

FORT STANTON NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Howson and children spent Saturday in Roswell.

A sure sign of spring is the irrigating of the parade by Farm Supt. Boyd. He expects to have it nice and green this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Fagan entertained Chaplain M. J. Swift, J. C. Draper and J. T. Northrup at a farewell dinner Sunday in honor of the Chaplain.

The Misses Gunn, Hilligan and Foley entertained at dinner at No. 2 Saturday evening for Dr. King, Leo Payman and Mickey McNeff, the occasion being the birthdays of Dr. King and Mickey.

The writer visited the station chicken farm last evening and the station is to be congratulated on having such a nice looking farm and such fine chickens as well as a small flock of turkeys. A thousand white Leghorn baby chicks arrived last week and a thousand more are coming, which means lots of fresh eggs for the patients.

Hay fever seems to be very popular this year; several of the doctors, wives and a few of the boys at No. 4 and also the nurses are having their eyes swell and are wearing dark glasses.

Chaplain Swift has just received delivery on a new Durant Six Sedan, and of course, he is proud of it.

The boys and girls are getting ready for the Easter parade, several having new outfits coming.

The "Air Circus" with Sue Carrol and Arthur Lake was enjoyed last Thursday evening.

The Federal Employees' Local No. 210 had a big meeting last Friday evening and elected officers for the coming year and signed up new members. W. S. Howson was elected president; W. C. Hendren, Sec'y-Treas., and nine vice-presidents were also elected. After such an enthusiastic meeting our local promises to become active again.

Rev. Swift has been called to New York for a conference by the Seamen's Church Institute.

Chief Dietician Miss Madeline Converse, who has been suffering with a bad cold, has now recovered.

Mr. Dickey has taken an annoying bad cold.

Dr. N. Y. Hooper, our popular dental officer has received orders for his transfer to Ellis Island, N. Y., to be effective when relieved by the new dental officer. Dr. Hooper will be greatly missed and all unite in wishing him success at his new post.

No. 4 is to be honored by receiving a new portrait of Dr. Robert Haire, which is being painted by our young artist, Geo. Elmgren. He is posing an hour or so a day for George, but the time will be well spent as he feels that the boys will appreciate his gift.

It is rumored that the twins (Daxson and Pythias) took two of our best looking nurses out for an auto ride and didn't get back until the small hours due to running out of gas. No use trying to take a trip on a gallon and a half of gasoline.

Dr. Hooper and W. C. Hendren spent Tuesday in Roswell.

Thomas Downey, U. S. Coast Guard from Ellis Island, N. Y., arrived at the Fort on March 18.

A. Langdon left the hospital on March 21 and went to Roswell where he intends to locate.

Pete Johnson

deputy sheriff, made a trip to Roswell last Friday and returned with Cruz Torres, who escaped from the Carrizozo jail about three weeks ago, was apprehended by the Roswell officers who notified the sheriff's office here. Pete returned Torres to serve his sentence with a penalty to be added for escaping. Torres was arrested and was under a peace bond from Judge Chavez. He was regarded as a trusty, put to work in the courthouse yard, but when a chance for escape arrived, he hot-footed it out of town.

Marlon Jolly

was down from his home near Corona Monday. Marlon said that the high winds of the past week were taking a large amount of moisture out of the ground but they were hoping for some rain or a late snow which would be much better and make the ground in better condition for spring planting.

Frank Gurnay

came in from El Paso the latter part of last week and was a caller at this office; he was on his return trip to his farm home near Elk City, Kansas. Frank said that while in El Paso, Major Campbell and himself had a most interesting time in keeping track of the war across the border, but they were careful not to stop any of the lead that flew in wild directions.

S. W. Stout

the Alamogordo owner of Stout's Truck Line between here and Alamo, was here Friday in the interest of his ice business which he has furnished us with for the past two years. Mr. Stout will start his usual spring service about April 1 and will deliver ice and soda water to his Carrizozo trade. His announcement will be seen in this paper shortly and those who wish to place orders for ice or soda water, will be recipients of good service.

TO THE PUBLIC

In line with the agreement made by the Board of Education, School Dist. 7, Carrizozo, N. M., we are pleased to publish a list of the receipts and disbursements in the matter of the building of the addition to the high school and furnishing and improving the other buildings. A further analysis of the following figures will be found at the First National Bank where it will remain until all who care to have examined the statement; after that it will be returned to the secretary for filing with other records.

caretaker of the Eagle Creek Club grounds left Monday to visit his wife who is ill in the hospital at Albuquerque.

has sold an 18-foot "Oilrite" windmill to Brack Sloan and the same will be installed on Brack's ranch the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burkett left Monday to pay a visit to Mr. Burkett's mother at Abilene, Tex.; Mrs. Burkett was taken ill the latter part of last week, and following a message received from home, they departed early in the morning of the day mentioned. No word concerning the mother's condition has been received since their arrival.

FEARED A Cold Hell

Burlington, Ia., Post: While winter lingers in the lap of Spring, it is inspiring to read what might have been, or might be, by reading a brief account of some severe winters of the past thousand years in Europe and presumably in Ancient America.

So notable have been some winters, in the matter of low temperatures, in the past thousand years, that their occurrence is recorded in the ancient writings and have now been singled out and given to the public from the pen of Dr. C. Easton, a Netherlands meteorologist.

"In the past 800 years there have been cold spells," says this author, "that make the present season look like an afternoon in May."

The first of these definitely recorded, was in the 12th century. Another came upon Europe in 1408; another in 1485; then 1564, 1687, 1709, 1780, and 1880.

In one of these, the sea known as the Zuyder Zee was frozen solidly. The temperature during these excessive winters ranged as low as 40 to 60 below zero for months. There was suffering, fuel and food shortage, and there was fear that the end of the world was coming in the realization of a cold hell.

Near Trouble City

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace and County School Supt. Max J. B. French spent Sunday and Monday at El Paso, returning home Tuesday morning.

E. M. Brickley, L. A. Whitaker made a trip to Estancia and spent Sunday attending to some business matters and returned with a new Ford Tudor Sedan which Mr. Brickley purchased of the Western Motors, Inc. Mr. Brickley is very much pleased with his new possession and says it sails like a bird.

The "Dutch Master's" Cigar

the cigar that pleases, on account of its mildness and fragrance, will appeal to all smokers who delight in a first-class smoke. In the ad in this paper, you will see that most of our merchants and also those of neighboring towns are handling the "Dutch Master's" cigar. Try one and be convinced of what is claimed for them.

Mrs. J. E. Farley

entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club last Saturday afternoon from 2:30 to 5. Special guests were: Mrs. J. L. Lee, Miss Louise Sweet and Mrs. J. M. Penfield of Lincoln. Mrs. Louis Adams won the high score at bridge. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

Capitan Girls Won

what seems to be the State Championship game by defeating Floyd, at Roswell Friday night by a score of 25-19. The game was a result of a challenge the Floyd girls gave to any team who had not been defeated this season. This marks the 14th victory for the Capitan girls.

The "Minnie's Wedding" cast wish to extend their appreciation to Mrs. Peters as director and Mrs. Brubaker for the costumes.

