrant Federalist knave, by all accounts."

"Are the Inglepins the only strangers at Chater's?"

Jeff Riggle answered him.

"Right now, they be; but Saul's had a parcel o' company since he come back from Portygal. Mr. Inglepin's be out afore, and a dozen fellers on 'n' on—most o' 'em from New England, by the way they talked."

"Who is the Guiding-Hand in the Plot?" Flashed Fellowes.

extraordinary deliverance! A veritable Odyssey, I doubt not. You'll have much to tell us, yes, yes! But we have not been idle at home. And you'll find the Manor all in order. I've had some trouble with Chater, who gave me to understand 'twas your pleasure he should be permitted to buy the 'swamp tract' east of the creek; but I trust I've not merited rebuke in resisting his persuasions."

"Chater lied to you," rasped Fellowes. "He and—an accomplice of his betrayed me to Collishawe—to silence me lest I reveal their intercourse with the enemy. Collishawe, as Eaches must have told you—"

"Ah, but my dear Lion, how can you prove this British officer comes with the intention of proposing a commerce in treason?"

"That's what I had your Fencibles roused. We must catch the scoundrels in the act."

"Scoundrels!" Sopher was distressed. "A libelous phrase, my friend. And it occurs to me that Chater has visited him Mr. Benjamin Inglepin, a reputable merchant of New York city, as well as Mr. Inglepin's daughter—"

"Who is the guiding hand in the plot?" flared Fellowes.

"But, Lion! Mr. Inglepin is a reputable merchant!"

"Say a wealthy merchant, and I'll agree with you. Growth wealthy on trading with the enemy. A corrupt, conspiring Federalist, bent on restoring allegiance to the Crown."

Sopher was bewildered.

"It passes comprehension," he said. "And as your attorney, Lion, I must counsel you to have your proofs in order before you undertake to prosecute your charges."

"With your Fencibles to aid me, I'll have proof enough to hang the lot of them."

"What? A woman?"

Mrs. Rhodes, who had stood by listening, arms akimbo, rapped sternly: "And why not, if she deserves it?"

"Why not?" echoed Fellowes.

Sopher wugged his head forebodingly. "I like it not, Lion, and that's the truth. As your attorney—"

"This not as my attorney, but as captain of the Fencibles I've called on

you. Will you aid us to capture these British invaders?"

"Ah, that's a different matter." The lawyer-William plucked up his spirits. "There, to be sure, we have the law on our side. Invaders in arms may be resisted, nay, they should be resisted. But laying an information alleging the crime of high treason is a matter requiring protracted consideration. I should err in my responsibility did I not urge reflection upon the possible consequences."

"I care nothing for the consequences," Fellowes said coldly. "To protect the Inglepins and Chater, Collishawe pressed me off the True Bounty, and gave me a hundred lashes of the cat. Did you ever see a man who had taken a hundred lashes on his back? Do you understand what it means to be compelled to serve against your country?"

"Your resentment is justifiable," deplored the lawyer, "yet suffer me to indicate that justice is seldom realized through passion."

Eaches, who hovered by the window, made an awkward attempt to come to attention.

"Axin' yer pardon, Cap'n," he reported, "the powder's served out, and the company be acallin' for ye 'n' squire."

"And 'bout time some one took heed to actin' stead o' argyin'" announced Mrs. Rhodes. "Here!" She opened a cupboard, and drew from it a musket, powder horn and shot pouch, which she extended to Cuffee. "Tom, jest stir yerself out to the woodshed, and ye'll find a hefty ax I honed, myself. Squire, that's a pistol in the drawer o' that table. Nimrod, git out o' here, and muster yer Fencibles or I'll go do it for ye."

"I trust I do not need to be reminded of my duty, Miranda Rhodes," the lawyer returned with dignity. "Corporal Eaches, lead out your squad. After you, Lion!"

In the hall they encountered Tom, fingering the edge of a shiny, broad-bladed wood ax.

"Run yer thumb over that," he invited them admiringly. "The Badger's gunner couldn't have it no sharper. That's a woman for ye! Cripes, she'd fight a seventy-four 'soon as look at it!"

Fellowes reflected uneasily that, at least, she'd probably fight more handily than his prolix attorney. But a clamor of voices distracted his attention. "Hi, whar's the squire?" "Down with the Bloodybacks!" "Come on, Nimrod, we want to fight!" "Three cheers for the Fencibles!" "We'll show them Englishmen a few tricks!" "Hey, Sopher! Hear yer bloodhounds barkin'!"

Not so well disciplined, the Fencibles, who, after all, were only everyday farmers and fishermen. Thank God for the misty darkness!

The men were armed as nondescriptly as the squad that had attended Eaches—half of them carried old Broyn Bess firelocks, with bayonets; the remainder sported hunting rifles, tradeguns and fowling pieces. Lads barely in their teens shambled beside grandfathers wearing their white hair long in the fashion of the last century. But all, regardless of age or equipment, were hysterically aggressive, and they broke ranks with a whoop to receive Fellowes.

