

FORT STANTON NEWS

The Trowel Club was visited last Friday night by the members of the committee appointed by the Grand Lodge A. F. & A. M., under whom the activities of the Trowel Club are carried.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Howson entertained Tuesday night with a dinner in honor of Dr. N. Y. Hooper, who left Wednesday afternoon for his new station at Ellis Island, New York City.

Notwithstanding the little practice our boys had this season they won an excellently played game at Roswell with the N. M. M. I. by a score of 3 to 2.

Earle Farr returned from a week's vacation in El Paso.

Dr. D. B. Newell arrived Sunday from New York City and reported immediately for duty as our new dental officer.

R. S. Fagan, Chief Clerk, is spending a week's vacation in El Paso.

The Schell Bros.' Circus, which appeared in Lincoln Tuesday was well attended by patients and personnel from the Fort. All seemed to enjoy the novelty, and with the large crowds on the Lincoln street we could form a conception of what this town was during the time of the Lincoln County War, only this, we presume, was a very much orderly gathering.

Patients admitted this week were: Frank Gonzales, Savannah, Ga.; Frank Drapman, Thomas, Ryan, Detroit; John Ford, New Orleans. Those discharged were: Cyril Daunt, Wilson Allemand, Knut Sather, Ingolf Pedersen, Ed Kullen, John Brady, Henry Feldman, Walter Askerboth, John Hurth.

Carrizozo Woman's Club gave the plays, "The Wedding" and "Not a Man in the House" for the benefit of the patients, which was much appreciated.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Gunn entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club last Sunday at the Bonnell ranch near Glencoe, in honor of Mrs. Albert Ziegler, who left yesterday morning for Seattle, Washington, to pay a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Coplin.

Funeral of Jerry Kelley

The funeral of Jerry Kelley, brother of our Town Trustee, T. E. Kelley, who died at his home in Riverside, Calif., Tuesday, April 9, was held at Riverside last Friday, the same being conducted by the local Masonic lodge of that place, following a message from S. F. Miller, secretary of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, requesting that the body be buried with Masonic honors, which request was carried out to the letter and attended by a large body of the fraternity and friends of the Kelley families in general.

Jerry Kelley was a member of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41 and also a member of Comet Chapter No. 29, Order Eastern Star, in which orders he was an untiring and zealous worker. He was possessed of a sunny disposition, friendly nature and his friends in the different places where he resided, were measured in accordance with his acquaintances.

Harry Comrey's Home Burned Last Friday

Last Friday, while Mr. and Mrs. Harry Comrey were at Capitan attending the funeral of Mrs. Thurza Buxton, mother of Mrs. Comrey, fire destroyed their residence about 6 miles north of Ancho. The fire was discovered by neighbors and S. P. agent J. M. Frame was notified at Ancho, who in turn wired Mr. Comrey at Capitan.

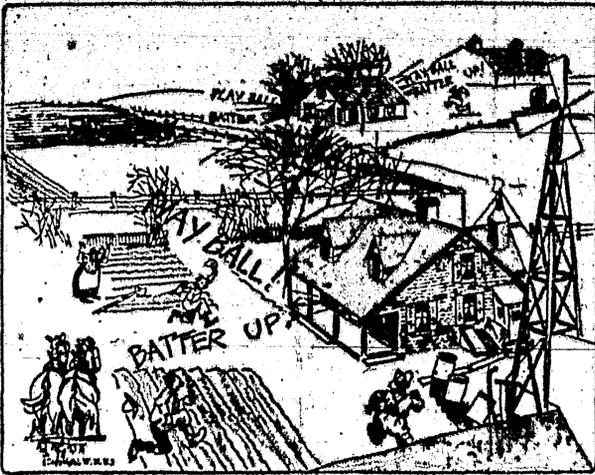

Arriving home Saturday, they found nothing but a heap of ashes, the fire having destroyed all their belongings, leaving them nothing but the clothes on their backs. The residence was a 9-room structure and was built by the late James Cooper nearly 20 years ago.

The cause of the fire is not known, but there is some strong evidence, it is said, of incendiary origin. As to whether, or not, the place was insured, is not known.

"The Arizona-Nite Hawks"

will give another dance tomorrow night, April 20, at Community Hall. All are invited.

Spring Work Gets Its First Setback

Let's Have a Baseball Team

Some of our he-man boys went out last Sunday to the ball grounds and had quite a limbering up. These boys are very enthusiastic in playing baseball this summer and we, the town in general, should see to it that they get a lot of encouragement and support.

Miss Alene Thompson's Pupils Win Places in Contest at Carlsbad

On Saturday, April 13, Miss Alene Thompson, teacher of piano and voice, accompanied by two of her pupils, Alfred Richardson, vocal and Lois Stadtman, piano, journeyed to Carlsbad to enter the district contest.

In the contest, were pupils from Roswell, Carlsbad, Hagerman and Carrizozo. The outcome of the contest was that Alfred Richardson won first prize in the boys' vocal contest and Lois Stadtman won the second prize in the girls' piano contest.

The Savage Was Captured Last Saturday night, the Capitan Town Players presented the play, "Aaron Boggs, Freshman," which was advertised in the Outlook, to a large and appreciative audience. The promoters realized about $124.00 by the undertaking, the patrons enjoyed the play and everybody went home in a happy frame of mind, all of which goes to show what pep, effort and good, live advertising, backed by a good cast and production can accomplish.

OPERATING OVERTIME

With its mammoth plants operating overtime and many departments working at night, some on triple shifts and production of several models more than doubled, the Frigidaire Corporation at Dayton, Ohio, is making herculean efforts to meet an unprecedented demand for electric refrigerators. All records for compressor shipments for March, were broken.

Orders received during the first week in April alone, were sufficient to tax the factory capacity for several weeks. The Frigidaire payroll is the largest in its history and the corporation is experiencing a period of the greatest popularity its products have ever enjoyed, according to E. G. Biechler, president and general manager.

Johnson-Fritz

Last Friday evening at Lincoln, with Rev. Father Reyes of the Catholic Church performing the ceremony, Peter Johnson, Jr. and Miss Mary Fritz, both of Carrizozo, were united in marriage.

The bride is one of our most estimable young ladies. She was born and reared in Lincoln county. After finishing her course in school, she taught school at different places over the county until the year 1924, when she was elected to the office of County School Superintendent and after serving her first term of 2 years, she was re-elected and served another term, which ended with 1928. At the close of her last term, she accepted a position as teacher in the Carrizozo schools, which she holds at the present time.

The groom is a son native of this place, being born a short distance from Carrizozo. When the world war came on, Pete enlisted, served his Uncle Sam overseas, reflected credit on himself and honored his country. He was a war prisoner in Germany, was released on Friday, the 13th, therefore, it is no strange that he married his estimable companion on Friday, for Pete has always claimed Friday to be his lucky day. Pete served as Chief Deputy to Sheriff Kelsey and when Sheriff J. E. Brady took charge, he re-appointed him to the same office. In closing, the Outlook expresses the wish that the skies of the newlyweds will be cloudless, in which we are joined by the many friends of the young couple over the county.

Attention, Masons

There will be a Stated Communication of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., on Saturday night, April 20, for the purpose of business. All Master Masons are cordially invited. C. F. Grey, W. M., S. F. Miller, Secretary.

Mrs. Albert Ziegler

entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club at her home last Friday evening with a dinner and bridge party.

Dance at Capitan

C. V. Koogler of Capitan has bills printed this week, announcing a big dance at the Capitan Gymnasium, tomorrow night, April 20. The music will be furnished by the "Mountain Boomers." "H O T!" was the last word on the bills.

LINCOLN FOREST NEWS

Supervisor O. Fred Arthur left Tuesday for the Ruidoso country where he will spend several days on official matters with Ranger Vance A. Thomas.