But now is Christ risen from the dead

Easter Day at Dawn in California

Have you ever been in California at Easter time? At Easter time when the popples begin to flash their brilliant yellow across the uplands and foothills? When the orange groves wait their perfumes into the face of snow-capped Baldy? If you haven't been so fortunate, you must miss this sight before you leave for the heavenly place. And if you have, you will recall the thrill of the early hour on the road out toward Rubidoux, cross-crowned or down along the Santa Monica palisades, out Hollywood way, or in the Reno Bowl, walked in by the hills of God—the hour before the East "grows gold and overflows the world." Just to join the throngs about or in automobiles to get the thrill of expectancy that comes from the barriers of the unknown, a writer in the Los Angeles Times asserts:

Everywhere spring is on the earth back yonder, from where many of us come, the snow is still lying in the little gullies along the hills, or under the trees where the sun is about out. The trees are burgeoning everywhere; the wild geese fly north, and the birds are busy about their nesting. It's apple blossom time yonder, and orange blossom time here. Yonder the farmer trudges in his furrow, here he rides his tractor; the smell of fresh-turned earth is in our nostrils; spring has returned once more. And the God of the Outdoors is again touching up the colors of the earth.

Wait for Word of Hope. We may not read the secrets of the hearts of men even by studying their faces. Sometimes, yes; for in a sense the face is the playground of the soul, and often a light shines through the thin folds of the fleshy vesture. But often, no. Yet we may be sure that many a heart is anxiously trudging towards the horizon, facing the frontier of eternity this Easter-day; looking up out of some fresh snow, looking from some fearful bereavement, hoping for comfort and expecting light. These multitudes are out on the trails this Easter day to catch some token of life's meaning, to hear some word of hope, to feel some impulse that will justify their tremendous expectancy. Day dawns like thunder, they tell us in Mandalay, but in California the sunrise is a sunburst, and beats upon our senses like drums, as does the meadowlark with its buoyant song. Man has never felt quite at home to the earth: "The day comes in upon wings of mystery, and sometimes departs with a glory that makes the heart ache, we know not why. The mountains are sacraments of power beyond our understanding . . . the stars are lamps that light an endless pathway."

Paradise Always Upheld. Yet, for all this sense of mystery and wonder, man is a blithe pilgrim and goes on stout-heartedly through

The Easter Sun

(An Old Irish Legend.)

Oh! Will do we remember
The pretty story told
How Easter's sun, in splendor,
When night was backward rolled,
Would dance with joy and gladness
At its rising, to proclaim
Christ's triumph over darkness,
And lead heaven to reclaim.

With what eager expectation
We look for that bright day
With what holy exultation
Night and morning did we pray
That good children He might make us,
That God's will on earth be done,
And with angels find the chosen
We might dance the Easter's sun.

Light was our sleep the night before,
No need for mother's call,
No rapping on the bedroom door
To awake us one and all,
Through sleep our dreams were all on high,
And when that light was dawn,
With joy we scanned the eastern sky
To see the dancing sun.

O, holy, sweet delusion,
So inspiring and so mild,
So fit as a conclusion
To the rapture of a child,
To all his heart with feelings
Holy, tender, pure and bright,
That in all the earthly dealings
He may dance in heaven's light.

the fogs and shadows, picking his course carefully along the precipices of life and among the graves new-made from dawn to dawn, feeling the sense of a Friendly Presence in all the awe-inspiring wildness of the land. And in his heart beats the instinct for the horizon and for adventure. He refuses to be intimidated, or to believe that life ends in eclipse. He has never passed this way before; the road is full of surprises and strangeness and often the trail is broken and steep, but he is sure that when he turns the next shoulder of the mountain, or the next, or the next, he will find Paradise stretching before him in all its glory.

He is going "west," and he has been a long time traveling, and the road has taken him across more than one riverford, over more than one desert stretch, beyond one frontier after another; but this Easter day his fellow-pilgrims, their laughter and their talk, and the spirit of the day, make his heart fairly burst with hope.

Symbolical of New Day. That young Roman, Mark, the scholar, years after the first memorable Easter day in Jerusalem, looking back, recalled that it was just at the hour of sun-up, as day began to dawn, that he and his friends first went to the sepulcher of Jesus. The father that first receded—into the past, the more it seemed to him symbolical—the rising of the sun, a token to him of the new day that dawned then for humanity.

In Russia, on Easter day, the monks greet each other with a holy kiss, and jubilantly proclaim, "Christ is risen today!"

First heard the bells ringing on Easter morning, and the will to live arose in his heart once more. That is the mystery of Easter day.

Easter's Message the Antithesis of Death

Perhaps a crucifixion, a destroying of some hopes is necessary, in order that Easter may be indeed a reality. There was a world of meaning in the statement "and ye now therefore have sorrow!"

To how many sad-eyed mourners will this Easter bring comfort and hope! To how many broken-hearted travelers along the way of life should it speak of a new, higher, better day, just about to break, as certain to break, as spring to follow winter, to the man who hopes and dares, and "keeps a stiff upper lip." So long as life lasts the brave man is never beaten. Life means effort. Without that, it is really death in life, an anomalous thing. Even though seemingly unsuccessful, effort is well repaid to a man's own soul, for success wears many forms, and sometimes comes disguised as failure.

Easter is the encouragement of effort, of courage, of daring, of hope, because it is the antithesis of death. The only death now worth fearing, is the passing of honor, of faith, of the joy of doing, of the blessedness of feeling the glory of life.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. F. S. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, (c. 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 31 THE FUTURE LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-6.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Glad Resurrection Day.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Glad Resurrection Day.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Here and Hereafter.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Ground of Hope for the Future.

1. The Resurrection of Jesus Christ (Luke 24:1-12).
The supreme test of Christianity is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It matters little what Jesus said and did while alive if His body remained in the grave. If He did not come forth in triumph from the tomb, then all His claims are false.

1. The empty sepulcher (vv. 1-3).
(1) The coming of the women (v. 1). As an expression of affectionate regard for the Master, they came with spices for His body. If they had believed His words, they would have known that His body could not be found in the sepulcher.

(2) What they found (vv. 2, 3). When they came to the sepulcher they found the stone had been rolled away, but they found not the body of Jesus. For them to have found His body in the sepulcher would have been the world's greatest tragedy. The empty tomb spoke most eloquently of the deity and power of the Son of God (Rom. 1:4).

2. The message of the men in shining garments (vv. 4-8).
(1) "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (v. 5).
This question, uttered by the angels, has been reverberating through the centuries.

(2) "He is not here, but is risen." Jesus had told them that the Lord must be betrayed and crucified and that on the third day He would rise again. Had they given heed to His words they would have been relieved of their perplexities.

3. The women witnessing to the eleven (vv. 9-11).
Their thrilling testimony concerning the empty tomb and the words of the angels appeared to the apostles as idle tales and they refused to believe.

4. Peter investigating (v. 12).
While the testimony of the women seemed as idle tales, Peter was not of the temperament to dismiss the matter from his mind, therefore he ran unto the sepulcher. Upon investigation he found the linen clothes lying in such a way as to prove the reality of the resurrection.