He quieted the demonstration with difficulty.

"The British will hear you, friends. Our one hope is to surprise them. Fall them in, Nimrod."

Sopher drew his amber with a clang. "Fall in, men! Fall in! Sergeant Peirt! Whar's Sergeant Peirt?"

One of the ancients of the company stepped clear of the confusion and saluted with stinky smartness.

"Muster the men, sergeant. Column of fours."

"And douse those torches," added Fellowes.

Prompt abedience plunged the group in darkness, and the confusion increased until the Widow Rhodes appeared with a lighted stable-lantern in either hand.

"I never see such clumsy oafs," she snapped. "For land's sake, git ago! Abner Peirt, I've heard yer tell 'bout Saratog for thirty years. S'pose ye show us a bit o' soldierin' for a change."

"We will, Mr. Peirt, we will," quavered Peirt. "The Fencibles ain't Cominternals, but they know their drill. Fall in, megal Slope arms! Right dress!" His old voice took on a ghostly ring of virility. "By fours—column right—forward!"

King Might Have Had "To Tell It to Judge"

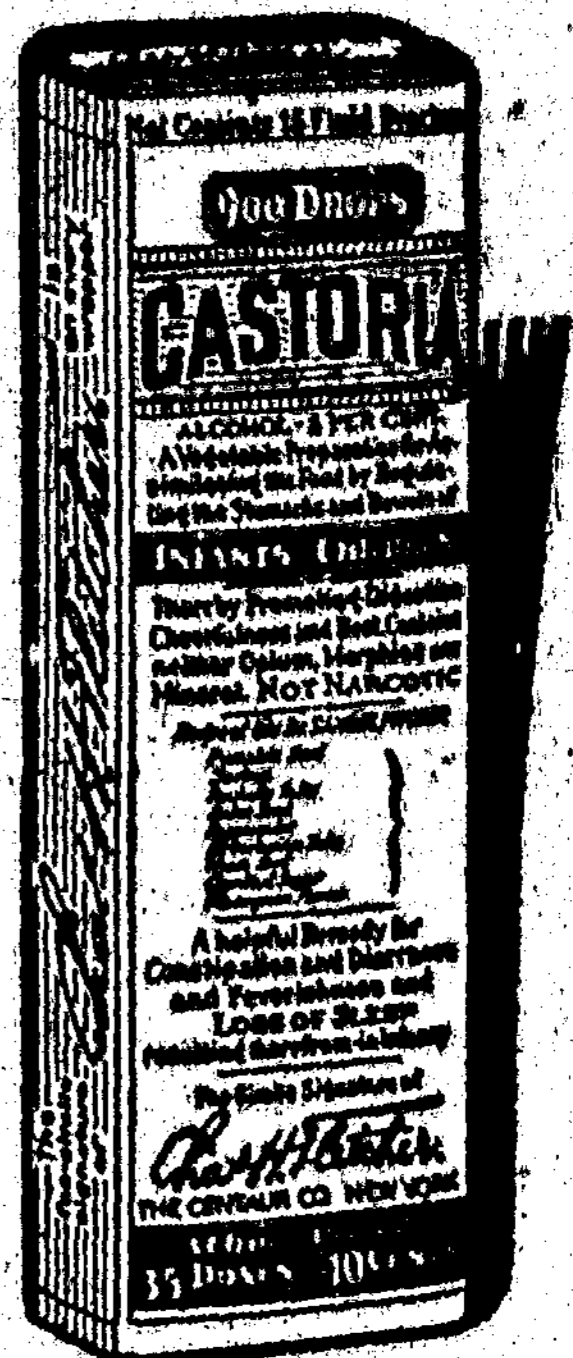

An amusing story about King Edward is told by Princess Daley of Pless in her memoirs, says the Kansas City Times. One summer at Cowes, Edward went ashore from the royal yacht to play a little bridge with the duchess of Manchester at her real dence, Egypt house. He didn't want any fuss, so was accompanied by only one equerry. Reaching shore they hired a cab to drive to Egypt house. The driver did not know where it was and took them to the wrong place. It was quite dark and the equerry got out and rang. A window upstairs was opened and two outraged old ladies peered out, demurring what all the noise was about. The king shouted up that he had come to play bridge with the duchess of Manchester. The angry ladies declared that they knew nothing about either bridge or duchess; that he was drunk and if he did not go away at once they would telephone for the police!

Pleasure in Achievement
Our times of greatest pleasure are when we have won some high peak of difficulty, trodden under foot some evil, and felt day by day as sure a growth of moral strength within us that we cannot conceive of an end of growth.—Stopford Brooke.

Greatness lies not in being strong alone but in the using of your strength.—Henry Ward Beecher.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ill and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly.—How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Old Town to Change Name
Trondhjem, an ancient Norwegian town, which is known principally in the public mind as the most northerly town of any considerable size, will change its name after the first of next year. It will return to the original name by which it was known up to the middle of the Sixteenth century and that is Nidaros. The town is situated but a short distance below the Arctic circle.