The Rangers have all made their plans for American Forest Week which is to be observed from April 21 to 27. This office and the district office at Albuquerque has supplied them with various literature and appropriate supplies to help them in carrying on their activities during the week. From reports received, Ranger A. W. Vogelsang will address both the Mayhill and Cox Canyon Schools; Ranger W. F. Bond will make talks at Lincoln, Bluewater, Arabela and Baca schools; Ranger R. V. Galt will address the Queen school and arrange for talks at the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Luncheons; Ranger Boone will talk at the Pinon, Avis, Bluewater Ellhorn and Weed schools; Ranger Woods will plant trees and make a talk at the High Rolls school and also take the school on a picnic and give a prize to the pupil who can name the most trees. He will also visit the Cloudercroft school. Ranger Beall will co-operate with the teachers in arranging programs at the following schools: Capitan, Angus, Mon Jeau Park, White Oaks, Nogal and Carrizozo. He will also arrange window displays in Capitan, Carrizozo, White Oaks and Nogal. Ranger Messer has arranged with the teachers at the Corona and Cedarvale schools to hold a co-operative picnic in Red Cloud Canyon. He will also assist with programs at schools. Ranger Thomas will arrange for programs at Alto, Upper Ruidoso, Lower Ruidoso, Sanchez, Glencoe and San Patricio schools.

District Engineer C. A. Long of Albuquerque will arrive on the Forest about the 20th to do some survey work on the Guadalupe district.

Road Engineer T. F. Myers is making headway in the establishment of his camp at the Warner Mine and no doubt actual road construction will commence early next week.

A forest fire means money out of your pocket. Think it over.

Mrs. Geo. Titworth

entertained the Carrizozo Woman's Club at her home in Capitan last Saturday afternoon. The program was "Garden Day," and "Vegetable Day," in which all ladies present, took part. After the program, the hostess served delicious refreshments. Mrs. Titworth was assisted by Mesdames Tappan and Berry of Fort Stanton. Program committee, Mesdames Paul Mayer and Ethel Howard. Vocal solo, Mrs. Howard; Reading, Mrs. Royland; Piano solo, Mrs. Andrews.

Uncle Billy Booth

suffered painful injuries Wednesday when he fell off his wagon and sustained a broken rib and other injuries, according to reports received at the time of going to press.

Schell Brothers Circus

gave two performances here yesterday to good crowds. Many attended from out-of-town.

About the Pot Roast of Beef

Pot Roast of Beef With Vegetables.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A cross arm of beef was used for the pot roast in the illustration. Other cuts of beef suitable for cooking in this way are chuck ribs, clod, round, and rump. The secret of a well-flavored pot roast lies in first browning the meat well and then cooking it very slowly for a long time in a tightly covered vessel with just a little added water. Some of the juices of the meat will cook out so that when the meat is done there will be considerably more liquid in the pan than you put in. All of this liquid is utilized in making the gravy, so none of the goodness of the meat is lost. There is all the difference in the world between a roast made in this way and a piece of boiled meat, which has lost much of its flavor in the surrounding water.

In describing the cooking of several of the less tender cuts of beef, the bureau of home economics gives these suggestions for making an attractive and delicious pot roast:

Select a piece from four to six pounds in weight. Wipe with a damp cloth. Rub the meat with salt, pepper, and flour. Brown the meat on all sides in a heavy kettle, using about three tablespoons of beef fat. Slip a low rack under the meat, add one-half cupful of water, cover tightly, and simmer until tender. The time required for cooking cannot be definitely stated, but it will probably be about three hours. Turn the roast occasionally. When the meat is done

BUTTERED ONIONS ON TOAST

Variety in vegetables seems to be more universally desired than in the case with any other group of foods. We can eat an orange every morning, and bread with every meal, potatoes almost every day, and the reappearing meat roast as long as it lasts. If only the vegetables are varied and combined in different ways. One of the joys of the spring months is that they bring to most of us a few more changes in the vegetable part of our menu. Even our winter friend, the onion, arrives in such a different dress that we welcome it as practically another vegetable in the springtime, from the large round onion we know in the winter. Here's a suggestion from the bureau of home economics for serving spring onions in a dainty and appetizing way:

Allow six or seven finger-sized onions for each serving. After trimming the green tops from the onions, cook them until tender in lightly salted boiling water, in an uncovered vessel. This will take only about 20 minutes for fresh, young onions. When they have cooked tender, drain, add more salt if needed, and season with melted butter. In the meantime toast slices of bread. Arrange the onions as you would asparagus on the toast, and serve.

SCHEDULE FOR THE HOUSE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Scheduling all the time-taking activities of the household makes the work run smoothly and shows the home maker how she can reduce the amount of work to be done, says the bureau of home economics, United States Department of Agriculture. A time schedule is easy to prepare. The bureau says to begin by making a list of all activities that go on in a successfully run home. Some occur every day or several times a day. Others are once-a-week or once-a-month tasks. Then estimate the time needed for doing each one. Don't forget to include some periods of rest and leisure, time for irregular work, and some minutes every evening and afternoon for the ever-occurring but never-expected interruptions of house-keeping.

Next distribute the work and other periods by days of the week, arranging them in the order they occur, and with regard to the best activities that must be considered—meals, children's naps or school hours, the time the man of the house gets home from work, rising time, bedtime, the best hours of the day in which to do the long, heavy once-a-week jobs. It may be necessary to rearrange the day's work somewhat to fit everything in—go get up a little earlier or shift the dinner hour a bit, but it can be done.

Some of the customary tasks can be done less frequently without their being to the family well-being. Some can be done more efficiently; some need not be done as painstakingly as once seemed necessary; some can be remove from the kettle, skim off the excess fat from the liquid, and measure the remainder. For each cupful of gravy desired, measure two tablespoons of fat and return to the kettle, add one and a half to two tablespoons of flour and stir until well blended and slightly browned. Then add one cupful of the meat stock or of cold water and stir until smooth. Season the gravy with salt, pepper, and chopped parsley. Serve the pot roast on a hot platter with buttered carrots and stuffed onions. If desired, any of the following vegetables may be cooked in the pot with the roast. Carrots, celery, onions, potatoes, tomatoes and turnips. Add during the last hour of cooking the meat.

Evening Story for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"The day has come for the children to go to school," said Mrs. Porcupine. Old Professor Porcupine is going to have a school this spring in the Moss Stump in the deep woods, and he asked me if I would send the children. "But have you heard how much he will charge?" She knew he was very wise and she wondered if he would ask an enormous price. "He will charge," said Mr. Porcupine, "a basket of berries a day—or

"Shall We Go for Him?"

If we cannot find berries, some other good delicacies. "And if anything happens to his home, we're to find him another or take him in until one is found. "You see he does not want to bother about housekeeping or hunting food. "He likes to teach and be wise. He doesn't like to bother with other matters, that's the whole truth. "Go we shall keep house for him—and send goodies for the children and he will give them lessons. "That seems a splendid plan," said Mrs. Porcupine. When the Porcupine children heard about the new school they were delighted for they knew old Professor Porcupine, and he had told them many interesting stories. They thought school would be great fun and he had told them, too, that there would be time for stories after school, and that he would take walks with them and show them the life that goes on in the deep woods. Shortly after Mr. Porcupine had talked to his wife, the children started in with their school. Every day they took Professor Porcupine his meals for the day and little extras for his callers. The children loved their school, and they learned so much and had such fine walks and talks with the old Professor. One day, however, they were off on a walk—the whole school—and the Professor—when they heard a loud barking. "That is a dog," said Professor Porcupine quietly. "A dog," shivered the little Porcupines, as they had heard a dog spoken of as a terrible creature. "We will be quite safe," said Professor Porcupine. "Shall we go for him?" asked one of the children. "No, my dear," said Professor Porcupine, "we shall not go for him. Let it always be truthfully said of the Porcupine family that our quills are only used when we're in danger—not to hurt other animals. "If we must use our quills to defend ourselves, very well, but if we don't need to use them, all the better. The dog was now seen running after them. He was growling and snarling. "Towser, Towser," called a man's voice, but Towser paid no attention. On he ran for all he was worth. "I'll give you a good shaking," growled the dog as he took hold of one of the Porcupine children. "Now with your quills," called out Professor Porcupine. Back went the dog howling with pain to his master. "There Towser," said his master kindly, "next time you must obey me." And as he drew out the quills from Towser's shaggy fur, Towser's eyes told his master he would never disobey again. And when the Porcupine children returned home they told their mothers and daddies the two important lessons they had learned that day—one that quills were to be used when they were in danger, but that they must never use them unless necessary—and of course they knew—as ignorant people do not know—that their quills may come out easily but that porcupines cannot "throw" their quills. ## Hats That Enhance the Costume