II. Jesus Preparing a Place in Heaven for His Own (John 14:1-3).
These last words of Jesus were words of comfort. The hopes of the disciples were utterly shattered when Jesus told them about the cross. He consoled them by pointing to the reunion in the heavenly Father's house.

1. He asked them to trust in Him, even as God (v. 1).
Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how intense the grief, or how great the sorrow.

2. He informed them that He was going to the Father's House in heaven to prepare a home for them (v. 2).
He assured them that there was abundant room there for all. He said, there were many "abiding places." Heaven is an eternal dwelling place for God's children.

3. He assured them that He would come again and escort them to heaven (v. 3).
Jesus will not depend upon nor wait for His own to come to Him, but will come and call forth from the grave those who have died; transforming living believers, and take them all together to be forever with Himself in the heavenly home.

III. Jesus Christ is the Way to the Heavenly Father (vv. 4-6).
Jesus informed the disciples that they knew the place to which He was going, and the way. To this Thomas interposed a doubt, in answer to which Christ asserted that He is:

1. The Way (v. 4).
Jesus Christ is more than a mere guide to God. He is the way itself.
2. The Truth (v. 6).
He is not merely the teacher, but the Truth incarnate. In His incarnation the spiritual and material worlds were united; therefore every line of truth, whether spiritual or material, converged in Him.

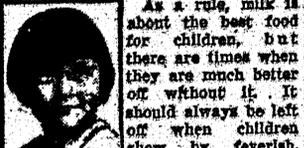

3. The Life (v. 6).
Christ is not merely the giver of life, but He is the very essence of life. Only those who receive Christ have life in the true sense.

The New Testament
The New Testament has done more toward creating a race of noble men and women than all the books of the world put together.—Sir Walter Scott.

Duty and Faith
The descent of duty is ever followed by the ascent of faith.—Dr. J. E. Shaw.

Justice Triumphs
Man is unjust, but God is just; and Justice finally triumphs.—Longfellow.

This Mother Had Problem

As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, swollen skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order.

In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the souring waste which is causing the trouble, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies.

Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 50 years of steadily increasing use. A Western mother, Mrs. May Snayely, Montrose, California, says: "My little girl, Edna's, tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving her California Fig Syrup. It helped her right away and soon her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about her bowels. I have always used California Fig Syrup with my little boy, with equal success."

To be sure of getting the genuine, which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

Vain Efforts
Senator King of Utah, at a dinner in Washington said of a political scandal:

"It gets worse and worse, and the efforts of these men to clear themselves only soil them more."
"It reminds me of the Munich butcher. An American lady said to him:

"And you can assure me, then, that there is no horse meat in these sausages?"
"Lady," said the butcher earnestly, "I can assure you that there's no meat of any kind in them."

Gus Gave Five Alarms
Returning from a hunt, Charles Maull, Millford, Del., hung up his gun on the kitchen wall thinking it wasn't loaded, but in this case it was lucky he was mistaken. That night the family was aroused when they heard the gun go off. A fire had broken out in the kitchen and reaching the gun, discharged it. The fire was put out before it spread farther.—Capper's Weekly.

For your daughter's sake, use Red Cross Ball Blue in the laundry. She will then have that dainty, well-groomed appearance that girls admire.—Adv.

The Exception
Sweetdelepe—It takes some brains to succeed in society.
Twecdelepunch—Why, you always seem to get on well enough.

Only the Boss
Sara—Do you have a dictating machine in your office?
Clara—Yes, bless him!

Their Difficulty
Friend—"I hear that your depositors are falling off." Banker—"Yes, they can't maintain a balance."

You Can't Dye a Dress with Promises!

You can't dye a dress—no matter how careful you may be—without real color. That's the idea behind Diamond Dyes. They are made to give you real service. They contain from three to five times more aniline than other dyes on the market.

Next time you want to dye, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking, or spotting. See how soft, bright, new-looking the colors are. Then observe how they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. If you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes, your dealer will refund your money.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

But Carlos Deane could not see. It was his last evening alone with her and after the meal they rode across the hills through the moonlight. In that hour she was very near to doing as he wished. If only he had suggested that she come to him as soon as the Three Bar was once more a prosperous brand; had only pointed out how she could spend months of each year on the old home ranch—then he might have won his point without waiting. But that is not the way of man toward woman. His plea was that she leave all this behind—for him. And his hold was not quite strong enough to induce her to give up every link of the life she had loved for long years before Carlos Deane had been even a part of it.

"I can't tell you now," she said as they rode back to the corral. "Not now. It would take something out of me—the vital part—if I had to leave the old Three Bar in the shape it's in today. It's sort of like deserting a crippled child."

The next day her stand was unaltered and in the evening, when the whole Three Bar personnel swung to their saddles and headed for the frolic at Billie's Deane had been unable to gain her promise.

There were but few horses at the hitch rails when they reached the post. As the Three Bar girl entered at the head of her men she saw Bentley and Carpenter leaning against the bar, well toward the rear of the room.

Within the last week she had heard that Carp, after being let off by Harris, had started up a brand of his own down in Slade's range. Harris' remarks about Slade's mode of acquiring new brands recurred to her—that he fostered some small outfit for a few seasons, then bought it out. As the men scattered she commented on this to Harris. The Three Bar foreman nodded.

"Likely the same old move," he said. "Like I told you, there's no way to check Slade up on the number of our rebrands. If Carp gets caught it's his own hard luck."

A dozen men from the Halfmoon D swarmed in the door. Mrs. McVey, the owner's wife, stationed herself in one corner with the Three Bar girl while the men gravitated to the bar. Harper's men came in, the albino standing half a head taller than any other on the floor, and they mingled with the rest as if their records were the most immaculate of the lot. Two of Slade's foremen arrived with their families.

Bart Epperson, a trapper from far back in the hills, had brought his family to the frolic. Mrs. Epperson was a tiny meek woman who had but little to say. Her two daughters, in their late teens, had glossy black hair, high cheek bones and faint olive tinge of skin which betrayed a trace of Indian ancestry.

Lafe Brandon came at the head of his tribe. Two of his sons were married and living at the home ranch. They came to the dance with the rest of the family. Lou Brandon's wife, Dolly, was a former dance-hall girl of Coldriver, and Al Brandon's better half, Belle, was the daughter of a Utah cowboy.

An extra stageload rolled in from Coldriver and four couples joined the throng.

"Ex-school teachers," Harris informed. "They marry them so fast that it's hard to keep one on the job instructing the rising generation in the Coldriver school."

Deane shrank from the thought of the Three Bar girl in such a mixture. Some way she seemed many shades finer than the rest.

"It couldn't be otherwise," Harris said when Deane expressed this thought. "She was raised at the knee of one of the finest women in the world. I remember her mother myself—a little; and I've heard my own mother sing the praises of Elizabeth Warren a thousand times."

The albino interrupted them. "Cal—how come?" he greeted. The three men conversed in the most casual, friendly fashion, as if there had never been a hint of friction between Harris and Harper in the past.

A great voice rose above the hum of conversation, filling the big room to the very rafters.