Butterfly 5,000 Feet Up
For the entomologist Mount Washington has long been a favorite collecting ground, says Nature Magazine. Passing through rich Canadian fauna at the base, where the natural conditions have been practically undisturbed, we enter near the timber line the sub-Alpine where in August are found the mountain fritillary and the wingless grasshopper, two of the more striking species of this zone. At an elevation of above 5,000 feet we reach the home of the White Mountain butterfly.

The Mark of Genuine Aspirin.

BAYER ASPIRIN is like an old friend, tried and true. There can never be a satisfactory substitute for either one. Bayer Aspirin is genuine. It is the accepted antidote for pain. Its relief may always be relied on, whether used for the occasional headache, to head-off a cold, or for the more serious aches and pains from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or other ailments. It's easy to identify Bayer Aspirin by the Bayer Cross on every tablet, by the name Bayer on the box and the word "genuine" always printed in red.

Locates Sunken Treasure
H. P. Douglas, an English naval officer, has, by means of a contrivance known as the sonic depth finder, devised a way to locate sunken treasure. The instrument, by sending out sound waves and recording the elapsed time before the echo returns calculates the distance between itself and the reflecting surface on the ocean floor.

Fastidious Burglar
Winchester, Va., has a burglar who insists on having only new money. Some of the smaller paper currency and several old notes were displayed in a jeweler's window. The robber of discriminating taste heaved a peddled brick through the window and helped himself to the new, leaving the old and also some attractive silverware.

When a White Collar Man "Goes Army"

Perhaps he doesn't learn a few things!

DON'T envy a man who "only has to work a typewriter." So we were told by Mr. Solon S. Bloom of 3503 Woodbrook Avenue, Baltimore, Md., whose health began to give way because his work gave him no bodily exercise.

I decided to get away to military training camp," says Mr. Bloom, "thinking the rough and tumble with the army would do me good for a month. I asked the doctor what to do about my condition. 'I've seen men, I've known men,' he said. 'I know what they eat, drink, and how they live. I know cathartics, physics, and all the ways men try to keep themselves regular—and the only two that go together well are men and Nujol. Nujol soothes and heals the membranes and expels bodily poisons normally, naturally, easily, so that you are regular as clock-work!'"

Remember Nujol is not a medicine, for it contains no drugs of any kind. It is simply bodily lubrication that everybody needs.

You can get a bottle of Nujol at any good drug store, in a sealed package, for the price of a couple of good cigars. If you will start today and try it for two weeks you will agree that Nujol is the easy normal way to keep well and make a success out of your life. You will be astonished at the result!

That was what Mr. Bloom learned when he left his typewriter and went

WESTERN FARMERS REDUCE MORTGAGES OVER 5 PER CENT

Wichita, Kan.—Farmers of the Ninth Federal Land Bank district, comprising Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado and New Mexico, who operate their own farms, have reduced their mortgage indebtedness by about $12,000,000,000, or a little more than 5 per cent, in the years 1925 to 1928, according to figures compiled by the bureau of agricultural economics of the Department of Agriculture.

Commenting upon these figures at the two-day meeting of the representatives of 116 national farm loan associations of Oklahoma with Federal Land Bank officials here, John Fields, president, pointed out that the farmers of this district have done better than the national average, which increased 1 per cent during that period.

He also stated that the decrease in the mortgage debt on owner-operated farms in this district is "at approximately the same rate at which borrowers from the Federal Land Bank pay off their loans."

The bank at Wichita has made loans amounting to $124,354,650 to 38,577 farmers in the twelve and one-half years in which it has been doing business. Of these, 8,187 loans, amounting to $25,450,100, have been repaid in full, and payments on principal aggregating $9,518,865 have been made on the 30,390 loans now in force.

As indicative that farmers have been improving their farm mortgage position, Fields showed that borrowers from this district have been paying their installments more promptly when due. Installment delinquencies of borrowers from this district decreased 13 per cent during the quarter ended Sept. 30, and the number of loans delinquent decreased 17 per cent. The total amount of loans involved in delinquencies decreased 22 per cent during the same period.

Prepares Woodshed for Home

Malone, N. The dwelling, attached to the woodshed, is in United States territory and Plante is prevented by United States immigration authorities from again entering this country. Plante is now busy making the woodshed waterproof for the winter.

Business Maintains High Level

Washington.—Secretary Lamont said here a few days ago that business is in a very healthy condition and that it had maintained a high level for the first nine months of 1929. The output of pig iron and steel ingots, he said, was "usually regarded as an accurate reflector of industrial conditions," and he cited that the output of these products was more than 17 per cent greater than for the corresponding period of last year.

Large Marketing Association Formed

Minneapolis, Minn.—Announcement was made here recently that the organization of a new grain marketing co-operative, the largest in the northwest, has been completed and will be known as the Co-operative Farmers' Northwest Grain Corporation. Articles of incorporation have been filed with the Minnesota secretary of state at St. Paul. The new organization is sponsored by officials of farmers' co-operative elevator associations in Montana, Minnesota and the Dakotas.