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

To be chic, one's hat must match something else about one's costume—either the scarf or pocket-book, belt or blouse. The very latest is for hat and shoes to be made of the same print. This Vogue for millinery sets in furnishing the smart world with a subject of thrilling interest. While most of them do, yet not all millinery sets feature gay print fabrics in their fashioning. There's the delightful little hat-and-pocket-book ensemble shown at the top of this group. This stunning outfit is entirely of straw interwoven in a clever plaid design.

Very ingenious women who know how to embroider are doing a most clever thing. They are buying an exotic straw hat, a linen-like smooth straw parasol and a pair of new straw or linen shoes which are all easily available if one will look about a bit. Noble Rogers embroider these with night-colored raffia, using the same decorative motif throughout, thus assembling the various articles into an clever sports set as fancy may picture. Frequently the matchmaking is accomplished with flowers. Milliners are designing adorable springtime sets, applying tiny flat flower petals on both hat and scarf. Ambitious modistes also are contriving cunning ribbon or maline neck ruches with little bouquets inset here and there, the flowers duplicating those which trim the hat. Of the three sports millinery sets in the picture which use print fabric in their making, the one to the left matches a plaid silk kerchief with an inset forming the crown of its accompanying hat. Polka dot provides the print theme for the brimmed hat to the right and its graceful matching scarf. Especial interest is attached to this hat because of its widened brim. Paris says brims are coming in again. The last hat-and-scarf combination features black and white with a beige tone added. Considerable emphasis is being placed on black-and-white by stylists not only in matter of millinery but for the costume entire. (© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Spiced cherries as relish. Spiced cherries, preserved with vinegar, make a good relish. Here are directions for making them given by the bureau of home economics. Wash and pit large sour red cherries. To the desired amount of cherries add three-fourths of their weight or measure of sugar. Sprinkle the sugar over the fruit in layers and let them stand overnight. In the morning stir until the sugar is dissolved and then press the juice well from the cherries. Tie a small quantity of whole spices in a loose cheesecloth bag, drop this into the juice, and boil it down until it is three-fourths of the original quantity. When the syrup is hot pour it over the drained cherries, and add 2 tablespoonfuls vinegar to each pint. Seal and let stand about two weeks to become well blended before using.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating. This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1874, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physical and purgative for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant. This prescription has proved its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from hemorrhoids, biliousness, indigestion, flatulence, loss of appetite, constipation, nervousness, and other ailments. It is a natural, safe, and effective remedy. Dr. J. C. Caldwell, El Paso, Tex.

A BAD JOB

A farmer and his wife went to London on a visit, and while doing the sights they went to an art gallery. Among some reproductions of classic art they came to one more striking than the rest and inquired what it was.

"That," said the attendant, "is a reproduction of the famous Venus de Milo, the perfect woman."

The farmer gazed for some time, and then glancing at his wife remarked:

"By gum, Sophie, they made a mess o' thee."—Ideas.

It Carries a Threat

Jack—So your father demurred at first because he didn't want to lose you.

Ethel—Yes, but I won his consent. I told him that he need not lose me; we could live with him, so he would not only have me but a son-in-law to boot.

Jack—H'm! I don't like the expression "to boot."

What the Wife Got

Henry Peck—I don't see what I get out of this marriage. You get every cent of my salary.

Mrs. Peck—Just listen to you! Don't I pay your income tax?

Lesson for April 21

COMFORT FOR GOD'S PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 40:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Love for Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Love for Us.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Secret of True Happiness.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of True Comfort.

I. God's Message of Comfort (vv. 1, 2).

1. It was addressed to Isaiah and his successors in office (v. 1).

He, as God's spokesman, was to make known the very heart of God to the people who were in great need of comfort. They were in a strange land, in captivity because of their sin. In spite of their apostasy from God—the breaking of their covenant with Him—His favor was about to return.

2. The mutual relation of God and His people (v. 1).

This is expressed in the phrases "my people" and "your God." The believer belongs to God, and God belongs to him. How blessed it is to be thus related to Him. Observe, this was said concerning a people who had sinned and backslidden.

3. Pardon received (v. 2).

In spite of their gross iniquity, their pardon was declared. The receiving of double at the Lord's hands does not mean that there had been undue infliction of punishment, but that the divine pardon exceeded the guilt. The period of the captivity was at an end. Their blessing was not through their own merit, but was to be realized through the sin offering of Jehovah.

II. The Preparation Required (vv. 3-5).

In order to secure the salvation which was to be theirs through the vicarious offering of Jehovah, it was necessary that certain preparation should be made. Observe:

1. The voice in the wilderness (v. 3).

This voice was that of John the Baptist, and actually was heard at the time of the coming of Jesus Christ (Matt. 3:1-3).

2. Prepare ye the way of the Lord (v. 3).

It was the custom on state occasions for some one to go in advance of the king or ruler and make preparation for his coming. This preparation consisted of the actual depression of hills, the elevation of valleys and the straightening of crooked places, so that the monarch could move forward with ease and facility. In its moral bearing, the meaning is that preparation for the coming of the Lord into the hearts and lives of the people consists of the subjection of pride and selfish ambition, and the straightening of the crooked and perverse things of this life.

3. The glory of the Lord revealed (v. 5).

When there is proper preparation of heart, the Lord will appear, and His glory will be revealed in the life. It primarily refers to the manifestation of the divine glory in the person of the Messiah.

III. The Fruity of Man in Contrast With God's Word (vv. 6-8).

"All flesh is grass and all the goodness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, because the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it. Surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever." Just as the blast of the hot wind scorches the grass and destroys the crops, so everything loved and prized by the natural man will wither and die under the blast of God's judgment, but His Word shall stand forever. The Word of God abides from age to age with perennial freshness. God's promise of ultimate triumph should steady us because no matter through what stress and strain we may be called to pass, when the Lord comes there will be victory.

IV. The Lord God Coming to Zion (vv. 9-11).

1. Behold Your God (v. 9).

When He comes to Zion there will be no need of fear. This blessed truth can be proclaimed aloud to the cities of Judah.

2. The Lord God will come with a strong hand (v. 10).

The hope of the world is in the coming of Jesus Christ in power and great glory to establish His blessed rule over the earth. Righteousness and peace can come only with the Messianic rule.

3. He shall feed His flock like a shepherd (v. 11).

The Good Shepherd will search out and provide for His own.

Always Content

We shall be made truly wise if we be made content; content, too, not only with what we understand, but content with what we do not understand—the habit of mind which theologians call, and rightly, faith in God.—Charles Kingsley.

That We May Read Aright

God sometimes weakens the eyes of his children with tears in order that they may read aright His providences and His commandments.—T. L. Cayser.

Colleges Now Placing More Emphasis on Boy, and Less on Subject

By DR. GEORGE H. CUTTEN, President Colgate University.