"Choose your partners for the dance!" Waddles bellowed from the makeshift platform at one end of the room. "Go get your partners!"

Deane moved across to the Three Bar girl. There was a general ruck for the side opposite the far where the ladies had gathered. Couples squared off for the Virginia reel, the shering of ladies rectified by a hand bunched on the arm of many a chaperoned youth. In a signal that he was for the moment, a girl Waddles picked his partner; two ladies broke into "Turkey in the Straw," and the dance was on with Waddles calling the turns. All through the room they shuffled and bowed, whirled partners, locked elbows and swung, the shriek of fiddles and scrape of feet punctuated the caller's boom.

Slade came in alone as the first dance was ended. A croupier and lookout, imported from Coldriver for the event, opened Billie's roulette layout in one corner, the battle of chips, the whirl of the ivory ball and the professional chant of lookout and croupier sounded between dances.

The full enjoyment of a novel scene was spoiled for Deane by the sickening realization that the Three Bar girl was part of it, rubbing elbows with the nondescript throng. He looked again at Harper, the rustler chief; at Slade, with his peculiar rufous hair; at Slade, the cattle king—the killer; Willie Warren stood between the two Epperson girls whose faces betrayed the taint of Indian blood, an arm about the shoulders of each of them. The sheriff who had said that men must—tumor womenfolk was leaning against the bar, Deane turned to Harris but found him looking across the room. He turned his own eyes that way and glimpsed a dark man with an overlong thin face and a set bleak stare. Morrow had just come in.

Five minutes later Harris stepped out the back door and Deane followed him. At the sound of a footfall behind him Harris whirled on his heel and when he confronted Deane the dim light from the door glinted on something in his hand.

"Sho," Harris deprecated. "I'm getting spooked." "I thought it was some one else." He slipped the gun back in its holster. "There's one or two that would like right well to run across me from behind."

"I followed you out to tell you it was decent of you to insist that I stay over a few days," Deane said. "It was a white thing to do, considering that we both want the same thing."

"We both want her to have what's best for her," Harris said. "And I don't know as she could do any better than to take up with you."

"It may sound rather trite—coming after that," Deane said. "But anyway, I'll have to say that I feel the same way about you."

"Then, if we're both right in our estimates, why she can't go very far wrong, either way she turns," Harris said. "So I reckon we're both content."

Harris moved on and motioned Deane to accompany him.

"I thought I glimpsed a man I knew a few minutes back," Harris said. "I'd like right well to have a talk with him."

They wandered completely round the post and looked in the shadows of the outbuildings but could find no trace of life.

"Likely I was mistaken," Harris said at last. "I saw a face just outside the door. He was more or less on my mind—the party I thought it was. Some one else I expect, and he's gone inside."

They returned to the hall. Morrow stood with two Halfmoon D men at the end of the bar. Harris motioned him aside and Morrow withdrew from the others.

"This is pretty far north for you, Morrow," Harris suggested.

"Is there any one restricting my range?" Morrow demanded. "If there is I'd like to know."

"Then I'll tell you," Harris answered. "The road is open—as long as you keep on the road. Any time you stray off the beaten trail you're on the Three Bar range. I don't figure to get gunned up from the brush more than once by the same man. Every Three Bar boy has orders to shoot you down on sight any time you leave in view anywhere within twenty miles of the Three Bar; so I wouldn't stray off the main-traveled road any time you're going through."

Lanky Evans had detached himself from a group and Morrow looked up to find the tall man standing at his shoulder.

"St. you, hunt in pairs," Morrow remarked.

"And later in packs," Lanky returned. "Why don't you ever come up and visit us? Every time I'm riding north I keep looking back, expecting to see you come cantering up from the south."

"What's the object of all this conversation?" Morrow flared. "If you've got anything to say to me, why get it over with."

"Nothing special," Evans said. "I just thought maybe I could good you into being imprudent enough to come up our way—which I'm sure hoping to observe you north of the line and somewhere within a thousand yards."

Evans turned away and Morrow rejoined the two men he had left at the bar. Deane looked about him. Apparently no one had noticed the little by-play.

"Evans didn't exactly mean quite all of that," Harris explained. Of course if Morrow does come up our way Lanky would prefer to see him first—but he would rather he'd keep away. He staged that little talk as a safeguard for me. If Morrow acquires the idea that several folks are anxious to see him, up there, he's apt to be real cautious how he prowls 'round the Three Bar neighborhood looking for me."

Deane crossed over to Billie. The music started by she shook her head as to how she had led her to the floor.

"Sit do, n. I want to talk with you, Long Jim, no see 'um after tonight," she said. "It'll be daylight soon and I've a long tale to tell."

As the others danced she gave him a dozen messages to impart to various friends.

"Tell Judge Colton that Three Bar stock is rising," she said. "And that as soon as things are all smoothed out, he can expect me for a boarder."

Through an opening in the dancing throng Deane suddenly had a clear view of the open rear door—one brief glimpse before the crowd closed once more and shut off his view. He had an idea that he had seen a face, hazy and indistinct, a few feet outside the door. He wondered if it could be the friend for whom Harris had searched.

"Blake the visit soon, Billie," he urged. "It's been a long month since we've had you with us. We thought maybe you'd deserted us back there. How soon will this visit start—and how long will it last?"

"It will start as soon as the Three Bar doesn't need me," she said. "And last a long time."

Again a lane opened through the crowd, affording a view of the door. Deane so—the face outside in the night, and a foot or more below it some bright object glinted in the dim light which filtered through. The music ceased and the chant of the roulette croupier began, mingling with the smooth purr of the ivory ball.

There came a sudden hush from the vicinity of the rear door, a hush that spread rapidly throughout the room, so swift are the perceptions of a frontier gathering.

Old Billie Foster stood just inside, his gun half-raised before him. Canfield and Lang stood together in the center of the floor, apart from the rest and with no others in line beyond them. Billie tossed a boot heel on to the floor and as it rolled toward the two men he shot Canfield through the chest. Lang's gun crashed almost with his own. Billie's knees sagged under him and he pitched face down on the floor, his arms sprawled out before him.

The surge of the crowd, pressing back out of line, threw the albino on the edge of it, his big form towering alone.

The old man raised his head from the floor and crooked his wrist with the last of his ebbing strength.

"Four for Bangs," he said, and shot Harper between the eyes.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK

MODERATION

"A L L work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Of course it does. But a fair amount of work and the wrong type of play can give the same results. Don't lose sight of this fact, either.

Recreation is essential to human happiness, health and welfare. But in these days of highly commercialized attractions one should give some thought to the manner in which the leisure hours are spent. This is perhaps too infrequently done.

While the radio, for example, is one of the most fascinating of modern amusements, it scarcely pays night after night to sit up until the wee small hours trying to "get" either, either and son. It would be more sensible to shut off the current at a more reasonable hour and "get" sleep.

Movies, too, while having their place in one's diversion schedule, should not become one's sole idea of a good time after working hours. Even the best of picture palaces are crowded; and while ventilation systems are efficient in some of them, vitiated atmosphere is more likely to be the case than otherwise. Consequently to walk in the evening occasionally for two hours is a decidedly more beneficial type of distraction.