NOT for centuries has there been such an upheaval in education as in the last Twenty-five years. We are putting more emphasis now upon the boy and less upon the subject. Boys work harder in college now than they ever did, despite the observations of alumni who feel that college is easier now than when they were students. Occasionally, it is true, a loafer gets into college, but he usually doesn't stay long.

The principal object of the modern college is to make a man's education worth something to him. The educational program today is not only changed, but is better.

We are trying to analyze things and see where we are. For one thing, we are analyzing the student. We have learned that to profit by his college work a student needs intellect, and we have tried to measure the intellect of applicants for admission. "Then we are trying to analyze the curriculum. We have learned that discipline does not necessarily come from study; that a man is not good merely because he had been working at something. We have been applying business methods, you might almost say, to our courses; estimating what their cost is to us, and whether there is sufficient profit in an educational sense to justify them.

The third thing we are trying to analyze is the faculty. This is the hardest of all, because the analysis must be made by the faculty itself. A surprising thing in this connection is that I often find the older men keenest for the change, and most willing to put themselves out almost to any extent to further the cause of better education.

It has often been said that the main interest in college among alumni is inspired by athletics.

Athletics provide a rallying point for loyalty and enthusiasm which nothing else can do, but a college has a right to expect from its alumni, interest in, intelligent criticism of, and loyalty to, its educational program.

Church Facing Crisis in Shift of Population in the Great Cities

By REV. W. W. PICKETT (Congregationalist), Detroit.

The present-day shift of the city population into the suburbs is a direct challenge to the Christian church to go out and capture these areas if the church is not to be faced with a steady diminution of power in the city. We are facing an emergency and a crisis. So long as American society was dominantly rural, Christianity was a dominant influence. But with the movement of population to the large cities, the church failed to maintain its civic and social influence, and the city is pagan, with spots of Christianity.

Now there is a movement equally as important toward the suburbs, which will transform the entire texture of city life. Is this generation of the church going to fail to capture the suburbs as the generation of our fathers failed to capture the city? Millions are moving out to territory where there are no churches. The problem that we must decide is whether these great sections of the metropolitan area shall grow up as Christian or non-Christian. The suburbs must have the help of the established institutions of the city, and unless we take steps to win the suburban areas we will be faced with a steady diminution of the church's power in the city.

Advertising Belittles Piety; Church Not Mutual Society for Benefit of Good

By BISHOP IRVING PEAKE JOHNSON, Colorado.

Don't drag your private experiences into the limelight of your religion, for that is to be as the hypocrites are. Hypocrisy is the besetting sin of religious folk. Personal religion is the one commodity in life about which it may be said it does not pay to advertise.

Religion, like science or art, has its technique which is mastered by those who really desire the end-in-view. The man who seeks righteousness must be willing to undergo the training essential to his vocation.

Christ emphasizes the necessity of almsgiving, prayer and fasting as exercises essential to religion. They constitute the hard work necessary in order to produce the fruits of the spirit which are love, joy and peace.

The church is a spiritual hospital for sinners, not a mutual benefit society for good people.

Man at Age of Forty by No Means Too Old for Real Study Courses

By DR. F. B. KÉPPEL, President Carnegie Corporation.

Education used to be like packing a satchel for a long journey—you had to put into it everything you thought you might need to the very end of the trip. Now, however, we know that if a man needs a knowledge of German or English or psychology at the age of forty he can acquire it at the age of forty.

The trend in education today is to stimulate people to do for themselves what nobody else can do for them. If they do this they will continually find increased opportunities for learning and the greatest opportunity of all is the printed page. That means the public library, for no one can possibly own all the books he needs.

Experiments made possible by the Carnegie corporation have proved that, granting normal health and normal balance, a person's capacity to learn new things reaches its maximum at about the age of twenty-three or twenty-four. After that it slows up, but only about 1 per cent a year. Adult education is one of the educational activities largely encouraged by the Carnegie corporation.

Liberalism of the Modern Woman Designated as "Almost Reckless"

By REV. DR. E. W. SOCKMAN (Methodist), New York.

Men rather than women must be held chiefly responsible for our moral standards; the idea is fallacious that men make our money and women make our morals. It is futile to assume that, with the changing status of womanhood, society will continue to insist on a higher ethical standard for women than for men.

We have reacted from the old unfair attitude which made women bear the heavier responsibility for certain sins. There are signs which make us wonder whether man is not to become the morally conservative factor in the days just ahead. The almost reckless liberalism of some women is tending to turn many a man into an old-fashioned conservative.

Paris Artists in Want
Paris has too many artists, and as a result there is overproduction and misery. Thus declares Louis Forest in commenting on the suicide recently of a well-known French sculptor who had won the Prix de Rome, but could not make a living. Forest pointed out that there are 40,000 painters, as well as many other artists, in Paris. Even the open-air exhibitions of pictures, which are sometimes called "crust of bread" exhibitions, often fail to bring in the crust.

There is nothing more satisfactory after a day of hard work than a line full of snowy-white clothes. For such results see Red Cross Ball Blue.—Adv.

A bold industrial experiment will be made in Norway, when the unemployed in the town of Evensen are to take over great ore mines which have been idle since 1923. The workers are to rent the mines.

Rid of Constipation. Improved Both Health and Looks

"I suffered from stomach and bowel trouble for a number of years. I finally got so bad that I had no life or energy left, and felt that there was no help for me. I was completely worn out all the time, had a distressed, haggard look on my face. My mind was dull, my eyes blurred, and I was unable to take an interest in anything. I commenced using Milk's Emulsion in May. It occurred to me that the best way to let you see the wonderful improvement Milk's Emulsion had made in my health and appearance, would be to send you the picture that I happened to have taken a few weeks before I started using your Milk's Emulsion, and to have another picture taken now, and send both to you. I am still taking your Milk's Emulsion and improving each day. I know I would have been in my grave had it not been for your Emulsion. I love to take it. It is so pleasant and agreeable. I only weighed 108 pounds when I began to use Milk's Emulsion, and now I weigh 133 pounds. It has cleared up my complexion, made my eyes bright and a difference in my looks, as you will see by the two pictures. I don't look like the same woman. To my mind it is Nature's beautifier. I try to get everyone that I meet to take Milk's Emulsion as it is the most wonderful medicine in the world." Yours truly, MISS SARAH KATE KNIGHT, 722 Anderson St., Bristol, Tenn.

Plant Trees—Beautify the Town

It is not too late to plant trees and in so doing, help to beautify the town. Take Alamogordo and Tularosa, as examples. When the party of Masons visited our neighboring town of Tularosa last Thursday, they found the town loaded down with spring blossoms. The sight was so good that in a short time we had before lodge convened, the town was gone over and everywhere trees were in abundance, lilacs loomed on every hand and a general springtime appearance was put to the sight, by the lovely trees.

Alamogordo, again is called the "City of Trees" and it is well named. Trustee S. P. Miller and wife, who visited that place last Sunday, came back loud in their praises of the town on account of the many beautiful trees which adorn the streets.

We are not criticising anyone, because of the fact that these towns have had water in the past, when it was impossible for us to have it, but now, at a very small cost, we have the advantage of enough water to feed the young trees and give them a start. We are not saying that there is no tree planting done here. Quite to the contrary many have planted Chinese Elm over town and more are contemplating the same.

Chinese elms, locust and other trees will flourish here and we urge everybody to get busy, those who have not planted, to do so and help the town to put on a new dress. Look at the courthouse and S. P. Clubhouse, for instance and see what has been done there and what can be accomplished. The young trees planted two years ago, are now giving shade and the lawns will soon be green and pretty, making these places garden spots restful to the eye. But it takes work and effort; let's do it.