A word of caution needs to be directed at the older boys whose pride in the imaginary possession of lost youth leads them into all sorts of physical extravagances. The exceptional man over fifty can play hard games of tennis, basket ball or hand ball—and live to tell the tale. But one is foolish to try to prove himself to be in that class by vigorously indulging in "kid" games.

Diversion, therefore, that leads one of mature years to the gymnasium for hand ball or to the club for squash is a concealed sort of affair. It may even cause a strike on the part of your heart which spells ruin to the game and possibly to you also.

Remember that the physical exertions of our driving civilization have most of us going at high speed during our work period. And that a healthy let-down is not only good for the soul but for the body also.

There is no implication in this advice that a man over forty-five should arbitrarily forsake all the athletic activities to which he has been accustomed and join a sewing circle. Just the same, always keep in mind that "the old gray horse ain't what he used to be"—and govern yourself accordingly.

A FRIEND

T HE most outstanding friendly enemy of man is pain, only he doesn't know it. Moreover, when he is informed of the fact, he is decidedly apt to believe it.

As a general rule, the first thing a person does when he gets a pain is to grumble about it. It frequently is also the last thing he does about it. True, if pain hurts badly enough, one is likely to try a pill or so to deaden it; and if it hurts worse than that, a physician will be consulted. But one's attitude toward pain is always the same—ill-humored and disrespectful.

Well, if pain merely hurt, there might be some reason for such an attitude toward it. But that is the least that it does. As a matter of fact, pain is the language of the body talking to direct and forceful terms to the brain. It is indicating that something is wrong, and that scientific attention is immediately required.

That so many turn a deaf ear to pain is positively pathetic; that so many who know absolutely nothing about the particular pain's cause are so egotistical and silly as to indulge in self diagnosis and self medication is much more so.

How many times, for instance, have you throttled a headache by some favorite pill or potion? And this, without a real knowledge of the condition back of the thing. Headaches are merely symptoms. And it is a blind physician indeed who goes about his business on that flimsy basis.

What is true in a minor way about headaches is equally and more true concerning other bodily pains. Long and healthy life demands that you lend a receptive and affectionate ear to pain. Take your pain, great or small, to your physician. Let his practiced eye and specialized intelligence go behind it and find the cause. For the cause is the only thing after all that matters.

People who get stuck at pain and treat it themselves or attempt to ignore it, sometimes wake up to find themselves dead!

The majority always have an appreciable number of guests who are such simply because they lack the right attitude toward pain.

Pain is your servant. Use it as such. Use it in this advice. Three cheers for pain!

How to Get Rid of a Severe Cold

"Last August I took a very severe cold and it seemed that I couldn't break it up. I got so bad that I was confined to my bed for five weeks, doctoring all the time without getting any relief. I had no appetite, naturally lost flesh. In fact, I had given up all hopes of ever getting any better. A friend recommended Milk's Emulsion and I commenced its use. When able to leave my bed I weighed 111 pounds. Now, after taking Milk's Emulsion five weeks, I weigh 125 pounds—feel better than I have felt in two years, can eat anything, have no effects of the cold and work every day. I thank God and Milk's Emulsion for restoring my health." MRS. MARGARET WASHINGTON, 1039 E. 14th St., Winneton, Minn.

Nature's Kindness to People of Green Isle

Among other benefits of being an Irishman there is to be listed, it is asserted, an ability to break one's bones with relative impunity, as compared with Englishmen or persons of other races.

At a recent coroner's inquest at Chamberwall, England, Dr. Reginald Larkin, a police surgeon familiar with accident cases, took occasion to report his experience that broken bones of the Irish heal more rapidly and strongly than similar fractures, the victims of which are English; thus justifying, perhaps, the Irishman's traditional preference for the shillalah, a plaything relatively harmless to his countryman.

If all animals the repair of broken bones is the duty of millions of tiny living cells which accumulate at the place where the bone is broken and cement the severed ends together with stiff, cartilaginous tissue which then slowly hardens into bone by deposit of compounds of lime.—Baltimore Sun.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Chief Justice Taft and the School Girl

The greatness of our public men does not always lay in their deeds of valor, but oftentimes in what might be called, smaller things — they enlarge in their greatness by admitting to faults and shortcomings.

In the case of Chief Justice Taft, for example, when he administered the oath of office to President Herbert Hoover, in one particular place, he said: "preserve, maintain and defend." Few people noticed a departure from what the Justice should have said, but little Helen Terwilliger of Walden, N. Y., noticed that the Justice had made an error, and wrote him a letter which read, he should have said, "preserve, protect and defend."

Now, under a monarchical form of government, any citizen offering a correction to one of higher standing, would have been extremely censured, if not severely dealt with for criticizing one of the Lords, or even one of the Peerage, but here in good old America, it is decidedly different.

The Chief Justice and ex-president of the great United States, answered the little critic, and, instead of writing her a letter of rebuke, he said, in kindly terms, that his variation was a departure from the text, rather than one from the meaning, and it all should be blamed to the defects of an old man's memory.

That answer to little Helen's letter made the Chief Justice all the greater, from the fact that he recognized in the child, aged 13 and in her eighth grade, the remarkable talent to discern, where others had overlooked an error in the phrasing of so important thing as administering an oath to the President of the United States — not only that, but she had the nerve to tell him of his variation which he admired, and was unselfish enough to tell her so.

In this, he showed a milder form than did President Andrew Jackson, who had been out hunting and on his return, was notified that the English Ambassador's wife was waiting to be received. The President started to the reception room in his hunting costume, high-topped boots and cob pipe, but was interrupted by his butler, who said: "Has your honor forgotten that he should not receive the lady in his hunting clothes?" "Old Hickory" hesitated and replied, "John, I guess you're right, but listen, I once knew a man who made a fortune in attending to his own damned business."

Glencoe Woman's Club

The club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. A. F. Roselle. Plans were made to attend the 4th District Convention at Carrizozo. Mrs. A. F. Roselle will be the club's delegate and Mrs. J. E. Warner the alternate.

The project of a High School in the eastern part of the county was enthusiastically discussed and endorsed.

The date for the club luncheon was set for April 20, at the Bonnell Ranch. The club will have guests for the luncheon from the Carrizozo, Tularosa and Alamogordo clubs.

Roll Call was answered with things about New Mexico and brought some unusually good responses. The lesson, "Odd Corners of New Mexico" was led by Mrs. Geo. Coe, one of the early settlers of Lincoln county. It was an extremely interesting study. Pictures were shown of noted places. Specimens of lava, white sand, soap weed soap, etc., were exhibited. The booklet, "New Mexico Today and Tomorrow" gave splendid material for study and we recommend all clubs to obtain copies of the booklet for study. We wish to take this opportunity to thank the Roswell Chamber of Commerce for these booklets. The suggestion for the club to make a folio of New Mexico scenery for the schools was heartily approved.