Another thing that we need badly is a good baseball team to represent Carrizozo during the summer months. Alamo, Tularosa, Fort Stanton, Mesquite and all the surrounding towns will have teams, so why can't we make a little effort and start one. We have plenty of boys who can play ball and would be willing, with a little support.

Resolutions

We, the teachers of Lincoln County Association in convention at Carrizozo, April 5-6, do hereby resolve: That we express our thanks to the Executive Committee, under the efficient management of Mrs. Alice M. Eulos, Gardner, Haley, Dr. Tremain and Mrs. Rousseau for their helpful and inspiring talks.

We feel greatly indebted to the citizens of Carrizozo for opening their homes to the teachers of the county, and are especially

Revolution in Mexico on the Wane

Judging from the news which drifts out of Mexico, and it should be taken with a grain of salt no matter from what source it drifts, the federal forces are gaining daily over the revolutionists.

The most decisive battle of the revolution was fought at Jimenez Monday and the rebels were decisively defeated.

The reports state they are in full retreat and are being bombed and harassed by the federal forces.

The federal commander reports that the backbone of the revolt has been broken and that it is only a question of time until Mexico will resume its normal peacetime quiet.

Many seem to think that the rebels will drift into broken raiding bands.—State Record.

Scottish Rite News Bureau:

Arkansas City, Kan.—An iron coffin, bearing a Masonic symbol and believed by some to be that of Ferdinand De Soto, the Spanish explorer, is owned by Crescent Lodge No. 183, of this city. The casket was presented to the lodge by David Edwards, a mausoleum builder, because of the Masonic insignia. It was found several years ago by Hiram Winters while plowing on a farm near Ferguson, Ark. The casket weighs about 300 pounds, is 5 feet 8 inches in length, and elaborately engraved. It contained a skeleton, a sword, bits of armor and several coins.

It is believed that the casket was buried in the Mississippi River and that the shifting of the silt river bed carried it to the spot where it was found.

TELEPHONE MESSAGES AT LIGHTNING SPEED

Voice Travels From Stockholm to Los Angeles in About Quarter of Second

It takes more time for a person to speak one syllable than it does for the human voice to travel the complete length of the longest telephone circuit on earth.

Suppose, for the moment, that a resident of Los Angeles was traveling in Europe and desired to telephone home from Stockholm that it was his intention to proceed to Constantinople. He has reached the point in his conversation where he is pronouncing the word Constantinople, but before he can finish saying the syllable Con, the listener in Los Angeles has already heard part of the first syllable, and before he can begin the next word after pronouncing Constantinople the entire name has been heard in Los Angeles, which is approximately 5,400 miles distant by way of the radio transatlantic telephone circuit.

To speak one syllable requires about four-tenths of a second time, whereas the time for the voice to go from Stockholm to Los Angeles, or from Los Angeles to Stockholm, is only about one quarter of a second.

HISTORIC NUMBER

"Columbus 1492" brings telephone subscribers into connection with the Knights of Columbus Club House in New York City. The historic associations suggested by the number are considered valuable by the fraternal organization, and special efforts were made to obtain its use.

New Jersey made approximately 200,000,000 telephone calls last year.

HANDLES ALL CALLS AT WHITE HOUSE

International Messenger Chief Operator Joseph F. Sheehan

Joseph F. Sheehan, Chief Telephone Operator, who handles all outgoing and incoming calls at the White House, is a busy man these days with the change in administration. Mala S. Washington, D. C. is the number of "the chief telephone of the land," but if you think you can get the President simply by calling that number you are very much mistaken.

Should you wish to talk with one of the clerical employees in the White House offices you would be contacted, but if you desire to talk to the President or to one of his secretaries it would be necessary for you to identify yourself. In case your request appeared to be a reasonable one you would be connected with the secretary by the President, or with one of his assistant secretaries, but unless you are one of the chosen few, as, for example, a member of the Cabinet, a member of the House or Senate, or a personal friend, your chance of getting the President himself on the wire are most remote.

Coleman, deceased, and Mrs. J. W. Coleman, deceased. Defendants. In the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the State of New Mexico, within and for the County of Lincoln.

Whereas, on the 23rd day of April, A. D. 1928, a decree was rendered in the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the State of New Mexico, within and for the County of Lincoln, in that certain cause there pending being a suit to foreclose a real estate mortgage covering the real estate hereinafter set forth and described, said suit being entitled Mrs. T. W. Lindsay vs. Mrs. James Anderson, Mrs. Annie Jones, Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. Joe Murphy, Mrs. Guy Gearing, Mrs. Nora Gilman, William Coleman, Paul Coleman, all unknown heirs of J. W. Coleman, deceased and all unknown heirs of Mrs. J. W. Coleman, deceased, and being numbered 3705 on the Civil Dockets of said Court, wherein the Court found and decreed that the above named Plaintiff, Mrs. T. W. Lindsay, in the above styled and numbered cause was entitled to judgment and decree of foreclosure against the heretofore described real estate in the following sum and amount, to-wit: Two Hundred Ninety Dollars and Forty Cents ($290.40), with interest thereon at the rate of 8 percent per annum, from the 23rd day of April, A. D. 1928, which said interest at the time of sale would amount to Twenty-three Dollars and Seventy-one cents ($23.71), together with all the costs of sale and the Special Master's fee, amounting to Fifteen Dollars ($15.00); and

Whereas, by the said decree it is ordered, adjudged and decreed that the above named Plaintiff has a valid and subsisting lien and mortgage upon and against the premises and real estate hereinafter described to the extent of said sum and amounts aforesaid, and whereas, by the decree of said Court, made and entered in the above styled and numbered cause, the above named Defendants, and each of them, were given ninety (90) days from the date of said judgment within which to pay or cause to be paid to said Plaintiff, or Plaintiff's authorized agent, the said sums and amounts aforesaid, in default whereof the undersigned, the Special Master, appointed by the said Court in the above styled and numbered cause, was ordered and directed to sell the real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to raise and realize said sums and amounts, and whereas, the above named Defendants, and each of them, have failed, refused and neglected and have defaulted in the payment of said sums in amount aforesaid.

Notice is hereby given that I, the undersigned, Henry Hoffman, as Special Master aforesaid, in pursuance of said judgment, order and decree of the above Court, in the above styled and numbered cause, will offer for sale and sell at public sale and vendue, at the front door of the Courthouse at Carrizozo, Lincoln County, New Mexico, on the 1st day of May, A. Twenty rooms will be added this spring to the Seaberg Hotel at Raton.

The Miami Copper Company has announced a rich strike of high grade copper ore at its Santa Nino mine near Nogales and has put on a fleet of eight trucks to transfer the ore to the railroad at Patagonia and installed $12,000 worth of machinery.

R. H. Cavender, 17 years old, was found guilty of manslaughter and his father, Perry Cavender, and uncle, Gus Cavender, were acquitted by a jury in Carlsbad. The three men were charged with first-degree murder for the death of Jim Ballou at Artesia last December. The jury recommended clemency in sentencing of the boy.

New Mexico teachers' examinations will be held July 1, 2 and Aug. 1, 2 and 3, State School Superintendent Atanacio Montoya has announced. The superintendent was given authority by the state board of education to change the dates if he finds it advisable. There will be a special examination in New Mexico history and civics on May 11.

Building is active in many parts of the state, especially Phoenix and Tucson, and large construction projects are under way. After a satisfactory year, agriculture is starting preparations for a new season with good prospects. Livestock prices have maintained high levels. Bank transactions have been greater in volume than any previous years. Mining camps have shown considerable activity with the rise of copper to 24 cents, and the attendant increase in wages. Winter tourist business is the best of record. Collections are fair to good throughout the state.