Those who responded with papers and talks were: Carlbad Cave, Mrs. Myrtle Davis; White Sands, Mrs. B. J. Bonnell; Yucca Palma, Mrs. J. R. Werner; Malpais, Mrs. Roselle; Gran Quivira, Mrs. Tom Jones; Santa Fe, Mrs. Louise Coe; National Forest, Mrs. Vance Thomas.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Vance Thomas, on April 13, with Mrs. Roselle as leader of the program.

"The Old Prospector"

Nina Perry, Hondo School

The old prospector in search for gold, travels many a desert trail; He often braves the heat and cold, and faces the wintery gale.

At night around the campfire, he tells of days of yore, when with a strong desire he sought the pure, rich ore.

Many long years he has wandered, following the long desert trail. Often of late he has wondered, if after all, he would fail.

A Boy's Prayer

Give me clean hands, clean words and clean thoughts; Help me to stand for the hand right against the easy wrong; Save me from the habits that harm. Teach me to work as hard and play as fair in Thy sight. Alone, as if all the world saw. Forgive me when I am unkind, and help me to forgive those who are unkind to me. Keep me ready to help others at some cost to myself. Send me chances to do a little good every day, and so grow more like Christ. — William DeWitt Hyde.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Mexican Revolution Complete Failure, According to President Portes Gil.

THE Mexican revolution is a complete failure, according to a statement issued by President Portes Gil suspending further enlistments. Mutiny, desertions and capture have greatly weakened the rebel forces and, although sporadic fighting will probably continue for some time, the present outlook is that the government will be completely successful in suppressing the opposition.

The optimistic outlook of the government is based largely on the improved morale of the federal army. It is claimed that the military power has been solidified by general education within the army. The soldiers no longer are ignorant and refuse to be misled by the rebel generals.

General Calles, former president and now secretary of war, is in the field with the greatest army ever assembled in Mexico. In a series of rapid forward movements they have invaded the strongholds of the rebel forces and have been victorious wherever they came in contact with the enemy.

Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil in an interview said the relations of the United States and Mexico were excellent. He said the position taken by the United States on the arms embargo, allowing the Mexican government to import arms and preventing the rebels from importing them, was a most eloquent testimony of the good will of the United States government toward the Mexican government.

Secretary Frank B. Kellogg's position is that the United States will not recognize governments emanating from a revolution, he said. This is an assurance to the stable governments of Latin American countries and recognition and respect for the sovereignty of Mexico and its institutions.

Referring to the stand taken by President Herbert Hoover and Secretary Kellogg, President Portes Gil, after a conference with General Estrada, foreign minister, gave the following statement over his signature: "Both declarations constitute a new and solemn testimony of the respect for the Mexican institutions representing law and order and the national sovereignty."

EARLY in the week President Hoover made the important announcement that it would be the policy of the administration to do everything possible to conserve the petroleum resources of the nation. His formal statement reads as follows:

"There will be no leases or disposal of government oil lands, no matter what category they may be in, of government holdings or government control, except those which may be mandatory by congress. In other words, there will be complete conservation of government oil in this administration."

The first step toward making this policy effective came in the form of an order by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur to all government land offices directing them "not to receive further applications for permits to prospect for oil and gas on the public domain, and to reject all applications now pending."

national committee of jurists at Geneva. The formula, in its final form, is the work of Sir Cecil Hurst, British delegate, aided by M. Politis of Greece and Elihu Root of America. Mr. Root is entirely in accord with the Hurst redraft.

The Root-Hurst formula, as the revised scheme is known, represents a tightened-up version of the original Root formula and contains but few basic changes.

One change of highest importance, however, deals with the question of summary procedure in negotiations with the United States in case an advisory opinion is asked for in an urgent dispute. In order to speed up the machinery and eliminate the maximum of red tape, the new formula provides for direct dealings between Geneva and Washington, if an advisory opinion is requested urgently.

The original desire of Washington was to handle all negotiations through The Hague, which would mean if the council decided to ask an advisory opinion Geneva would have to notify The Hague. The Hague would have to relay word to Washington, Washington would reply to The Hague, whereupon The Hague would turn over the response to Geneva. Sir Cecil objected to this roundabout method and he has been backed up by most of the members of the committee.

With the completion of the modernized draft of the protocol the committee will have cleared the ground for the admission of the United States to the World Court. The ultimate decision will depend on ratification by Washington and the 52 signatories of the protocol of December 16, 1920.

MATERIAL progress toward the settlement of the reparations situation has been made by the commission in Paris. The suggestion for the creation of an international bank for receiving and disbursing reparations and to act as an umpire in war debt payment questions, has met with almost unanimous approval.

It was said emphatically had been reached in the banker's committee regarding the question of the capitalization, which would be small compared with the colossal capital of some of the giant banks of America and England. The bank scheme provides against any political interference, the governments having no direction or control of the superbank. Secondly, the co-operation of the central banks of emission must be assured, if the bank is established.

Powerful private financial institutions and banking groups will be asked to collaborate with the superbank, as without their aid the projected organization is helpless. Despite pessimistic reports the assurance was also given that the difference between what Germany is ready to offer and what France, as the chief creditor, is willing to accept does not exceed $115,000,000.

The Germans already have given indications that they are ready to pay $251,000,000 per annum, while the French are holding out for $300,000,000. It is understood that their colleagues are confident of reducing this to $400,000,000.

THE tragic death of Lee Bible at Daytona Beach, Fla., has put an end to speed racing for the present. The A. A. U. A. contest board announced after the tragedy that the third annual International auto speed trials were over for the year. Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, English record holder, declared that he was through with racing, and a similar statement was made by J. M. White, owner of the car driven by Lee Bible.

Bible was traveling at a rate of 202 miles an hour when he lost control. The car plunged into the dunes and was completely wrecked. Bible's body was hurled from the car near the end of its crash. His neck, legs and arms were broken. Bible was making a test preliminary to an attempt to bring back to America the automobile speed record, lost two days before when Major Segrave, English racing driver, established a new record of 281 miles an hour.

THE federal prison spy system inaugurated by assistant attorney general Mabel Wilbrandt is likely to be made the subject of senatorial investigation as a result of the controversy in which Warden John Snook of the Atlanta penitentiary submitted his resignation to Attorney General

Mitchell rather than continue under the espionage of Justice department agents "planted" as prisoners.

Senator W. E. Borah entered a vigorous protest with the attorney general against the acceptance of Snook's resignation, and added that, whether the resignation is accepted or not, demands will be made in the senate early in the coming extra session for a sweeping investigation of the spy system.

WHEN Henry L. Stimson, newly appointed secretary of state, arrives from the Philippines and assumes his duties, it is expected that sweeping changes in the diplomatic service and a slight shakeup of State department officials will follow.

President Hoover now holds the resignations of all of the American diplomatic representatives and the high officers of the department, but he is withholding action upon them until after he can hold a series of conferences with his secretary of state.

Mr. Hoover carried to the White House some very definite ideas about a reorganization of the diplomatic corps, based not alone upon his observations during his good-will tour of Latin America, but also upon a thoroughgoing study of the whole foreign service situation. As a result changes affecting the American diplomatic representatives around the globe are expected.