Showing the distribution of funds of the Highway Department of New Mexico for 1922, the Highway Department auditor submitted his annual report of finances to the highway commission. Two million six hundred sixty-five thousand six hundred six dollars were expended last year on federal aid construction. To this is added $1,341,244 for state construction and $1,044,447 for maintenance of the highways of the state. These items constitute 46.34 per cent, 26.31 per cent and 14.87 per cent, respectively, of the highway dollar, or a total of over 76 per cent.

More than thirty persons from Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico are expected in Raton, N. M. June 5 and 6 to attend the annual convention of the Highway Study Association. Reservations have already been made by 140 persons who will attend the meeting.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK
STYLE VS. SENSE

WINTER in the northern woods can be extremely bitter and usually is very cold. Therefore, put on warm clothing which is absolutely necessary for those whose daily work is done in these magnificent forests. But because the lumberman dresses himself against the rigors of the Arctic blasts is no excuse for the man or woman who in a temperate latitude dons excessive clothing for the mere reason that the calendar indicates the presence of the winter season.

There are many days when fur coats and other heavy garments would serve better on the peg than on one's back. To realize this fact and to put the idea into practice would be a life-saver for some, a disease-breaker for others and would mean continuous high vitality throughout the year for still another large group.

While there is no desire in any way to lessen the popularity of the coat of fur, one should not put all one's eggs in a single basket on this important question. This practice is perhaps one of the main reasons for many colds, cases of pneumonia and deaths.

An auxiliary coat of lighter weight is required for the forty to sixty degree days. If you own one, watch your thermometer and use it when it registers within those limits. If you do not possess such a garment get it at once, even if you have to pay a dollar down and the rest eventually. Believe it or not, it's lack is a real hazard; its ownership and use, a positive health insurance policy.

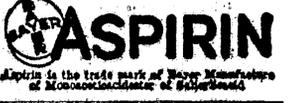

For those whose activities are indoors, winter-weight clothing is superfluous. If the temperature of your home or office was maintained at fifty degrees there might be some reason for heavy-weight suits and dresses. But seventy to seventy-five degrees is summer heat. And that is what you likely are living in. So far as the indoor temperature is concerned light summer clothes would be more logical.

To conclude, it is not a safe thing to sweat in a fur coat; and it is equally unsafe to perspire in home or office when a freezing temperature awaits you outside.

If you are a woodchopper or outdoors person, heavy everything then. Otherwise, dress for comfort and safety. There will still be plenty of days left, even then, on which to be stylish.

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergency, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Mexican Rebels Beaten and Slaughtered at Reforma; Wisconsin Votes Wet.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MEXICO'S revolution, or at least a great portion of it, was drowned in an ocean of blood last week, if federal statements are reliable. The rebel army of General Escobar, commander in chief of the movement, having been driven from Mexico by the troops of Gen. Juan Almazan, concentrated in the city of Jimenez, Chihuahua, and for several days fought desperately to hold the place. They were well entrenched and Almazan gives them credit for extreme bravery. But the assaults of the federal infantry, artillery, cavalry and air forces were too much for them and they withdrew from the city to Reforma, 12 miles away. General Serrato's cavalry, meanwhile, was hurried to the north of Reforma and there destroyed all the bridges and culverts, and when Almazan's air scouts reported that the rebels could retreat no further, he ordered an attack in full force. Escobar and other rebel generals saw they were trapped and fled, leaving their infantry to fight alone. These men took refuge behind their troop trains and the battle there was described by Almazan as the bloodiest in years of Mexican history. Neither side asked or gave quarter and the slaughter was "tremendous." The rebel dead covered the battlefield, and many hundreds of their wounded fell into the hands of the federals.

The entire action, which began at Corralitos on March 31 and ended in the smashing victory at Reforma, was declared by the federal commander to be decisive. In his report to General Calles he proclaimed highly the work of all branches of his army, and also paid a compliment to Escobar's military ability. In Sonora and other regions the rebels, at least accounts, were still carrying on. The aviators in sold over the federal fortifications at Rucan created a lot of excitement by dropping two or three bombs on the American side of the international boundary, one of them injuring an American motion picture man. This and the possibility of similar incidents gave considerable concern to the State Department in Washington. Mexican federal troops held at Fort Bliss, Texas, after their retreat across the border when the rebels captured Juarez, were ordered released by President Hoover at the request of the Mexican government.

States Attorney Tuttle of New York, investigating the story that Morgan brought four bottles of liquor from Panama, was told by the customs agents that the O'Holan admitted that the bottles were in his baggage, but refused to open his trunks, demanding the right of free entry. This was granted him by Deputy Collector H. C. Stuart, who was not told of the presence of the booze. The agents said Morgan threatened to "raho h—i in Washington" if his baggage was not passed without examination. Since the agents did not see the bottles and Mrs. Morgan, who was with her husband cannot testify against him, it may be the only persons to suffer, if any, will be certain custom officials.

STUYVESENT FISH and some of his friends are exercised over the fact that his cruiser yacht was held up to New York harbor by enforcement agents and searched for contraband liquor. Mr. Fish said the boat was fired upon. No liquor was found on the vessel. Federal officials in New York after investigation declared the action of the enforcement men was entirely proper since the boat did not stop at their signals and the shots were fired high in the air.

MYRON T. HERRICK, American ambassador to Paris, died suddenly from heart failure, and all of France was thrown into deep mourning for he was beloved by the entire nation and was considered the best friend of France ever sent there by the United States. Officials of highest rank, and representatives of all countries hastened to the embassy with their condolences, the press was filled with articles lauding the dead American, and the government at once arranged to give him an elaborate national funeral with full military honors—an unprecedented honor. After simple ceremonies in the American embassy, during which orations were delivered by Premier Poincare, General Perahing and Quinones de Leon, Spanish ambassador to Paris, the cortege set out for the American pro-cathedral. The pallbearers were: M. Poincare, Foreign Minister Briand, Senor de Leon, General Perahing, J. Pierpont Morgan and Owen D. Young. The casket was accompanied by two squadrons of republican guards, four platoons of infantry and representatives of all the official circles and American organizations in Paris, and the line of march was lined with infantry under the command of the military governor of Paris. After brief church services the body was taken to Rest by the embassy staff and there turned over to the French government which transferred it to the light cruiser Tourville as a salvo of 19 guns was fired. The cruiser was to bring Mr. Herrick's remains to the United States, being due in New York on April 12. Following a parallel course with it was the Aquilana, bearing Mrs. Farnely Herrick, the late ambassador's daughter-in-law.

is a widower, and he took to Washington his half-sister, Mrs. Edward E. Gann, to be the hostess of his establishment. Before Mr. Stimson assumed office his predecessor, Mr. Kellogg, after study of precedents, ruled that while Mrs. Gann might sit where she pleased at dinners given in the Vice President's home, she must be seated below the wives of ambassadors and ministers at official dinners where she and Mr. Curtis were guests. The Vice President informed the press last week that he had asked Secretary Stimson to overrule Mr. Kellogg's decision. If this request is refused, it is possible Mr. Curtis will decline to attend official dinners or other functions where Mrs. Stimson is not accorded the rank he believes she should have. Of course social circles in the national capital are tremendously interested in the controversy.

FINANCIAL operations during March, according to a treasury statement, resulted in a reduction of the gross public debt by $109,080,352; and the net balance of the general fund on March 31 was more than $350,000,000 greater than a month before, funds thus being available for further retirement of government securities during April. The reduction of the public debt during the fiscal year ending June 30 next is expected to exceed $700,000,000. Treasury officials and congressional leaders are agreed that it is too early to consider tax reductions, preferring to wait until it becomes certain that income tax revenues will maintain the present high level.