A new ambassador is to be sent to the most important of all the posts, that at the court of St. James. Atkinson B. Houghton of New York soon is to retire as ambassador to Great Britain and, while his successor has not yet been selected, it is known that President Hoover is hopeful that he can obtain the services of former Vice President Charles G. Dawes of Chicago.

AN EXECUTIVE order issued Friday by President Hoover decrees publicity of decisions in all tax refund cases, marking a departure from the policy of secrecy heretofore maintained.

While a step in this direction was required under a compromise provision in the first deficiency appropriation bill enacted by congress in the closing days of the recent session, the order went somewhat further than necessary under the congressional mandate.

The provision adopted by congress required publicity only in cases of refunds of $20,000 or more. The President's order provides for publicity in all cases of refunds.

The action of the President was based on a recommendation by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who heretofore has opposed all moves made in congress in the direction of tax refund publicity.

Secretary Mellon in a statement made it clear that there is no intention to embarrass taxpayers by disclosing to the decisions information relative to their business affairs as contained in their tax returns which, under the law, are not open to public inspection.

UNCLE SAM'S venture in the shipping business during and after the war will show a loss of $1,000,000,000, according to figures just made available. Only a fraction of the billions expended for government construction and operation of ships will ever find its way back into the United States treasury. Up to date the government has salvaged less than half a billion of the three and a half billions expended since 1917.

THE creation of an eleventh department of the government, headed by a cabinet officer, is contemplated by President Hoover. This new branch of the government is to be formed by combining the public health service, the bureau of education and the various welfare agencies. The National Education association has been advocating for two decades or more the creation of a department of education. A bill favored by that association was introduced in the last congress. Its declared purpose is "to aid and encourage the public schools and promote the public educational facilities of the nation, so that all the people of the several states and territories, without regard to race, creed or color, shall have larger educational opportunities, and thereby shall be able to acquire the knowledge and provide for the general welfare."

A proposal to create the position of state labor commissioner, which was one of the most bitterly contested measures before the New Mexico state Legislature, was defeated at a legislative session marked by much acrimonious debate.

Organization and muster of a 158th regimental headquarters company before July 1, this year, has been authorized by the chief of the militia bureau, Adjutant General L. M. Cowley, of the Arizona National Guard, announced in Phoenix.

Thomas A. Coffey, Jr., a Nebraska cattleman who beat the War Finance Corporation out of some $20,000 on a contract to fatten starving cattle, pleaded guilty in Federal court in Santa Fe before Judge Colin Noble. He was charged with using the mails to defraud and will be sentenced later.

J. C. Roberts of Miami was granted $1,940.70 by the state industrial commission at Phoenix in final settlement for the complete loss of the sight of his left eye, cut by a piece of flying steel while he was welding a sledge hammer in the boiler factory of the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, Miami, Oct. 10, 1925.

New Mexico took a step forward to make it a great deal more uncomfortable for criminals to enjoy the sunshine state, when Gov. R. C. Dillon affixed his signature to the Baumo's habitual criminal law, and then signed the bill to substitute electrocution for hanging in the states. The habitual criminal law is patterned after the original New York law and makes the life sentence mandatory for the fourth conviction of a felony.

Exports of merchandise from New Mexico were valued at $170,059 during the second quarter of 1925, compared with $277,077 during the corresponding period of 1924, according to figures made public by the Department of Commerce. Coal, valued at $69,216, ranked first in order of value among the commodities sent from the state to foreign markets during the three-month period. Exports of metals and manufactures of metal were valued at $21,591, followed in order by wood and paper, $18,261; machinery, vehicles and parts, $13,670; animals and animal products (feebly), $8,481; and foodstuffs and vegetable products, $5,072.

The recently issued industrial employment survey report for Arizona released from the office of Quince Hecord, district director of the U. S. Employment Service of the U. S. Department of Labor at Denver states that the volume of business and employment is reported greater than at any period in Arizona's history. Expansion noted in all lines of industry is particularly evidenced in agriculture, horticulture, dairying, building, general construction and metal mining. Copper mining shows an outstanding expansion. The report states that the volume of employment in New Mexico, particularly in northern half of state, was less during February than for some months past—a condition usual at this period of the year. A readjustment of industrial activities and employment from a winter to a spring basis, indicated during March, will result in absorption of a majority of both resident and migratory workers unemployed during winter months; many of those unemployed will soon migrate to border states north, for employment in agricultural lines during the spring, summer and winter seasons. Plowing and other miscellaneous spring agricultural activities will resume during March, with resultant employment of many general farm workers.

The fifteenth annual convention of the New Mexico Cattle and Horse Growers' Association was held in the court room at Roswell on March 12 and 13. A $25,000,000 building program for the next year has been announced in the Salt River Valley in Arizona during the first two months of 1926, according to a report made in Phoenix by R. W. Kramer, president of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce. Agricultural and stock production will amount to approximately $40,000,000, the report said.

On the Funny Side

Each succeeding year many of the guests returned to a popular resort hotel. One of them was interrogating a child with whom she had made friends the previous year: "Have you the same nurse this year?" "Oh, yes, same nurse," the child replied, casually. "And who else is with you? Is grandma here?" "Oh, yes, same grandma," said she still more casually.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grownups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Misunderstanding of Jewish Ideals Largely Responsible for Prejudice

By RABBI STEPHEN S. WISE.

THE world's prejudice toward the Jew is due to a misunderstanding of his aims, ideals and racial inter-relation. What is the matter with us? What is the matter with those who persecute us, who, in a thousand ways, have afflicted and troubled us? Almost anything may be explained but not everything may be vindicated or justified. I could sum up the whole crux of the opposition to Semitism in one word. That word is "alienism," not as it is generally understood in the sense of newcomers who are alien immigrants, but in the sense that the word really means and in the sense that it is applied to Jews. We are different and therefore misunderstood.

The Jews are the great creditor nation of the world. Dislike for its creditors, too, explains the attitude of the world toward us, Rumania and other countries as well. Whether we are really different seems to be less the method of reasoning than the fact that we are believed to be different.

The Christian world doesn't know the truth about us, and, as a result, we have for centuries been the most misunderstood race on the face of the earth. Except for the few centuries when we had a king, a country and a national life of our own, we have been forced to go everywhere throughout the world in order to exist.

Some of us are rich and for many it would be a better thing if they were not. We have seen the effects of accumulation in the record of the past and if there be another century of accumulation by our people, then we befit the Jews.

I do not think that there are many deliberate, conscious anti-Semites but there are many who do not understand us. We are a phenomenon and the world does not want to deal with a phenomenon.

Responsibility of Human Service Constantly Kept Before Kiwanis Members

By O. S. CUMMINGS, President Kiwanis International.

No more potent factor in civic leadership and service exists than the Kiwanis clubs existing in 1,760 communities in the United States and Canada. There is a definite responsibility involved in every requirement of membership. The prospective Kiwanian must be interested in his fellowmen, especially those less fortunate than himself. He must be willing to give liberally of himself and of his substance to further the program of service to humanity in which Kiwanis is engaged. He must measure up to that high standard of personal integrity and conduct expressed in the true meaning of the word gentleman.

The basic reason for Kiwanis success is the emphasis which the organization places on the individual, on the human and spiritual rather than the material values of life. In the broad field of service to society Kiwanis has rendered conspicuous and enduring service to citizenship, under-privileged children, the effort to create a better understanding between the farmer and the city man, to raise business and professional standards, and the service of vocational guidance and placement for young men and women.

Newspaper the Greatest Educator That the World Has Ever Known

By J. ELMER MORGAN, Editor Journal N. E. A.

The educational value of the newspaper is beyond calculation. It is built into the daily lives of millions of people. It supplies the raw materials of thought and action with clock-like regularity and with a speed of manufacture that is one of the marvels of modern times. It makes the whole world one and helps to raise the standard of living by encouraging people to dress well, to live in better homes, to drive finer automobiles, to eat a more wholesome variety of food, to let their interests go out in a wider range of affairs.

Newspapers have been made possible by universal education, and as the schools improve the press will likewise grow better. Newspapers have made a significant gain during the past year by refusing to play up scandals as extensively as formerly. Press associations and newspaper syndicates are giving more attention to education, health, science, politics and geography. What eyes are to the individual, the newspaper is to society. They also teach who follow the reporter's heat, who write against time in editorial offices, who know not sleep, nor distance, nor fear, nor fatigue in their heroic search for news.

Christian Spirit of Sharing, Solution of Problems That Confront World

By REV. PHILIP COOK, Episcopal Bishop of Delaware.

Christ is not a Karl Marx sitting in judgment upon an economic system, but the Son of God calling to men to live in the spirit of brotherhood. There is enough for all, if mankind knows how to share—food for all, money for all, blessings for all, faith for all, hope for all, love for all, when we know what spiritual brotherhood means and put it into practice. This is not Communism, nor Socialism, nor any of these things.

I am sorry for the man who has nothing to share with his neighbor but money. We must learn to share our enthusiasms, our faith, our sympathy in honest service. That is the heart of Christianity.

Christ's achievement in feeding the multitude was not a miracle over matter so much as it was a miracle over men, inasmuch as he induced those in the throng who were hoarding their food to share it with their neighbors. And that is Christian giving—not out of our superfluity, but of all we possess. That was what Christ was doing from the start to the finish of His ministry.

Curricula of Many Educational Institutions Merely Wasted Expenditure

By DOCTOR TIGERT, President University of Florida.

Education, like legislation, may become too highly detailed for general use and efficient operation. Curtailment of the curricula of educational institutions is one of the ways to eliminate wasted expenditure. The need is for earlier entrance and graduation of students and the operation of educational machinery on a business basis. American students are graduated two years later in life than those of Europe.

Democratization of junior education is another feature. We have as many as sixty or seventy courses in our high schools, and our systems now is articulated with industrial order.

COLD WEATHER IN COLORADO AFFECTS EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS

Denver.—The industrial employment survey report for Colorado just issued from the office of Quince Record, district director of the U. S. Employment Service of the U. S. Department of Labor here states that severe winter weather, which prevailed throughout the state during practically the entire month of February (an unusual condition at this period of the year) interfered considerably with outdoor activities and employment. Precipitation (chiefly snow) during the month was most favorable to both irrigated and non-irrigated agricultural districts. The existing surplus of labor (chiefly unskilled) will likely be reduced considerably as strong demands are indicated soon for workers in connection with agricultural, building, general construction, public improvement work and metal mining activities. Very little employment was afforded farm workers during February, other than in connection with extensive cattle and sheep feeding. Agricultural planted acreage will show an increase this season over 1929 acreage. Sugar-beet acreage in the northern Colorado, Arkansas valley, San Luis valley, and in the Grand Junction-Delta districts will likely be considerably in excess of the 1929 acreage. Several thousand additional hand workers for sugar-beet field work will be required this season over 1929 requirements; especially will this demand be noted in the northern Colorado sugar-beet districts. Sugar-beet field labor will not be needed to any appreciable extent, until on or about May 1.

Manufacturing plants, not affected by adverse weather maintained quite steady activity during February. Plants manufacturing rubber goods, steel products, automobile accessories, meat products, and mining machinery, are operating steadily. Construction equipment plants show a temporary seasonal reduction in production and forces. Manufacturing labor supply and demand is fairly balanced, except for a slight shortage of machinists and machine operators, in the mining machinery plants at Denver.

"I regard the development of television as one of the greatest steps in the history of science," Griffith said as he viewed the apparatus at the General Electric plant here.

tells a new story about a Sunday School Superintendent at White Oaks some years ago, was trying to tell a Bible story to a bunch of young boys, the oldest of whom was 10. He asked one of the boys a question, but met with no answer. Finally, as no one seemed to know, he said, so he did, "You boys ought to be ashamed of yourselves; here's little Johnny Smith, he can tell us the correct answer." "Come on, Johnny, like a nice boy, and tell these boys what happened the next day!" Johnny looked perplexed and stammered out what he thought was a correct answer--"The next day it snowed!"

agent for the Great Western Sugar Company of Denver, was a Carrizozo visitor last week, and paid this office a pleasant call. While here, he accepted the resignation of Porfirio Chavez, Sr., and appointed Rinaldo Duran to fill the place of sub-agent for this territory. Mr. Duran assumed control of the company's interests the first of the present week.

Capitan School Notes

The local girls' basketball team won the Invitational Tournament at Coronas on March 16, by defeating Estancia 28-5 and Corona 35-13 the following night. Our girls' fast team work and accuracy kept them in the lead by a large score during the entire game. This probably completes the most successful basketball season in Capitan. The girls have played 13 games and have won every one. We are indeed proud of our girls, not only for winning, but for their sportsmanship, faithful training and enthusiasm during the season.

The following girls were awarded sweaters: Bessie Ferguson, Amelia Fritz, Edna Grafton, Jessie Hardcastle, Edith Parker, Frances Gardenhire, Georgia Stuart.

The following boys were awarded sweaters: R. V. Traylor, Julian Clements, Ray Berns, Gene Dow, Chas. Ferris, Woodrow Clements, Ernest Patterson, Ralph Warner.

The following boys deserve honorable mention: Percy Parker, Louie Lumpkins, Bill Ferguson, Elmo Traylor, Jimmy Cavanaugh, Julian Herrera, Chester Kvarrett, Dwight Allison, Ray Pruvine.

On Friday, March 29, the High School is presenting a Negro Minstrel. Come and hear the old time negro songs, clever jokes and scenes of the sunny south. Admission, 15 and 25 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Deason of Clouderoft were Capitan visitors over the week-end.

Mrs. Andrews, Domestic Science instructor, attended the meeting for Home Economics teachers of this district at Alamogordo last week.

S. P. operator, formerly of this place, but now in El Paso, tells about a darkey in Alabama, who was under suspicion for stealing chickens, and the Ku Klux Klan sent him a notice to leave town, and gave him one hour to make his get-away. The next morning, the Klan received a letter from the nigger, saying: "Gentlemen-- Enclosed please find 55 minutes--balance of the time you gave me to leave town--I only used 5 minutes of the hour to write this letter and haul myself outa town-- thank you."