EMPLOYEES of the Lora cotton mill at Gastonia, N. C., are on strike and last week they became so demonstrative that the police became alarmed and called on the governor for help. Several units of the state National Guard were ordered to the town and the disorders were quelled. A committee of strikers called on J. A. Baugh, general manager of the mill, and presented a series of demands, including a forty-hour, five-day working week, a minimum wage of $20 weekly, and changes in working conditions. Mr. Baugh rejected the demands. Half a dozen textile mills in South Carolina are closed as a result of strikes.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers have started a nationwide campaign for a six-hour day to combat unemployment. Their opening meetings were held in Faneuil hall, Boston. Timothy Shea, assistant president of the engineers, told them that they must go to congress for a bill of rights to "protect men who are being cast into the junk heap." Contemplated railway consolidation plans, he said, meant that their union alone would have at least 20,000 more men out of jobs. A series of regional meetings throughout the country was planned.

A MANULLAH KHAN, former king of Afghanistan, began last week the drive by which he hopes to regain the throne he relinquished. With 50,000 soldiers he marched on Kabul and there were vague reports of heavy fighting with the troops of Bacha Sacho, the self-made king. Amanullah's forces were said to be armed with Russian rifles and ammunition, which was taken to mean that the Soviet government had interested itself in his behalf. Prince Omar Khan, member of the Afghan royal family, who recently escaped confinement in Allahabad, is reported as likely to take the field against Amanullah, supporting his own claim to the throne.

CHANCELLOR SKIPPEL, who for six years has managed the affairs of the Austrian republic, has resigned, together with his cabinet which was made up of men from the Christian Socialist party. Opposition to Dr. Schupel had been increasing since the great riots of July, 1921. He said he could have continued to resist criticism as a government official, but that he could not hold his office in the face of opposition to him personally as a priest. The church, he said, was his chief concern.

Poland also had a cabinet crisis for the government of Premier Kamionowski resigned because the government and parliament failed to agree. Marshal Pilsudski appeared to dominate the situation.

SENATE and house committees were exceedingly busy formulating farm relief legislation for the extraordinary session of congress. Among these heard, the most important was Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, who said he was giving his personal views but who it was taken for granted, was expressing the ideas of President Hoover. He placed emphasis upon his belief that legislation should confer broad powers upon the farm board without attempting to define its exact procedure. This board, he indicated, must be depended on to provide the real solution of the agricultural problem. In response to questions Mr. Hyde expressed the opinion that a board of seven would be less wisely than one of twelve, that bipartisan representation on the board was acceptable, but that he objected to geographical representation. He said the board should be within the Department of Agriculture instead of an entirely independent agency.

Some members of the committee exhibited an untimely spirit toward the administration's proposals, but Representative Ascroft of Louisiana, Democrat, declared that the Hoover program would have his complete support.

VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS got up in Secretary of State Stimson a rather embarrassing problem. It is likely to be especially embarrassing to Mr. Curtis. As every one knows, he PROHIBITION in its many ramifications insists on holding a place on the front page every day. Today the voting population of Wisconsin went to the polls and by a majority of about 2 to 1 directed the state legislature to repeal the state dry enforcement laws and to remove the penalty on 275 per cent beer. The wets naturally were jubilant but the dry leaders were not dismayed and asserted that the referendum was "futile." They held that the drys carried a majority of the counties, and that the legislators were bound to follow the wishes of their constituents rather than of the state as a whole. Should both houses pass a repeal measure it would place Gov. Walter J. Kohler in a delicate position. He inherited President Hoover's prescription of "concurrent enforcement of prohibition by states." If he should sign or veto the bill he would alienate either wet or dry backing.

CONGRESSMAN M. ALFRED MITCHELLSON of Chicago, a pro-federal dry, who was indicted at Jacksonville, Fla., last October on charges of bringing a truckload of liquor into the country from Cuba, surrendered to the federal authorities in Chicago and gave bond for his appearance for trial in Key West in May. He declined to be interviewed but denied the charges.

In the case of Congressman William M. Morgan of Ohio, also a dry and also involved in liquor charges, a peculiar situation has arisen. United

Suddenly, without having sought it, the explanation of her recent contentment bubbled to the surface of the girl's consciousness, and she turned and gazed at Harris. Night after night she had sat here with old C. Warren and discussed the details of their work and after his passing her evenings had been hours of restlessness. Now Harris, the partner, had crept into the father's place—had in a measure filled the void.

Harris rose and flicked the ash from his cigarette, suppressing the desire to take her in his arms, for he knew that time had not yet come. As he opened the door to leave an eddy of steam curled in at the opening as the warm air of the room battled on the threshold with the thirty-below temperature of the outside world. She heard the hissing crunch of his boots on the frozen crust—and reached for Deane's Christmas letter to reread it for the per-aps the fifth time.

During the night a chinook poured its warm breath over the hills and morning found the snow crumpling before it.

Billie foie with Harris through the lower field as he pointed out the various fence lines and the lay of the ditches and laterals which would carry water to irrigate the meadow, all these to be installed as soon as winter should lose its grip.

As Harris outlined his plans his words were tinged with optimism and he allowed no hint of possible disaster to creep into his speech. But the girl was conscious of that hovering uncertainty, the feeling that the months of peace were but to lug her into a false sense of security and that Slade would pounce on the Three Bar from all angles at once whenever the time was right.

She found some consolation in the fact that Lang's men no longer rode through her range at will, but skirted it in their trips to and from the Breaks. She attributed this solely to Harris' precautions in the matter of outguards, for of all those within a hundred miles she was perhaps the single one who had not heard of the sinister rumor that was cutting Lang and his men off from the rest of the world.

Men were discussing it wherever they met; the driver they were speculating on the possible results, the same in the railroad towns; across the Idaho line and south into Utah it was the topic of the day. And the single patron of Brill's store found the same question uppermost in his mind.

Carson was one of the many who were neither wholly good nor hopelessly bad, one who had drifted with the easy current of the middle course, and he was wondering if that middle course would continue to prove safe. He played solitaire to pass the time. His horse and saddle had been lost in a stud-poker game just prior to his catching the stage to Brill's, where his credit had always been good. He rose, stretched and accosted Brill.

"Put me down for a quart," he said.

"Whenever you put down the cash," Brill returned.

"What's the matter with my credit?" Carson demanded. "I've always paid."

Brill reached for a book, opened it and slid it onto the bar. He dipped the pages and indicated a number of accounts ruled off with red ink.

"So did Harper," he said. "He always paid; and Campbell; and Magill; these others, too. Their credit was good out they've all gone somewhere I can't follow to collect. And they was owing me." He tapped a double account. "Bangs was into me a little—Old Bill paid up for him and then got it in his turn—with his name down for a hundred on my books. Harris and Billie Warren paid up for Rile. Now just whoever do you surmise will pay up for you?"

"Mer' Carson inquired. "Why, I ain't dead. I'm clear alive."

"So was they when I charged those accounts," Brill said. "But it looks like stormy days ahead. I sell for cash."

"I'm not on this death list, is that what you're referring to," Carson announced.

"But it's easy to get enrolled," Brill said. "Your name's liable to show up on it any time. Seen Lang in the last few days?"

"Not in the last few months," Carson stated. "Nor yet in the next few years. He's no friend of mine."

"I sort of remember how used to be right comradely," Brill remarked.

"That's before I really knewe; Lang intimate," Carson said. "He didn't strike me as such a bad sort at first; but now he's going too strong. Folks are getting plum down on him."

"What you mean is that folks who used to be friendly are growing spooky about getting their own names on that list," Brill said. "That's what has opened their eyes."

"Maybe so," the thirty men con- fessed. "But anyway, I'm through."

"They're all through," Brill said. "A hundred others just like you, scattered here and there. It's come to show recent just what a bad lot Lang is. It's not what a whipper can do. It is when that whipper is backed by a thousand-dollar reward," Carson agreed. "If he really pays up it'll wreck Lang's little snip for sure."

Brill dabber his cloth at an imaginary spot on the polished slab and nodded without comment.

"I reckon he launched that scheme because Slade put a price on him first," Carson said.

"I didn't know Slade was into this," Brill stated softly. "There's no proof of that. Not a shred."

"No more than there's any proof that Harris is behind these rewards," Carson said. "But you know that Slade is out to wreck the Three Bar since they've planted squatters there."

The storekeeper failed to respond. "There's likely a dozen men looking for Harris' right now," Carson prophesied.

"But it's hard for one of 'em to get within ten miles of the ranch," Brill observed. "So while they're maybe looking for him, it's right difficult to a him that far off."

"I don't mind admitting that I'm for Harris—as against Slade," Carson said.

"Just between us two I don't mind confessing that I'm neutral—as against everything else," Brill returned.

"Now you know how I'm lined up. Do I get that quart?" Carson urged.

"I knew now you was lined up months back," Brill turned on a dry smile.

"I ain't told a soul till right now," Carson objected. "So how could you know?"

"You didn't need to tell. As soon as that rumor leaked out it was a cloch where you'd stand. Add a hundred others are crowding on to the same toothhold along with you."

"And why not?" Carson demanded. "Who wants to get a thousand plastered on his scalp? It would tempt a man's best friends."

"Or scare 'em off," the storekeeper commented. "Which is all the same in the end."

A half dozen men clattered up in front and surged through the door. More arrivals followed as the regular afternoon crowd gathered before the bar. There were many jobless hands drifting from one ranch to the next, "grubbing" on each brand for a week, or more at a time during the slack winter months.

Carpenter rode up alone. Brill lowered one lid and jerked his head toward Carson.

"Broke—and reformed," he said. "Maybe."

Some minutes later Carp bought the thirsty man a drink.

"You looking for a job?" he asked. "I can use you down my way."

Carson was well versed in the bends of the devious trail and Carp's ways amarked of irregularities. Carson had ideas of his own why the other man was allowed to start up an outfit down in Slade's range. One day Carp's game would be cited on the black list. As diplomatically as possible he refused the offer of a job.

The storekeeper smiled as he noted this. Carson had turned into a solid citizen almost overnight. As Carp left him and joined another group Brill poured Carson a drink.

"You're a fair risk at that—as long as you stay cautious," he remarked. "I'll stake you to a horse and saddle. You can ride the grubline with the rest of the boys till spring and get a job when work opens up." He slid a bottle across the bar. "Here's your quart."

He stood looking after him as Carson moved to a table and motioned several others to join him over the bottle.

"That's about the tenth reformation that's transpired under my eyes in as many days," Brill mused. "Give us time and the community will turn pure and spotless. I don't mind any man's owing me if he stands a fair show to go on living."

The sheriff dropped in for one of his infrequent visits to Brill's. He waved his hands to a drink.

"I've just been out to the Three Bar to see Harris," he announced. "And asked him about this news that's been floating about. He came right out flat and says he's not offering a reward. That's all a mistake."

Every man in the room grinned at this statement. There was no other possible reply that Harris could make.

"Of course," the sheriff said reflectively. "Of course there's just a chance that Cal lied to me."

"He lied all right," Carp prophesied. "I'd bet my shirt he'll stand to pay the price for every man that's cited on that list."

"Pshaw," the sheriff deprecated. "That's dead against the law, that is."

"He will do it," Carson predicted.

"If I was on that list I'd be moving for somewhere a long ways remote from here."

"Then you'd better be starting," Aiden counseled mildly. "For Harris was just telling me that your name had got mixed up with it. Morrow's name has sprung up, too. Cal seemed mystified as to how it had come about, for he says you and Morrow never rode with the others on the list. He couldn't figure how this thing come to start."

"Figure!" Carp snapped. "He figured it out himself, who else? Are you going to stand for his putting a price on every man he happens to dislike?"

"But he says he don't know anything about it," the sheriff expostulated. "So how can I prove he does? I'd like to know for sure. If I thought he was actually set to pay those rewards I'd have to ride over and remonstrate with Cal."

One or two who had been drinking with Carp moved over to speak with others and failed to return. He was left standing alone at the bar. He shrugged his shoulders and went out.

"Folks are considerable like sheep," Brill observed. It occurred to him that in every saloon and in every bunk house within a hundred miles the topic of conversation was the same.

He lowered one lid as he looked at the sheriff and jerked his head toward Carson.

"He's broke—and reformed," he said. "Absolutely."

The sheriff drew Carson aside. "If you're wanting a job I'll stake you to an outfit and feed you through till spring. Forty a month from then on. I'll need a parcel of deputies, likely, after that."

"You've got one," Carson stated. "I'll sign now."

The storekeeper, the sheriff and the new deputy stood at one end of the bar.

"It's queer that folks don't see the real object of this rumor," Brill observed.

"It's object is to clean out the hardest citizens in the country," Carson said. "That's why they're named 'Why else?'"

"The object is to clean up the rest of the country first," Brill said. Carson granted his disbelief.

"If Harris only wanted to wipe out those on the list he wouldn't go to all this fuss," Brill explained. "He'd just put on an extra bunch of hands and raid the Breaks himself. Sweet he caught them running off a bunch of Three Bar cows. Simpler and considerable less expense."

"Then what's the object of this bounty?" Carson insisted.

"That's aimed at the doubtful folks," Brill stated. "Folks that was on the fence—like you. This death list makes them spooky and they turn into good little citizens in one round of the clock. It leaves the worst ones outside without a friend. Every one lined up solid behind the law. Public sentiment will start running strong against those outside. Then it'll be easy for the sheriff and a bunch of deputies—like you—to clean the country up from end to end, with the whole community backing your play."

Carson considered this for some time.

"Well, I can furnish the deputies," he said at last. "Boys that are strong for law and order from frat to last."

"I've got about all I need," the sheriff said. "A dozen or so. Mostly old friends of yours. I've picked 'em up on and off in the last two weeks. They're strong for upholding the last letter of the law—just like you said."

"A dozen?" Carson asked. "How'll you raise the money to pay that many at once?"

Life on Earth Before the Cambrian Period

A picture of life as it existed on the earth 600,000,000 years ago has been drawn by Prof. Sir Edgeworth David, Australian scientist.

He has found fossils of animal life in Australia dating back to before the Cambrian period in geology.

Sir Edgeworth, almost by accident, discovered in the rocks of Mount Lofy and in the Flinders ranges of South Australia beautifully colored fossils which, from the strata in which they were found, show that a marine fauna in the early days of the earth's formation had covered a million square miles of what is now Australia.

The fossil life thus represented must have crossed the Pacific ocean. Some of it consists of sandworms and of forms related to crinoids and sponges. Their limbs and shells were formed of a horny substance, and the colors were those of the rainbow.

"I could kick myself that I should have overlooked this obvious discovery for so long," said the professor in announcing it.—London Times.

Man and Lower Animals

Horses do not smoke nor eat meat, yet they suffer from hardening of the arteries. This is a conclusion of the French Society of Comparative Pathology, which is devoted to the study of diseases in man and animal.

Further, animals suffer from emphysema and chronic rheumatism hitherto thought peculiar to man. Not in his ability to imitate an intellect the society having recorded cases of madness in animals and even of voluntary intoxication on substances which inebriate them.—Kansas City Star.

Does Advertising Pay?
Ask Wrye & Foster

Wrye & Foster, the Sierra Vista cream and milkmen, had several hundred thoroughbred white leghorn laying pullets for sale and they advertised them in the Outlook. Within 8 days from the time the paper got into circulation, they had received eight letters, six postal cards, besides phone calls too numerous to mention, one of which came at the midnight hour. It is safe to say that the chickens were all sold and the owners could have disposed of many more, but the lot for sale, vanished quickly and many offers had to be turned down.

Don't fail to see "Alice Jimmy Valentine" at the Crystal Theatre tonight. Good show Saturday.
